

HAS RADICAL PLANS FOR BETTERMENT OF SOCIAL AND INDUSTRIAL CONDITIONS

Chairman Walsh of Industrial Relations Commission (new photograph).

Revolutionary theories of economics and social conditions have been recommended by the Walsh Commission on Industrial Relations, whose report was issued a few days ago. The report has recommended among other things that there be an inheritance tax that automatically will limit fortunes to $1,000,000.

SAVE YOUR WHEAT

SPECIAL NOTICE

Handling Damp Wheat by Mixing.

Office of Information, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture.

Washington, D. C. Much of the new crop of wheat as delivered from the farm this year has a high moisture content which if put into storage without special treatment is very likely to cause trouble by becoming moldy and lost.

By mixing high moisture and low moisture wheat together, a method whereby part of the damp wheat in the bins can be put into good condition was demonstrated in an experiment at Beltsville, Md. which was directed by a grain standardization specialist of the Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the Grinnell Manufacturing Company of that same city.

The experiment described was put to a test to determine if it would be possible or feasible to handle damp wheat in such a way that it would not be necessary to put it through a commercial drier and yet insure its safe storage in storage bins during shipment.

For this experiment one car of Pacific Coast white wheat containing 1908 bushels was mixed with one car of Eastern red winter wheat containing 1120 bushels and put into storage in an elevator bin. On July 29, samples taken from the white wheat while it was still in the bin tested 9.7 per cent moisture. Samples taken from the red wheat on July 31 while this wheat was also still in the car tested 15.1 per cent. These wheats were thoroughly mixed on August 3 and the mixture was then put into storage in an elevator bin and allowed to remain there until August 6, when it was transferred to another bin. Samples taken from the wheat at the time it was transferred tested 12.9 per cent moisture in the red wheat and 12.2 per cent in the white wheat. The wheat was allowed to remain in the second bin until August 10, when it was transferred to a third bin. Samples taken at this time showed that the moisture content of the red wheat was 12.5 per cent and of the white wheat 12.0 per cent. While the grain was still in the car the red wheat tested higher in moisture by 5.4 per cent than the white wheat. By August 6, or three days after the wheats were mixed, enough of the moisture from the damp wheat had been transferred to the dry wheat so that the difference in moisture content at that time was only seven-tenths of one per cent. By August 10, or one week after the wheats had been mixed the difference in their moisture contents had been reduced to only one-half of one per cent.

In order to have a record of the temperature changes in the grain during this experiment four electrical thermometers were placed at different depths in the bin into which the mixture was run. No appreciable change in temperature was noticed during the transfer of the moisture from the red to the white wheat.

The mixing of damp and dry wheat will facilitate the handling of the wet wheat this year. The miller who buys wet wheat and has some dry wheat to mix with it can observe some of the extra work in handling the damp wheat to keep it in condition and also get it in shape for milling by mixing the two wheats together for a few days. This will also mix the high part of the grain with the dry part of the grain and will bring it down to a low moisture content and mixed with another car of high moisture content wheat and rain and labor saved. If the mills or elevators are equipped so that they can mix and dry at the same time this method will greatly increase their capacity for taking care of large quantities of damp wheat.

STYLISH SHOW FOR FAIR VISITORS

Thousands of Women will Take Advantage of Their Visit to the Fair to See the Best Style Exhibits of All—And at No Cost.

Probably no other one-day exhibition has so many fashions and costumes. This great Michigan show, the well known center of Newcomb-Lindcott & Co., of Detroit, Mich.

During the days of the Michigan State Fair, the proportion of women who come to the fair is increasing. And there will be many collections of fashions, hats, and shoes. A delightful lunch room and a dining room on the third floor. On the fifth floor there is a completely equipped "ladies' first" department where stamps can be purchased—gratis—with no extra charges of any kind.

It is a service of this character which has made Newcomb-Lindcott & Co. well known to the fair-going public. And now come these great new fashions for the ladies of Michigan who will be able to see all that is new and with which to make up their wardrobe.

It will be an unusual opportunity. Viewing the foremost creations of American and foreign style producers and the various exhibits will make a visit to this establishment one to be remembered with the keenest pleasure.

Newcomb-Lindcott Co. have one of the most central locations in Detroit, on Woodward Ave., right in the heart of the retail district accessible to all motorists in the city and beyond.

In addition to the regular retail departments a mail order department is maintained and those at any distance can safely send in their orders with the assurance of prompt attention, and, and the highest quality of merchandise in every instance. The prices asked are always exceedingly moderate, and the new fall catalog now issued by the concern should be in the hands of every woman.

It is sent on postal card request and is profusely illustrated from LIFE—send a postal for your copy now, address Newcomb-Lindcott Co., Dpt. P., Detroit, Mich., and also be sure to visit the store when in Detroit, especially during the days of the fair—when exhibits will be at their best.

Good judgment frequently enables a man to use the good judgment of others.

Men may come and men may go, but the chigger is no respecter of persons.

The ideal husband exists chiefly in the minds of women who never married.

INSTALL BRIDGE LOOKOUT.

City Officials Put on Guards to Facilitate Traffic.

One of the most modern structures of the kind that has been designed to facilitate river navigation and street traffic, is the new type of lookout designed for the "jackknife" bridge.

One of these lookouts is located at each end of the bridge, and operates a "blade" of the structure. An electric controller operated by the bridge tender is located on the upper floor. The electric motor and gearing are on the floor below, and below this floor is a deep, capacious pit, into which a ponderous counterweight works to aid the electric power in operating the lift—Technical World.

FAIR TIME WILL BE AUTO BUYING TIME

Thousands of Visitors Will Secure Their Autos at This Time, and Wise Buyers Save Money.

The great Michigan State Fair will attract many thousands to Detroit for the next couple of weeks, and one of the most compelling attractions will be the automobile races. The interest in the races will extend into the buying of autos by many visitors, who will take this opportunity to look over the various lines and make their selection of their favorite models.

Those who are versed in the right way to buy will surely examine the used auto lines, shown by the big house of Loveland, for here Saxons, Hudsons, Fords, Cadillacs, in fact all of the standard makes are on exhibition. Some have seen, but very little use—and each and every one is sold on a positive service guarantee. These cars are not sold on commission for the owners, but have been bought after rigid tests and inspection for spot cash by Loveland—then they are sold to you—as first class "buys," at a figure far less than you would usually have to pay. Even $150 will give you a dandy car. You will be proud to drive home in it. By all means do not come to Detroit without calling at 1197-99 Woodward Ave., corner of Palmer Ave., and seeing the Loveland Company—it will prove a visit well worth while.

MUSIC FOR FAIR VISITORS

It is not merely important to have a band or special music at a public event as to have music in your own home. The long winter evenings, the first approach of the cold, the first glimpse of the snow, all these things are so much for happiness as a piano or a good musical instrument.

Fair visitors to Detroit will find very cordially invited and urged to call at the big musical establishment of Grinnell Bros., 243-247 Woodward Ave., where the fine $75000 collection of pianos, player-pianos, and a choice of all descriptions of musical instruments in Michigan is to be seen.

Grinnell Bros. manufacture pianos themselves that compare in every detail to any other make, and the prices are very moderate. The large allowance is given on other makes with them. Grinnell's prices are 25 percent in Michigan and if you call on when in Detroit, so that you can get a representative when looking for all that is best in music.

Any inquiries by mail will receive prompt attention if directed to the store at 243-247 Woodward Ave., Detroit, Mich.

The political complexion of the sixty-fourth congress will be analyzed and discussed by the suffragists attending the Convention of Women Voters at San Francisco, September 14-17. Among the prominent figures at the meeting will be Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont of New York, who will be chairman of the convention; Miss Alice Paul of Washington, chairman of the Congressional Union; Mrs. William Kent, wife of the California congressman, and Miss Charlotte Anita Whitney, chairman of the California branch of the Union.

PLANTING OF BULBS

PLANTING TULIP AND NARCISSUS BULBS FOR NEXT SPRING

Office of Information, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture

Washington, D. C.—If you would have rich beds of tulip or other bulbs in the corners of your lawns, a beautiful spring-like yellow or white glow of narcissus, daffodils and jonquills you must begin to think of the early spring appearance of your garden in the fall, for the bulbs of these two flowers must be planted in the fall before the ground is frozen. In fact, this work should be undertaken as soon as or before an early frost has begun to make the ground firm in the beds look well. In dealing with narcissus which is the family to which the daffodil and jonquill belong it might be well to think of trying to naturalize the narcissus to grow in blossom on the lawn much as do the wild flowers. How to plant and handle the bulbs as well as the best method of getting them to become spring residents of grassy corners, are described in the following directions issued by the United States Department of Agriculture.

These bulbs should be planted in light, rich soil that has been dug to a depth of at least 12 inches. The tulip bulbs should be set 4 inches apart and 4 inches deep and the narcissus bulbs about 12 inches apart and 5 inches deep. If they are to be grown in pots, window boxes, etc., the soil should be used. Place 1 to 2 inches of sand or broken pots in the bottom of the pots or boxes to insure good drainage. After planting, place the pots or boxes out of doors and cover them with about 4 inches of ashes or sand or they may be placed in a dark, cool room or cellar for a few weeks until the bulbs have formed a quantity of roots. They may then be brought in to the light and kept for flowering. Keep the soil well moistened from time of planting, but avoid over-moistening, for if kept too wet the bulbs will decay.

Cultivation. If planted in beds the surface of the soil should be loosened after each rain and the bed kept free from weeds. In the late fall or early winter months it is well to cover the beds with a light mulch of straw or leaves to prevent injury to the young roots from the alternate freezing and thawing of the soil. This mulch should be gradually removed in spring, as soon as growth appears above ground. The bulbs are quite hardy and are not injured by severe cold if the soil is well drained.

AN ENEMY OF LOUSE

PEA APHIS AND LEGUMES

Office of Information, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture

Washington, D. C.—The pea aphid, a small green plant louse, is rated among the important injurious insects of the world because of the damage it does to the leguminous crops, especially the red and crimson clovers and vetches, in which it winters and from which it spreads to field and garden peas and sweet peas. The pea aphid prefers the young, tender clover leaves and stems, but eventually covers the entire plant. Garden and sweet peas readily succumb to it, particularly red clover is able to withstand considerable injury, but at times entire fields are destroyed. Not infrequently this plant louse attacks alfalfa. In addition to the sucking of the plant, the louse deposits honeydew to such an extent that the plants in a badly infested field will be discolored on account of being covered with this sweetish fluid. The infested fields are not always killed outright, but heavy infestation, especially when a bad winter effect and probably much of the winter killing of clover can be traced back to the pea aphid.

Method of Artificial Control. The entomologist of the Department of Agriculture who shortly will publish a bulletin on this subject, makes the following statement as to artificial control: "If the clover field the pea aphid is ordinarily held in check by its natural enemies. If it is apparent that this aphid is becoming abundantly abundant, the clover should be cut as soon thereafter as possible, since the cutting and drying of the clover will kill most of the insects. Clover when becomes coated with the honeydew of the aphides will not grow properly. Spring pasturing or early cutting back of the clover will check the multiplication of this plant louse."

Fortunately, this species of plant louse has a number of natural enemies. One of the most important of these is a fungus which thrives under moist conditions and may appear after a few days of rainy weather in the summer. This fungus spreads with remarkable rapidity among the leaves and frequently eradicates them. Pea aphides when attacked by this fungus first turn brownish and later become covered with the fungus threads.

Ladybirds also are an enemy of this pest as no less than nine different kinds are known to prey upon it. There are also other insects, some of them internal parasites, which help to keep the pea aphid in control.

Cooling the Blood.

Father and son went for a stroll one sweltering day in summer. As they passed a vendor of ice cream the boy turned to his father and said, joyfully:

"I wish you'd buy me some ice cream, father. I do feel warm."

His father gazed at him a few seconds in mild surprise and then exclaimed:

"No, no, Ikey, my boy; but I'll tell you what I'll do. I'll tell you some ghost stories 'till you make your blood run cold."

The Italian earthquake, coming in the midst of the great war, recalls one curious effect of a seismic shock in 1833. The cables connecting Australia with the outer world were suddenly broken by a distant earthquake, and the government, under the impression that an enemy had cut the lines, mobilized the naval and military forces in readiness to repel attack.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER 12

Elijah's Flight and Return

LESSON TEXT—I Kings 19:1-18. (Read entire chapter).

GOLDEN TEXT—Be still and know that I am God. Ps 46:10

Elijah's great victory over the prophets of Baal which resulted in their extermination is followed by a most notable prayer service on the top of Mount Carmel (18:42-45). So confident was the prophet that at the arising of "a little cloud," he hastily summoned the feasting king and urges his departure to his home "that the rain stop thee not." The God whom Elijah had honored so signally that day laid his hand upon the prophet (19:1-2) so that he was able to outlast the king's horses to the entrance of Jezreel. There he is met by a messenger of the wicked queen (19:2) who had been the protector and provider of the Samite prophets. Getting his eyes off of God and seeing only a vile and wicked woman, Elijah fled only to find his life out of Abiah's domains but also "went a day's journey into the wilderness" to the protecting stage of a summer tree (19:4).

I. The Discouraged Prophet, vv. 4-8. Old and young, great and small, we all have on periods of discouragement and frequently despair. Christ's command with Christ De-spair appeals to us all for it is so true to life. At Carmel Elijah controlled the king; in his palace at Jezreel, Jeroboam shattered his good horses, if he had any. We must remember that it was his prophet, Elijah, who destroyed him. There is a suggestion in the fact that Elijah did not enter his presence (18:46). Under the wilderness, his Gethsemane, Elijah prayed a vastly different sort of prayer than upon Mount Carmel. Jeroboam is still in power. He is not out of power, his efforts had been but trying to "dam Satan" with bull moles.

No one who has ever heard the ancient "Hallel" sung will ever forget the latter glory of "Hallel" enough. The prophet who had been exiled to the mountains was able to summon such a depth of human despair. The source of his despair was not his physical condition, his loneliness, his inability to control his own life, but his sense of loss.

God's first remedy was to feed his faithful servant and then give him a task to perform. At a journey to Mount Horeb, Mount of God, for God by it is just as truly a revelation of his power as at Carmel. In this new strength Elijah went "fourty days and fourty nights" (19:8).

II. The Encouraging God, vv. 9-13. God's second remedy was to give Elijah his word though the time of suggested repentance. "What dost thou here?" Elijah is out of place. In reply he begins to rehearse his loyalty to God and how mad the others were and then in coming penitence he adds, "And they seek my life." Only are the words of the solitary man and when Elijah used them he too was a backslidden servant. It is true that there was great apostasy in Israel but the prophet was far from being the only true servant remaining. (See 18:4; 20:14; 22:35; 41:22-23). This is a favorite view the Devil One has for paralyzing our efforts. There is no evidence but that the 7,000 were as brave, certainly at that moment more so, than Elijah. God then continued his treatment by giving the prophet a vision of himself and of his methods for advancing his kingdom. A series of symbols plainer and more impressive than words alone could possibly have done. Leaving the protecting cave, Elijah first met a wind which "rent the mountains," a type of Elijah's past activity. This was not God's chief power nor method. The mighty wind which destroys is as nothing compared to the silent forces which create.

III. The Result, vv. 14-18. As a sovereign remedy, God now sets before Elijah three definite tasks to perform. Elijah still speaks of his faithfulness as though the success of The Cause depended upon him. The man who is sure that attitude in the work of God's Kingdom will like Elijah, soon be set aside. Elijah's first task was to avoid Israel and go to Damascus and "anoint"—set apart for special service—Hazeel (v. 17), who was to be the instrument of punishing Israel. His next task was to find Jehu the commander-in-chief of Ahab's army and set him aside to be the king not immediately but to be in training for that office.

Elijah's work is now not that of fire and wind but of the "still small" voice. To others is delegated the more spectacular tasks which these typify.

In this connection (v. 17) those are strange words, "shall Elisha slay." To fully understand them we must be familiar with that prophet's life and work also with that accomplished by John. (See II Kings 2:23-24; Hos-6:5; Is 11:6).

Elijah's third task was to appoint his successor and surely no harder task ever comes to any of us than to turn over our work to another.

State Fair week

New moon yesterday.

Great crop of peaches

More rain Sunday—and then some Teacher—Tommy, where is Mexico?

Tommy—On page 10 of the geography.

What's Bink doing now?
Everything his wife tells him—
Philadelphia Ledger

There were about 300 State Fair tickets sold at the Record office last week. Nearly two hundred less than last year.

Teacher—Willie, what are antipodes?
Willie—I know; they are little black things in the creeks that turn into frogs.

Sweep the dirt under the kitchen cabinet. The room looks just as clean and it takes less time than to take it up in a dustpan.

Why didn't Noah swat that pair of biting pesky flies?
Before they got into the Ark—
And later in our eyes.

Magistrate—Why didn't you speak to your wife for a whole year?
Prisoner—I didn't want to interrupt her—

A pupil in the Northville school has defined the word spine. "A spine is a long lumber bone, your head rests on one end, and you set on the other."

"Now, Helen," said the teacher, "can you tell me what a myth is?"
"Yes, ma'am," replied Helen, "it is a woman that hasn't got a husband."

In place of Harry Noble, deceased, Special Agent has been elected director of the American Bell & Foundry company and R. C. Yerkes has been elected treasurer.

Ed Hildebrand has completed the addition to the rear of the main building for his connection with his building. Ed will have an up-to-date amusement place there in another week.

"I must say these are fine biscuits," remarked the young husband.

"How could you say those were fine biscuits?" inquired the young wife, motioning to a plate of interview.

"I didn't say they were fine," I heard a lady say once.
"In my view a gray hat and the seat of his pants may be shiny, but if a woman's children have their noses flattened against the window pane a half hour before he is due home to supper, you can trust him with anything you have. He is all right—
Constance Enquirer

The stockholders of the American Bell & Foundry company met last week and voted to increase the capital stock to $50,000, all paid in. This is one of Northville's best paying industries and its business has been steadily growing from year to year under the skilful management of F. S. Harmon.

"Your son played football at college, I understand," remarked the inquiring friend.
"Yes," answered the fond mother.
"Quarterback."
"Oh, he's nearly all back. He only lost four fingers and an ear."

Authorities of Princeton university propose this year to enforce a regulation of the university requiring that before students are granted diplomas they must be able to swim a distance of at least 200 yards and must show a mastery of two different strokes.

William Gruttner, a Turbotville, Pa., shoe dealer, took hold of a shoe into which a customer was trying to force his foot and instructed the latter to "push hard." He did so, the shoe slipped through Gruttner's hands and the heel, striking him over the heart, broke three ribs and inflicted other internal injuries so serious that the doctor ordered him to remain in bed for several days.

Mrs. Eva Schechter, proprietress of a little fruit stand in New York, was arrested recently for selling a tomato on Sunday. The magistrate before whom she was taken knew that the law there prohibits selling vegetables on Sunday while fruits can be legally sold, but for the life of him he couldn't decide whether a tomato is a fruit or vegetable. Then the case went before the jurists of the court of special sessions and they decided that the tomato is a fruit. The woman was released.

BETTER HUMAN BODIES IS AIM

State Fair Adds to List of Educational Departments.

HOW TO KEEP WELL.

Instructors by Lectures and Exercises Will Illustrate Means—Twenty-five Mile Marathon Race to Be One of Features.

Physical education will play an important part at the Michigan State Fair, to be held at Detroit Sept. 6 to 15. G. W. Dickinson, secretary and general manager of the big exposition, announces that W. J. Foster Walker of Detroit has been appointed superintendent of this new department. Mr. Walker, who has been a student at various colleges in physical education departments, has been actively connected with athletics for many years. He formerly was physical director at the Detroit Athletic club, and athletic coach at the Detroit University school. He now conducts the Solvay and Franklin street settlements in Detroit and has been very successful in his work.

Lectures on Care of Body.
Daily lectures will be given on the care of the body and how to keep well. Mr. Foster will be assisted by Miss Lotta Broadbridge, who now is in charge of women's athletics and physical education at the Panama-Pacific exposition. She will conduct basketball and field hockey tournaments for girls and assist in the games which will feature Children's day at the fair.

In all the athletic events and games appropriate medals and prizes will be awarded by the State Fair. There will be a Marathon race for men from Pontiac to Detroit, with five miles of the finish of the event staged on the race track at the fair grounds. A ten-mile Marathon for boys will attract considerable attention, as many prizes will be given the leading contestants.

One of the semi-final games for the American amateur baseball championship will be played at the fair grounds. The final game will be contested at the San Francisco fair.

In addition there will be numerous games for children and a tennis tournament.

Home Exercises to Be Demonstrated.
Mr. Foster will demonstrate how gymnastics classes for children should be conducted, and an advanced class in apparatus work will give an exhibition drill. Exercises for the home will be featured, and Mr. Foster will demonstrate how every business man who has but a few minutes for exercise may keep well by following a fifteen minute program daily.

"Our physical education department is an innovation and I think should accomplish much good," declared General Manager Dickinson. "People do not give enough thought to physical exercise, and we purpose to give every one who attends the State Fair an opportunity to hear these lectures on how to keep well. A few minutes devoted to physical exercise each day will do much to curtail future doctor bills."

Special Awards to Sheep Breeders.
Three sheep breeders' associations will award special cash premiums to prize winning sheep at the Michigan State Fair to be held at Detroit, Sept. 6 to 15.

The American Shropshire Registry association offers $50 in prizes in eight classes, the American Cotswold Registry association $15 and the American Hampshire Sheep association $30.

PRISON EXHIBIT TO BE FEATURE
AT STATE FAIR

Reformatory Great Industrial Institution, Says Warden.

PRODUCTS TO BE DISPLAYED

Miniature Tile and Brick Plants to Be Shown in Operation. Whole Method of Manufacturing Prison Twine Will Be Demonstrated.

One of the most interesting and interesting exhibits at the Michigan State Fair, to be held at Detroit Sept. 6 to 15, will be that of the Michigan state prison, at Jackson. Warden Nathan F. Simpson says that Michigan residents will be given an opportunity to see what the interior of the reformatory are accomplishing by the exhibits of buggies, wagons and other made at the prison by prisoners.

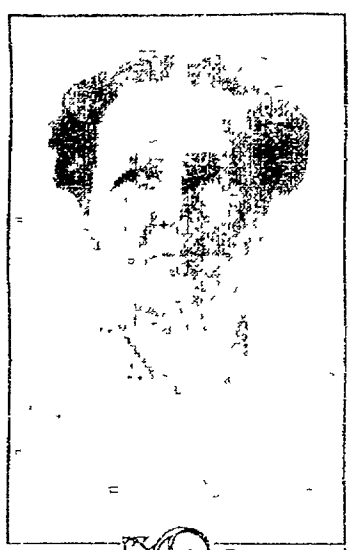

Miniature Plants in Operation.
In addition there will be displays of canned fruits and vegetables grown on the prison farm, miniature tile and brick plants similar to those at Jackson prison and binder twine machinery in operation, demonstrating how this twine is manufactured by prisoners.

"There will be displays representing all the departments of our prison," said Warden Simpson. "Many persons do not know that the reformatory is a great institution, and I am certain that the exhibit will be most interesting."

TO BE JUDGE AT FAIR'S BETTER BABIES' CONTEST.

Dr. Mary Thompson Stevens is a Child Welfare Expert.

Judging of the scores and perhaps hundreds of babies that will be entered in the contest to be held at the State Fair at Detroit Sept. 6 to 15 will be done by Dr. M. Thompson Stevens, who serves as the state capacity a year ago.

She is neither here told in the child welfare movement, as Mrs. George G. Carver of Detroit, who will be superintendent of the Father Bibles department.

ITS UP TO THE COLONEL.

Col. Roosevelt has issued a statement in which he says he will continue to class himself as a Progressive, with a big "P". The Republicans, the Democrats, the Progressives and the Socialists all hoped to enlist him in their ranks, but he thinks he can accomplish more by remaining faithful to his "Bull-Moose" inspiration. Many people will criticize the Colonel for changing to what they call a "senior" hope, while others will eulogize him for his independence. It is indeed a hard decision for a naturally independent and trusting citizen to know what party to align with. He can see defects in all parties and it is a choice of evils. And yet if he is stubborn and insists on having a little party of his own, he is not likely to accomplish much. About the most he can do is to draw off enough votes from the majority party to let the minority win. Thus if he can't rule, he can perhaps ruin and lots of people enjoy causing ruin or seeing it. Up to this time in the country there have always been only two great parties, a "solid" party of any effective size, and a "keep it broken" party, as called. Any third party may make itself felt, but it can't count on to win the national power. Col. Roosevelt proved this in 1912, when he could not win himself, and it kept the Republicans in a wobble. He may repeat this in 1916.

And when Col. Roosevelt does for the "keep it broken" party the "solid" party will be in a wobble. It is a dangerous distributor of deadly microbes. Beware the tool which is the son of a gun.

SAVINGS BANKS IN SCHOOLS.

Children of the Wayne County school have undertaken the job of collecting waste paper in several districts of the county. The waste paper is sold to the county and the proceeds are used for the purchase of books and other school supplies. The children are also encouraged to save their own money and to contribute to the school fund. This is a commendable effort to teach children the value of money and the importance of saving.

The Wayne County school board has also decided to purchase a new set of books for the children. The books are to be purchased from a local book store and the proceeds are to be used for the purchase of other school supplies. This is a commendable effort to provide the children with the best possible education.

mobile industry within the past few years has transformed Detroit into a bustling city with a population of 750,000 and has made it one of the most prosperous places in the country. And still they are devising ways and means to keep the autos off the streets. If it were not for the autos, there wouldn't be any people on the streets—that is, not enough to get run over any way.

According to one of the military experts, it takes an average of 100 pounds of bullets to kill one man in the present war. No wonder the world is being combed for lead and other metals, to supply the vast demand that is going on. If the militarists want war to be really popular they should find some cheaper method of securing it. For instance, the war lords might try a comfort mixture. That article is being used for about everything else.

Dr. Watson last week shot a mad dog which was roaming in the vicinity of the D. U. R. station. The animal had a well developed attack of rabies, was frothing at the mouth and snapped at every object it came near.—Orion Review.

Such weather as we've been having most of the time is enough to make anybody or anything mad.

An advertiser in one of our exchanges tells how to reduce "the cost of a big living." The cost of too "high living" doesn't vary a great deal from one generation to another, whatever the high cost of living may be.

Monday was Labor Day and it really required a lot of (mental) labor to keep cheerful in such weather as was dumped out to the occupants of this section that day.

Our office philosopher remarks that the feminist movement evidently has not yet reached the state of "the days of the machine type."

PLANS TO MAKE 1915 STATE FAIR BEST IN HISTORY

General Manager Dickinson
Announces Features.

TO CELEBRATE LABOR DAY

Organizations From All Over Michigan
Invited to Be Present—High Class
Attractions Are Secured For the Big Exposition.

The 1915 State Fair to be held at Detroit, Sept. 13 to 15, will be the greatest exposition of its kind ever held in Michigan, declared General Manager G. W. Dickinson today while discussing the arrangements which have been made to secure the best and highest type of attractions for the fair.

"We have spared no expense to make the 1915 Fair the best in the history of the state. There will be features for the person who likes thrills as well as educational exhibits, automobile races, letter boxes, contest scores of high class attractions on the midway, horse show and horse races, milking contest for girls and various other attractions too numerous to mention."

Farmers' Show Interest.
"Of course the exhibits in the live stock and agricultural departments will attract the attention of the city as well as rural residents. Entries are being made much earlier than usual by the exhibitors, and I believe that the entries will total more than ever before. The farmers and stock breeders are taking an active interest in the fair and there will be keen competition in every department for the thousands of dollars which we will award as prizes."

"We have made special plans to offer free labor day this year. Labor day opens the fair and we want the fair to end on a high note. The fair will be open from 10 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock in the evening. In addition to the regular features of the fair, we will have a special program of entertainment for the day. This program will include a variety of acts, including a circus, a variety show, and a band. The program will be held in the main arena and will be free of charge to all visitors."

A MYSTERIOUS CASE.

When Lieut. Busby, of the New York detective bureau, took down the receiver in answer to an insistent ring of the bell of his telephone a voice said: "Hurry some detectives to No. 354 44th street at once. There is a dead man hidden in the cellar." Then the connection was suddenly broken off, just as if the speaker feared that he might disclose his identity if he talked longer.

Lieut. Busby lost no time in acting on the information. "With two detectives, he hurried to the address given. They were admitted to the house by its Syrian occupants who had been in this country only a few months. Displaying their badges, the officers rushed past the astonished cellar at the door and hurried to the cellar. The Syrian who was a linen importer followed them down, vigorously protesting against the intrusion. The cellar was stored full of cases containing skins and the detectives started in to make a thorough search among them for the body of the dead man.

After puffing and puffing at the task of lifting and shoving the heavy cases about for half an hour or more they came upon the object of their search. The body was that of a man about six feet six inches tall and thin in proportion. They found him a narrow boy crouched in a heap, a number of packing cases. He had died, but taken place a long time before, but there was nothing to indicate the cause of the fatality. The Syrian was questioned through an interpreter. In this way the officer learned that the man had been dead since 1900. He had been told by the man from whom he had bought the money in Alexandria about a year before. No arrests were made.

As I came softly up the stairs
Quite late the other night,
I heard a most peculiar noise
That sounded far from right.

"Is that"—said I—some prowling cat
Trapped by a closing door?
I'll quickly put a stop to that!
And then it waited some more.

With purpose grim, and club in hand
I bravely sought the sound.
That came again, and yet again,
As I cautiously peered 'round.

"What ARE you doing?" cried my wife.
As she started up in bed
In much alarm. "Why some damned cat."

"Has got in here!" I said.
"Haven't you heard it?"—Listen, now,
It's here, or I'm a louse."
She signed. "You chump! Don't you yet know
There's a baby in this house!"

New York police recently jailed 23 quack doctors and closed over a dozen so-called medical institutions in that city. It has been disclosed that the alleged doctors made large profits by preying on ignorant patients and torturers. In some cases the patient's condition was worsened while the "medical" examination was going on and the "doctor" was informed as to his patient's financial condition to that charges could be made accordingly.

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Jim Haviland becomes an expert gambler as a boy, and gets a job with Mike Garven, a confidence man and gambler. Garven becomes a promoter of fake companies, and makes his headquarters in New York. He has a small army of "con" men. Garven manipulates a check in such a way that he could send Haviland up for ten years for forgery, as he makes it a rule to have the power of life and death over his men.

CHAPTER II.—Haviland meets Alice Walton, whose father is in New York to promote a Virginia power plant.

NOV GO ON WITH THE STORY

One step and a half took me right alongside of him. I put my hand on his shoulder.

"There's a man on the next corner that wants to buy you a drink," I told him, and the tone I used was one that nobody ever mistakes. "And there's a man up here that's going to lose every loath in your hand when we pass that corner."

"Who are you?" he growled, staring at me.

"I'm Bobbin," I answered, but there was no hiding in my eyes or voice of the hand that gripped him at the back of his coat into the side of my arm.

"Oh, Bobbin," he began, and there was a faint smile on his face. "I don't think you're a con man, except to show a crowd, is that right?"

"I don't know," I answered, but I was a con man in a man's eyes.

"We're at that corner," I said, and I gripped him tighter. "I'll be right with you."

"I don't know," I answered, but I was a con man in a man's eyes.

directing thousands of laborers miles and miles away. Mr. Haviland makes them human; you can see the flesh and blood people who have made them and use them.

The red went to my ears. Was that what I'd been talking about?

The father turned to me again. "I reckon I'd be kind of an old imposition," he said with pretended sadness. "Old people like me are tiresome, I guess, in this great, big city."

Alice patted his hand and looked up at him roguishly. "Now, daddy," she chided laughingly. "You're fishing for a compliment. Mr. Haviland will tell you that you're not old at all, and I'm sure he'll say that you couldn't be tiresome if you lived to be as old as Methuselah."

"And a whole lot more if it wouldn't presume on acquaintance," I assured them both.

"There," she rewarded me with one of her flashing smiles. "Doesn't that satisfy my good old compliment-fishing daddy?"

"When you talk to your father like that I know you're hungry," he said. "You aren't respectful when you're hungry. Won't you have lunch with us, Mr. Haviland?"

Would I? Why, my voice fairly trembled with eagerness as I accepted the invitation.

In the corner of the big dining room we ate, talking commonplaces over the oysters and soup. I feasted my eyes on the happy, laughing girl opposite me, and watching the father's attentions almost jealously.

It was with the roast came the question from the father that was like a dash of cold water to me.

"Are you in business here in New York?" he asked.

That was the thing I had tried to avoid—to thrust back in my mind and forget. But I suppose it had to come, and when it did my years of training as Mr. Garven's boy didn't desert me.

"Spartly," I answered. "Though it takes me all over the country. I'm a home promoter."

I saw his eyes glaze with interest. "How? I would have thought you'd be a lawyer or a doctor."

"Why?" I inquired to get a grip. He looked at me for a moment.

"So that I might have carried out the motto of my life," he said. "I've built the power plant on the Elbe River."

And he was going to ride his hobby now, Mr. Haviland, I thought.

"I tried to get capital to work on a big project, but I failed. I've got a good deal of money, but I can't get it to work."

"I've got a good deal of money, but I can't get it to work."

Crawford; now sad as she mentioned the old silk wedding dress; happy as she pressed the white hand of her father; grave with the earnestness that was in her heart as she spoke of her beloved south.

Yes, I can see it now just as I saw the picture her words painted then—the picture of that home coming; of those simple, unsophisticated people who had trusted their all to their neighbor because he was worthy of their trust—because they knew him.

But I saw something else, too; the thing that had become part of me in the years; the thing I tried to keep out of my mind and could not.

I looked up to meet her eyes—deep pools of brown with the laughter gone.

"I think you do understand, Mr. Haviland," she said gravely. "I think you do understand, because you are clean, and straight, and good."

Clean, and straight, and good! What mockery there was in those three words! For even as she spoke I was thinking of easy money!

Bobbin's Call

"I brought somebody to see you," announced the small neighbor as the grown-up neighbor opened the back door. The small neighbor carefully guided a very fat little boy with a great many study clothes on across the threshold. Then he stood, grinning, just outside the door.

"What a cunning little somebody," exclaimed the grown-up neighbor, as she stooped and looked into the small boy's bright eyes. "Come into the living room and sit down a while."

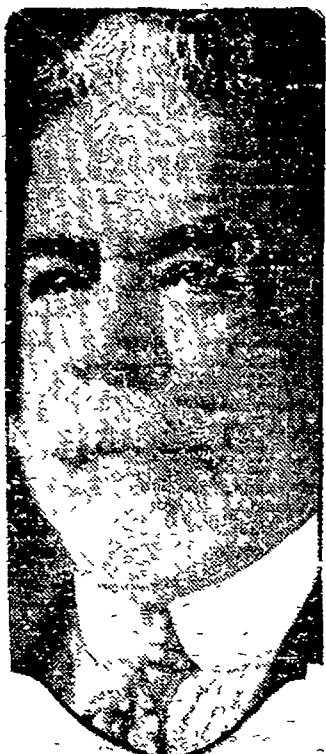

"Then you didn't ask for her hand?" "No, when I went to interview her father he was busy with the furnace. He said to come down, and after watching his struggles for half an hour I didn't want to get married."

The Musician's Advice. A young lady called one day on Rubenstein, the great pianist, who had consented to listen to her playing. "What do you think I should do now?" she asked when she had finished.

"Get married," was the answer. "The fat man who is anxious to lose flesh should be shaving himself."

LANSING CONFERS WITH GUATEMALAN

Senor Juan Ortega.

Senor Juan Ortega, Guatemalan minister to Mexico, who was handed his passport by General Carranza and requested to leave Mexico because of his alleged sympathy with the enemies of the "Pres. chief," is a recent arrival in Washington. A few days ago he took part in a conference at the state department between several of the Pan-American diplomats and Secretary Lansing.

Thoroughly Cured. "Then you didn't ask for her hand?" "No, when I went to interview her father he was busy with the furnace. He said to come down, and after watching his struggles for half an hour I didn't want to get married."

Lansing, Mich.—Michigan's 38 counties with a population of 2,330,000 in primary school funds this year and pay state taxes in the sum of $1,507,000, or will receive from the state within $3,007,728 as much as they pay back to the state, according to figures compiled by Auditor General Folger.

Of the 31 counties receiving more in primary money than they pay in state taxes, Wayne county is the smallest amount, $49.

Glimpses of Married Life

"I tell you, Parsons, Dick is getting off too easy," Dick was ungrammatical in his excitement. "Let's play a joke on him."

"That's out of your 'joke' Parsons," Dick said. "I have a better idea. I'll have a long, fruitless hunt."

"Let's have it an injury from fall or something like that; everyone would naturally know about such a thing and their ignorance will finally make him see light," suggested Parsons.

"Good! We can hire a boy to rush into a drug store and tell the proprietor to call Dr. Ellison, then skip out before he can ask particulars," Dick chuckled over the possibilities of his plan. "While he is gone, Nell must call Olive over to our house and keep her there, so that he will come back to an empty house. The plan will be at our house and when he appears we will suggest that it is up to him to feed us. He'll do that, all right."

The details of the scheme had been worked out with care. As soon as the phone call was turned in the two conspirators hurried to Dick's house and Nell called up Olive.

"You and the doctor come over," she said over the wire. "The Parsons are here."

"You come then. He'll know where to find you when he gets back. I'll send Dick to walk over with you," Dick was at that moment waiting with his hand on the doorknob and when Nell nodded her head he shot out of the door.

After an hour of poking around in dirty streets and being answered with "I am not at home" or a shrug of the shoulders, it finally dawned on Dr. Ellison that he was the goat and he chugged his machine and steered for home.

Everything was dark there and he looked nervously. He put up his machine and let himself into the house to see if there was any note for him.

"I know where she is," he reflected when nothing was found, and started for the Mortons.

STATE AND FEDERAL GAME LAWS DISAGREE

Lansing, Mich.—The state game department has discovered that in several particulars the new revised state game laws do not agree with the federal laws, and advise hunters to watch out for federal inspectors. The state law allows shooting of water fowl in the fall in hour after sunset, while the federal law says it must stop at sunset.
