SATURDAY'S STORM WAS SOME SCARY

Lightning Capered Around Town in a Lively Manner.

Saturday evening's terrific electric storm, besides scaring a good many folks nearly to death, caused many minor inconveniences here, but fortunately no serious damage. Trees were struck by the lightning near George Stanley's and W. H. Ambler's residences, also in other places in town and poles were struck in various portions of the village. Electric lights went out on some streets, necessitating the hunting up of lamps, (most of which were of course found to be oil-less). One housewife triumphantly produced a red candle, which she lighted as a slight antidote to the intense darkness.

A number of people received considerable electric shocks during the few minutes' rapid bombardment of the town by the artillery of nature but no one was injured. The only real damage was suffered by the telephone company, a lot of phones being entirely put out of commission and many others more or less damaged. As so frequently happens, Northville was so fortunate as to escape what in adjacent localities was a destructive storm. At Walled Lake and other neighboring points, the wind uprooted trees, destroyed fences and injured crops.

SALEM'S CARNIVAL AND BABY SHOW

Despite Rain and Mud Twan Pulled Off Saturday.

The Northville ladies who went over to Salem Saturday to act as judges in the Children's Carnival given by the Sunshine Circle of the Salem Baptist Aid Society, came to the conclusion that for enterprise, enthusiasm and hustle no church workers anywhere have anything on the Salem ladies.

When they have an affair scheduled not even the elements can prevent the carrying out of their plan. Having decided on having the said Northville judges, when the heavy rain of Saturday forenoon interfered with the intended transportation facilities, one of our local liveries promptly notified

NOTED WESTERN REFORM GOVERNOR WHO WILL SPEAK SECOND DAY OF CHAUTAUQUA.

GOVERNOR ROBERT S. VESSEY.

THE demand has grown among the Chautauqua patrons for at least one "headliner" upon each program. While the term admits of various meanings, it is generally understood that a "headliner" is a man who has achieved pre-eminence in some field of human affairs. To have been the governor of a sovereign state ought to entitle any man to prominence enough. But to have been twice governor confers more than double honor and distinction, also to have been a governor universally loved and respected at the close of his two administrations is cause for lifelong gratification. Governor Robert S. Vessey, ripe in years, rich in experience and humanitarian in purpose, came to the Chautauqua platform two years ago to give to the great audiences a few principles of conduct which he estimates are worth "thinking over." Governor Vessey denies that he is an orator. He modestly says his purpose is simply to emphasize some wholesome but homely truths which he believes will if followed out lead to a better world and better people. In the truest sense of the word we believe that he is an orator. He is a stalwart defender of the home, the school and the church. He is interested in the young. He honors the aged. He was the first governor of the United States to proclaim "Mother's day" a legal holiday. He is the enemy of graft, corruption and dishonesty. In his rugged though kindly fashion he wields sledgehammer blows at all that has the appearance of evil. His audiences love the man, heed his messages and heartily approve his lectures. No one should miss hearing Governor Vessey on the second night of our Chautauqua.

WITH CENTRAL CHAUTAUQUA MEET IN NORTHVILLE, AUG. 17-21.

by telephone to "get busy," and the judges-to-be, Mesdames Harmon, Neal and Harmon, were delivered by automobile at the appointed place half an hour ahead of the appointed time.

The carnival was held in the Salem town hall—which would be a credit to a much larger village—and on a prettily arranged and decorated table were a display of prizes that also would have been creditable to a much larger affair than this one even pretended to be, and this in addition to a number of cash rewards offered.

The contest included, besides a "baby show," recitations and songs, essays on "Why Salem should have a Home-Coming," free-hand drawings, home-made candies, needlework and home-baking. All the contestants in the various tests of skill and ability were under 14 years of age, and those entering for songs and recitations were under seven.

Extremely excellent talent was displayed in every class, and honors were so evenly deserved that, fortunately for the judges' peace of mind, the classifications made it possible for practically all the young contestants to share in the distribution of the awards. The especially fine quality of the baked goods submitted by the little Salem girls impelled the Northville ladies to purchase some of the delicious cakes to bring home.

A small admission fee, was charged at the door, and ice cream and wafers were on sale, afternoon and evening.

The judges were charmingly treated, and are sincerely hoping that the Circle "made good," even in spite of the forenoon and evening storms.

DETROIT-NORTHVILLE TO HAVE REUNION

ONE TO BE HELD ON BELLE ISLE
ON JULY 11TH.

Proposed to Make This an Annual Affair.

For some time past there has been talk of a Northville-Detroit residents' picnic on Belle Isle. On Tuesday afternoon six former Northville ladies now residents of Detroit, held a meeting and decided to call a basket picnic for Northville-Detroit people on Saturday, July 11. The meeting place will be in the covered pavilion just north of the aquarium on Belle Isle at 10 o'clock in the morning, lunch to be eaten at 1:00 o'clock. All present inhabitants of Northville as well as those now living in Detroit are urged to join in the fun of this reunion picnic. A list of 150 families of former Northville folks, now of Detroit, is in the hands of the committee, but in order to prevent missing a single eligible person the public is asked to co-operate in spreading the news of the date, place and purpose of this meeting.

The ladies who have started the ball rolling for this commendable enterprise are May White VanAken, 54 Rosedale Court, Prudence Pierce Towar, 192 Cameron, Nellie Waid Woodman, 190 Clairmont, Fanny VanZile, 233½ Hubbard, Marquita Walling, 349 Pennsylvania, and Louise Beal Chadwick, 309 Perry West. Each was formerly a resident of this place.

Let's all boost.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to express my sincere thanks to my many friends, both in Northville and Detroit, for their manifestations of sympathy and acts of kindness performed during my recent illness and convalescence; also for the beautiful flowers sent to me.

MRS. IDA HENDRYX.

MAIDEN SAVED BY A HAIR'S BREADTH

NORTHVILLE MAN MAKES HEROIC RESCUE FROM DEPTHS OF WALLED LAKE.

Two weeks ago, one would hardly have picked Ben Gilbert for one of the contestants for a life-saving medal, and behold, as in the twink of an eye, and because of the stability of woman's crowning beauty, a dainty maiden is snatched from the wetso, wetness of Walled Lake.

It happened like this: Ben and a couple of couples were resting from a auto ride, in one of the Cafe's on the shore at Walled Lake, a few evenings ago. In the midst of the clatter of silver spoons, ice cream and china dishes a splash was heard—a huge splash—followed by a scream of "Help, I'm drowning!" The splash was still echoing along the shore when Ben reached the docks. There, struggling in the huge lake with miles of water in front of her was a dainty golden haired lass of seventeen summers. Ben had thrown off his coat as he ran in the direction of the piercing splash, and it was but the work of an instant for him to plunge in to rescue the still struggling maiden. Grasping her by the hair there was a pull for the shore. The hair held and Ben, never losing his presence of mind, and cheered on by the crowd which had by this time collected along the docks, at last hauled the fair maid to within reach of the shore throng when she was quickly placed in Yerkes' red cross auto ambulance and hurried to one of the East side cottages, where it was found that she had been saved by a hair. The Yerkes' impromptu ambulance was full of water by the time it had been returned again to the Cafe and had to be pumped out before the home procedure could be made. Hereafter Mr. Yerkes will insist that before he makes use of his auto as an ambulance, Ben shall first run his drowning nymphs through a wringer.

CLASS OF 1912 SECOND REUNION

ONLY ONE ABSENTEE FROM THE BUNCH OF TWENTY-TWO.

The members of the class of 1912 N. H. S., held a most enjoyable class reunion at Holcomb's cottage, Walled Lake, last Saturday. Gathering at the home of the class president, Harold Turner, they left there at 12:30 in automobiles. The afternoon was taken up with a business meeting, games, visiting and a general good time. At 6 o'clock a four course dinner was served to the twenty-seven guests, including Lulu Dandison and Mr. and Mrs. James Erwin. Mrs. Erwin was formerly Miss Frances Sitlington) of Novi, Retta Pearsall of Salem and Olive Matson, Marge Stark, Ermah Tiffin, Jennie VanSickle, Edna Newson, Margaret Yerkes, Leota Kenyon, and Roy Cray, Scott Dunham and Horace Boyden of Detroit, August Holcomb of Novi and Clyde Schoutz, Ross Dixon, Harold Turner, Charley Johnston, Ray Bogart, Don Ball and Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Stage. Also present were Prof. and Mrs. J. D. LaRue and Miss Helen Bullis, the former and latter being instructors in the High school in 1912. Perry Holmes of Ann Arbor was the only absent member of the class.

Though the storm delayed the homeward trip, the reunion was an exceedingly pleasant one. The 1912 gathering will be held at the home of Margaret Yerkes on the Base Lane.

Plymouth Binder Twine

SAVES TIME AND GRAIN

Twine is a small item, but good twine saves a lot of expense in harvest time. Every time your machine is stopped the delay costs you money. Time in harvest season is always valuable, and sometimes extremely precious on account of the condition of weather or grain. Be sure you use the best twine—PLYMOUTH TWINE. Then you will be safe from the annoyances, delays, expenses, which ordinary twine causes. Plymouth Twine works perfectly in every machine. More of it is made and used every year than any other kind, because it is known to be the best and has been for years. Binds more sheaves with less expense, no knots, no breaks, and is guaranteed full length and extra strength. Get Plymouth Twine from the local dealer. Look for the wheat-sheaf tag.

LONELY GIRL INSANE WITH FRIENDS NEAR

Young Immigrant Loses Her
Mind After Long Suffering
Among Strangers

HER UNCLE APPEARS TOO LATE

Merchant of Whom She Knew Nothing
Learned of Case Through Newspapers
and Offered Aid.

New York—Officials of the New York State Bureau of Industries and Immigration were discussing with sympathetic interest the case of Miss Minnie Baden, a 20-year-old immigrant girl from Kutna, Poland, whose social isolation of four months in this city had driven her insane. To add to the tragedy of the girl's case, was the discovery that within a day's journey, a home and welcome were awaiting her with relatives of whose existence she had no knowledge.

Charles Masl, who receives most of the complaints lodged with the bureau in the headquarters, at 95 Madison avenue, was reviewing a long line of newly-arrived aliens and carefully noting grievances, when an attractive young woman of peasant type, clad in the garb of a Polish Jewess, pushed her way through the patiently waiting throng and fell sobbing on her knees before Masl's desk.

"Kutna, Kutna," she moaned. "Send me back to Kutna, where my father and mother live. Send me back to my brother and my two sisters. Let me see my friends. I am going insane from loneliness."

According to the girl's narrative, she arrived in this country four months ago on the steamship Kaiser Friedrich der Grosse. Returned immigrant girls had told of the high wages paid in this country as household servants. Shortly after her admission to the United States from Ellis Island she obtained employment as a servant in a family on Second avenue through a Polish employment agency at a minimum wage.

"I could not understand what the people I worked for said to me," said the distressed girl. "No one understood what I said to them. I was afraid to walk far from the house, for fear I should get lost. All the time I was lonely—so very lonely—with me were good to me. They bore with me until I began to wake every one up at night crying and laughing. I could not sleep without dreaming that I was back in Kutna, then I would wake up and I would cry and laugh. Nothing could stop me. Then they put me out. After I lost my job I went to a boarding house to live where the people spoke Polish, but they laughed at my clothes and at my shoes. What I talked about Kutna, they would just say 'Greenhorn' and 'Silly.' They did not care. They talked Polish but they did not care, and that made me more lonely than ever. Now I think that I am going crazy. My head is dizzy and my heart is hurt. I must go back to Kutna."

Mr. Hollister reported the girl's case to the Bureau of Industries and Immigration of the department of education of the bureau and at his recommendation the girl was taken to the government of charities at the foot of West Twenty-sixth street. There it was suggested that she be committed to Bellevue Hospital.

In the meantime the State Bureau of Industries and Immigration communicated with the Federal Immigration authorities at Ellis Island with a view to having the girl deported and sent back in safety to her native village. It was also deemed wise to make known the girl's plight through some of the foreign language newspapers in order to make certain whether or not she had any friends or connections in this country. This was thought to be a forlorn hope, but it bore fruit in the form of this letter.

New York State Bureau of Industries and Immigration: Gentlemen—I am an uncle of Miss Minnie Baden of Kutna, Poland, in reference to whom there appeared an article in the Jewish Morning Journal at your request. I understand that one of your officials took her to the Department of Charities, from where she was taken to Bellevue Hospital. I wish to advise you that you should not take any steps to send her back to Poland, as I am willing to take her for care and will be responsible for her. I have already sent word to the Jewish Morning Journal through their Boston agents at 7 Lowell street to this effect, and hope to hear from you very soon.

LOUIS ROSENBAUM,
240 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

Assistant Counsel Jacob Galesstein of the bureau, upon the receipt of this letter, immediately telephoned to Bellevue Hospital to ascertain the condition of the unfortunate girl. He was informed that she had become violently insane and had been sent to the Manhattan State Hospital on Blackwell's Island. In the meantime inquiries concerning Mr. Rosenbaum elicited the information that he was a prosperous merchant in Roxbury.

GLAM DEATH IS NOT PAINFUL

Although Family Fled From Wife
Revealing His Distress

London—The experience of a London man who recovered after several hours in such serious condition that his physicians declared he was dying, seems to explode the theory that is any agony connected with death. His son declares, in an interview in London papers, that through the night his father groaned, panted and breathed with difficulty that members of the family could not remain in the room and witness what they thought was a terrible suffering. Yet in the morning the sick man revived and declared he had spent a comfortable night. One eminent London doctor says:

"The suffering of people about to die is lessened by unconsciousness supervening in a vast majority of cases."

Other physicians declare that death is not painful as they have seen it. When a man is run down by a train or falls from a high building, one physician declares, he does not suffer nearly as much as the spectators. "I am well convinced," he continued, "that if a newly-born infant and a man who has just died could compare their experiences the former would prove to have been the sufferer."

WOMAN FARMS ALONE

Mrs. Charles Broker of Hillsboro,
Kan., Spends Her Spare Time
Hunting

Hillsboro, Kan.—To the fact that she spent most of her life in the open, Mrs. Chas. Broker ascribes her present perfect health. Aged 85 years, this woman is the marvel of the neighborhood where she lives, south of here, alone on a farm. She does all her own farm work, and is Marion County's oldest hunter.

Frequently she takes her shotgun which is an old-fashioned muzzle-loading affair, and tramps off across the fields hunting. She seldom comes home without all the game she can carry, despite the fact that the younger generation, which uses automatic magazine guns, find the game hard to locate.

Coming with her husband to Kan. was more than forty years ago from farm on which she now lives. She became a widow fifteen years ago, and instead of moving to town and trusting the farm to the care of a tenant she decided to remain and run it herself. She works in the fields does the milking and other chores and calls on the neighbors only when the farm work becomes pressing that she cannot do it all without assistance. Her step is quick and she starts an erect as she was when she first began doing men's work.

Scarcely a day passes but she has her life.

TEACHES FIG TO PLAY BALL

Educated Pioneers Play Ball, Run to
First Base With Ears of Corn

Porter, Mo.—W. S. Hodge, a farmer of Porter, Mo., has been so well that he has spent much time in teaching his boys to catch and run base. The education of the pioneers is not as good as yet but nevertheless the boys perform wonderful stunts. When an ear of corn is thrown to the one of the animals will catch it on the fly and run to first base with it. Some catches are made against great odds and at most difficult angles.

WOULD SELL HUSBAND'S BODY

No Good Alive, She Would Profit by His Death

New York—Officials of the Museum of Natural History are pondering over the problem of how they shall answer a letter from a Texas woman who offers the "fleshed" body of her husband for sale.

"He was no good to me when alive and I thought I might make something out of him as a fossil. What will you give for him?" is the gist of her letter.

4-YEAR-OLD WISER THAN A MAN

Needs to See or Hear but Once to Remember—Cannot Read but Knows Most Difficult Words.

Detroit, Mich.—George Herbert Van Vleet, 4 years old, has such an acute mind that he is known as "the boy with the mirror brain." His memory is remarkable. When other babies of his age were crawling and cooing and more often crying, George was talking distinctly.

When he was 16 months old he astonished physicians who had been attracted by stories of his unusual ability when such simple words as spondylitis, polyosteoritis, metapneumonia, lumbago, rolled off his tongue as easily as though they contained but one syllable.

There is not a word in the English language that having heard once, he cannot repeat, with astonishing clearness of enunciation.

George has never been taught to read.

All letters look alike to him when they are coupled together, yet one can take a map of the world, spread it out in front of him, arm him with a toothpick—all genuses have their little eccentricities, and his consists of a "partially for a toothpick to be used as a pointer—and he will indicate every country on the map and name it without a second's hesitation." He knows the capitals of many of these and the chief cities as well.

When it comes to history there is scarcely a question of common knowledge that he is unable to answer. He can name all the Presidents of the United States in order.

In the Van Vleet home is a phonograph, with probably eighty "disc records." Take one of these, mention the piece on the reverse side, and he will immediately tell you the title of the selection, on the reverse, going through the entire list without faltering.

His familiarity with colors is no less astonishing, it being impossible to puzzle him in defining even the most delicate shades.

And he imparts this information with no airs. He never volunteers to display his powers but upon request provides a demonstration that is as touching.

IN GOOD HEALTH DIES

Strength of Man of 96 Years Falls,
Though He Is Sound Physically and Mentally

Boulder, Col.—Without disease of any kind and with all his organs in perfect condition, Daniel T. Clough, 96 years old died here. The bodily functions simply ceased like the ticking of a clock that had not been wound. Doctors could not recall a single case of "senile" decline here he had lived at, and he died.

Physician says Clough died because he "ran down." His strength failed although he was in good physical and mental condition. His appetite remained like that of a middle-aged man until the end. He had never used glasses or had a tooth pulled.

HENS IN BEDROOM

Pennsylvania Farmer Keeps His Fowls

Claim New Home

Northumberland, Pa.—Samuel Wilkins of this town doesn't keep his pigs in the pen but he is housing a flock of sixty hens in his spare bedroom. Wilkins lives on the north branch of the Susquehanna River and when the recent floods came he brought his chickens in the house to keep them from drowning or from floating down the stream in their coop. They became accustomed to the indoor life and now claim the bedroom as their home.

MICE MAKE NEST IN HIS PURSE

Man's Roll of $500 Is Destroyed by Rodents

Virginia, Minn.—When Nestor Hennonen, an aged homesteader, opened a buckskin bag in the First National Bank here to deposit his life's savings of $500 he discovered a nest of mice in the sack. They had built their home out of his money. The fragments of his roll have been sent to Washington, where it is hoped the Government will redeem the bills.

Uses 112-Year-Old "Specs."

Atchison, Kan.—J. B. Signor, a mail carrier, uses a pair of spectacles made 112 years ago for his grandmother. They have a square frame, of German silver and adjustable ear pieces.

KILLED THE COBRA

A Fight Between a Snake and Two Mongoses in Ceylon.

A curious story comes from Ceylon about a fight between a cobra and two mongoses, which was witnessed by a number of residents of Colombo. For a little while the mongoses were averse to attacking the cobra, although they ran round and round it inquiringly. The snake, which was a splendid specimen and beautifully marked, exhibited much alarm as soon as it saw its antagonists, and curled itself up ready to strike. After some time the mongoses warmed to their work and the fight began in earnest. Again and again they dashed in and seized the snake by the tail or lower coils of its body, jumping out of striking distance before the cobra could touch them. Their ability in this respect was amazing. Fired out with watching them run first one way and then the other, making an occasional dart in and jumping, as rapidly back again, a time came when the cobra, failing to turn with sufficient speed to face the mongoses, the latter sprang in, seized the snake by the back of the head and killed it at once.

Hydrophobia Scare in Italy.

Information has been received through Vice Consul Ernest Santi of Milan to the effect that the Italian Government long ago took action compelling dogs to be muzzled and requiring the owners of dogs to pay a tax annually while the animal remains within the limits of cities. The result is that hydrophobia is hardly known in Italy today. His complete report on the subject is filed for public reference at the Bureau of Manufactures.

The following strange personal names are collected during the course of investigations at Somerset House: Hyde Parker, Eliza Silence, Tom Jolly Death, Mary Pine Coffin, James Waaleberry, Sarah Greek Gabb, John Gotobed, Minnie Shortnose, River Jordan, Innocent Fox, James Bootsborn-foot, Samuel Drinkmilk—the list is long, until one comes to the female baby born and christened Constance Cremer.

"Waiter, a Nice Reindeer Stake"

Washington (Staff Special)—Secretary Lane of the interior department believes the Alaska reindeer is destined to prove one of the important sources of our future meat supply. "There is much reindeer in the United States," he says. "I have seen a reindeer in the State of Idaho. It has been found that the reindeer meat can be shipped to the United States and sold at a profit."

SAYS AIRY CLOTHES ARE HEALTHFUL

Washington (Special)—Dr. Joseph Taylor Johnson in a speech before the Keepwells of fashionable St. John's Episcopal church, told the women members that modern dressmakers' draperies were much more conducive to health than the heavy clothing of the past. He said airy, light and simple, allow air to ventilate the body.

ONE TIME COPPER KING IS VERY ILL

F. A. Heinze.

F. Augustus Heinze, who made millions in Montana copper mines and lost them in New York bank and stock deals, is dangerously ill in New York. Abdominal hemorrhages and liver troubles are declared to be responsible for his condition.

FRISCO BANKER TO BE RUSSIAN ENVOY

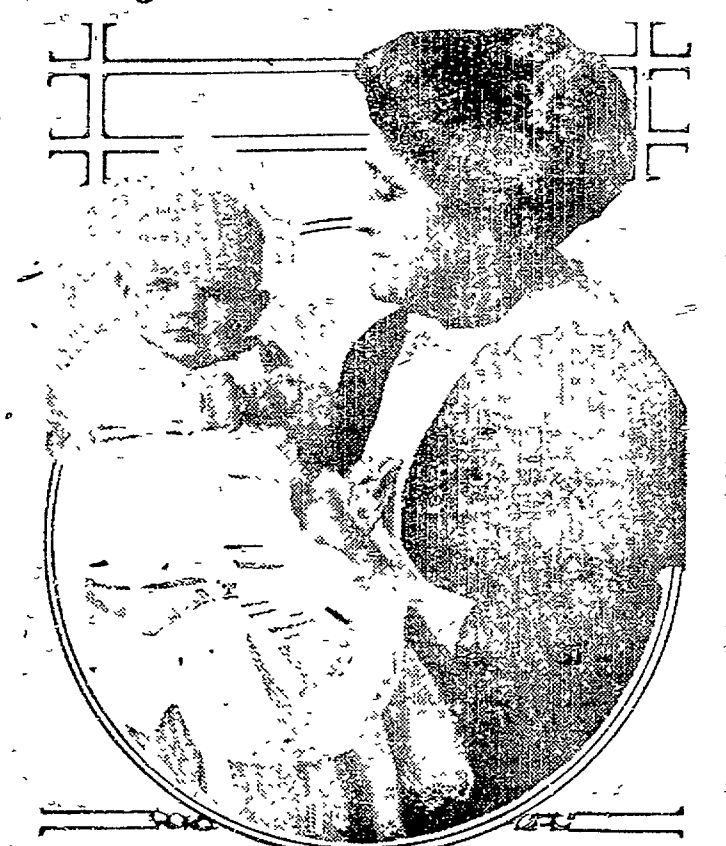

George T. Marje.

George T. Marje, wealthy banker and lawyer of San Francisco, has been selected by President Wilson as ambassador to Russia and his name has already been submitted to the Russian government for its approval. Mr. Marje was mentioned for ambassador to France with William G. Sharp before it was settled that Mr. Sharp would get the place. He was born in Baltimore in 1856 and was educated in England, Germany and Italy. While his business interests are mostly in the west, Mr. Marje has for several seasons maintained a home in Washington.

As soon as the troops can be transferred the United States forces in Hawaii will be increased from 8,000 to 145,000 men. General William H. Carter is in command of the division of Hawaii.

Ohio Woman Campaigner Denies that Suffrage Workers Arent Home Makers

Mrs. Dora C. Horine and her grandchild, Robert Meade, Jr.

Mrs. Dora C. Horine, of Cleveland, likes to refute the argument that suffragists are not home makers. Mrs. Horine is field organizer for the Ohio Woman Suffrage Association and has perfected organizations in a number of counties during the present campaign in the Buckeye State. One of her principal arguments on the domesticity question is her first grandchild, Robert Meade, Jr.

A PROFITABLE VOLCANO.

The republic of San Salvador is the only government on earth that collects lighthouse fees on account of a volcano that it owns—and without the slightest cost of upkeep. The volcanic beacon is about eight miles inland from the port of Acajutla, and its pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night is visible for many miles out at sea. It bursts forth every seven minutes, and is just as accurate as any revolving light that warns mariners of danger in any part of the world. Every vessel that puts in at Acajutla has to pay its lighthouse fee.

THIEVES 'FISH'; GET $2,500 LOOT.

Cleveland.—Thieves recently cut a circular hole in the window of Aaron Bergman's jewelry store, just across from the city hall, and, using a pole, line and hook, fished out $2,500 worth of jewelry. The vicinity was brilliantly lighted and the robbery was a bold one.

"What's the Constitution?"

"No court shall assume or exercise the power of declaring this act unconstitutional." These words, in an amendment submitted by Congressman Niland, moved the House of Representatives to laughter. If it would only work, such a clause in every bill would be an easy way to dispose of the constitution that has bothered a good many ambitious legislators.

ALASKA WOMEN DECIDE RESULTS.

According to cable advices the women who voted for the first time in Alaska decided the results in the recent elections. In Skagway the women steered voters to the polls and treated them to cigars and lunches in the bureau the women helped defeat the people's party.

WANTS FIVE YEAR CENSUS.

A census of the population of the United States should be taken every five years instead of every ten years, declares S. N. D. North of New York, former director of the census. "To complete the service which the government of the United States owes to itself, to the people of the whole country, and to the health authorities of the state and municipalities, a quinquennial or five year census of population is necessary," he said. "In vital statistics," Mr. North said, "the United States stands at the foot of the nations of like rank in civilization."

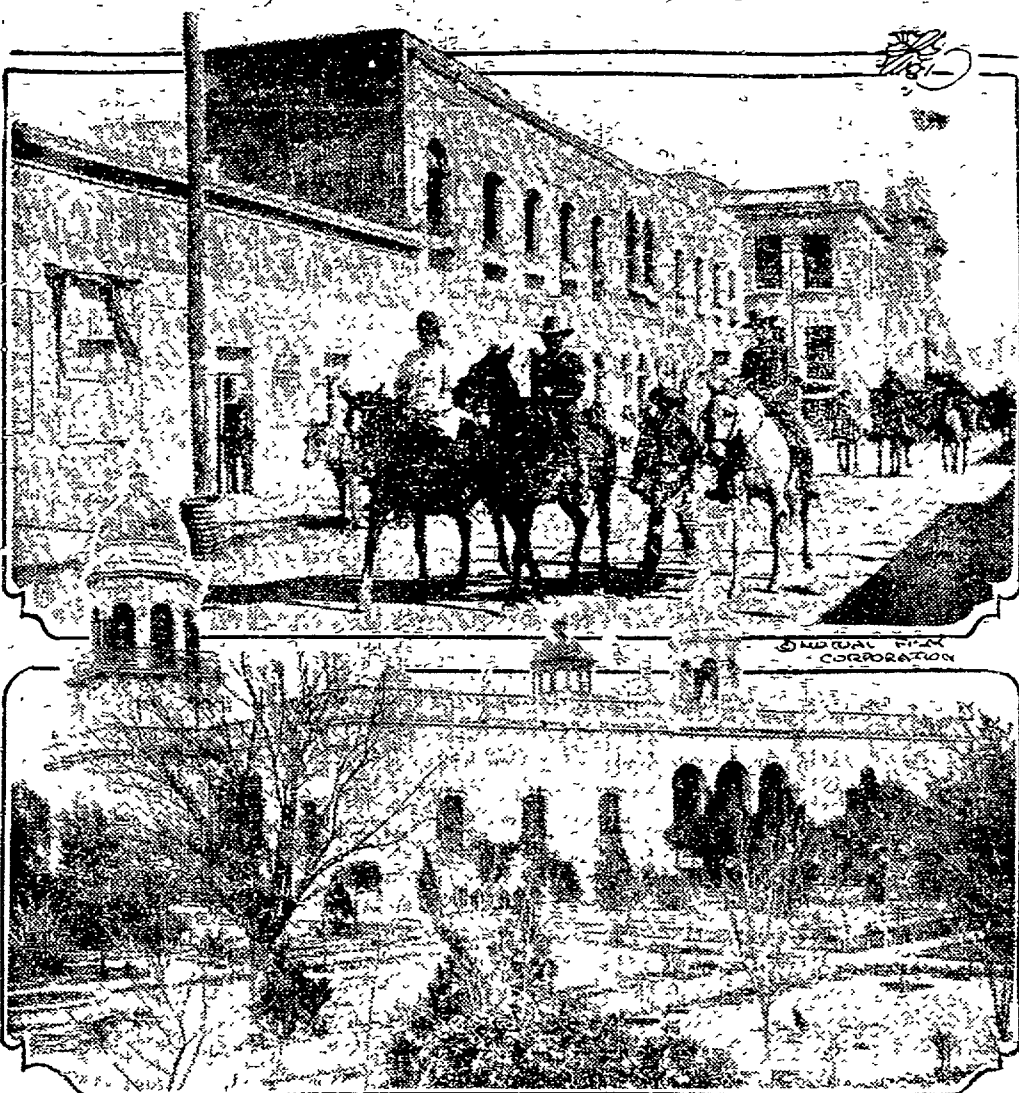

PLANS GREAT HARBOR.

Ilamook, forty miles west of Portland, Me., is to be made a great harbor by the James J. Hill interests. Two large ships are being built to run between northern and southern ports on the Pacific coast.

TEN CENTS WORTH OF FARM.

Breeders' Gazette. Land is cheap. For only $100 an acre, 6 square rods, is worth only $1, and 10 cents' worth will be a little more than 27 square feet, or a little farm slightly more than 5 feet on a side. How often a boy will waste a dime and think nothing of it. For a dime he can buy land enough to hold a flower bed, four hills of clover or a peach tree! The boy who can save a dime can become rich. Make a dime look like a tiny farm. The boy who learns to save a dime and to know values will some day come into his own.

ORDER PREVAILS WHERE VILLA REIGNS; BRINGS GOOD GOVERNMENT, BUT HIS MONEY HAS DOUBTFUL VALUE

Scenes in Chihuahua, a rebel stronghold. Top, some of Villa's soldiers. Bottom, Quinto Carolina church.

Chihuahua, Mexico, June 25.—(Special.)—Whatever may be said in criticism of General Villa, no one as yet has risen to deny that he has established order in the cities he has captured. As good a government, and perhaps even a better one, exists in Juarez-Chihuahua, Torreon and Monterrey today as existed before these towns fell into rebel hands. The laws and property of persons friendly to the constitution are quite safe in the cities, though it is difficult as much as in the case of persons who are friendly to the rebel constitution.

Probably one of the most disappointing things in connection with the constitution of the government is the large amount of paper currency of uncertain value which is now in circulation. State Issue Money. Under the rule of the constitution, that money has been issued by General Villa, but the uncertainty of its value has caused it to be put in circulation under this authority. There is every reason to believe that several of the states have issued paper notes on their own account. Already some questions are raised about the currency of the state of Tamaulipas. While it is probable that if the Constitutionists succeed the currency authorized by the Carranza government will be redeemed there is apprehension lest much of the state currency be repudiated. Nevertheless, at present the notes of the different states circulate outside of the state in which they are issued. General Villa has a mint at Chihuahua, which is expected to coin silver dollars and half dollars. Over on the Pacific slope in the state of Sonora some true composition silver dollars were minted in the past. In Coahuila some Constitutionist patriots obtained the right to mint the regular Mexican dollar and substituted for the usual inscription the phrase "Muerte a Huerta—death to Huerta." Some of these dollars were put out, but when it was found that they were chiefly used for value as circulating medium dropped, and they were exchanged only as curiosities.

Script Promises to Pay

The Constitutionists, wherever they came into control usually repudiated the temporary notes issued under the Huerta government. At Monterrey, a large part of the circulation consisted of "vales" or script promises to pay. These were repudiated by the Constitutionists, but they found it necessary to exchange something for $150,000 of them for constitutional currency, since the paper money was in such a state of decay that it was almost worthless.

In Tamaulipas the existing money was repudiated and the new currency was issued by the constitutional commander out of the notes issued by the Huerta government.

Northland the military success of the Constitutionists, the price of cotton, which was a staple of the state, has risen to a high level. This is because of the uncertainty as to the real value of the currency of the constitutional government. The situation approaches anarchy.

In the effort to revive trade and industry the foreign houses, because they cannot afford to sell goods and take their pay in currency which they are not sure will be redeemed at the value at which they are asked to take it. On the other hand, Mexican farmers cannot afford to pay for their goods and sell them on the market. The situation of the Constitutionists is very serious.

Printed in the United States. A leading cause of the uncertainty is the large amount of spurious currency which is known to have been put out. The recent success of the Constitutionists, however, has been followed by a new issue of spurious currency, so-called, but which is not really spurious. It is a new issue of spurious currency, so-called, but which is not really spurious. It is a new issue of spurious currency, so-called, but which is not really spurious.

LESSON OF GOOD ROADS.

Harpers Weekly. In Missouri two farmers living in separate counties but at an equal distance from the cotton market, learned by telephone that cotton had gone up in price a dollar a bale. One farmer lived on a very bad road. He could haul just one bale of cotton. The other farmer lived on an improved road, hauled four bales. The rise in price gained the first farmer $1 and the second farmer $4. A farmer in Sullivan county, Tennessee, a few miles from Bristol, had 100 bushels of potatoes when he attended to market during the winter.

TEACHERS TOO YOUNG.

Moline Mail. School teachers of mature years, both men and women, make the best and most successful teachers because they know more of the world and human nature than a young person of 16, 18 or 20, who hasn't at that age begun to know even of himself. But predicts the valley farmer, until it is possible to make a living and support a family by teaching school, teaching will continue to be the money side line it now is, especially in the country districts. Make school teaching worth while and good teachers will be plenty.

MILLIONAIRE IS DOG CATCHER.

As a joke, citizens of New Trier township, a Chicago suburb, elected Sherman M. Booth millionaire society man and prominent progressive poundkeeper. Mr. Booth says he will take the office and fill it efficiently, too.

Studying Railroad Tracks

Railroad accidents, loss of life are often caused by failure of the rails to bear the strain put upon them. "Spreading" or weakening of the rails is one of the common explanations made when a train goes off the track. Just what stress goes a rail have to bear? Is there a reaction, and how much? It seems odd that no effort has been made to answer such questions by actual test.

Child Marriages Upheld

In the district court of Denver, Colo., Judge H. P. Burke ruled that under the common law a marriage between a boy of 18 and a girl of 16 is binding. The case was that of Harvey M. Fugr against Martha Elizabeth Fugr, an annulment of their marriage both being minors.

Wealth Exaggerated.

Apparent there are not as many rich men in this country as was supposed. Or else the rich men are not so rich as they were believed to be. The amount of money realized from the new income tax is reported as $24,000,000 less than the treasury experts had estimated. This indicates that the total income of all American men and women above $4,000 a year is about three billion dollars. If that total income were divided among the people of the United States it would give each about eight cents a day.

But any kind of pinching press seems to have been considered sufficient for the first issues. Most of these paper notes were of so poor a quality that after a little use they fell to pieces.

Ordinarily this would be an outright loss to the whole circulation as well as to the individual holders of the currency who would be unable to cash it together. But the counterfeiter got into the field and there is no one to stop them from putting into circulation enough of the spurious notes to keep the general volume unimpaired.

TRAINS AND BOATS

The public health service today ordered more strict enforcement of the interstate quarantine regulations relating to boats and other carriers of human waste water and garbage to passengers.

A system secretary of the Treasury department advised that the public health service to establish laboratories in Chicago and San Francisco to examine water used on boats and trains.

FIND FLOOD VICTIMS.

Paris.—Mutilated bodies of two more victims of the recent collapse of Paris streets by floods were recovered here today from a pit where they had been caught in the breaking pavement. One of the bodies was French and that of a captain of the French territorial troops. The other was that of a boy.

COLOMBIAN CONGRESS ACCEPTS TREATY WITH U. S.

But in U. S. Senate There is Strong Opposition to Ratification. The congress of the Republic of Colombia has ratified the proposed treaty with the United States. The U. S. senate has not yet ratified. The treaty gives Colombia $25,000,000 and what amounts to an apology, for the act of the Roosevelt administration in helping the State of Panama to secede and set up as an independent republic. Colombia also gets certain special rights to the use of the canal.

THE DEAF CAN HEAR.

A telephone for the deaf is one of the novelties of science, lately invented by a German electrician. It's really a combination of the telephone and microphone. The deaf person holds to his ear a small telephone receiver, and the person with whom he is conversing speaks in a low tone into a transmitter. The sound is thus magnified. This entire apparatus can be carried in a small bag, or in a muff, or in the pocket.

A DETROIT OPTIMIST.

Judson Bradley, the Well-Known Realty Expert, Tells What He Believes the Best Investment. "I am sure you will agree with me," said Mr. Judson Bradley, who is conceded to be one of the foremost realty experts in Detroit, in a recent interview, "that Detroit real estate at this time is one of the most attractive propositions in the United States for investors."

Continuing, Mr. Bradley gave numerous reasons why he expressed this optimistic opinion. He said that actual statistics have proven Detroit realty more active than in the majority of other cities. In Detroit there has been a radical change of recent years—more manufacturing establishments have been erected. On Grand Circus Park, for instance, at least half a dozen steel sky-scrapers are now under way, and Detroit is undoubtedly the automobile manufacturing center of the United States, if not the world.

In Detroit living expenses are comparing favorably with those of any other city—and there is a multitude of pleasures for the summer tourist unequalled in the country. Taking every social, educational and commercial aspect into careful consideration, there is no reason to doubt the increase in Detroit's population to a mark a hundred thousand in excess of the present population in a very short period.

As the city expands and grows there is added call for good property in the direct line of growth, and Mr. Bradley has placed on sale a choice lot, some sixty in number, under the name of "Cordland Heights." This property is particularly well located and selling at a price no greater than that asked for lots much farther from the center of the city. Cement walks, graded streets and quick car service are afforded, and the investor who makes a fifty dollar deposit here is assured of a bargain and a substantial increase on the money invested. Either for home purposes or for money making without risk it will be well to get in touch with Mr. Bradley, whose offices are located at 326 Ford Bldg., Detroit, Mich.

"GARDENS OF GOLD"

Would Seem Appropriate as the Title for This Proposition.

Out along the shores of beautiful Lake St. Clair, just an hour's ride from the city of Detroit, is located that superb southern town known as "Glenwood Gardens." Here a rare view reveals a beautiful lake, and the land is rich and fertile, fruit trees abound in peach and nut, and the glorious "blue tree" grows everywhere in evidence.

This is a healthy spot—a spot that has attracted great attention, and the fact that choice, large gardens can be bought now at less than they will command in a very short time, makes the offer of great interest both to the builder and investor alike. It is wonderful how very easy money can be made in these deals, for only five dollars need be paid down, and five dollars a month, and often before the payments are finished there is a sale at a profit of fifteen to thirty per cent. There is no risk in Detroit realty—it is a healthy business right along for those wise enough to get in the game—and here the Glenwood Gardens deal, not only the usual inducements, but each garden with its fruit trees, its great beauty and accessibility, make it doubly worth while.

Full and interesting details of this proposition will be gladly sent to any address on request by the Glenwood Exchange, 307 Hodges Bldg., Detroit, Mich., who are directing the property sales.

Don't neglect an aching back. Backache is often the kidney's cry for help. Neglect hurrying to the kidney's aid. Means that "many troubles may follow."

Or danger of a worse kidney trouble. Here's someone's testimony:

John Humes, a railroad engineer, 554 Polaris St., Monroe, Mich., says: "Kidney trouble came on me gradually and I got pretty bad before I paid much attention to it. The first sign was a very highly colored and thick urine. I was not able to get to sleep several times at night. I suffered from a sore back and a constant pain through my kidneys. When I left over, I could hardly straighten up again. I was in bad shape and used different remedies, but nothing seemed to help me. Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family, so I decided to try them. They gave me great relief."

LONELY GIRL INSANE WITH FRIENDS NEAR

Young Immigrant Loses Her
Mind After Long Suffering
Among Strangers

HER UNCLE APPEARS TOO LATE

Merchant of Whom She Knew Nothing
Learned of Case Through Newspapers
and Offered Aid.

New York—Officials of the New York State Bureau of Industries and Immigration were discussing with sympathetic interest the case of Miss Minnie Baden, a 20-year-old immigrant girl from Kutna, Poland, whose social isolation of four months in this city had driven her insane. To add to the tragedy of the girl's case, was the discovery that within a day's journey, a home and welcome were awaiting her with relatives of whose existence she had no knowledge.

Charles Masl, who receives most of the complaints lodged with the bureau in the headquarters, at 95 Madison avenue, was reviewing a long line of newly-arrived aliens and carefully noting grievances, when an attractive young woman of peasant type, clad in the garb of a Polish Jewess, pushed her way through the patiently waiting throng and fell sobbing on her knees before Masl's desk.

"Kutna, Kutna," she moaned. "Send me back to Kutna, where my father and mother live. Send me back to my brother and my two sisters. Let me see my friends. I am going insane from loneliness."

According to the girl's narrative, she arrived in this country four months ago on the steamship Kaiser Friedrich der Grosse. Returned immigrant girls had told of the high wages paid in this country as household servants. Shortly after her admission to the United States from Ellis Island she obtained employment as a servant in a family on Second avenue through a Polish employment agency at a minimum wage.

"I could not understand what the people I worked for said to me," said the distracted girl. "No one understood what I said to them. I was afraid to walk far from the house, for fear I should get lost. All the time I was lonely—so very lonely—but they were good to me. They bore with me until I began to wake every one up at night crying and laughing. I could not sleep without dreaming that I was back in Kutna, then I would wake up and I would cry and laugh. No one could stop me. Then they put me out."

"After I lost my job I went to a boarding-house to live where the people spoke Polish, but they laughed at my clothes and at my hair. When I talked about Kutna they would go and say 'Greenhorn' and 'Silly.' They did not care. They talked Polish but they did not care and that made me more lonely than ever. Now I think that I am crazy. My head is dizzy and my eyes hurt. I don't go back to Kutna."

Mr. Hoffman, a police officer, took the girl's case to the State Bureau of Industries and Immigration. The bureau communicated with the Federal Immigration authorities at Ellis Island with a view to having the girl deported and sent back in safety to her native village. It was also deemed wise to make known the girl's plight through some of the foreign language newspapers in order to make certain whether or not she had any friends or connections in this country. This was thought to be a forlorn hope, but it bore fruit in the form of this letter.

New York State Bureau of Industries and Immigration: Gentlemen—I am an uncle of Miss Minnie Baden of Kutna, Poland, in reference to whom there appeared an article in The Jewish Morning Journal at your request. I understand that one of your officials took her to the Department of Charities, from where she was taken to Bellevue Hospital. I wish to advise you that you should not take any steps to send her back to Poland, as I am willing to take her for care and will be responsible for her. I have already sent word to The Jewish Morning Journal through their Boston agents at 7 Lowell street to this effect, and hope to hear from you very soon.

LOUIS ROSENBAUM,
240 Blue Hill avenue, Roxbury, Boston, Mass.

Assistant Counsel Jacob Galarstein of the bureau, upon the receipt of this letter, immediately telephoned to Bellevue Hospital to ascertain the condition of the unfortunate girl. He was informed that she had become violently insane and had been sent to the Manhattan State Hospital on Blackwell's Island. In the meantime inquiries concerning Mr. Rosenbaum elicited the information that he was a prosperous merchant in Roxbury.

CLAIM DEATH IS NOT PAINFUL

Although Family Fled From Witnessing His Death

LONDON—The experience of a London man who recovered after several hours in such serious condition that his physicians declared he was dying, seems to "explode" the theory that is any agony connected with death. His son declares, in an interview in London papers, that through the night his father groaned, panted and breathed with difficulty that members of the family could not remain in the room and witness what they thought was terrible suffering. Yet in the morning the sick man revived and declared he had spent a comfortable night. One eminent London doctor says:

"The suffering of people about to die is lessened by unconsciousness supervening in a vast majority of cases."

Other physicians declare that death is not painful as they have seen it. When a man is run down by a train or falls from a high building, one physician declares, he does not suffer nearly as much as the spectators. "I am well convinced," he continued, "that if a newly-born infant and a man who has just died could compare their experiences the former would prove to have been the sufferer."

WOMAN FARMS ALONE

Mrs. Charles Broker of Hillsboro, Kan., Spends Her Spare Time Hunting

Hillsboro, Kan.—To the fact that she spent most of her life in the open, Mrs. Chas. Broker ascribes her present perfect health. Aged 85 years, this woman is the marvel of the neighborhood where she lives, south of here, alone on a farm. She does all her own farm work, and is Marion Courrier's oldest hunter.

Frequently she takes her shotgun which is an old-fashioned muzzle loading affair, and tramps off across the fields hunting. She seldom comes home without all the game, she can carry, despite the fact that the younger generation, which uses automatic magazine guns, and the game hard to locate.

Coming with her husband to Kan. as more than forty years ago from Iowa on which she now lives. She became a widow fifteen years ago, and instead of moving to town and trusting the farm to the care of a tenant she decided to remain and run it herself. She works in the fields doing the milking and other chores and calls on the men only when the farm work becomes pressing that she cannot do it all without assistance. Her step is quick and she stands as erect as she was when the first breeze down man's work.

Scarcely a day passes but she has her life.

TEACHES PIG TO PLAY BALL

Educated Porkers Play Ball, Run to First Base With Ears of Corn
Berkley, Mo.—W. S. Hodson, a farmer of Loret, Mo., has been so well that he has spent much time in teaching his pigs to catch and run bases. The education of the porker is not complete, yet he nevertheless plays perfect football, fielding, punting, and an ear of corn is thrown to them one of the animals will catch it on the fly and run to first base with it. Some catches are made against great odds and at most difficult angles.

WOULD SELL HUSBAND'S BODY

No Good Alive, She Would Profit by His Death

New York—Officials of the Museum of Natural History are pondering over the problem of how they shall answer a letter from a Texas woman who offers the "fossilized" body of her husband for sale.

"He was no good to me when alive and I thought I might make something out of him as a fossil. What will you give for him?" is the gist of her letter.

4-YEAR-OLD WISER THAN A MAN

Needs to See or Hear but Once to Remember—Cannot Read but Knows Most Difficult Words

Detroit, Mich.—George Herbert Van Vleet, 4 years old, has such an active mind, that he is known as "the boy with the mirror brain." His memory is remarkable. When other babies of his age were crawling and cooing and more often crying George was talking distinctly.

When he was 16 months old he astonished physicians who had been attracted by stories of his unusual ability when such simple words as spondylorrhoea, polycystedon, metapterygoid, limnanthaceae rolled off his tongue as easily as though they contained but one syllable.

There is not a word in the English language, that having heard once, he cannot repeat, with astonishing clearness of enunciation.

George has never been taught to read.

All letters look alike to him when they are coupled together, yet one can take a map of the world, spread it out in front of him, arm him with a toothpick—all, gestures have their little eccentricities, and his consists of a partiality for a toothpick to be used as a pointer—and he will indicate every country on the map and name it without a second's hesitation. He knows the capitals of many of these and the chief cities as well.

When it comes to history there is scarcely a question of common knowledge that he is unable to answer. He can name all the Presidents of the United States in order.

In the Van Vleet home is a phonograph, with probably eighty disc records. Take one of these, mention the piece on the obverse side, and he will immediately tell you the title of the selection on the reverse, going through the entire list without faltering.

His familiarity with colors is no less astonishing. It being impossible to puzzle him in defining even the most delicate shades.

And he imparts this information with no airs. He never volunteers to display his powers but upon request provides a demonstration that is astonishing.

IN GOOD HEALTH DIES

Strength of Man of 96 Years Falls, Though He Is Sound Physically and Mentally

Boulder, Col.—Without disease of any kind and with all his organs in perfect condition, Daniel T. Clough, 96-year-old died here. The bodily functions, simply ceased like the ticking of a clock that had not been wound. Doctors cannot recall a similar case. His death came here he had lived in Fort Collins, Minn. City, Iowa, and before that.

He had, say Clough died because he "ran down" the strength he had at birth. He was in good physical and mental condition. His appetite remained like that of a middle-aged man until the end, he had never used tobacco or had a tooth pulled.

HENS IN BEDROOM

Pennsylvania Farmer Keeps His Fowl in House—Since Flood Chickens Claim New Home

Northernland, Pa.—Samuel Willets of this town does not keep his pigs in the parlor, but he is housing a flock of sixty hens in his spare bedroom. Willets lives on the north branch of the Susquehanna River and when the recent floods came he brought his chickens in the house to keep them from drowning or from floating down the stream in their coop. They became accustomed to the indoor life and now claim the bedroom as their home.

KILLED THE COBRA

A Fight Between a Snake and Two Mongooses in Ceylon

A curious story comes from Ceylon about a fight between a cobra and two mongooses, which was witnessed by a number of residents of Colombo. For a little while the mongooses were averse to attacking the cobra, although they ran round and round it inquiringly. The snake, which was a splendid specimen and beautifully marked, exhibited much alarm as soon as it saw its antagonists, and curled itself up, ready to strike. After some time the mongooses warned to their work and the fight began in earnest. Again and again they dashed in and seized the snake by the tail or lower coils of its body, jumping out of striking distance before the cobra could touch them. Their ability in this respect was amazing. Tired out with watching, they ran first one way and then the other, making an occasional dash in and jumping as rapidly back again a time came when the cobra, failing to turn with sufficient speed to face the mongooses, the latter sprang in, seized the snake by the back of the head and killed it at once.

Hydrophobia Scare in Italy

Information has been received through Vice Consul Ernest Santi of Milan, Italy, the effect that the Italian Government long ago took action compelling dogs to be muzzled and requiring the owners of dogs to pay a tax annually while the animal remains within the limits of cities. The result is that hydrophobia is hardly known in Italy today. His complete report on the subject is filed for public reference at the Bureau of Manufactures.

The following strange personal names are collected during the course of investigations at Somerset House: Hyde Parker Eliza Silhouette, Jolly Death Mar, Pine Coffin, James Whistledy, Sarah Greek Gabb, John Gotobed, Minnie Shorthose, River Jordan, Innocent Fox, James Bootsbottom, Samuel Drunkmilk—the list is long, until one comes to the female baby born and christened Constance Greiner.

"Waiter, a Nice Reindeer Stake"

Washington, (Staff Special)—Secretary Lane of the interior department believes the Alaskan reindeer is destined to prove one of the important sources of our future meat supply. "There is growing interest in the reindeer as a meat supply for the west," United States Game warden says. "It has been demonstrated that reindeer meat can be shipped to the United States and sold at a profit."

OIL PAYS PREACHER'S SALARY

Its a Small Type Gusher and Is in the Church's Lot

A few years ago the Rev. George Wood Anderson organized the Epworth Methodist Episcopal Church, and later secured sufficient funds to erect a modern stone structure. Knowing there was oil about Lima, he conceived the idea of boring a well in the church's back lot.

A subscription paper was passed, $1,200 was pledged to make up losses if they came, and the Rev. Mr. Anderson started his oil well. It proved a small type gusher, and ever since the oil well operated daily by a gas engine, which also operates the church heating and lighting plant, has been pouring out sufficient crude oil to not only pay the minister's salary and all other church expenses but to make up a tank account big enough to build the church over again.

Lobsters for the Pacific Coast

A few months ago the Canadian Fisheries Department planted a few lobsters at different points in the waters of British Columbia. Professor Prince, who is at the head of the Canadian Fisheries Commission, is now on the coast making an examination of the beds where lobsters were planted to see what increase they had made, and he will investigate a number of different places with a view to large planting of lobsters if it is found that those already planted have done well. It is said that Professor Prince will look into the temperature of the water, the character of the bottom and other particulars before any decision is reached regarding planting more lobsters.

Mrs. Armitage had a negro servant who continually prated of a certain Mrs. Reed for whom she formerly worked. Weary of hearing Mrs. Reed quoted so often, the mistress asked one day:

"Well, Samantha, what kind of work did you do at Mrs. Reed's, any way?"

"Well, honey, I cooked for her, I did, an' I cleaned for her, I swept for her, an' I washed her Fussoni's appearance."—Lippincott's.

SAYS AIRY CLOTHES ARE HEALTHFUL

Washington, (Special)—Dr. Joseph Taylor Johnson, in a speech before the Keppell of the Honorable St. John's Episcopal Church, told the women members that modern diaphanous dresses were much more conducive to health than the heavy clothing of the past. He said airy and ample sleeves, allow air to ventilate the body.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JULY 3, 1914.

WHERE LAW AND ORDER DWELLS

Be it said to the credit of the fair name of Northville—your village and mine, dear reader—that the crowd gathered on the streets Monday evening was an orderly one, though at periods two or three loud talkers were in evidence, but at no time, as a whole, did the men and boys forget they were gentlemen. Law and order must prevail on every nook and corner in this beloved country of ours. Without it our citizens, our liberties and our safety is gone. The respect for all this by the citizens of our country is our proud boast to all the world. Our prosperity, our happiness and our lives depend on this. Without it, our schools, churches, societies and business fall to the level of the uncivilized lands. It is the duty of every citizen to encourage it. Those who talk disorder are not desirable citizens, and except behind an excited crowd, they are themselves cowards.

Fortunately in every community the law abiding citizens are in the large majority and as long as that majority governs, so long will the triumph of right prevail, and the safeguard of property, persons and homes be assured.

FOURTH OF JULY.

Let every reader of this column plan for a jolly time on the Fourth. We live too fast in America. We have not enough holidays—not enough resting places—not enough intermission in our work-day world. It were better if often to have laid aside its tools—traffic and trade stopped, now and then, and to consider its aim and end.

There must be an oasis in every desert. The black horse has its smelt valley. There are smiling nooks even among the Cordilleras. Halting places they are, great rocks and their shadows, rest in the dreariest land. The white clouds up a hill for the storm-beaten and foot weary pilgrim over the road traced by the great caravan is a benefactor to his race and his memories should be cherished while holidays are observed.

Have a most glorious Fourth. A joyous, happy, inspiring becoming frolics and a good time—none long to be remembered, not with regret because of unobserved and unobserved privileges, but with a delight and satisfaction because of proper observation with the consideration of the rights and privilege of every true born American citizen.

P. M. MISMANAGEMENT.

It is a wonder that the P. M. R. R. went bankrupt with the way that road has been mismanaged. And now that it is in the hands of the receiver there is no improvement in its methods. The Sunday night passenger train from the north is taken off without a single notice being sent out to patrons through the press columns. One entertains guests over Sunday and takes them to the train to return home—and there is no train. And nobody but the station master knew it and he not receiving orders to notify the public, locks up and goes home. And the traveler—turns around and goes home the longest way, with few good thoughts for the P. M. mismanagers.

THE CAUSE OF THE TROUBLE.

After all, it was just whiskey that was back of all of the Monday evening trouble. It is the same kind of fluid that causes about all the trouble in Northville, the only strange part of the whole business is that so many of Northville's citizens and leading citizens at that, apparently uphold it and applaud its antics.

If the man from Milford had gotten drunk in his home town and stayed there, there would have been no occasion for the war of words between two of our reputable citizens.

If the town does not reach after the trade, it will come only as fast as it has to, and it will grow as it is forced to. But if the merchants go after business in the surrounding country, advertising in every possible way, and making good every word of their advertising, trade will come from an ever-increasing radius, the town will gain a reputation for being awake and it will forge to the front.

Village President Scotten and Marshal Bogart are to be congratulated for the orders they issued on Monday prohibiting firecrackers and fireworks stunts until July 4. There is a difference between patriotism and noise.

VISITORS HERE AND ELSEWHERE

Mrs. Earl Woodmansee was a Clarenceville visitor Tuesday.

Mrs. N. C. Schrader was a Detroit visitor a part of this week.

Miss Grace Pierce is spending a week with friends in Jackson.

Miss Margaretta Weiler leaves today for her home in Mayville.

Jay Stimpson spent from Friday till Monday with his brother, Carl, in Lansing.

Mrs. Ray Richardson entertained her parents from Belleville Tuesday and Wednesday.

Miss Sadie Bentley of Walled Lake was the guest of Miss June Filkins this week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Harmon went to Greenville today to visit friends there until Monday.

Mrs. J. Covert of Kansas City was the guest of Mrs. Marinda White, Saturday afternoon.

A number of Northville ladies were guests of Mrs. Fred Burch at Plymouth Wednesday afternoon.

Mrs. Wm. Spencer and two children, Elizabeth and Robert, are visiting relatives in Toledo, Ohio.

Mrs. James Place of Lansing was entertained at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Turner for the week end.

Miss Helen Bellis is spending the week with Mrs. Bert Wolfare near Elizabeth, Christendom, at Walled Lake.

Reid Stimpson has been at Alma for several days past, playing ball. He will attend college in that city next year.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Bannister motor a here from Orion Tuesday. Mr. Bannister's boyhood was spent in Northville.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Fabbitt returned home Saturday from a trip to Mackinac with the State Bankers' association.

Mrs. B. S. Pennington of Macon was the guest of her sister, Mrs. George Stimpson, last week, coming to attend the commencement exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Rognabocher and daughter, Wilma, of Byron and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Teeples of Detroit spent Sunday with E. M. Gray and family.

Mrs. E. C. Hinkley entertained Mrs. Luther Peck of Plymouth Tuesday, taking her as a guest to the N. W. C. annual picnic on the lawn of Mrs. Chas. Bloom's home.

Mrs. C. C. Chadwick of Detroit visited among Northville friends Friday and Saturday, attending the O. E. S. six o'clock dinner and initiation service Friday evening.

Miss Anna Johnson left Saturday for her home in Cadillac, visiting friends on the way. She will return to Northville next fall to teach Science and Mathematics in the High School.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pickell are guests of the former's sister, Miss Ada Pickell. They formerly resided in Durand but are on their way to Arizona, where they will make their future home.

Mrs. F. S. Harmon, Mrs. F. S. Neal and Mr. A. C. Harmon were at Salem Saturday to act as judges at the Children's Carnival given in the town hall there by one of the divisions of the Salem Baptist Aid societies.

Mrs. Ida Hendryx was brought home from Detroit Sunday in Frank Hamilton's automobile. She has been staying with her niece, Mrs. Burgess, since undergoing an operation at Grace hospital, and is now getting along nicely.

Dr. and Mrs. Henry Ballard of Sparta are spending the former's vacation with Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Cobb.

J. D. LaRue and nephew, E. R. Finch of Farmington left Wednesday for New York to attend the summer session of Columbia college. Mr. Finch who has been superintendent of schools at Farmington for several years, has accepted a similar position at Fowlerville for next year. Mr. LaRue returns to Ithaca.

John Rentz of Blissfield was the guest of M. A. Porter last week. Mr. Rentz was for many years the hustling progressive president of that village and is still one of the live boosters. Mr. Rentz stated that the Blissfield Village electric light system was so managed that a net revenue of $2,200 is turned into the treasury year besides lighting the streets. While here Mr. Rentz visited Walled Lake with Mr. Porter and hauled in a lot of nice bass and pike.

GREAT EXHIBIT OF "MICHIGAN MADE"

ONE OF LEADING ATTRACTIONS AT STATE FAIR THIS YEAR.

Two Weeks, Sept. 7-18, Will Be a Hammer in Way of Attractions.

"If we can by the two weeks of the Michigan State Fair, Sept. 7-18 stimulate an interest in the opportunities Michigan presents to manufacturers as the ideal spot for production, we will consider one of our tasks well done. No other state in the Union is so happily situated for transportation facilities as our own. Any number of excellent sites for factories are available along both railroads and waterways and we want manufacturers to know about them. When they do, they will realize the other advantages that will be theirs by locating here and it will mean many factories will come to the Wolverine State."

The speaker was G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair in conversation with several prominent Detroit business men.

CHAS. A. PONSFORD NORTHVILLE, MICHIGAN.

The statement was received with attention, for Mr. Dickinson, who resigned as State Railroad Commissioner to accept the management of the big fair, during his years of service in Michigan had traveled over every foot of its railway properties many times.

"This year at the Fair we will have the greatest exhibit of 'Michigan-Made' articles ever shown. Already the major portion of the space allotted for this purpose has been contracted for. The exhibit will prove that Michigan manufacturers are abreast of the times and that their products are factors because of their worth and because the state's distributing agencies are such that these products may be set down at the consumer's door at less cost than other manufacturers have to meet."

"I believe the day will come when Michigan will be regarded as the greatest factory state in the Union. We have the natural advantages of being a prolific producer of many raw materials—copper, iron, lumber and grain for instance, we have railroads as good as any commonwealth, and waterways which are unsurpassed. All that remains to be done is to bring these facts forcefully to public view. This is one of the things the State Fair will do this year. It will give these facts a chance to speak."

TAKE NO CHANCES ON THE 4TH.

Don't talk politics on the Fourth. Don't go on a crowded excursion. Don't be ashamed to be patriotic. Don't get overheated early in the day.

Don't carry loose powder in your pocket.

Don't laugh at the drum major—pity him.

Don't put all your fireworks in one heap.

Don't drive a nervous horse on the Fourth.

Don't think powder is a respecter of persons.

Don't encourage small boys to fire large cannons.

Don't take any chances with a cracked cannon.

Don't blow down the mouth of a loaded cannon.

Members of the Presbyterian congregation urged to attend these evening services. They should produce a closer spirit of unity between the churches of the community and deserve the support of all. The subject of the sermon is, "A Description of a Decadent Nation."

The morning and evening subjects were suggested by the Independence Day celebration. Saturday will be a day when we express our patriotism in certain ways. Let Sunday also be a day for expressing our gratitude and patriotism. The morning and evening services offer an opportunity for doing this. A welcome to all.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)
Morning subject: "Whose Keeper Am I?"

The B. Y. P. U. service will discontinue through the month of July and August.

The Farther Lights class held their monthly business meeting with Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell last Tuesday evening. A good time was had and all went home feeling that Mrs. O'Donnell's home was the place to go for a good time.

Union meetings beginning Sunday night, July 5. First meeting in the M. E. church, Rev. Webber, preaching. Let everybody attend these meetings.

The Missionary Circle will meet in the church parlors on the afternoon of July 5. Everybody come who can.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)
Morning service at 10. Sermon topic: "The Nation Pre-eminent."

The sermon will be in keeping with the thought of our National holiday.

Union service in our church Sunday evening. Rev. J. E. Webber will be the preacher. Special orchestra music.

The prayer-meeting topic for next Thursday, "The Awakening of Asia." Mr. Dolph will present a brief review of Sherwood Eddy's book by that title.

The Queen Esther Circle will meet at the parsonage on Monday night at 7:30.

The attendance at Sunday School of the last Sunday was below our right. The board said 132. Let us strive to increase this for the following Sundays.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH.

Christian science services in the Ladies' Library Sunday morning at 10:00 o'clock. Subject: "God." All are welcome.

A SAFE AND SANE FOURTH

A few years back we thought we showed our patriotism by shooting off fingers, burning out eyes and killing a large number of people.

Each succeeding Fourth of July repeated its toll of horror.

We have shown an increasing amount of common sense in the last two or three years but there is still room for improvement.

Let us have a safe and sane Fourth this year.

George Washington, Madison and the others wouldn't think very much of the independence secured for the American people if they thought it was to be celebrated each year with deaths, and maimings.

It is foolish, isn't it, when you stop to think about it?

Do your share to make the coming Fourth safer and saner than last year.

A neighborhood celebration placed in charge of a careful man is better than indiscriminate use of fireworks, and the youngsters will have twice as much fun. If children would observe the nation's birthday by eating ice cream and candy instead of shooting firecrackers their patriotism would be just as highly rated and they would be preserved for future usefulness to the nation.

It isn't SAFETY FIRST to have any accidents occur on the Fourth.

Do your part to have them eliminated. D. U. R. "Safety First."

Though it is only one more day until the small boy is permitted to shoot his fingers off, burn out an eye and develop tetanus, celebrating the one hundred and thirty-eighth anniversary of this country, it is believed the number of fatalities and accidents will be considerably reduced on account of the same and safety campaign that has been waged for several years. Safety first in the celebration of the Fourth of July is just as important as it is in the management of railroads, running automobiles, hunting, boating, etc.

The annual picnic of the Northville Woman's club, held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bloom, was one of the most successful ever. The attendance was larger, the weather and place ideal and the supper all that could be desired. An unusually large number of guests were present, several from out of town. The "club children" were present in a large and happy number, but the "club husbands" were represented by only half a dozen brave men, at supper time, which was a distinct loss—at least to the gentlemen who stayed away.

Some one has been getting in some dirty work on one of the residences south of Cady street of late. Some time ago a plant, which had been sent as a gift to one of the members of the household when ill, was stolen from the porch. The second act by this evil person was the spraying with some deadly poison, all of the plants in boxes and flower pots, on the railing of that porch, killing most of the leaves. Can you beat that? It does seem as if it must have been done by a crazy person, as surely, there isn't a person alive mean enough to perform such a few down act, is there?

RAY HADDOCK'S FIRST THRILLER

FORMER NORTHVILLE BOY'S NARROW ESCAPE FROM TOUGH GANG.

He Is One of Detroit's New Policemen and Showed Real "Stuff."

The following from Monday morning's paper refers to Ray Haddock, formerly a Northville boy:

William Lark, 1060 Scotten avenue, shot in the abdomen by Patrolman Ray Haddock, of Vinewood station Sunday night, during a fight in which a gang of ruffians attacked the officer, beat him almost into unconsciousness at Jackson and Twenty-ninth streets is dying in Grace hospital. It is believed he cannot survive.

Lying on what the surgeons say is his death bed, Lark told Assistant Prosecutor Jasnowski and Detectives Collins and Olinski a story of the assault, which exonerates Patrolman Haddock, and places the blame for the shooting on the gang which attacked the officer; and of which the dying man was a member.

Lark said he and between 24 and 25 other men, came out of Frank Kallikowski's saloon, 200 Twenty-ninth street, about midnight and were standing on the corner when the officer who was appointed on the force only a few days ago, passed them. Lark says the patrolman proceeded on a block away, forbearing to act, even though the crowd taunted him. Then he returned and told them to move on. When no one obeyed Lark says the officer took hold of one man, and that precipitated trouble.

The crowd which attacked Patrolman Haddock is known in police circles as one of the toughest on the west side. No officer ever arrests one of the lot without a fight. About a year ago Edward Lark, a brother of William, and Tony Blazewski were both shot by Patrolman William Reinhold, while resisting apprehension for assault.

Detectives Collins and Olinski say the gang hated Patrolman Haddock. They made insulting remarks when he passed, the detectives say. Several lighted matches and held them in the patrolman's face and said: "Are you a red one?" Lark says your number."

The officer held his temper, waiting a block further on. They kept shouting at him. Then he returned. They had just been put out of the saloon and were drinking beer from bottles and talking loudly.

Patrolman Haddock is suffering considerable pain as a result of the beating, but it is not thought his injuries will prove serious.

WILD WEST SHOW COMING SOON.

The advance announcement of the appearance in Northville July 8 of the great Wyoming Bill's Historical Wild West Show will be greeted with delight by the residents of this town and surrounding country. Old and young alike will welcome the news with pleasure as it is seldom a show of the immense proportions of Wyoming Bill's Wild West visit a town of this size, and it is only through the untiring efforts of a number of our most prominent business men that the management were induced to exhibit here. Wyoming Bill's Wild West is superior to any and all other tented enterprises of its kind and character. Its entertainment is strictly entertaining, amusing and highly instructive.

There is probably no better equipment touring the United States this season than this one. Its entire performance portrays frontier life past and present so remarkably natural that spectators at times imagine they are actual witnesses to some startling sensational or thrilling feat of bravery, horsemanship or daring actually performed upon the once great plains of the far west.

The show carries scores of Cowboys, Indians, etc., representative rough riders of every known country of the entire world—stage coaches, prairie schooners, Indian travoys, etc., 200 horses, Texas steers, elk, burros. Grand street parade at 10 o'clock morning of exhibition day, and is worth going miles to witness.

Two performances are given daily, rain or shine. New and specially constructed tents, thoroughly storm proof, protect the audiences at all times from the elements.

STATE FAIR TICKETS.

The Record has arranged for the purchase of 500 State Fair tickets which will be placed on sale at this office July 15 to August 31, at the rate of 35 cents each, or 3 for $1.00. Tickets will be good any day of the fair, Sept. 7 to 18.

FORTY-FOUR HOURS OF FOURTH.

Independence day is really forty-four hours long now, almost twice as long as in previous years.

The day dawn's first in American territory, on the island of Guam where the new Americans have learned to celebrate, cannons beginning to boom at 9 o'clock in the morning, of July 3 (central United States time) which is just midnight in Guam. Some hour and a later in Manila bay starts the fireworks, while the Filipinos are in the middle of their celebrations, just before America itself is awakened by the first cannons at midnight. Midnight in Chicago is 3 o'clock in the afternoon at Manila and when the Chicagoans set on their last piece of fireworks the lads at Manila have been asleep upon fourteen hours.

The celebration sweeps on across the country to the westward. Fireworks at Honolulu do not begin till after midnight in Chicago and the last firecracker is not shot off till after daybreak in the United States. Thus when the day has been concluded at Hawaii, Uncle Sam has given over forty-four hours to celebrating the glorious Fourth of July.

The Mysterious Monogram

An Absorbing New Novel

By Howard P. Rocky

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER 1.—On the day after a dinner at the Grill Club at which was announced his engagement to Grace of the town, Lord Harcourt is informed of the murder of one of his guests, Captain Townsend. Harcourt was the last man seen with Townsend and his valet made a strangely monogrammed dagger in his pocket and blood stains on his clothes. Harcourt's mind is a blank on the subject.

CHAPTER 2.—Harcourt determines to leave no stone unturned to find the murderer, or to accept of Townsend's murder as a mystery. He goes to the Grill Club, question of innocence or guilt is put to all who attended dinner. Harcourt admits he doesn't know. Sir Harry Harcourt goes to an Indian prince, Sir Shish Kandwahr, who attended a dinner with Inspector MacBee, of Scotland Yard. Harcourt finds in the room where the murder was committed a half burnt cigarette bearing a monogram like that on the dagger. He determines to find out who smokes these cigarettes.

CHAPTER 3.—During an interview with Inspector MacBee, of Scotland Yard Harcourt finds in the room where the murder was committed a half burnt cigarette bearing a monogram like that on the dagger. He determines to find out who smokes these cigarettes.

CHAPTER 4.—Harcourt offers to release Miss Marston from her engagement to a man who is a murderer. He is told that she is a very clever woman and that she is a very clever woman.

CHAPTER 5.—The police find Detective Harcourt at the bottom of the fire escape, leading him from the room in which the murder was committed. He is told that the man who was in the room was a very clever man.

CHAPTER 6.—At a reception in the hall, Harcourt meets an American man, Sir Harry Harcourt, who is a very clever man. He is told that the man who was in the room was a very clever man.

CHAPTER 7.—Returning from the hall, Harcourt finds a man who is a very clever man. He is told that the man who was in the room was a very clever man.

ished air.

In spite of the gaiety they felt over their success thus far, each of them felt strangely troubled, and strove as best they might to keep their individual fears from the others. Nevertheless, the unexpected appearance of MacBee in the neighborhood had set them thinking, and it was the unexplained presence of some other mysterious danger that kept their nerves at the highest pitch.

As soon as the meal was over, Adele hurried upstairs to see how her patient fared, and after a cigarette, the doctor followed with Cornish. Sir Harry and Carrington remained at the table smoking quietly, each busy with his own thoughts. Carrington, in spite of his anxiety, was supremely happy at seeing Adele again, and at the first opportunity he meant to tell her of the fact.

It was quite dark now, and finding it warm inside, the two men stepped out on the long veranda that ran around three sides of the lodge.

"Dicky," Sir Harry said, as he puffed at his cigar thoughtfully, "I'm wondering if I've been foolish."

"How so?"

"Sir Thomas and Grace are coming up tomorrow. Of course I told them about it before we left, and as soon as she learned that Harcourt was injured, she absolutely insisted upon seeing him."

"I don't know," Carrington answered hesitatingly. "It can't do any harm that I can see. Marston's coming would be natural enough, and there's nothing to excite suspicion in her running up for a few days. Naturally she is anxious to see him, but he is in physical danger too."

Suddenly a loud puffing broke the stillness of the evening, and the two men sprang out into the road.

"What the devil!" Farndale exclaimed, and in another moment the lights of a big automobile illuminated their figures sharply against the lodge wall. The car drew up with a grinding of brakes, coming to a standstill within a few feet of the house.

"Who's there?" Sir Harry called out, trusting that the noise of the car's arrival would warn those upstairs to keep out of sight. Carrington looked up carelessly, as though looking at the sky, and noted with satisfaction that the little attic window was dark. He was sure, however, that someone was standing behind the blinds looking out and listening, at the open casement.

The thrumming of the motor ceased with a final rumble, and a figure in a long grey coat and cap leaped out of the machine. Pulling off his goggles the man came quickly toward them.

"It is I—MacBee," he answered, stepping into the light from the door way.

For a moment the two men stood petrified, staring silently at the detective. Then, Sir Harry, recovering his poise in an instant, extended his hand and greeted the inspector cordially. "This is a surprise," he said with a smile. "Dicky and I may have arrived a couple of hours ago ourselves. Have you had dinner?"

"Possibly, I haven't," said MacBee. "And if your question can be construed as an invitation, I shall be delighted to accept it."

"By all means," said Sir Harry, his heart failing although he concealed his amazement successfully, as he led the way into the dining room. No doubt Martin can still get up a fairly acceptable meal for you. Have a drink of something?"

MacBee declined and sat down wearily. "I had a wire from London this morning stating that you had started for here," he explained in answer to their queries, "and being in the neighborhood tonight thought I'd take a chance of finding you."

"Big what on earth brings you up to Scotland?" Carrington asked.

"Business," MacBee answered. "You're likely to find me most anywhere. Perhaps I'm watching you."

"Indeed?" laughed Sir Harry. "Then permit me to offer you a bed for the night and a glass of brandy in the morning—it's rather too tired to get out at dawn with us."

"I'd like to do it—nothing better," Sir Harry said. "I would," said MacBee with genuine regret. "But I'm up here on a little hunting expedition of my own that will keep me quite busy."

Carrington looked sharply at him, but neither MacBee's tone nor expression gave the slightest hint as to his thoughts. "Is it permissible to ask a question?" Sir Harry said.

"Quite—to ask—but not for me to answer, I am afraid," MacBee replied. "I must be off at once after I have eaten, and have had a little chat with you—if you will be good enough to pardon my seeming rudeness."

"Certainly," said Farndale. "But I wish you could charge your mind and stay over with us. Are you alone in the car?"

"Yes," said MacBee. "I have two men down in the village, but I ran out myself."

The inspector ate hurriedly, but with evident enjoyment. When he had finished he pushed back his chair and took out his pipe, declining Sir Harry's offer of a cigar. "I suppose you gentlemen are aware that Mr. Cornish's yacht succeeded in evading the revenue cutter that was sent out in search of her," MacBee said as he lit his pipe carefully, watching the two closely through the blue haze of rising smoke.

"Yes. We saw the accounts of the affair in the papers this morning," Farndale admitted. "Is there any later news about her?"

"No," said MacBee. "The Murits showed the cutter a clean pair of heels. She was discovered only a few miles off the coast near here, but slipped away in the darkness. Mr. Cornish is certainly a daring gentleman—the type of American millionaire that dares anything—even to evade the law—to attain his own desires."

Both Carrington and Farndale nodded, and waited with ill-concealed impatience for him to continue. Naturally they were nervous, speculating upon the possible knowledge of the inspector. They were thinking of the hidden upstairs, and wondering whether MacBee's carefully assumed ignorance was only a blind—it he really knew or suspected that three were there. The thought of Harcourt suddenly regaining consciousness and making an outcry that might betray him, occurred to both of them. So they both edged in their chairs, fervently hoping in their nervousness that the detective would go shortly.

"I hope that you will both believe me to be sincere when I say that I am working in the interests of Lord Harcourt as well as in those of the law," MacBee said at last, knocking the ashes from his pipe. "No one wishes to see his name cleared of this charge more earnestly than I do, but I want to warn you gentlemen that you will only make my work harder, and harm both your friend and yourselves if you make any foolish moves now."

MacBee looked keenly from one to the other of them.

"I don't think I quite understand," said Sir Harry.

"Pardon me," said MacBee with an indignant smile, "but I think you do understand perfectly. I may as well tell you that I am perfectly well aware of the fact that an attempt was made to set Lord Harcourt ashore when the cutter discovered the Murits. I don't know where the Murits is at this moment, but it would be quite unsafe for her to make any effort to touch anywhere along the coast of British Isles at the present time."

Sir Harry broke in hastily. "Let me assure you, Mr. Inspector, that we have not the slightest intention of attempting to communicate with the yacht in any way. Mr. Carrington and I are here for a fortnight's shooting, after which we will return to London."

"Then since we understand each other thoroughly, I will bid you good night," said MacBee. He arose and put on his coat.

"Shall we see you soon again?" Sir Harry asked as they walked into the entrance hall.

"Possibly," MacBee replied. "My movements depend largely on circumstances. I may remain in this neighborhood some time, or I may be called away suddenly. I hope you will enjoy your shooting. What is that," he exclaimed suddenly, glancing toward the window overlooking the veranda.

A tall slender figure in a flowing white robe passed before the glass and disappeared suddenly in the darkness of the night.

Both Farndale and Carrington gave a start but before MacBee could spring to the door, Farndale recovered himself and answered quickly, "Oh, that is Major Marston's Sappo servant. He is an expert with guns and the major lent him to me for our stay here."

"Oh," said MacBee with a smile. "I thought it might be a ghost."

The unexpected appearance of the servant had startled Farndale and he was afraid that the man's presence would suggest the coming of his master as well, but his presence of mind and prompt answer had apparently satisfied MacBee, so he gave no further thought to the matter, and a moment later the detective's car shot away from the house and disappeared around the turn in the road.

"What do you make of him?" Carrington asked when the detective had gone.

"One of two things," said Sir Harry. "Either he knows that Harcourt is here, and it suits his purpose to pretend that he doesn't know, or else we have completely deceived him. In any event he probably came here to warn us to be careful. We must be on our guard. Lord, I'm glad he didn't accept my invitation to remain with us over night."

"One thing certain," Carrington made Marston keep that Indian Beg hab indoors where no one will see him."

"Right-o!" Farndale agreed as they went inside and Sir Harry went upstairs to tell Cornish that the coast was clear once more.

In a few moments the American and the doctor joined them, eager for news of their talk with MacBee. "I, too, have news," Dr. Maybrooke announced. "Lord Harcourt was conscious for a few minutes. He is asleep again now, but when he awakens next time, he will be out of all danger."

"Bully!" Carrington exclaimed. "But how the devil are we going to keep him here quietly when he is strong enough to move about. He will soon learn where he is and with his idiotic ideas about giving himself up it will be almost impossible to make him stay."

"That will make no difference," said the doctor, shaking his head. "The task will be an easy one for the blow on his head has made him forget everything. He does not even know who he is, and his mind seems to be a complete blank. His own name means nothing to him and I am sure that he recalls nothing of the murder or how he was brought here."

"Astounding!" exclaimed Sir Harry. "Will he always be so?"

"No, I think not," said Maybrooke reassuringly. "All he needs is some strong suggestion of the past, and it will all come back to him like a flash. He saw Miss Cornish and her father but did not recognize them. In fact he does not even know me. If he should suddenly come face to face with Inspector MacBee or hear Captain Townsend's name spoken, however, I believe he would remember everything in an instant. Even the arrival of Miss Marston tomorrow may have that effect upon him. The suggestion of any of those things or persons that have weighed upon his mind in this trouble may bring back his memory. The fact that Mr. Cornish's presence did not do so is not strange because Mr. Cornish has been constantly trying to get his mind off those subjects."

Cornish puffed meditatively at his cigar. "Then as I see it," he said, "we must take care that Harcourt neither sees nor hears anything to bring the past back to him for a time."

"Exactly," said the doctor. "All that is necessary is to build up his strength, and when his memory returns he will be none the worse for the lapse. When he does recall it all, however, his mental attitude may be less difficult to handle. In any event, I hope the whole mystery may be solved by that time and there will be no danger of his making a false step that might tend to incriminate him."

As he spoke there was a slight noise at the window behind them. Like a flash the four men turned abruptly. Sir Harry took a step forward, and then stopped short.

Through the glass they could make out a crouching figure in the shadow outside. A face peered in at them, a wild, hunted look in the great eyes. It seemed almost like an animal at bay, yet they realized that a human being was staring in at them. "MacBee!" muttered Sir Harry with an oath. "He's come back craftily and discovered you, Cornish!"

The American was silent, looking fixedly at the face close to the window pane.

"No, it's not MacBee," Cornish said positively. "With a bound he was at the casement and threw it open quickly, before the man outside could step away. Like a flash Cornish caught him by the collar and dragged him roughly into the lighted room."

He was small and dark, and his clothes were tattered and dirty. A heavy beard covered his face, and in the light of the table lamp, in spite of the altered appearance of the man, they at once recognized Kirshin Kanduwhar.

"How the devil did you get here?" Cornish demanded, letting go his hold upon the Indian's collar.

"That is a long story and quite unimportant," Kanduwhar answered in the smooth voice, with a slough of his shoulders. "The fact remains that I am here, gentlemen."

"Then what do you want?" asked Sir Harry sharply, suspicion con spiring with his tone. "Why are you spying about here in this manner?"

Kanduwhar smiled grimly. "My reason for coming is a probably not unlike that of the man who is pretending to be ill upstairs," he said.

"He is a very sick man," then he almost bit his tongue because of the ill-voiced admission he had made.

Sir Harry frowned and turned quickly to Kanduwhar. "How do you know who is upstairs?" he demanded.

"I know that Lord Harcourt is here—know it quite as well as you do," said the Indian. "I did not see him, but in spite of that I know where he was hidden just day. But now regarding myself, you must devise some means of concealing me."

"You don't suppose I am going to conceal a murderer, do you?" Sir Harry said indignantly.

"Are you sure you are not already doing so?" Kanduwhar asked with curious infection.

"I am not—and you know it quite as well as I do!" Sir Harry cried angrily, advancing toward Kanduwhar with threatening expression.

"Pardon me, but I do not know it," said Kanduwhar quietly. "I know you suspect me, but as I have repeatedly told both Harcourt and Inspector MacBee, I am innocent of the crime."

"Then why did you run away?"

"Didn't Harcourt run away, too?"

"Not willingly," said Sir Harry.

"Neither did I," Kanduwhar returned firmly.

"Do you expect us to believe that?" Farndale asked.

"Probably not. I do not expect you to believe anything I may say—but what is more, I do not care whether you believe me or not," said Kanduwhar.

"The little group stared at him curiously, and Cornish shrugged his shoulders. To the American it seemed as though they were wasting time, yet Sir Harry was considering the matter from another angle entirely. He wondered how much Kanduwhar might know that would eventually be useful to him.

Kanduwhar was speaking again—quickly but with a commanding tone. "Whether or not you think I am telling the truth, the fact remains that you will conceal me here until such time as suits my convenience to go away." He uttered the words with calm conviction. He seemed sure of his ground, and of the effect of his statement upon the assembled audience. "For days I have been hunted like a wild animal," he went on. "I am at the end of my rope. No man can stand any longer the mental anguish and physical strain I have endured. My life is in danger every minute I am forced to face what threatens me. It was only by the merest chance that I succeeded in evading MacBee when he visited you here to night."

"Then you admit your guilt and the consequent danger to you if you are captured by the police?" said Sir Harry.

Harry.

"I do not," Kanduwhar responded instantly.

"What is to prevent my telephoning to the inspector and turning you over to him at once?" Sir Harry suggested, ignoring Kanduwhar's denial.

"Simply the fact that you can't afford to take the chance of my telling the police that Lord Harcourt is concealed upstairs," Kanduwhar said confidently.

"Are you threatening that you will do that?" Cornish demanded with a menacing gesture.

"No," said Kanduwhar, but nevertheless, that is way you will permit me to remain here. I give you my word as long as you give me the protection of this house, I will keep out of your way, and I will not reveal what I know—what you all wish to turn me over to Scotland Yard, Lord Harcourt goes to prison with me."

CHAPTER XIX.

ANOTHER CONFESSION.

In spite of Dr. Maybrooke's assurances, Harcourt was worse the following day. A fever had seized him, and he was in a delirium when Major Marston and Grace arrived the next morning. By common consent nothing was said to Grace about the presence of Kanduwhar, who had been put in the care of Marston's Indian servant, although the major was told of the facts, and during the course of the morning, visited the lodge where Kanduwhar was confined.

Nervous and anxious, Grace sat by Harcourt's bed, listening to the wild ravings of his disordered brain. Much of the time Harcourt's cries were incoherent, but now and then he talked quite plainly of the crime he had committed, and begged imaginary persons at his bedside to take him back to London so that he might give himself up to MacBee. The little household divided itself so that they might take turns sitting up with him, for they feared to leave the invalid alone a single moment, lest in his madness, he should leave the house and escape from their watchful care.

After a few days of tortured mental condition, he became quieter, but not before Grace, who was almost constantly by his bedside, had become nearly exhausted under the strain. She had been forced to listen to ravings that cut her to the quick—that strengthened her own fears and destroyed every hope she had steadfastly held out as to Harcourt's innocence. And now and then the horror of it grew worse as she heard him accuse himself who were forcing him into the position he had awakened one morning to face.

Then came the quieter and more critical point of Harcourt's illness, when his life hung in the balance by a slender thread. Gradually, however, the turning point came, and at last he was on the road to recovery. It was nearly a month before he was able to sit up for a short while at a time, yet even then he showed no signs of returning memory.

Meanwhile, there had been no further signs of MacBee's presence in the neighborhood and the fear of the detective had almost passed from those gathered in the hunting lodge. Carrington and Adele took long walks together, and Cornish had almost become reconciled to having a younger son of an English house for a son-in-law. In fact Adele's willingness to accept Dicky was becoming apparent to every one, and Carrington could hardly conceal his delight.

RUNAWAY STARS.

Extraordinary Speed of Famous Little Celestial Bodies

There is in the constellation of the Great Bear a famous little star which has been called a "runaway" because of the extraordinary speed with which it is moving.

This little star is so far away that the effect of its motion can only be noted by careful astronomical observations. Professor Newcomb has said of the star, which bears the name "1830 Groombridge," that the united attractions of the entire universe could not have set it going with such velocity, and would be unable to arrest it.

Some years ago Professor Kapteyn announced the discovery of a telescopic star in the Southern Hemisphere, in the constellation of Pictor, which appears to be moving considerably faster yet. What its real velocity is, however, can only be determined when its distance is made known.

The Story of Three St. Bernards.

There was sorrow in the home of Bruno Kronch, says a tourist in a letter from Switzerland to a Glasgow paper, when it was learned there that the three beautiful St. Bernard dogs—Dina, Medea and Solna, which had aided in many rescues—had been lost over a snow-covered precipice near Hochschneeberg. They were with the party in search of the three mountaineers who were lost a few days before. They slipped off the ice-covered Herminstein and landed on a rock which overhung a deep chasm. From this they could not go down or up, and the helpless animals howled pitifully. The animals were given up for lost, and for that reason the rejoicing was great when at dawn the next day the dogs appeared at the Baumgartnerhaus and barked for admission. Investigation showed that the dogs had worked their way up against the almost perpendicular snow and ice wall.

LATEST GET RICH GRAFT IN THE WEST

Two Held to Omaha Federal Court for Selling Wild Horse Herd.

Nobody Can Catch Them

They're Down on an Arizona Range and Every Sucker Makes a Try at It.

Omaha, Neb.—A brand new "get-rich-quick" scheme has come to light in Omaha, where J. S. Smith and two companions have been arrested by Federal authorities on a charge of conspiracy to defraud. Then men are under bond while the District Attorney is searching the code to find a law to fit the case. The scheme is particularly unique and is said to have netted thousands of dollars.

Breinv, the victims are persuaded to purchase range horses, subject to "range delivery," that is, the buyer must catch his own horses. This is not an unusual method—purchasing Western horses and creates no suspicion upon the part of the victim.

The horses are represented as being on a range in Arizona and the price quoted is ridiculously low. The victim is given a bill of sale calling for horses from 3 to 6 years old, giving a general outline of the section of the country where they are to be caught. In all cases so far this is Coconino County, Ariz.

The horses are there, as described in the bill of sale. The range is in Coconino County, and the purchaser is at liberty to catch his horses, place them on cars and get them to market. But, so far, the Government agents have not found a man who has been able to catch a horse. Coconino County is as big as all outdoors and the horses are a shade wilder than the proverbial "buck."

They are the "wild horses" of the Western plains. They are the descendants of those which escaped from the Spanish conquerors and for nearly 400 years have not known a master.

In early days the Navajo and other Southwestern Indians had ways of running down the young colts and raising them to maturity. But it always has been impossible to catch the horses, once they have grown old enough to have full strength and speed. With hundreds of miles of wild country over which these horses can run, the purchaser stands little chance of catching them. In addition, they have a disposition akin to a lion.

Smith and his associates assert they own a bunch of these horses and that their brand will be found on them. If anyone cares to investigate, so far, no one has been able to disprove their claims. The brands may be there, but inasmuch as a hope of the buyers have gotten within miles and miles of a band of these horses, they cannot deny the declaration.

One of the victims told his story to the United States District Attorney.

"I contracted for 80 head and was to go to Arizona and catch them on the range. Smith told me they were wild and that it would be no easy job, but I knew a lot about horses. I've cut out range horses hundreds and thousands of times and I didn't believe there was a horse on the prairie that I couldn't get."

Armed with my bill of sale, I went down to Flagstaff, Ariz., and prepared to pick up my horses. I was to have 80 between the ages of 3 and 8 years, and could take my pick of any of those belonging to Smith.

"I noticed the gang of loafers at the livery stable in Flagstaff smiled when I hired an outfit. There was a camp wagon and half a dozen men. I thought, it would take us about three days to get the best of the horses on the range, so I engaged the outfit for that length of time."

"We were on the range for more days than I care to admit. We saw wild horses, and they certainly were wild. In fact, they were but clouds of dust."

"I worked around the country with the crew eating their heads off and finally it dawned on me there was something wrong."

"Those horses were so wild a fellow would have had to hire a brigade of cavalry to surround them. When I became convinced of that we went back to Flagstaff. As our outfit entered the town we met another one going out to catch a bunch of range horses. I bought," explained the "sucker," "I let him go. I saw him a week later. He didn't have any horses. He saw dust, just like I did."

"Those animals have been sold dozens of times, but no one ever catches them. We suckers all had the same experience. There are horses there, all right. I don't know whether or not they belong to Smith. In fact, they are so wild they belong to anyone who gets them."

"I play the game, fell sucker and lost. But the next man that sells me horses in Arizona will have to catch the animals himself."

Unknown Reast in West Virginia. Looneyville, W. Va.—An animal supposed to be a panther has preyed upon cattle, sheep, hogs and poultry and evades all efforts to shoot it. Dogs will not trail it, but instead they cower and whine.

WHO'S WHO? AN UNSOLVED PUZZLE

Guessing Contest Begun When Fathers Wed Second Time.

A MISSOURIAN CONUNDRUM

Each Takes Daughter of the Other as His Wife and Arrival of Babies Mixes It More.

Hollister, Mo.—When Joe Walling married Joe Roucherfield's daughter ten years ago and Joe Roucherfield married Joe Walling's daughter, and Joe No. 1 became the son-in-law and father-in-law of Joe No. 2, and Joe No. 2 assumed the same relationship to Joe No. 1, they did not know that in time they would create a problem in relationship that would be a conundrum to the citizens of that part of Taney County, Mo., and the north part of Boone County, Ark., that border on the White River along the State line. The stranger to that part of the country invariably leaves in an unsettled state of mind, and when people in that section want to make a pun or propound a conundrum, they do not ask, "How old is Ann?" but "What relation is Hossy Walling to Anne Roucherfield?"

Both of the Joes are old settlers in the White River country, of the Ozarks. They took up life's burdens on adjoining farms near the Mayberry Ferry on the White, married and raised families. Life moved along peacefully and in all serenity. Then Joe No. 1 lost his wife. Joe No. 2 consoled him, and Joe No. 2's wife did what she could to help Joe No. 1 raise his children up in cleanliness and propriety. Then a calamity happened. Joe No. 2's wife died and both Joes and both sets of children had to hustle for themselves and do the best they could. As the year rolled by, however, the two older girls grew to maturity and relieved the situation.

Between the fathers the loss of their wives, their respective virtues and their ability as helpmates was a favorite topic of conversation and cemented a strong bond of friendship and sympathy between them. On hot days Joe No. 1 would linger at the end of a row while plowing until Joe No. 2 would finish his row and pull his team to a halt near by.

RETURNS FROM 22-YEAR EXILE

Priest Leaves Northern Wides for European Visit.

Edmonton, Alberta, Canada.—Rev. Father Gony, superior of St. Ignace Mission at Fort Smith, stopped here on his way to Europe after a voluntary exile of twenty-two years among the Cree Indians living north of the sixtieth parallel of latitude. He is on his way to Nantes, France, where he will visit his aged parents. Then he will go to Rome for an audience with the Pope before returning to the McKenzie River District.

FIND BULLET 200 YEARS OLD

Lead Ball Probably Fired in Indian War Imbedded in Tree.

Portland, Maine.—Deeply imbedded in the solid trunk of a tree in Decings Oaks, where it probably had rested for about two hundred and twenty-five years, a bullet was disclosed when Harman Swanson, an employee of the park department, felled the tree. Examination of the bullet showed that it is a kind used more than two centuries ago, and it probably was fired in the Indian battle of Sept. 25, 1689.

LIZARD IN STOMACH FIVE YEARS

Man Cured When Live Reptile Is Extracted.

Wallace, Idaho.—Dr. O. Garay of Kellogg, Idaho, recently extracted a lizard from the stomach of William Boyle of this town, who has been ill for five years. Doctors had diagnosed his ailment as stomach trouble, gall stones, liver trouble and Bright's disease. The lizard was four inches long and alive. It is thought it hatched from an egg which had been swallowed in drinking water. Boyle is recovering.

PIG'S BITE FATAL TO FARMER

Slight Wound Causes Death Within a Few Hours.

Benvenue, Ark.—While he was carrying a 2-month-old pig home, after purchasing it from a neighbor, James Stallard was bitten by the little porker. The wound was only a slight one in the arm but that night blood poisoning set in and Stallard died soon thereafter.

Catches 3 Fish on One Hook

Tenaha, Texas.—James Pate of this town had the unique experience of catching three catfish on one hook recently, but only one the largest, furnished him with food. The first fish to bite was a small one. Then a large one came along and swallowed the first catch, and was snagged too. The third was about twelve inches long and it gulped the two fish on the line. When Pate dragged in his catch he found the larger fish on the hook and the heads of the two others were hanging on the line just above the snout of the hook.

"Guess I would have had a whole string had I stayed away long enough," said Pate in telling of it.

BAT IN HER HAIR.

A Housemaid in San Rafael had a Try-ing Experience.

San Rafael is suffering from an invasion of bats, and despite the strenuous efforts of the citizens the winged pests have gained a strong foothold in various parts of the town. Because of their activity Miss Lillian Steadman, a pretty young housemaid employed at the Hotel Rafael, is mourning the loss of her golden tresses and incidentally suffering from a shock to her nervous system.

Miss Steadman climbed to the attic in the hotel on Saturday evening determined to drive out some of the bats. She was surrounded soon by a grove of the winged rodents and proceeded gamely to give battle to them. "One of the bats lodged in the young lady's hair and refused to budge. Miss Steadman, thoroughly frightened, ran screaming from the attic and the bat still clinging to her, keeping busy with his sawlike wings till he had succeeded in cutting her beautiful tresses so badly that it was necessary to shear them off, much to the sorrow of the girl and her admirers.

Growsome Private Museum.

The miscellaneous objects which have been collected by Harry de Windt, the traveler, who has started on a reindeer trip in the Laplands, form a growsome private museum. A Buddhist praying wheel, the skull of a Dyak warrior, Dyak shields adorned with hair from the scalps of enemies, daggers and spears in abundance, a Russian convict's dress, a set of chains which once hung from the legs and arms of a Siberian prisoner, and a genuine English cat-o-nine-tails are among the most curious objects.

Reserved Adjectives.

Certain adjectives are reserved for men and others for women. A man is never called "beautiful." Along with "pretty" and "lovely" that adjective has become the property of women and children alone. "Handsome" and the weak "good-looking" are the only two adjectives of the kind common to either sex. Even "beauteous" has no real masculine correlative. In English, since "beau" came to signify something other than personal looks, it is singular that "handsome" should have become the word for a strikingly good looking person, since its literal meaning is handy, dexterous. But "pretty" likewise comes from the Anglo Saxon word meaning "sly."

Saw Amusing Signs

Major General Head, who was the Australian officer attached to the Japanese army during the war with Russia, saw some amusing shop signs in Tokyo. In a cutler's over a barber's, "Extract of Bosh" (a hair restorer), and "Ladies' Parfumerie on the Upstairs" in front of a draper's. He had a memorable 24-hour railway journey in a compartment jammed with 10 men, women and children. He made a resolution not to fall asleep, but he woke up in the morning to find that a patient little Japanese lady had been supporting his head on her shoulder.

Australians May Turn Black.

Professor McMillan Brown, ethnologist, holds that the future Australian people will be black. The Polynesians, he said in a lecture at Sydney, came originally not from America, as has been supposed, but from Asia. They were white and changed color just as the future Australian may do as the centuries go on, at least in the tropical regions of the north. The violet rays of the sun will turn him black in course of time.

Early Marriages in Korea.

Extremely early marriage seems to be the fate of Korea's rulers. The latest sensation in Seoul is that measures are being taken to find a consort for the Prince Imperial, although he is only 11 years of age. There is talk of the daughter of the present Prime Minister, but whether that is by the desire of the Prime Minister himself or at the suggestion of Lady Om seems to be uncertain.

Paper Kettles For Soldiers.

The German army is to be supplied with paper kettles, a Japanese invention. Though made of pliable paper, they can be hung over a fire long enough to bring the water to a boil. One kettle can be used about eight times.

In all France there are only 1,100 persons who are millionaires in our sense of the word (in dollars). Of millionaires in France there are about 15,000, apart from the 1,100 already counted.

The sins that worry us most are those most likely to be found out.

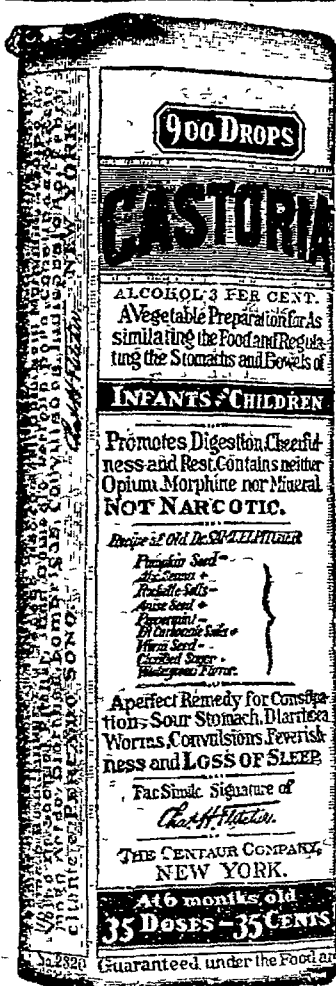

Some people's idea of charity is to give a starving man a peppin tablet.

An author never knows what bad stuff he can write till he becomes famous.

Many a man impresses us as not having strength enough even to break his word.

The one man who doubts that there is a room at the top is the sinner.

You Should be Careful in Buying and see that what you buy is in the line of natural development and that the city is actively growing in that direction. Every one will admit that Greater Detroit must expand west from Woodward Avenue. THINK OF THESE PRICES: $150.00 AND UP. and the word "up" does not mean in that out but it is two or three times as high.

BUT $425.00 BUYS OUR BEST LOT.

Many of the lots are less than 1,000 sq. ft. and all of them have CEMENT WALKS, SHADE TREES AND GRADED STREETS.

Notes the lots are only a short walk from the Ford Co. and only a few minutes ride from the Cadillac and other big factories and close to the Grand Boulevard and Woodward Avenue.

TERMS—$50.00 down and the balance almost any way to suit you. No taxes until December, 1915. You can buy one of these lots and pay for it without missing it, and before it is paid it should advance in value enough to pay you a very handsome profit. Real estate in Detroit is the best in the world and we can prove to you that these lots are the best investment in Detroit.

COME TO OUR OFFICE AND WE WILL TAKE YOU TO THE PROPERTY.

Come to the property Saturday afternoons and Sundays when our agents will show the lots. Take a Hamilton Boulevard car marked "Through" to Courtland Avenue. If you are disappointed we will refund your fare.

The big farm house at Stevens' corners, owned by Harmon Perry, burned to the ground last Friday noon. The fire was caused by an explosion of a gasoline stove. Only a few of the contents were saved, Mr. Perry and family having gone to Lapeer in their car to attend the funeral of an aunt.

A quiet wedding occurred here Saturday evening at 5.30 o'clock when Miss Lou Grace was united in marriage to Fred Pauline, Rev. Chas. Lee officiating, at the parsonage. Miss Viola Webster and Mark Owen were the only attendants. Both bride and groom have lived at their parental homes here nearly all their lives and have a large circle of friends. They enjoyed a short trip to Cleveland, returning home Monday.

Mrs. Ford and little daughters, Jane and Mary, were slightly burned in an auto fire at the Ely garage on Thursday of last week. They had driven up for gasoline and the motor running while the oil was poured in, contact with hot engine resulted in a blaze of fire which ran directly up into the face of the occupants of the car. Thanks to the protection of the windshield, they were not seriously burned, suffering but little from the accident. The auto is again in running order.

Miss Mable Marlow of Redford and Albert Bruder of this place were united in marriage on Wednesday of last week at the home of Rev. George E. Guillen in Detroit. They were attended by Miss Lulu Blanchfield of Detroit and Forest Dickerson of this village. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Bruder, long-time residents of Farmington, and was connected with the bank here before going to the Redford State bank, where he is now employed. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bruder will be at home to their many friends, in Redford.
