Mrs. Martha Beal Died in New York.

Mrs. Martha Beal died suddenly at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Booth, in New York city Monday. A letter was received here Monday from Mrs. Ashley, Mr. Booth's daughter, stating how well her grandmother seemed to be since coming to New York and how she really enjoyed the change from Detroit. The letter was written Sunday and Monday afternoon Emory Beal of Ypsilanti, an only son, received a telegram announcing her death.

Mrs. Beal was for many years a resident of this place where she had many warm friends. For a number of years past she has lived on Second street, Detroit and only recently she went to New York city to reside with her daughter, Mrs. Booth.

Mrs. Ralph Horton of Detroit, Mrs. Booth and Emory Beal are the only remaining children.

The funeral was held from the Emory Beal home in Ypsilanti Thursday and the interment was in the family lot here in Rural Hill.

Rev. J. E. Jackson of Detroit officiated at the service.

He and Mrs. Conkwright were visiting relatives there and Mr. Conkwright was out with his nephew hunting rabbits when he was accidentally shot. The bullet entered one of his legs above the knee and death resulted from loss of blood. The remains were brought here for burial Sunday. Mrs. Conkwright has the sympathy of the entire village. EDITOR OUT OF JAIL

Indiana State Judge Released by a Federal Judge

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—Judge A. B. Anderson, of the federal court here, released Charles Clogston, editor of the Terre Haute "Post," who had been fined and jailed for contempt of court for printing an article criticizing the Vigo county grand jury which was investigating alleged election frauds. Moreover, Clogston threatened to proceed against the officers of the state court if they molested him.

For this Clogston was summoned before the state court, by which he was fined and sent to jail for 10 days, and also denied the right to present testimony, or argue the case through attorneys, or take an appeal.

Judge Anderson issued a writ of habeas corpus late at night and the editor was produced in court the next day by the sheriff of Vigo county. The prosecuting attorney of Vigo was on hand to argue the case for the state officials.

After hearing the evidence Judge Anderson declared that Clogston had been deprived of his liberty without due process of law and ordered his immediate release. At the same time he ordered the Vigo county prosecuting attorney to take back word to the officers of the state court that if an attempt was made to interfere by the state court, he, Judge Anderson, would proceed against them. Turning to the editor he said:

"You are released, and you will do the public a service if you will notify me of any attempt to embarrass you in the least."

BRING BACK THE BIRDS.

$10,000 Subscribed to Encourage Return of Songsters.

to be available as the need for it arises.

The chief endeavor will be to spread the knowledge of the means by which birds can be attracted. The work is in charge of Herbert K. Job, a well-known ornithologist. He will establish model stations for the care of the wild birds on estates where they can be studied by those who are interested in the preservation of the feathered songsters. There will be nests and feed boxes and drinking fountains and various appliances by means of which the birds will be encouraged to live in northern and eastern parts of the country.

Those who have subscribed $1,000 each to the project are Edmund C. Converse, Samuel Thorne and William Rockefeller. Others who have contributed to the war chest of the association for this purpose are George Eastman, Mrs. Frederick F. Thompson and George F. Baker.

On the Havemeyer estate at Greenwich, Conn., a station has been built under the supervision of Mr. Job where those in the neighborhood who are interested in this practical and applied ornithology may observe the working out of the ideas of the association. Mr. Job has also arranged to give a series of lectures throughout the country.

The Wife's Money

"Susan, I wish you would let me have $150 for tile," said Mr. Baxter. "If I could drain that wet pasture, I could raise a big crop of corn next year. I have been wanting to do it for a long time."

"I have no money except what is out on good first mortgage security, and I don't care to call it in," said Mrs. Baxter, a bride of a month. "It took all the ready money I had to fix this house up so I could live in it. You and the boys do things in bad shape."

"But don't you see, Susan, that the crop on that field would bring more than six per cent? The whole farm needs a lot of money spent on it to bring it up where it should be," said Mr. Baxter, passing his cup for more coffee. "Look here, Lyman," said the wife, holding the coffee pot poised in the air. "I have $5,000 that I have got together by the hardest kind of work. I am getting $300 a year interest on it. That is what I used to get my wedding clothes and furnish this house. I shall have no more money for six months, and a good part of that is spoken for, as I am helping James' boy through college, so you see I shall have no money to spend on the farm for a year," and she poured the coffee and handed it to her husband.

"Women don't know anything about business. That field would be good security. I'll give you six per cent for the money," and Mr. Baxter rose in his chair and speared a slice of bread.

"Lyman, for goodness sake, ask to have things passed! You men have lived here alone until your manners are something awful," exclaimed Mrs. Baxter in an irritated voice. "Never mind my table manners. The thing that's biting me is to find a way to drain that field. Will you lend me the money since you haven't enough interest in me and your home to give it to me?" and Mr. Baxter poured his coffee into his saucer to cool.

"No, once and for all, I will neither lend nor give you a cent. If the field is such good security, borrow it at the bank. The thing is as broad as it is long. You managed to live before I married you and you can keep it up, if not you."

But Mr. Baxter had risen from the table, kicked his chair back with a heavy boot, caught up his hat from the floor and banged out of the house.

This was the beginning of trouble. The father and two boys, sixteen and nineteen, entered on a consistent course of persecution. Every means to obtain possession of the wife's money was adopted, from pleading to violence. One day, after a particularly distressing scene, the men left the house and Mrs. Baxter, seizing paper and pen, wrote to her brother, living fifteen miles distant, begging him to come and take her and her furniture away. She named a particular day the following week when Mr. Baxter would be absent from home as the most propitious time. When the day came, she carefully packed all her possessions and waited with increasing nervousness for her brother.

The boys were at work in the barn when the brother and father ratted into the yard, but came out to see who had arrived. Without ceremony the newcomers began loading the furniture. The boys determined to prevent this, and when the men emerged from the kitchen door they shouted:

"Drop that furniture! Not a thing goes from this house!" These commands were seconded by angry brandishing of clubs.

The father was seventy-five years old, but wiry as a youth, and it did not take him long to disarm one of the boys. The brother managed the other shouting, "Now take to the timber!"

The cupboard full of well-cooked food was all that remained for Mr. Baxter when he returned. His venture into matrimony as a financial enterprise had turned out less well than he had hoped.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

When making extra strings for baby's bonnet, make them in one piece. Sew a piece of tape across the corner where one seam on the strings. Slip string through tape, and the under skin. Windsor ties are nice, as they tangle less. When soiled they can be slipped out and there is no sewing or pinning when replacing them.

When comforts for beds are partly well worn, the cloth often splits lengthwise. To avoid that, lay a width of cheesecloth, or other thin goods crosswise over the cotton, before putting on outside. It does not make them hard or heavy.

Good and cheap advice: Five cents' worth of Prussian blue, 2 1/2 cents' worth salicylic acid, dissolve in one quart boiling water and put in pan or bottle, it is then ready for use.

When cooking cake going with milk or anything that is bad to scorch, sprinkle small handful of salt on stove lid.

Good way to cover countertops; enclose the batting in mosquito netting, tacking it here and there to prevent bunching up. Slip comforter thus made into the outside cover and tuck in place. When soiled it is easy to open one end and take out the inside. If this method is once used the old way will be abandoned.

To make the legs of a chicken or turkey as tender as the other parts take from knee joint, pull the tendons out at knee joint and then, with a quick, strong jerk, you can loosen tendon from thigh and pull out from the other meat. It's these tough tendons that make the whole leg an inferior portion. Also do not throw away the feet. Scald and remove outside skin and cook with giblets. They add much nourishment to the soup.

A Nice Plant Stand.

You can make a nice plant stand by taking an old castoff upholstered chair, saw the back off, take the bottom out, put in a wooden one, paint and varnish it and you will have a pretty as well as a strong stand for your fern, especially if your fern is heavy. An old-fashioned piano stool can be used the same way.

Wheat Possibilities in Australia.

The Commonwealth meteorologist, who has been making a close study of Australian wheat areas, states that the present production there of about 100,000,000 bushels can be increased by 1,000,000,000 bushels. Only 20,000 square miles in Australia are being used for wheat, which could be increased to 500,000 square miles.

THE TABLE.

Baked Salmon—One cat salmon, two eggs, one tablespoon melted butter, one cup bread crumbs, pepper, salt and minced cucumber pickle. Drain liquid from fish and set aside for sauce. Pick fish to pieces, then work in melted butter, seasoning, eggs and crumbs. Put in buttered bowl, cover tightly and set in pan of boiling water. Cook in hot oven one hour, then stand bowl in cold water to loosen pudding and turn out on hot dish. Serve with this sauce: One cup drawn butter, add liquid from can, one egg beaten, pepper, salt, a chopped pickle and some minced parsley or lettuce. Boil up and pour over fish or serve in gravy sauce.

Broiled Liver—Cut calf's liver into half-inch slices, cover with boiling water, let stand five minutes, drain and wipe dry. Sprinkle with salt and pepper and broil in greased broiler five minutes. Put on hot platter and spread with bits of butter. Serve very hot.

Round Steak—Three ways to serve it: First—One pound ground steak, one medium-sized onion, salt and pepper to taste. Flour hands, bake this into cakes. Fry in butter or half butter and lard. Take meat out of pan, add one tablespoon flour, stir until nice and brown, add one large cup cold water, stir until smooth. Salt and pepper to taste. Second—One pound ground round steak one inch thick. Spread out smooth on meat board. Cut with biscuit cutter into cakes. Have frying pan very hot just grease over with butter. Keep turning cakes until cooked through. Season with salt and pepper. Serve hot. Third—One pound steak, one onion, one tablespoon flour, two tablespoons butter and lard mixed. Put lard and butter in pan, add flour and onion, stir until brown, add steak, stir until done. Add one cup water, season with salt and pepper. Serve hot.

His Laurel Wreath. A certain major in the Philippines managed in some way always to get leave just before trouble with the natives was due. His colonel suspected him of having no stomach for fighting.

"Some day," remarked the colonel, "they'll want to give that fellow a decoration and I'll suggest one. It will be a wreath of leaves of absence."

Practice. Boy—Miss Jones, you are very beautiful! Lady—Thank you, Bobbie! Boy—Oh, that's all right! Us Boy Scouts have to do one kind act every day.

X-RAY MACHINE FINDS COPPER IN COTTON BALES CONSIGNED TO GERMANY

While the steamship City of Macon was being loaded at New York with 10,000 bales of cotton consigned to Bremen, Germany, three representatives of the British consulate were on the spot with a machine X-raying the bales to make sure they contained no hidden arms, ammunition, copper or other contraband intended for the German army. This precaution was taken as copper had been discovered in a number of bales which had been previously consigned for shipment to Germany.

The machine provided with powerful reflectors, and the X-rays easily penetrate the tightly packed masses of cotton.

SCARCITY OF FUR.

Prices So High Only the Rich Can New Indulge.

Wild fur-bearing animals have become so scarce in North America that the women of this country are wearing skunk, opossum, muskrat, domestic cat and even squirrel furs instead of the mink and otter and beaver which are now beyond the reach of all but the wealthy. This state of affairs has created a splendid opportunity for the production of fur from the animals kept in captivity and the United States Geological Survey has begun a series of experiments in order to be able to inform American farmers of the possibilities of fur raising as a business. Most of the successful fur farming in this country has been done with fox and skunk, but the government experts believe that mink and martens will prove even more practical as domestic animals. The experiments have shown that these animals are very easy to care for, thrive in a small space and eat a great variety of food.

HELPING THE HOUSEWIFE

One of the most unique advertising plans recently devised is that of forming a "sunshine" club for housewives, and furnishing the latest Polish and dust mops free to all members.

The mops supplied are the famous O-So-Ezy Polish and Dust Mops, which combine two mops in one. A polishing oil is used in one of the mop heads, the other mop is for dusting purposes, both adjustable on one handle, in a very simple manner. The results of using the O-So-Ezy are remarkable on hard-wood floors, linoleum, oilcloth and any wood surface about the home.

Such Detroit concerns as Newcomb-Endicott, J. L. Hudson & Co., Elliott, Taylor, Wolfenden & Crowley & Milner, Co. are having an immense demand for the O-So-Ezy Mop, but to introduce them to our readers quickly the club plan has been arranged for this section. Every woman who remits $1.75 to the company will receive a complete O-So-Ezy outfit, consisting of a can of O-So-Ezy Cedar Oil Polish and the mop with two heads. An order includes membership in the club, and ten certificates are sent to each one ordering. These certificates are to Midland.—James Watts, for many years keeper of a livery stable here, dropped dead. Heart disease was the cause. He was 56 years old and leaves a family.

Kalamazoo.—Aylmer officials have been unable to find any relative of Peter McGover, who died here. He was admitted to the institution 14 years ago from Grand Rapids.

Owosso.—Robin Castle, 15 years old, was caught in the belt of a gas engine on his father's farm near this city and before it could be stopped his right arm was broken in two places and one ear almost torn off.

Lansing.—The validity of the bequest of Leonard Rowland, of Oakland county, leaving his estate of $18,000 for the care of dependent children of Oakland county, was upheld by the supreme court Monday.

Chelsea.—The department store of W. P. Shank & Co. was completely destroyed by fire, and the Staffan block and the Belfer Hardware & Furniture Co., adjoining, suffered considerably from smoke and water. The total loss is estimated at $35,000.

Ann Arbor.—James S. Brokaw, of Whitmore Lake, a pioneer of this county, dropped dead in a barber shop in that village. He was a veteran of the Civil war, having been a member of the Twentieth Michigan infantry, and for 11 years had been a resident of Whitmore Lake.

Fargo.—Edward F. Young, aged 32 years, died suddenly while dining. Heart disease is presumed to have been the cause of death. He was apparently in good health and was joking with his wife and four children when he toppled from his chair and expired in a few minutes.

Ann Arbor.—Mrs. J. C. Freeman, of Jamestown, Mich., died here at the home of her son, C. C. Freeman, of pneumonia, at the age of 77. She is also survived by another son, Homer Freeman, of Jamestown, and by two daughters, Mrs. H. Dykman, of Traverse City, and Mrs. A. Cooper, of Rockford.

Ann Arbor.—By a vote of 11 to 3 the city council passed a resolution calling for a special election over the mayor's veto of Monday evening. The election is called for Jan. 29 for the purpose of ascertaining the opinion of the voters as to the advisability of spending $3,000 to sink a test well on the Steele farm for water works purposes.

East Lansing.—The dancing fad received a setback at M. A. C. with the announcement, made by the social committee of the faculty, to the effect that only the college fraternities and societies and one or two favored organizations will be permitted to entertain with dancing parties. This action limiting the number of social functions at the college was made necessary, according to the committee, by the lack of floor space at M. A. C.

TRIED COOKING RECIPES

NUT LOAF.
One egg, one cup of sugar, one cup of sweet milk, a heaping teaspoon of salt, one cup of finely chopped nuts, four cups of sifted flour, four heaping teaspoons of baking powder. Mix all well together, put in oiled baking tin, and set in a warm closet of range to rise for 20 minutes, then bake. To make it a little fancy add a few minced candy cherries.

TRILBY CREAM.
Drain juice of 1-2 quart of pineapple; chop fine; then take 1-2 pound marshmallows and cut in four parts; beat 1-2 pint cream sweeten and flavor, then mix all together. Of course if you want a larger quantity, use double amount. This is a fine dessert and not expensive.

APPLE FRUIT CAKE WITHOUT EGGS.
One cup sugar, one half cup of shortening, one half cup of cut raisins and dates, one teaspoonful of cinnamon, one quarter teaspoonful of cloves, half nutmeg, one and three-fourths cups of flour and one cup of apple sauce with one teaspoonful of soda stirred in sauce the last thing. This recipe is excellent in winter as cakes without eggs are in demand when eggs are so expensive.

CAKEMAKER'S HINT.
When it is necessary to make several cakes at once, save yourself the tiresome beating of the water by putting the required ingredients in their usual order into a small ice cream freezer. A few minutes of turning the crank results in a fine, smooth batter necessary for a successful cake. This is a great improvement over beating with a spoon after the old fashion.

COLONIAL TARTLETS.
One large cupful of seeded chopped raisins or candied cherries, the juice and grated rind of one lemon, the whites of two eggs, and a pinch of salt. Mix together well and put some of the mixture on rounds of pie crust from six to seven inches in diameter, and fold together from three sides, so that the shape will resemble a "George Washington" hat. Press the edges firmly together to hold the mixture in, well, put into a baking pan, brush over with a little sweetened milk, and bake a nice brown.

MEAT SUBSTITUTE.
Take two nice size potatoes, one big onion, one carrot, peel, cut in squares and fry in pot to which has been added one tablespoon lard. Fry eight or ten minutes, then cover vegetables well with water, adding salt and pepper to taste and teaspoon sugar. When nearly done one tablespoon elder vinegar may be added, but may be omitted if not desired. To this gravy add brown flour, which must be made separately by putting one tablespoon lard in frying pan, add two tablespoons flour, stir until a nice brown and add to gravy, stirring briskly so as to avoid lumps. Have five or six hard boiled eggs, add to the gravy. This is enough for two people. When more gravy is desired, more vegetables must be used.

FEATHER PUDDING.
One half cup sugar, two cups flour, one-fourth cup butter, one teaspoon cream tartar, one-half teaspoon soda, one cup sweet milk, flavor with grated peel of one lemon and steam one hour.
Sauce for same. One cup sugar, 1-4 cup butter, two tablespoons flour. Wet with cold water, one egg; add boiling water.

GINGER COOKIES.
One cup sugar, one cup molasses, one cup butter or lard, one egg, one tablespoon vinegar, one teaspoon ginger, one teaspoon soda, dissolved in a little hot water. Mix soft.

WHITE FRUIT CAKE.
One pound granulated sugar, one pound flour, 1-2 pound butter, one cup milk, 12 eggs whites, two pounds citron cut in thin strips, two pounds blanched almonds chopped coarse, one large grated coconut, two teaspoons lemon extract.
Before flour is sifted add one teaspoon soda and two of cream tartar. Cream butter and sugar, add milk, beat smooth, add beaten egg whites and flour. After beating add one-third of fruit and add the rest in alternate layers with batter. Always flour fruit before using to prevent sinking to bottom of cake. More flour can be added if not stiff enough. Bake 1-2 hours in slow oven.

PEANUT BRITTLE.
The best peanut brittle ever tasted is the simplest to make. Equal parts of shelled peanuts, chopped if desired, and sugar. Melt the sugar in a frying pan. When it is all melted and is just turning light brown, turn in the peanuts. Mix thoroughly and pour into a well-buttered pan. It will harden as soon as cold, and as it needs no cooking after the sugar is melted is the quickest sort of candy to make.

WEEK'S CALENDAR.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor)

Morning topic: "The Victories of Faith." This is the second sermon in the group of two. The first one having been preached last Sunday on the "Failure of Unbelief." It is hoped that the service of next Sunday be marked by the same goodly audience. The co-operation of all is needed to keep the morning service up to the present high standard.

Sunday school at the usual hour. Let every one see to it that the high mark attained last Sunday will continue every Sunday. The committee appointed last Sunday have a report to make and wish to make recommendations of importance to the men of the church.

The Christian Endeavor meets at six o'clock. The presence of all the young people are necessary to keep up the interest and attendance. Junior Endeavor meets Sunday afternoon at 2:30. Miss Nola Ross, leader.

Evening topic: "Religious Enthusiasm and its Conservation."

It is an inspiring fact to know that the church life in Northville was never in better condition than today. Interest and attendance is at the high tide. This is due principally to the enthusiasm of the people themselves. The important question confronting the church is how to make this present enthusiasm habitual and thus silence the critics who say that it is only a temporary wave. This question will be discussed Sunday night.

The unanimous show of hands at the service last Sunday indicates that thoroughness with which people read the church notes as well as all the contents of the local paper. Whatever else the people of Northville may or may not read, they evidently devour the contents of the Record.

The organization of Mrs. Curtis' Adult Bible Class the formation of the Junior C. C. and Sunday classes for the young women are the new activities in which the church is engaged.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor)

Sunday morning sermon topic: "Building the Church."

Evening subject: "Palace Beautiful." This is the third number of the popular series on "Pillars of Progress."

We all look with a good deal of pride to our Men's Bible Class, believing that its development in quite largely responsible for the great increase in the Sunday school attendance. Sunday school authorities all over tell us that the formation of a Men's class in a Sunday school never yet failed to increase the general attendance from 25 to 100 per cent. Let us take pride in our Men's Class, pray for it and best of all, come with us. Our class will meet every last night.

The Ladies Aid met on Tuesday and elected the following officers: President, Mrs. P. H. Woodworth; Vice-pres., Mrs. E. J. Cobb; Sec., Mrs. Wm. Wain; Treas., Mrs. Orla Teeksaar. The January-February conference held a dinner the same day, and report $25 cleared as the result.

The Bible Reading Circle will meet at the home of Mrs. F. G. Terrell next Monday afternoon.

The Epworth League members will go to Plymouth this Friday evening, to attend the District Epworth League rally. Sleights leave postoffice at 5:30 in case there is no snow the trip will be made in a hay rack.

The Woman's Home Missionary society will meet at the home of Mrs. Tassell Tuesday afternoon. All welcome.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor)

The Sunday morning sermon topic will be, "The Poverty of Wealth."

Importance of Healthy Kidneys

Northville Readers Should Learn to Keep the Kidneys Well.

The kidneys have a big work to do. All the blood in the body is coursing through the kidneys constantly to be freed from poisonous matter. It is a heavy enough task when the kidneys are well, but a cold, chill, fever, or some thoughtless exposure is likely to irritate, inflame and congest the kidneys and interrupt the purifying work.

Then the aching, frequently begins and is often accompanied by some irregularity of the urine—too frequent passages, sediment, or retention. Thousands testify to the wonderful merit of Doan's Kidney Pills, a remedy for the kidneys, only that has been used in kidney troubles 50 years. You will make no mistake in following this Northville citizen's advice.

Mrs. L. B. Charter, Dunlap street, Northville, Mich., says: "My experience with Doan's Kidney Pills has been such that I highly recommend them. When my kidneys were out of order and I had backache I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they greatly relieved me."—Advertisement.

FOUR STOMACH MAKES A SOUR MAN.

This is the day of the optimist. The "don't worry" man is a genial smiling chap who looks forward to a bright future of health and happiness.

The pessimist is scorned. He is blamed for a sunny and gloomy disposition and receives no sympathy for his morbid forebodings. It isn't altogether right.

Many a man gets the reputation for having a sour disposition, when the truth of the matter is that he has a sour stomach.

Almost a world's record, isn't it? Mr. Kimmel was formerly a Northville resident being associated in the cement business with Will Burrows.

The Camp Fire girls enjoyed a progressive lunch and hike Saturday afternoon. PHILIP STEELE of the ROYAL NORTHWEST MOUNTED POLICE

by JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

Author of The Danger Trail, The Honor of the Big Snows, etc.

Copyright, 1914, The Bobbs-Merrill Company.

"I thought so," he muttered with a slight catch in his voice. "You didn't follow my good advice, Bucky Noine, and now you reap the harvest of your folly. You have paid your debt to M'sieur Jarrette."

Then Philip turned quickly and looked back at Billinger. In his hand the agent held a paper package, which he had torn open. A second and similar package lay in the sand in front of him.

"Currency!" he gasped. "It's a part of the money stolen from the express car. The two hundred thousand was done up in five packages, and here are two of 'em. Those men were dead when I came, and each had a package lying on his breast. The fellow who pinked me was just leaving the dip!"

He dropped the package and began fipping down his trousers leg with a knife. Philip dropped on his knees beside him, but Billinger motioned him back.

"It's not bleeding bad," he said. "I can fix it alone."

"You're certain, Billinger?"

"Sure!" laughed the agent, though he was biting his lips until they were flecked with blood. "There's no need of you wasting time."

For a moment Philip clutched the other's hand.

"We can't understand what this all means, old man—the carrying off of—of Isobel—and the money here, but we'll find out soon."

"Leave that confounded carbine," exclaimed Billinger, as the other rose to mount. "I did rotten work with it and the other fellow fixed me with a pistol. That's why I'm not bleeding very much."

The outlaw had disappeared in the black edge of the Bad Lands when Philip dashed up out of the dip into the plain. There was only one break ahead of him, and toward this he urged his horse. In the entrance to the break there was another sandy but a darker dip and across this the hoof prints of the outlaw's horse were two of a walk—up at a gallop. It was one more step before the break had been the night of a fresh country half out between good and evil, with a wily of risk from the flat heart of the upland country where now the light of dawn rose in with broken trap and broken as hounds streaked and died by centuries of blinding sun.

Philip's heart beat a little faster as he urged his horse ahead and not for an instant did his pocket revolver drop from its guard over the man's ears. He knew, if he overtook the outlaw in retreat, that there would be a fight, and that it would be three against one. That was what he hoped for. It was an ambush that he dreaded. He realized that if the outlaw stopped and waited for him he would be at a terrible disadvantage. In open fight he was confident.

His prairie bred mount took the rough trail at a swift canter, evading the boulders and knife-edged trap in the same guarded manner that he galloped over prairie dog and badger holes out upon the plain. Twice in the ten minutes that followed their entrance into the chasm Philip saw movement ahead of him, and each time his revolver leaped to it. Once it was a wolf, again the swiftly moving shadow of an eagle sweeping with spread wings between him and the sun. He watched every concealment as he approached and half swung in his saddle in passing, ready to fire.

A quick turn in the creek bed, where the rock walls hugged in close, and his mare planted her forefeet with a suddenness that nearly sent him over her head. Directly in their path, struggling to rise from among the rocks, was a riderless horse. Two hundred yards beyond a man on foot was running swiftly up the chasm, and a pistol shot beyond him two others on horseback had turned and were waiting.

"Lord, if I had Billinger's gun now," groaned Philip.

At the sound of his voice and the pressure of his heels in her flank the mare vaulted over the animal in their path. The clatter of pursuing hoofs stopped the runner for an instant, and in that same instant Philip halted and rose in his stirrups to fire. As his finger pressed the trigger there came to his ears a thrilling sound from behind him—the sharp galloping beat of steel upon rock.

Billinger was coming—Billinger, with his broken leg and his carbine. He could have shouted for joy as he fired. Once—twice, and the outlaw was speeding ahead of him again, unhurt. A third shot and the man stumbled among the rocks and disappeared. There was no movement toward retreat on the part of the mounted men and Philip listened as he slipped in from cartridges. His horse was panting; he could hear the excited and joyous tumult of his own heart—but above it all he heard the steady beat, beat, beat of those approaching hoofs! Billinger would be there soon—in time to use his carbine at a deadly rate, while he got into closer quarters with his revolver.

God bless Billinger—and his broken leg!

He was filled with the craze of fight now and it found vent in a yell of defiance as he spurred on toward the outlaw. They were not going to run. They were waiting for him. He caught the gleam of the hot sun on their revolvers, and saw that they meant business as they swung a little apart to divide his fire.

At one hundred yards Philip still held his gun at his side; at sixty he pulled in his mare, flattened along her neck like an Indian in his pistol arm swinging free between her ears. It was one of the cleverest fighting tricks of the service, and he made the movement as the guns of the others leaped before their faces.

Two shots rang over his head, so close that they would have swept him from the saddle if he had been erect. In another moment the rock-bound chasm echoed with the steady roar of the three revolvers. In front of the flaming end of his own gun Philip saw the outlaw on the fight pitch forward in his saddle and fall to the ground.

He sent his last shot at the man on the left and drew his second gun before he could fire again his mare gave a tremendous lunge forward and stumbled upon her knees and with a gasp of horror Philip felt the saddle-slip as he swung to free himself.

In the few terrible seconds that followed Philip was conscious of two things—that death was very near, and that Billinger was a moment too late. Less than ten paces away the outlaw was deliberately taking aim at him, while his own pistol arm was pinned under the weight of his body. For a breath he ceased to struggle, looking up in frozen calmness at the man whose finger was already crooked to fire.

When a shot suddenly rang out, it passed through him in a lightning flash that it was the shot intended for him. But he saw no movement in the outlaw's arm, no smoke from his gun. For a moment the man sat rigid, and stiff in his saddle. Then his arm dropped. His revolver fell with a clatter among the stones. He slipped backward with a low groan and dropped his head and lifeless almost at Philip's feet.

"Billinger, Billinger!"

The words came in a rush of joy from Philip's lips. Billinger had come in time—just in time! He struggled so that he could turn his head and look down the chasm. Yes, there was Billinger—a hundred yards away, hunched over his saddle. Billinger, with his broken leg, his magnificent courage, his—

With a wild cry Philip jerked himself free. Good God! It was not Billinger! It was Isobel! She had slipped from the saddle—he saw her on the trotter a few steps among the rocks and then sank down among them.

With his pistol still in his hand he ran back to where Billinger's horse was standing. The girl was crumpled against the side of a boulder, with her head in her arms—and she was crying. In an instant he was beside her, and all that he had ever dreamed of, all that he had ever hoped for, burst from his lips as he caught her and held her close against his breast. Yet he never could have told what he said. Only he knew that her arms were clasped about his neck, and that as she pressed her face against him, she sobbed over and over again something about the old days at Lac Balm—and that she loved him, loved him! Then his eyes turned up the chasm, and what he saw there made him bend low behind the boulder and brought a strange thrill into his voice.

"You will stay here—a little while," he whispered, running his fingers through her shining hair. There was a tone of gentle command in his words as he placed her against the rock.

"I must go back for a few minutes. There is no danger—now."

He stopped and picked up the carbine which had fallen from her hand. There was one cartridge still in the breach. Replacing his revolver in its holster he rose above the rocks, ready to swing the rifle to his shoulder.

Up where the outlaw lay a man was standing in the trail. He was making no effort to conceal himself, and did not see Philip until he was within fifty paces of him. Even then he did not show surprise. Apparently he was unarmed, and Philip dropped the muzzle of his carbine.

The man motioned him to advance, standing with a spread hand resting on either hip. He was hatless and coatless. His hair was long. His face was covered with a sorcery growth of red beard, too short to hide his sunken cheeks. He might have been a man half starved, and yet there was strength in his bone frame and his eyes were as keen as a serpent's.

"Got in just in time to miss the fun after all," he said coolly. "Queer name, wasn't it? I was ahead of you up as far as the water hole. Saw what happened there."

Philip's hand dropped on the butt of his revolver.

"Who are you?" he asked. "Me? I'm Blackstone—Jim Blackstone, from ever beyond the elbow. I guess everybody for fifty miles round here knows me. And I guess I'm the only one who knows what's happened—and why."

He had stepped behind a huge rock that shut out the lower trail from them and Philip followed, his hand still on his revolver.

"They're both dead," added the stranger, signifying with a nod of his head that he meant the outlaws. "One of them was alive when I came up, but I ran my knife between his ribs, and he's dead now."

"The devil!" cried Philip, half drawing his revolver at the ferocious leer in the other's face.

"Wait," exclaimed the man, "and see if I'm not right. The man who was responsible for the wreck back there is my deadliest enemy—has been for years, and now I'm even up with him. And I guess in the eyes made at the water hole. The gang was waiting for him there. The money was divided, and two of the gang rode ahead. The other two were to go in another direction so as to divide the pursuit. The remittance man remained with them, and when the others had gone a distance he killed them both. He was sane now, you understand. He had committed a great crime and he was employing his own method of undoing it. Then he was going back to bury her."

The man's voice broke. A great sob shook his frame. When he looked up, Philip had drawn his revolver.

"And the remittance man—" he began.

"Is myself—Jim Blackstone—at your service."

The man turned his back to Philip, hunched over, as if bent in grief. For a moment he stood thus. There followed in that same moment, the loud report of a pistol, and when Philip leaped to catch his tottering form the glaze of death was in the outlaw's eyes.

"I was going to do this—back there—beside her," he gasped faintly. A of the law I've got the right to it. What do you say?"

"When a shot suddenly rang out."

"Go on," said Philip.

The snake-like eyes of the man burned with a dull flame and yet he spoke calmly.

"He came out here from England four years ago," he went on. "He was forced to come. Understand? He was such a devil back among his people—half a criminal even then—that he was sent out here on a regular monthly remittance. After that everything went the way of his younger brother. His father married again, and the second year he became even less than a remittance man, for his allowance was cut off. He was bad—bad from the start, and he went from bad to worse out here. He gambled, fought, robbed, and became the head of a gang of scoundrels as dangerous as himself. He brooded over what he considered his wrongs until he went a little mad. He lived only to avenge himself. At the first opportunity he was prepared to kill his father and his stepmother. Then, a few weeks ago, he learned that these two were coming to America and that on their way to Vancouver they would pass through Black House Station. He went completely mad then, and planned to destroy them, and rob the train. You know how he and his gang did the job. After it was over and they had got the money, he let his gang go on ahead of him while he went back to the wreck of the sleeper. He wanted to make sure that they were dead. Do you see?"

"Yes," said Philip tensely, "go on."

"And when he got there," continued the other, lowering his head as he filled an old briar pipe with tobacco, "he found some one else, it's strange—and you may wonder how I know it all. But it's true. Back in England he had worshipped a young girl. Like the others, she detested him; and yet he loved her and would have died for her. And in the wreck of the sleeper he found her and her father—both dead. He brought her out, and when no one was near carried her through the night to his horse. The knowledge that he had killed her—the only creature in the world that he loved—brought him back to sanity. It filled him with a new desire for vengeance—but vengeance of another kind. To achieve this vengeance he was compelled to leave her dead body miles out on the prairie. Then he hurried to overtake his comrades. As their leader he had kept possession of the money they had taken from the express car. The division was to be shiver ran through him and his head dropped limply forward.

Philip laid him with his face toward a rock and stepped out from his concealment. The girl had heard the pistol shot and was running up the trail.

"What was that?" she asked, when he had hurried to her.

"The last shot, sweetheart," he answered softly, catching her in his arms. "We're going back to Billinger now, and then—home."

THE END.

SAID HE FELT BETTER.

Picked Up After Listening To His Own Funeral Sermon.

HUNTINGTON, W. Va.—In Pike County, Eastern Kentucky, Jud Maerson, an aged mountaineer, attended his own funeral service. He was carried to the log meeting house to listen to the evangelist who travels through the mountains on horseback. Maerson, who lives in one of the wildest sections, became ill and feared no funeral services would follow his death. Therefore, when the exhorter made his periodical trip through the hills, he requested that his funeral services be held. The mountain people in holiday garb flocked to the log church. Maerson said he felt much improved by the sermon. After the services a dance was held.

A NICE LITTLE WINDFALL.

Pittsburgh Lady Got $515 On a Long Lost Insurance Policy.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—In 1886, I. K. Morange, a broker of this city, loaned a sum of money to Edgar Jones, an expressman, and took as security an insurance policy on Jones' life, including a transfer of the benefits. When Jones died, or if dead at all, nobody knows. Morange died in 1880. Recently the insurance company put an advertisement in the Pittsburgh Dispatch in the hope of ascertaining who was entitled to the balance due on the Jones policy, $515. The very next day after the publication Mrs. T. C. Perrine, of 716 Maryland avenue, Pittsburgh, visited the Dispatch office and produced the Jones' policy, with the transfer of benefits, and said she was Mr. Morange's daughter, and his only living heir. She will get the money.

A TRAGEDY OF LOVE.

Mabel McCormick Tries To Save Her Sweetheart's Life.

DANVILLE, Ind.—Holding the shot-ridden form of her dying lover in her arms, Miss Mabel McCormick, 24 years old, drove half a mile over a lonely country road to a farm house, where she summoned a physician in a vain attempt to save his life. The wounded man, Charles Cashboler, 22, died a few minutes later.

Cashboler was shot while driving with Miss McCormick near here when his rival, Charles Seward, 21, sprang from the side of the road, stopped the horse and fired a charge of buckshot into Cashboler's body.

There is a vast difference these days between a laboring man and a working man.

Chicago in 1910 contained 3,036 French, 6,564 Greeks, 65,985 Irish and 10,396 Scotch.

Household Hints

CHEAPER BREAD.

Rye and Corn Much Cheaper Than Wheat and Just as Nutritious.

Chemists have repeatedly called attention to the extravagance of the American public in respect to foods and have seen in this one of the causes of the high cost of living. Says the New York Medical Journal Again and again they have pointed out that cheaper cuts of meat, for example, are fully as nourishing as first and porterhouse steak, and that all that is needed is education as to the proper method of cooking.

What is true of meat applies also to many other foods. First now, for example, wheat flour has advanced considerably in price, being at $6.75 a barrel. Exactly the same amount of nourishment in the form of 150 flour costs $5, a saving of $1.75 a barrel.

Why, asks the weekly bulletin of the department of health, should Americans continue to prefer wheat flour when rye is equally nutritious and very much cheaper? Or why should they not learn, like the Scotch, to make oatmeal, which is even more nutritious and also much cheaper, a staple article of diet? Or why disdain delicious and wholesome cornmeal, highly nutritious and about two thirds the price of wheat?

It might be said, by way of reply to the Medical Journal, that common people like wheat bread better than rye bread or corn bread because it tastes better—even though no more nutritious in fact. While they may have to come to the cheaper bread, in the end, they naturally do not like to quit wheat bread because the conditions that may require them to do so will not be of their own making. It is easy to give poor people advice how to live cheaply, but it would be better to pay them wages enough to buy wheat bread, anyhow.

KEEPING IRONS IN GOOD CONDITION.

Irons treated in the following manner can be kept in excellent condition: Tie a lump of beeswax in a thin white rag. When the irons are hot, rub them with the rag and then scour with a cloth sprinkled with salt. After the ironing is finished and the irons are still warm, rub the wax over them and it will keep them smooth and free from rust, and if a brick which has been heated to the open is used for an ironing stand, the irons will be found to keep hot much longer than if an ordinary iron stand is used.

BLACK SATIN THEATER BAG.

A charming theater bag can be made of black satin with a geometrical center design in flat, vegetable beads in several shades of mustard color.

The beads are first sewed to the fabric and over them is worked an open work netting in black floss.

Smaller beads are used in other parts of the design. They were of the same coloring and not covered with the netting such as used on the big flat beads. Both kinds of beads are used in making the tassel which finished the bottom of the bag.

A GOOD EGG SHAMPOO.

To half a cake of pure white castile soap add a pint of hot rain-water. Set on the stove and beat until the soap is perfectly dissolved. To this add an egg which has been thoroughly whipped with an egg beater, stirring it into the mixture with the beater to prevent curdling.

Add one-third of a teaspoonful of borax and a teaspoonful of alcohol to preserve the shampoo. When ready to shampoo the hair, rub well into the scalp and rinse in several clear waters using a bath spray if you have one. The egg shampoo does cleanse the hair very satisfactorily.

MARK YOUR TRUNK.

Trunks are like that old song, "All coons look alike to me," and all trunks look alike piled up on the station platform. Mark yours. White initials, a red cross, blue star, or something different from the usual markings should be painted on both ends of the trunk. It may be necessary to make a quick transfer and you will be able to instantly find your own trunk.

CLEANING A WHITE PARASOL.

A young woman who cleaned a white parasol took it into the bathroom and coated it inside and out with a strong lather made of white soap, then the parasol was hung on the clothesline and the hose turned on it. The rush of water from the hose drove out every particle of suds and dirt and the parasol dried in a very short time.

RECIPE FOR CURLY HAIR.

A very good fluid for keeping the hair in curl is made of a tablespoonful of bruised quince seed to a pint of hot water. The water is poured over the seeds and the whole allowed to stand for several hours. The resultant mucilage may then be thinned with a few drops of essence of violet. The hair is moistened with the fluid before curling.

FRENCH CHALK TO REMOVE STAINS.

Use French chalk to remove a grease spot from a skirt. Apply thickly and let it stand for several days. If this is not effective, sponge the material first on one side, then on the other, with spirits of wine. Then press over a piece of thick linen.

THE STICKY CAKE AND THE PAN.

If a cake sticks to the pan, turn the pan upside down and lay on the bottom of it a cloth wet with cold water. After about 5 minutes the cake can usually be removed quite easily.

VINEGAR IN BOILING OF EGGS.

Into the boiling water used for poaching eggs, put one teaspoon of vinegar. Stir the water with circular motion, drop in eggs and you will find they are round in shape, and look inviting as well when taken out.

CAMPBOR TO PRESERVE FLOWERS.

Flowers wither quickly in the heat, but a small piece of camphor in the water will keep them fresh much longer.

OUR GRANDMOTHER SAYS.

Cream only slightly sour may be utilized to serve with puddings by beating it stiff after adding the juice of a lemon and a tablespoonful of sugar.

Small screws, brads and tacks may be kept from rusting by pouring them into bottles and corking tightly.

That polio-victim who obtains instant relief by bathing the afflicted parts with strong, cold coffee.

Odd bits of soap, when boiled, make an excellent shampoo jelly.

If a little thick cream is added to cake icing it will not crack when cut.

NOISES OF THE CITY.

They Undermine Health and Tend to Insanity—Protection For the Ear. WASHINGTON, D. C.—“City noises” and the “billboard nuisance” were subjects of discussion at the meeting of the American Civic Association. Jesse Lee Bennett of Baltimore read a paper on “The Posing of the Signboard.”

“Public Health vs. the Noise Nuisance” was the text of an address by Mrs. Morgan B. Oakley of Philadelphia. “Apologists for noise say,” declared Mrs. Oakley, “that those who suffer with them are nervous cranks; that they imagine discomfort where none exists; that they are the idle rich who would not hear the noise if they had something to keep their minds and bodies busy.”

“My numerous suffering correspondents disprove the theory. They are not the idle rich, they are the toiling people; they have more than enough to do. Many of them never heard the words ‘nervous invalid,’ but they say they are dying of noise. When they claim that constant noise is undermining their health, they are simply in accord with the best medical science.”

“The ear, logically, should receive the most protection from the law since it is defenseless. We can use deodorizers against foul smells; we can close our eyes to offensive sights, but our ears must remain open to the most offensive sounds.”

“Habituation to noise may be possible to persons of exceptionally strong nerves and power of concentration, but even though habituation be seemingly achieved, the work done under the influence of noise is inferior to that done in quiet surroundings.”

Mrs. Oakley suggested that city noises were the cause in part for the increase of insanity.

Who? There, Israel!

CLEVELAND, O.—A husband is only a horse hitched to a wagon, and he's got to keep right on pulling. Israel S. Felt, 21 years married National Garment Workers' Union official, made this statement in pleading in court for divorce from his wife, Rose. He also charged his spouse had a mania for buying diamonds.

NEW YORK SOCIETY GIRLS SEND WARM WINTER CLOTHING TO FRENCH FIGHTERS

Packing kits for French soldiers in Vanderbilt hotel.

The Vanderbilt hotel in New York city is the scene of unusual activity these days. Pretty society belles and equally charming society matrons whose names are to be found in the social registers and blue books are busily engaged in making up kits containing woolen gloves, woolen socks, woolen underwear, heavy mufflers, handkerchiefs, abdominal belts and soap. These kits, gotten up at an expense of two dollars each, are being sent to French soldiers in the trenches.

DOWN IN THE GROUND.

Hayden Crosby's Swell Dinner: 200 Feet Deep in a Virginia Cave.

HOT SPRINGS, Va.—A stag dinner that Hayden Crosby of Jacksonville gave here holds the record. It was in a cave 200 feet underground, reached by a passage narrow and steep.

Mr. Crosby's guests were ignorant of what entertainment was in store except that the invitations called for cowboy costumes. They were piled into carriages, driven two miles in a pouring rain, ordered out, still without explanations, and up a steep mountain side.

Then a sudden booming like great guns, screeching shells and lurid light of exploding powder filled the air and lit up the rocks above them for a half mile.

Inside the cave was lighted by automobile lamps. The illuminated sign, “This is Hell,” faced those who finally crawled on hands and knees down the shaft.

Negroes dressed as devils stood about with spears, and others wore painted suits resembling skeletons. Dinner was served at a long table set with individual souvenir dishes, served by a small automobile in a speedway built in the center of the table, the cavern being too narrow for waiters to serve in the usual way.

More Than She Will Stand For.

NEW YORK—One of the grounds laid in the divorce suit of Mrs. Sarah J. M. Dean from her actor husband, is that he curls his hair and wears corsets.

BRITISH SUBMARINES TO CHECK DARING GERMAN RAIDERS

English submarines E-3 (top) and D-5.

The recent German attack on the British east coast has aroused to greater watchfulness the English submarine fleet. The remarkable achievement of the British submarine B-11 in passing under five rows of mines before reaching the Turkish battleships which she sank shows what the British submarines can do when put to the test.

GERMANS IN TRENCHES BUILD SPLINTER PROOF SHELTERS

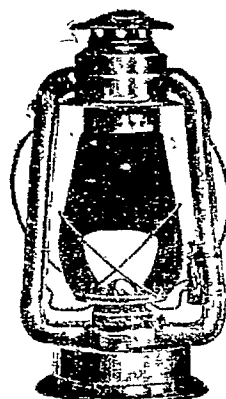

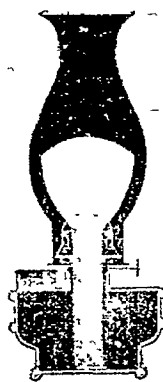

German officers in splinter proof shelter.

Never in modern warfare have trenches been used to such good purpose as the ones used respectively by the allies and the Germans on the field of action. The Germans have perfected the building and arrangements of their trenches to such a degree that were they compelled to remain in them, they could do so for months at a time with comfort. The trenches are built three feet deep on a scientific system in parallel lines and flanked by others, in which machine guns are concealed. At intervals in the intrenchments there are splinter proof shelters.
