RUSH NAVY WORK SAYS P. H. KELLEY

MICHIGAN CONGRESSMAN QUOTES
PRESIDENT ON NEED OF WARD-ING OFF DANGER.

Referring to President Wilson's preparedness speeches, and saying the president had told of a "crisis," Representative Kelley of Michigan this week, introduced a resolution in congress, proposing that naval vessels under construction be rushed to completion. A speech Kelley intended to make in the house was choked off by a Democratic objection.

"Sixty-seven ships for the navy are now authorized or under construction," said Kelley, "and the work is being carried forward as though ordinary peace conditions prevailed and although sparks are falling everywhere, no effort has been put forth to hasten construction."

"Either we are in no danger or the president has been negligent in this regard. I cannot believe that he is magnifying the danger to this country in order to lay a foundation for a future claim that he has exercised great statesmanship in piloting the nation through a sea of trouble without conflict."

F. D. EATHERLY DIED THURSDAY

F. D. Eatherly, a well known and prominent resident of this place, "Brassie," died at his winter home in Detroit yesterday afternoon, aged 62 years.

A more extended sketch of Mr. Eatherly's life will be given next week.

VILLAGE CAUCUSES TO COME EARLY

THE NEW STATE LAW CHANGES THINGS AROUND A BIT.

ALL PRIMARIES MUST BE HELD
AT LEAST 20 DAYS PREVIOUS TO ELECTION.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 1. In the general rush for information regarding the changes in Michigan's election law as enacted by the 1915 legislature, one feature seems to have been entirely forgotten. All village caucuses will have to be held earlier this year than ever before in the history of the state.

The Absent Voters act is the cause. Under this law all caucuses, primaries and conventions must be held at least 20 days before election, and the ballots for the elections general or special, must be in, printed and in the hands of the clerks at least 12 days before the election.

That the new law is going to cause a revolution among villages and small towns, where spring campaigns have been confined to about one week.

Candidates for village and township offices this year will have to "get busy" early. The caucuses must be held and the complete tickets lined up, otherwise the clerks will be unable to fulfill the letter of the law regarding the sending of ballots to those who are away from home and get them back in time to be counted.

The village elections take place this year on March 13 and the latest day for holding caucuses will be February 22.

The Northville caucuses will doubtless be held week after next, but as to who will run for the various offices but little seems to be known as yet.

The terms of Messrs. Filkins, McLean and Barley expire this year and inasmuch as they all have made excellent records, they are quite sure to be re-nominated.

MASONS CELEBRATE THEIR GOLDEN JUBILEE.

Northville lodge F. & A. M. celebrated its Golden Jubilee on Monday night last and a large crowd was out for the occasion. Grand Master George B. Lusk of Bay City was present and delivered a splendid address.

Northville School Notes.

(By a Pupil.)

The Botany class boasts of a large enrollment.

There are ten new pupils in the First grade.

There are six new pupils in the Seventh grade.

There were ten pupils who entered the High school.

Neal, Sonnenberg, Elsie Schultz and Albert Kohler of the Second grade were neither absent nor tardy during the semester.

The Eighth grade attendance percentage was 96.

The enrollment of the Sixth grade contains thirty names.

There are now forty-nine pupils enrolled in the Fifth grade.

Nineteen of the Second grade pupils passed into the Third grade.

Mrs. Shafer and Mrs. Daggett visited the Second grade one day last week.

A spread was held in the Second grade room last Friday afternoon.

Mrs. Ethel Potthone Evans, a former Northville teacher, visited the school Tuesday.

General Science has been added to the High school course, with an enrollment of about 30 pupils.

Miss Alice M. Johnson and friend, Miss Lois O'Day of Grand Ledge spent the week-end with the former's sister, Miss Anna Johnson.

Teacher—"Why does wind blow harder in winter?"
Howard Benton—"Because there is no vegetation in the way."

The morning exercises were resumed in the High school Tuesday morning after which Supl. Miserar talked to the scholars about efficiency.

Teacher—Johnny, who were your first parents?

New Pupil—Same as now—Mr and Mrs John Henry Jones.

The Eighth grade now has six boys and six girls in the A class and eight boys and eight girls in the B class, making a total of twenty-eight in the room.

Misses Wartman, Phillips, Pinney, Weiler, Nelson, Munro and Johnson and Mr. McCloy attended "The Birth of a Nation," Saturday afternoon, and "High Jinks" in the evening at Detroit theatres.

"Papa," said the sweet girl graduate "wasn't my commencement gown a regular whooperino?" I had the other girls skinned alive!

"And this is the girl," said papa, sadly, "whose graduating essay was 'An Appeal for Higher Standards of Thought and Expression.'"

The following pupils of the Eighth grade were neither absent nor tardy during the semester: Bernice Ashley, Howard Stark and Audrey St. John, and Ruth Cattermole. Those absent one-half days were, Olive Desautels, Gladys Black, Gibson Carpenter and George Wilcox. Irving Lapham was absent one day.

COGSDILL-LAPHAM.

Joe Lapham of this place and Mrs. Lucy Cogsdill of Clarencville were united in marriage Monday, January 31. Mr. Lapham is employed in the Northville condensery and the couple will make their home here.

GORTON'S SHOW AT ALSEUM

The complimentary entertainment given to the people of Northville last Friday evening by Wm. Gorton, was one of the best ever. A most interesting live road feature was presented, in addition to the title film "A Million Dollar Look." The latter told the story of a plutocrat who offered a prize of a million dollars for the time of his three nephews who should appear before a committee of judges in the most all round perfect costume. The contestant who won the prize had obtained his outfit from the Royal Tailoring Co. of Chicago, of which Wm. Gorton is the local representative.

MR. REBEFFED MADE A QUIET VISIT.

The Record learns from out-of-town sources that a no less important government official than a member of the cabinet at Washington was a Northville visitor last week. Monday Secretary Redfield of the Department of Commerce and Labor came to town via special D. U. R. car, we are informed, accompanied by several other more or less notable persons, for the purpose of inspecting the local U. S. Fisheries station. Apparently, Uncle Sam's servants, at the Northville institution, are so accustomed to being visited by cabinet officials and such that they didn't consider the matter worth mentioning to the local paper.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The next regular meeting of the W. R. C. will be held Wednesday evening, February 9. There will be initiation and a Lincoln day program. We hope for a good attendance. Meeting called to order at 7:30 o'clock.

A POINT IN DISPUTE ON A ROAD LEADING FROM SALONICA.

GREEK SOLDIERS AND FRENCH ARTILLERY PASSING ON A GREEK HIGHWAY

The above picture illustrates a point which has been under discussion with Greece. During the French landing the heavy concentration of Greek troops in the Salonica district much hindered a rapid transit of soldiers and stores from point to point. With clearer understanding with Greece this has in large measure ceased. The camp at Zefenlik, about two and a half miles from Salonica, was occupied by the French troops on October 5. The Greek troops, also encamped in the neighborhood, frequently met the newcomers along the narrow and not too good roads. A striking commentary on the nature of the surrounding country is supplied by their mounts—mules instead of horses.

Household Hint

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

For the Hungry Boy—After School—A friend of mine who has three hungry boys of different ages, who come home from school clamoring for "something to eat," has devised this s' home to keep them out of the pantry. She has three loaves plainly lettered with their names, and after dinner she fills each with whatever is best for that particular boy.

When hanging rue on the line to meat, instead of hanging directly to the line, secure a strong pole into the oak and secure rope or cord to fasten the line around it. If it is then hung over pole, will prevent sagging and it will hang straight.

Hygiene Cycled—Finchrover—In working cycle and machinery so fastidious now, before piecing the eye let with small scissors cut a thread or two each way and the hole will be smooth and no danger of having threads drawn even in the thinnest material, as is often the case when the hole is punched without the cutting.

THE TABLE

Pumpkin Pie—Three heaping tablespoons stewed pumpkin mixed with one half cup granulated sugar, one dessert-spoon flour and beat smooth paste with a little milk, add pinch of salt, yolk two eggs, one-half teaspoon cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoon nutmeg, one cup sweet milk. Now stir all together well, add last one tablespoon melted butter and white of one egg well beaten. Bake in slow oven in raw pie crust. When done spread over top the remaining white beaten very light with one spoon granulated sugar. Set in oven until light brown.

Ginger snaps—In one pint New Orleans molasses one cup light brown sugar, two thirds cup dripping and one teaspoon butter in state put and boil until it thickens considerably. Cool and add to teaspoon soda dissolved in one cup water. Mix enough flour to make a stiff dough, then roll out and bake on hot oven. Baked on high (very nice).

Baked Omelette—In one pound of butter, yolks two eggs, one fourth cup flour, one milk in double. When hot add butter chopped fine salt and pepper. Cook about 20 minutes, then stir with flour wet in milk, and add butter and yolks of eggs. Put in dish and let stand in baking dish in alternate layers, cover with buttered cracker or bread crumbs, and bake half hour in moderate oven.

Baked Omelette—Partial 20 minutes. Put in pans and just cover with water. Bake until tender. When done, add one cup cream to liquid and thick, then in pan. Have an egg white beaten and pour mixture over it, pour over onions, and serve. Very nice served with beef hash and baked potatoes, or with chicken. If all is prepared in the morning, makes an easy dinner for a family.

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Margaret Clark-Henderson to Mr. Otis L. Guernsey, Yale's hero of the remarkable football contest between Yale and Princeton in November. Both Miss Henderson and Mr. Guernsey are New Yorkers. Miss Henderson was introduced to society two years ago. Mr. Guernsey is a member of the senior class at Yale. COMPANIONSHIP

By DOROTHY BLACKMORE.

Because George Keene liked Elsie Cartright very much he once asked her to take one of his favorite walks with him. This led them across the Hudson and up over the bluffs of the Palisades. It included a country dinner at the humble home of a Jersey farmer, at which the guests sat down with the host and his family and the whole hearty meal, from stew to pie, was put upon the table at once.

Since that day Elsie had avoided him, and he had learned from the laughing lips of Peggy Arnott—who knew Elsie well—that the girl was not yet free from the effects of that day in the country.

"You should have known, George, that Elsie Cartright is the last girl who would welcome a sun-kissed nose. Don't you know that her beautiful skin is the joy of her life?" Peggy had asked merrily. "And you know Elsie was crazy about you—everyone knows it," she added.

George smiled significantly. "So much for my best efforts at companionship with girls," he sighed.

Autumn was advancing rapidly and the wonderful reds and yellows of wood and meadow were drawing Keene to Long Island, where he spent that season. He bought his monthly ticket and began early to commute from his office to the country.

On the occasion of his earliest tramp into the woods he felt unusually lonely—more so than ever before, he told himself dimly. And then, as if to emphasize his loneliness, he chanced upon three happy picnickers building a fire over which to brew their own coffee. He observed that the girl and her mother were dressed in outing clothes and that they wore low-heeled boots and looked comfortable and happy. He thought of those absurd heels of Elsie and was glad that all women were not so silly.

"That's a bunch after my own heart," he commented mentally as he observed the father comfortably smoking as he sat on a fallen tree and watched the women of his family preparing the picnic meal.

"Doesn't this beat a dinner dance all hollow?" he heard the father ask.

"No more of that regular life for me," the girl sang merrily as she poked the fire. Then she stopped and looked at her father and mother. "If I could find a man I could like as well as you like father and who cared for this sort of thing I'd—well, I'd marry him, I believe," she said. "But, alas, these men I've known have cared more for a ripping football and a good lobster supper than for this simple amusement."

Keene heard it all. And as he wandered slowly on he heard the girl scream. "Oh, dad, chase this dog away! I hate strange dogs! He's after our dinner!"

Hege was another common interest—her dislike of dogs and his—strange dogs, at least. He had heard of the companionship of canines, but he had failed to see into it. He had never yet seen the dog that knew a toad-stool from a violet or a sunset from a sunrise, so he had failed to be convinced of their value as human companions.

Nevertheless the incident gave him an idea. He assured himself that he must get acquainted with that trio by fair means or foul.

His neighbor had a horribly vicious looking dog that was as gentle as a turtle dove.

Two days later, accompanied by the vicious-looking canine of his neighbor, Keene strolled through the woods in which he had seen the trio of picnickers. The dog had been carefully starved during the entire day and was ravenous. All of which was exactly as Keene wished it to be. The poor beast sniffed under every bush in the hope of unearthing even an ancient bone.

Keene's heart beat fast as he approached the picnic spot. A juicy steak was being grilled, and even Keene's own mouth began to water at the fragrance of it. And how that fragrance affected the hungry dog was almost beyond description, so quickly did it happen.

The dog dashed. Keene dashed after him. They both landed in the midst of a surprised trio. "He's as gentle as a lamb!" Keene kept crying. "He wouldn't bite anything!"

"No—he looks like it," Mr. Nevins managed to say as the dog made frantic efforts to get at the broiling meat. "Oh, I'm frightfully sorry," said Keene, almost as earnestly as if he had not planned it all and was tickled immoderately at the success of his ruse.

The mother and daughter stood aside and laughed long and heartily. "We really can't blame the poor thing!" said Molly.

And then followed informal introductions and, after the coveted invitation to dinner, Keene tied the dog to a tree and promised him the tags and bones of the steak, with Miss Molly's permission.

After the embers of the fire had been raked out and the quartet was strolling aimlessly about the woods, Molly ventured a remark that pleased Keene more than any simple words he had ever heard.

"I thought you would manage to know us," she said.

"Trust me to manage anything I want as badly as I did your companionship," he said.

HORSES THAT WERE JUMPERS

Some Really Remarkable Feats on Record That Are Without Doubt Authentic.

What distance and what height can a horse jump is a curious inquiry. If the reader will carefully measure out 39 feet, an idea of the horse's capacity in this direction will be gathered. remarks the London Times. Such a distance a steppelchase horse called Old Chandler is reported to have covered at Warwick some years ago, and there is more than one apparently authentic record of a horse clearing seven feet in height.

The scene of one such exploit was at the Phoenix park and the horse was an animal descended from a famous winner named Potos, himself called Turnip. The animal belonged to Sir E. Crofton, and the duke of Richmond, then Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, wagered £500 that seven feet in height could not be cleared. A wall of the requisite dimensions was built and Turnip was ridden at it. He did what was asked of him in perfect style, but it happened that his grace, not knowing that the feat was ready for performance, was not looking when the jump was made, but Turnip was therefore ridden over it again, not only successfully but easily.

The wall of Hyde park, opposite Grosvenor place, six and a half feet on the inside, with a drop of eight feet into the road beyond, has also been cleared.
