

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

VOL. XLVI, NO. 8.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, AUGUST 11, 1916.

$1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

A. K. CARPENTER DIED SUDDENLY

CALL CAME WHILE HE LAY IN HAMMOCK ON PORCH.

ONE OF NORTHVILLE'S OLDEST
BUSINESS MEN AND LIFE-LONG CITIZEN.

The news that one of our well known residents, Alfred K. Carpenter, had been found dead, Friday evening, August 4, at his home on Rogers st. was a shock to the entire community.

A. K. CARPENTER.

Mr. Carpenter had not been feeling

DISPLAYS OF FRUIT ATTRACT MUCH ATTENTION AT MICHIGAN STATE FAIR

OCEANA county always makes a wonderful display of fruit at the Michigan State Fair and will be represented again at the exposition, which will be held at Detroit Sept. 4 to 13. Many other counties are annual exhibitors at the State Fair, and it is expected that the competition for first honors this fall will be most keen.

well, but had worked at his business as a plumber during that day, although much enervated, like every one, by the extreme heat. He had lain down in the hammock on his porch as was his usual custom—evenings, and death came to him suddenly and peacefully as he rested there.

Mr. Carpenter had been identified with the business and social life of Northville for several decades. He was in the hardware business as a member of several successive firms, the late W. G. Yerkes, James and Abe Huff and F. S. Harmon, all being associated with him at different times. Since selling his interest in the former Carpenter and Huff store he had been engaged, with a partner in the plumbing and kindred business, under the firm name of Carpenter and McCordle.

The death of his wife a few months ago was a severe blow to Mr. Carpenter and he had been very despondent, which no doubt aggravated the heart trouble of long standing which was the cause of his death. He leaves no near relatives except his aged mother. The funeral was held from the residence Monday afternoon.

POWER-KLAVITTER.

A quiet wedding occurred Monday August 7 at the residence of Rev. J. M. Barkley, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Detroit, with Miss Hedwig Klavitter of Ypsilanti and Arthur Power of this place as the contracting parties.

Northville people present at the ceremony were Mr. and Mrs. Sumner Power, Misses Marion and Hester Power and Dr. and Mrs. Paul Alexander, besides other relatives and friends.

During her few years' residence here as a stenographer in the employ of the Stinson State Co. and later with the Northville State Savings bank, Miss Klavitter has become a popular member of Northville's younger set.

The groom has passed his entire life here and has a large circle of friends. Mr. and Mrs. Power, Jr., left Monday evening for a trip to Buffalo and Niagara Falls, remaining until the following Thursday and returning Friday to the Power residence east of town where they will make their home for the present.

Their many friends wish them years of prosperity and happiness.

CELEBRATES 90TH BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Gertrude D. Swift passed her 90th birthday Tuesday, August 8th, in a shower of congratulations from friends in California, Colorado, Montana, Idaho, Virginia and Iowa, besides those nearer home.

Mrs. Swift is perhaps the oldest resident of Northville, having come here with her parents, Capt. and Mrs. Wm. Dunlap, in 1831, when but five years old, and when what is now our beautiful town was but a wilderness.

The greater part of her life has been spent here, with the exception of a few years at Wayne. She is remarkably active and vigorous for one of her age, keeping up her interest in everything pertaining to village and church life.

Mrs. Swift and her sister, Mrs. Jennie White, are all that are left of a family of nine brothers and sisters who grew to maturity here.

A small party of friends were entertained in honor of Mrs. Swift at the home of Mrs. Mead, whose birthday occurs on the same date.

PRIMARY REGISTRATION NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Registration for the township of Northville, Wayne county, Michigan, will meet in the Clerk's office (next door to Schrader's), in Village of Northville, on Saturday, August 19, 1916, from 9:00 o'clock a. m. to 5:00 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of registering all qualified voters who are eligible to vote at the Primary Election, to be held August 23, next.

By Order of Township Board.
ERNEST MILLER,
Township Clerk.
Northville, Mich., Aug. 5, 1916.

Features at the New Alseum Theatre.

The attraction at the Alseum next Saturday night is the Paramount film story, "Brother Officers." In four reels A London boy's great purpose in life is to find and kill the man Stanton, who has stolen his father's wife and money. The young man enlists in the British army, is sent to Afghanistan, becomes an officer and the friend of another officer. The latter becomes indebted to the man Stanton, through a gambling affair and all sorts of trouble ensues. A love story, in which the two friends love the same girl, the exposure and punishment of the villain and other incidents makes up an interesting and fascinating story.

JOHN HINMAN DEAD.

John B. Hinman died in Bozeman, Montana, August 3 from injuries received when a horse kicked him July 29.

Mr. Hinman was born in Northville August 5, 1846. He went to Montana in 1902 and had recently been living with his son, William, near Springhill.

Surviving are the widow, two sons, Wm. and Fred and a daughter, Ruth.

Mrs. Hinman and her daughter had been spending the summer with Northville and Detroit relatives when word came a short time ago of the serious illness of a son, George. Mrs. Hinman started at once for Billings but did not reach there until after his death. Miss Ruth has also returned home.

NOTICE.

The adjourned meeting of the stockholders of the Northville Loan & Building association will be held in the library rooms Friday evening August 11, 1916, at 8 o'clock.

MILK AND ICE BOTH VERY SCARCE

Toledo faces a milk famine. It is caused by the unparalleled July hot wave. Another week of torrid weather, say dairymen, will mean a serious shortage in Toledo's supply of milk. A ice cream famine is coupled with the milk shortage.

The extreme heat of the last three weeks, the unusual number of sunny days, and the accompanying drought have combined to burn up the pastures and cut down the milk supply. The condition, along with a simultaneous demand for ice cream that exceeds all previous records, has brought the city to the verge of a milk and cream famine. It would be particularly disastrous to the babies of the city.

Many Ohio cities are suffering from a shortage of milk. Other cities have already faced the shortage of ice cream. In Cincinnati, ice cream is 50 cents a quart, while in Toledo the prevailing price is 30 cents. Detroit has almost ceased to make it.

Wolf too Chummy With Dog
Owasco, Mich.—A timber wolf recently ran about the streets of this city in company with a Russian wolfhound. No one recognized the wolf as an animal not commonly found in civilized communities, although the animal appeared on the principal streets for several days.
It was taken for a dog until the local paper reported the escape from the cage at the home of William Seagel, at Durand. The wolf was coaxed back to its cage by catching the dog and leading it into the enclosure.

WRECKED BUILDINGS AT SCENE OF DYNAMITE EXPLOSION ON BLACK TOM ISLAND PRESENT APPEARANCE OF WAR TORN CITY

So great is the wreckage on Black Tom Island in New York harbor, where several carloads of ammunition, dynamite and other explosives exploded last Sunday, that the general appearance there is that of a bombarded, war-stricken city. The damage is vaporously estimated, but undoubtedly runs well up into the millions.

DOG DEVELOPS HABITS OF PIG
Even His Bark is Mixture of Grunt and Squeal Greensburg, Ind. Early last winter an automobile party in passing the home of Seymour Cole, west of here, dropped a small, light dog pup. The dog made its way to the house, but as it was not welcome, was sent to the barn. Here it found an old sow with a litter of pig. The pup attached itself to the litter and was made welcome.

After being weaned along with the pigs, the dog continued to live with the hogs, roaming over the field by day and sleeping with them at night. It developed a taste for the same food, eats corn, etc., as if it were a hog and now its bark is changing in sound to resemble more a mixture of squeal and grunt than the bark of a dog. This story is vouched for by persons who have seen the dog and the hogs.

TURTLE RANCH IN BACK YARD

Atchison Man Feasts on Luxurious Food at Will Atchison, Kan.—Ever hear of a turtle ranch? A member of this city has one in his back yard, and when he wants to eat a turtle or turtle soup he "hunts" one. Those who are interested in it, and who are very fond of turtle, will eat only from it and have the turtle ranch half a dozen turtle in a trap and bin, then send to his ranch. He has discovered that turtles will eat only from him and have the turtle ranch half a dozen turtle in a trap and bin, then send to his ranch. He has discovered that turtles will eat only from him and have the turtle ranch half a dozen turtle in a trap and bin, then send to his ranch.

WHISKERS CUT IN 20 YEARS

Over 11,000 Acres of Human Alfalfa Removed by Barber Atchison, Kan.—Just how many acres of whiskers he has cut in twenty years, was figured out by George Eagle, a barber here. Figuring the space shaved on three men as about one square foot, Eagle found that in twenty years he cut 11,558 acres of whiskers, in various stages of growth. He figured only once over, while for a big majority of the shaves the same space had to be gone over twice.

LOOK FOR MOVE OF THE OHIO GUARDS

CAMP WILLIS, COLUMBUS, O.
Without many words relative to what the Ohio guards would move to the border had been received, officers expressed an opinion that such order would come soon. They based their belief upon the fact that the national committee that are to move the soldiers are being organized in Ohio, and that the Ohio guards are being organized in Ohio, and that the Ohio guards are being organized in Ohio.

TESTING THE KING

By L. J. FLINT.
As the King's service test comes further into history and becomes one of the enduring landmarks of the motor car industry, we are able to get a better perspective on the event and more thoroughly to appreciate just how remarkable a performance the car put to its credit in the A. A. A. test. It is a record of 145 miles in two weeks with out any more than a few oil changes.

TRI-STATE TRACTOR DEMONSTRATION

The Tri-State Tractor Demonstration which will be held at Toledo next month, on Tuesday, Aug. 8th, gives promise of being the largest demonstration ever held in the East, not only for the tractors erected, but for the attendance. At least five thousand visitors are expected and arrangements are being made to park several hundred automobiles.

The demonstration has been arranged by the jobbing houses at Toledo, Ohio, and a large number of tractors, not represented at Toledo have been entered as well.

The demonstration will be held at Holbrook Farm, corner Front and Dearborn streets, East Toledo, on a plot of 32 acres, twenty of which will be plowed up.

The tractors which have already been entered are the Avery, Bull, Mogul, Parrott, Opéra, Tinsell, Waterloo Boy, underslung type, Waterloo Boy Trailer type.

The demonstration will start promptly at 10 a. m. after the taking of an official photograph. It will continue until noon when an intermission of one hour will be allowed. When the plowing is completed, harrows and discs will be used to put the ground in condition. All of the tractors entered will pull either two or three plows. These are the sizes which are proving popular in this section.

The demonstration is in no way competitive, except as to quality of work done, and each visitor will be called on to decide for himself as to his favorite machine. The demonstration will be the best opportunity that has yet been given in the East to observe several modern steel horses at work in one field at the same time.

CONDITION OF TROOP CAMPS AT BORDER O. K.

NEW YORK—Troop camps along the border and in Mexican territory are in excellent condition, officers here and sanitation are improved according to a report made public by Dr. Richard Pearson Strong of Harvard University. Dr. Strong made an extended tour of all the border camps at the request of Acting Secretary General Brindley of the War department. He was accompanied by Robert Bacon, formerly secretary of state.

BANKERS TO MEET AT STATE CAPITAL

COLUMBUS, O.—There will be a notable gathering of leading lights in the American banking world at the annual convention of the Ohio Bankers' Association to be held here September 12-14, according to Stacy B. Franklin, secretary of the association.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Comments By

Rev. Ernest Bourrier Allen, D.D.
Pastor of the Washington St.
Congregational Church and the Marion Lawrence Sunday School, Toledo, Ohio.

For August 13, 1916

Lesson Title: "The Grace of Giving."
Lesson Text: II Cor. 9. Memorize vss. 10, 11.

Golden Text: "In all things I gave you an example, that so laboring ye ought to help the weak, and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, it is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20: 35.

I. The Pacemaker.

Paul says, "In all things I gave you an example." His example was a stimulus to their action. He thus became a splendid pacemaker in generosity. There are such men in every community and church. They start off good causes by a good word and a solid subscription. Others, following the cause succeeds. Are you such a pacemaker in your church and community? Or do you have to be primed like an old pump before you yield up anything?

It is a good thing to compare your gifts with those of people less fortunate. There are poor washerwomen who give more proportionately than their employers. I know of such cases. It is surprising also to know that the Christians in foreign lands often give more sacrificially than those at home. Look up the gifts of your own church, not the gifts to its support, on which you get more than value received, but its gifts for others. You will discover the need of a larger vision.

We think our nation is doing a great deal for the suffering peoples of Europe. The facts are that we are far behind other nations, while many of our people are making enormous profits out of war conditions. We have thus far given about $7,000,000 for relief of stricken Belgium. Meanwhile, England, (spending $30,000,000 a day for war expenses), is giving $5,000,000 every month for the relief of the people of Belgium. And France is giving $4-500,000 every month. In view of such gifts, the United States cannot be proud or satisfied. We ought to put $500,000,000 into stricken Europe as soon as the war is over, to supply food, seeds, agricultural implements, clothing and houses. We could do it if we cared. It would only take what we propose to spend in one year for our increased army and navy. It would be a better investment in promoting peace.

II. Methods of Raising Money.

There are folks who buy a church dinner ticket for fifteen or twenty-five cents, eat a hearty meal, then go away and brag of the way they have helped the church! Not so! They made no gift! They got value received! The real givers were the people who donated the food and did the work. If any money was made, they deserve the credit and not the man who ate his quarter's worth or more.

Are bazaars and suppers a proper way in which to raise money? Some think so and others do not. I am inclined to think they are proper, if fair value is given and no gambling permitted. But there is a better way, viz, straight out and out giving. But these other methods have a place, if kept secondary, and fairly handled.
The motive must be measured. Suppers serve certain social needs, if no money is made. Some homes can furnish food for a supper where the short-sighted husband will not permit money to be given. The best way to raise money, when a Christian is free to act for himself, is for each one to tithe his income. Young people will do well to begin this method early, as soon as they begin to earn money. All we have comes from God. Some part ought to be given to him every week. Do you regard yourself as generous or "close?"

III. The Blessedness of Giving.

One of the greatest utterances in the world's history is this: "It is more blessed to give than to receive." The people who understand it are the people who practice it. If you think it isn't true, try it out for yourself.
Giving something of yourself to those who need help is a great joy-bringer.
If it is hard for you to start it, keep at it until the blessing comes. Small and regular doses will make you well!
Investments in friendship are eternally good.

It matters not that the world is round if you are on the square.

The true secret of feminine beauty is to be born pretty.

Authentic records show that cinders from a forest fire in the treetops of northern Washington last fall were carried twenty miles.

WHAT THE DEUTSCHLAND MAY ENCOUNTER ON HER TRIP BACK HOME

THE DEUTSCHLAND SUBMERGING

Mr. G. A. Coffin, the marine artist of note, presents a drawing showing the German submarine Deutschland submerging. Unexpectedly the British scouts have sighted the U boat and the Germans make haste to get under water and safety, but not before the big guns begin to speak.

ELOPERS FIGURE IN DIVORCE SUITS

Figures Compiled of Those Who Go to Jeffersonville, Ind., to Wed Louisville, Ky.—Divorce proceedings follow about half the couples from this county who slip away to be married in Jeffersonville, Ind., across the Ohio river from this city. Only about 10 per cent of the couples residing in this county who marry here find their way to the divorce court. This is given as one of the discoveries from an inquiry into the question of marriage and divorce conducted by the Men's Federation of Louisville.

The approximate number of licenses issued in Jeffersonville each year is set by the federation at 2000. Of these the women named in 1950 of them are residents of this county and 450 live in out of parts of Kentucky. Of the remaining 2500, license issued annually in this county 10 per cent name women residents in this county, 20 per cent living in other counties of this state and the balance in various states.

The Men's Federation points out that the Indiana law permits a girl of 18 to marry without the consent of parents or guardian, while in Kentucky this cannot be done until she is 21 years old.

"Another contributing cause," the federation says, "is the desire in many instances on the part of couples of all ages to keep the marriage a secret; and furthermore for some reason or other, through the years there has come to be attached to the idea of eloping to Jeffersonville, Ind., to be married a sort of romance, and many couples particularly from Jefferson county, Ky., go to Jeffersonville to be married for no other reason than, or account of the romantic feature that is attached to such a marriage."

"These 'romantic' marriages are often conceived on the spur of the moment and are consummated without the slightest consideration of the seriousness of the step which is being taken. Furthermore, it is often a true in a condition, financially or otherwise to take upon themselves the responsibilities of marriage."

One of the conclusions reached is that "if the marriage is opposed by the parents of the female, there is general speaking, some good reason therefor, and this reason may be the explanation for the ensuing divorce."

and should become the logical laboratory for testing out and putting into practice much that is taught in the schools, and that the schools by giving credit for home work can and should encourage boys and girls to become more directly helpful to their families. Educators, however, find some difficulty in defining just what work that the boy does on the farm should receive an educational credit and how many credits should be allocated for the different kinds of work which really help the boy to master progressive methods.

To assist the superintendents of schools and teachers, the specialists in Agricultural Education in the States Relations Service have recently published U. S. Department of Agriculture Bulletin 334, School Credit for Home Practice in Agriculture. This bulletin which may be had free by educators as long as the Department's supply lasts, devotes a number of pages to tables and examples showing the nature of school credit projects and the amount of credit to be granted.
It is recognized, however, that real cooperation on the part of the parent is essential and the author thus defines the part the parent must play in any plan for making school and farm work closer, together, in the interest of agricultural education.

The parent should agree: (1) To permit the pupil to use specified land, animals, and equipment, either as a temporary loan or a rental to the school; (2) To grant the pupil the time needed for the work; and to venture a judgment on the time record; (3) to construct the pupil in the necessary information so far as practicable; (4) to allow the pupil the profits derived from his own labor and management.
The last point is not always feasible, particularly where the pupil takes up one phase of the main business of the farm, such as the weighing and testing of milk for a dairy herd.

The parent must at least give an unbiased voucher of the time and expense record, and a statement that the project work was all done by the pupil. In the absence of an advisory committee or an inspector, the parent is the judge as to when the pupil has accomplished a task successfully.

Where the pupil's time is much needed by the parent in regular home duties it may be well to advise that the pupil take over some part of that home work as a project. This will insure the co-operation of the parents, although the "managerial" income may not come to the pupil.

The school should not only give credit for work for which the pupil receives pay, but should consider the relative income or profit as one important factor in determining the school rank given on the project.

To insure success, it will be very desirable to have a memorandum of agreement signed by all parties before the project begins; a report in full from the pupil, and a voucher from the parent at the end.

STRANGE ANIMAL IS CAPTURED

Resembles Alligator Crossed With Some Other Species

San Jose, Cal.—A strange freak of nature which some believe to be a young alligator, and others say cannot be classified under that head, has been captured in Soap Lake, near Gilroy, this county, by Leland B. Holloway. When handled, or otherwise aroused the thing emits a sound which is declared to be a cross between a back and a grunt. Holloway will take the freak to the University of California, where he will ask that an attempt be made to classify it. It is thought to be a hybrid originating in a cross between an alligator and some other animal. The old alligator is believed to have been discarded by some passing circus.

Household Hints

Canning Time Is Here.

All in Sterilization.
There are several good ways to can fruit. Many freak ways are invented annually.

Housekeepers who have once confused novel and scientific processes and paid the price in money of fermented fruit or bursted cans, generally stop experimenting and return to mother's safe way on steaming the fruit in sugar and water and sealing it up in the old can. Any good cook can put up fruit successfully after any method if she will study the first principles of canning.

The success of all canning processes depends upon perfect sterilization.

Destroyed by Heat.

To sterilize a substance is to kill all germ life. It means destruction of bacteria and sea life, minute organisms which exist in the air, water, soil, and on all vegetable and animal substances.

Bacteria and yeast can be destroyed by heat. Therefore all appliances used in canning, the stew pan, spoons, strainers, tumblers, bottles, and glass jars should be put over the fire in cold water, heated gradually, and boiled 10 or 15 minutes.

Jars should never be removed from the boiling water until they are to be filled. Use only fresh milk bottles. It is take a effort to save an old rubber ring at the bottom of sugar can, and then.

In Oven Cookery.

Where the fruit is cooked on top of the stove or in the oven is a matter of convenience and preference.

In oven cookery the fruit retains its shape, color, and flavor better than when cooked in the preserving kettle.

Cover the bottom of the oven with a sheet of asbestos, the kind plumbers use in covering pipes. If this is not to be had, put into the oven shallow pans containing about two inches of boiling water.

Sterilize the jars and cans. Make a sirup of sugar and water. Wash and otherwise prepare the fruit. Pack the hot jars with fruit and fill with sirup. Run blade of knife around the inside of jar.

Steaming Process.

Place jars in oven, either on the asbestos sheet or in the pan of water.
Have the oven moderately hot. Cook the fruit from 10 to 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and fill with boiling sirup.

Wipe jar and seal. Set jars upside down on a clean shelf out of a draft.
The next day tighten covers and seal edge with melted paraffin.

If fruits are to be canned by the steaming process, use a porcelain or aluminum preserving kettle and sterilize all utensils. Drop the prepared fruit into the sirup and boil gently until tender.

Heat It Gradually.

Fill sterilized jar, screw covers into place, invert cans over night, tighten covers, and seal edges with melted paraffin.

Fruit canned by any process is better if heated gradually to the boiling point.

No other canned fruit is quite so popular as the cherry, and there is none which can be put to so many practical and decorative uses.

As cherries cook quickly, it is often wise to can them by the steaming process.

For every pound of cherries, add a teaspoon of sugar and one-half ounce of sugar. Put the sugar into a porcelain preserving kettle and add a little water to dissolve.

Why P. Didn't Speak

The defendant in a case tried in western court had been duly convicted of murder when it was seen, on "proving previous convictions," that he had actually been in prison at the time the death was committed.

"Why didn't you say so?" angrily demanded the judge of the prisoner.

"Your honor," said the man apologetically, "I was afraid of prejudicing the jury against me."

NORTHVILLE, MICH., AUG. 11, 1916.

Posted in a well-known Detroit saloon is the following: "$50 is bet that Leland is defeated for nomination." This leads one to wonder why the saloons are so anxious to defeat Mr. Leland. It's a case once more of the saloon mixing in politics and trying to run the state government. Mr. Leland stands for the enforcement of the liquor laws and the saloons do not want the law enforced. They want to be winked at. Evidently that's why they are opposing Mr. Leland. Isn't it about time for the people to get busy and do a little thinking for themselves?

Lost: A gold-headed lady's umbrella, announces an advertiser by means of Thursday's Detroit News. A gold-headed lady might much better lose her umbrella than to lose her head, however. The bandits will get her, as she don't watch out.

Ben Franklin's (was it?) injunction "make hay while the sun shines" doesn't appeal to the farmers up Brighton way. They would like to but can't. Big fields of hay have been left uncut or given away because of the impossibility of obtaining sufficient help.

Fish are dying by hundreds in the lakes and streams of Oakland county. It is said that no cause has been discovered for this post-mortem mortality, so why not lay it to the war in Europe or else to one of the political parties?

Farmington takes an ice fudge. The local supply is practically exhausted and the weather hasn't been favorable for making more. It is certainly a pity that there is no factory for anybody's consideration.

The Milan L. Club has a list of students who were visitors last week at "Devil's Lake." Well, at least it couldn't have been as hot for them there as for the rest of us who stayed at home and anywhere in the rest parts.

It is announced that shoes are to be still higher. What's the use, since it's also proclaimed that skirts are to be longer? Maybe, however, the "higher" means price, after all.

One of the horrors of the present war is the flood of novels pertaining thereto that will be poured out on a defenceless public—in fact, the affliction is already in progress.

There are still a few people left who persist in asking "is this hot enough for you?" but they are rapidly being killed off by a frenzied public.

Another sad (?) result of the protracted "hot spell" is that the breweries can't keep up with their orders.

It will soon be Sunday all the week in Detroit—when Billy gets there.

event.

The first reunion of the class of 1913 was held in the C. L. Dubay cottage at Wall-lake Saturday afternoon, Aug. 5. A picnic lunch was eaten at five o'clock and the remainder of the time was spent socially.

Mrs. Alice Stone sold her restaurant and the cream business to the O. H. H. waiting room to a Detroit man the first of this week, but the purchaser retreated from his bargain next day, and made it with Mrs.
Stywo's while to take the business back.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson Dodge, of
"Cherry Blossom" and "The Gypsy Kicker," enacted here by local talent last winter and the preceding one for the Ladies Library board, have just written and successfully produced a new comedy in their home town, Ypsilanti.

As an illustration of the fact that women are nothing if not accurate in their shopping transactions, a Northville lady sent down town by a masculine relative the other day for a piece of trimming, and gave him a memorandum for the measurement of the same which read thusly: "9 feet, five inches and five fifths."

It is reported that Northville children playing on the sidewalks in front of their homes have been threatened by certain bicycle riders thereon to "keep out of the way or you'll get hurt." Evidently the threateners do not realize—or else think others don't—that they themselves are the trespassers, and liable to a fine for using the walks for bicycle traffic.

We learn through our exchanges that at least half a dozen flocks of sheep besides Mr. Hendry's have been raided by dogs recently in this section of the country. It appears somewhat strange that none of the depredators have yet been caught, except one on the Hunter farm near South Lyon. A watching employee there shot and killed one dog and wounded another as they attacked the sheep.

After three years of hard labor and success, M. A. Porter has resigned as manager of the Northville band. During those years Mr. Porter has brought the band as a musical organization to the front where it ranks well with any village band in the state. Under his management much also has been done towards boosting Northville, and the Saturday night open air concerts have proved a drawing card, the walks being filled with people and the streets with vehicles. In retiring, Mr. Porter is to be congratulated on so successful an outcome of his efforts.

STATE FAIR TICKETS
ON SALE HERE

Opportunity will be given the people of Northville and vicinity this year to again buy their state fair tickets at reduced prices through the office of this paper. The number who did so last year was very large and an aggregate saving of many dollars was the result. The tickets will be on sale up to Sept. 1, and at the same price as before—35 cents of three for $1.00. The management is promising a better fair than ever, for this season.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Sarah J. Tubbs, a pioneer resident of Northville, died at the home of her son, Frank A. Tubbs in Mammoth Springs, Arkansas, August 3, at the age of 84 years and 7 months.

Mrs. Tubbs was born in Medina, New York, and came to Michigan with her parents when five years of age.
She resided in and near Northville continuously until two years ago when she went to live with her son.
She was married in 1850 to Seth A.
Tubbs who died 15 years ago, and was the mother of four children, two of whom survive, Fred H. Medland and Frank of Arkansas. Her father, the late Dennis Kingale, was prominently connected with the early history of Northville.

Many Lives Saved.
Out of 2,500 persons, who accepted the free annual medical examination offered by one of the large insurance companies, 50 per cent were found to be more or less out of order, most of the derangements being in the heart blood vessels and kidneys. Of those impaired, 44 per cent did not suspect it. In every case the family physician was informed of the trouble.
At the end of four years the death rate in this group of 2,500 was only 50 per cent of that reasonably expected by the actuaries.

Lang Talked Morse

Mr. Durfee was called out a few moments ago. Very likely he back soon. No, left no word; his departure was most hurried," said the police secretary at the reform party's headquarters.

Down on the street again Lang Davis halted irresolutely. Star men were not supposed to return with the excuse that the man they sought could not be found.

"Did you see Mr. Durfee come down a few minutes ago and notice which way he went?" he inquired of a taxi driver whose machine stood nearby.

"A guy came down those stairs and asked my partner to drive him to the Palms, and he said 'hurry like he meant it,' was the surprising reply."

Surprising because Hon. James Durfee was candidate for mayor on the reform ticket and was the man who, it was hoped, would relieve the graft-ridden city of some of its unsavory some things, among which was the Palms, a saloon used as political headquarters by the party then in power. Mr. Durfee was the Star's choice, and Lang Davis, the youngest reporter and cousin of the owner, greatly admired the fearless champion of temperance and city cleanliness.

"Be as quick as you can with the interview. You ought to be back by nine at the latest," Marshall, the night editor, had said.

Lang glanced at his watch. His cousin had given orders that the boy should be given no assignments to the Palms, but this was different. The reform candidate had often told of the work among the poor. Doubtless he had been recalled by some sad case. There might be another story for the Star, and Lang felt that he could afford to lose no stories. He was not as yet making the great reputation as a reporter which he had planned for himself.

Upon his graduation from high school he had been offered a position by his cousin, owner of the Star, and had eagerly accepted it, but found lack of experience a serious handicap. At home he had worked about the depot evenings and picked up considerable knowledge of telegraphy, but this was of little service now, except that it made him ready friends about the railroad offices, and once or twice led to his bringing in some work stories which were "heats" for the Star. Lang wished, however, that he had spent the time working about the office or gathering in the home paper; that at least, would have hoped a little with the new work.

He decided to follow Mr. Durfee to the Palms and secured his interview as quickly as possible.

To his brisk question the early bartender nodded an affirmative. "Back in the private room," he said. He had thought he recognized Lang as the boy's own son, or the young fellow would have received a different reception.

Following the direction of the man's nod, Lang walked down two hall until he came to a door with private scrawled in big letters. His hand on the knob, he hesitated. A voice that he knew well came to his ears. He swung the door open softly.

"We'll show these straight faced guys a real town, a real Paris! You make good with me."

"These words and the sight of Harrodsville's reform candidate looting back in one of the 'Shortcut' Moriarty's easy chairs, smiling across at the man whose shoutings to the city treasury had won him the cognomen of 'Shortcut,' and whose pernicious work had enabled the saloons and grafters to fasten themselves upon the city, stopped Lang at the threshold, but he did not stop more quickly than the man in the chair.

"Whi, Davis—er—Davis, glad to see you. What—er—what can I do for you?" stammered Durfee, his face going from pink to white, and back to a deep red as Lang continued to stare at him without speaking.

"Speak, can't you?" shouted Shortcut, turning on the young fellow. "Durfee, who is this tongue tied fellow? Is he one of your men, or a 'blacked spy'?"

"Davis is connected with the Star—cousin of the owner," said Durfee, speaking with difficulty.

The pudgy face of the boss turned almost purple, and he glared at both Durfee and Lang, but as they were expecting him to break forth in a torrent of abuse, he controlled himself.

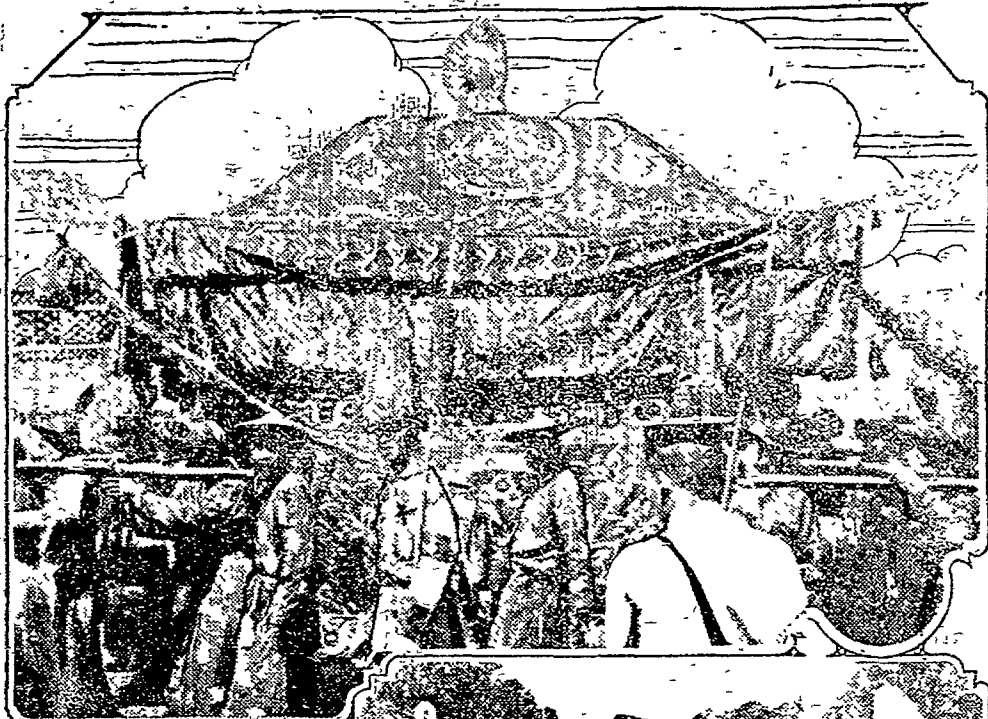

"Why couldn't you watch out for spies Durfee? You have played double so long you think no one can catch you. Now I've got to help you to save myself. Hank! Dick!" he roared.

At the words two men came running down the hall and burst into the room. Rough and tough enough they looked.

"Just a moment," said Moriarty, turning his evil little eyes on the boy. "Young I 'ny, what are you going to do if we let you out of here tonight?"

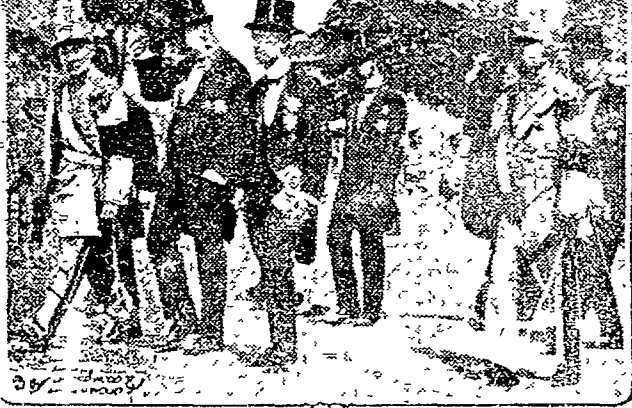

Lang's eyes passed from man to man. Dick and Hank looked ready enough to do the boss's bidding, whatever it might be. Durfee's eyes had turned hard and cold, reflecting the real nature of the man, now that his mask was off. Shortcut's eyes held their ugly gleam.

Would they let him go if he promised to keep the shameful secret of the city's betrayal? For an instant he was tempted to promise. A promise under such circumstances, when the only course of his soldier's father

The funeral procession of Yuan Shi Kai, the late president of China, which was attended by official representatives of all the nations, was held behind the walls of Tartar in China's forbidden city. Throughout the world Yuan was respected by foreign governments, mainly through his expert handling of the difficult Chinese situations which have followed one another in recent years in rapid succession.

came to the front. Election was but one day away.

"I shall return to the Star office and tell exactly where I found Mr. Durfee and repeat his remarks."

The reform candidate ripped out a savage oath. "That will mean that the Star will spread the news so loud that even your help won't elect me, Moriarty."

"It will mean more, much enough," growled Shortcut, and Morley's home, if it will do you any good to know you Star man. Put him up against him and throw him in that closet until the streets are empty; then haul him over to Mike's in a taxi, and see that he is kept mum until you have my word to do something else."

Lang made a lightning flight, although he knew that the odds were too many for him, and was well beaten for his temerity. Bruised, bleeding, faint, unconscious, and suffering pain from the torn handkerchiefs forced between his teeth, the young reporter was tossed unceremoniously into the far corner of the closet, and the door slammed shut.

For a long time there was no sound from either adjoining room; then the door beyond the closet was entered by two men, both of whom Lang judged to be more or less intoxicated. Thru a little crack at the bottom of the thin boarding their voices came quite plainly and something familiar about the tones of one caught his attention.

"Must be going, old man," said one of the men, rising unsteadily. "You better come along too. Your trick pretty quick now."

"Let old telegraph job hang!" murmured the man whose voice was vaguely familiar. "Tell chief I am sick. Tell him run over by auto. Tell him Brady's awful tired and is going to sleep."

Brady! Lang had known Brady back in the some town and later in the city office where he was employed Obviously the operator had allowed his one weakness to get the better of him. Lang decided for the other man to leave for he well knew Shortcut's hold over the regular labor of the office. The reporter need expect no help. Twice he tried with his fingers to tap out a call in the Morse code. His hands, numb and loud, refused to do his bidding.

Then a flash of inspiration came to him. He remembered a fact he had worked with Brady when they were working together.

In spite of the fact that he had been in the city for a long time, he had never seen Brady. He had heard of him, of course, but he had never seen him. He had heard of him, of course, but he had never seen him. He had heard of him, of course, but he had never seen him.

"In, in, in!" Over and over he made the letters.

"Now what?" that? he heard Brady mutter. "Since when did old Shortcut install a thing to make a telegraph call by word of mouth?"

"It's Lang, speak low," came from the closet, still in the Morse.

Habit was stronger than drink. Brady had been an operator for twenty years, and dots and dashes in any form dominated his mind. Sobbing rapidly he dropped on his knees and crept to the closet wall.

For half an hour the young reporter talked Morse, and the old reporter rarely interrupted. Twice some of the rough attendants yelled at Lang to stop groaning and several times to allow suspicion Brady had to order drinks, which he immediately poured upon the floor.

Then, seeing the part of a much intoxicated, but still happy individual, Brady wandered out of the place and reached the back corner. A taxi was crossing the street, and a moment later the operator was inside and speeding toward the Star office.

NEWS OF MICHIGAN TROOPS AT CAMP

Camp Ferris Grayling, Mich., Aug. 2.—Michigan troops will not leave Camp Ferris under present orders until the latter part of August according to Major F. L. Wells, senior military officer.

Advices that mosquito-bays would not be here until August 31 were received today.

"Unless the order that all the troops must be equipped with everything, including mosquito bars, is waived, we shall not get out until the last of the month," Major Wells said.

EL PASO, TEX.—Michigan troops tomorrow have entered upon the first stage of the three months' duty which has been laid out for them by the war department.

For the month of August, the work will be confined to company drills. Each company must devote three and one-half hours a day to this work. Besides the drill lectures on military discipline and courtesy will be delivered.

The new order requires that everyone must engage in the work with the exception of the sick, guards, cooks and one non-commissioned officer in charge of quarters. This would relieve the cook of all assistants such as kitchen police and mess sergeants, and would work a hardship on the entire company. To alleviate this condition, Colonel Barlow has addressed a letter to General Bell asking that sufficient help to care for the mess be allowed to remain in camp.

In view of the fact that drill quarters in camp are inadequate to the work in hand, most of the companies will be ordered to the distant points such as the park and mesa, where the exercises will be held.

FOREST FIRES RAGE IN NORTHERN MICH.

Mr. Pearson says that 10,000 acres now have been swept and that 100,000 acres will have been burned before the close of this state week. That there will be a rapid state investigation of the origin of these fires with a certainty of prosecution was Mr. Pearson's positive statement Wednesday. The chief warden says that had his own orders and those of A. Higgins, state chief locomotive inspector, not been disregarded the fires would not have started.

FOR COUNTY TREASURER

WILLIAM H. GREEN, JR.

The office of county treasurer has brought out a field of candidates for nomination. The office is one of importance, requiring a certain amount of schooling and adaptability. Mr. William H. Green, Jr., is chief clerk in the county auditor's office. A number of years, has had a training that has especially qualified him for the position of county treasurer. He is thoroughly familiar with all departments in county affairs. He has made a host of friends, both throughout the city and county by his prompt and courteous manner in the position he holds. His method of dealing with old or young, rich or poor has pointed him out as a man in a class by himself, and one well worthy of promotion. His record in business and in public office has been one of uprightness and integrity, and in every way qualifies him for the promotion he is now seeking.
