CHILDREN TO GIVE FOLK DANCES AND EXHIBITION DRILLS AT THE MICHIGAN STATE FAIR, SEPT. 4-13

G. W. DICKINSON, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, announces that children will again present folk dances and exhibition drills at the State Fair next fall. The pantomime drills of the boys and girls, garbed in their costumes of olden days, were the attractions of Children's Day. Mr. Dickinson says that the children will hold the stage on four different days during the fair.

LELAND'S CHANCES FOR GOVERNOR LOOKING GOOD

DICKINSON'S WITHDRAWAL AIDS LELAND'S CHANCE.

LATTER WILL NOW RUN FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR AGAIN.

Ex-Secretary of State Fred Martin, late of Detroit and Lieut. Gov. L. B. Dickinson of Charlotte have announced their withdrawal from the governorship race on the Republican ticket.

This clears the political atmosphere to a considerable extent and adds by a large percent to the chances of Frank B. Leland, Wayne county candidate.

Mr. Dickinson will again run for Lieutenant Governor and appeal for the anti-saloon vote. With four other candidates in the field he is at the present time the best bet. The other candidates are H. H. Y. Ogg and David Henneman of Detroit, Dr. Frank P. Bohn of Newburg, one of the best known business men and politicians in the Upper Peninsula, and Judge W. D. Gordon of Midland.

The candidates for Governor on the Republican ticket for the primary nomination are now Frank B. Leland of Detroit, Albert Sleeper of Bad Axe, Garret J. Dickma of Holland, Washington Gardner of Kalamazoo, and S. Welleslaus of Grand Rapids.

Mr. Leland is a twice graduate of the U or M (law and lit) and has for ten years been a member of its board of regents. He is also president of the Detroit United Savings bank. Mr. Leland is probably best known as the leader in Michigan in the fight against tuberculosis and was the first in the United States to establish open air schools for children in the battle against the "White Plague."

Candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor.

The fight for the nomination is now narrowed down to Mr. Leland and Mr. Sleeper. Mr. Leland some time ago announced himself in most emphatic terms as favoring the strict enforcement of the liquor laws. He is a temperate man himself and a worker in philanthropic circles of much prominence.

Mr. Sleeper is also a prominent business man and banker and was for years' state treasurer. The Michigan brewers' association and liquor interests have apparently been very active in Mr. Sleeper's behalf as against Dickinson whom they did not want nominated for governor. The brewers' vote in Michigan is heavy and added much to Mr. Sleeper's strength but now "the fat is in the fire." Dickinson has gone in for the nomination of Lieutenant Governor where the liquor interests wanted him least of all.

Another thing has happened in Detroit that the liquor interests were not looking for. They had an idea there would only be one candidate for mayor on the Democrat ticket and ballots could be called for of political parties as best suited their wishes. Now all is changed. There are two candidates for mayor on each ticket and the vote-swapping business will be dispersed with.

Mayor Marx—who by the way has made the best Detroit ever had—had opposition for the nomination and the Democrats evidently figured that Judge Connolly would have no opposition for the Democratic nomination. Thus you see they could vote the Republican ballot and thereby defeat Marx at the primaries with the weaker candidates which would more likely assure Judge Connolly's election. But as said above this plan went by the board at the last moment another prominent democrat, Charles Hampton, threw an opposition hat in the ring for the nomination against Judge Connolly.

In the race for Lieutenant Governor Dr. Frank P. Bohn of Newburg is also to be reckoned with. He is a very popular man and a vote getter and if he can bring down with him the Upper Peninsula support it will be a nucleus of no mean strength. Wayne will support Messrs. Ogg and Henneman but if the vote is to be divided it will weaken either as against Dickinson or Bohn.

Anyhow it is a merry race right now and the promises are it will grow warmer every day from now until August 29.

CAME TO A FITTING CLOSE LAST FRIDAY

The lecture last Friday night by Byron C. Platt closed the weeks Chautauqua with a successful social entertainment and by a little compromising between the Central and local committees the financial end was taken care of nicely.

The attendance and attitude which was shown by the public, in spite of the high temperature, during the week, was evidence personified that the patrons of the Chautauqua would be lost if the Chautauqua were to be discontinued in the future.

The subject "Dead or Alive" chosen by Mr. Platt might have been given in the form of a test for the people of Northville. However, it was found that they, together with the local committee are very much alive, and all will have the opportunity of attending a Chautauqua next year.

NOTICE

The adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Northville Loan & Building association will be held in the Library rooms Friday evening, August 11, 1916, at 8 o'clock.

STATE FAIR TICKETS ON SALE HERE

Opportunity will be given the people of Northville and vicinity this year to again buy their state fair tickets at reduced prices through the office of this paper. The number who did so last year was very large and an aggregate saving of many dollars was the result. The tickets will be on sale up to Sept. 1, and at the same price as before—35 cents or three for $1.00. The management is promising a better fair than ever for this season.

WAYNE SHOULD BE LOYAL.

With but one candidate in the field for governor from Wayne, Frank B. Leland is seemingly entitled to the support of every loyal republican in the county. He is in every way eminently fitted for the place. As a farmer's boy living near Holly he worked his way through the U. of M. graduating both in the law and literary departments. He still owns and operates the farm over in Oakland county where he was born. He has made a success of savings bank business and was the first to establish a 4 per cent bank in Detroit. He has been affiliated with nearly all of Detroit's charity organizations and has made a national reputation as the pioneer in establishing open air schools for tubercular afflicted children. There is no reason why Wayne should not be loyal to its home candidate.

OBITUARY.

Clifton Covert whose death from heart prostration was mentioned in last week's paper, was born in New Hudson, Mich., March 28, 1878, coming with his parents to Northville when about seven years of age. He spent the years between that time and young manhood in this village, going from here to take up work in Detroit where he has lived for sixteen years, the last five years of which he was employed with the Stuebaker Co. until on Friday July 21, he suddenly succumbed to the excessive heat and fatigue of the days work. He was of a retiring nature and his quiet ways endeared him to those who knew him best and he in turn, prized with deepest appreciation, the friendship of his friends.

He is survived by two sisters, Mrs. M. L. Parker of Lansing and Mrs. W. C. Adams of Detroit, who keenly mourn his loss.

IMPROVEMENT AT THE LIBRARY.

The ladies of the Library board have made a fine improvement on the property by having erected an iron flag-staff, properly equipped for the display of the beautiful big American flag presented the library by the W. R. C. a few years ago. There has heretofore been no convenient way to have the stars and stripes in evidence when occasion demanded, but now the trustees can have Old Glory aloft whenever they please at the institution to which they devote so much of their time, labor and thought in the effort to make it a power for good in the community. The work of preparing and setting the flag staff was done by Carpenter & McCordle in a manner highly pleasing to the ladies of the board.

CARD OF THANKS.

I wish to thank the Baptist Ladies aid, the Westminster Guild girls and all other friends for the beautiful flowers sent and the kindness shown me during my recent illness.

MRS. ROY AMBLER.

DEVICE MEASURES HEAT OF STARS

LATEST MACHINE HAS MOST DELICATE THERMO ELECTRIC BATTERY

Extensive Experiments are Conducted by U. S. Officials

Perhaps the most delicate thermo electric battery ever constructed is that used by the W. W. Coblentz, a physicist of the United States bureau of standards, in the radiation pyrometer with which he has succeeded in measuring the heat that reaches the earth from 125,000,000 miles away.

The distinctive thing about the pyrometer devised by Mr. Coblentz is its extreme delicacy, which makes it sensitive to a change in temperature of a millionth of a degree. With the aid of a three foot reflector, his instrument will receive the radiation of a candle fifty two miles away.

The vital part of the instrument is a thermal battery made by joining two wires of different metals—either platinum and silver or bismuth and lead—and covering the junction with a heat absorbing surface painted with lamp black. The wire used is so fine that it can scarcely be seen without the aid of a reading glass, and the absorbing surface is about the size of a pinhead.

This battery is inclosed in a glass cell with a window of fluorite. A vacuum is maintained in the cell, and it is placed in a telescope so that the light of the star to be observed is focused upon the fluorite window.

The tiny battery of the thermo couple, which is inclosed in an armor of soft Swedish iron to protect it from extraneous magnetic influence. Thus the amount of current generated in the thermo couple by the heat of the star is measured by the galvanometer. Within the galvanometer, a mirror smaller than a pinhead is suspended upon a fine thread of spun quartz. Some distance from the front of the window in the galvanometer a scale is set up with a strong light upon it. This scale is reflected in the little mirror, which is observed through a microscope. There is a tiny dot upon one side of the face of the mirror. The generation of current in the thermo couple causes the quartz thread to twist, turning the mirror from side to side, and this deflection is measured upon the reflected image of the scale.

Dr. Edmund C. Hovey of the American Museum of Natural History has recently returned to New York after completing the first expedition undertaken with the aid of the Helprin expedition fund established last year in memory of Angell Helprin. In view of the late Prof. Helprin's well known work in connection with the eruption of Mount Pelee, it was especially appropriate that the first work under the fund should have been an examination of the active volcanoes of the Lesser Antilles. Dr. Hovey, visited Guadeloupe, Martinique and St. Vincent.

In the American Museum Journal he reports the present condition of the famous volcanoes in those islands. From the cone of Mount Pelee considerable steam is still issuing, though much less in volume and lower in temperature than at the time of Dr. Hovey's previous visit in 1903. The activity of the volcano has steadily diminished since the eruptions of 1902-04, and apparently there is no present danger of recurrence. On the windward side of the volcano new vegetation has fully established itself, and even the forest is being renewed. The famous spine of St. Vincent, which is more than 600 feet above the cone, appeared nearly ten years ago. One of the sides of the ruined city of St. Vincent (Sergeant's) now is being built up by the hundreds of people who have recently returned to the island.

Moreover, they are very cheap, and when the new material costing only 60 cents per meter. The inventor is Prof. J. T. Aubrey and he states that they are peculiarly suited for conductors of petroleum and gasoline as well as water, which obviously limits their use.

GETS SWORD AFTER A HALF CENTURY

Maine Captain, in Gloom on Last Day of Civil War. Now Happy at 80.

Lewiston, Maine—For the first time in fifty one years Capt. Albert Maxfield, 80 years old has the sword which he carried in the civil war first as lieutenant and then as a captain in the 11th Maine Volunteer Infantry. The sword was lost on the last day of the war—the day that Lee surrendered to Grant at Appomattox.

was instrumental in stopping Lee's famous charge at Appomattox, on April 9, 1865, the day of the surrender. The 11th Maine Infantry was in the rear of the Federal cavalry, which was being pushed back, so that when Lee's charge came the 11th was entirely surrounded on the top of a hill. The soldiers sought to avoid capture by fleeing, and Captain Maxfield leaped over a nearby fence, sword in hand, landed in the open arms of a Confederate cavalryman and was made a prisoner.

The sword disappeared on the confusion of the capture. The brigade of Lee's cavalry which made that charge did not surrender, but on the surrender of Lee disbanded and went home, and Captain Maxfield was set at liberty. He went to the scene of the cavalry charge and searched for the sword, but failed to find it.

He reached a field hospital at Farmville, Va., and when he saw men lying there who had lost an arm or a leg or an eye he said to himself, "What's the loss of a sword?" and gave up the search for it. There was a certain amount of sentiment attached to it, however, for he had used it during the campaign of 1864 and 1865 and with it had saluted Lincoln and Grant.

The sword had a scabbard blade made by Claude Claiborn, the German sword maker and was mounted by Schuyler, Hartley and Graham. Engraved on the inside of the handle was the following:

"Lt. A. Maxfield, Eleventh Maine Volunteer Infantry."

A few weeks ago it item appeared in a Philadelphia newspaper about a sword belonging to N. A. Maxfield, which had been taken from a Federal officer on the field at Appomattox and had been hanging over a mantel at the home of John Davis Arbuckle near Lewisburg, W. Va., ever since.

The item was clipped from the paper and sent to Mrs. Ella Moore of Lewiston, Maine, by relatives, who knew that Mrs. Moore had relatives of the name of Maxfield. They thought she might know of Captain Maxfield's whereabouts, but she did not. Mrs. Moore had an article about the sword published in a Lewiston paper, and it was from this that Capt. Maxfield learned about it.

He got into communication with Mr. Arbuckle and the latter invited him to visit him in Virginia.

When he got to the recovery of the sword and it appeared in the Philadelphia paper read as follows: "Lt. A. Maxfield, Eleventh Maine Volunteer Infantry, during the civil war, has been waiting fifty years to return a sword which he captured from a bluecoat during the late unpleasantness. Mr. Arbuckle took the sword from a Yankee officer in the General Lee's last charge at Appomattox, April 9, 1865. The sword engraved on the weapon is N. A. Maxfield, Eleventh Maine Volunteer Infantry."

The engraving of "Lt." had become so worn Captain Maxfield found on recovering the sword, that it looked like an engraved N.

Money From Violets and Fruit. Roses, carnations and violets have seen the greatest advance in flower culture. The annual sale in this country is from $6,000,000 to $7,000,000 worth of cut roses, which represents from 100,000,000 to 125,000,000 flowers.

THE BOYS ARE ON THE BORDER — BUT —

THE GIRL IS ON THE JOB

Women of Carlisle, Pa., are proud of Miss Myra Shearer, sixteen years old, a graduate of the high school, who gave up her studies for the time being and with consummate skill for the last three weeks, has successfully handled the sales and business of a large garage. Hitherto it was conducted by her brothers, Rippey and Joseph Shearer, older sons of Raymond E. Shearer, formerly a revenue collector when Grover Cleveland was President. The reason for Miss Shearer jumping into the breach was that five out of eight owners and employees of the garage volunteered for service in Mexico. They now are in Texas. It was with the recent call for troops in the Mexican crisis that Rippey Shearer, who is a lieutenant in a Pennsylvania National Guard company, and his brother Joseph, Samuel Diller, John George and Harris Peters decided they would go with the colors. Miss Shearer is direct and forceful in her methods of selling automobiles, and her father is greatly delighted with the way she is conducting the successful business without much help.

TRI-STATE TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

The Tri-State Tractor Demonstration which will be held at Toledo next month, on Tuesday, Aug. 26, gives promise of being the largest demonstration ever held in the East, not only for the tractor capital but for the attendance. At least five thousand visitors are expected and an average of one hundred automobiles.

The demonstration has been arranged by the jobbing houses at Toledo, Ohio, and a large number of tractors not represented at Toledo have been entered as well. The demonstration will be held at Holbrook Farm, corner Front and Dearborn streets East Toledo, on a plot of 32 acres, twenty of which will be plowed up.

The tractors which have already been entered are the Avery, Bud, Mogul, Parrott, ePoria, Titan, Waterloo Boy underslung type, Waterloo Boy Trailer type. The demonstration will start promptly at 10 a. m. after the taking of an official photograph. It will continue until noon when an intermission of one hour will be allowed. When the plowing is completed, harrows and discs will be used to put the ground in condition. All of the tractors entered will pull either two or three plows. These are the sizes which are proving popular in this section.

The demonstration is in no way competitive, except as to quality of work done, and each visitor will be called on to decide for himself as to his favorite machine. The demonstration will be the best opportunity that has yet been given in the East to observe several modern steel horses at work in one field at the same time.

INFANTILE PARALYSIS TAKING MANY LIVES

The epidemic continues to rage in New York and many towns outside are increasing precautions to prevent children being removed there from the stricken city. Every effort is being made to curb the spread of the disease but in the tenement districts the fight is a hard one, owing to the difficulty of keeping the children apart. Sanitary rules are being strictly enforced and the government experts are assisting the city officials.

RAZOR BLADE SHARPENING.

Device Invented to Keep Edges in Good Condition. For resharpening safety razor blades a holder has been devised which enables a person to employ one set of blades indefinitely, honing and stropping them as they need attention. It is made to be used with any standard blade and to hold it at the proper angles, so that by following simple instructions an inexperienced user of the device may obtain a keener edge almost in a moment's time. The holder may be used both on a stone and strap. Popular Mechanics.

Little Flora's Prayer. One day little Flora was taken to a dentist to have an aching tooth removed. Moved that night while repeating her prayers before retiring her mother was surprised to hear her say: "And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors."

Apparently women haven't enough troubles in this world to keep them busy, so they have taken to facing their knees up the back just in order to make life harder and a little more complicated for the next few months.

No two women could say as much in an hour's conversation as is expressed in that silent book of soul communion which passes between two men just about to take a drink.

BACKACHE IS DISCOURAGING

But Not So Bad if You Know How to Reach the Cause.

Nothing more discouraging than a constant backache. Lame when you awaken, pains pierce you when you bend or lift. It's hard to work or to rest. Backache often indicates bad kidneys and calls for prompt treatment. The best recommended remedy is Doan's Kidney Pills. Profit by this experience: G. A. Greening, real estate dealer of Monroe, Mich., says: "I have had twenty years of suffering from backache and other kidney trouble. I tried everything to get relief without results until I began using Doan's Kidney Pills. Five boxes gave me a permanent cure. I cheerfully recommend Doan's Kidney Pills to all those who are afflicted with pain in the back, dizzy spells, tired feeling, cold in the kidneys or any other sign of kidney complaint." Price, 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Greening had. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Comments By
Rev. Ernest Bourne, A.M., D.D.
 Pastor of the Washington St.
 Congregational Church and the Marion Lawrence Sunday School, Toledo, Ohio.

Lesson for August 6th

Lesson Title: "The Greatest Thing in the World."

Lesson Text: I Cor. 13. Memorize vs. 4-7.

Golden Text: "Now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."—I Cor. 13: 13.

I. The Greatest Thing in the World.

When I went to school we were expected to tell the seven great wonders of the world. I remember I used to wonder if I would ever see any of them. Recently a thousand scientists and other distinguished men have been asked to name the seven greatest wonders of the modern world. They have chosen great discoveries like the telephone, wireless telegraphy, etc. We are living in an age when the old wonders have passed away and newer ones have taken their place.

Yet the historians of yesterday and the scientists of today forgot to name the greatest wonder of the world. Do you know what it is? It is the miracle of a transformed life, the way in which God changes a bad man into a good one. Not enough attention is given to that miracle today! The way in which God does it is thru love. His own love for man, in the first place, challenges and changes the man. Then the same spirit of love in the man revolutionizes all human relationships and makes them pure and fruitful. It is this big program of love, for the man himself to develop, which Henry Drummond called "the greatest thing in the world." Paul was its author, under the influence of the spirit of God. The Record gives it to us in 1 Corinthians 13. Take a look at it today!

II. The Program of Love.

It's a big program. If you think it's a job, fit only for molly-coddles, invalid women, and minor children, just try to carry it out for a while yourself. You'll discover that it's a man's job and it will take all of the man to carry out, plus the help of God himself!

Christian LOVE has a special word in the Greek. There were other words for the love of beauty, and for the love of friends, and for general friendship toward all mankind. But Christian love was bigger, deeper! It needs a new interpretation today. It is not a weak thing, or like the good feeling we may have toward others. It calls for a better and more unselfish living than mere sentimentality can give. Look at the program and see if you measure up to it.

Love suffereth long.

Love is kind.

Love envieth not.

Love vaunteth not itself.

Love is not puffed up.

Love beareth not unseemly

Love seeketh not its own.

Love is not easily provoked.

Love does not brood over wrongs.

Love knows not injustice.

Love sides with truth.

Love knows how to be silent.

Love is full of trust, full of hope, full of patient endurance.

LOVE NEVER FAILS.

Is love your program of life? Are you trying to practice it every day? Have you faith in such a program? Has it any place in the actions of one nation toward another? When diplomacy fails, could love win if she had a chance? When submarines and huge cannon fail, could love help, if given a chance? Could love secure limitation of armament? Is Christianity's program possible? Would you like to see it put through? Are you trying to push it? Are you enrolled as a follower of the matchless man who taught the world the meaning of love, and brotherhood, and neighborliness?

TRUE SPIRIT OF PACIFIC COAST GUARDSMEN AT AMERICAN LAKE, WASHINGTON

The pictures show troops of the National Guard of the State of Washington, preparing to take the oath for the federal service at the National Guard camp at American Lake, Washington, and Captain Livingston, a popular officer among the troops. The company was organized at Centralia, Washington. How the army horses are being used in the picture.

THE FARM LOAN ACT

Provides System for Lending Money on Farm Lands at Reasonable Interest for Relatively Long Periods—Amortization Plan for Easy Repayment Prescribed.

Washington, D. C. Special.—The Federal Farm Loan Act, popularly called the "Rural Credits Law," was signed by the President and became a law on July 17, 1916.

The primary purpose of this Act is to promote agricultural prosperity by enabling farmers to borrow money on farm-mortgage security at a reasonable rate of interest and for relatively long periods of time. To attain this object, two farm-mortgage systems are provided: (1) A system operating through regional land banks;

To attract money to the farm loan fund, the Act provides a method whereby those who have money to loan can find safe investments in the form of debentures or bonds, of small and large denominations, issued by the banks and based on the security of mortgages on farm lands.

These two systems are to be under the general supervision of a Federal Farm Loan Board in the Treasury Department, composed of the Secretary of the Treasury, as chairman ex officio, and four members appointed by the President. This Board has

Outline of Farm Loan Act

The Act provides for the creation of twelve Federal Land Banks and permits the establishment of any number of joint-stock land banks for the purpose of making loans at a reasonable rate of interest, for long periods of time, on farm lands.

A Federal Farm Board has complete control over these banks.

A—Federal Land Banks

Twelve Federal Land Banks are provided, one in each of 12 districts into which the country will be divided. These banks are empowered to lend on first mortgages on farm lands in amounts of $100 to $10,000 for approved purposes. The loans are to be made through farm loan associations and agents. No loan may be made for more than 50 per cent of the value of the land mortgaged and 20 per cent of the value of the permanent insured improvements upon it.

National Farm Loan Associations—local organizations composed exclusively of borrowers—are authorized. These associations must be stockholders in the land banks in proportion to the amount their members wish to borrow. Eventually all stock in the Federal land banks will be owned exclusively by these associations.

A reasonable interest rate is established. The act prohibits the Federal Land Banks from charging more than 6 per cent on any mortgage, or requiring fees not approved by the Farm Loan Board.

The borrowers will share in the net profits of the bank because they are stockholders. It is contemplated that ultimately the borrowers will be the only stockholders.

Long term loans are provided by authorizing mortgages for periods of from 5 up to 40 years.

Small annual or semi-annual payments on the principal are made a required feature of all mortgages.

B—Joint-Stock Land Banks.

Joint-stock land banks are authorized. They are corporations for carrying on the business of lending on farm mortgage security and issuing farm loan bonds. They are to be under the supervision of the Farm Loan Board, but the Government will not invest in them. Subject to geographical limitations and subject to the 50 per cent and 20 per cent limitation, these banks can lend to individual any amount they wish, and for any purpose. They can not charge an interest rate exceeding six per cent and such rate must not exceed by more than 1 per cent the interest they have paid on their last issue of bonds. Their mortgages, however, must provide for amortization payments. These banks are prohibited from charging, under any pretext, fees or commissions other than those authorized by the Act.

authority to appoint appraisers, examiners, and registrars, who will be public officials.

Conditions Under Which Loans May be Obtained From Federal Land Banks.

The Act specifically defines the purposes for which loans may be obtained. These are:

(a) To provide for the purchase of land for agricultural uses.

(b) To provide for the purchase of equipment, fertilizers and live stock necessary for the proper and responsible operation of the mortgaged farm.

(c) To provide for the improvement of farm lands, the term "improvement" to be defined by the Federal Farm Loan Board.

(d) To fundate the title of the owner of the land mortgaged existing at the time of the organization of the first national farm loan association established in or for the county in which the land mortgaged is situated, or indebtedness subsequently incurred for one of the purposes mentioned in this section.

Loans may be made only on first mortgages on farm land.

Only those who own and cultivate farm land or about to own and cultivate such land are entitled to borrow.

No one can borrow save for the purposes stated in the Act and those who after borrowing do not use the money for the purposes specified in the mortgage are liable to have their loans reduced or recalled. The secretary-treasurer of each association is required to report any diversion of borrowed money from the purposes stated in the mortgages.

MUCH ADMIRER HOOSIER

POET-PASS'S AWAY

James Whitcomb Riley died at his home in Indianapolis, Indiana, on Saturday, July 23-1.

The Hoosier poet was crystalized by poet Riley into beautiful verse that gave him a foremost place among the verse makers. He started his real writing on the Indianapolis Journal in 1878.

"The Old Swimmin' Hole" "Old-Fashioned Roses" "Out to Old Mary" "When the Frost Is On the Pumpkin" "That Old Sweetheart of Mine" and "Home Folks" were among Poet Riley's best efforts.

These poems gave him, more than anything else he wrote, a place in the hearts of America's children.

That the entire nation mourns Riley's death was evidenced by a flood of messages of condolence from all over the United States. Telegrams of a smaller nature came from nearly every foreign country.

POINTS OUT MISPELLED WORDS

Automatic Indicator on Typewriter Performs Useful Tasks

Promoters have been in Hannibal, Mo., recently, looking for a plant in which to manufacture a new and patented automatic attachment for the typewriter that shows when words have been misspelled.

The indicator not only is an aid to the typewriter and copyist in watching their work, but it really indicates at the end of the word that a letter has been omitted or too many letters have been used. It is claimed that by its use a copyist can turn out 25 per cent more work. The indicator can be attached to any kind of a typewriter and is quite simple.

Household Hints

During the summer months no drink can equal the healthful, invigorating "Nectars" compounded of fruit juices, which possess valuable fruit sugars and natural flavors, nutrient salts, and organic acids. Chief among the acids are citric, malic and tartaric. These arouse the appetite and aid digestion by stimulating a flow of saliva, and indirectly of gastric juice; reaching the intestines, the acidity of the chyme is increased, secretions of the liver and pancreas are encouraged, muscular activity of the intestinal wall quickened, and as a means of circulating the blood and kidneys, they are invaluable. Their influence upon the blood is marked, the phosphates in the red blood cells are increased, and the formation of the white blood cells, the pangen of the body, are promoted.

What has become of the pessimistic people who used to worry about the time when the world was to become over crowded? The regular agencies for keeping down the surplus population—thin ice and toothal in winter, drowning and sunstrokes in summer and automobile killings, all the year round, with an occasional railroad wreck, big fire or steamboat accident are no longer needed. The war in Europe is doing the depopulating act by millions instead of by singles or scores.

A wave of reform has struck Farmington. It seems that the grocery stores in that pretty little town have been in the habit of opening for trade Sunday mornings, and that now the proprietors have "sworn off" on doing this sort of Sabbath breaking any longer. "We didn't know Farmington was that naughty but are very glad she has seen the error of her ways without any admonitions from this quarter; also hope she won't never do so no more."

The European war has been cleared of at least one bad thing it was accused of being responsible for. The surplus rainfall of last season and a part of this season can no longer be blamed onto the bombardment. Maybe, now, that's what has caused the drought.

When Detroit's sanitary commission finds it necessary in its investigation of deplorable tenement conditions, to order so many families out of the wretched quarters they occupy outdoors, are wondering where they spend time.

If the extreme hot and dry weather continues, enough to be known to be necessary to "cut the cat." The good folks have been doing off by some means of protection especially in the city. We submit this as a Pollyannaish consolation for what has recently been endured in the way of weather.

A sign-painter of Little Central Michigan town recently painted a fence on the lot of a barn and it looked so good that a man chased by a bull dog, happened to climb the supposed fence, nearly killed him—South Lyon Ad.

HIGH COST OF FEAR

The high cost of fear is the greatest tragedy in the life of the nation. Fear takes more from life and gives less than any human force. It is the courier of waste, waste and want and a messenger of sorrow and misery.

Our Army and our Navy are shining examples of the high cost of fear. We have today about 400 battleships and other fighting vessels afloat, representing an investment of approximately $400,000,000 and spend annually $250,000,000 in naval and military appropriations. Thirty-six cents of every dollar paid into the Federal treasury goes for preparation of war. We have a fleet of battleships and armored cruisers with a displacement of over a million tons and this tremendous weight is resting upon the backs of the tolling masses, for the man who sweats is the man who pays.

The boom of one of the big guns mounted upon our forts snuffs out values that exceed the annual production of two farms. It costs more to fire the ordnance of a dreadnaught than it does to build ten churches and the annual expense of maintaining our Army and Navy equals the cost of constructing twenty-five Macadam highways across the continent.

The nations of the earth in time of peace spend approximately $2,500,000,000 annually preparing for a battle and when the dogs of war are loosed, we should add to this the destruction of the sword and of the torch; the value of new-made graves, empty sleeves and the sobs of widows and orphans. Arresting this terrible waste, staunching the flow of a river of human blood, and staying the hand of famine and pestilence is the greatest possible service that can be rendered mankind in this age. It is the mission of the church to disarm the nations and it is the most tremendous task of the Twentieth Century.

Civilization today is crying aloud for a man who can organize the force of Christianity into a working unit, and swing them around the Prince of Peace. If the church is to occupy a big place in a big age, it must do big things in a big way.—Peter Rafterd.

England and Ireland.
Erio-go Bragh means "Ireland for ever." The Royal Standard was adopted January 1, 1801, on the union of Ireland with Great Britain. The quarters were representative of the three countries: England, three couchant lions on a red background in the first and fourth quarters; Scotland, a rampant lion in the second quarter; and Ireland, a golden harp on a green background in the third quarter. The lion of Scotland was taken from the coat of arms of James VI.

An American's
Proposition For a French Girl.

By RYLAND BELL.

Jimmie Martindale's father went out to the wild west to become a ranchman when Jimmie was six years old. The consequence was that Jimmie grew up with all the freedom of a cow puncher. That doesn't mean that he was coarse, but that he was unconventional. His father and mother being refined he was himself refined, but he naturally partook of the spirit of the people among whom he lived.

When Jimmie was twenty-five he had lost father and mother and was in possession of one of the most extensive and best stocked ranches in New Mexico. Having never seen anything off the world, he concluded to make a trip to Europe. He liked Paris pretty well and having a mind to sojourn there awhile, joined a club and got himself introduced into society.

At a function given at the American embassy Jimmie met Clochette Desaix and fell desperately in love with her. The young lady seemed well pleased with him, and Jimmie was ready for a proposal. But he had by this time learned that marriages in Europe are not made as they are in America and certainly not as they were made among ranch people. Mlle. Desaix belonged to a very old family, and her father was a stickler for etiquette. Jimmie knew this and, feeling his want of ability to tackle the problem of a proposal without being coached, imparted his desires to M. Cousinot, a member of his club who was considered well up in such matters, and asked for advice.

He was told that on no account must he speak to the object of his desires until the matter had been settled with her father. M. Desaix should be approached with great ceremony, and Jimmie must give him to understand that he would consider it a great honor to be permitted to ally himself with so ancient and honorable a family. There was no necessity for him to dwell on his love for the young lady for love would, according to French customs, have nothing to do with the matter. If he received encouragement from M. Desaix it would then be in order for him to enter upon an exposition of his affairs, mentioning the amount he proposed to settle on his wife just previous to the marriage. He would have a right to know what dowry the bride would receive from her father, but decency would suggest that he wait for M. Desaix to speak of that.

Jimmie thought he understood how the "racket" was worked," as he expressed it, and started off to find M. Desaix. The latter had just finished dinner, and a man after dinner is usually approachable. Jimmie was in luck and found him in a smoking room, and his host, who had noticed his attentions at functions to his daughter and suspected, or, rather, felt sure of the object of his coming, sketched by references to the weather. But Jimmie was not much of a hand at preliminary ruses and entered upon his subject in accordance with the coaching he had received.

"Monsieur," he said, "I have since my sojourn in Paris heard much of the long and honorable record of your family, and it has fired me with an ambition to enroll my name on its escutcheon."

Jimmie paused for breath. He appeared to M. Desaix very like a school-boy making his first speech and suffering from stage fright. A decanter stood on a side table, and the host, extending a hand to it, said:

"Monsieur, you do me great honor. Let us drink to the shades of my ancestors."

Jimmie jumped at the proposition and when fortified proceeded. "Monsieur, I have met on several occasions your estimable daughter, Mlle. Clochette. I am aware that in France Cupid has no more place in matrimonial affairs than a gopher hole, but I cannot refrain from saying that I consider Mlle. Clochette a deuced fine girl."

Jimmie paused, and M. Desaix saw by his expression that he was trying to decide between the encomiums upon Mlle. Clochette that were crowding upon him and skillfully led him back to the business in hand.

"Do I understand, monsieur, that you propose for the hand of my daughter?"

"You bet."

"Then perhaps you will begin by giving me some account of your family descent, after which, if your statement in this respect is satisfactory to me, we may take up the matter of settlements. What is your family coat of arms?"

"Never heard of any such. Father used to say he was going to adopt a pair of steer's horns quartered with a lariat, a cow punch."

"Never mind that. I have understood that in America there are no family trees. As to settlements"—

"There I am more at home," Jimmie broke in, and he gave an account of his affairs that made M. Desaix's heart beat joyously, though outwardly he continued to be unmoved. Jimmie offered to settle half his fortune on his wife. When M. Desaix mentioned his daughter's dot, Jimmie saw that its dimnity was was embarrassing and cut the matter short by saying that his wife wouldn't need a dot.

Jimmie's proposition, having been accepted, the Desaix family were notified, and he, being an American, as a special privilege was permitted to see his fiancée alone.

The youngsters in "The Little Schoolmarm" laugh and cry, and so all the pranks for which children are loved even to holding a show with pins as the price of admission. ## ORPHEUM THEATRE, DETROIT.

"The Final Arbitrator," a new dramatic playlet in which Lawrence Grant is featured, and which deals with the European war, will be seen at the Orpheum theatre next week. Grant plays a dual role, an American who dreams and then the German emperor himself, giving a marvelous impersonation, it is said, of the Kaiser. The principal scenes take place on a battlefield where the Kaiser is personally directing his troops. Two women are in the supporting cast as messengers of peace. The play is described as neutral in tone. It deals with the war-scarred nations and the results that will come when the war ends. There are five other acts on the bill that starts next Monday afternoon.

Mothers, who attend the Michigan State Fair, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13, will have an opportunity to leave their children in the new Woman's Building, where they may be assured that the boys and girls will have the best of attention. General Manager Dickinson says that competent nurses will look after the children, who will be provided with absolutely pure milk, to be kept in refrigerators. Mr. Dickinson says that mothers are heartily invited to attend the fair, at which there will be many exhibits and attractions in which they will be particularly interested.

Big Tractor Demonstration.
A tractor demonstration and exhibition will be one of the features of the 1916 State Fair, according to G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the big exposition, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13. Tractor manufacturers from all sections of the country have signified their intention of having tractors at the fair, and practical demonstrations will be given on several acres of land set aside for that purpose.

Five Days of Horse Racing.
Five days of harness racing will be offered at the 1916 Michigan State Fair. The racing events will open on Labor Day and continue through the next four days. There will be four races each day and some of the speediest trotters and pacers in the middle west will compete for purses. The race meeting will be conducted under the auspices of the short ship circuit.

POLITICS IN THE PULPIT

COUNTRY NEEDS "OLD TIME RELIGION."

Satisfaction Must Come From Bible Instead of Statute Book.

By Peter Radford.

At least 75 per cent of the preachers of this nation are on the payroll of the farmers; the farmers of the United States have built approximately 120,000 churches, at a cost of $750,000,000; contribute towards the support of religious institutions more than $100,000,000 per annum, and the census reports show that about 54 of every 100 members of the various church denominations live upon the farm. I refer with pride to the achievements of the farmers along the line of religious progress and moral development. The substantial assistance which the farmers of the United States have given the cause of religion authorizes the vast body of agricultural laymen who constitute the bogy and sinew of the church to speak out, for certainly a layman may know as much about political theology as a preacher.

Keep the Yellow Peril of Politics From the Pulpit.

What I have to say has no reference to that vast body of militant ministers who have consecrated their lives to the uplift of mankind and whose precepts and examples are a beacon-light illuminating the pathway of the human race. I refer exclusively to that coterie of political clergymen who prostitute their high calling by capitalizing their reputation and by leading their occupation to designing politicians, and I appeal to the laymen to use their influence in preventing the yellow peril of politics from entering the pulpit in any of its disguises.

I appeal to the laymen to demand that political preachers give their congregations more old-time religion and less political claptrap; that they display a more earnest effort to reach the hearts of men and play less to the galleries, that they more often hold fellowship with the members and fewer caucuses with the politicians. Certainly the laymen cannot perform their full duty to the church by singing songs, paying church dues and voting tickets handed down from the pulpit by political evangelists. The layman should become a dominating factor in the politics of the church. Let all the brethren unite in lifting fallen ministers from the sloughs of politics back into the pulpit.

The Layman's Problem.

It is as important that the politician be driven out of the pulpit as that the preacher be forced back to the pulpit. I think it sacrilegious for anyone to get his call to the pulpit from campaign managers, to get his inspiration from the cesspool of politics or to get his articles of faith from political conventions. It pollutes the church, mocks Christianity and is a heinous crime against society.

We can conceive of no more diabolical hypocrisy than a politician in the pulpit shouting for votes and can imagine nothing more damaging to public conscience than a preacher saying "Amen" to his deceitful antics. Political leaders may live wet and vote dry and the low standard of statecraft is not offended, but when the church turns over the pulpit to office-seekers and their henchmen, true Christianity has received a crushing blow and hypocrisy runs rampant in the altar, for it is written "Ye cannot serve two masters."

There never was a time when preachers and politicians formed an unholy alliance that civilization did not shriek out and Christianity cry aloud. Since the beginning of government, politicians have sought to decoy the ministry into the meshes of politics and make them carry banners in political processions. They have taken the ministry to the mountain-top of power and offered to make them monarch of all they surveyed, and while most of them have said, "get thee behind me Satan," a few have fallen with a crash that has shaken every pulpit in Christendom.

The ministry, unsophisticated and confiding, is no match for the politician versed in artful persuasion and skilled in deceit, and it is the duty of the laymen to protect the ministry against the onslaught of these wolves in sheep's clothing and drive the politicians from the pulpit with the lash of public scorn. It is the laymen's problem to keep the ministry free from unholy alliances, for it is said on divine authority that we are our brother's keeper.

Political Prayer Meetings.

How a sad day for Christianity prayer church bells call the community together for a political gathering. Such gatherings mark of men; religious political faith and destroy the unity of the community. The influence in the meetings is apocalyptic such state, and dangerous to both church and state.

WONDERFUL FIREWORKS DRAMA TO BE STAGED AT THE MICHIGAN STATE FAIR IN SEPTEMBER

The war in Europe is to be transferred to Detroit.

"The War of the Nations," a wonderful fireworks drama, which will be presented by the Theatre-Pam Company at the State Fair in September, is a vivid mimicry of the stupendous death grapple in which the empires of the old world are engaged according to G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the exposition.

"The War of the Nations" is the famous fireworks firm's most elaborate production, says Mr. Dickinson. It is presented on a great open air stage 450 feet wide. Its scenery comprises 20,000 square feet of canvas painted in oil, and 300 people are required in the cast.

City is Attacked. The drama depicts an attack upon a city in which are engaged siege cannon, machine guns, armored automobiles, aeroplanes and dirigibles manned by living operators and all the up-to-date engines of war. The air is filled with exploding bombs. Walls topple beneath an iron rain. Dwellings, public edifices, and cathedrals crumble down in ruin. All the realism of war is in the grim and thrilling picture.

The scene is a small city in Flanders or northern France. The old world atmosphere and the quaint and distinctive architecture will be recognized at a glance by European travelers. The town has been reproduced from photographs by careful artists. Beyond it grain fields and meadows, in which a river flows in silver glimmers, stretch away to distant hills.

At the edge of the town is the bivouac of the army defenders. Trenches along the river bank are filled with troops and bristle with guns. Military wireless towers rise here and there. Armored automobiles stand ready for instant service. Searchlights sweep the sky. The town awakes. Lights twinkle in the windows. The cathedral bells summon to mass. The market square fills with people. Bugles sound reveille. The camp becomes a scene of stir and bustle. An enemy aeroplane is sighted. An aero-plane gun opens fire. The aerial scout flies over the horizon. The troops are called to arms. While a review is taking place some strolling players arrive. Held up by the exigencies of war, they stage a performance for the entertainment of the town people. This diversion furnishes the occasion for the interposition of a dozen high class vaudeville and circus acts, such as trapeze, bar and slack wire performance, tumbling and acrobatic work, juggling and cornet playing.

Two spies brought in by a detail of cavalry are court-martialed and shot. A band of refugees arrives and are cared for by Red Cross nurses. Night falls, and lights in the cathedral, the public buildings and the homes add a softened beauty to the scene. A second enemy aeroplane is sighted. An aerial scout flies upward to do battle. He returns with the intelligence that hostile forces are closing in for an attack upon the city.

City is Defended. There is a battle of preparation. Lights are ordered extinguished. In the darkness soldiers are marched on the double-quick to position for defense. Sharp commands ring out. Bugles sound the charge. Enemy aeroplanes crowd the sky and rain down bombs. Lines of hostile soldiers, push to the assault. There is deadly battle in front of the trenches. Siege mortars roar. Machine guns play streams of fire upon the attacking columns. Rifles volley and thud. Shells are bursting everywhere. Fire breaks out. The spire of the cathedral falls. The Hotel de Ville is smashed into wreckage. Dwellings crash down. The flames of widespread conflagration sweep over the ruined city.

The battle ends, and two beautiful tableaux are presented in the midst of the blackened desolation. The first group represents "The Horrors of War," the second "The Blessings of Peace." The performance concludes with a dazzling exhibition of the gorgeous marvels of twentieth century pyrotechnics.

LEGISLATIVE UNREST

This is an age of unrest. All is confusion, chaos and change. We are pulling at the very corner-stones of government and seeking more and more to limit the rights of the people by law. Where do all the hysterical issues originate? Certainly not on the farm, the factory or behind the counter. It is not the busy, enterprising, thoughtful citizenship that suggested these changes. It is the idle, the selfish and the hysterical.

The jeers of the political agitator, the scoffs of the political preacher and the sneers of the political lawyer have crazed the public mind. This triple alliance of evil influences has sent a wave of fright down the spinal column of state, and farmers and business men in many instances have been cut loose from their safe mooring and set adrift in the sea of uncertainty and doubt. The ballot has been cast with an insteady hand and an uncertain mind, but the time for sober second thought has arrived and every good citizen with calm, dispassionate judgment should carefully count the cost. What is gained by all this change? Will it stave off another plow, build another factory, open another mine or put another vessel afloat on the sea? Will it increase the price of products, decrease the cost of living or lower the taxes?

People, like animals, have leaders and, like them, they should be able to select capable leaders for reason ought to be more able than instinct. Who are the leaders in public life in your state today and on what claim do they base their title to such an honor? Government is a great big business and must be run on business principles. Only those who are capable of grappling with the problems of administering justice, taxation, markets and production and who can keep the forces of progress are entitled to leadership. It is an easy matter to lead the populace to a fire but quite another to lead them to the field and factory. It is easy to restrain, but quite another thing to put in motion. It is easy to destroy, but quite another to build. This country needs men of action, horse sense and business ability at the helm in government beyond sound, sensible issues that give business results. Take a business inventory. Lay down against every measure the yard stick of results and with courage and wisdom do not let error measure every man who seeks to give public counsel by the tape line of business ability.

The greatest peril of any government is unsafe leaders. Nations follow their leaders to success or failure. War may have its heroes, religion its martyrs and politics its patriots, but it takes business sense to run government and those who have had no business training or experience are incapable of safe leadership.

The farmers and business men must take hold of the reins of government and put forward issues and men that promote the prosperity of the country, and do it now.—Peter Radford, 2 about its development and final per-three years.

These tests were conducted on the public roads in the vicinity of the equipped with these new casings.

sandy roads on the South River, Old were continued daily both summer and winter. Then again private cars belonging to executives of the company were fitted with Universal tread tires of these, a seven passenger testing car, having been driven over one hundred miles daily excepting Sundays and holidays for over two years.

In describing the new Michelin tires Mr. Perrin says that the Universal Tread is really a combination of the Michelin racing type flat tread having the same characteristic heavy added tread, and the Michelin plain tread, a full round-tire of the so called "oversize type." The Non-skid feature is a combination of the raised or stagger tread non-skid, with the flat or suction tread type.

Although carefully developed, and in view of the fact that only highest quality materials are used in its construction, this new tire might be considered high priced, but this is not so.

SPINSTERS HAVE CITY IN KANSAS

VICTORIA MOST UNIQUE TOWN
IN SUNFLOWER STATE; MEN
BARRIED

PROTECTS INTERESTS OF OLD MAIDS

Disappointed in Matrimony, Women
Are Now Tilling Soil and Governing Town

Dodge City, Kas.—A new town, its being born in Southwestern Kansas. Its name is Victoria City and it is the most unique city in the state. It is a town of old maids—the spinners headquarters for spinsters—the place from which men are barred, except they are willing to give up their prerogatives and allow the women to rule without question.

The founding of Victoria City is the outgrowth of the organization of the Kansas City Queen Victoria Club, a spinsters union, by Miss Georgia Hook of Sabalita. The club was launched to protect the interests of old maids. At first it was a local organization, but the idea spread and other clubs were formed throughout the state. It now has a membership of several hundred women, all unmarried.

In the fertile brain of this president, Miss Georgia Hook, was born the idea of a city for spinsters, where they could enact such laws as they desired and live according to their views, without running about of the ideas of other individuals who believed in babies and home life.

The idea came to Miss Hook coincidentally with the announcement from the Federal Government that there were about 20,000 acres of land in Kansas, especially in the South west, which was open to homestead entry. Miss Hook investigated. She went to Dodge City and consulted the Land Office Records.

Convinced that her idea was feasible by what she discovered, she consulted other members of the Queen Victoria Club in various parts of the state. The idea took hold of them. Fifty spinsters agreed to enter the scheme, give up their settled modes of life and invade the frontier in the interests of the cause.

Into the Southwest they went. Land was secured, and in the center of the new settlement was laid out Victoria City. It is in Ford county, not far from Dodge City. The town is only in its infancy yet. There are a few scattered houses built, but for the most part the women are waiting for a clear title to their land before they actually begin the final development of their city.

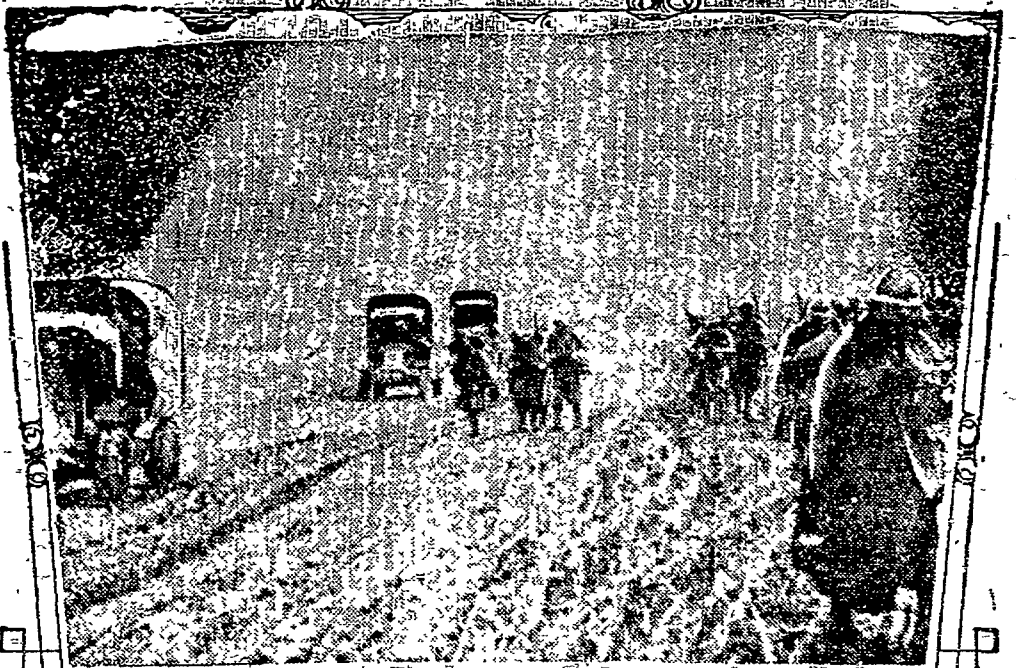

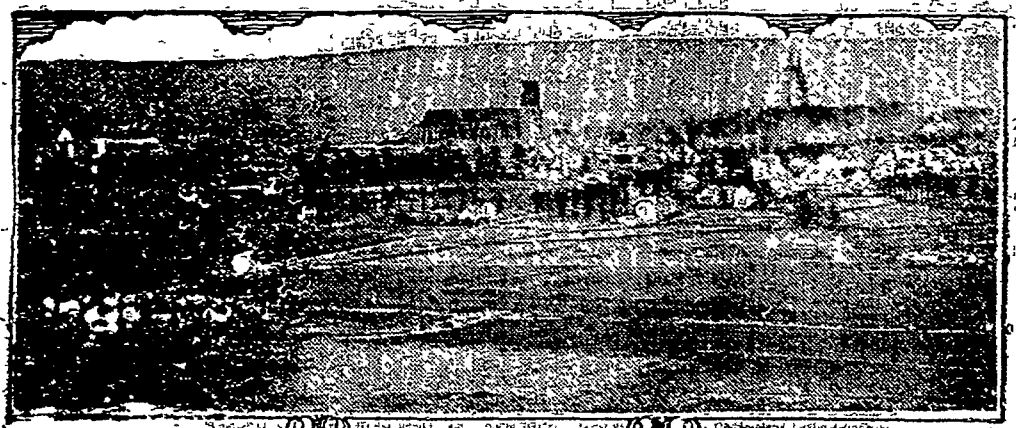

But while the actual building of the town is progressing slowly because of the necessary delay in proving up on the land, the growth of the town along governmental lines is almost completed. And it is in a governmental way that the town has achieved its distinction of being the most unique city in the state.

Miss Hook is the mayor. She has a city council composed of Miss Isabelle Morton, Miss Sylvia Cawker, Miss Mildred Munter and Miss Elizabeth Whiting. These officers were elected by vote of the original fifty members of townsite company.

As the original red of a spinster city was Miss Hook's idea, so the constitution of Victoria City also owes much to her ingenuity. In the prelude of the constitution the city is described as a place where women who have been so unfortunate as to have failed in their matrimonial ambitions, can seek solace by industry in agriculture and in the development of a better form of government which shall be free from the petty rules of restraints of the average community.

The constitution limits suffrage on all questions to women. No man, although they are allowed to live in the community, will be allowed a voice in the administration of affairs.

SOISSONS OF TODAY: RUINS OF ONCE BEAUTIFUL FRENCH CITY; DEAD MAN'S HILL, PHOTOGRAPHED AS GERMAN SHELL POSITION

Panoramic view of Soissons; Dead Man's hill, French soldiers in foreground. These pictures, just received from the battle front, show two places in France that have been very much in the news during the last few months. The German bombardment of Dead Man's hill during the past few months has been one of the most terrific sustained attacks in the history of warfare.

VALUABLE ANTIQUITIES

Famous Collection Includes One of Napoleon's Cannons Brought Over the Mayflower

In the little farming town of St. Louis, Mo., there is a collection of rare books, antiquities, and curiosities, which are the property of a collector named Mr. J. H. Newman. Among the most valuable items in the collection is a cannon which was brought over the Mayflower.

Mr. Newman has traveled over Europe many times in pursuit of his hobby—since he lived there for six years—and some of the individual pieces he took two or three years of search and effort to locate.

One of the leading features of the collection is a Napoleonic cannon, which from 1801 to 1805 stood on the walls of the Tuileries and fired salutes for the small potentates who came to visit the Emperor in that day gunpowder was extremely expensive, and during Napoleon's greatest glory, the number of kings, dukes and dukes who visited Paris was legion. It was necessary to fire salutes to all of them.

Another feature of the collection is a brass blunderbuss which was brought over by the Puritans who came in the Mayflower. Though steel was used at that time to some extent all of the guns the passengers of the Mayflower carried had brass barrels. Near the brass blunderbuss in the St. Louis house is a carbide carried by one of the soldiers who was on duty at the execution of Marie Antoinette.

There are three other items which are of great interest. One is a sword which belonged to a general in the army of the city of Mexico, and there is a sword which belonged to the collector's father.

Mentioned on a pedestal in the museum are three other items, one of which is a sword which belonged to Oliver Cromwell, a very elaborate one owned by a cavalier of Napoleon's old guard, and one of plain steel belonging to William of Orange and used by him in the Netherlands. A suit of armor worn by the Duke of Alba, which is over seven feet tall, stands not far from a lot of Turkish armor of the fifteenth century. Among this is a shield, helmet and neck chain of Saladin. The last has in it a receptacle in which a plume could be carried in the daytime and a torch at night to let everybody know where the leader was.

Thirty instruments of torture used during the Spanish inquisition make that part of the collection very complete. "There is a very interesting story connected with a Hessian's gun that I have," said Mr. Newman. "It was used at the battle of Lexington, and after the battle the soldier, who was wounded by a sword blow on the knee sought refuge in a house which is in

THE FRENCH COMMANDER AT VERDUN

General Petain was born April 23, 1856, and became a lieutenant in 1883. He made steady progress in the army, and from the command of a corps he has passed to the command of an army engaged in one of the most herculean tasks which the present war has brought about.

PREPARE FOR STAY AT CAMP

Moving Orders May Not Come for Some Time

Preparations for a long stay in Camp Willis were being slowly completed today. Floors are being put in tents, electric lights are being strung down the company streets, more shower baths are being installed, mess halls screened and liberal feasts of absence extended.

Major R. W. Weems, chief mustering officer today, said his last orders from the war department indicated that the government had decided that the Ohio militiamen were better off in Camp Willis than on the border and that no moving order was to be expected for days if not weeks.

"Although I have orders to move the troops in units when completely equipped with the exception of animals I don't see how the complete equipment can be secured for some time."

It was pointed out that the failure of the war department to hasten the supplies for complete equipment or to even advise when they would be shipped clearly indicated that Uncle Sam was satisfied with the force of men now doing patrol duty along the Mexican border.

what is now a suburb of Springfield, Mass.

"Some years ago I bought property there and planned to build a house on the banks of the Connecticut river. In the basement excavation we ran across an Indian burying ground with a number of bodies all sitting up straight. They had been originally six feet underground, but in the course of years fourteen or fifteen feet of additional dirt was washed in on top of them. Among them we found a white man's bones with one knee badly cut apparently by a blow from a sword."

"On inquiring from the family about him, I learned the story of the Hessian who had sought refuge there and also the fact that he had had a gun which had been carried out into the Western Reserve by some member of the family who moved out this way in the forties. I got the Massachusetts historical society after the gun and finally landed it. Now I have the gun and the bones of the man who carried it both in my collection."

In the Newman collection is also included a gun carried by Daniel Boone and every rifle the United States government has used from the old Continental down to the latest Krag. He has also the first piano that was ever built in America.

GIVES POINTERS ON HORSE BUYING

SPORTSMAN SAYS FIVE YEAR OLD ANIMAL MAY BE HAD FOR $150 UP

All Round Horse Should Be Fearless and Well Broken

"All games, pastimes and sports worthy of the name are artificial work," said the late well known author and sportsman, Prince Collier, according to the New York Tribune. "What our ancestors did from necessity, we do because we find that vigorous use of our powers, physical, mental and moral makes living more agreeable. Our ancestors shot, fished, and rode, walked, cut down trees, pad-ded canoes, sailed boats, fought wild beasts, etc., because they were obliged to that they might live. We do many of these same things—we can't sport in reality it is artificial work. The quality and value of all games, and sports may be tested and graded as to their respective merit according as they develop in their patrons the qualities that hard work develops. Health, courage, serenity of spirit, good manners, good nerves, tenacity of purpose, physical strength, were the reward of the hard worker; those same qualities ought to be the aim of the good sportsman."

Now it must be acknowledged that good horsemanship is capable of in-breeding some of these qualifications, besides which, riding is one of the best sports that has come down to us through the ages. Not only is it invigorating and health preserving, but the indefinable fascination and sense of exhilaration in being astride of and mastering a lively and powerful beast that, did he but realize his own strength, could go wherever he willed regardless of any rider, make a strong appeal to the real sportsman. To a skilled rider the very act of keeping an active horse under complete control, and at the same time having the knowledge how to exact a willing and friendly submission lends an added pleasure to the game.

Many horse lovers feel themselves deterred from riding on account of the expense. But there need not be an overlarge appropriation, and very little money by using the service of a good horse. Our system is simple and effective giving twice the mileage at one-half the cost. We Sell All Makes of Tires, Tubes, Etc. Send for catalogue and price list. 829 Woodward Ave. Detroit, Mich.
