Vol. IV. No. 50.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, JULY 10, 1914.

$1.00 PER YEAR IN ADVANCE.

FOURTH JULY BROUGHT CROWDS

ONE GOOD BALL GAME AND ONE VERY PUNK.

GOOD HORSE RACES, MOSTLY BY LOCAL OWNERS.

The Fourth of July brought a crowd of people to Northville, though there were more visitors than sight-seers.

The morning ball game between the "Local P. M.'s" and Northville was one of the best played on the grounds this season and was won by the home team 4 to 3.

The afternoon game was as punk as the forenoon game was good. The score of 12 to 4 in Northville's favor doesn't indicate just how much worse the game might have been if the Northville team hadn't felt sorry for the railroaders.

The score for the forenoon game is as follows:

NORTHVILLE	AB	R	H	PO	E
R. Stimpson	4	0	2	1	1
Brillmeyer	4	0	0	1	0

The horse races were good, though there were but two horses from out of town present one from Ann Arbor (Walker's "Woodchuck") and one from Plymouth, (Taylor's "Pearl Wilkes").

Markham, Thomas, Tibbitts and Walker put on two extra races on their own hook which were enjoyable. The big crowd however hovered around the ball park and didn't seem to enthuse much over the racing, though there was a big scamper for the track when Tibbitts' horse fell down in turning at the end of a heat. No one was hurt fortunately.

POPULAR HOOSIER PULPIT AND PLATFORM ORATOR HERE DURING CHAUTAUQUA.

DR. HARRY G. HILL.

THE great conflicting currents that underlie the surface of human existence and the problems of society that have been allowed to go unsolved in the struggle for commercial supremacy during the past fifty years are now burning issues with which the country is confronted. How to meet these and what to do are questions difficult to answer. There has been and is much discussion regarding them. But many of those who are considered authorities along the lines of social work have nothing to offer in the way of solution except an array of facts with which we are all more or less familiar.

Dr. Harry G. Hill, our lecturer on the fourth day, is not one of this latter type. He does not simply present a few statistics. He tells you conditions as they are and then suggests how they should be and what should be done to make them that way. Years of experience as a prominent social worker and as pastor of some of the largest churches in the country, including the People's church of Indianapolis, have given Dr. Hill a view of life not held by many. He has met people on their respective levels, and he knows them. His lectures are great messages that give you a different view of life and something to consider. Dr. Hill is more than a lecturer and a social worker; he is an orator of the first rank and a humorist. You will be interested, attracted and entertained by him. What he says you will long consider and just as long how he said it. He will deliver at the Chautauqua either his lecture, "Heroes in Overalls," which has made him famous in the Chautauqua field, or "Sugar for Sour Grapes," and where desired his latest success, a community lecture. WITH CENTRAL CHAUTAUQUA MEET IN NORTHVILLE, AUG. 17-21.

The local band under direction of Mr. Porter gave some excellent music during the afternoon as well as a short concert in the evening.

The goodly sized crowd was a very orderly one and Marshal Bogart, who had no assistants, found no necessity even for his own services.

BLUE RIBBON RACES BIG EVENT

FASTEST MILE COURSE DETROIT HAS EVER KNOWN.

Trotters and pacers, in training never have shown as much vitality during the waning days of this long and trying preparation as they are at this time. Generally the last part of June brings from all of the big tracks, reports of ailing horses. This year the physical condition of the campaigners is excellent; few are on the hospital list from lameness, and all seem to have unusual vigor and speed.

The condition foretells large fields and exceptional contest for Detroit's annual midsummer carnival of speed, the Blue Ribbon races, which this year will be held from July 27 to 31. The entry in the stakes was the largest in the history of the club.

While the M. & M. and C. of C. stakes are the center of attraction, for they stand unrivaled on the light harness turf, the program for the Blue Ribbon meeting is such that every day may be spoken of as a big day. There are from two to three star races for each of the five afternoons, therefore if a person is unable to be in Detroit on one day he will see just as good racing on another.

Signs of the times point to this as the banner year for the sport. The rebuilt mile track is the fastest race course Detroit ever has known, and this with the earliness of the meeting and the freshness of the horses probably will result in lowering all speed averages for the Blue Ribbon trots, July 27-31.

THE STATE FAIR PREMIUM LISTS OUT

DETAILS $150,000 IN PREMIUMS AND PRIZES FOR THIS YEAR.

The Premium List for the Michigan State Fair, the 65th annual exhibition of the Michigan State Agricultural society, which will be held Sept. 7-13, is being distributed by Secretary-Manager G. W. Dickinson. The volume details $150,000 in premiums and purses which will be awarded this year, several notable additions having been made. China and Fine Arts have been added and liberal premiums are offered for amateur and professional china painting. Premiums in the Livestock department have been increased more than 25 per cent over 1913.

The horse races throughout the fortnight will be up to the State Fair standard, which places them on a high plane; and in addition here will be automobile races with "Wild Bob" Burman, the Speed King; Disbrow, Hearne, Ramey, Heinemann and a dozen other noted drivers. The shows on the Midway will be high class and the world-famous Kulties band will furnish music throughout the fair.

The Boys' State Fair School will be on the same comprehensive basis as last year and nearly a hundred youths will have the privilege of attending the exhibition as guests of the Management.

The Premium List is an attractive volume and handily arranged with indexes. Copies of it should be in the hands of every Michigan citizen and may be had for the asking at the office of this paper.

NOTICE TO PATRONS.

Adams Express Co. Now Handles Express Business on Detroit United Lines.

An arrangement has been made with the Adams Express Co. by which this company will handle the express business on the Detroit United Lines, succeeding the United States Express Co., which discontinued business June 13. The Adams Express Co. will establish agencies at all principal points along the electric railways included in the Detroit Electric Lines. This service will be of great benefit to our express patrons as the Adams Express Co. operates through car service between Detroit and all principal points east and west, also all points in the southern states reached by the Southern Express Co., controlled by the Adams Express Co. This, with the through car service to Chicago and all points west and northwest to the Pacific coast, provides unexcelled facilities for the safe and rapid handling of express matter from the district covered by the Detroit United Lines. The Adams Express Co. uses automobile trucks exclusively in the larger cities to handle shipments, thus insuring prompt and efficient service to its patrons.

Fast electric freight service will be maintained as at present on all the Detroit United Lines, the arrangement in regard to express in no wise supplanting the regular freight service.—Electric Service.

AN UNDERESTIMATED FOE.

If ten terrible monsters came every spring to this country and all summer long devoured the people, chewing babies as we eat blackberries, biting off the heads of young men, goring the aged to death and stalking about among us as a lion among the martyrs of the Coliseum, we should be up and doing, militia would march forth to give them battle, colonels would wave swords, guns would belch and no enthusiasm would be lacking. But when the monster is small and playful and common we let him ravage. He doesn't somehow appeal to our imagination, says the Ottumwa courier.

Yet he does more harm, being 14,000,000,000 or so, than any ten minotaurs, polyphemuses or dragons that ever posed in the pages of tradition. He is the common house fly.

Although much has been said about him and his deadliness the people are not yet alive to the enormity of his crimes. There are thousands of kitchens where flies still swarm and infect the food, thousands of babies over whose faces and upon whose lips flies spread their poison, thousands of restaurants and lunch counters where flies are busy at the work of thinning out the human race.

ONE ON THE EDITOR.

An editor who started about thirty years ago with only fifty-five cents, is now worth $10,000. His accumulation of wealth is due to his frugality, good habits, strict attention to business and the fact that an uncle died and left him $9,999.—Baltimore Trolley News.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The W. R. C. annual picnic has been dated for Friday afternoon, July 24, at the home of Mrs. Tremper and daughter. Each member is to bring plate, cup, saucer, fork and spoon, and whatever eatables she may choose, as the supper is to be of the old-fashioned go-as-you-please-picnic variety.

Summer W. R. C. vacation is now on. No more meetings until August 26.

It is feared that the "Wild West" show had something to do with the small attendance at Wednesday evening's meeting. Of course the ladies had to go so as to take the children.

POSTAL M. O.

Hereafter U. S. Postal money orders are made payable at any post office in the United States.

POULTRY AND EGGS BUILD HOME

In 24 Years Couple Educates Two Children and Erects $5,000 House From Profits.

Kansas City, Mo.—Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Murphy, who live at Sixty-seventh and Monroe streets, have proved that money can be made from chickens without heeding the rules of scientific poultry-raising. Common sense is their recipe for success. Without trapping, keeping books, using incubators or preparing elaborate menus, this couple has erected a $5,000 home and educated two children from money saved on eggs and poultry during the past twenty-four years.

In addition to this they have materially decreased the high cost of living by using some of their eggs and chickens on their own table. Both the children were given musical education and the sons are now an instructor in the West Side Conservatory of Music in Chicago.

Starting in 1890, the Murphys purchased a few hens and have gradually increased their flock, although it is still a small one. They make no pretense of being poultry farmers, but have hopes some day of going into the business on a large scale. "One can't keep high bred poultry unless he has separate pens and yards for different strains and breeds, and I'm not fixed to do that now," declares Murphy.

"I'm not a scientific poultryman at all. I watch the hens and do the things that seem to bring the most eggs and the best chicken meat. For my purposes, I find that I have to mix the breeds, but I always use the very best stock. Every spring I get a new rooster or so—good ones, not closely related to my hens. I never use roosters hatched from eggs laid by my own hens. I always use Barred Rock males, but I have several breeds of hens, chiefly Barred Rocks, for general purposes. Black Langshans for the meat and Columbian Wyandottes for laying. Every once in a while I get a setting of some other breed.

"The roosters I buy or raise from 'bought' eggs serve just a year and then are sold or traded. We eat the young roosters related to the flock. And the hens are usually gotten rid of after the second year.

"I carry at least five pullets over every winter, and in summer they are usually around two hundred chickens. The roosters, one to every dozen hens, run with them all the year. The pullets in these winter flocks will lay in the fall, and set next winter—there's always one ready to set about the time I need her.

"I haven't any special feeding rules. I just give them a variety in the winter they get plenty of black or red pepper in their mash twice a week, and plenty of warm water. And I turn them loose in the forty foot lot they might scratch and roam a bit to keep healthy and happy. I'm careful about feeding the young chicks, for too early feeding causes more losses than anything else. I have the hens and chicks right on the nest for twenty-four hours after hatching, then I let them run for another twenty-four until they are forty-eight hours old—before giving them anything to eat. And no wet food then. Then that food is dry—oatmeal flakes or crackers."

The Murphys have done all this on a forty foot "farm," a vacant lot next to the one on which their home stands.

GIANT SELLS HIS OWN COFFIN

Undertaker Would Avoid Inconvenience to Friends

Birmingham, Ala.—Sam Foley, a Birmingham undertaker, is 6 feet 6 inches tall. Several years ago, when he was ill, he had built a special giant coffin for himself.

A few days ago a neighbor, an inch or two taller than Foley, was killed. Nowhere could a coffin be secured to fit him. And so it came about that Sam Foley had to give up his coffin for the occasion.

BOY ATTACKED BY HAWK; FATHER SAYS HIS LIFE

Parent Goes to Rescue With Ax After Bird Fastens Talons in Lad's Face.

Milford, Del.—A hungry hawk nearly killed a small son of E. N. Horsey, a farmer near here. The bird was eating two chickens. Horsey started to get his gun. Meanwhile, his son, Edward, 8 years old, ran into the poultry yard and threw snowballs at the hawk. The bird turned on the boy. It sank its talons into his face and began digging him with his bill. The lad fought back as best he could, but the battle was all in favor of the hawk. The youngster's screams brought his father with an ax. Horsey slashed the hawk and broke its wing. He finally killed it.

Measures His Money As Farmer Would

Oats

Bridgeton, N. J.—Benjamin Bonham, a storekeeper of this city, has the unusual hobby of collecting pennies. Not only does he procure all of them he can, but he often uses them in "returning change to customers. He paid one bill of $44 in pennies, and the persons who sought to buy postage stamps or small articles for the sake of getting a ten dollar bill cashed were often peevish by receiving their change in a paper bag—all pennies.

Bonham measures his money as a farmer would—by the bushel. He declares he has a bushel of one cent coins and says there are exactly 52,042 of them. He counted them himself and enjoyed the experience.

A Transaction in Shirtwaists

Copyright, The Frank A. Munsey Company.

By HOWARD P. ROCKEY

"I guess maybe that'll hold that low-life Katzen for a while yet!" said Moc Bloom triumphantly, as he the daring advertisement of the Manhattan Elite Bazaar in the morning newspapers.

"The printed words that told the bazaar's customers of the wonderful money-saving purchases awaiting them seemed to fascinate the store's proprietor. He gazed smilingly across the street at the windows of the 'A la Mode Store'—Iz Katzen, Proprietor."

"I tell you that is a fovy business already what I thought of," continued Mr. Bloom with satisfaction, as he lit a cigar. "I bought them women's shirtwaists last week of Mark Schefferlin, what went and felled, for fifteen cents each by the gross, lot if they are worth a cent them shirtwaists would sell for half a dollar already. Iz Katzen he wanted them, but I bought them in before he came by the sale."

"Good business," commented Ike Levinson, Bloom's chief salesman. "It seems though somehow, that no matter what we offer, the crowd always goes by Katzen's store, and don't buy nothing here at all."

"If you know how to sell goods like that fellow Goldmark what works by Katzen we would sell it so much as he does," enquired Bloom.

Levinson colored. "Any way we got 'em goin' this morning," he said. "It is only nine o'clock, and already the store is full of women fighting to get at them shirtwaists. If it keeps up like this, we won't have none left by another hour."

But we don't make no profit on them shirtwaists," said Bloom. "We pay for them fifteen cents and we sell them for thirteen. So we lose two cents on each garment we sell. I do it as a fovy business to get the crowd in here instead of to Katzen's place. Now you got to sell something with a good profit in it to every woman who buys one of them thirteen cent shirtwaists, you understand?"

Levinson nodded though he knew that fully half the shirtwaists had already been sold, and that the balance, without any exception, had hurried off without even so much as looking over the other merchandise displayed in the store.

A boy was about to withdraw from the office, Bloom uttered a violent exclamation, and the door dropped from between his teeth.

"Well, what d'ye think of that?" he roared, striding toward the window. "Will you look toward that fellow? Will you look what that Iz Katzen is up to now?"

As he spoke, there was pasted across the big show window of the A la Mode Store a gigantic sign announcing a "special sale of shirtwaists—twelve cents, marked down from fifty cents—the same garments sold by our competitors at higher prices." Even as the sign was put in place the grinning countenance of Mr. Katzen appeared in the doorway of his establishment.

And he has the nerve to make faces to me!" shouted Bloom wrathfully. "Honest, Levinson, if I had me a rate like that Katzen I would me all time stay in the house, from consideration of other people!"

A saleswoman was arranging several shirtwaists in the window opposite. Even at that distance, Bloom could see that they were identical with those he had advertised.

"That loater seen my advertisement, and fixed up this sale to do me!" shrieked Bloom. "What I don't see is where he got the goods. I'm going to make that Mark Schefferlin arrested already. He sold me those goods with the understanding I was to get them all, and he must have held out some on me to sell Katzen!"

Levinson was looking out through the swinging door into the store. He started, and looked intently at a young woman just paying for one of the bargain shirtwaists.

"Seems to me I seen her before some time," he said. "What is it?" he asked, as a young salesgirl entered.

the A la Mode Store. He saw them come out again bearing away parcels and played smiles. They even looked over at the Manhattan Elite Bazaar and grinned.

In his own store, all was quiet. Not a customer stood by the counters, and even the salesgirls seemed to have disappeared. Bloom had pleased him so much and swore he looked across the street and swore again.

Then, as a crowd of shoppers stepped out of Katzen's place, Bloom saw the hated sign taken down from the window. In its place was put up another. "Sold out!" it read. "Two hours' buying exhausts our supply of twelve-cent shirtwaists. Watch for our next sale! We always sell cheaper than other stores."

Levinson entered, and smiled as he looked at the sign opposite. "For why do you make it a joke?" Bloom thundered. "I tell you, that Goldmark is a salesman and an advertiser that is worth while already. He beats you out every time, Levinson."

"He laughs last what laughs on the right side of the street," said Levinson with a chuckle. "Mr. Bloom, I found out something. That crowd what bought all them garments from us this morning was saleswomen. Katzen's—I seen a girl come in here three times, and I recognized her for a young woman what works by Katzen."

"The loater!" said Mr. Bloom. "Then I gets a idea," continued Levinson. "When Katzen puts up that sign I calls all our girls from the shipping room upstairs, and some of the saleswomen, and sends them over to Katzen's—all with their hats and coats on, you understand. They buys back every one of them shirtwaists. We sells them to Katzen's girls for thirteen cents and now we gets them back again for twelve cents a garment."

"Levinson said Bloom, beaming with enthusiasm. "You got brains tomorrow we will advertise them same shirtwaists for eleven cents, and you starve by the counter and see that none of them ain't sold to a girl what might be a saleswoman from Katzen's!"

WIT SAVES HOME

Woman, Knowing Indians' Weakness for Dog Meat, Gives Them Sick One. "Toppa, keep—How a woman's wit saved her home from being robbed by Indians and turned the incident into a profitable trade was told in the reminiscences of J. Robert Cottonwood Falls. Mr. Roberts was one of the first white children born at Cedar Point, in Chase County, Mo. His father, Jamesworth Roberts, was one of the earliest Indian agents in Kansas, being stationed by the government at Council Grove in 1857. In 1865 they settled on a claim on the Cottonwood River.

It was while the men were away she saved the home from being pillaged by the red men. A band of fifty stopped there in the afternoon, pitched their tents and prepared to stay all night. The woman had with her only the younger children and this prevented flight had she wanted to leave.

Soon after camp was made half a dozen of the bucks came to the house, to ask for something to eat. The woman knew that if she offered them food the little stock of groceries would soon be exhausted. She also knew that if she refused the Indians would probably steal everything of value on the farm and might even attempt violence.

While she parlayed with the foraging party she saw the family dog in the yard. Owing to the canine's indisposition to exercise he was fat, and the woman, knowing well the weakness of the Indians for dog meat, suggested that she would trade the dog to them for two ponies. Smacking their lips and rubbing their stomachs they signified they would like the dog for soup, but did not want to give two ponies. After much haggling over the terms she finally traded the worthless dog off for one of the best ponies the band owned.

That night there was a great feast at the camp, and the youngsters at the Roberts home were sad eyed at the fate of their pet. But for years they rode the pony their mother secured in exchange for him.

Bullet on Rebound Kills Hunter. Ellsworth, Maine—While hunting for a wildcat, whose tracks he was following, Roscoe D. Long of East Blue Hill, was killed. A bullet fired by Oscar Black as the wildcat was crossing a ledge bounded from a rock and struck Long, severing an artery in his leg.

Find Body in Ice Cake. Philadelphia, Pa.—Boys playing on the bank of Wingochock Creek were frightened away when the sun's rays struck a block of ice, making it transparent, and disclosing the body of a red-headed man, frozen in the cake. The body could be seen as plainly as through the glass of a coffin. The man is unidentified.

Pension Also for Poverty-Stricken War Veteran's Widow. Lawrence, Kan.—From poverty to wealth, from her standpoint, was the transition of a day for "Aunt Nancy" Smith, a negro woman of Kansas City. A pension of $12 a month, with back payment totaling $7200 has been allowed her for the death of her husband, who was one of the first negro soldiers killed in the Civil War.

Ever since, "Aunt Nancy" has earned her own livelihood, working as a nurse until she was too feeble to continue.

SUSPECTS GIVEN MUCH CARE

Hotels Unwilling to Take Chance on Suits to Collect Damages for False Arrests.

New York—Two years ago the wrong man was ejected from one of the uptown hotels—the management believing him to be the right man—and the wrong man recovered a lot of vendable money by way of damages. So that they do things differently, now. Old Bill Dulin walked into one of the Thirty-fourth street hotels the other day.

"Seems to me," said the boss copper of the hotel, "that is the old gentleman who used to steer Chicago suckers against the rope. But I'm not sure—his face has changed somehow."

So the top copper didn't take any chances on Old Bill not being Old Bill and—drawing a damage suit. He just flagged a couple of his aids. The three of them stood around Old Bill at various angles and regarded Old Bill fixedly. Nothing coarse, you understand. Nothing obtrusive or ornery about their regard. They just looked at Old Bill, without a smile or a move or a change of eye. Old Bill stood it for about four seconds. Then he took the air through the Broadway entrance.

Ten minutes later the top copper was called to the telephone. "Say," said one of his underworld acquaintances, "be a good fellow, now. Old Bill's leaving town to-night."

There's a particularly nifty millinery shop on one of the side streets uptown. Its proprietor is a very good-looking, slender, black-eyed young man. Among his customers are Vanderbilts and Goulds and a Morgan or two, and others of the crusty old rich. His name is French by birth. Two days ago some three women entered his store.

"Can I serve mesdemoiselles?" inquired the handsome proprietor. He talked with the accent of the boulevards. His shoulders went level with his ears. His hand wagged, palms up. The young women were good looking and of opulence.

"Are you Mr. Swaray?" asked the spokeswoman. "But yes," said he. "Of a surety. I myself am Monsieur Swaray."

"Well," said the spokeswoman, "I just came on from Columbus, O., and I was asked to run in and see you by your cousin, Kitty Doyle."

So Mr. Swaray talked to them for a little while about dear old Columbus. And then he said he had to run uptown to grease a buggy or something. The young ladies from Columbus said he was just the dearest thing. But they wondered if he had a cold. Because he talked in a whisper.

HORSE TAKES MAIL WHEN OTHERS FAIL

For Fifteen Years He Worked Over Mountain Road and Can Make It Alone Now.

Philomath, Ore.—"Old Tom," a stage horse on the road between this town and Alsea, who is just beginning his fifteenth year as a carrier of mail for "Uncle Sam," knows the route so well that when roads are bad and storms raging, making it impossible to get the mail back over the line, he needs only to have the bags and pouches packed on his back and be liberated here. He gets through alone and unaided, and seldom fails to arrive on time either at Alsea or Philomath. He has carried the mail alone times without number when it could have been taken through in no other way. At times the mail hack, stranded by deep snows or slides in the mountains, has been left by the wayside, while old Tom, carrying the mail, went through alone. The horse has been on this route so long that he absolutely refuses to go over any other road. If an attempt is made to take him even a few hundred yards east of the Philomath depot he balks. Nor will he leave the depot till the train comes in, as it has always been his custom to wait with the hack for the arrival of passengers and mail destined for Alsea.

"Old Tom" has a most remarkable mileage record. He is known to have traveled a distance equal to almost four times around the world and yet he is still on the job, holds his head high and does his work satisfactorily.

He is the property of Fendall & Davis, local liverymen, who have a contract for carrying the mail between here and Alsea. Unlike all other horses kept in the barn, he requires no rope, halter or closed stall. He knows his place and he remains there faithfully when not on the road. And despite his remarkable record and the hard work he has done he has never been known to lie down in his stall. He takes his sleep standing.

"Tom" owners say they will put him on a pension, without work, whenever he shows signs of becoming old.

BET ON NAME ON KEG OF BEER

Soldiers Watch for Liquor Lost in Lake Fifteen Years Ago.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan.—Soldiers at the fort here are making wagers on the brand of beer that was thrown into Merritt Lake by a band of fishermen fifteen years ago when their boat capsized. The lake is being drained and the soldiers are watching for the old kegs which will decide their bets.

One Hog for Each Family, Town Law. Barnville, Pa.—A freak ordinance has been introduced in town council and it has prospects of passing. It is designed to reduce the high cost of living. The ordinance provides that every family shall be compelled to raise at least one hog a year.

Toil Shortening Life of Women

"Women are shortening their lives by going into business."

This is the flat-footed declaration of Dr. Cecile Lande, who has practised her profession in New York for many years. The talk I had with her, on the subject grew out of the appearance in a medical publication of an article by a doctor of national reputation, in which he produced figures to show that women live longer than men.

Dr. Lande talks with the confidence of one who is master of her facts, and she said without qualification that the figures quoted by the doctor in question would have a different reading fifty years hence.

The article outlined that while we are accustomed to considering the female the weaker sex all the statistics indicate that the woman is really harder and longer lived than the man. "According to the census of 1890," writes the author of the article, "there were 3,981 centenarians in this country, of whom 2,532 were women and 1,448 men. The mystery of this tendency of life in women still remains a secret."

According to Dr. Lande, it isn't a secret at all. "Up until the present age," she said, "women have always played the game of life on the defensive. It is a rule of military tactics, and the same holds good in the battle of life, that the offensive is the more wearing form of warfare. For ages women have lived in protected homes. Their great mission has been the reproduction of the race. They have been tenderly cared for that they might fulfill this mission."

"The census of 1950 will show a different set of figures. It is, of course, true that women have naturally greater resisting powers than men. This is amply proved by the fact that more boys than girls die before they reach the age of maturity. But women have always kept that power in reserve that they might fight off all the ills and troubles that come to them. Men have to go into the world and in a measure, search for ills and troubles that must be fought and conquered."

Heretofore women have been able to rest whenever they felt that they needed it; that is, a large majority of them. When a woman has nothing to do but her housework she can lie down when she feels tired and take up her duties when she is rested. A man cannot do that in the business world and neither can a woman. Health or Nerves Go Wrong.

"When a woman does not feel well at home her husband can get someone in to help her for a day or two. But that does not work in the world of business. She must be at her work every day, six days in the week, whether she feels like it or not, and that is what men have been doing for generations. This naturally calls for a bigger strain on her reserve power and she finds herself overwhelmed at an age when her grandmother would have got as young as a girl."

Look at any woman of today who went into business twenty years ago, at the same time that a man of the same age started. A man of today in the business world is just in the prime of his life at forty or so. A woman, who has been in business for the same length of time is getting old and worn.

"The normally successful man is a greater master of himself and his affairs at fifty years than he was at thirty-five, supposing he started out in the world at twenty. A woman who starts at the same time of life is beginning to slip back at thirty-five. Her health is likely to fail and her nerves go wrong."

"But she cannot heed the warning signs of fatigue as she would if she were in a protected home. She must go on and on, drawing more and more on her reserve every day until she breaks down at a time when man is just beginning to find himself."

"If you live long enough to see, you will notice that this generation will not produce the same hardy stock of women that were our grandmothers."

Veal Croquettes

Put 2 cups of finely chopped veal in a saucepan, add 2 tablespoons of fine bread crumbs, 1 teaspoon of butter, the beaten yolks of 2 raw eggs, 1 teaspoon of onion juice, 1-2 teaspoon of salt, 1 saltspoon paprika and a speck of mace. Stir the mixture over the fire until thoroughly heated, then set aside to cool. Shape into croquettes, dip in beaten egg, roll in fine crumbs, let stand one or more hours and fry until well browned. Serve with tomato sauce.

Southern Rice

Take a large cup of rice, wash in two waters, then add enough cold water to cover, and cook in double boiler until done, over a very brisk fire. Salt to taste and be careful not to stir while cooking as this spoils the flaky particles. Make a sauce of one pint of hot water, two large tablespoons sugar, a little salt, and when boiling thicken with a little cornstarch. Flavor with lemon extract and pile rice on individual dishes, and put gravy in a boat to pour over rice.

SURGEON'S KNIFE

Philadelphia, Pa.—"It seems just as if the doctor had brought my boy back to me from the dead." That is what Mrs. Mary Gorman thinks of the surgical operation by which her fourteen-year-old son John was transformed from a vicious, irresponsible boy into a model youth. Only five weeks after the operation he took upon his shoulders the responsibility of the support of his mother, his brother, two sisters and himself.

BAD EFFECTS OF SMOKING.

After observing 600 school boys for seven years, Superintendent Davis of Minnominie, Michigan, has reached these conclusions about cigarette smoking.

That boys who do not smoke average from 2 to 10% higher in scholarship than boys who do. In athletics the non-smokers have a still greater advantage. Idleness and poor conditions of home life almost always accompany the cigarette habit.

The American people use forty million postage stamps every day. A new machine has been set up at Washington to print them. This machine prints a continuous ribbon of paper, as wide as ten stamps, and the ribbon is cut into sheets of 100 stamps. Twelve thousand stamps are printed every minute, or 7,200 sheets of stamps per hour. This is very much higher speed than has been thought possible for that class of work.

IMMIGRATION SERVICE IS BADLY SHAKEN-UP

Is Imminent, Following Serious Charges Made Against Several of Its Officials.

Washington, D. C.—A big shake-up in the immigration service is imminent, because of serious charges made against several of its prominent officials, including N. W. Larned, Assistant Commissioner General, by Captain E. C. Insworth, an inspector in the service, stationed at San Francisco.

These charges include unfair recommendations in property purchases for the service, lobbying, misstatements to congressional committees, incompetency, irregularities in expense accounts, destruction of records and neglect of duty.

Secretary Wilson, of the Department of Labor, admitted he had received a report from Captain Insworth. A thorough investigation is to be made by the Secretary of the charges and complaints, and the probe may be sunk deep into other branches of the immigration service.

AMERICAN GUNBOAT SOON STOPS ATTACK ON DOMINICAN CITY

Washington.—The American gunboat Machas silenced the guns of President Bordas, of Santo Domingo, turned against the rebel city of Puerto Plata, last Friday, according to dispatches received here.

Only a few shots from the battery of eight four-inch rapid fire guns carried by the gunboat were necessary to end the bombardment.

It is assumed the attacking forces fired on the American vessel, thereby drawing her fire.

GOLD EXPORT RECORD.

Established By the Outward Movement for the Half Year.

With the shipment to Europe of $10,500,000 gold bars this week the United States practically rounded out the first half of the year 1912. For that period we have established a record. This week's consignments to France increase the amount of gold sent out of the country (through other ports as well as New York) to $84,400,000, a total never matched in the first half of any preceding year.

WANDERER IS FOUND.

Detroit, Mich.—On the verge of nervous and mental collapse, and after wandering about in several cities for the last ten days without knowing where he was or where he was going, Herbert Heighton, 22 years old, son of a wealthy Kent (Ohio) farmer, was located in Detroit. He is on his way to his parents in the custody of an elder brother. Heighton is suffering from loss of memory and cannot tell where he has been nor what he did with the greater part of $80 which he took with him when he disappeared ten days ago.

APPROPRIATION MEASURES.

Washington.—The House will hold itself in readiness this week to rush through conference reports on the appropriation bills, that the Government departments may have all the necessary funds for working expenses.

Delay in reaching an agreement with the Senate on new items inserted in these bills and changes made in appropriations as recommended by the House has brought Congress to a point where it has become necessary to pass enabling acts authorizing anticipation of appropriations.

PUBLICATION OF CANAL RULES FOLLOWS OPENING OF GREAT PANAMA WATERWAY TO COMMERCE OF THE WORLD

Army tents and group of soldiers alongside Pedro Miguel locks; Panama liner Ancos passing through middle chamber of Gatun locks; Colonel Goethals.

PANAMA.—(Special)—Since the Panama canal is now about finished and ready for business, Colonel Goethals has had published in official circulars all the details that must be complied with by vessels seeking passage through the new waterway. The most important of these provide that the tolls must be paid in cash, or that some financial guarantee for their payment, acceptable to the governor of the zone, must be deposited with the canal treasurer before a ship will be allowed to enter any lock.

The amount of the tolls each ship will have to pay will be determined by what is called its "Panama canal tonnage certificate." In non-technical language this is a document showing that all parts of the vessel have been carefully measured, and that after deducting all the space to be used for the crew, machinery and ship's stores of every kind, it has been found that the vessel has a certain number of cubic feet which are available for passengers, or cargo, or for "earning capacity." For every one hundred cubic feet of this "earning capacity" the Panama canal tolls will be $1.20. As the rules, regulations and laws of the Panama canal providing what space or space in a ship shall be considered earning capacity are different from those of the Suez and other canals, all vessels that expect to use the Panama canal must be remeasured. As this is a somewhat lengthy and tedious work, best performed when a vessel is empty, Colonel Goethals has authorized the collector of the port of New York, the collectors in some of the other large cities of the United States and certain properly designated officials abroad to measure vessels under what will now be known as the Panama rules and issue the required tonnage certificates.

While the canal authorities especially reserve the right to check and correct any measurement or certificate issued elsewhere than at the canal, ships are advised by the governor of the zone to provide themselves with these tonnage certificates before coming to the canal, to save themselves delay in transit.

What ships coming to the canal shall do at sea in the way of medical work is specifically mentioned in the new Panama canal regulations, just published by Col. Goethals.

"While these requirements at sea," the governor of the zone announces, "are largely advisory in character, a true and careful compliance with them will tend to relieve largely the stringency of the quarantine measures at the (canal) port of arrival."

In this way the canal will promote a greater care for the sick on passenger steamers at sea.

Vessels that arrive from infected ports in which the regulations prescribed to be observed in foreign ports have not been carried out will be placed in quarantine.

How other parts of the world will be warned against vessels the health conditions of which were not satisfactory to the canal authorities is made clear by the following regulation just made public:

"Vessels entering the ports for passing through the canal, that have had cases of quarantinable diseases on board during the voyage, will be allowed to proceed to the port of destination, after the persons sick of the quarantinable disease have been removed and the necessary disinfection carried out." In such cases the vessel should be passed through the canal in quarantine. In these cases, Col. Goethals' new regulations provide that "a sealed letter attached to the bill of health and forming a part of the ship's papers should be addressed to the health officer of the port of destination and the pratique granted the vessel shall have a notation of the facts entered thereon."

That the canal authorities are prepared to guarantee the healthfulness of the isthmus is made plain by another of the new quarantine regulations, which provides that when the quarantine officer at the canal releases a vessel "that has in all respects complied with the quarantine regulations prescribed by the Canal Zone government," he shall issue a certificate stating that "in the opinion of the quarantine officer the vessel will not convey quarantinable disease, and that said vessel is granted free pratique to enter her port of destination, the name of which shall be embodied in the certificate."

Federal Probers Find Former Senator Paynter Voted Lorimer Innocent While Owing Latter's Bank $29,150

CHICAGO.—(Special)—Government investigators who have been probing into the affairs of the LaSalle Street Trust & Savings bank, of which institution former Senator Lorimer was president until it was closed about the middle of June, have unearthed information which does not tally with the statements of former Senator Thomas H. Paynter of Kentucky, who borrowed $40,000 from the bank in 1911.

Paynter was a member of the senatorial committee which investigated the charges that Lorimer was fraudulently elected to the United States senate. While a majority of the senators believed the election had been secured by fraud and ousted Lorimer, Senator Paynter was loud in his praises of the Chicago politician and voted to retain him in the senate.

Paynter does not deny this, but he says his loan from the Lorimer bank was made after Lorimer was expelled from the senate, and further that Lorimer knew nothing about the loan.

As to the time of the Paynter loan, it was negotiated on November 1, 1911. Lorimer was expelled from the senate on July 13, 1912. At that time, according to the books of the bank, Paynter had still to pay on the loan $29,150.

"Lorimer's Personal Matter."

As to Lorimer's knowledge concerning the loan, the government has one witness who says that when the national bank examiner warned Vice President Murray, the bank's financial backer, to rid the bank of the Paynter loan Murray turned to him and said: "O don't bother me with that affair. That is Senator Lorimer's personal matter."

Here is the record of Paynter's loans:

- November 1, 1911—Borrowed $40,000 and gave four demand notes for $10,000 each.
- April 8, 1912—Borrowed another $500 and paid $3,000, leaving a balance of $33,500.
- May 8, 1912—Paid $1,000.
- May 14, 1912—Paid $750.
- May 26, 1912—Paynter took up his four notes—three for $10,000 and one for $1,750, to which amount it had been reduced by payments. Then he gave a new note for the entire balance of $31,750. On that date he also paid $330, leaving a balance of $31,420.
- July 1, 1912—Paid $2,200. This left a balance of $29,150. Two weeks later Senator Paynter voted to retain Lorimer in the senate.
- September 30, 1912—Paid $5,000. Balance, $24,150.
- October 1, 1912—Paid $2,500. Balance $21,650. On October 22, 1912, the national bank liquidated and be-

DID LORIMER KNOW OF PAYNTER LOAN?

Former Senator Paynter.

came a state institution, with Paynter's balance due dumped into the state bank, as shown by accountants for Receiver Niblack, have found the following figures:

- June 2, 1913—Paid $4,477.97.
- September 10, 1913—Paid $7,500. Also $88.42.
- November 3, 1913—Paid $5,000.
- May 25, 1914—Paid $10,000.
- June 2, 1914—Paid $2,083.61. This balanced the original account and wiped the slate clean. On the same day, however, Paynter borrowed a fresh $2,676.45. This was ten days before the bank closed. This amount is still unpaid. In his statement Mr. Paynter said it will be paid on demand.

District Attorney Wilkerson's investigation of the LaSalle Street Trust & Savings bank promises to be one of the most thorough inquiries ever conducted into a national bank scandal. Assistant District Attorney Joseph B. Fleming and Garfield Charles, an expert bank accountant, are in charge of the work of inspecting the bank books, gathering evidence of alleged misappropriation of funds, and are preparing a record for grand jury action.

DO AWAY WITH THE LOSS.

Until the council orders the furnishing of wire, or any electric light equipment, or labor stopped except for the village proper, just so long will the electric light plant be a money loser. The village might just as well go into the business of selling flour or groceries as to sell electric light supplies. Why not put in a line of bath tubs, lawn hose and sprinklers to go with the water works system and why not put on a force of plumbers, as well as men to do electric light wiring? Isn't there enough men on the council of good business judgement to kill off at once this public loss snag? For heavens sake, gentlemen, wake up and give the lie to the people who say you do nothing on your own incentive; only what you are told to do by the president or the advisory board.

PEOPLE CLEARED 50 PER CENT PROFIT.

At the council meeting Monday night, the Electric Light committee reported on the matter of President Scotten's portion of his unpaid bill for electric wiring. It was stated that a profit of nearly 50 per cent had been charged for wire fittings and fixtures in comparison with Detroit wholesale prices. Mr. Scotten stated he was given to understand he was to be furnished material at cost prices and labor free. He thought it was a poor system that allowed such over charges and he wouldn't pay the balance of his bill until this kind of a plan was eliminated. The members of the council thought he ought to pay the bill inasmuch as every one in the village had paid the same kind of prices in the past. The matter was left in that shape.

A motion was made that the council stop the wiring business but the matter was left over for a week.

When Doan's Kidney Pills were used, they gave relief."

HAPPENINGS IN LOCAL SOCIETY

Anyhow it's over.

Going to the Detroit-Northville picnic tomorrow?

The sugar trade has been very lively of late "Bumper" cherry crop.

Cherries were on sale about town this week as low as 3 and 6 cents per quart.

Plymouth is to have a gala day on August 20 next. Hope it won't be a gala day.

The Library board meeting which occurs tomorrow, Saturday, afternoon begins at 2:15, not at 2:30, o'clock.

Roy Ambler is having stone drawn to the lot east of his father's house on Cady street, for the foundation and walls of a new bungalow.

The South Lyon Herald accuses the Record of "a belated announcement" about our 4th of July doings. But why the adjective? We'd been harping on the subject for weeks.

The stone wall which is being built for Butch Balden's bungalow on West Main street is just about the prettiest piece of wall in town and will certainly add much to the attractiveness of the building.

If you do not see the name of your Fourth of July guests among all the others in this paper, its because you did not tell us about them. The Record reporters are neither omnipresent nor clairvoyant. Will you please remember next time?

The contract for Ashford's extensive improvements, of the village waterworks system has been let to the lowest bidder, who proved to be a local gentleman named Sherk. Let us hope he won't live up to his cognomen, when it comes to doing the work. (No poetry intended.)

Miss Alice Cunningham was delightfully surprised and entertained at the home of Myrtle Gorton Monday evening, by several young ladies. It being her sixteenth birthday she received many beautiful presents.

The Northville Protective association will meet in the town hall on Thursday evening of next week. This is a newly formed society for the purpose of preventing the stealing of horses around this village. All interested in this subject should attend the meeting.

A home made cannon touched off on the South Center street bridge the Fourth exploded and a part of it flew over into Vern Merritt's house on Mill street, a distance of over eighty rods. It struck with force enough to break through the siding. No one happened to be in the way for a wonder and that's the reason no one was hurt.

Snake stories are new in season, and we note two from last week's exchanges. A valuable cow belonging to a Walled Lake man died from the bite of a rattlesnake, (which isn't a very good "ad" for a summer resort,) and a lady near South Lyon was nearly scared to death by a social call from a six-foot blue racer as she sat on her porch sewing. (The "serpent" was killed and measured.)

Trainmen operating cars in Northville have been instructed that cars being backed in the village must not exceed a speed of four miles an hour and the cars must be stopped with the rear platform clear of the east crossing of Center street where passengers will board and alight. The motormen have also been instructed to dim their head lights while operating on Main street—D. H. Electric News.

A small Kansas boy was once called to view his new born baby brother. He looked it over with dissatisfaction, and finally asked: "Mamma, where did this thing come from?" "An angel brought it, Jimmie." "Was you awake when he came?" "Certainly, Jimmie." "Well, then, mamma, all I have got to say is that you are dead easy. I'd like to see any old angel put off such a looking thing on me."

Wm. Phillips celebrated the Fourth by going to Dearborn to spend the day with his daughter. But the celebration went a bit farther than "Bully" that necessary when near Inkster, the car in which he was riding was run into by a car following, and every seat torn up and people thrown from one end of the car to the other. Fortunately no one was hurt, barring scratches and black and blue spots, except one man in the second car who had three ribs broken.

Nine hundred million bushels of wheat, almost half of the average world's wheat production, a new record for the United States, is the predicted total yield of the farms of the country this year, the department of agriculture announced by the government crop statisticians in its June crop report. The enormous crop will be 137,000,000 bushels more than ever was grown before in the United States in any one year. There also will be large yields of oats and barley, probably second in size, in the history of the nation.

An article in the Evening News one night last week stated that Miss Doris Haddock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Haddock of Detroit, had been seriously injured by the explosion of a cannon firecracker, one of her limbs being shattered so that blood poisoning was feared. In correction of this error we would say that Miss Doris, while sliding down a toboggan at a picnic some two weeks ago, was slightly scratched on one of her limbs by a splinter on the toboggan. As a preventative to blood poisoning she is being treated with a new serum. The giving of this serum by the doctor was what started the erroneous report.

Regular R. A. M. meeting Wednesday evening, July 15.

Annual school meeting in the High school room Monday evening, July 13.

A large number of young boys took the Boy-Scout examinations for admission to the Tenderfoot class, given at the rink Tuesday evening by Scout Master Ellis. Most of them passed with high honors.

Wednesday, July 22, is Pontiac day in that city, with a barbecue big enough to feed 3,000 people. At this time a number of lots, held by the Commercial association will be sold for the purpose of raising a fund for the inducement of factories to locate in Pontiac.

The Wild West show has come and went, side shows, chuck luck and dice games, red lemonade, and the whole shooting match, including the snake charmer and the wiggly dancer. The 10c side show gave the better exhibit of the two aggregations, only the big show separated the crowd from their money much more rapidly.

A very pleasant family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Bradner, the Fourth of July. At noon a bountiful dinner was served to the twenty relatives present, including Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Vickery and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. M. F. Stanley, Mrs. G. P. Conroy and children of Farmington and Claude Stanley and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Stanley and children of this place.

Speaking of "best sellers," how many people are aware that the Bible is far and away the best seller of all best selling books in the world? With this fact in view, an Arkansas paper is printing the new testament as a serial, and it is proving to be one of the most popular features in the paper's history. The good book may be unfamiliar enough out in Arkansas to be a novelty to newspaper readers, but if it were that way as applied to folks in this part of the country, they wouldn't own it for any consideration.

There has been a loud complaint over the delay in rebuilding the bridge to the new cemetery, washed out on the night of May 10. It does seem as if that would have been one of the first things tended to as it is certainly most important. Fortunately there has been no local funeral, so that it has not interfered with local people to a very great extent. But it has kept visitors from seeing our beautiful burial ground unless they wanted to dodge behind barns, run the gauntlet of herds of cows and a few other inconveniences to get there by going across an adjoining farm land. It is understood that Mr. Porter has been given charge of the work and Northville people may be assured that the work will now go on with all possible rapidity.

Ferdinand's Death Puts Heavy Burden on Shoulders of Aged Ruler; Dissolution of Dual Monarchy Feared

Emperor Francis Joseph; Archduke Francis Ferdinand, his wife and family.

VIENNA.—(Special)—The assassination of Archduke Francis Ferdinand throws all the burdens of government on the shoulders of the aged Emperor Francis Joseph now in his eighty-fourth year. The late archduke had wielded a powerful influence in every department of political, naval and military affairs. His assistance lightened the burdens of Francis Joseph, who because of his advanced years is unable to perform the many arduous duties of his office.

Because of the extreme age of the emperor, the political unrest in Austria-Hungary and the apparent weakness of the present heir apparent, Archduke Karl, grave fears are felt for the future of the dual monarchy. The death of Francis Ferdinand becomes an event of international importance. His killing is a distinct menace to the peace of Europe, because it threatens a great power with the chaos which might result from splitting a union into two chief divisions.

There is nothing, apparently, which could take the place of a single sovereign—Emperor of Austria and King of Hungary—in keeping intact the most heterogeneous and unnatural state in Europe. At least ten languages are spoken in the Austro-Hungarian empire. In numerous instances there is deep-seated hostility between nationalities living side by side in limited districts. The dominant races in Austria and Hungary are jealous, often unfriendly and sometimes extremely antagonistic. The whole empire kingdom feels the pressure of centrifugal forces, tending to shatter it to pieces. Its head of union has been a sovereign acknowledged by the entire country.

These facts, how the great and immediate importance of the assassination. The new heir presumptive is twenty-two years old and untested in public affairs. He is a grandson of the Emperor Francis Joseph's second brother,

Lady Scott's Attitude Puts Pretty Polly in Funny Position

LONDON.—(Special)—Polly Chase, a white-haired young woman, the adopted daughter of Sir James Matthew Barrie, England's greatest playwright, is also an actress of universal recognition. She once gained fame (her enemies call it notoriety) as a "Pamela" in the United States. Polly's story is a sad one. She was born in the fact that Barrie is in love with Lady Scott, widow of England's Antarctic hero, sculptress, woman of stern idealism. He wants to marry Lady Scott. But Lady Scott will wed him only on one condition—so it is said—and that is that Polly step down out of the family for good and all.

Polly isn't willing to oblige herself, even to please Barrie and Lady Scott. She would like to please them very much, but—well, at present she is not the only heir Barrie has, and his fortune is now estimated at $2,700,000.

The first Mrs. Barrie, from whom the playwright obtained a divorce five years ago, was not altogether pleased with Polly Chase as an adopted daughter. The sentimentality Barrie discovered that Polly was the ideal child of his dreams from the first time he set eyes on her. Originally she had made her success in musical shows, in which shapely limbs were the great attraction. She came to London from America and after some other experiences obtained an engagement as one of the children in the first production of "Peter Pan."

It was then that she pleased Barrie so much. In the next production of "Peter Pan" she played the title part and made a great success. She proved that she possessed talent of a serious order. Probably this explains why Barrie wanted her as his daughter.

But Lady Scott, who lives in a paritane atmosphere, doesn't like Polly a bit. Besides, there are some influential persons in her immediate surroundings who think she ought not to get married at all, that as the widow of a national hero she should remain in sacred and unsullied loneliness. She might defy them, but she could only do it if Miss Polly Chase would relinquish her position as Barrie's adopted daughter.

It is a puzzling and cruel predicament for Miss Polly. Her friends say she won't get out of the family ever to please so important a person as Lady Scott.

PATENT FIRM EXPANDS.

Barthel and Barthel, who for fifty years have conducted the business of patent attorneys in the Buhl building, Detroit, have been joined by Mr. Lewis E. Flanders, who was formerly with the firm of Moulton & Flanders, Grand Rapids, Mich. The firm is now known as Barthel, Flanders & Barthel. Mr. C. R. Stickney, formerly of Chicago, and with Barthel & Barthel the past eight years, is retained as attorney and patent expert. Mr. K. H. Butler, formerly of Pittsburgh, formerly of Buffalo, are also associated with this progressive concern. New and complete offices, occupying one-half of the fourth floor, have been opened up, thus giving the firm the best equipped patent law offices in this section of the country. A regular correspondent in Washington affords the same facilities as though business were sent there—with the added advantage of being able to talk over details right in the Detroit office, personally. ## ROYAL HAND IS ILLINOIS TROPHY

Peoria Couple Confident Part of Mummy is That of Princess Thermuthis.

THE GIFT OF HER BROTHER

He Told Sister Getting It Cost Him "as Much as My Head Is Worth."

Peoria, Ill.—Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Petherbridge, of this city, are confident that they have in their possession "the hand that spanked oses," the prophet who led the children of Israel out of Egypt.

It is the right hand of a mummy, said to have been severed from the mummified body of Thermuthis, or Neferari, a daughter of Ramesses II, who was supposed to have been the oppressor of the Hebrews referred to in Bible history.

The hand, which is in a glass case and kept in a safety deposit vault when the family is away from home, came into the possession of Mrs. Petherbridge upon the death of her brother, Dr. James Bastow, who got the hand while traveling in the land of the Nile. Just how he got the hand is a story that he never told, but he said to his sister that it cost him "as much as his head was worth."

Dr. Bastow was in Cairo when he was invited to accompany a party of British archeologists who had organized an expedition for the purpose of locating the tombs of the Pharaohs. The excavators were successful in unearthing the tombs of ancient monarchs and the mummy of Thermuthis was found. It has not been explained how the right hand came to be severed, but Dr. Bastow came from the Princess

Four years ago Mr. and Mrs. Petherbridge made a trip around the world. They visited the Egyptian Museum in Cairo, in which the bodies of Ramesses II and his daughter Thermuthis are preserved. The visitors tried twice to find out whether the body of the Princess was minus a hand, but the casket was so arranged that only the head and feet were visible and the guide would not permit them to make a close investigation. They did not tell him that they had the hand of the Princess in a safety deposit vault in Peoria.

They were much disappointed but left the Nile confident that the hand in their possession belongs to the ancient mummy of the Princess.

The hand is of normal size and is so artistically wrapped that the lines of the finger balls can be seen through the cloth. Each finger is wrapped separately and this indicates that the body is that of some royal person, Mrs. Petherbridge says. Exposure to the air for 25 years has caused the bandage to turn brown in spots. In the palm of the hand the finger has shrunk slightly, leaving the bone of the thumb protruding through the bandage.

Only a portion of the Egyptians were permitted to bury their dead. In this group were three classes. The lowest class wrapped the bodies from head to foot in one long bandage. The middle class of the group were allowed to wrap the arms and legs separate from the trunk but only royalty wrapped fingers and toes separately.

The story of the adoption of Moses by the daughter of Pharaoh is familiar to every Sunday school pupil. She is not named in the Bible story, but historians have agreed that she was Thermuthis, daughter of Ramesses II, who generally has been identified as the Pharaoh who ruled from 1800 to 1280 B. C. He was the son of Seti or Sethos and was the third king of the nineteenth dynasty. He was famed as a warrior and builder. His great war was with the Hittites, whom he defeated in the great battle of Syria. He fortified the east of Egypt by erecting a great wall from Hehopolis to Tanis.

In his reign Nebes became the leading city of Egypt. Here he erected the temple known as the Ramessesum with a sitting statue of himself 60 feet high. He was the father of Menephtah, under whose reign the exodus of the Hebrews took place. His mummy was discovered near Thebes in 1881 and placed in the museum at Cairo.

Mexican Pottery.

Almost every one of the tourists who visit Mexico during the winter season carries away some specimen of modern Mexican pottery, be it the gray, blue, and red Guadalupe, the green-glaze of Oaxaca, the terra cotta inlaid with chips of broken china-ware from Cuernavaca, or the blue and white pottery of Puebla, often called for purposes of sale "Talavera." This particular pottery is in itself very attractive, the characteristic type being that of a grayish-white ground partially covered with a pattern usually of deep Delit blue with which browns and yellows are sometimes sparingly used in combination. The patterns are generally heraldic and almost invariably crude and medieval in design.

French Opium Smokers

Dr. Jeanseine, one of the professors at the Paris Faculty of Medicine, states that the opium habit is much more common among French navy officers than is generally supposed, and he thinks it quite possible that the prevalence of this curse may explain the numerous disasters which have overtaken the French navy of late. Dr. Jeanseine sets the number of opium smokers in the colonial infantry regiments at 15 per cent, in the foreign legion at 20 per cent, and among Europeans in native regiments at 25 per cent. He says that opium dens abound at Toulon, Brast, Lorient, Rochefort, Cherbourg and Paris.

Making Stage Money.

It is a curious coincidence that most of the "stage" money flashed by villains in melodramas, and for which there is so much blood-letting and murder in sensational plays, is made in Washington, almost within the shadow of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing. The demand for it has caused it to develop into quite a little industry. It is widely used as "prop-erty" for regular dramatic productions and also for amateur theatricals. It is engraved on green paper like "greenbacks."

The Harbor at Manila.

The amount of money spent in the harbor of Manila and the Passig River during the past year totaled at nearly four and a half million dollars. It is now the best and safest harbor in the Orient. Breakwaters and large covered docks have been constructed and channels cleared. The improvements are not yet completed.
