METHODIST PEOPLE WELCOME PASTOR

REV. F. I. WALKER AND FAMILY
GIVEN HEARTY WELCOME AT THE CHURCH MONDAY NIGHT.

A delightful occasion was the reception given their new pastor, Rev. F. I. Walker, and wife and son by the Methodist people at the church Monday evening. About two hundred were present including a number from the other churches of the village and the business men, and their families. Charles A. Dolph acted as toastmaster. Rev. Mr. Webber of the Presbyterian, Rev. Mr. Brass of the Baptist churches and Rev. Mr. Dutton from the Plymouth M. E. church made welcoming addresses in behalf of the various societies, livening up their remarks by witty stories to aptly illustrate their views. Charles Filkins spoke on behalf of the Sunday school and generously offered to bestow a lot of his troubles on the broad shoulders of the new pastor. Roy Clark spoke for the Epworth League and Mrs. F. H. Woodworth for the Ladies' Aid society.

Little Elsie Hemple gave several splendid recitations in a very capable manner and Mrs. Harry Taft and Miss Eunice Warthan each sang delightful solos. The male quartet added further entertainment by giving a number of clever selections. Then followed a very toothsome luncheon in the shape of ice cream, coffee and cake and the new pastor and wife found themselves formally received and graciously welcomed for all of which they voiced their high appreciation.

A WOMAN CARRIES INVALID TO SAFETY

JULIUS HADDOCK, NARROWLY
ESCAPES DEATH IN DETROIT FIRE.

Julius Haddock, father of Patrolman Ray Haddock, of the sixth precinct, Detroit, owes his life to the strength and courage of Mrs. John M. Scruts, who lives in the flat below the Haddocks, at 166 Maybury avenue.

Mrs. Haddock went to look for something in the clothes closet of the room where her husband was lying in bed, too ill to move. She struck a match and the clothing caught fire. The blaze spread quickly and in a few moments the room was in flames.

Mrs. Scruts, hearing her neighbor's cry of alarm, rushed upstairs, seized Mr. Haddock and, lifting him bodily, carried him downstairs and out of doors to safety.

Firemen arrived soon after and extinguished the blaze. The property damage is estimated at $400.—Detroit News-Tribune.

Mr. Haddock was for many years a resident of this place where the family is well known. The Haddocks lost all their furniture and nearly all their clothing.

FIVE POINT ROAD ROUTE NOW SURE

EFFORT TO SWITCH IT OVER TO THE WATERFORD-REDFORD LINE FAILED.

SUPERVISOR LANNING OF NORTH-
VILLE HAD ENOUGH INFLUENCE TO HOLD THE TRENCHES.

The new cement road from Northville to Detroit is again assured and the route is to be on the "Kingsley" ("Five Point") road commencing in Northville at the southern village limits (Wilsey's corners).

During the past two weeks an effort has been made to have the County Road commissioners switch the route to the Waterford road to Redford. However the Commissioners favored the Wayne boulevard scheme and that was in part the Kingsley road. Supervisor Lanning of this place jumped in the trenches and wasn't long in securing enough pledges from among the Detroit aldermen to prevent a route that might change the plans of the Wayne Road Commissioners which had approved of the Wilsey-Kingsley-Five Point 7 mile road route.

Redford and some Livonia people made a big fight for the Waterford route but they couldn't make even a tiny hole in Lanning's fortifications. While Cass Benton has been quoted of late as favoring and working for the Waterford road route, the Record has ample assurance and proof that he did nothing of the kind. He has from the start favored the Five Point route just as he was quoted in the Record as doing several weeks ago and at no time has he changed. Mr. Benton however, is employed by the board of supervisors as a whole and or course could not be expected to get out and tear the ground loose.

Mr. Lanning and Mr. Benton assure the Record that the cement road in question will be commenced next spring at the Northville end of the route as well as at Woodward avenue in Detroit and if the village will do its part, the same as Plymouth, Wayne, Belleville, Romulus and Flat Rock have done the cement paving will be extended up through the village.

AT THE GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Direct from its triumphant runs in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, the original London Gaiety Theatre production, "Tonight's the Night," the most enjoyable of all recent musical comedies of this town, British institution, is to be given its first presentation at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, next week, beginning Monday evening. The score of "Tonight's the Night," is by Paul A. Rubens, among whose recent successes have been "The Sunshine Girl" and "The Girl from Utah."

The story itself of the musical comedy has some of the spice and mischievous fun and frolic of that farce of immortal memory, "Pink Dominoes," but it is all set forth in dainty and refined manner. Two sweethearts resolve to test the fidelity of their lovers and send them anonymous letters inviting them to meet two masked charmers at a ball at Covent Gardens. This scheme would, no doubt, have worked out quite simply enough if Victoria, the maid-servant, had not also sent a similar note to her admirer, Henry. The result is a ludicrous mix-up of all the three couples in such a way as to keep the audience convulsed with merriment from start to finish of the piece.

REUNION OF CUSTER'S MICHIGAN CAVALRY

THREE OF THE OLD BOYS FROM NORTHVILLE AT BATTLE CREEK
THIS WEEK.

STARKWEATHER AND SHAW RE-
CALL SHERIDAN'S FAMOUS RIDE
FROM TWENTY MILES AWAY.

On Tuesday and Wednesday of this week, October 19 and 20, was held at Battle Creek the annual reunion of the Custer Michigan Cavalry Brigade association, which comprises what remains of the fifth, sixth and seventh Michigan cavalry. The veterans were the guests of the city and were treated to all sorts of pleasures. Attending members from Northville were Comrades E. K. Starkweather, Thomas Shaw and A. M. VanTassel. Mr. Starkweather, who is the last surviving member of the 40 or more boys who enlisted in his company—D—from Northville and vicinity, with the late E. K. Smonds as captain, furnishes the Record with the following interesting facts connected with the occasion:

"October 19 was the 51st anniversary of the battle of Cedar Creek, which was fought on October 19, 1864, where Sheridan ended his famous ride 'From Winchester, twenty miles away,' and saved the day. Gen. Early and his men had surprised us by coming down the mountainside at dawn, having the best of us until about nine o'clock, when we turned them back. When the sun was going down behind the Blue Ridge mountains that night, we were in possession of 20,000 prisoners and more artillery than could park on an acre of ground. While of the 19 who went out from here not all are dead, the majority have answered the last roll call. Comrade VanTassel was a member of Co. H of the same regiment."

Thomas Shaw, the other one of the three Northville residents entitled to wear the red necktie which is the badge of the Custer veterans, was in the seventh brigade and attached to Gen. Custer's staff as bugler. Mr. Shaw has a fund of interesting reminiscences of his service, having also been present with Custer at the time of Lee's surrender at Appomattox, and an eye witness of that historical event.

In connection with the reunion commemorating Sheridan's famous ride, a word as to the Sheridan monument to Arlington national cemetery is appropriate. This monument, while simple in design and not conspicuous in size compared with many others, is nevertheless one of the most remarkable in existence. Without other inscription to detail the achievements of one of America's heroes, it bears but the single word "Sheridan." The fact that this is enough speaks volumes. No American looking upon it needs further explanation, if he be but a school boy, and even many visitors from other lands know the story of the man who sleeps below.

LOZIER SIX AUTO DOES SOME STUNTS

THUS FAR HAS ALL CORNERS
FADED IN HILL CLIMBING CON-TEST.

W. G. Thomas, factory manager for the Lozier Motor company of Detroit accompanied by Gen. Supt. Jerome, Assembly Supt. Mith, Chief Inspector Mosher and Department Manager Canton were out here the first of the week with one of the company's big six cars. They did some hill climbing stunts here that so far has every other competitor faded.

The best stunt was a standing start on high speed on the South Center street hill on an up-grade fifteen or twenty feet north of the bridge, going to the top all the way on high and then turning abruptly to the right at the hill top going up another steep grade in the yard of Charles Mosher's place. The top was up and six passengers occupied the seats. Several trips were also made up the big Buchner hill on a running straightaway start. The South Center street climb made by the Loziers is a climax and it will take a mighty good car to duplicate it. The car was a regular one from stock and had had no special preparation of the event. Mr. Thomas and his party expressed great pleasure over this their first trip here and stated they had no previous idea that such a beautiful place as Northville existed. They were also delighted with this town's beautiful roads and scenery.

DARWIN—HALL.

A very quiet and pretty wedding occurred Saturday noon, October 16, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Darwin, "Meadow Spring farm," in Pinckney, when Miss Mildred F. Hall was united in marriage to their son, Seth E. Darwin by Rev. A. T. Cornburn. Only immediate relatives were present. After congratulations the young couple left for Detroit, Buffalo and other points.

They will be at home at "Meadow Spring farm" to their friends after November 1st. It was also the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. R. Darwin.

THREE DEATHS INSIDE FIFTEEN MONTHS

LITTLE MURIEL SIMMONS DIED
SUNDAY MORNING; FOUR YEARS OLD.

Little Muriel Simmons, four year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Simmons, died Sunday morning after a week's illness. The little girl, while visiting relatives at Plymouth found some empty cans in the yard and became infected with ptomaine poisoning.

She was brought to the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simmons. Her death is particularly tragic in that it was the third to occur in the Simmons home in a little more than a year. Fred, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simmons, died in July, 1914, and the daughter, Mrs. Frank Hilly, in May, 1915.

Muriel was the idol of her grandparents and spent much of her time with them. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Simmons have two other younger children. They have the sympathy of the entire community in their great grief.

Funeral services were held from the grandparents' home on Main street Tuesday afternoon. Rev. F. E. Brass officiating.

I wish to inform my old customers that I am ready for work and would appreciate their patronage.

Lesson for November 7

Joash Repairs the Temple

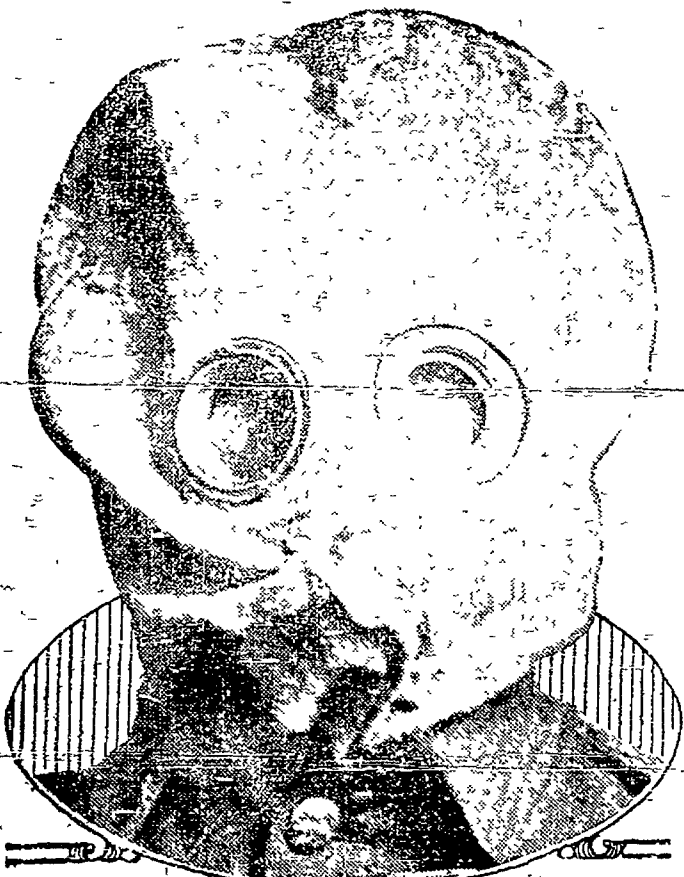

LESSON TEXT—2 Kings 12 4-15

GOLDEN TEXT—"God loveth a cheerful giver"—2 Cor. 9-7

The time of this lesson was about 878 B. C. and it follows within a few years last Sunday's lesson. Inaugurated as king and instructed by a faithful priest, yet Joash discovered great lethargy on the part of the priestly class with regard to the house of God. Joash set himself to arouse great liberality and to repair the temple.

1. Lethargy, v. 4, 8. (1) Its cause. We need to read in this connection 2 Chronicles 24. From the two accounts and the previous history of the nation we conclude that the condition of the temple was due, (a) to the weak and frequently vicious character of the rulers of the nation; (b) to the evil companions of both princes and priests; and (c) to the cupidity of court and curate. (2) The result of this lethargy regarding God's cause was evidenced (a) upon the temple, and (b) upon the lives of the people of the kingdom. (3) The cure Joash instituted great reforms in Judah and in these Jehonada the priest (v. 2) had no small part. In this particular lesson the prince (v. 7) seems to lead the priest. Unfortunately the godly priest did not long survive the crowning of Joash and hence when he came under other influences he soon went back to the evil practices of his predecessors and his reign ended in an eclipse of evil (2 Chron. 24, 15-26).

HOW BRITISH SOLDIER LOOKS WHEN WEARING THE LATEST GAS HELMET

This is the latest gas helmet issued to the British troops for protection in the trenches against the poisonous fumes of the German gas bombs.

In this lesson we have, however, a suggestion of what is needed to cure religious lethargy. (a) A vision of the real condition of affairs (v. 7, also 2 Chron. 24: 7). Joash saw the resultant ruin of the temple after fifteen years of misrule; he also saw the misconduct of the priests and did not hesitate to call them to account. "This no easy task to undertake a reformation and restoration such as this," witness Moses, Jesus, Luther, Wesley and Cary. These priests had aided him to gain his throne and doubtless had had a part in his boyhood training. Joash had inaugurated certain reforms before he began this task, which suggests the second need of (b) persistence (see 1 Chron. 24: 5, 6). Such work also demands (c) systematic effort and giving. Joash placed himself among Israel's best kings by undertaking the restoration of the temple and won a place alongside of Hezekiah and Josiah. Modern churches are not strictly speaking, a "house of the Lord" such as was the Jewish temple, yet the condition of many of our churches would indicate great indifference to the cause of the kingdom. Our bodies are indeed a "temple" (1 Cor. 3: 16; 6: 19) and both the body and church buildings alike should be kept in proper condition.

11. Liberality, vs. 5-15. The plan to have the priests gather funds for the repairs was scriptural (Exod. 25: 2-8). God does not look upon the measure but upon the motive of our gifts. (2 Cor. 8: 12). The priests did not "hasten the matter" so the king took it into his own hands (v. 9). In this remissness Jehonada, as the chief priest, is held accountable for all (v. 7).

We have in this story a rich suggestion as to God's plan of Christian giving. (1) The Object. It was distinctly for the glory of God and not to outbid others or to vauntingly use the money for selfish purposes. (2) All were to participate voluntarily out of their abundance (2 Chron. 24: 10), systematically and faithfully. (3) The Results were a House repaired (2 Chron. 24: 12), beautiful (2 Chron. 24: 12), and worship restored (2 Chron. 24: 14). Joash seems to have laid great emphasis upon the "tabernacle of witness" (24: 6) and we need to recall that each and every part of that temple was a testimony to the truth of God and had in it a spiritual suggestion and prophecy. As a whole, it suggested that God dwelt in the midst of His people. The sons of Athaliah (Joash's grandmother), had so conducted themselves as to cause it to need repairing (2 Chron. 24: 7). When we turn to 2 Chron. 24: 8-14 and read the record of the restoration of the temple, we discover (1) Each had his part in the work. (2) Each did a "perfect" work. (3) Each did his task faithfully, fully and to a finish. (4) Each did an orderly work, "in his state." None sought to supplant or defraud others in the work assigned. (5) Each did a strong work, it was "strengthened" and not a trifling work as men-pleasers or for the moment. (6) Each worked economically because when all bills were paid, money was returned to the treasury.

What a marked contrast with modern methods of conducting public improvements! There was great joy in the hearts of both princes and people as they brought and wrought. We rob ourselves by withholding. "For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

There is sound philosophy in Proverbs 11: 24, 25. That class, church or individual that liveth unto itself will soon die. It may have a name that is great in the earth but that name will not abide. In giving we get; in serving, we increase. Here is also a suggestion how to raise church finances. The world is a past master in the art of amusing and can discount many times over the cheap entertainments so frequently used to wheedle change from the unwary. No wonder church treasuries are so often empty for we do not give value received by any such method. Try more prayer and like Joash, give the people a chance and there will be no lack.

Again, note that they dealt "faithfully." We need to exercise faithful-ness in our relations to God and in the use of that which He intrusts to our stewardship. Man and God alike will have confidence in us according to the method whereby we receive and expend money. These funds were expended in a businesslike way (v. 11, 12, 2 Chron. 24: 11), and the doubtless added much to the size of the gifts.

HOW TO DISENFECT

Five Rules to Observe in Cleaning Stables and Premises—Care Demanded in the Use of Mercury.

U. S. Agricultural Department.

In any outbreak of infectious disease among animals thorough disinfection of the premises is essential to preventing the spread of the contagion. Certain substances, such as fresh slaked lime or unslaked lime in powder form, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, formalin, formaldehyde, gas, and compound solution of cresol possess the power of destroying bacteria with which they come in contact. To make the use of such substances of value, however, the work must be done with the utmost thoroughness. Careless disinfection is probably worse than none; for it merely serves to give a false sense of security.

In the disinfection of stables and premises the following directions should be carefully observed:

1. Sweep ceilings, side walls, stall partitions, floors and other surfaces until free from cobwebs and dust.
2. Remove all accumulations of filth by scraping, and if woodwork has become decayed, porous or absorbent, it should be removed, burned, and replaced with new material.
3. If the floor is of earth, remove 4 inches from the surface, and in places where it shows staining with urine a sufficient depth should be replaced to expose fresh earth. All earth removed should be replaced with earth from an uncontaminated source or a new floor of concrete may be laid, which is very durable and easily cleaned.
4. All refuse and material from stable and barnyard should be removed to a place not accessible to cattle or horses and covered with freshly slaked lime. If this manure is spread in fields, it should be turned under immediately, while the wood should be burned.
5. The entire interior of the stable, especially the feeding troughs and drains, should be saturated with a disinfectant, as a 3 per cent solution of compound solution of cresol (U. S. P.), which would be 4 ounces of the compound to every gallon of water.

The best method of applying the disinfectant is by means of a strong spray pump, such as those used by orchardists.

This method is efficient in disinfection against most of the contagious and infectious diseases of animals, and should be applied immediately following any outbreak, and as a matter of precaution, it may be used once or twice yearly.

All stables, like houses, should have ample window space in order to admit a plentiful supply of sunlight and fresh air, in themselves among the most powerful disinfectants, known. Bacteria thrive in dampness, dirt, and darkness, and a clean, dry stable presents the most unfavorable conditions for their development. For this reason good drainage is also an essential point to be considered in the construction of a stable.

Cresol, carbolic acid, and other coal-tar products used as disinfectants have a disagreeable odor, which may readily be absorbed by milk and other dairy products. It is therefore sometimes inadvisable to use them, and in such cases bichloride of mercury may be substituted. This should be used in the proportion of 1 to 800, or 1 pound of bichloride to 100 gallons of water. Where bichloride is used, however, all portions of the stable which have become soiled with manure should first be thoroughly scraped and cleaned, as the albumin contained in manure greatly diminishes the disinfecting power of the mercury. Bichloride of mercury is also a powerful corrosive poison, and its use should always be supervised by a veterinarian, or some other person experienced in the handling of poisonous drugs. The bichloride solution should be applied with a spray pump like the cresol solution. All mangers and feed boxes which have been sprayed should be allowed to dry and then be washed out with hot water. Care in this respect is important, for cattle are especially susceptible to mercurial poisoning.

Albert Peterman, of Calumet, state representative, said it might not be a bad idea to amend the constitution whereby a session of the legislature could be held every year. He would want a short session in January to cure the defects of the regular session and have the short session last not over 2 months.

Each year following a session of the legislature serious blunders are discovered made by the legislature and a short session would seek to cure these blunders and at the same time enable the lawmakers to pass any legislation overlooked at a regular session.

For the smaller boys in the first years of their membership in the clubs, one acre is probably enough to handle.

Michigan City Dispatch. One of the greatest misfortunes that have befallen this county is the movement of farm boys to the city," said Governor Ralston, in a speech at Greencastle. "Not that I argue that all boys should be farmers, for not every boy has brains enough to be a farmer." The governor is right. It takes as much brains to be a farmer as it does to be anything else, and infinitely more than is required of a city chap who spends his time in idleness and loafing on the street corner, which seems to be the sole ambition of too many city boys.

Unfortunately the godly priest did not long survive the crowning of Joash and hence when he came under other influences he soon went back to the evil practices of his predecessors and his reign ended in an eclipse of evil. (2 Chron. 24: 15-26).

In this lesson we have, however, a suggestion of what is needed to cure religious lethargy. (a) A vision of the real condition of affairs (v. 7); also 2 Chron. 24: 7). Joash saw the resultant ruin of the temple after fifteen years of misrule; he also saw the misconduct of the priests and did not hesitate to call them to account. "It is no easy task to undertake a reformation and restoration such as this; witness Moses, Jesus, Luther, Wesley and Cary." These priests had aided him to gain his throne and doubtless had had a part in his boyhood training. Joash had inaugurated certain reforms before he began this task which suggests the second need of (b) persistence (see 1 Chron. 24: 8, 6). Such work also demands (c) systematic effort and giving. Joash placed himself among Israel's best kings by undertaking the restoration of the temple and on a place alongside of Hezekiah and Josiah. Modern churches are not strictly speaking, a "house of the Lord" such as was the Jewish temple, yet the condition of many of our churches would indicate great indifference to the cause of the kingdom. Our bodies are indeed a "temple" (1 Cor. 3: 16, 6: 19) and both the body and church buildings alike should be kept in proper condition.

II. Liberality, v. 9-15. The plan to have the priests gather funds for the repairs was scriptural (Exod. 25: 2-8). God does not look upon the measure but upon the motive of our gifts. (2 Cor. 8: 12). The priests did not "hasten the matter" as the king took it into his own hands (v. 9). In this respect, Jehoiaha, as the chief priest, is held accountable for all (v. 7).

We have in this story a rich suggestion as to God's plan of Christian giving. (1) The Object. It was distinctly for the glory of God and not to outbid others in to show fully use the money for selfish purposes. (2) All were to participate voluntarily, out of their abundance (2 Chron. 24: 10), systematically and faithfully. (3) The Results were a House repaired (2 Chron. 24: 12), a beautiful temple (2 Chron. 24: 13), and worship restored (2 Chron. 24: 14). Joash seems to have laid great emphasis upon the "tabernacle of witness" (24: 6) and we need to recall that each and every part of that temple was a testimony to the truth of God and had in it a spiritual suggestion and prophecy. As a whole, it suggested that God dwelt in the midst of His people. The sons of Athaliah (Joash's grandmother), had so conducted themselves as to cause it to need repairing (2 Chron. 24: 7). When we turn to 2 Chron. 24: 8-14 and read the record of the restoration of the temple, we discover (1) Each had his part in the work. (2) Each did a "perfect" work, e. g. did his task faithfully, fully and to a finish. (3) Each did an orderly work, "in his state." None sought to supplant or defraud others in the work assigned. (4) Each did a strong work; it was "strengthened" and not a trifling work as men-pleasers or for the moment. (5) Each worked economically because when all bills were paid, money was returned to the treasury.

What a marked contrast with modern methods of conducting public improvements! There was great joy in the hearts of both princes and people as they brought and wrought. We rob ourselves by withholding, "for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also."

There is sound philosophy in Proverbs 11: 24, 25. That "class" church of individual that liveth unto itself will soon die. It may have a name that is great in the earth but that name will not abide. In giving we get, in serving, we increase. Here is also a suggestion how to raise church finances. The world is a past master in the art of amassing and can discount many times over the cheap entertainments so frequently used to wheedle change from the unwary. No wonder church treasuries are so often empty for we do not give what is received by any such methods. Try more prayer and like Joash give the people a choice and they will be no lack.

Again, note that they dealt "faithfully." We need to exercise faithfulness in our relation to God and in the use of that which He entrusts to our stewardship. Man and God alike will have confidence in us according to the method whereby we receive and expend money. These funds were expended in a businesslike way (v. 11, 12, 2 Chron. 24: 11), and this doubtless added much to the size of the gift.

HOW TO DISENFECT

Five Rules to Observe in Cleaning Stables and Premises—Care Demanded in the Use of Mercury.

U. S. Agricultural Department.

In any outbreak of infectious disease among animals thorough disinfection of the premises is essential to preventing the spread of the contagion. Certain substances, such as fresh-slaked lime or unslaked lime in powder form, chloride of lime, carbolic acid, corrosive sublimate, formalin, formaldehyde, gas, and compound solution of cresol possess the power of destroying bacteria with which they come in contact. To make the use of such substances of value, however, the work must be done with the utmost thoroughness. Careless disinfection is probably worse than none, for it merely serves to give a false sense of security.

In the disinfection of stables and premises the following directions should be carefully observed:

1. Sweep ceilings, side walls, stall partitions, floors and other surfaces until free from cobwebs and dust.
2. Remove all accumulations of filth by scraping, and if woodwork has become decayed, porous, or absorbent, it should be removed, burned, and replaced with new material.
3. If the floor is of earth, remove 4 inches from the surface, and in places where it shows staining with urine a sufficient depth should be replaced to expose fresh earth. All earth removed should be replaced with earth from an uncontaminated source, or a new floor of concrete may be laid, which is very durable and easily cleaned.
4. All refuse and material from stable and barnyard should be removed to a place not accessible to cattle or hogs and covered with freshly slaked lime. If this manure is spread in fields, it should be turned under immediately, while the wood should be burned.
5. The entire interior of the stable, especially the feeding troughs and drains, should be saturated with a disinfectant, as a 3 per cent solution of compound solution of cresol (U. S. P.), which would be 4 ounces of the compound to every gallon of water.

The best method of applying the disinfectant is by means of a strong spray pump, such as those used by orchardists.

This method is efficient in disinfection against most of the contagious and infectious diseases of animals and should be applied immediately following any outbreak, and as a matter of precaution, it may be used once or twice yearly.

All stables, like houses, should have ample window space in order to admit a plentiful supply of sunlight and fresh air, in themselves among the most powerful disinfectants known. Bacteria thrive in dampness, dirt, and darkness, and a clean, dry stable presents the most unfavorable conditions for their development. For this reason good drainage is also an essential point to be considered in the construction of a stable.

Cresol, carbolic acid, and other coal-tar products used as disinfectants have a disagreeable odor, which may readily be absorbed by milk and other dairy products. It is therefore sometimes inadvisable to use them, and in such cases bichloride of mercury may be substituted. This should be used in the proportion of 1 to 800, or 1 pound of bichloride to 100 gallons of water. Where bichloride is used, however, all portions of the stable which have become soiled with manure should first be thoroughly scraped and cleaned, as the albumin contained in manure greatly diminishes the disinfecting power of the mercury. Bichloride of mercury is also a powerful corrosive poison, and its use should always be supervised by a veterinarian or some other person experienced in the handling of poisonous drugs. The bichloride solution should be applied with a spray pump like the cresol solution. All mangers and feed boxes which have been sprayed should be allowed to dry and then be washed out with hot water. Care in this respect is important, for cattle are especially susceptible to mercurial poisoning.

The Best Proof

Northville Citizens Cannot Doubt It.

Dean's Kidney Pills were used. They brought benefit. The story was told to Northville residents. Time has strengthened the evidence. Has proven the result lasting. The testimony is from this locality. The proof convincing.

Mrs. J. Glosser, 517 W. Washington street, Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "My back ached all the time. To stoop or lift caused sharp pains in my kidneys and I was subject to dizzy spells. I felt tired and run down and it was an effort for me to get around. Dean's Kidney Pills helped me wonderfully, strengthening my kidneys and toning up my entire system."

No Trouble Since.

Over two years later, Mrs. Glosser said: "I can still recommend Dean's Kidney Pills. I have been free from kidney trouble and backache since I used them."

HOG CHOLERA MAXIMS

Measures to Observe for Preventing Infection, Treating the Disease, and Disinfecting Premises.

Advice from U. S. Agricultural Dept.

Hog cholera is most prevalent at this season of the year, and the department offers the following suggestions to those who are interested in combating the disease.

To Keep Hog Cholera Out of the Herd

1. Locate your hog lots and pastures away from streams and public highways, and do not allow the hogs to run free range.

2. Do not visit your neighbor or allow him to visit you, if either of you have hog cholera on your premises.

3. Do not drive into hog lots when returning from market or after driving on public highways.

4. Do not use hog lots for hauling wagons and farm implements.

5. Do not place newly purchased stock secured or loaned for breeding purposes, or stock exhibited at county fairs with your herd. Keep such stock quarantined at least two weeks, and use care to prevent carrying infection from these to other pens in feeding and attending stock.

6. Burn to ashes or cover with quicklime and bury under 4 feet of earth all dead animals and the carcasses removed from animals at butcher shops. They attract the attention of buzzards, dogs, etc., which are liable to carry hog cholera infection.

7. Confine your dogs and do not keep pigeons unless you confine them.

If Hog Cholera Appears in Your Herd

Treat your hogs immediately with anti-hog cholera serum, after which they should be kept on a light diet and pure drinking water and confined to limited quarters that may be cleaned daily and sprayed three times a week with 1 part of compound cresol solution to 30 parts of water until the disease has abated in the herd. To obtain the best results the serum must be administered before the disease has progressed in the herd.

Married Life on $80 a Month

Julia Is Worried When She Hears That John's Wife Was Made Jealous by Finding Her Handkerchief.

"Here's your handkerchief, Miss Osgood," said John Sutter, holding out the bit of cambric. "I forgot to give it to you last night after Old Scroggy, the bookkeeper, went out."

"Why don't you call me Julia?" asked the stenographer, holding out her hand for the handkerchief.

"We have been working together so long it sounds snippy to hear you say Miss Osgood."

"All right, it suits us." He smiled at the girl standing by the table.

"You must not forget to ask for the next time you doctor my headache. I got into a row about it with Molly."

"A row? Why?" asked the girl in surprise.

"Oh, the blamed thing fell out of my pocket and she found it on the floor. I was in for it all right."

John made a grimace.

"Do you mean—" began the girl, then stopped.

"Yes, good old-fashioned jealousy," John shrugged his shoulders and spread out his hands to express how completely he had been misunderstood.

"Is she that kind?" The tone was commiserating in the extreme.

John was silent, but his look spoke volumes. The girl turned slowly toward her desk, and the rattle of her typewriter alone broke the silence.

"I don't like to have your wife jealous of me," finally broke the pause.

"Forget it," counseled John Sutter easily. "She must fuss about something. A handkerchief is a harmless thing to row about."

The girl was again silent and sat with her hands in her lap, looking out of the window.

along as well as the average, I suppose. I can read her like a book, but she doesn't understand me. That's nothing unusual, however. Believe me, the instances where marriage is unending bliss are few and far between."

"I'm not the kind of girl to make trouble between married people. I want her to know that," Julia was disturbed.

John laughed. "All right, I'll tell her that. It will set her mind at rest."

The girl's face flushed. "You are laughing at me," she blazed.

"Indeed I am not. I prize your good opinion too highly, but you can see for yourself how hopeless it is to try to change a woman's opinion about any such thing. Anything I could say would only make matters worse."

"I must live down the shame of having used your handkerchief, with smelling salts to cure my headache, and then, worst of all, of having forgotten to return it."

The girl smiled. "Do you think you will be able to do that?" she asked.

"In time. It's a help to know that you understand me, and believe in my good intentions." He looked earnestly at her.

"I wish I could help, really, you know." She smiled across the table and fell to work.

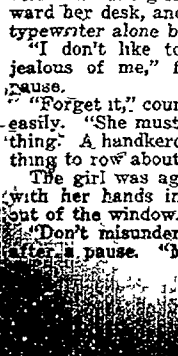

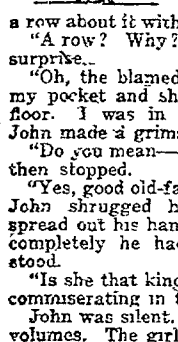

"It's a big help to have some one believe in you. Maybe you don't believe it, but it's so." As her eyes met his he thought: "What honest eyes the girl has."

Julia felt uneasy, and worked steadily without looking up for a long time. She was conscious of Sutter's eyes upon her very often, and the knowledge helped to keep her disturbed.

As she was about to leave for home that night, he extended his hand, saying, "I am sorry I said anything about that handkerchief. It has worried you. Really, there is nothing to worry about. I wouldn't have distressed you for the world."

"We'll say nothing more about it," she said and smiled.

Household Hints

GRAPES.

To Keep Grapes Over Winter—Gather the grapes on a dry day, when not dead ripe, put them in glass jars and sprinkle round each cluster dry bran, so that they will not touch each other. Have a thick layer of bran on top and seal tightly to exclude the air perfectly. Keep the jar in a box of dry sand in a cool place.

Spiced Grapes—For ten pounds of grapes take six pounds light brown sugar, one quart vinegar, two tablespoons each allspice, cinnamon and pepper, and one tablespoon each cloves and salt. Boil skins thirty minutes, then add pulp and boil half an hour.

Grape Dessert—Put grape pulp, prepared as for grape pie, into sherbet glasses. Chill through. Pipe whipped cream, likewise chilled through, on top and serve.

Grape Conserve—Two and one-half pounds grapes, one and one-half pounds white sugar, one pound seeded raisins, one-quarter pound English walnut meats, cut fine. Separate pulp from skins, cook pulp and run through grape sieve to remove seeds. Then add pulp to skins. Add sugar and boil slowly for twenty minutes, stirring often, then add raisins and one orange, sliced fine, rind and all. Cook fifteen minutes longer, then add nut meats.

Grape Parfait—Boil one cup granulated sugar with one-third cup water until it threads. Beat the whites of two eggs and pour the syrup on them slowly, beating all the time, until cold. In the meantime, have ready a cupful of cream, whipped, and whipped with half a cupful of grape pulp, well sweetened, and the juice of a lemon. Fold the two mixtures together and freeze.

Grape Juice—This retains so much of the flavor of the grape, and can be made into many delicious beverages and desserts for winter. It is well made by the following recipe: Heat very ripe grapes in a crock in the oven or in a double boiler or fireless cooker. When the skins are tender drain in a jelly bag. Heat the resulting juice, add sugar, bring to the boiling point and pour into sterilized jars or bottles. If you use bottles, sterilize the corks and after they are in the bottles cover with sealing wax. Use either half as much or a quarter as much of grape juice.

amount added must depend on your taste, but remember that it is an easy matter to add more sugar to the grape juice, but it is impossible to take away from it later on. If you desire a clear grape juice, let the bag drip without squeezing. A more economical method is to squeeze the bag. The resulting grape juice will be a little cloudy, but its flavor will be quite as good.

CANNING AND PRESERVING

Plum Butter—To every six pounds plums allow four pounds granulated sugar and one pint water. Cook until stones rise to top, then skim off stones. Add two tablespoons each of cloves and cinnamon and cook down to a thick jam-like consistency. Put in jars. Be careful it does not burn while cooking down.

Grape Conserve—Three pints ripe grape pulp, heated and put through colander. Add one pound seeded raisins, one-pound walnut meats, three pounds sugar and cook until thick. Put in jelly glasses.

THE TABLE

Creole Steak—One flank steak, 1½ cups chili sauce, one cup rice. Cut steak in medium pieces, brown in butter, season well. Wash and cook rice in five cups boiling, salted water until tender. Place steak in casserole, cover with chili sauce, then the layer of rice. Cover with boiling water and bake in medium oven thirty minutes. This, with baked potatoes, makes a fine meal.

Salads From Leftovers—One cold fried egg, a few cold potatoes chopped fine, one Spanish onion, a few lettuce leaves, vinegar, salt, pepper to taste.

A piece of cold steak, a few cold potatoes, two onions chopped fine, salt, pepper and vinegar. Use gravy left from dinner made after the steak for dressing.

Baked mackerel—Put salt mackerel in baked dish, "after being soaked," sprinkle with pepper and chopped parsley, cover with fried bread crumbs and moisten with cream. Bake until brown on top. Serve hot with creamed potatoes.

Lemon Sponge Pie—One lemon (rind and juice), one cup sugar, one tablespoon butter, two eggs (whites beaten and added last), two tablespoons flour, one cup milk. Bake in a hot oven.

To Rid the Premises of Infection:

Remove all manure and saturate with quicklime.

Burn all litter, rubbish, and old hog troughs.

After the premises are thoroughly cleaned spray walls, floors, and other surfaces with disinfectant (1 part compound cresol solution to 30 parts water). Where hog houses are small, turn them over, exposing interior to sunlight.

Wallow holes and cesspools should be filled in, drained, or forced off.

All runs underneath building should be cleaned and disinfected and then boarded up.

Destroy hogs that do not fully recover, as they may be carriers of cholera infection.

Life may be a grind, but grinding sharpens things.

The thread of many a discourse is merely a yarn.

A bad break is often followed by a flood of tears.

Some men are too polite to be truthful.

Black satin evening gown with an overskirt of black tulle draped over the satin skirt. The waist and sleeves are of tulle. The dress is trimmed with bands of jet. Bands of jet hold the waist in place, while silver medallions down the front of the skirt add to the trimmings. Straps of beads are gathered about the wrist, holding the tulle sleeves in place.

NAVY BOARD GETS BUSY

WASHINGTON, Oct. — (Special)

Secretary Daniels' new naval advisory board has held its first meeting and is now ready to settle down to work. The first problem that will receive the board's serious consideration will be that of developing satisfactory gasoline or oil engines for airplanes and submarines. Details of all experiments made and pending by department engineers in this line already have been prepared for submission to the board, with full statements of what must be accomplished and the difficulties encountered.

The problem of defense against torpedo attack promptly ranked in importance. Much is said to have been accomplished along this line by Rear Admiral David Taylor, chief constructor of the navy and his aids, and new battleships, including Nos. 13 and 44, bids for which have been advertised, will be given special hull construction designed within the next eight or ten months to meet this danger.

Secretary Daniels recently submitted to each member of the board a memorandum of the laboratory and research subject, and it may be said that the navy department believes that this general line of work will be given attention at an early day. In the memorandum the following occurs:

"We have no adequate research department and no experimental laboratory equipped to meet our larger needs. We have a very modest establishment at Annapolis, which is known as the experimental station, but it is already overburdened with routine work, such as the testing of coils, the photomicroscopic examination of steel and iron and the conducting of other tests of materials used by the navy, and there are neither facilities nor room for work of this kind on the scale demanded by new conditions."

"I have been advised by such members of your council as I have talked with of the necessity of the creation of an experimental and research laboratory such as now is considered an essential part of every great manufacturing establishment. I wish to make a definite recommendation to congress on this point and a request for a proper appropriation, and I feel that the members of the advisory council are peculiarly fitted to advise me as to just what is needed. Almost all of the members have research and experimental laboratories of their own or have at their disposal laboratories of this kind provided by some manufacturing industry. They have, therefore, the practical knowledge as to what such a laboratory should be, how large it should be, what sort of tools and materials it should have and what kind of a building is needed."

FARMING BY ELECTRICITY

Modern Electrical Appliances for Farm Work to be Shown at Toledo Land Show.

The modern farm is being run largely by electricity. Milking cows, shearing sheep, clipping horses, lighting, pumping, irrigating, churning, cream separating, and many other operations that used to be performed by hand, are now simply a matter of turning a button and letting electricity do the work.

What electricity can do to lighten and hasten farm work will be shown in the great electrical section of the Ohio and Michigan Land Show. Live-stock and Power Farm Machinery Exposition in Toledo next December. Electrical interests of Toledo and Northwestern Ohio are planning a mammoth co-operative exhibit. "Everything electrical will be displayed."

It is estimated that there are 125 uses for electricity on the farm, and many of these will be demonstrated at the Land Show. The exhibit will be held as part of the country week celebration of National Electrical Property Week.

Outdoor Electrical Display

The Terminal Building, where the Exposition will be held, will be entirely outlined in electric lights for the two weeks of the Land Show. Transparencies will be placed on all street lights in the principal streets leading to the Terminal Building. An electrical vehicle parade will be held the opening night through the main streets of the city.

Farm Tractors at Work.

Another feature of the Land Show that is attracting great attention is the tractor display. Many farmers are planning to visit the Exposition especially to see the demonstrations of modern farm tractors.

The first indoor track ever constructed for the purpose is now being built. Tractors will be demonstrated several times each afternoon and evening. Between demonstrations prize cattle, horses, sheep and swine will be exhibited in the ring.

Lectures by State and Government experts will be given on the foot and mouth disease and other livestock ills. Many of the lectures will be illustrated by moving pictures. Poultry experts will be on hand all through the show in the big poultry section, where more than three thousand prize birds will be shown.

These Running Boards Are Costly

The running boards and foot board of Model 43 are of cast aluminum—the most expensive material, and the best for permanent beauty. They are typical of this car—an Oldsmobile through and through. Aluminum can be cleaned easily and retains its new appearance no matter how old the car.

Note that the running boards are equipped with mud scrapers, so your guests can remove the mud from their shoes before entering the car.

Price of this Oldsmobile $1,095. Demonstration on request.

Oldsmobile

Many of the great men in the automobile industry were educated in the Oldsmobile School of Motor Car Building. They will tell you they were trained to do well whatever they tackled.
