THIS BODY OF WATER IS NOT MAJESTIC, BUT PICTURESQUE BY LIFE

Many Boats are Moored Four Abreast Waiting for Business

Small two-decked steamers ply on the Seine, but it is a way through Paris. You can't see one over, unless it stops and it costs two sous (2 cents) to go from one end of the city to the other; a distance of perhaps eight miles, and then once outside the city walls, you pay two sous more.

The Seine river is narrow, dull green and slow moving, not majestic at all, but made picturesque by the life that surrounds it. In Paris it is bordered and romantic beauty combined with, together, its banks. Within the boats are also moored to its piers so many different kinds of existence-habits, hospitals, hotel houses, lodges, restaurants and lodges. People live half above, half below water, and in some places

LOOKS LIKE ROOSEVELT.

The Record cannot see any other nominee possible at the Chicago Republican convention than Theodore Roosevelt. There are several reasons—and very forcible ones too at that—for this. For instance, there are something like twelve other candidates for the big honor besides Judge Hughes and the Colonel. It is safe to say that those twelve will control the convention, and it is also just as safe to say that not one of the twelve will allow his votes to be thrown to Hughes or any other two-term man whereby they all would be eliminated for eight years which probably would mean forever. But with Roosevelt it is different. He would only hold office for four years, and that would mean one more look for the present aspirants.

Another thing that stands out very prominently right now is the Colonel's own popularity and his past record on being able to do things. The C. S. government's foreign affairs are at present in somewhat of a chaotic state, and the need of a strong man with enough diplomacy and punch to show the nations of the world we mean what we say, was never before felt quite so much.

But the real big argument for perhaps we should say the biggest argument of all—is the Bull Moose convention to be pulled off at the little town of Chicago at the same time that the G. O. P. pushes the button. The Mooseys will dominate Teddy and if the Republicans nominate Hughes or any other man, who'd you suppose will be the next president? It is safe to bet on a certain man from New Jersey.

Hughes is unquestionably a great man but he is hampered by being a supreme court judge right now. By having another candidate from his own state—Roosevelt, by the fact that all the other candidates are for themselves or Roosevelt, by the fact that the Bull Moose party has a candidate—Roosevelt. By the fact that under present conditions there's just about one man who under the circumstances the Republicans can nominate—Roosevelt; and only about one candidate they can be sure of electing—Roosevelt. No matter what you may think, from every point of view right now it looks like Roosevelt.

THE NEW AUTO TAX LAW O. K.
Some Detroit politicians are still yelling because the supreme court has said the new auto tax law is unconstitutional. It is really too bad that Detroit cannot run the whole state, or that Detroit isn't a whole state all by itself. "Millions taken from the tax rolls," they yell, and yet the records in the secretary of state's office at Lansing shows that of Detroit's 28,000 autos in 1915, but 12,000 of them were on the tax roll at all! As a matter of fact Detroit and Wayne county will be benefited by the new tax law, the only thing the matter is a bunch of politicians will have one less issue to howl about. Attorney General Grant Fellows is to be congratulated on his success in carrying the case through so successfully for the state.

Representatives of Milford's three Sunday schools recently held an important conference in a local harness shop. If there is any suggestiveness environment the committee should be able to hitch up in good shape for a pull together.—Northville Record.

Perhaps Brother Price can manage to forget the hold-backs—Milford Times.

Folk, who last year scouted the idea that the European war had anything to do with the abnormal rainfall, are beginning to think this spring that possibly there is something in the theory, since this season has so evidently started in to follow suit in the matter of superfluous moisture.

In the musical department of Detroit's Saturday Night, Ann Arbor is referred to as the big city's most important suburb. Perhaps A. A. feels the same way in regard to Detroit. She might, if only by virtue of owning one of the most important universities in the world.

According to the Town Criers correspondent of the Orion Review, some peculiar disease is making the cats bald-headed out that way. Can this possibly be the underhanded work of some hair-tonic manufacturer?

"Germans Loose Heavily" says a headline in that excellent paper, the Pontiac Press-Gazette. No doubt the opposing forces "lightened" correspondingly.

Mr. Scattergood is the new editor of the Ypsilanti Record. We have no doubt he will, too. It's a fine paper.

Parmalee has charge of the program. The admission is 10¢ for adults children free. The entertainment commences promptly at 8 o'clock, local time.

Clara Jones Moeren was born in the Township of Farmington, Nov. 7, 1874, and was married to M. J. Moeren, June 29, 1897. She leaves her husband and a daughter, Irene, 10 years old. She also left her father and mother and two brothers, Jud of Farmington, and Bud of Portiad, Ore. She had been ill for nearly two years everything being done for her that could be done. Friends who attended her funeral were: Mrs. Laker and children of Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Moeren's mother and his sister's husband and son, of Detroit. Rev. Gulien of Detroit, gave a short discourse and Mr. Lossier of Detroit sang two solos. Burial was in Redford Cemetery.

Quiet and Safe.

"Spends Quiet Day In Jail," observes a headline. One can be quiet in jail. There are no orchestras there that insist on playing in the palm room when one is trying to eat his dinner. And you can spend a whole day there without being in danger of being run over by a motorcycle.

Ridicule.

It is an immense blessing to be perfectly callous to ridicule; or, which comes to the same thing, to be conscious thoroughly that what we have in us of noble and delicate is not ridiculous to any but fools, and that, if fools will laugh, wise men will do well to let them.—Doctor Arnold.

Essence of Witt.
You cannot admire Witt in general, because the essence of Witt in that it is particular.—G. K. Chesterton.

May Day Story

(By Leo Wheaton.)
One upon a time there lived two children in a hill in some woods. Their names were Ruth and Harold. They loved the birds and squirrels and were fond of them.

One day Ruth said "It would be nice to make another May basket." So they began to plan how they would make it. Ruth said she had a pretty box and Harold said he had some blue crepe paper and some silver paper stars. Ruth said she would get some violets.

That night they sat in the corner of the room and every once in a while whistled at each other.

A knock came to the door. "Somebody has brought the children a May basket" said the mother, going to the door. How surprised she was to find her name on it. She said it was the prettiest she had ever seen.

THE MAY-DAY STORY.

(By Leo Wood.)

Today is the first of May. The grass is green and the flowers are out. The brook is clean and brisk. The leaves on the trees are coming out. The robins are singing gayly. A little girl came tripping by and looked into the brook. She saw the little fishes at their play. She picked some flowers and then she went home and told her mother.

The N. H. S. seems to have acquired the habit of playing extra inning games. Last Thursday, Belleville was defeated 7 to 6, after 11 innings of exciting baseball. Saturday, they were forced to take the short end of a 11 to 10 score with Fenton, after having played twelve innings. The features of the games were the pitching and hitting of Stimpson, the fielding of Whipple and Miller, Cole, Clark and Garfield and the hitting of Thompson and Lanning. Taken all-in-all, the team is much improved and we are looking forward to victories over both Dearborn and Milford this week.

The False Panel

Synopsis

Evan Bryant, a blind musician receives a call from the great pianist Trelowsky whom he worships, and the latter hires Evan to go with him and tune his piano.

"Today," he said, "I long for sight that I might know even better than do the generous man to whom I owe everything."

At the end of May, Orville took him and the little boy to his summer home in Cooncreek. Orville called it a "cottage," but it was far from short of a marble palace built directly on the lake with walls 12 feet high and long stone terraces projecting out over the sound.

Here they existed happily in an atmosphere of peace and love. Evan had time now to appreciate even more fully the lovely character of the man to understand why even his servants were so devoted to him that only death ended their service.

Evan had his piano there as in town and his suite of rooms where he might live as much at ease as he pleased while his tuning or composition.

But he was tired and the air was biting. Orville's talk, too, was good to listen to. He loved to hear the boy playing with his dogs.

The brightest year of the day, for all of them, had come to be the time when Orville and Bryant enjoyed themselves in one part of the long terrace and chatted long of many matters and art.

One day they sat there, gazing the small boy playing sport at the other end of the terrace. The girl was a bright red rose in the field of pink roses which would follow shortly.

"In such weather as this," he remarked, "that you'd think training of your health to be quite the main thing. But—"

"Evan, we're about to leave, but the woods were still up there."

And Orville, sitting on a high and rocky bank in their long and winding path, happened to be of the party who happened to be the last to leave. He said this, half-jokingly, half seriously, but he had wished to keep the company of Bryant, though the surprise of the master was evident in his eyes.

But the master was surprised to find that the old man was not with him.

Orville, the boy, was anxious about the return to the house at once. His servant, he was quick to say, at first took no notice.

Bryant was surprised. He turned his eyes to the boy, and then to the old man.

"Evan, we're about to leave, but the woods were still up there."

Orville, again, was anxious about the return to the house at once. His servant, he was quick to say, at first took no notice.

Trelowsky will never play again, I fear," he said.

Evan controlled his desire to ask a hundred questions in one breath.

"Is he ill?" he asked as calmly as he could.

The manager shook his head, forgetting that Evan could not see.

"He is dead," he replied in a low tone.

Evan gripped the edge of the piano.

He had not been mistaken then.

"How did he die?"

"He will never be known—it is better that it should not be. He was a foolish fellow, always getting into trouble with women. One of them, an actress, he was crazy about."

She cared for him, there was a ring of gold as large as a small egg with a cross set on it engraved thereon.

Athen—Some of the most important archaeological discoveries of the past generations have been made around the ancient city of Tiryns, which according to one legend, was built by Hercules. The walls of the city are believed to be Cyclopean, and earlier excavations there have unearthed some remarkable examples of Cyclopean architecture.

A number of workmen digging the Greek Agricultural School some 50 yards beyond the walls of the ancient city recently came upon some copper fragments, evidently of very early date. The work was promptly stopped and a guard placed over the spot until Prof. Aravantopoulos could be called from Athens to direct the excavation.

On the arrival of the eminent Greek geologist, the work was continued with the utmost care. The first discovery was a perfectly preserved spear, spear which was a copper tipped.

At Paddington Station there was a turn to Newton-St. Cyprus. Aravantopoulos found the town had been built on a hill rising out of the sea, and a large number of birds were seen flying over the town.

On the arrival of the eminent Greek geologist, the work was continued with the utmost care. The first discovery was a perfectly preserved spear, spear which was a copper tipped.

Aravantopoulos followed a large copper plaque, three copper handles, three rings, six iron spikes, copper bracelets and some fragments of Mycenaean pottery.

The copper could not be full of earth and Prof. Aravantopoulos said it out carefully. Here he made his first find—one golden head, eye, teeth, belonging to a valuable collar.

FIVE HUNDRED GOLD BEADS

Athen—Some of the most important archaeological discoveries of the past generations have been made around the ancient city of Tiryns, which according to one legend, was built by Hercules. The walls of the city are believed to be Cyclopean, and earlier excavations there have unearthed some remarkable examples of Cyclopean architecture.

A number of workmen digging the Greek Agricultural School some 50 yards beyond the walls of the ancient city recently came upon some fragments, evidently of very early date. The work was promptly stopped and a guard placed over the spot until Prof. Aravantopoulos could be called from Athens to direct the excavation.

On the arrival of the eminent Greek geologist, the work was continued with the utmost care. The first discovery was a perfectly preserved spear, spear which was a copper tipped.

At Paddington Station there was a turn to Newton-St. Cyprus. Aravantopoulos found the town had been built on a hill rising out of the sea, and a large number of birds were seen flying over the town.

NEGROES TO ESTABLISH BIG COLONIES IN KANSAS

Committee Dishes With Railroad for Purchase of 20,000 Acres at Low Price

Topeka, Kan.—Negroes from all over the United States soon will establish a colony exclusively for negroes in western Kansas.

A committee is now dealing with the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad, for the purpose of 20,000 acres of land, with an option on another equal area, on which to establish the proposed colony.

M. B. Brooks, editor of the Hutchinson Blader, Negro paper; Thomas Owens, and N. H. Jelz of Hutchinson, and T. W. Gaughan of Pratt are the organizers of the plan for the colony. They have had assurances of 800 negroes in all parts of the country to move to the new colony on all occasions for the western Kansas land can be made available.

Negroes now living in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati, Washington, and several southern cities have joined the organization.

At present the idea of the colony is to have negroes live in the same way as they do in the cities, to have a number of farms, and to have a school, hospital, and other buildings.

BOB RUTTER IS OUT FOR AUDITOR

DETROIT'S COMMON COUNCIL PRESIDENT AFTER GUTTMAN'S SCALP.

Former Redford boy has strong backing for county job.

Robert Rutter, president of the common council of Detroit announces himself as candidate for county auditor against Wm. Guttmann. Rutter was for years a resident of Redford town and will be remembered hereabouts as an old time ball player. He is a splendid fellow, well qualified for the place, and above all his election will tend to break the old political ring in the county auditor's office that has been running things so long. It is a good time now, said one of Northville's leading business men this week, "to bust up the job holders trust in the county building."

Mr. Rutter is well known in the county part of Wayne and is one of the most popular men in Detroit. He has a big following among the influential citizens of that city and it should not be difficult with him to win the nomination with ease.

FORMER NORTHLILLE WOMAN KILLED BY AUTO.

Mrs. W. H. Cheever died at St. Mary's hospital in Milwaukee, Wis., last week Friday, from injuries received in an automobile accident. She was the wife of Walter Cheever, professor at the Milwaukee Normal school. Both were formerly Northville residents, Mr. Cheever being principal of this school in 1882 and 1883.

They were crossing the street in front of their home in Milwaukee when a neighbor backed his car across the road in order to enter a garage.

Mrs. Cheever was knocked down and the car passed over her. She was rushed to the hospital but her injuries were so serious that she died early the next morning.

No blame is attached to the driver of the auto.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Elizabeth Speyer was born at Bonn, Rhinepfalz, Germany, April 14, 1825. Her father was Friedrich Heintzel and she was one of a family of three girls and three boys, all of whom came to this country, except two of the brothers. She was the last of the family.

She was married to Michael Speyer at Darmstadt in 1847, where their two children, Michael and Catherine, were born. The father is Mr. George Gibson of this place, who with three grandchildren survive her.

Mrs. Speyer came to this country with her husband in 1863, landing at New York and later coming to Michigan, where they spent the remainder of their lives.

M. Speyer died in 1900 and lies in rural Hill cemetery, where Mrs. Speyer was interred.

Mrs. Speyer was confirmed in the German Lutheran church at the age of fourteen.

Funeral services were held from the late home Thursday, May 11, Rev. Stange of Farmington officiating.

YOUNG MAN DEAD.

JUST SOME SUGGESTIONS.

When you walk along the street and see the gutters strewn with refuse, it looks bad.

When you see broken glass around under foot it is pure negligence, and is both bad and dangerous.

When you see vacant property littered with debris of every nature, it too, looks bad—it is offensive to the mind as well as to the eye.

When you see a back yard littered with the accumulation of months and of years, it looks worse than bad.

HURRAH! RINGLING DAY ALMOST HERE

BIG CIRCUS AND GREAT SPECTACLE OCCUPY FIVE TRAINS CRAMMED WITH WONDERS.

The big event for which the youngsters and grownups have been waiting is drawing near, for Monday and Tuesday, May 29 and 30 Ringling Bros.

circus is in exhibit afternoon and night in Detroit. Expectancy never ran so high before and it is likely that this district will send a large delegation to feed the elephants.

Unusual interest centers around the gigantic spectacle, "Cinderella," with which the famous showmen are this season opening their wonderful main program. "Cinderella" is probably the best loved of all fairy tales and to see it produced with more than 1000 persons, hundreds of dancing girls and glorious pageants, indeed gives promise of making "childhood's golden dreams come true."

In the same great tent, will come the marvelous circus numbers in which 400 men and women performers, scores of trained animals and a galaxy of special features are introduced.

The majority of the acts are entirely new to America, the Ringling Bros. having secured the pick of those European performers who have been obliged to seek engagements in this country because of the war.

The all-new street parade will take place each day morning.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

For the third week of his limited engagement at the Garrick theatre Detroit, Vaughn Glaser has rejected a new drama in comedy of whimsy, charm and action, "Along Came Ruth."

The idea is that Olga, Ruthie, was swimming in the soft summer sunshines.

There hadn't been anything more exciting than a trade-in cow in a month. Then "Along Came Ruthie" was needed a job very badly, so when into the shop of the old ugly furniture dealer,
