VOL. XLVII. NO. 7.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 8, 1916.

$1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

Famous Band to Give Concerts at the State Fair

LIBERATI'S BAND.

G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, announces that A. Liberati will bring his famous band and grand opera singers to Detroit for the annual exposition, and concerts will be given daily. Liberati's company is composed of forty-six musicians, including vocalists of marked ability. Concerts will be given every afternoon and evening of the fair, which opens on Labor Day, Sept. 4, and continues for ten days.

AGAIN AT THEIR DAILY GRIND

IN OUR CITY SCHOOL WITH SUPT. MISENER AT THE HELM

AND AN ABLE AND EFFICIENT CORPS OF ASSISTANTS.

School opened Tuesday Sept. 5, for the 1916-1917 term. About 350 pupils enrolled, 35 of which were foreign. The grades are housed as last year in the school house and in the temporary building in the rear. On account of the illness of Miss Whitcomb, the Kindergarten will not open until October 1.

A slight change has been made in the grading. The Seventh and Eighth grades now being placed as the Junior High, doing away with the two grades. Upon completion of the new high school building these pupils will be placed there and will go to various rooms for classes in the manner of the regular high school students.

The corps of teachers with Supt. O. M. Misener at the helm are: Principal—B. A. McCloy. Science—Miss McCray. Languages—Miss Finney. Arts—Pauline Weston. Eighth—Margarette Weiler. Seventh—Amy Pepper. Sixth—Erma Redfield. Fifth—Carrie Fizzle. Fourth—Anna Flynn. Third—Susie Woolley. Second—Evelyn Deroyshire. First—Mary Ellen Munro. Kindergarten—Beatrice Whitelem.

FORMER NORTHVILLE RESIDENT KILLED.

John E. Morse, 76 years of age, for many years a resident of Northville and vicinity, was struck by an automobile truck on Hamilton boulevard in Detroit last Friday, and died in the Ford hospital a short time afterward. Mr. Morse was a member and officer of the local Post G. A. R. while living here. In former years he taught singing school in Novi and other places, and at one time, assisted by his wife, he edited a newspaper in Delray. Mr. Morse was a man of much mental ability, and had been a contributor to the Michigan Farmer and other papers during recent years.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters. He was the son of a Methodist clergyman who was well known in Oakland county a generation or two ago.

DESERVED RE-APPOINTMENT.

The re-appointment by Gov. Ferris of R. E. Barron of Howell as State Oil Inspector will meet with general approval. Mr. Barron has made a fine record in this responsible position, attending to its duties faithfully and efficiently. In the earlier days of the establishment of this department of state supervision, attempts were made to discredit it as a necessity but the substantial revenue it has brought to the state and the great decrease in accidents caused by illuminating oils has proven a complete answer to all such objections.

Threw Radium Away.

A servant in Berlin cleaning out a basin in a laboratory threw down the sink water in which had been placed $5,000 worth of radium.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)

Morning service at 10 o'clock. Topic: "Every Man a Genius."

Sunday school at 11:30. The teachers and officers are specially urged to be present that our fall work may begin with the regular corps of workers on hand. Parents are urged to send their children and of course to be present themselves.

Christian Endeavor will meet at 6 o'clock. Now that our vacation is over let all Endeavorers be present at this meeting and help start the fall work with enthusiasm.

Evening service at 7 o'clock. Subject: "The Disciple and the Cloud of Witnesses."

The pastor and family have had a very delightful vacation and are now ready for the work of another year. It is to be hoped that the members of the congregation have also enjoyed their rest and that they are ready to assume their usual tasks. The best way to show our readiness is to be present in large numbers at all the services of next Sunday. Large congregations for next Sunday would surely be most heartening to the pastor and be of greatest inspiration to the congregation. This is a personal appeal to every Presbyterian reader of this notice and may it have the desired effect.

The Presbyterian Ladies' Aid society will hold an apron and bake sale Saturday, September 30 in the church parlors.

The Christian Endeavor society will hold its regular business meeting in the church parlors this Friday, evening, at 7:30 o'clock. Everybody urged to be present.

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Missionary society will be held at the home of Mrs. T. H. Turner next Wednesday afternoon. This is the mid-year meeting and it is requested that the monthly offerings be brought in for the half-year. At the close of the meeting there will be a social hour, and light refreshments will be served. A good attendance is especially requested, as the work for the last half of the year must now be taken up.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)

Next Sunday is the last Sunday of the conference year. Every member and family of the church is urged to help make it the best. The holy communion will be celebrated at the morning service. "In Remembrance of Me" will be the sermon topic.

Don't forget your place in the Sunday school. No one can fill it but you. The ranks in all the classes are filling up. Let every member fall in line.

The Epworth League will meet at 6 o'clock. It will be a Rally Day service, and Mr. Roy G. Clark, the president, will have charge. All young people welcome.

Evening service of praise and worship at 7 o'clock. If you are a stranger in town, or if you have no other church home, you are invited to all the services of the church and a cordial welcome will be yours.

Our mid-week service was suspended this week in the interest of the great bible class rally which was held in the Sunday tabernacle in Detroit, Thursday evening.

The Ladies Aid society will meet with Mrs. James Clark on Tuesday, Sept. 12. Automobiles will be provided for all who wish to attend and will start from the church at 1:30. The "Dollar Raisers" are to be returned at this meeting.

ST. PAUL'S LUTHERAN CHURCH.

No services at Northville next Sunday. The pastor will preach at a celebration near Wyandotte on that day.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)

The messages for Sunday have not yet been announced to the pastor, however we feel confident they will reach us in due season. The good Lord only knows what Northville needs for the next message. We have a strange mixture of people. We have the good, the bad and the indifferent. We have prodigals and we have a goodly number of those elder brethren who claim they have never at any time transgressed God's law. They are without spot or blemish. If all were as good as they we could close the churches for lack of material to work upon. Then some seem to think sin is only a joke anyway, and that there is anything to it, they will sleep off the old image of Satan before the resurrection. Yes, you can sleep off some things, but not the old sinful nature. There is just one place to get rid of him, viz. at the cross.

We cordially invite you to our services. If we hit any sensitive spots on you, just keep still and profit by it. After you hear us a while you may be able to hear Billy Sunday with greater comfort.

W. R. C. NOTES.

(By Press Correspondent.)

The next regular meeting of the W. R. C. will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 13, in Cattermole hall, at 7:30 o'clock.

Death has again entered the ranks of our comrades of A. M. Harmon Post No. 318, and taken one of their Past commanders John W. Morse, who answered the long lost roll call Sept. 1. Much sympathy is felt for his family. Mrs. Morse was at one time press correspondent for the W. R. C. of Northville.

When the Tigers Play in Detroit.

Following are the dates for the Tiger ball games in Detroit: Sept. 6, 7, 8, 9, with St. Louis. Sept. 13, 14, 15, with New York. Sept. 16, 17, 18, with Philadelphia. Sept. 19, 20, 21, with Boston. Sept. 22, 23, 24, 25, with Washington. Last game at Detroit Sept. 25. Last game played, Oct. 1 at St. Louis.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Like a breath of air from a tube rose-scented garden is "The Cinderella Man," Oliver Morosco's production of Edward Childs Carpenter's comedy in which Shelly Hull, Phoebe Foster, Frank Bacon and the original cast that appeared at the Hudson theatre, New York, will come to the Garrick theatre, Detroit, for the week commencing Monday evening, with the regular matinees on Wednesday and Saturday.

Dancing Saturday night in Princess rink, good music. 7w1c.

A QUIET WEDDING.

One of Northville's most prominent and popular business men, Thomas E. Murdock, and Mrs. Cora Boss of Metamora, Ohio, were united in marriage last Saturday noon, Sept. 2, at the Presbyterian parsonage, by Rev. J. E. Webber. After enjoying a short trip to Canada, Mr. and Mrs. Murdock returned the first of this week to their home here, accompanied by the former's daughters, the Misses Lydella and Margaret, who had been spending the summer with relatives in Canada. Mr. Murdock's many friends here are wishing the family all good luck and happiness in their new relation.

ORPHEUM THEATRE, DETROIT.

"A Day at Ocean Beach," a musical travesty offered by a company of 14 people. Stuart, the male Patti, and the Empire Comedy Four are the principal features on the Orpheum vaudeville bill for the coming week starting Monday afternoon.

Feature films will be offered before and after the vaudeville while this week, on both Thursday and Friday nights a Ford car will be sold to some patron each evening for $1.00. Two Ford cars are being sold this week because of an error in the selection of a purchaser last week.

NOTICE.

The plumbing business formerly run under the firm name of Carpenter & McCordie, will be carried on in the future by the undersigned. All bills due previous to this date (Aug. 18), are payable to the latter. I also wish to thank the patrons for the business given the former company during the past, and will appreciate all work given me in the future. Phone 49 J. T. W. McCordie.

"MARRYING PARSON" DEAD

HE HAD HOTEL BUILT ON LINE OF TWO STATES TO AID SWEETHEARTS

WED 5142 COUPLES IN 25 YEARS

Married-Couples on Street Cars, in Buggies, and on the Border Line

Bristol, Tenn.—The Rev. Alfred Harrison Burroughs, the "Marrying Parson" of Bristol, is dead at the age of 82 years. The Rev. Mr. Burroughs resigned from the active ministry 25 years ago to establish what was probably the most famous marrying place in the United States. He built and equipped a hotel for the exclusive use of married couples, and he lived on it, his only business being to perform the marriage ceremony for 5142 couples.

He was called "Parson" Burroughs and was known over the states, in particular and throughout the United States in general as the "Marrying Parson."

The majority of the couples who came to him were from states where the laws prohibited the marriage of persons under 21 without parental consent.

"Parson" Burroughs believed that the wishes and consent of the contracting parties was all that was necessary to make a marriage and so he did not bother much about the legal aspect of the matter so far as to remain within the laws of the state in which he resided.

He had devoted himself to this unique occupation for a half century of his life. His hotel has long since been sold and a new one built. The new hotel is the property of the United States Hotel Association of Bristol, Tenn., and the Rev. Mr. Burroughs is now in the hands of the law.

Every room in the new hotel is a bridal chamber. It is a square room with a bed in the center. The room is furnished with a bed, a table, a chair, and a wardrobe. The room is clean and comfortable. The hotel is a popular place for married couples.

"Parson" Burroughs performed marriages under every conceivable circumstance. He was a man of the street, a man of the hotel, a man of the law. He was a man of the people. He was a man of the world. He was a man of the church. He was a man of the state. He was a man of the nation. He was a man of the world.

He went to his death believing that he had the worlds record for the number of people united in marriage by a single individual.

Marriage for revenue only as interpreted by "Parson" Burroughs proved a lucrative vocation when compared to the average salaries paid to ministers of the Gospel. He had amassed considerable competence out of his unusual calling. So general became his fame that not infrequently he was called upon by from one to four couples at one time—one ceremony, and one blessing answering for all. Only recently he was called upon to marry five couples with a single ceremony. He had barely concluded this service when two more pairs of young people were ushered into the reception room, requesting the immediate service of the man who had earned the title of "Marrying Parson."

COMMITTEE OF BROTHERHOOD OF R. R. EMPLOYEES

Left to right: W. S. Carter, Wm. S. Stone, W. G. Lee and A. B. Barretson. These men represented 400,000 railroad employees in presenting their demands for an eight-hour day at the present ten-hour pay.

The services performed by Parson Burroughs have resulted in many romances and marital affairs. It is generally believed that the hotel was a place of romance. It was a place where many young people found love and marriage.

Late fathers have been known to follow their living daughters over mountain snows and across mountains, sometimes to capture and take them back, but more frequently to learn that the couple had arrived at the altar ahead of him.

"I have been criticized," said this old parson shortly before his death, "for marrying many young couples before they were old enough to be married. But I believe in a rule that says that the young people should be married as soon as they are old enough to be married. I believe in a rule that says that the young people should be married as soon as they are old enough to be married. I believe in a rule that says that the young people should be married as soon as they are old enough to be married."

Of the thousands of couples married at my place during the last quarter of a century, so far as I have been able to trace, only about a dozen have been divorced. I do not believe that the marriages made at home will compare favorably with this record.

SPRING TURNED INTO BATHTUB

Former Popular Drinking Pool Now Barber Shop Attraction.

Bothan, Ala.—This city was once known as Poplar Springs, but at that time it was only a crossroads drinking place, but a favorite one with travelers. The same beautiful spring is now enclosed in a local barber shop, and is used as a bathtub. The cold water bathers are clamoring, however, for a hot water pipe, as they claim the flow of water is not too frigid for less rugged or timid humanity.

Jackson, Mich.—John Callor of Parma unexpectedly became an inmate of the Michigan state prison when a hot car in which he had crawled to sleep off a jag was switched inside the prison walls. A guard found Callor and now he is serving time in jail.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Comment-By
Rev. Ernest Bourner Allen, D. D.,
Pastor of the Washington Street
Congregational Church and the Marion Lawrence Sunday School,
Toledo, Ohio.

LESSON FOR SEPTEMBER TENTH

Lesson Title: "The Arrest of Paul"
Lesson Text: Acts 21: 17-40.
Memorize vs. 31, 32.

Golden-Text: "Thou shalt be a witness for him unto all men of what thou hast seen and heard." Acts 22: 15.

I. The Perils of Supposing.

The Record says that the multitude was stirred up because they "supposed" that Paul had brought a Gentile into the temple, thereby defiling that holy place. As a matter of fact Paul did no such thing. The action of the crowd, however, was just as hateful and murderous as tho he had really done what they "supposed." The result was that just as they were seeking to kill him, the chief captain took soldiers and centurions and scattered the mob. Paul was bound with two chains while the captain asked a question of the people "and some shouted one thing, some another, among the crowd." Inasmuch as the captain could not understand for the uproar, he commanded them to bring Paul to the castle. Meanwhile the mob shouted, as they had about Christ, "Away with him!" And so it all happened because the mob "supposed!"

A great many things would have gone differently if we had not "supposed." Sometimes we get ourselves into a great deal of trouble because we "supposed" that others did not like us, or have said evil things about us. If all the trouble which has come into the world because people "supposed" could be done away, very little trouble would remain. Be careful what you "suppose."

II. The Use of Military Force.

When the chief captain brought the soldiers to protect Paul the civil authorities were superceded. Of course Rome was master and the Jewish civil government only a form. There is suggested, however, the interesting question: When shall military force supersede civil authority?

In a democracy like our own we contend that the state transcends the army. We realize the perils of military power. We think we are in no danger of desiring to be like Europe. The events of the last months however have shown that we are reaching out toward a military type of life. At this writing, bills have passed the Senate appropriating $885,000,000 for our army and navy next year. It is a vast sum to spend, if it is sanctioned by the House. It is more than any European nation was spending before the war! It is a time when thoughtful people need to think clearly and courageously about the outcome. Shall we give up our old ideals and copy Europe? Or shall we recognize the deeper values which lie in friendship and send our millions to Europe to help the stricken nations get some value of them?

III. Pride in Race and Citizenship.

In Paul's address after his arrest he says: "I am a Jew of Tarsus, in Cilicia, a citizen of no mean city." Paul was proud of his race and his citizenship. Are you? How far is the recognition and cultivation of race pride an advantage? What was Paul's obligation as a Jew under his Roman citizenship? What are the obligations of aliens to their adopted country? Shall we permit the theory that aliens in the United States are primarily under obligation to their home countries? Have we not come to the time when we must demand all these unnaturalized millions a definite loyalty to the land which gives them every opportunity?

IV. Turning Arrest to Opportunity.

Not many men would think their being thrown into jail was an opportunity to speak for Christ. Paul asked the chief captain if he could speak to the people and the captain was surprised because Paul spoke in Greek. He was not looking for an educated man in his prisoner. So far from being discouraged at his arrest, Paul makes splendid use of it to bring a message to the people. He was constantly turning all of his troubles into larger opportunities for witnessing for Christ.

Something of that sort every Christian ought to do. "We can use our sorrows and defeats in the same way. Every defeat is a challenge to a new fight. Into the new fight will go all of the experience of the previous loss. It ought to make us better and braver fighters. Paul had heard the word which said: "Thou shalt be a witness for me, unto all men, of what thou hast seen and heard." So God is speaking to us. Men are waiting for our witness. The world will never be evangelized until we take up our opportunity to speak for Jesus Christ.

Fashion Notes for Fall

Skirts Continue Fall.

Jackets are both long and short and much fullness is noted in the skirts, which are all short.

Fancy coats are shown for afternoon wear.

Longwaisted Dresses.

In the early fall dresses there is much draping with the back bodice having flat panels. Waistlines are low, giving the longwaisted effect and Pagoda sleeves are featured.

Satinized crepe velvet and moiré are the fabrics used and much black is combined with white wool and flit effect embroideries.

Backs of Evening Dresses Irregular.

The evening dresses are exceedingly full in back and are caught up regularly with big knots. They have square or double trains and the cut-sanges are bright and contrasting.

The New Colors.

Some of the new colors are purple, brown, green, sapphire, flame mauve and violet mixed with plain or shot brocade and metallized silk.

Metallic Trimmings a Feature.

The trimming materials constitute supply satin, moiré and lame brocade. Metallic laces are extravagantly employed for evening dresses over brilliant colored nets. Embroideries, elaborate with metal design, are also seen to a large extent, and wonderful combinations of jetted and spangled effects. There will be more details given of the models shown at this opening later.

Marvelous embroidery and many big tassels of either pearls or silk, besides gold or thin black lace and elaborate furs, are other embellishing features.

Ostrich, Spangle and Flower Trimming.

As a pleasing variation from the use of fur, ostrich feathers are introduced. Brilliantly colored spangles and some handsome flowers as trimming for formal gowns, are also noted.

Velvet Mantles With Fur Collars.

Evening mantles are in rich velvet embroidery, with collars of fur that are not exaggerated in height, however.

Combination Hats a Feature.

An increasingly large number of combination hats are being explored. These hats combine the use of different materials such as velvet, with plush, velvet and silk, silk brocade and velvet, or fur and velvet; in fact combinations are many and varied, but velvet seems to be the staple note of each.

Poke Hats and Sets.

The noticeable feature in the new poke shapes is the large puff crown. As an added feature, they are making up a great many sets, consisting of the hat and bag. The hat of one very attractive set being featured is a poke of purple velvet, with broad color ribbon pulled around the crown and trimmed with six rows of very narrow purple ribbon. Two large tassels of purple silk fall off the brim on the low side. The set to match above the upper part of the bag of purple velvet drawn together with ribbon handle on purple crocheted fringe. Brass eared ribbon with the bandings of purple ribbon, double ring the set forms the lower portion of the bag.

Veils Popular.

The vivid fluffy veillings are being worn once more on small toques. The long flowing silk tulle and silk mesh veil is being worn by small people. These are coming in with a rush of very bright colors, contrasting with the costume in many instances. It seems the brighter the better. Among the most popular colors is a very vivid purple which is being effected by the tulle veils.

The new small toque is just the right thing on which to wear draped the long veil and is very popular at this time.

Two Tone Shoes and Cuban Heels for Fall.

Cuban heels are going to cut quite a figure in shoes for fall wear here. They will not replace the French heels, for every stock has its proportion of "Louis" heels, but they at least show a tendency to get back to something sensible.

The two-tone effect will be very popular. Mr. Pavson said, and one of the best will be a black glazed kid vamp, with ivory top. Of course, there will be many combinations other than this that will take well.

$10,000 GRIP KICKED AROUND

OWNER LOST IT FROM AUTO AND BAG WAS STORED IN HOTEL CLOSET

OWNER FOUND IT ONLY BY CHANCE

Heard of Farmer Who Picked Up Old Case and Then Traced It

Geneva, Kan.—An old grip lost from a motor car while the owner was driving in Rice county, handled by a dozen persons and finally thrown in to a dark closet in the Pacific Hotel here to await the call of its owner, has been restored to L. C. Rippey. He opened it in the presence of the land lady, who had kept it for him, the porter, who had thrown it into the rubbish heap, and the clerk, who had stumbled and fell over it before it was stored away. The eyes of the witnesses opened wide when they saw that the old grip was full of currency, the contents totaling more than $10,000. Rippey breathed a sigh of relief, turned to the man who had accompanied him and said:

"Now I'll pay you the rest of that farm before I lose it again!" Rippey lives at Ellis. He was to close the deal for a farm the afternoon he lost the grip with him. The owner wanted the price in cash, refusing to take a check. So Rippey, fearing robbery, put the money in the worn grip he had, threw it into the back end of the car and left town. When he reached the farm the grip and $10,000 was missing. He immediately retraced the route, but the grip was gone.

Instead of reporting the matter to the police Rippey remained silent, he hoping he would have a better chance to recover his money. He made no inquiries. The grip was found by a farmer, who took it to the hotel to await the call of its owner. It lay in a corner of the little office three days and nights—then was put in the storeroom, and when that place became crowded was thrown into an unused closet, where it lay until Rippey called for it.

Meanwhile Rippey met the farmer who found the grip and was told of it. He drove to the hotel, and describing the old suit case, asked if it still was there. The porter remembered it and the Ellis man soon was in possession of the price of the farm he had bought. Rippey gave Mrs. W. O. Wilson, the landlady, $5 as storage charges on the small fortune.

A Healthy Exercise

A lawyer still living at White Plains once called at Judge Barnard's house at Poughkeepsie to procure the Judge's signature to an ex parte order. He found the judge in his back yard, sawing wood, and after explaining the nature of his errand, offered the remark that the judge was indulging in good healthy exercise.

"Do you think so?" responded the judge, in an instant. "Well you use the saw while I go in and look over your papers."

The White Plains lawyer vows that the judge took precisely the time to look over his papers that it took him to finish all the wood in the pile to be sawed. And he had a vague impression that the judge was watching him thru the shutters all the time.

People who come to high words are apt to indulge in some low ones.

"REALISM" IN THREE NATIONALITIES

Literary crimes and misdemeanors ten estate at least some of Me About committed in the name of realism are than were hatched in the hedge, per-brought to the bar and punished by cock towns and gardens, as they sat in the Harvard Lampoon. Mary was quite severely concealed Lady. Realism in any language is mostly Mary was covering an expansive bunk, the Harvard comic magazine be-yawn with a torrent of such faith-heres. The difference between real-ists, while Lord John was busy tracing the picture of a fried snail in the work continues to be three cents a gravel with a gold toothpick.

"Burr Jove," he snorted, "I just The Lampoon, to indicate how the wagger you caught divine of what I'm leading nations are fooled by the same sort of stuff, presents three (X-press, you know, but it's something to amplex of compressed realism. Amer-ican realism runs something like this: Tom Harigun was camping out at the broadwalk city. He was some boy, was Tom, and a skirt never pleased him. Therefore when he slipped the glad hand to Flossie Dec-se he wasn't worried at all. Flossie was the best looking girl in Jernsd those pickings, so that Tom didn't have any. I'm showing-auntie the-Paris at night is gorgeous, fascinating and something better to be forgotten over her, so I-p. m. when they were chewing food in a swell cafe, he slipped the query."

"Want to get hitched to me, kid?" he asked.

"Bertha," she came back, and right away they copied a sky pilot and were coupled.

"English realism" is not much different about as bad, according to the Harvard magazine. It skips along but Jean, with a steely glint in his something like this, without music: Lord John and Lady Mary were on a stone bench on the great Darling.

"Ma chérie," he said, "one word from you and I am the happiest man in the world; otherwise I kill myself."

"Mon brave Jean," Yvonne began, but Jean, with a steely glint in his eye, had already drawn his scarfpin.

"Treacherous woman," he hissed, "you have said three words, not one."

Household Hints

Recipes and Advice of Interest to Housewives.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Turpentine is one of the most useful of washing aids. It will loosen dirt without the slightest injury to fabrics.

Don't wash stockings after other clothes, such as flannels, unless you want them covered with lint.

Don't use soiled soda for washing colored clothes unless you expect them to be muddy looking.

While fruit pies are baking they may be prevented from boiling over by adding one tablespoonful of corn starch to the fruit. The sugar, fruit, and cornstarch should be heated before adding the crust.

THE TABLE

Stewed Tomatoes and Corn—Stew and strain nice ripe tomatoes and to each two cups add one cup of tender green corn. Season with salt, pepper and butter. Cook together eight or ten minutes, then add one-half cup cream. Serve very hot.

Spanish Tomato Soup—One can tomatoes, four cups beef stock, one-half cup rice, seasonings. Boil till tender and strain. "Fine with noodles."

German Tomato Soup—Cut up one pound of breast of veal, add the bones one tablespoon butter, one onion and one carrot cut fine. Two cups of tomatoes and a green pepper. Season with salt and minced parsley, cover with three quarts cold water and simmer slowly two hours. Skim out the bones and add one-half cup boiled rice.

Tomatoes Stuffed With Macaroni—Scoop the inside from six large tomatoes and use it with a bay leaf and melted butter to make a tomato sauce, into this stir one-half cup boiled macaroni, season well, fill the tomatoes, put one teaspoon grated cheese on the top of each and bake twenty minutes or less. Garnish with crushed parsley.

Stuffed Tomatoes a la Duxell—Chop one onion, fry in butter, add a can of mushrooms drained and chopped salt, pepper and minced parsley, one-half cup bread crumbs and a well beaten egg. Moistened with stock or a little milk, if necessary, stuff six or eight tomatoes, and bake, basting with melted butter and not water.

Capri Tomatoes—Mix two cups soft bread crumbs with two heaping tablespoons grated cheese add salt and cayenne and one tablespoon melted butter. Fill six tomatoes with the mixture. Take rounds of bread and fry a delicate brown, arrange them at the bottom of a baking dish, and put a tomato on each round. Baste with melted butter and boiling water.

Tomato Peach Preserve—Peel twenty-four good sized ripe tomatoes, cut crossways and remove most of the seeds. Cook slowly one hour with one cup less of granulated sugar than you have tomatoes. Add ten large rather hard peaches that have been peeled and sliced thin, and cook about one hour longer. When done add one tablespoon vanilla extract.

Blueberry Roly Poly—This made with either the old-fashioned sweet crust or a good baking powder biscuit dough, filled with sugared and flamed berries and steamed, baked or baked, will delight the palate of the men folks and children.

Huckleberry Flinn Cake—Cream together half a cupful each of butter and sugar, add four tablespoonfuls of Indian meal and one of flour, a scant cupful of molasses and two thirds of a cupful of milk. Stir in a teaspoonful of baking powder, and last of all, two well-beaten eggs and a pinch of berries. Bake at once.

Blueberry Sauce—Mash a cupful of ripe berries, beat a cupful of sugar and half a cupful of butter to a cream. Beat the white of an egg to a stiff froth mix all these ingredients lightly together and serve the sauce at once. It should not be made until wanted for the table.

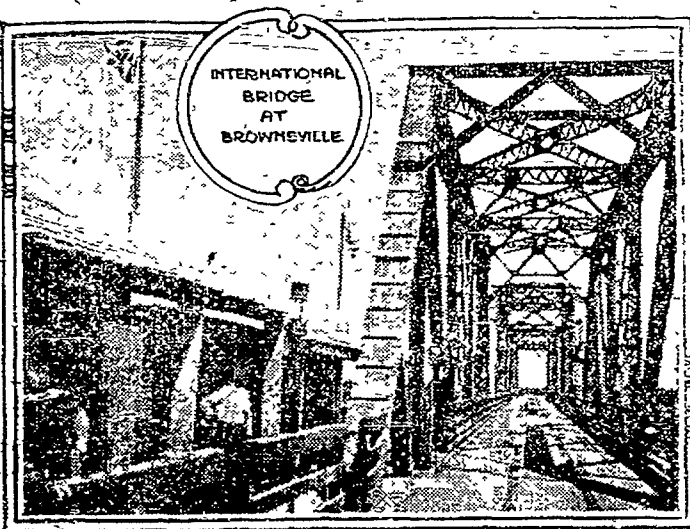

THIS SUFFRAGET IS A NO. 1 POLITICIAN

Mrs. John Glover South.

Mrs. John Glover South, a prominent suffragist of Kentucky, will be one of the delegates from her state to the emergency convention of the National American Woman Suffrage Association at Atlantic City, Sept. 6-10. Mrs. South is the daughter of Kentucky's first Republican governor, the late Senator William O. Bradley, and has been actively identified with suffrage politics in Kentucky. It was Mrs. South who was given credit for obtaining the endorsement of woman suffrage by the Kentucky delegation to the national republican convention.

ANOTHER FILM PERIL.

Most of the many objections that have been put forth against the moving picture craze of the present day have resulted in a whole lot of free advertising for this justly popular form of entertainment. Whenever some would-be reformer gets busy along the line of criticism of the motion picture habit, a lot more folks immediately go to see why they shouldn't go.

One condition, however, that film-making has produced hasn't been overlooked as yet, as a warning against the industry. But it is really true that in a lot of instances—as in the recent Burroughs robbery in Detroit—that people hardly dare to interfere in any kind of a mix-up lest they be made ridiculous by finding out that they are trying to stop the making of a picture. The film-makers will have to evolve some kind of a way to give notice when they are going to do realistic stunts on public streets or it will get so anybody can do anything anywhere and get away with it, as has been the case a good many times of late.

Post-mortem "kicks" amid the Oakland centennial are now in order, and the promoters of the festival are getting a lot of pointers on how to run the next one—a hundred years hence. Some of the features objected to were the street carnival attractions and the fact that the "King and Queen" chosen were Pontiac people which of course was a pinch.

As another penalty of Detroit's phenomenal growth our country is in need of unadmitted enlargement. It is not a matter of automobile speeders, however, the state is welling the coffers of the country towns almost to reptation. It is very hard for a lot of those fellows to learn that they can't do just as they please with "us village bumpkins."

Nearly everybody is back from his or her vacation if he or she had any—and the churches have resumed services. It is also to be presumed that his Satanic Majesty, who it is said, never vacations, is prepared to give just as much time to business as ever.

"More medicine for N. G. horses than men," says a headline in Detroit Saturday Night. Well, doesn't a horse have to have more medicine than does a man, when he has any?

What has become of all those something gasoline substitutes we read so much about at one time? Seems 'fif they had rather failed to sub. to any great extent so far.

Now that Mr. Wilson and Mr. Fairbanks have both been notified of their nominations, the suspense of the country has been greatly lightened.

HORSE POLO CONTESTS TO BE STAGED AT STATE FAIR

Detroit Athletes to Meet Teams From Other Cities.

It is announced by G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, that horse polo will be an innovation at the 1916 exposition, which will be held at Detroit, Sept. 4 to 13. The Detroit team is in excellent condition for strenuous contests, and arrangements are being made to bring teams from other cities to the Michigan metropolis. It is announced that Dayton and Buffalo will send teams to Detroit during the fair, and perhaps Cleveland will clash with the Detroiters.

It is planned to have one contest daily, and the Detroiters are busy getting their ponies in the best possible condition.

Mrs. Emma Wilbur, one of Farmington's pioneer citizens was suddenly stricken with death from a stroke of apoplexy Monday night about ten o'clock. She had been very active throughout the day and death came as a shock to all. The funeral was held from the Baptist church Tuesday at 3 o'clock. Rev. Brack of Northville officiating. Burial at Oakwood cemetery.

The Blue Sky Law of Michigan.

This is the popular designation of a law which went into effect in Michigan in 1915, was amended then re-enacted in part in 1916 and is now in effect. It has, as far as possible, any state may go toward protecting the people from swindling stock promotion. Will Payor in the Saturday Evening Post says:

"Not less than a hundred million dollars, in the opinion of those most competent to judge, is stolen from the people in this country every year by the sale of fake and wildcat securities. The postoffice department puts the sum rather higher. Virtually every one of the swindling concerns that prey upon ignorance and credulity to this staggering extent is 'duly incorporated' and possesses a charter under the great seal of some sovereign state, qualifying it to go out and rob as many suckers as it can find."

"Though nearly every state and territory will incorporate any sort of rank swindle that comes along, few states so far as I know, seriously attempt to protect their citizens from these stock-peddling pirates."

"In every state, of course, a purchaser of fake stock may sue for the recovery of his money—which is about as satisfactory as the privilege of suing a pick-pocket for the recovery of your watch."

WE BELIEVE in the "Blue Sky" law. And we notice that since the enactment of this law, fake stock-promotions have dwindled to a minimum in this state. Legitimate investment propositions are now the rule—such investments, as offered by the

The party included Mrs. Charles Lang and son of Grand Rapids and Mrs. Cable's daughter, Mrs. Bert Hannan of Wayne and Mrs. Edna E. Snyder of this place, also Mrs. Hannan's son. The car was driven by Mrs. Snyder.

Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Kimmel of Hillman, Montmorency county, former residents here, visited relatives and friends in town the first of the week. Mr. Kimmel was chosen as representative from his county, to arrange the fruit display at the state fair. Mr. Kimmel stated that Ralph Shafer of this place, who has been camping all summer in that section of the country, has gained 11 pounds in weight since going there.

On a Noble was treated to a surprise party last week Tuesday when thirty-seven members of Key-Stone Chapter O. E. S. motored out from Detroit, "armed" with plenty of materials to help the Captain celebrate his birthday. The surprise worked both ways, as the birthday proved not to be due until the following day, and the involuntary host absent from home, being busily engaged in primary election business at the town hall. Matters were finally adjusted, however, to the enjoyment of all concerned.

It's Smooth as Silk

A Talcum Powder containing the least particle of grit or foreign substance is not a proper powder to use on baby's tender skin—or on your own.

Before you accept a toilet powder rub a little on the back of the hand or on the tender part of the wrist—you will easily detect the presence of grit.

Apply this test to NIAL'S Toilet Talcum.

You will notice two things—its perfect smoothness and a delightful odor. It is a delightful powder in every way.

Its smoothness combined with its antiseptic properties leaves the skin soft and velvety—and free from irritation.

Mrs. C. J. Ball is able to sit up this week.

Mrs. Horace Green has been quite ill for a week or more.

The question of the week: Have you been or are you going to the fair?

Fred Simmons has purchased a new Olds "8" thru the F. S. Neal Agency.

Gus Wagner has purchased the Downer house and lot on West Main street.

The W. T. C. U. ladies will hold a bake sale in Huff's hardware store Saturday, Sept. 16.

Supp. Masear and family are occupying, for the present, Mrs. Melvina Carpenter's cottage on Cady Street.

Mrs. George Clark is improving her residence on Cady street by the addition of a bay window in the front and a large porch at the side.

The Milford fair is to be held Sept. 19 to 22, inclusive. The Northville band will furnish the official music during the fair.

A field of wheat near the P. M. depot belonging to Gus School, was recently destroyed by fire, supposed to have ignited from an engine spark.

Don't forget the benefit entertainment given by the Ladies Aid society of the Baptist church. Harold Jarvis will be on the program, Sept. 27.

Gee! How the Tigers are going.

Mrs. Electa Ambler, who has been ill, is somewhat better.

Are you going to the world series game at Detroit this year?

D. J. Stark and Wilbur Walker are attending the Detroit Business Institute.

Mrs. Eliza Tiemper and her brother, Mr. Sutphen, are both quite seriously sick.

E. J. Bradner has so far recovered from his long illness as to be able to sit up a part of the time.

Aaron Taft, who has been very sick at his home in Detroit, is reported better, which his many friends here are glad to learn.

A novelty in the watermelon line has been raised this year on the H. B. Clark farm. Instead of the usual pink color the luscious edible part of these melons is a golden yellow.

It has been suggested that much-needed improvements for our growing village (are) the putting up of new street signs throughout town and also placing numbers on all buildings, not already provided with legible figures for that purpose.

Charley Stanley and family have moved from the former Nichols house on Cady street to the house a few doors east, just vacated by Mr. and Mrs. George Grinnell. Mr. and Mrs. Grinnell now occupy rooms over the Palace meat market.

Traffic officer Lyke has been instructed by the council to request all owners of autos and other vehicles to park on the right hand side of Main and Center streets, at an angle of 45 degrees, thus giving more room for traffic on these principal thoroughfares.

Thirty-four people were entertained at the home of Miss Ora Perkins last Saturday evening. A picnic supper was eaten on the grounds (the Perkins home being the old North place on Randolph street) and later corn and "weenies" were roasted in a big bonfire. The affair was one of the jolliest ever.

Ever since April the Ambler and Scholtz ice cream manufacturing plant has been kept busy supplying the public with that cooling delicacy, of which the firm has made over 10,000 gallons. The possibility of such a big output is due to the up-to-date machinery which was purchased and installed in the early summer.

Mrs. Emma Wilber, who died suddenly of apoplexy, at her home in Farmington last week, had many friends here to whom she had become endeared through her long service in the work of the Wayne Baptist association. She was the mother of Clinton Wilber and a sister of Mrs. Minnie Wilber of Farmington.

Northville friends of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Merritt of Los Angeles, Calif., will be glad to learn that an intricate operation of muscle-grafting recently performed on their young son, Clarkson, gives every promise of restoring the boy's arm and leg to normal growth. It will be remembered that little Clarkson suffered an attack of infantile paralysis before the family left Northville, and like many other victims of this terrible disease now so prevalent, the child was left crippled, the limbs on the affected side failing to resume proper growth. The healthy muscles used in the surgical operation were taken from the patient's healthy limbs.

One of These Country Girls

By PAUL SCOTT MOWRER

Copyright by the Frank A. Munsey Co.

Presently the stranger got up and spoke to somebody who stood near. "He'll do, he'll do," Blane heard the stranger say. "Keep him perfectly quiet, and yes, his pulse is—"

The rest was lost to Blane for even as he listened the doctor's less returned upon him.

This time it lasted two days. On the afternoon of the third day he came out of his sleep clear of head, and inclined to be indignant at finding himself in bed. Gerie sat beside him.

"She looked worn, he thought; she was pale; there were circles under her eyes."

In answer to his inquiries she told him very gently how she had been unable to restrain her alarm when he had not come in at the usual hour from the marshes; how she had stood the suspense until night-fall, and how she had then rowed up the lake in the flat-bottomed skiff in search of him.

Fortunately for Blane her eyes were as keen as her determination to find him had been great.

"So now you got to life still, like the doctor said," she concluded, half playfully, laying her cool hand upon his forehead. "You've had a smart spell of fever, and we don't want it coming back on you."

"How soothing her hand seemed! Formerly he had thought it big and rough. As he looked up into her soft, regular features—her full red lips slightly parted her calm eyes of deep blue, her placid brow, now somewhat wrinkled with a solicitous concern for him—he could not help comparing her with his wife—Mrs. Franklin Blane—a woman of stately comeliness, whose lips were thin, and whose eyes were cold and gray.

"By the way," he asked, "did you mail that letter I left on the washstand?"

"The one to Elsie Blane? Yes. She must be your sister, isn't she? You can't never tell me much about your family."

"No," said Blane. "I have no sisters. She's my aunt. She keeps house for me when I'm home."

It was the story he customarily used. "And Gerie," he added, "I think you'd better send a telegram to her. Tell her I'm unavoidably delayed for a while longer. Do you remember the address? Or, here—if you'll bring me some paper and a pencil out of my coat, I can write it."

The girl stood up beside the bed and gazed on him with a motherly expression.

"You turn over'n go to sleep," she said, smiling. "You don't need to worry 'bout that."

"What do you mean?"

"Why," said Gerie, plainly delighted at having forestalled his wishes, "we've already tried that. We sent her a telegram yesterday—the doctor said he thought we ought to, and she sent back she'll get to Lyburn station tonight."

"Oscar's going to drive in with the buckboard to meet her. Why, Mr. Blane," she cried out in sudden alarm, "are you—have you—"

She bent quickly over him.

"Just a touch—a touch of headache," breathed Blane heavily. "When did you say she's coming?"

"Tonight. Why? Won't you be glad to see her?"

"Of course. It was good of you—good of you to send, but there wasn't really any need."

Gerie gave him a swift look of understanding—or, rather of misunderstanding—that made him actually sorry for her, then bidding him again to go to sleep, she left the room.

The pangs Blane had endured that miserable day in the marsh were as nothing to those he suffered in the ensuing hour.

He knew very well what Elsie would do. She would give him short shrift. To a woman of her stamp, the publicity of the courts would be rather agreeable than otherwise; and they had no children to consider—for this he had thanked his stars.

She had never been congenial to him, even before he fell under her suspicion.

At the present time he felt she would like nothing better than an excuse to cut loose from him for good and all, and go soaring away into subliminal spheres of high-minded submission to an unfortunate situation, leaving him disgraced—the talk of the town, the sport of his friends.

It was not that he had done anything he regretted, only, after all his boasting at jovial stag parties, to be thus ingloriously caught through no fault of his own—it was maddening.

As for attempting to break the truth to Gerie and casting himself on her mercy, he never dreamed of it. He knew these country girls; they have the devotion of dogs as long as they think you are true to them; but once they find out you have only been playing with them, they go insane—shameless!

Three years ago he had had a little red-haired head tracking him all over the city, although up in the country, where he had first got acquainted with her, she had seemed as gentle and meek as a roadside flower.

Gerie would learn the relation of Elsie to himself before Elsie reached the farm.

"The Schneider family would find out what had been going on between Gerie and himself, and then there would be hysterics and denunciations and—oh! it was a mess! simply a mess."

He could feel his fever rising in waves as he thought about it. He tossed and pitched on his bed until, toward evening, he heard the doctor coming, whereupon he made believe to be asleep.

Agas afterward it seemed to Blane, there came to his ears the sound of wheels scraping on the gravel of the road.

A moment later Mrs. Schneider bustled in to leave a lamp and give a last touch to the arrangement of the room.

"She's here!" she announced, seeing him stir. Then, without waiting for comment, she hurried out, leaving Blane in a daze of anxiety.

Suddenly Oscar's deep voice droned forth just outside the door.

"She ain't his aunt," it proclaimed scornfully. "She's his wife."

Blane knew intuitively it was Gerie the voice had spoken, even before he heard her give a little cry, broken at the end as if stifled by the quick steps which now sounded in the corridor.

"Is it this way?" inquired the clear, familiar accents of Elsie.

Then there was a scuffling noise as if several people were crowding to gether.

Over this in a strange quivering tone, rose the inevitable words for which Blane had been waiting:

"Are you Mr. Blane's wife?"

It was of course, Gerie who had spoken. She had been unable longer to contain her doubts. With sinking heart Blane strained to catch the answer.

For a moment there was silence.

At last, as if aware the pause was getting awkward, Elsie gave a little forced laugh and replied hurriedly:

"Yes, certainly. Whom did you think?"

"Why," gasped Gerie faintly, "we—we told us so much about you!"

It seemed then as if the walls fell away from about Blane, as if all around him were the vast, glad sky.

"Gerie!" he was, silently crying deep inside himself, "Gerie!"

But he knew he must give no outward sign of his great jubilation.

There before him in the lamplight, leaned the lithe figure of Elsie, while in the doorway beyond, intent on witnessing the touching meeting of the sick man and his wife, crowded the Schneiders family.

To Elsie he weakly held out his hand, but strive as he would, he could not look at her.

He had eyes only for Gerie, who, shrieking and pale, was leaning beside the door, her hand at her throat.

"I'm sorry you bothered," he managed to murmur. "You needn't have come 'way out here. It's nothing. And I've been well taken care of."

He broke off suddenly.

To the gaping consternation of her family, Gerie without warning had fallen in a heap on the floor.

"Why, G-Gerie!" stammered Oscar. Elsie turned swiftly.

"What is the matter with the girl?" she exclaimed. "Why, she has fainted! Get some water, somebody!"

Old man Schneider and his wife were now bending over their daughter.

Oscar had the presence of mind to fetch the water-pitcher.

"She's worn out, that's all," Blane found himself explaining, while his heart pounded as if it would burst from his breast.

"She had a hard pull getting me out of the marsh, and she's been looking after me night and day ever since. It's nothing. She's just all in. It's nothing at all."

At that moment the girl, her face streaming with the water they were still showering upon her, opened her eyes and tried to smile. As if in the echo to Blane's words she said weakly:

"It ain't nothin'. Don't ma! It ain't nothing at all."

HIGHEST SALARY PAID TO MAYOR

$18,000 IS WHAT CHICAGO PAYS EXECUTIVE—NEW YORK NEXT WITH $15,000

PHILADELPHIA PAYS 12 THOUSAND

Chicago Pays Its Seventy Aldermen $3,000 Each; New York's 73 Get $2,000 Each

Washington—Chicago has the highest paid Mayor in the country, according to census bureau statistics. He gets $18,000 a year and serves four years. New York comes next with $15,000 Mayor, whose term also last four years. Philadelphia, third in the list, gives its Mayor $12,000 a year for four years. Boston, St. Louis,

WANTS ITALY'S ALLIES TO WIN

POPE BENEDICT XV.

Pope Benedict has instructed all the Cardinals in Italy to pray for the defeat of the Teutonic Powers because he is convinced that nothing but a victory for the Allies can bring about a lasting peace.

Newark, N. J.; Cincinnati, Cleveland and Pittsburgh pay their Mayors $10,000 annually for the term being four years in Boston, Pittsburgh and St. Louis, and two years in Cincinnati, Cleveland and Newark.

Indianapolis and Seattle pay their Mayors $7,500 a year. San Francisco, Baltimore and Minneapolis, $6,000 each; East St. Louis, Louisville, New Bedford, Detroit, Kansas City, Buffalo, Mount Vernon, Rochester, Columbus, Scranton, Providence, San Antonio, Tex., and Richmond pay $5,000 each.

The Aldermen, who share with the Mayor and certain other officials the responsibility of government in American cities, cost the taxpayers varying sums. Chicago has 70 Aldermen, at $3,000 each; Boston, 9, at $1,500 each; St. Louis, 29, at $1,800 each; Newark, 32, at $500 each; New York, 73, at $2,000 each; Cincinnati, 32, at $1,150 apiece; Cleveland, 26, at $1,200 each; Philadelphia, 48 Select-Councilmen and 83 Common Councilmen, all serving without salary. Pittsburgh, nine Aldermen, at $650 each; Indianapolis, nine, at $600 apiece, and Seattle, nine at $300 apiece.

The only cities that have an upper and a lower house of Aldermen or Councilmen are Hartford, Conn.; New Britain, Conn.; Atlanta, Louisville, Portland, Me.; Baltimore (33 in all, at $1,000 each); Brockton, Mass.; Cambridge, Mass.; Everett, Mass.; Fitchburg, Mass.; Malden, Mass.; New Bedford, Mass.; Pittsburg, Mass.; Springfield, Mass.; Worcester, Mass.; Kansas City, Mo.; Manchester, N. H.; Buffalo (36 in all at $1,000 each); Lancaster Pa.; Philadelphia, Pawtucket, R. I.; Providence, Va.; Norfolk, Va.; Portsmouth, R. I.; Woonsocket, R. I.; Lynchburg, Va.; Richmond, Va., and Roanoke, Va.

The commission form of government which takes the place of mayors and aldermen, involves a smaller salary outlay. In Washington, D. C. the three commissioners get a total of $15,000; in Denver, $25,000; in San Diego, $12,000 in Topeka, $2,000; in New Orleans $39,000; in Salem, Mass., $10,000; in St. Paul $31,000; in Lincoln, Neb. $10,000; in Atlantic City, $15,000; in Bayonne, N. J., $10,000; in Hoboken, $10,000; in Jersey City, $15,000; in Trenton, $15,000, and in Harsburg, $13,000.

In some of the commission governed cities a mayor is elected as such, while in others he is chosen by the commission. Sometimes he gets an extra allowance as chairman of the commission, but this rarely exceeds $500, and is included in most of the above cities.

While most cities employ assessors to fix the valuation of property for the purpose of taxation, those of some States have no assessors, but report to the county the amount required to be raised for city purposes.

Captures a "White Blue Jay"

Function City, Kan.—Ever see a white blue jay? No? Well, in albinism, the first one ever seen here, was found in the Presbyterian churchyard by A. W. Davy. The jay is but grown and its feathers are perfect white. Its unusual color has apparently not discredited the albino in the eyes of the parent birds, for it was fat and gave indications that it had been well cared for.

Man may be the stronger, but woman's league is more facile.

THE CREED OF THE CLAN

The Frank A. Munsey Co.

It was the night of the big blizzard young Sandy O'Connell's athletic body was fairly blown into the vestibule of Jim Bradley's up town man sion. The houseman opened the door, bowed, and admitted him.

Sandy, blinded, lunged forward, almost upsetting Kitty Bradley, the political boss's young daughter.

"You can bet your last dollar on me doing something," was Sandy's form of apology, as he backed from the girl, and noted how lovely she looked in her white fur trimmed evening coat.

"Oh, good evening, Mr. O'Connell," was her smiling reply.

She held out her hand cordially. The big, handsome East Sider didn't take it.

"A bull in a china shop couldn't beat me at smashing."

"No damage done," Kitty's big, brown, truthful eyes helped to assure him.

"I rushed forward too I thought it was my chauffeur—we'll be late for the opera."

"I'm surprised your dad'd let you go out on a night like this," said the chief's girl earnestly.

"Oh, father permits me to do just as I please," smiled the heiress.

"When he does try to oppose a peep plan, I just put my arms around his neck and hug him till he sees the thing from my new point."

"Well, there are ways and ways of doing politics," agreed O'Connell.

"Will I find you dad in the library?"

"Yes, but he's consulting with an architect about a new country residence. Won't you talk to me till he's disengaged? I sometimes think you avoid me."

Sandy dropped his eyes, shifted his weight from one foot to the other, then said bashfully "You bet I'd like to talk to you a little, if you'd let me."

Whereupon Kitty turned toward the aristocratic, gray haired companion behind her. "Perhaps it is best Mrs. Vanderpool, that we do not venture out this evening."

"It is more prudent," replied the chaperon.

Mrs. Vanderpool looked haughty at Sandy O'Connell; she heartily disapproved of Mr. Bradley's receiving his flashy political henchmen at his residence.

"I'll be in my room presently," said Kitty's aristocratic Mrs. Vanderpool. Then she looked up at Sandy. "Won't you come into the music room?"

Sandy's heart thumped as he followed.

Kitty seated herself in front of the grand piano. "We were going to hear 'Contes d'Hoffman' this evening. The music is beautiful, and the orchestra—this is my favorite."

She hummed as she played.

Sandy looked at her spellbound. It seemed to him wonderfully good to be true that he, a street-wait in his side-tough, should be sitting near the exquisite creature.

When Kitty turned toward him to see if he was enjoying the music, her eyes met his, and she knew her heart dropped in sudden embarrassment.

"I'm a damned cat," said the young fellow, rising and flushing. "to have looked at you that way. I didn't mean to be disrespectful. I can't help my feelings toward you—but never again will I show them."

"Mr. O'Connell," said Kitty slowly. "It was just a year ago that father called me into the library to meet you."

"I'll never forget it," said Sandy reverently.

"Do you remember—father," said Kitty, this young fellow has just done a big thing for me, he's proved to be a friend of mine, so he's your friend always—shake hands with him."

"But you didn't. You backed away from me frightened to pieces," interrupted Sandy.

"I was just home from school, and lacked social experience."

"I startled you—no wonder," laughed Sandy—"checked suit, red tie, patent shoes with tan uppers, but on your face, my dear, a tough swarthy Gee, I was a fit thing to meet a lady!"

Kitty looked musingly at his plain dark suit of clothes. His big, dark, and ring and stud alone proclaimed him an outsider.

"Were you born on the East Side, Mr. O'Connell?"

"They say so—but I was brought up there by a drunk named O'Connell. My folks was not spots once, so O'Connell says, but they died before I remember."

"What was the big thing you did for my father?" Kitty asked suddenly.

"Why, nothing worth mentioning," replied the political heeler quickly.

Before this his handsome face with its full lips, and steady blue eyes had been but a mirror for his passing emotion; now no mask could have been more expressive.

"Mr. O'Connell," Kitty went on in a low, tense tone, "that night after father introduced us, he put me on a boat and sent me back to Paris—yet I'd only recently returned and had just made my debut. For weeks Mrs. Vanderpool flitted me from place to place, and I saw no Americans."

"Then after a few months, we came home. Everyone has taken me up, so I know that holding serious happened. But I must know what it was all about. It would hurt to ask for such information from strangers."

"There's nothing to ask about," Sandy lied glibly.

"Then why," demanded Kitty, her eyes blazing, "did the newspapers accuse father of murder?"

"They didn't," said Sandy evenly. "I brought an extra on the dock that night, while father and Mrs. Vanderpool were busy—but I only had a chance to read the headlines. Please tell me about it, Mr. O'Connell—you know how I love father, and my heart is just breaking from worry."

Kitty's eyes filled with tears. She leaned toward the boy, and her hand touched his appealingly.

His other hand closed over hers sympathetically made them brother and sister.

"The Boss," said Sandy without wavering, "was accused of shooting Sheep Laughlin, a political rival, in the back room of a saloon. When I heard the frameup, I went straight to the police court with witnesses and proved that at the time of the shooting your dad was talking to me a block away from the murder."

"Then father was saved through you?" asked Kitty quickly. "I'm glad now I began liking you before I knew this!"

"Just you forget it all—nothing but dirty politics," assured Sandy.

The relief from the months of worry suddenly made the girl feel inert; she sort of swayed on the piano bench.

Sandy O'Connell's arm was about her, for a moment her head rested against his shoulder—then she looked up at him.

"Suddenly they were man and woman."

Kitty's hand caught at the pink tulle of her gown, just over her heart, and she drew from him, frightened.

"Good night," she said softly.

"Good night," the man answered reverently. He caught the end of her scarf and held his cheek against it.

Then Kitty was gone, and he knew that she loved him.

"Hey there, Kitty!" sounded a rough, good natured voice in the hall. "You come kiss your old daddy."

It was Jim Bradley calling Sandy across to the doorway. He saw Jim with his arms around his daughter. A look of ineffable love gave his big, red, coarse face a sort of refinement.

It was the only link that connected these two opposite types of civilization.

"Here, young fellow," Jim cried to his son, "no spying. Say, if you've ever looked on anything more worth loving than this imp," Jim pinched Kitty's ear, "why you're already fit for heaven."

"I never have, Boss," said Sandy emphatically.

"Now, a year ago, Kitty," Jim raved on, "I asked you to shake hands with Sandy O'Connell—and you wouldn't. Afterward, you explained to me that he looked like a tough—wasn't a gentleman—"

"Oh, father, please," protested Kitty thoroughly embarrassed.

"Don't mind," said Sandy; "when the Boss took me under his wing, he told me just what you said, so I could make myself fit to meet class people."

"Lord, Kitty, he went right into training—dressed a teacher and went to a tailor on Fifth Avenue. Don't you notice his slang's disappearing? But, say, boy," Jim teased, "ain't none can learn you anything about figuring? Hey? What?"

"No," laughed Sandy; "money seems to stick to my fingers. I was doing well enough as it was; then, with your teaching me in on the contracting jobs, I've rolled up a wad—that's sent to be squeezed at."

"Now will you shake hands with my partner, Kitty?" asked Jim, "and tell us what you think about his appearance?"

Kitty went up two steps, put her hands behind her back, then halted. Like a bit of Dresden china she stood there.

"I think, daddy," she said roguishly, "that your partner is perfectly handsome."

Then she fled up the stairway.

"A fine girl, that," said Jim, leading the way to the library—the political sanctum, to which only the elect were ever admitted.

"Indeed she is, Boss," said Sandy dreamily.

"Her mother was a New England schoolmarm, and tough as I was she loved me, and believed in me. She died, and I swore to myself that I'd bring up her daughter like a princess—and I have, by Heaven," said the politician.

"The way she loves you just gets me," Sandy responded.

"She's been educated in a convent in Paris with the daughters of nobility and now she's back, and there ain't nothing finer in this whole blamed city. The swell that scorn me have taken her in, let me tell you—there ain't a house to which she hasn't been invited."

"Say, but she's going to make a great match—a prince, no common duke—and it ain't like I haven't the price to buy one."

"What if Miss Kitty picked some one here?" asked O'Connell cautiously.

Jim frowned and ignored the suggestion.

ASKS TROUSERS FOR WOMEN

Professor Suggests Feminine Students Leave off Skirts on Trip

Being mostly teachers, women summer students at the University of Chicago, are as a class, quite conservative and sedate. Imagine, then, the shock experienced by several of their number when they were urged by their instructor to replace their skirts with trousers—and khaki trousers at that!

It all came about this way. Associate Prof. Henry C. Cowles of the botany department decided to take his research class to the Lake Superior region for a field-trip.

He distributed to his class, a majority of whose graduates are women, a directions sheet, and one of the items read to the effect that the instructor earnestly urged the women members of the class to leave their skirts at home—khaki trousers are easily and cheaply purchased.

DESTROYING MONEY A CRIME

Such Offender is Liable to Term in Federal Prison

"If at any time, you feel too much overburdened with this world's goods and wish to destroy some of your money, do not adopt such a course, for you may languish a Federal prison for the offense, says the Brooklyn Eagle. That is, if you tear up bank notes, or mutilate any of the metal coins of the government, in an effort to destroy their value, you commit a crime."

It may also be announced that no one has ever been prosecuted in the district of New York, for such an offense.

A woman says a man is only half a man until he gets married, and even then he is seldom the whole show.

The average woman worries more about her complexion than she does about her prospective harp and crown.

When two men are talking each tries to work in his hobby first, so as to head off the other.

KISS DOES NOT MEAN BETROTHAL

Opinion Given in Breach of Promise Suit of Spinster Against Los Angeles Doctor

Los Angeles, Cal.—The meaning of a kiss—a real kiss and kisses on paper—was the determining factor in the $10,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Nellie C. May, a neat appearing spinster, against Dr. J. H. Johnson, a physician, 18 years her senior which was tried before Judge Taff.

The court didn't undertake to pass judgment on "What is a kiss?" or "Why is a kiss?" as defined by the two from the witness stand, but he did not find that a kiss, even when delivered and received by those who should be well past the age of idle flirtation does not necessarily mean the sealing of a marriage vow, and is not to be taken upo facto, as evidence that a marriage vow exists. So he decided the case against Miss May.

Miss May said there had been an engagement. The doctor denied it. She said he had proposed and repeated the proposal many times for he had kissed her and sent her kisses by letter when he was on a trip in the Orient.

"What did you mean by sending kisses to a woman if you did not intend to marry her?" asked Attorney Edward Dietrich, for Miss May.

"Didn't you ever kiss a girl you did not intend to marry?" was the doctor's reply. "To me kisses are kisses, nothing more, and kisses on paper mean less. A kiss is a kiss—that's all."

SLAYS GRAY WOLF WITH CLUB

Animal Becomes Entangled in Woven Wire Fence

Winston, Mo.—A gun! My kingdom for a gun!—was the earnest wish of Robert Calhoun of near this place, a few days ago, when he saw a large gray wolf running across a pasture and quite near him.

While Calhoun was regretting that he was unarmed, he saw the animal make a spring to clear the fence. And then the strange thing happened. Instead of jumping the fence the wolf landed across it and became entangled in the woven wire. As it vainly struggled to extricate itself, Calhoun seized a club from the roadway, rushed upon the animal and soon dispatched it.

ONE OF ITALY'S MODERN GUNS USED IN THE CAPTURE OF GORIZIA

The Italians in their latest victories are now using the most modern and up to date implements of war. Here is shown one of the huge cannons with its large caterpillar wheels which battered and helped to reduce the forts in the vicinity of Gorizia. This Austrian town fell into the hands of the victorious Italian troops.

Students Shun Ministry.
Millsville, N. J.—Prof. E. D. Grizzell, supervising principal of the Millsville High School has told the board of education that he was very much surprised to learn, as a result of a canvass of the 250 students as to what vocation they intended to follow for their life's work, that not one of them expressed his intention of studying for the ministry. He said that this was more surprising from the fact that Millsville is known as the city of churches.

Convincing the Boys
Father sat in his study one afternoon writing out a speech, when his son called shrilly from the garden. "Dad! Look out of the window!" "What a nuisance children are at times!" grumbled the parent as he put down his pen and advanced to the window. With a half smile he raised the sash and stuck forth his head. "Well, Harry, what is it?" he asked. The boy, from the group of youngsters, called out, "Dad, Tommy Perkins didn't believe that you had no hair on the top of your head."

PUZZLED BY STRANGE SNAKE

Texas Zoologists Asked to Identify 8 Inch Pink Reptile

Fort Worth, Texas—Classification of an eight inch pink snake found on the white settlement road by Dr. John O'Reilly is causing considerable speculation among Fort Worth zoologists. It is believed that the reptile belongs to a poisonous variety. It has a sharp tail, and a flat head with reversed spectacles. Its body is marked with diamond spots. It puffs like some varieties of poison reptiles but apparently has no fangs.

Dr. O'Reilly will send the snake to the state zoological department at Austin hoping that experts there will be able to identify it.

TIMELY TOPICS FOR ALL INTERESTED IN BETTER FARMING

WASTE LANDS COST MONEY

Non-productive Acres Mean Dead Capital and a Loss to the Farmer

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Every acre of non-producing tillable land should be put to work or sold, says the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Many farmers would make more money if their business were larger, but the size of a farm, from a financial standpoint, is measured not by the number of acres embraced in it but by the number that are producing crops pasturing animals economically, or supporting a growth of marketable forest products. Non-productive acres are dead acres, and the money tied up in them is dead capital.

On every farm, however, there are certain acres necessarily devoted to nonproductive purposes. Fences, ditches, lanes, and building lots produce nothing themselves, but they are frequently essential to production, on the rest of the farm. Nevertheless, they may occupy in the aggregate a considerable percentage of the available land. It is a part of efficient farm management to see to it that this percentage is no higher than necessary.

In this connection, some interesting figures are given in regard to the amount of land occupied by fences of different kinds. It takes, for instance, only 209 rods of untimbered hedge and only 214 rods of zigzag rail or worm fence to waste an acre of what might be productive land. For the same expenditure of land one can run 459 rods of woven wire and 473 rods of barbed wire. Other considerations, of course, may make it desirable to use the hedge or the worm fence, but the waste involved is a factor that should not be overlooked.

Similarly, farm lanes often may be eliminated by a simple rearrangement of fields; headlands or turning spaces at the edges of fields, avoided; and the farmstead itself, the group of farm buildings with their lots and yards, the garden and the orchard, made compact. In the case of the farmstead, however, considerations of health and attractiveness may well justify a slight sacrifice of economy.

While a little planning often will result in the saving of much land now devoted to these unproductive uses, a more difficult problem is presented by waste land—land that is rendered unutilizable by swamps, ravines, rocks, slopes, etc., woodland that produces nothing salable, and pastures that are too poor to be profitable. Some areas are, of course, hopeless, and in that case they should be left out of the reckoning altogether. Before this is done, however, it will pay to look into the possibilities of profitable reclamation. Many unutilizable fields, for example, may be turned into productive pastures, or if they will not grow enough grass to make this economical they can be used for the production of timber. On the other hand, it frequently happens that woodlots which yield nothing but a little firewood for home consumption are permitted to occupy valuable land. In deciding whether such lots should be cleared and filled the cost of clearing the increased value of the cleared land, the interest on the investment, the salable value of the timber products, and the added expense for firewood which will follow the disappearance of the timber must all be taken into account. With unwooded areas, the advisability of bringing them under the plow may be determined by comparing the probable cost with the market price of good arable land in the neighborhood.

Obviously, the higher the price of land rises the more incentive there is for the farmer to avoid waste in the utilization of it. It is significant, however, that the investigations of the Department of Agriculture have shown that, irrespective of the price, tenants put a greater part of their land to productive use than owners. The tenant pays rent for each acre and he can not afford to have any of them idle. On the other hand, the man who has no rent to pay may be able to get along on the produce of a part only of his farm, and he is, therefore, more likely to overlook the potential value of the part he wastes. By so doing he is, of course, throwing away opportunities to make money, but this is not always appreciated by those who have not grasped the important fact that the average farm is too small for maximum efficiency and that in the majority of cases to increase the size of the farm business is to increase the profits from it. Those owners, however, who, realizing this, are operating leased land in addition to their own, are, like tenants, careful to see that they pay for no longer acres.

REMOVES DENTS IN FURNITURE

Very Simple Task as it is Here Explained

When wood is badly dented or scratched it is often a problem to know how to get rid of the mark. This is quite easy if the following plan is adopted, says the Scientific American.

First of all fold a piece of blotting paper at least four times, then saturate with water, finally allowing the superfluous moisture to drip away. Now bend a button until it is about the warmth required for laundry work. Place the damp blotting paper over the dent and press firmly with the finger. As soon as the paper dries examine the mark. It will then be found that the cavity has filled up to a surprising extent.

Where the dent is very deep a second or even a third application on the lines indicated might be tried. Sooner, or later every serious depression can be drawn up—and most people who have not tried this plan will be surprised at the result of the treatment. Polishing will clear away even the slight marks that might finally remain.

Ford Auto Races to Be Contested at State Fair Grounds Track Sept. 10

G. W. Dickinson, general manager of the Michigan State Fair, announces that entries are being received for the Ford race, to be contested at the State Fair grounds Sunday, Sept. 10, to select Michigan's representative in the interstate event to be held at Detroit.

Oct. 15. The Ford events, which have been conducted by General Manager Dickinson at the State Fair track during the past year, have been so successful that he decided to select Michigan's entry in the interstate event during the fair.

Mr. Dickinson expects that about twenty-five drivers will enter the race, and among the possible starters are Ernie Anstetter, twice winner of the Michigan Ford championship cup; Joan Mott, Rice, Wilcox, Kulick and many other semi-professional drivers.

from Detroit as well as other cities throughout Michigan. The winner of the event will compete against the champions of other states in the race to be held at the State Fair track on Oct. 15. It is expected that ten or twelve states will be represented in this event, among them being Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Illinois, Oklahoma, Wyoming and Iowa. The representatives of the various states will be selected at the State Fair, in the same manner that the Michigan contestant is to be chosen. General Manager Dickinson says the International Contest association, of which he is president, will award a silver cup to the winner of the interstate event. Cash prizes totaling $1,000 will be given the drivers as well.
