The mere act of writing upon a surface that lends itself to the free use of a pen makes letter-writing easier. POPULAR NORTHVILLE TEACHER TO WED DETROIT PASTOR

REV. DOW NAGLE.

The announcement of the engagement of Rev. Dow Nagle of Albion to Miss Grace Pierce of this place made and the wedding it is said, will take place some time this summer.

Mr. Nagle is a recent graduate of the theological department of Albion college and was also a member of the celebrated College Glee club. For nearly a year past he has been pastor of the Tracy M. E. church at Howell, one of Detroit's suburbs, where he has not only become very popular with the people of the whole community but has had a very successful church year as well.

Miss Pierce is a sister of Rev.

MISS GRACE E. PIERCE.

Ralph Pierce of this place with whom she has made her home during her two years as instructor in the Northville High school. She has been exceptionally successful as a teacher and her leaving at the end of this term will be a distinct loss to the school.

The bride-to-be is a very charming and talented young lady, and no teacher or resident of this village has ever gained more friends or won more popularity than she.

Mr. Nagle is receiving congratulations from all sides and Miss Pierce is being showered with countless good wishes as well as with hundreds of more substantial tokens of esteem.

Stella Stark, the two latter being the new members of the board.

The annual reports of the secretary and treasurer showed that the expense of operating the library for the year exceeded the income by about three dollars, an amount which should stimulate those who appreciate what such an institution means to our town to support it more fully in the matter of membership cards, of which eighteen have been issued this year than last. A library of nearly 4,000 volumes with its own building at no cost to the town, is something unusual in a village of this size, and should not only be "pointed to with pride" but should have on its membership list some member of every intelligent family in town, even if they have already read all the thousands of books in it and don't ever want to read any more. Some families, of course, are always on the list for from one to three cards, but many others who are not certainly ought to be, if only to show their appreciation of the work, at the small expense of fifty cents a year. Perhaps a few figures from the annual reports will enlighten some readers as to what is involved in keeping up such a library, outside all the work done by the board of trustees, which is absolutely gratis. For insurance $23.40 was expended, for new books $70.64; repairs on books, $16.60; janitor service during winter (in summer the ladies do most of the janitor work themselves), $19.20, fuel, $26.35; and for work on building and grounds supplies, etc., enough more to make a total of $190.00.

Entertainments have generously been given by friends of the library also by the trustees, the buildings, chairs and tables rented whenever possible, but with all this, as has been shown, expenses have slightly exceeded revenues. The benefits of the library are made easier to attain, from the fact that children may take out cards on the installment plan, paying five cents a week. Many expensive histories and other reference works, both old and new are available to patrons, as well as a wide assortment of fiction for both adults and children, but with all this less than 120 cards are held in a town of 2,000 population.

WARNING NOTICE.

Owing to the prevalence of scarlet fever in this village all parents of children are asked to keep them at home. The first seven grades of our school have been closed and there will be no Sunday school services Sunday. Everything is being done to check this epidemic and keep it from spreading and it is up to the parents to co-operate with the authorities in these necessary preventatives.

HEALTH OFFICER.

Church service and young people's meetings will be held as usual this Sunday, the Sabbath school only being omitted.

F. P. SIMMONS' HORSE FOUND AT LAST

Thieves Said to Have Stolen It Have Also Been Arrested.

Search Has Consumed Thousands of Miles in Automobiles.

The horse stolen several weeks ago from Fred Simmons' farm near here was found a few miles from Petoskey Sunday morning by Pontiac officials. Mrs. Myrtle Stewart, wife with her husband, had been employed at the Simmons farm and who left the same time the horse did, was arrested at Millersburg on suspicion she gave the information as to the whereabouts of her husband who it is thought is also implicated who has since been apprehended over in Canada, and brought back to Port Huron for trial.

Deputy Sheriff Furman and Mr. Simmons were successful in locating the horse at a livery barn, where, with the buggy and harness stolen from a farmer near Howell, it had been sold for $125.

According to the officers, Mrs. Robinson tells her story freely, saying that the two took the horse and traveled with it for two nights, spending the days in the woods along the road; that they took the buggy on the second night, and then drove to Petoskey, where they made the sale.

The Northville Protective association was active in the search of the stolen horse and offered one-half of the $125 reward. After a chase of thousands of miles in automobiles, Mr. Simmons again has his horse back on the farm, but little worse for its four weeks' absence.

EDISON COMPANY MAKE OFFER.

Proposition Made to Take Over Northville Electric Light Plant.

The Public Utility commission met with City Attorney Yerkes Monday night to receive and consider a proposition from the Edison Electric company for the purchase of the Northville plant. The Edison company made an offer of $36,000 for the local plant and the Commission thought the offer was a fair one and if a satisfactory franchise can be agreed upon they will recommend that the proposition be submitted to a vote of the people.

The proposition was addressed to the common council and it was considered by that body at a special meeting held last night.

The council also took up the cemetery bridge matter.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the King's Daughters for the beautiful flowers sent to our little son Albert during his illness.

CHAUTAUQUA HERE TO BE A HUMMER

Big Tent Will Seat a Thousand People
Here August 16-20.

Our local Chautauqua is only one of almost seventy which are conducted by the Central System of Indianapolis. Every department is under the direct supervision of an expert. System is the big word in this organization. It is the key-word which explains why so much can be given the public at such a low cost.

Our citizens who have been in close contact with the managers have many times referred to the business ability and careful consideration of details which have marked the preparations already made. That our citizens may get some idea of the enormity of the enterprise which is back of our local Chautauqua we are printing some facts furnished us from the head office.

There are five Chautauquas going on simultaneously in various cities, every day of the season. Six large auditorium tents are used, one in each town. Some of these tents is being put up and another taken down each day. Each tent stays five days in a town. They will each seat a thousand people under the big top, and five hundred more can be accommodated inside the air-domed wall. These tents are absolutely new and guaranteed water-proof. During a rain the audience is as comfortable as under the home roof.

OBITUARY.

Of Mrs. Mary Beal-Norton, whose death was briefly mentioned last week, the following will be of interest: Mrs. Norton's maiden name was Mary A. Beal, and several years of her early life were spent in Northville where she graduated from the High school in 1879, and afterwards attended the U. of M. She was married to Richard B. Norton in 1889, going at once to Arkansas City, Kas., where her husband was engaged in business and where they have resided ever since.

In 1909 her attention was called to the subject of Christian Science. She received great benefits from this and soon began a systematic study of the subject and since that time it was her life work. She received class instructions under Alfred Farlow, and later took an advanced course in Boston, Mass. She was one of the leading ones in establishing First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Arkansas City, and was its leader and first reader for 10 years. She has been a Christian Science practitioner for many years, and always sacrificed her own pleasures for the benefit of all who sought her counsel and aid.

She had high ideas of Loyalty and devoted to her friends she will be missed beyond expression.

FOURTH JULY DOINS.

Races and Ball Games at the Race Course on the Natal Day.

The Race Track association will put on some good horse races and a ball game or two on the 4th of July and those who stay home and those who visit the town may rest assured of being well entertained.

VILLAGE TAXES LOWER.

The village taxes will be a little lower this year, the rate being $8.70 on 1,000 assessed valuation as against $9.40 last year.

The village valuation this year is $922,400, or $75,000 more than last year. The reduction in the rate is brought about by the fact that Assessor Sessions found $75,000 more property to place on the roll this time.

GAS PEOPLE TO MEET.

There will be a meeting of the subscribers to the Plymouth and Northville Gas Co., at the council room, Plymouth, Tuesday evening, June 23, at 7:30 o'clock, to consider matters of importance. The presence of every member is desired. The gas for Northville and Plymouth now looks very promising for an early date and Mr. Fox expects to be able to commence work this summer.

Elmer Perrin was quite shook up one day this week by a fall from the roof of his barn, and his arm was considerably injured.

Chase S Osborn announces that he will make answer within ten days as to whether he will become a candidate for governor. Upon his arrival home from Europe he announced that he could conceive of no crisis which would bring him into the race. Before he reached Detroit he announced that if enough unselfish people asked him to become a candidate he would consider their request. Ten days will now be required to determine whether selfishness of long suffering is paramount in this state. In the meantime we are to conclude that the ranks of the unselfish include every one who does not favor the Soumans candidacy? If so there is a bumper crop in sight. Pontiac Post.

AWELL BALL GAME PLAYED SATURDAY.

Saturday's ball game was a human slaughter. An alleged team of ball players came up from Wayne to tackle the Northville High school nine and the game was about as they did.

After the score was 6 to 1 in Northville's favor, Captain Stumpson gave Pitcher Garfield a rest and let a variety of his players come over the ball. To not have it all on one side the Wayne players were let get a run or two coming in and the Northvillians just went in for hot practice.

If Garfield had stayed on the mound the score would probably have ended at 1 to 21 instead of 8 to 21. Besides the fine pitching of Garfield the catching by Fair was a feature of the game

DO YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY?

IF YOU ACT NOW--HERE IS A GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

As you know, there always comes one time in every man's life when a little money invested wisely will yield great healthy returns, assuming, of course, that you put it into a business that is steadily growing and yielding ever increasing profits.

NOW, everybody knows the immense fortunes that have been made by the great mail order houses. Just think what YOU would be worth if you could have bought a block of Sears, Roebuck & Co., or Montgomery Ward stock a few years ago. These companies have grown from small beginnings, to such enormous proportions that it is hard for the average person to even comprehend it. It is known that when the Sears, Roebuck Co. was re-organized, a few years since, that Mr. Sears took $45,000,000 out of the business, after which the corporation was re-organized at $50,000,000 and all this stock was taken up by Wall Street within a few hours. This stock paid 22 2/3 per cent last year, and today there is not a share that can be purchased at any price. The Cuzzen & Fearn Co., of Columbus, Ohio, a comparatively new company, paid their stockholders a dividend of 40 per cent last year. The growth of the mail order business and the wonderful profits made by these companies reads like a tale from the "Arabian Nights" rather than a story of everyday business success.

WHAT DOES THIS MEAN TO YOU!

Here is your opportunity if you act NOW—your chance to own stock in one of the most rapidly growing Mail Order Houses in the country. The F. B. Ensley Company has met with wonderful success. It is located in Detroit, a logical center for a Mail Order House, due to its extraordinary shipping facilities. The business is in active operation and shows an average monthly increase of over 20 per cent during the past year.

Now, in order to take care of this enormous increase, and to put it in a position to take on additional lines and meet the wants of the trade, the company offers for sale a limited amount of the stock of this company. The stock of this company is all common stock, non-assessable. There is no Preferred Stock, no Promotion Stock, no Water—nothing but a clean, honest, business-like proposition.

Par value of these shares are $10.00 each and stock will be sold at par only. It is one of the cleanest, straightest business chances ever offered the investor.

The Company refer you to Mich. Farmer, or the Gleaner or either of the commercial agencies for special information and invite the most rigid investigation in every respect, both of the company itself, and of the men who are behind it and who are directing its business course.

Mr. F. B. Ensley, the man who founded this company and who directs the financial affairs will be in Northville, at the Park House, on Friday and Saturday of this week for the express purpose of talking this proposition over with those who are interested.

An investment NOW, means that you get in on the ground floor, and as the company grows, you and your profits grow with it. Don't be one of those who will say a year from now, "I could have made a lot of money in the F. B. Ensley Company if I had invested last year."

It's a straight, clean proposition all through. It's the first opportunity you have had to invest in Mail Order Stock in an active, successful company. Are you going to take advantage of it? It will PAY YOU to meet Mr. Ensley this week at the Hotel and talk business with him, while you have the chance.

Saturday wasn't a very good day for fishing, but Caral Benton tried it over at Cooley lake, long enough to catch over a hundred. Eighty-four of them were blue gills, and the rest several different kinds, including a dozen big perch, most of them over a foot long.

With both the exterior and interior of the D. U. R. waiting room and restaurant freshly painted, a newly built balcony and up-to-date window signs that building adds greatly to the appearance of Northville's business section. The office building next door has also received a share of the paint.

The fact that so comparatively few flags were displayed in our village on flag day was probably due to the date falling on Sunday. Folks didn't seem to know whether it would be proper to make a patriotic display on the Sabbath or not. Just as if Old Glory were not an honor to any day in the week!

About twenty young ladies were very pleasantly entertained by the O. S. club at the home of Mrs. James Heeney Monday evening. The guest of honor was Miss Grace Pierce who, by the aid of a lantern, explored the lawn for packages containing shower gifts, which proved, when all rounded up, to be both beautiful and useful. Light refreshments were served by the hostesses, the Misses Helen Eullis, Anna Johnson, Garnet Burt, Margaretha Weiler and Florence Miller.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS.

W. L. TINHAM, C. C.

C. B. Bristol, K. of R. & S.

Mrs. Ray VanValkenburg and Miss Jessie Clark entertained at a kitchen shower for Miss Grace Pierce Wednesday evening at the home of the former. The affair was a very enjoyable one.

The K. P. Memorial services held in the Presbyterian church Sunday afternoon were largely attended both by members of the order and by residents of the town. The address delivered by Rev. Jacques of Detroit was one of the finest ever heard here.

The marriage of Miss Ruth Barley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Barley, of Pontiac to Frank Lawson of the same city, will occur Wednesday, June 24, at the bride's home. Mr. Barley and family were formerly Northville residents, he being a son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Barley of this place.

The State Dairy and Food department is advising meat dealers to protest against the practice of the wholesalers in wrapping hams in heavy paper before weighing, as by this means the butcher buys about four pounds of paper with every 100 pounds of meat. The commissioner brands the practice as unquestionably illegal.

Last week Mrs. Frank Grey solicited subscriptions among the business men for the Northville city band and secured about seventy dollars, for which she certainly deserves much credit. It is now an assured thing that the band will play on the street Saturday nights, which will be highly pleasing to both citizens and business people of Northville.

Children's day was most fittingly observed in the Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist churches. Sunday Exercises were held at the former church in the morning while the others took place in the evening. Each little tot was excited and happy over "being in" the songs and recitations and presented the most beautiful of pictures. All three programs were enjoyable and well given, reflecting a great deal of credit on those who had charge, as well as the children for their work and interest.

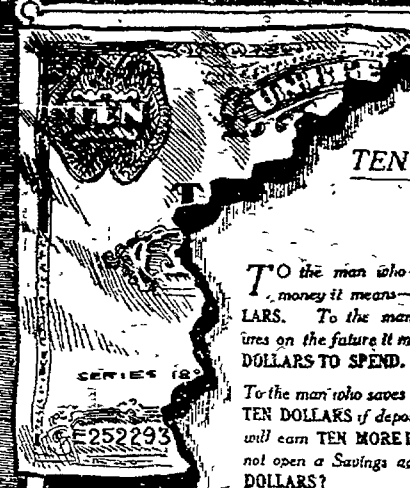

The recital given under the auspices of the June division of the M. E. Ladies Aid in that church last Friday evening was very much worth while. An orchestra of mandolin, guitar, violin, played by Mrs. Wilson and her three daughters of Detroit played a number of selections, both classic and popular, and Mrs. Elizabeth Emory also of Detroit, rendered several solos, accompanied by Spencer Heeney. A group of readings by Mrs. M. Pierce were also well rendered. The society added a neat sum to the treasury.

The first annual banquet of the Northville Queen Esther Circle took place in the Methodist church Tuesday evening, with the United Plymouth Circle as guests. About thirty members of the local order and fifteen from the neighboring city were present together with Mrs. Trollope of Detroit, president and Mrs. Hudd of Plymouth, vice-president of the Detroit District Missionary society. Both ladies addressed the gathering while toasts were given by the Misses Blanche Clark and Madeline Barnum and responded to by Plymouth members. The affair was a decided success.

The State Dairy and Food commissioner has issued a statement to Michigan housekeepers informing them that whenever they send ordinary two-quart Ball Bros. fruit can to be filled with vinegar, molasses or other liquid, they get "just" a half pint less than they pay for, as the cans are just that amount shy. After publication of the statement by the department, Ball Bros. Glass Mfg. Co. notified the commissioner's office that they had decided to alter their practice so that the half gallon cans hereafter manufactured will be of full capacity. This, however, will not help out any on the old ones, not bring back all those lost half pints.

A committee has been appointed to raise enough money to secure the services of the band for the balance of the season. Manager Porter states that the boys will be willing to play every Saturday night for $14 a night and the committee thought the required amount could be raised.

The ohing of the streets by Eugene Sackett of Plymouth under direction of Marshall Bogart was exceptionally well done, and the street committee is to be congratulated. Another splendid feature was the sprinkling of fine gravel over the oil on Main and Center streets, the idea of Commissioner Cochran. The cross walks about the village have also been nicely fixed up.

The Temptation of Father O'Flynn

By PHILIP VERRILL MIGHELS

(Copyright The Frank A. Munsey Co.)

For the third time the friendly red men from the unknown peaks had come to the desert mission with a basket of lustrous virgin gold as a present to Father O'Flynn, in token of their gratitude for his many kindly deeds.

What a beautiful, exciting show it made! The flakes, the leaves, the wondrous forms, untarnished, gleaming, fresh from the workshop of the gnomes of earth! What treasures of wealth must lie afar in those inaccessible hills for the Indians to bring it forth so readily! What tales had been told of the vastness of the riches there, denied to all save these, the draky guardians of its secret source!

Old Scar-Face, weary with his many years, stood smiling in his silent way as the priest received the gift. For Father O'Flynn he entertained a genuine affection, grounded on ten years of more or less constant association. He spoke as the mouthpiece for the tribe.

"These are Injun's present," he said. "Heap good!"

His eyes twinkled as he watched the gleam reflected from the glinting gold in the churchman's kindly face. "Beautiful! Beautiful!" murmured Father O'Flynn. "Indians all my good brothers!"

For a moment he looked into the beaming eyes of the donor, and then his glance stole away to the great slope of arid land whereon his one bright dream had always focused.

In imagination he saw the sagebrush acreage transformed by the magic of his powers. He saw a huge church of imposing masonry risen from the earth. He pictured the low stone houses of the mission, clustered near; he fancied the barren waste a curve of living greenery, with orchards, vineyards, fields, and lowing kine, for a mile or more around. He saw the faint green waterway—the long canal to bring the precious water to the land, winding in a tortuous belt about the hills. He smelled the scent of clover in the air, where bees should hum at their plunder. Across some inward sense of his soul there crept the sweet chimings of the vesper bells.

This gold—this wondrously mountain hidden gold that lay in some rock vault, far from the white man's touch—how quickly, such a miracle this could achieve his dream upon the plain! The awful already supplied by his friends was nothing but a hint of what he needed to attempt his mighty work.

Why should the mountains guard from him the secret of their hoard? The Indians were his beloved friends, and in the end would be his benefactors. There would be the missions, the herds, the orchards, the houses, the fields of waving grain. What a wondrous exchange he could give them for the secret of their wordless, hidden mine! True life, true goodness, true plenty, true content—all for the yellow dress lying useless in the mill!

How sore was the priest's temptation no man may tell. His mouth was dry and his voice as hoarse as with a new eagerness of purpose, he turned again upon Old Scar-Face.

"My friends have never told me where they get the gold," he said. "I heap like to see where it comes from. Indians show I am their brother. Will you take me there to see?"

"Yes, Injun take um," said old Scar-Face readily, pursing up his mouth as if to whistle, but making no musical sound. Then he added quietly: "Heap take to see um, but git um blindfolded on the eye, all way up there all way back."

The good father's heart gave a mighty leap in his bosom. They would take him there—blindfolded, to be sure, lest he note the devious trails by which the place was reached; but they would take him. That was enough, for the rest he was sure he could put his trust in heaven.

His breath came fast as his hand fell upon his rosary.

"Tomorrow I go. You take me there," he said.

"Tomorrow," answered Scar-Face. With all his gold hidden, and with many special prayers for celestial guidance in his quest, Father O'Flynn made ready for his trip that very afternoon. At 4 o'clock young Manuel rode over to see him from the valley far beyond. In the heart of the land some young horseman were much love and much anxiety; in his purse were little money and even less of hope.

"My horse should be named Despair," he said, "for I live so much in his company. I fear my marriage with Papinta may be presently impossible, since I lack so much of the price to buy a ranch and her father would wed her to a gringo."

"Then cheer up, lad," said Father O'Flynn. "Sure, tomorrow it's myself that's making a special pilgrimage to gratify the saints, and 'twill be no surprise if they smile upon your troubles."

"Where are you going?" said the visitor eagerly. "May you not need a friend to go along?"

"Not at all, at all! I shall be with my friends," the priest replied. "I've no permission to take along a guest—nothing at all but my rosary. But after that—perhaps next day—who knows, my son, sure it may be you and I must ride to the mountains together!"

morning, the Indians and Father O'Flynn set solemnly forth on horses to the barren mountains that held the secret of the gold. For an hour or more they made their way into the well-known passes. Then a halt was called; the good priest's eyes were carefully bandaged, and for many a rough and rugged mile he rode as one doomed to utter darkness.

But, ah, for the wiles that temptation may suggest! Playing upon his well-worn rosary, his fingers told off prayer on prayer, the while his patient horse was stumbling forward; and all the while he slipped bead by bead from the long, stout cord, to drop them by the way. He prayed for assistance, for light in the gloom, for heavenly help in his labor. He prayed for special forgiveness of his sins, in case his actions should appear dubious or unacceptable in the sight of heaven. He prayed for the Indians, and prayed for himself—all the while dropping his beads upon the earth. He prayed for nearly everything—a long, long chain of prayers—but mostly he prayed for guidance—guidance to the mines, which the telltale beads that blazed the trail would furnish on the following day.

It was a long journey, but the rosary was also long—and the fathers' prayers were exhaustless. Shortly after noon they arrived at the place, and the blindfold was lifted at last.

It was not much to see that fabled place of gold. Such virgin deposits are never vast in size. In an ancient working, covered up with sand, was bedded the seam of gleaming metal—a narrow, crooked lodgment of the gold, where it seemed as if the lightnings of the gods had some time struck and then remained immobilized—forever prisoned in the adamant a cold and solid stream of fire, to glow in its matrix throughout all the ages of eternity.

Father O'Flynn felt beads of sweat creep out upon his ample brow. His church, fields, houses—all were here, reduced to sovereign metal! It was all he could do to contain his excitement. He tried to look about the place, and "mark down" the vital position; but alas! in all that wilderness of bare and broken rock he was as helpless as a child. But then, thank the saints, the rosary beads were strewn faithfully along the winding trail, and on these and his prayers he even at last, he was ready to depart with his friends, and was once more made sightless for the trail, he carried away but a pocketful of gold, since he must not appear too covetous of that which was not yet his own. It was long after dusk when at length he was back at his modest little hut, a weary man but unharmed and with a pocket full of gold.

Young Manuel was waiting in the shade of Father O'Flynn's hut when the only ride up to the back. Wholly at a loss to understand what such a proceeding as this might signify, he saw the bandage taken from the good man's eyes by the silent old Scar-Face, grown indignantly alive.

"Father—father—why, where have you been?" cried the young man, eagerly assisting the priest from the saddle. "You ride home thus, I can no understand. Perhaps the sun has hurt your eyes?"

"Ah, give yourself no worry, lad," said Father O'Flynn, with his cheeriest smile. "Sure all day long I've been taking a ride with my friends and my brothers, but I'm pledged my son not to answer as to where we have been, at all, at all or what has been blowing in the wind."

He stood on his old legs somewhat stiffly, since for many a month he had taken no such exercise. Old Scar-Face, near by, was fumbling in a pocket of his coat. He presently drew forth a grimy buckskin pouch that bulged out to generous proportions. Then into a gourd that was hanging by the door he deliberately poured the bag's hoardings. The contents rattled out in a lively chase—a dusty lot of units, marble-like and round, all from Father O'Flynn's depleted rosary.

"You heap lose um beads," the wrinkled old red man said to the priest without the least suggestion of a smile upon his face. "Injun heap find um—ketch um all!"

Father O'Flynn nearly dropped in his tracks. Not a word would arise to his moving lips, but his weariness decreed upon him like a sword of lead, and he sank on the bench before his door.

Once more old Scar-Face dragged out a bag, this one containing a modest gift of gold. He placed it in the lustless hands that had prayed off the beads along the trail and from out his store of wisdom, culled for many weary years, he observed, laconically: "Little bit gold pretty good, big pile gold pretty bad; damn big lot gold—all same hell!"

The vision of the gleaming fields, the great stone church, the clustered houses—all, all had faded from the gray and barren slope, leaving for the weary priest less than nothing, save a sickly thought of temptation too great to be resisted, and a conscience somewhat sore.

Later, when the Indians had taken his blessing and departed on their way, Father O'Flynn brought forth his hoard of gold and placed it all in the strong hands of the youth who was looking forward to his mating with Papinta.

"Take it and buy you a ranch," he said, in his old-time kindness of spirit, and remember, my son, it's myself that indorses what old Scar-Face remarked concerning the gold—though not, of course, precisely in his language!"

WANTS $50,000 FROM ILLINOIS OFFICIAL; HE WED HER ILLEGALLY; THEN BALKED

Chicago—(Special)—Revelations of a thrilling character are promised by James J. Brady, auditor of the commonwealth of Illinois, when the breach of promise suit which his wife has started against him comes to trial. The plaintiff, Mary Quinlan Kuhn-Brady, also promises to make the hearing exceedingly sensational.

It doesn't often happen that a wife sues her husband for breach of promise. Here's how it came to pass in this case:

Charles Kuhn was divorced by his wife, Mary Quinlan Kuhn, on April 28, 1913. Two days later she eloped with the state auditor. They were secretly married on April 28, 1913. However, the divorce law of the state of Illinois may not marry within one year of the date of the divorce.

Balked on Second Marriage. Mary Quinlan Kuhn-Brady says the state auditor promised to remarry her after the elapse of a year. This second marriage would stand according to the law of the state. The date for the second marriage was May 1. Now she says Mr. Brady has grown tired of her. He refuses to go through the second ceremony. This constitutes breach of promise to marry. Therefore she wants $50,000 for breach of promise.

She says the trouble began when bosses of the Sullivan wing of the Democratic party ordered her husband to get rid of her for political expediency. She quotes Brady in this order: "Get out of here! You aren't my wife, anyway!"

Mrs. Brady has told an interesting story concerning her relations with the Illinois state official, but she says she is keeping almost everything back.

"I met Mr. Brady while he was a telegraph operator and when I saw Mrs. Kuhn," she did consent to say: "I met him conventionally, and there was no marked impression at the time. I am not going to tell you just how it all happened, but I must do him justice to say he did not break up Mr. Kuhn's home."

"He Treated Me Awfully." "We went to Springfield after we were married and established a home there at 721 South Douglas street. Mr. Brady got to drinking and he treated me awfully. I can't tell you all the awful things he did to me."

"Of course I have a temper, too," the slight blonde young wife added with the most engaging smile. "I will really have to tell you that once I threw an alarm clock at him and broke it on the wall."

"When Mr. Brady got to drinking he was not himself. He once tried to choke me and if it hadn't been that somebody came to the door just then I don't know what would have happened. He saw them coming and put his arms around me like he was petting me—he certainly is clever."

Drinks Case of Beer in Day? "We went down to Atlantic City together and he drank up a whole case of beer in one afternoon between 3 o'clock and dinner time. He had the bathroom looking like a refrigerator."

"It was the same way at the home in Springfield. He used to accuse me of hiding the beer opener on him and said I was trying to keep the beer for myself. I went out and broke all the bottles on the floor, I got so angry. I showed him."

"Then he got to waking up in the night and telling me the story of his life—and it was an awful story."

"It was only a little while after we were married that he came to me and said right out, 'Say, they can't sue a man for breach of promise after he's married, can they?' I told him, 'Sure they can if he has promised to marry another girl.' He got so excited about that it seemed to shock him."

"Then after that he told me a girl named Myrtle in Chicago was after him and that she was put up to it by a certain man and his wife. He told me he went to Roger Sullivan and got this man a job in the courts to keep him quiet."

Names a Resortkeeper. "Then he told me about another girl. I think he named her Marie Otis—or something like that. She kept a resort at 1245 West Madison street over Cella's saloon. Brady used to tend bar there and she came down and broke up the bar for him one morning because he didn't call often enough."

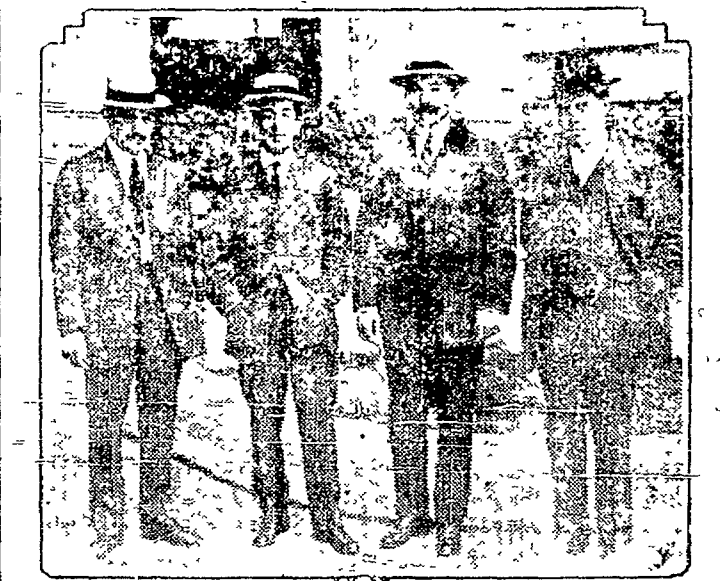

"Did he tell you right out that he married you to escape a breach of promise suit?" Mrs. Brady was asked. "Yes, he did."

"We were getting along like that when Mr. Brady got Mr. Kuhn to take a job in the auditing department at Springfield. Mrs. Kuhn thought I was back of it, but he did not know then that I was married to Mr. Brady. At last he took the job. Mr. Brady also got a job for an uncle of mine in Springfield. They come into the story later."

At the state capital Brady refuses to say anything, except that the breach of promise suit against him "was inspired by Republican politicians, that Mrs. Kuhn-Brady's statements are fabrications, and that he'll show her up when the time comes. He denies that he will resign his job, which is one of the most important within the gift of the people of the state of Illinois."

"I was a telegrapher, and a good one," declared Brady in a recent statement. "I was a bartender and a good one. I am responsible for the office of the state auditor. When I talk about this lady I will do so under oath."

Of danger of worse kidney trouble. Here's convincing testimony. John Humes, retired railroad engineer, 554 Fourth St., Monroe, Mich., says: "Kidney trouble came on me gradually and I got pretty bad before I paid much attention to it. The kidney secretions were highly colored and too frequent in passage. I was obliged to get up several times at night. I suffered from severe backache and constant pains through my kidneys. When I bent over, I could hardly straighten up again. I was in bad shape and used different remedies, but nothing seemed to help me. URGES EARLY SWAT OF THE FLY FAMILY

Dairy and Food Commissioner Tells of Their Birth Places.

The fly is born in a manure pile. He hatches out when young, and like most youngsters he fails to rise above his environment. There is no place too filthy to repel a fly. He has six legs with 162 hairs on each leg and a small sponge on the bottom of each foot.

In the garbage can, or open privy vault, or on a decayed cat or rat, he wades around soaking his feet and covering his hairy legs with filth. Then he flies into the dining room and proceeds to scrape off his legs on the bread and wash his feet in the milk. If you don't like this, get a swatter and try to be a fly Cobb in the Pure Food League. The nearer your swatting average comes to 1000 in June, the less exercise you will have in July swatting flies.
