VILLAGE CAUCUSES HELD TO-NIGHT

WORKINGMEN'S CAUCUS IN THE RINK AND "PEOPLES" IN THE VILLAGE HALL.

LOOKS AS IF THE ELECTION
MIGHT BE A SPIRITED AFFAIR
AFTER ALL.

The two village caucuses are to be held to-night at 7:30 o'clock. The so-called "Workingmen's" in Princess rink and the so-called "Peoples" in the village hall.

There doesn't seem to be any indication that there will be a great clamor on the part of the people to have their names placed on either ticket for the office of councilmen. Dr. Tom Heary will doubtless be re-nominated on the "Workingmen's" ticket and either Charles Eklund or Charles Dolph is said to head the "Peoples" ticket. Just who the council will be is a bit in the air as yet.

A full ticket is assured however on both sides and a good set of officers may be looked for as a result of the two caucuses.

The business men of the village and the heads of the factories express a hope that the nominations will leave no grounds for a saloon or no-saloon issue later on, or even after the election as it did last year.

All kinds of rumors are afloat however. In some sources the claim is that an effort will be made to nominate and elect a ticket that will repeal the present ordinance suppressing saloons and on the other hand the claim is made that only men will be put on either ticket who will represent that which is for Northville's best business interests.

Anyhow the people should turn out to the caucuses and then in the election they should be guided by what they deem is best for Northville.

AGED-LADY DEAD.

Mrs. Elizabeth Felsner died at the home of her granddaughter, Mrs. Floyd Shaffer, last week Thursday. She was 81 years old and had been failing for some time.

Mrs. Felsner was the mother of Mrs. Robert Pagel of Dearborn and of Albert Felsner of Detroit. Mrs. Felsner and her daughter came here from Germany 26 years ago, joining Mr. Felsner who had settled near Northville, where they remained to make their home.

Funeral services were held from the Shaffer home Sunday afternoon, conducted by Rev. J. E. Webber and interment was made in Yerkess cemetery.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Guy Bales, in the sumptuous Persian love-play, "Omar, the Tent-maker" will return to the Garrick theatre, Detroit, next Monday evening for a week's engagement, with the usual matinee on Wednesday and Saturday. Our western world is too much with us. We are in the full clutch of circumstances. We judge the uncertain tomorrow by the sordid today, whereas for Omar and his wuthier compeers there is no tomorrow, yesterday is forgotten, and today alone worth while. Mr. Post's Omar is a visualization of the Orient philosophy. His character may be tested from the standpoint of the dreamer, the fatalist, the man of action or the philosopher, and it will ring true.

Another point largely in favor of the work is that it is true acting drama despite its remoteness from the life as we know it. It is a picturesque, a thrilling narrative set magnificently and splendidly acted.

NORTHVILLE TOWN MAY GET CANNON

CONGRESSMAN KELLEY INTRO-DUCED BILL TO PROVIDE TWO.

FRED COLDREN, A FORMER NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP BOY, THE INSTIGATOR.

At the suggestion of Fred Coldren of Washington, a former resident of Northville town, Congressman P. H. Kelley has introduced a bill in congress to give Northville town two cannons, one for the field and one for the town hall.

Supervisor Lanning of Northville township, who after consulting with other members of the board, advised that the people of the town would appreciate the gift as well as Mr. Kelley's and Mr. Coldren's efforts in the matter and would pay the expenses necessary to receiving and placing the same.

If the bill passes it is understood the cannon will be located on the school grounds, as desired by the school board, and which seems to be a suitable place.

The council passed a resolution on Monday night assuming the cost of transportation and setting the cannon, without knowing of the town's action. However Supervisor Lanning is very glad to have the village act in the matter and hopes the bill will pass.

Fred Coldren is a prominent Washington attorney, a brother of Charles Coldren of this place and, for many years was a resident of Northville township. He still maintains this town as his home. He personally drew up the bill for the cannon referred to and it is presented to this township it will be through his efforts in combination and cooperation with the congressman from this district, P. H. Kelley.

NORTHVILLE MADE FIRST AUTOMOBILE

RUNNING AROUND THE STREETS
LIKE A BIRD LAST SATURDAY.

Northville's first "Made-in-Northville" automobile attracted a lot of attention on the streets Saturday. Manager Porter was at the wheel and the machine gave a good account of itself. Several more cars are well under way in the process of construction.

It is a three-quarter ton truck and may be obtained with either of two bodies, a stake body or an express body. The motor is a six cylinder and the wheels are a blue-black and the body is finished in maroon grey.

Minor faults in the running gear are being corrected and tests of all sorts worked out for the machine. On Wednesday a trip to Walled Lake with a heavy load was made with splendid results.

AGREEABLY SURPRISED.

Dr. and Mrs. J. R. Kestell were nearly overcome with surprise Sunday when 28 Detroit friends of the doctor arrived at their residence loaded with a bountiful dinner. The table was set for 36 and beautifully decorated with roses and sweet peas. After a day full of pleasure the visitors left for home on the last car with only one regret, singing "How Dr. I am." Before their departure they expressed their appreciation of the courtesy extended them by Mr. Perrin and a certain road commissioner.

"LES MISERABLES" ALSEUM MONDAY NIGHT, FEB. 21.

Victor Hugo's masterpiece, "Les Misérables" will be featured at the Alseum theatre Monday evening, February 21. As the drama requires three hours for showing, the first reel will be run promptly at 8 o'clock and there will be only one show.

This magnificent interpretation of Hugo's novel cost $100,000 for production and is acted by a splendid cast of French stars.

"Les Misérables" is one of the biggest drawing cards yet secured by the local theatre.

NOTICE.

Miss Grace Tremper, having given up the Franco-American Hygiene Requisites, I have secured the agency and therefore respectfully solicit your patronage. MRS. KITTIE COLF.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express to the King's Daughters and the many friends our appreciation of the flowers sent at the death of our loved one. MR. AND MRS. ROBERT PAGEL AND FAMILY.

O. E. S. ANNUAL BALL NEXT TUESDAY EV'NG

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY TO BE FITTINGLY CELEBRATED BY THE EASTERN STAR LADIES.

The executive committee, namely, E. A. Fuller, chairman, Mrs. Mae Atkins, Worthy Matron, Mrs. Kittie Harmon, Mrs. Georgia Tunham, Mrs. Jessie Ponsford and Floyd Northrop for the O. E. S. dance on February 22, predict the usual gaiety which is always a feature of the order's annual ball.

Stone's five-piece orchestra will furnish the music. Another feature will be an exhibition drill given by the Knights Templar. Martha and George Washington are to be there in costume and will also lead the grand march.

The committee has declared itself in favor of preparedness and has arranged to successfully care for the large number expected. Those who do not attend will certainly miss a good time.

SUCCESSFUL INSTITUTE HELD HERE MONDAY.

The County Farmers' Institute held Monday in the Baptist church was a success in every respect—attendance, program and interest throughout.

The program was carried out practically as previously arranged by the local manager, A. A. Clapp, with Stephen Pearl of Belleville, county president, presiding. A fine address was given by State Speaker Scully of Illinois, and able papers by H. B. Clark of this locality and W. D. Hunt of Niles. Local participants in the discussion were M. N. Johnson, Floyd Northrop, J. W. Weaver and David Gage.

The issue, furnished by the Niles State Chapter, Mrs. Eklund and Mrs. Griffin was excellent, as were refreshments by Mrs. Helen Bradley and Mr. Gage. The debate in Northville High school auditorium was highly interesting.

Hen. H. R. Patton of Lansing spoke both afternoon and evening. Mr. Scully, Mr. Gage and Sam Mice and Irving Linn, the time allotted to them.

Auction Sale.

The sale of the Wolfe household goods, all nearly new, will take place in the Blackman house on West Douglas street at 2 p. m. Saturday. M. H. Brown, auctioneer.

Wm. Holzk is to have an auction sale Tuesday, February 22, on his farm 2 miles south and 3 miles west of Northville, commencing at 10 o'clock sharp. The sale will include a large dairy herd, horses, hogs and poultry besides farm implements, hay and grain. Frank J. Boyle, auctioneer.

On Thursday, February 24, Mrs. Frank Miller will sell at public auction on the premises, 1 mile south of town, 13 milch cows, horses, hogs, farm tools, etc., at 10 o'clock it commences, and hot lunch at noon. Frank J. Boyle, auctioneer.

Another big auction sale will be that of E. J. Kellogg on Saturday, February 26, on his farm 3 1-2 miles east of Salem and 2 miles west and 1 mile south of Northville. Frank J. Boyle will auction off the horses, cows, hogs, grain and tools, beginning at 10 o'clock, with noon luncheon.

Wm. F. Witt will sell his farm stock and tools at auction Tuesday, February 29. Cows, hay and grain, horses and tools will be included in the sale. The sale begins at 10 o'clock with hot lunch at noon. Frank J. Boyle, auctioneer.

M. L. Smith will have an auction sale on Friday, March 3, on the Will Toussy farm, 2 miles east of Salem, commencing at 12:30 o'clock. Horses, cows, wagons, farm tools, harness, etc. Frank J. Boyle, auctioneer.

On Tuesday, March 7, Louis Balko will sell his farm stock including 54 head of cattle, a number of horses, hogs and a quantity of farm tools at auction on the farm 2 miles east of Northville, on the 5-point road. Frank J. Boyle, auctioneer. Sale commences at 9 o'clock with lunch at noon.

I am not a traveling photographer. I hope to get your picture business year after year. Therefore if I come to your home to make portraits, these pictures must be kept and stay right. C. E. WILSON, Photographer, Northville, Mich.

MICHIGAN STATE NEWS

NAB YOUTH IN SWAMP

Middleville Has Man-Hunt and Much Excitement

HASTINGS, Mich.—After being chased by officers in a motor car, Harvey Hammond, aged 21, of Tustin, was arrested recently near Middleville on the charge of passing a forged check for $18.50 upon Blake & Son. Another young man said to be Albert Faly, of Grand Rapids, escaped. The two first were arrested in the Middleville depot but broke away and ran.

Hammond was captured in a swamp after he had thrown away his overcoat. Excitement ran high in the village. Hammond says he and Faly met a stranger in Grand Rapids who told them how to make "easy money."

TAX BOOST FOR PUBLIC UTILITIES

Detroit Concerns Have Been Claiming Big Values.

LANSING, Mich.—Detroit public utilities may find themselves paying a decided increase in taxes. The state tax commission in its re-assessment of Wayne county values will take cognizance of recent appraisals filed with the state railroad commission as a basis for figuring valuations.

For instance, there are D. U. R. properties in Detroit on the assessment rolls of the city at an amount far less than the appraisal made by Dean M. Cooley of Air Harbor, at the time last fall when the corporation was fighting municipal ownership of its lines.

DECLARES DETROIT HAS NEGLECTED LAKE TERMINALS

Templeton Urges Detroit to Make Better Use of Water Transportation Facilities

With adequate public docking facilities shippers in great lakes ports could reduce their shipping expenses 90 per cent according to Alan A. Templeton, Detroit manufacturer and president of the Great Lakes Waterways Conference.

"Detroit made its first commercial mistake when it abandoned its waterways transportation facilities," said Mr. Templeton. "When the first railroad linked Detroit with New York we forgot all about our lake shipping advantages with the result that the only public dockage to be found along the entire Detroit river are the street ends suitable as the dumping of place."

Not Enough Terminals

"The Great Lakes Waterways conference was organized in Chicago a year ago to co-operate with the creek organizations in solving the problem of lake commerce. We have since found that 50 per cent of the freight of the United States is carried on the lakes. The saving in cost of lake shipping in a year is greater than the entire expenditures which have been made in improving these waterways in 60 years."

"The whole chain of lakes is pitifully lacking in terminal facilities. All the lake ports should combine to overcome this condition by the erection of municipal docks and wharves. Detroit might build a public dock, but it would be useless unless other ports did the same thing. The government aided great lakes shipping spasmodically, the rest must be done by the cities themselves."

"Each port should have a harbor commission and should make more general use of the water transportation facilities at its door. We are not so modern as some would have us believe, for we are 50 years behind in municipal docks. The trouble is we are suffering from railroads. We are railroaded together in our disregard of the waterways."

"While we in Detroit are confining our whole attention to production, we are forgetting our transportation facilities with the result that the first excess in business causes a congestion on the railroads, as has been shown recently. Why should there not be a canal, similar to the Erie canal, between Detroit and Chicago? Canals check railroad rates."

STATE PLACARDS WARN AGAINST FAKE MEDICINE

LANSING, Mich.—"If you are sick enough to take medicine, consult a physician. Advertising, not merit, sells patent medicines."

That is the warning placard that is being posted on tuberculosis clinics and headquarters in the state campaign against tuberculosis. Officials of the state board of health declare they will co-operate with the state dairy and food commission in an effort to drive patent medicine fakers out of the state.

MARQUETTE, Mich.—At the Marquette prison are confined 404 convicts, or 92 in excess of the number of cells. The corridors of both wings are so filled with cots that there is just room for the officers to pass between them.

VISIT PROSPECT ROCK

Travelers Like to Stand on Bank of Potomac for View.

Prospect Rock is a rugged, rude built tower on the Virginia side of the Potomac river between Washington and Great Falls, and is a viewpoint reached by many persons, though the number of pilgrims measured by the whole population of the capital is negligible.

No man's hand played any part in the building of this tower. It is older than any work of man. When the water which was all the Potomac supplied and bore a channel from the Appalachians in the south, it found its castle of rock, and other things coming to join the Potomac, it cut a deep and steep ravine on either side and have littered the slopes of these dark, basins with great boulders, all jumbled and heaped and strewn around as though some mad or sportive giant had there flung the contents of a house and then had thrown it down.

The country for miles around the rock is closely wooded. No matter how you approach the place from the land side, your way will be through woods where you can all the trees, wild shrubs and wild flowers of this latitude, and in the thickets, the dense woods and the relatively open woods nearly all the birds—permanent residents, summer migrants—may be found, with the result that this territory is a favored hunting ground for the numerous true naturalists and the more numerous near naturalists of Washington.

CUSHION QUIETS WHEEL

Rubber Device Eliminates Much Noise on Street Cars.

Elimination of the greater part of the noise that now accompanies the operation of street cars and elevated and subway trains is a prospect of the immediate future as the result of a new noiseless wheel described in Popular Mechanics. A street car equipped with wheels of this kind and recently subjected to test runs at Portland, Me., is reported to have run as noiselessly as an automobile.

The wheel is made of two sections and is in effect a wheel within a wheel. The inner section is fixed to the axle, while the outer section takes its position on the track. Between the two sections is a cushion of rubber of special composition which absorbs the vibrations caused by the grinding of the tire on the rail and by irregularities in the track, and it is this that gives the wheel its noiseless qualities.

George Washington KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

The Republic is Still Founded Upon the Rock of Human Liberty, On Which He Planted the Standard of Independence

It is meet and proper that the solemn anniversary of this February should be widely observed. George Washington's death caused a thrill of the deepest sorrow to run through the young nation, which he had aided so materially in creating. He had left his office, relinquishing all formal ties which bound him to the organization. He had not, however, severed the stronger ties which bound him to the hearts of the people whom he so faithfully represented. He had withdrawn to the privacy of his home, but he had not retired beyond the sympathies which his fellow countrymen and his fellow men in general had for him.

Consequently, the memory of him was known by the slow pace of his death, even though he had reached a ripe age when death was a not unexpected possibility. There was great mourning. The nation paused to do reverence to his memory. Strong men shed tears. There were on every side tokens of the deepest and most sincere grief. It was as though a beloved parent had been taken from the family circle, leaving a place which none could fill, however exalted, however wise, however admirable.

For George Washington was unique in his personality and his achievements, as well as in his opportunities. He stood apart from other men in his endowments, yet of them and among them, in his affections and sympathies and aspirations. His attitude toward his duty in his distressed winter campaigns when he suffered with the men without regard for the distinctions of rank, typified his posture toward the body politic. Men loved him as a friend, respected him as a counselor, revered him as a leader.

Such lives shed immortal influences over all their surroundings. Poor, indeed, is the nation which cannot point to some such figure and say: Here is our ideal, our type, or guide, our inspiration, and our champion! Poor is the man who cannot in his heart look up to some life which he feels instinctively is greater, purer, better than his, whose example leads him forward to higher thoughts and more exalted conceptions.

It is well that the forms of ceremony should fall into lines which most immediately leads the public thought to George Washington as a man. The Masonic bodies bring back to recollection through their solemn rites and earnest devotions at the tomb where the great President lies buried, a thought of Washington as a citizen, as a worker among men, a companion, a helper, an individual. The patriotic societies in their observations and meetings recall him as a soldier, the strenuous worker for the creation of a new nation, the leader of men, the commander, the genius of war, the planner of campaigns.

Beyond these special forms of commemoration there prevails to-day a deep sense among the people, aside from organization and orders, of the statesmanship of Washington, the wisdom of his words and acts, his contributions to the stability of the republic. And this great commonwealth feels, at such a time, and under such an impulse, a deeper sense of duty and a keener appreciation of its opportunities. The years which have passed since Washington's death have brought many radical changes, but his spirit is dominant in the institutions and the aspirations of the people, for the republic is still founded upon the rock of human liberty, upon which he planted his standard.

Health is Worth-Saving, and Some People Know How to Save It.

Many people take their lives in their hands by neglecting the kidneys when they know these organs need help. Weak kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering and ill health, but there is no need to suffer nor to refrain in danger. Use Doan's Kidney Pills—a remedy that has helped thousands of kidney sufferers.

The following statement leaves no ground for doubt. F. H. Crawford, harness maker, Main St., Milford, Mich., says: "My kidneys bothered me. The kidney secretions were irregular in passage and I had pains through my back and loins. When I used Doan's Kidney Pills, they helped me. The pains left and the action of my kidneys became normal."

We don't know much about the swimming and diving stunts done by Detroit society ladies at a recent exhibition at the Detroit Club, but the dozen or more who posed for their pictures for the "Saturday Night" robed in Amette Kellerman one-piece suits certainly showed they were A-1 as to form.

The Junior program last Tuesday morning consisted of a reading by Florence Hayes, a piano solo by Margie Putnam and a recitation by Flora Viller.

Mr. H. R. Pattergill, former State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Mr. Fisher, Wayne County Deputy Commissioner, visited the school Monday. Mr. Pattergill addressed the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth and Seventh grades. He also gave a fine talk to the Eighth grade and the High school.

The Seniors entertained the High school last week Thursday with readings by Truman Garfield, Martha Horton, J. D. Thompson and Hazel Parmelee. Supt. Misonar also addressed the pupils. The whole program was in celebration of Lincoln's birthday.

The debate held in the Baptist church Monday night was won by the negative side. The question, "Resolved, That Farmers are Justified in Mail-Order Trading" was very skillfully answered by both sides and altho the negative side won, the audience was unanimous in declaring that the debaters certainly upheld the High school. Mr. Pattergill also praised the debating society. He declared it to be one of the essential needs of any community.

O. H. P. Green, former postmaster at Orion, has announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for sheriff of Oakland county. He is under sheriff at the present time.

E. Lorenby's barber shop on the Main street of this village burned to the ground Sunday morning about 3 o'clock with all its contents. The building was owned by Dr. A. F. Holcomb.

The L. T. L. will meet next Sunday evening in the Baptist church. A temperance dialogue will be given by four Novi boys and six Shannons of Wisconsin will give a talk. The male quartet will render several selections.

Mrs. Laura Gaudin and family are able to be about town again after two weeks of absence with various ailments. Mrs. Gaudin and her son had influenza, the baby, pneumonia, and two daughters had measles. They are all well now.

The Church Workers' association entered a contest at dinner Saturday, at the home of Mrs. Frank Rice by Mrs. Rice, Mrs. Burton Mairs and Miss Lulu Dando. There was a large attendance, 20 men and women doing most of the work. Both divisions held business meetings after the dinner. A very pleasant afternoon followed.

Harrist Tubbs was born in Richmond township, Ontario county, N. Y. She moved with her parents to Novi, Oakland county, in 1834, traveling in a covered sleigh, being 17 days making the journey then. She crossed the Detroit river in a horse boat, and when they were crossed, her mother and the children sat on a chest while she stayed a few days to rest before finishing the journey to Novi. She was one of 11 children. Surviving are her aged husband, Jonah Tubbs, to whom she was united in marriage July 4, 1847. One daughter was born in 1849, who lives in Springfield, with whom she made her home for the past three and one-half years. On Dec. 15, 1915, she was taken to the Pontiac State hospital, where she died, Feb. 4, last. Surviving are, one brother, John A. Tubbs of Ovid, aged 83 years; one daughter, Helen S. Pennell of Springfield, 12 grandchildren, and 50 great-grandchildren. She was a faithful wife; a kind and affectionate mother, respected by all who knew her. Her hands were never idle. She told her grandchildren she came to Michigan when it was brand new, and saw the first brush burned on her father's farm in Novi.

The village council has ordered that several new voting booths be erected in the water works building for the coming election. This will greatly facilitate the business of voting.

Thirty-five friends gave Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sulkowski a great surprise Saturday evening by entering their home laden with eatables. A very enjoyable evening ensued.

Mark Batchelor died at his home in North Farmington Tuesday afternoon. His death was caused by severe burns received in a gasoline explosion last Friday. With his son, he mistook a can of gasoline for kerosene and lit a fire with it in the heater of a water tank on his farm. Both were seriously injured in the explosion which followed. Mrs. Batchelor, in helping the victims to extinguish the blaze, was herself badly burned and both she and the son are in a serious condition.

PERE MARQUETTE

Talk Number One

FOR some time I have had it in mind to tell you frankly a few important facts about Michigan's greatest transportation agency, the Pere Marquette Railroad—facts gleaned from personal experience, not so much from the standpoint of a railroad man but as the Court's Officer in charge of the property.

"My idea is that a great many of the troubles of railroad companies are due to misunderstandings and lack of information about the problems of railroading, which might be very properly given fully and freely to their patrons."

"You will be interested, I am sure, in knowing about the origin and growth of the system; why it is indispensable to the further development of the state; how it became involved in financial trouble; the problems of the Receivers in straightening out its affairs, the progress they have made and what they hope to accomplish."

"I am going to give you the benefit of my study of the situation and tell you what, it seems to me, ought to be done about it, both by the railroad and by the people of the state, so that both the state and the Pere Marquette can properly perform their full duties to each other."

"These are matters of importance, I think. If you think so, watch for the next talk. In the meantime we will be trying to give you service, and we hope we may have your support and patronage."

Many Northville People Are Afflicted With Annoying Kidney Pills.

Are you bothered with too frequent action of the kidneys? Are the secretions highly colored—do they contain sediment—burn and scald in voiding? These are all signs of kidney sickness and should not be neglected. Northville people recommend Doan's Kidney Pills. If your back aches and your kidneys are weak you will find no better recommended remedy.

Mrs. R. Cole, Horton avenue, Northville, says: "Different ones of my family have used Doan's Kidney Pills with splendid results. One of us had a lame back and soreness across the loins. Doan's Kidney Pills relieved the trouble. Another suffered from trouble with the kidney secretions and in that case, Doan's Kidney Pills also gave quick relief."

Price 50¢ at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Cole recommends. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.—Advertisement.

All the business men and many of the leading citizens of Northville have signed a call for a "Citizen's" caucus to be held February 21. Oakland county is dry now and the taxpayers now believe it is time for the business men to take hold of village matters and give the town a real business administration.

The forty-second annual meeting and banquet of the Oakland County Pioneer and Historical society is to be held Tuesday, February 22, in the Central Methodist church at Pontiac. A thoroughly interesting meeting will be enjoyed, to judge from the splendidly chosen and arranged program received at this office.

The Northville Woman's club has accepted an invitation to hold its "Patriotic Day," February 25, at Catermole's hall, with the W. R. C. ladies as hostesses. The regularly arranged program of the club will be given, and the entertaining society will add some appropriate features. The idea is timely, as the latter is the only woman's patriotic organization here.

Prof. T. J. Knapp has signed a 5-year contract with the Highland Park school board, as superintendent at a graduated salary, increasing from year to year until it reaches $5,000. Orion apparently has the cold-craze as badly as did Northville a few years ago. Six or seven meetings of different clubs were mentioned in last week's Orion Review.

The days have "lengthened," according to the usual schedule, and there is certainly no disputing the fact that the cold was "strengthened" several times—notably the first of this week.

There's lots of baking powder just as good as Royal or Calumet, for which the consumer doesn't have to pay for the advertising. For instance there's Queen Flake at Ryder's for 19¢ lb.

The Alseum management will conduct an amateur night at Plymouth Monday evening, February 23. Three acts by Northville people and an equal number by Plymouth people will be judged and awards given.

In order that those interested in the "Diamond from the Sky" serial being run on Tuesday nights at the Alseum theatre, may see next week's reels and attend the O. E. S. ball, the same evening, Manager Thompson will begin the show at 7 o'clock and run off the Diamond reels first.

Mr. and Mrs. Rommie Brace who have been residing at Northville for the past few months, have returned to Wayne and will reside with the former's grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Brace—Wayne Weekly. Mr. and Mrs. Brace occupied a part of Miss Zoe Little's house on Center street north.

The ability shown by the young people of our High school in their debate at the Farmers' Institute Monday evening proved every one of them a credit to their school, their teachers and to Northville. No better training can be given them than they are receiving along this line.

"Plymouth Fair" may again become an institution for this part of the country. The Plymouth Improvement association has declared in favor of the same, and a committee has been appointed to look up the matter of a suitable site for a fair, also to visit Howell and get pointers on the subject of holding successful ones.

Preparations are now well under way for the Library benefit entertainment, February 28 and March 1, and the participants are being drilled by Miss Johnson, director of the coming operetta. It is asserted by some who have seen "The Gypsy Rorer" that it even exceeds "Cherry Blossom" in some points, which, if true, is saying a great deal, as the former play is still alluded to as the prettiest home-talent show ever seen here.

Congressman P. H. Kelley has introduced a bill in congress providing for two cannon and fixtures for Northville, and hopes to be able to get the bill passed. The cannon have not yet been secured as the council proceedings would infer, but the congressman writes that he hopes to get the bill through, although sometimes it is not such an easy matter to do it quickly as there are hundreds of applications every year.

A recent report made by the Industrial Savings society of Detroit shows footings of $230,312.65, with deposits of $203,823.73. It is a mutual loan and investment company of which A. N. Kimmis, formerly of Novi, is at the head, and to whose able management the society's success is largely due. Mr. and Mrs. Kimmis are both well and favorably known in Northville where for years he has been active in the work of the Knights Templar organization.

BIRD MIGRATION AND ITS SECRETS

BIOLOGICAL SURVEY OF U. S.
DEPARTMENT CLEARS UP
QUESTIONS.

Birds of North Like to Spend
Winters in Gulf
States.

The biological survey of the department of agriculture is making known many of the secrets of bird migration that have only recently come to light after twenty-five years of study. Data have been contributed not only by its staff of ornithologists, but by more than 2,000 co-operating individual observers in North and South America and the West Indies. Altogether more than 500,000 observations are represented in the data in the hands of the survey.

Migration, the survey has developed, is not merely a matter of north and south movement, with a given degree of temperature. The widest differences as to migratory habits prevail among the feathered inhabitants and sojourners of the United States and Canada. At the extreme are such birds as the quail, that live and die without going ten miles from their hatching place, and at the other the arctic terns, that spend their northern summers near the north pole and other months of the year in the icy regions of the antarctic, 11,

Some birds that nest in the northern part of the United States and Canada are content to spend their winters in the gulf states, but more than a hundred species go to Central and South America for the winter season. The routes of the various birds to their winter feeding grounds vary widely, but by far the majority of the migrants avoid the land trip through Texas and the modified land trip by way of Cuba and the Lesser Antilles, and still a boldy across the 500 to 700 mile expanse of the Gulf of Mexico. The water flight is made in a single night even by the diminutive bun-

The wintering places of many of the migrants have been determined. As these their route of flight. Some of these birds are not content with their trip to Mexico or northern South America, but continue their flights beyond the equator to the tropics of Argentina. Some of the best known birds that nest in North America make their long winter journey to the south through the mountains from Canada to Peru. The New Zealand bunnings winter in Brazil and with them a good company of birds as the cliff swallows, night hawks and some thrushes. Blackpoll war-birds that nest in Alaska migrate 5,000 miles to the southern coast of the Caribbean sea. The record migration for land birds is probably held by the night hawks, whose northernmost representatives frequent Alaska during the nesting season and fly at the approach of winter as far south as Fargoway, more than 8,000 miles away.

PAWN ANIMALS NOW

Men Take Pet Dog to Get Money on Them

Among the curious industries of sources of livelihood in New York City is an animal pawnshop. As you take a walk to an ordinary pawnshop to raise money on it, you may take a walk to the animal pawnshop. Recently a man did this, getting $50 on a dog that was easily worth $500, the pawnbroker said. But he was a trick dog, which had been taught to open a door, and let himself out while leaving the pawnbroker in. D. Potter, who is the trainer for the New York Hippodrome, owns the shop.

He takes camels, lions, elephants and any animals. There are no charges for interest on the loan, the only charge being for the keep of the animals, among which at almost any time are dogs, monkeys, bears, goats, cats, coons, foxes, parrots, canaries. At one time he had forty trick donkeys in pawn. The profits arising from the charges for feed and care are enough to make the institution pay. Once he had a lion in pawn which broke his chain in the stable and went round around scared to death, and it was only after heroic efforts that they mustered courage to capture him. As a matter of fact the animal was a decrepit beast that had served his time in side shows and was anxious to get away.

It is the Brunler system a high pressure gas jet is ignited under the surface of the water in a steam generator of cast steel, and a cast iron boiler receives the liquid, the steam and the gaseous products of combustion. The fuel is coal tar oil. It is said to be a chemical manufacturer.

PRESIDENT APPEALS TO NATION TO "PREPARE"

Says He Can't Tell What A Day May Bring Forth And Nation Must Be Ready.

The President's Address Was Received With Frequent Applause.

Before starting on his western tour Mr. Wilson made two speeches in New York.

The first speech was delivered to a company of 1300 clergymen of all faiths.

"I can find no basis for peace but justice," he said.

"America has always stood for the doctrine that every nation has the right to decide its own future. That is America's only desire."

"We will only resent having our liberty interfered with."

"People in America do not respond to any sentiment of aggression. Our passion is for liberty."

"Peace does not mean inactivity. After all, peace dwells in the hearts of the people."

"These are very responsible days and in this tense atmosphere only truth should be uttered. We should not look at questions from a partisan viewpoint."

The Second Speech

The President's second address was delivered before 1300 members and guests of the Railway Business Association, in the ballroom of a New York hotel.

"How can Americans differ about the safety of America?" the President asked. This was the keynote of his speech—an appeal for united action without regard to party.

"If men in all the warring countries can put aside partisanship for the successful prosecution of war he asked, cannot Americans put partisanship aside for the successful prosecution of peace?"

The President frankly admitted that he had changed his mind on the subject of preparedness, and on the matter of a tariff board. "I should be ashamed of myself if I hadn't learned something in fourteen months." A year ago he had not looked upon preparedness as a vital or pressing question, but what he had learned had convinced him of the need. Personally he now favored "an immediately available national reserve" of 500,000 men.

Pittsburg Speech

At Pittsburg, Pa., the President said, among other things: "I would not be a true American if I did not love peace; but I know peace costs something."

"America does not desire anything other than freedom, justice and right conduct."

"One cool judgement is worth a thousand hasty counsels."

"The test of preparedness does not lie in Congress. It is going to be in the response of the young men to the call to volunteer and of employers to place no obstacle to their answering the call. . . . And I for one believe both the young men and their employers will do their duty."

At Cleveland

These sentences are taken from the President's speech at Cleveland, O.: "As the principle is grounded in every American that honor is dearer than life, so it is with the American nation. It prizes its honor above its life."

"You impose a double obligation on me. You ask me to keep you out of war, but to keep the name of the nation unstained. Do you not see that the time may come when to do both will be impossible?"

"You may count on my heart and my resolutions to keep you out of war, but you must be ready if you find that I cannot do so."

"These are solemn things I say to you. I don't know what a single day might bring forth."

"I don't want to leave you with the impression that I know of any particular danger. . . . I know we are daily treading amongst the most intricate dangers."

The Spirit of '76

"Most emphatically do I dread and abhor war, but I'd rather see all my boys in their graves than have them flinch in their duty when the nation called." So said ex-President Roosevelt in an address delivered to thousands in Brooklyn.

How General Washington Died

Story of His Last Days Told by His Secretary. Succumbed to a Cold Resulting From Exposure in a Storm. Desired That Physicians Let Him Die Quietly.

GEORGE WASHINGTON died at Mount Vernon, Va., on the night of Dec. 14, 1799. His death followed a brief but painful illness of but two days, and was due to a cold which he contracted by exposing himself to a severe snowstorm on Dec. 12. Gen. Washington had retired from the Presidency giving place to John Adams, two years and a few days more than ten months before. Though actually engaged in the improvement of his estate to the time of his death, he was when he died commander of the forces of the United States, with the rank of Lieutenant-General, having accepted that trust at the urgent request of President Adams in the preceding year in order to reorganize the army in anticipation of a war with France. The cold which resulted in Washington's death was contracted while he was riding over his estate directing some of the improvements. A cold northeast storm, accompanied by snow and sleet, overtook him and continued for nearly six hours. Throughout the greater part of the storm Gen. Washington rode about protected by only a great coat. When he returned to the house in the afternoon, according to Col. Tobias Lear, his secretary, he was wet and a considerable quantity of snow and ice covered his hair. He developed a hoarseness that evening, but nevertheless read aloud to his family from the papers that had that day arrived from Philadelphia. He declined to take any medicine for his cold, replying to Col. Lear's request for him to do so by saying: "Let it go as it came." At a few minutes after 2 o'clock the next morning, which was Friday, Dec. 13, he awakened Mrs. Washington and told her that he had no more to live. He would not consent to calling medical aid until daylight, when he was so ill that he could hardly speak. Dr. James Craik, of Alexandria, the family physician, was hastily summoned and arrived after the General had been bed by one of his overseers by the name of Rawdon. Dr. Craik reached Mount Vernon shortly before noon and at once summoned Dr. Elisha C. Dick, of Alexandria, and Dr. James Brown, of Port Tobacco. The three physicians remained at Mount Vernon with Gen. Washington until his death.

The account of the events immediately attending Washington's death was written by Col. Lear, and is as follows: "About 5 o'clock Dr. Dick came again to the bedside. The General said to him: 'Doctor, I am tired, but I am not afraid to go. I believed from my first attack that I should not survive it. My breath cannot last long.' Between 5 and 6 o'clock Dr. Dick and Dr. Brown came into the room and went with Dr. Craik to the bed. When Dr. Craik asked him if he could sit up in the bed, he held out his hand and raised him up. He then said to the physicians: 'I feel myself going. I thank you for your attentions, but I pray you to take no more trouble about me. Let me go quietly. I cannot last long.' About 10 o'clock he made several attempts to speak to me before he could utter a word. At length he said: 'I am just going. Have me decently buried and do not let my body be put into the vault in less than three days after I am dead. I bowed assent, or I could not speak. He then looked at me again and said: 'Do you understand me?' I replied: 'Yes.' 'This will,' said he."

These were Washington's last words, for he gave a few moments later in an interval of ease from his pain without a struggle or a sigh," says Col. Lear.

The burial took place at Mount Vernon on Dec. 18. Gen. Washington's body was attended to its resting place in the old family vault by a detachment of cavalry, another of infantry, a military guard of honor, and the members of a Masonic lodge to whom the General had belonged. Besides these were his friends and relatives, six colonels of the army. The Rev. Thomas Davis read the church services and the Masons also read their services. Both ceremonies took place at the vault, while from a schooner at anchor on the Potomac minute guns were fired. Lord Fairfax was among those in attendance.

In a small pamphlet entitled "Anniversaries," a reprint from the American Historical Register of February, 1895, and published by Isaac Myer, is a treatise on the subject of anniversaries in general, and an investigation concerning the anniversary of Washington's Birthday.

Mr. Myer, who is also the author, advocates the changing of Washington's Birthday from Feb. 22 to Feb. 11, and in support of his proposition adduces evidence that Washington was born on Feb. 11, nevertheless admitting that Washington did not attain his legal majority until Feb. 22, 1763, new style, by virtue of the act of Parliament under George II, sometimes called the Lord Chesfield act.

This act, the author, however, claims does not change the birthday of George Washington, being by no means retroactive.

In the family Bible, George Washington's birthday is recorded as having been "The 11th day of February, 1731-32," and this is without doubt the day observed by him and his family after the act mentioned had been passed.

A letter of the Count de Rochambeau is placed in evidence, which reads:

"Newport, February 17, 1781. "Yesterday (Sunday) was the anniversary of our Excellency's birthday. We have put off celebrating that holiday till today, by reason of the Lord's day, &c."

The celebration referred to consisted of a parade of French troops, firing of a salute, and suspension of labor. The letter elicited the following reply:

"The flattering distinction paid to the anniversary of my birthday is an honor for which I dare not attempt to express my gratitude, &c."

The independent Gazette on the New York Journal Revisited, of Tuesday, Feb. 12, 1874, No. 3111, quotes from the New York Gazette of Feb. 11, 1784, an article signed Eliza, which says among other things:

"To contribute to the hilarity of a day which, I hope, will be annually observed, I herewith send you a song made in this city for the entertainment of a select number of Whigs who had assembled according to their usual custom, to celebrate the birthday of George Washington, Feb. 11, 1784."

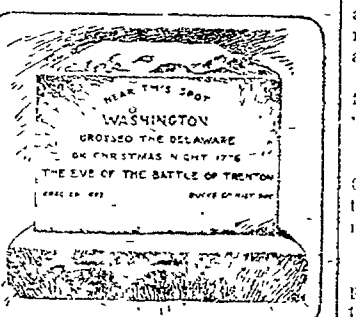

The Pennsylvania Packet of Philadelphia Thursday, Feb. 17, 1784, says: "NEW YORK, Friday, Feb. 13 - Wednesday last being the birthday of His Excellency General Washington the same was celebrated by all true friends of American Independence and Constitutional Liberty, with that hilarity and merriment ever attendant on the sons of freedom."

From the same newspaper Tuesday, Feb. 26, 1784, it appears that even in Virginia, Washington's native State, Feb. 11, 1784, was observed.

RICHMOND, Va., Saturday, Feb. 14 - Wednesday last, being the anniversary of His Excellency Gen. Washington, was celebrated here, with the usual demonstrations of joy."

The author concludes by saying: "There are doubtless many other statements of similar celebrations on Feb. 11, for such were universal throughout the United States during Washington's lifetime. When and why the celebration was changed to Feb. 22, we have not yet ascertained. Owing to this change many of the biographers of Washington have stated that he was born Feb. 22, 1732, which is clearly incorrect. Why not celebrate the day Washington sanctioned as correct during his lifetime, and which there is no warrant for ever changing, Feb. 11, the true and actual-named day of his birth?"

The Mystery of Sally

By CHARLES SLOAN REED. Copyright, Page Newspaper Service.

Sally was a hired girl, the servant of a family in the city. She had been thirteen months there. But we had heard that at last we had found a treasure. Sally was an emerald green leuciscope repository of amusement which she furnished for our toady-wottery was something to command the admiration of the most callous brain-peddler of the day.

This aggregation of inventive genius had been purchased at a weekly installment of $4. Cheeilly, we should have made it $5 on demand, within a week after her arrival.

But Sally seemed to be devoid of the graft contamination and, indeed, she spent her money like a lord, more than half of her weekly pay going for gamblers, of one kind or another for the amusement of our little son. A car ride to the park each day for the pleasure of our baby formed one of her personal extravagances. Baby soon became so much attached to her that "mammy" was no longer interesting, except at certain periods during the day, and these periods Sally managed so cleverly that no disturbance came to the household serenity through her's impatient demands.

One thing soon became apparent. Sally had the going habit. She wanted to be away from the house more than half of the time, but, as our little one always came back from these little excursions in excellent spirits, and, having the harassing fears that baby might contract some of the many contagious or infectious diseases of childhood—such as measles, chicken-pox, whooping cough or some other horrid thing this habit of Sally was not at all inconvenient to the household.

Another thing which recommended Sally was the habitual neatness of her person, and what became an interesting mystery to us was the matter of how she could spend from $1 to $3 per week solely and unselfishly for the amusement of our little one, and dress herself with such taste on the remainder.

Finally we decided that Sally must be getting credit somewhere, and that we should raise her wages, in order that she might be enabled to meet her obligations.

But about this time I saw Sally emerging from a bank one day. I had been some distance away and had not served by her.

"Ah!" I exclaimed under my breath, who is borrowing of the bank?" The cashier of this bank was a particular friend of mine, and I determined to learn something of Sally's financial operations. This I had no trouble in doing, and soon learned to my amazement that Sally was no longer a hired girl, but a depositor, to the extent of $40 or $50 a week.

My wife and I held a consultation over the matter for the mystery had deepened. Why one who could indulge the daily extravagance of Sally, and yet deposit $45 per week, should hire herself out at a wage of $4 per week was amazingly mysterious—and yet, Sally was not a thief. Not the smallest item of anything of value had been missed from the house and no coins or bills ever were kept about the place.

So the mystery of Sally deepened. But notwithstanding this Sally was by no means the odds the best nurse we ever possessed, or ever could hope to have, and we determined that nothing should dispossess us of her services—no, not if it became necessary to raise her wages to $10 per week, which extravagance I could of course ill afford.

So Sally remained keeping up her usual program, only investing now means of amusement, each day how long we should have kept her. I do not now. But accident plays a greater part in the movement of human affairs and it was an accident which led to the separation of our Sally from us.

An employee from our mills had been seriously crushed in a draw coil, slon over on the East Side, and I had gone over to investigate the responsibility for the accident. This matter being soon concluded I was returning to the office when I met Jenkins, a friend of mine. Jenkins likes a fair, or a side show, performance better than anything, and the Last Side was noted for its attractions for fairs and showmen of one kind or another.

"Hello, old man," called Jenkins from across the street, "wait a moment." "I waited, and Jenkins came over. 'Do you know,' he began, 'I have found one of the smoothest artists in the show line down here that I've seen in a long while.' 'What's his class?' I asked. 'His animal tamer, and he has been playing to crowded houses here for the last six weeks. You want to see this, especially the afternoon performance, at which time he gives an extraordinary feature.' He was leading, and we soon came to the entrance way of a large tent, which occupied a portion of the arena usually taken up by the showmen. Outside were a number of big posters, announcing, both by word and illustration, the wonderful feats performed by the man inside, among them being one which was especially horrifying, and this being announced in big letters as: 'FARTING'.

the special afternoon feature. Jenkins had secured tickets and was hurrying inside.

Our seats proved to be in a good position, and we had not long to wait for the beginning of the show. The performer soon appeared in the caged arena, and the various features of the program soon were passing before us. Tigers, leopards and lions, one after another, had been introduced, and at last King Leo, a tremendous young second beside his master in the arena, "Now we get the star performance," whispered Jenkins.

The showman advanced to the front of the cage, where he opened a small wicket window.

"Now," he began, "if some mother in the audience will bring me her baby for a few moments, I will show you that Leo will hold the little one in his great mouth as tenderly as its mother can hold it in her arms. Trust me, some mother—your little one shall receive no harm what ever."

"We have only to wait a moment," declared Jenkins. "There is a young woman in the audience who furnishes the baby, each afternoon; and Torrell, the showman pays her $10 on the side after each performance."

"Horrors!" I exclaimed. "Add just at this moment the young woman arose from somewhere near the front and advanced, with the baby in her arms. I got one glimpse of them, and the next instant I was on my feet, though almost transfixed in my indignation. The woman was our Sally—our baby was our boy, I summoned trench enough to draw my revolver, and the man who was not afraid of the whole African jungle cowered before my aim. In the meantime I somehow reached the side of Sally, and saved the boy in my arms, allowing Sally to make a precipitate exit."

No doubt, she is working her scheme in some other city where Torrell is 'chowin' And we well we are requiring the services of a nurse anymore. Also, we are seriously thinking of calling our boy Daniel, the little one having been delivered from the lion's mouth, you know.

BOOSTS ARTESIAN FLOW

Centrifugal Pump Proves Solution of Water Supply Problem.

The use of a centrifugal pump for boosting the flow has proved a successful solution of the water supply problem in a city in North Dakota which depends on an artesian well some twenty years ago to a sandstone stratum 2,800 feet below the surface. The normal flow from the well is approximately 170 gallons a minute, or 24,000 gallons in twenty-four hours.

With the growth of the city it would deliver the required additional 100,000 gallons a day. To accomplish this a four inch single stage centrifugal pump was connected into the well pipe line at the level of the ground, and after considerable experiment a speed for the pump was found at which it would deliver the required additional supply. The effect of the pump is that of lowering the head against which the water must be lifted by the natural pressure, and is exactly the same as if the depth of the well had been decreased.—Popular Mechanics.

LARGER COMMUNITY INTEREST

Time was when roads were bad, the means of travel limited, and the average community did not include more than four square miles of uncleared forest lands with their mud roads. Then the church and the school at every other mile was a convenient necessity, and it was the center of the neighborhood's social and religious activity. Those were small communities with local interests. Those were days of independence, when close neighbors had to pool their interests in order to hold their own against the natural impediments to rural progress. As travel was limited, they had their places of worship right in their midst as were the schools. But we are beginning to feel that we have passed that state.

From all over the land there is going up a continual cry of "Save the country church." What can we do to get it back to its former place in the community life? But it can never be rescued. Its decline has been natural and not due to any artificial means. Plainly we have outgrown it. The little country church has served the purpose well in its day, but we feel that we need a larger, more centralized church and a handing together of communities for better mutual advancement and social welfare.

"We want to get in touch with better social and religious instruction. Our greatest strength lies in unity and by uniting a greater number of workers in a common cause we secure better results. The centralized school is coming more into notice each year on account of its greater efficiency and means of getting better results. The rural church is in no immediate danger of destruction. We are not losing faith in religious teachings if a careful consensus of opinion were taken we think we would be found as a people just as good as ever, if not a little better than ever. We aren't all bad. It just looks that way to a few calamity howlers. But our future growth and advancement lies in our ability to join forces and work in conjunction with other communities. We must have a larger scope and be able to come in touch with a wider range of workers. National Brotherhood and this being announced in big letters as: 'FARTING'.

GREAT BRITAIN GIVES UP

ABSOLUTE BLOCKADE PLAN

Decides Not to Risk Loss of Neutral Friendship

After the British newspapers had worked up a world-wide belief that Great Britain was about to make an "absolute blockade," not only of German ports but of neutral ports that might be used to import goods for Germany, it was announced in Parliament that Great Britain would do no such thing.

Sir Edward Grey, the Foreign Secretary, told the House of Commons that such a course would turn against Great Britain the sympathies of the neutral world. His arguments were so clear and convincing that when he had ceased speaking there was nothing left of the proposal and hardly anybody supported it.

Great Britain's decision not to attempt the "absolute blockade" is welcomed in this country because it removes a possible cause of serious trouble.

WILSON DEPICTS HEROES

Here is President Wilson's idea of a hero, expressed in a letter from him to Secretary Lane:

"The rescuer of the bureau of mines who braves the poisonous gases and saves a miner from death; the coast guard who at the peril of his own life saves passengers of a helpless vessel from death; the surgeon of the public scourge in its incipency; the engineer who succeeds in reducing the hazards of industry to its men, and the man who brings about better conditions of living among people I consider all types of the hero who will be best regarded in the near future."

ANOTHER USE FOR CONCRETE.

Fireproof Safes or Cabinets for Preserving Valuable Papers.

One of the new uses for concrete is safes or filing cabinets for storing valuable papers in offices and commercial houses. Its advantage over steel is that it is absolutely fireproof. A number of cases are upon record of papers being reduced to ashes in a steel safe which had apparently stood the heat without serious damage. But the high temperature had penetrated the walls and destroyed the papers within.

Concrete safes are not burglar proof, as they can be readily blown up, but they are much cheaper than steel. Their construction is not a simple matter, because they must have the minimum thickness capable of sustaining the bolts, hinges and locks in order that their weight may be as small as possible.

The fire at the Edison plant at East Orange demonstrated the feasibility of the concrete safe, as some papers left in concrete cabinets built into the walls were found in perfectly good condition. Concrete safes in small sizes are being made for the fireproof storage of deeds and other valuable documents. They are designed to be placed in side of the large steel safe supposed to be burglar proof.
