

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

VOL. XLVII. NO. 12.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1916.

$1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

ROAD BUILDING ATTRACTS ATTENTION

SUPT. KENNEDY IS HUSTLING THINGS ON THE NORTHVILLE END

ONE OF THE FINEST CEMENT ROADS IN THE UNITED STATES WHEN COMPLETED.

Work on Northville's new cement road to Detroit started at the south end of the corporation on Plymouth avenue, is progressing very nicely. Supt. J. W. Kennedy of Detroit is in charge and he is certainly a hustler as well as a mechanic and expert in the road-building game.

Mr. Kennedy has about thirty-five men under him besides a vast amount of machinery, including a railroad train, a large cement mixer, gravel pit digger and washer, etc.

From the P. M. siding at Wilsey's a narrow gauge railway operates along the highway on which a small locomotive engine hauls twenty to thirty cars of gravel or cement at a time to the big mixer where it is eaten up rapidly. About one-third of the gravel comes from the big pit at the back of the Schoof farm, the little railroad train running around to that point through Ernest Koeller's farm. The gravel at this point is all handled by machinery and after being hauled by cabled scrapers to the sifters, it is elevated into a big washing tank and finally goes into huge hoppers, as clean as a whistle ready for Kennedy's little dump cars.

The operations at both the gravel pit and at the road building points are attracting many visitors each day and the sight is certainly well worth the time of every citizen of Northville.

The work is being done by order of the County Road Commissioners, Messrs. Haggerty, Timm, and Butler and this Northville road promises to be the best in the United States.

There are three gangs with machinery on this 7 mile road two being at work between Grand River and Wood ward avenues and Mr. Kennedy's outfit near here.

Mr. Kennedy will have his 4 1/2 miles completed from near Frank Bradley's place to Northville by week after next if no bad luck intervenes and he then expects to complete a mile and one-half east from near Bradley's. If nothing happens and the weather keeps good the commission, it is said, may bring one of the other machines back to Five Points and work west to meet Kennedy's gang and if the season should be favorable the road may be completed yet this fall.

Next year the Commission will tackle the proposition of making the Plymouth-Northville road over into a cement road and when all is completed Northville will certainly be on the map with the Plymouth avenue road extended up through the village to the Oakland county line via Main and Center streets.

DUBUAR-HYLAND.
Announcements have been received here of the marriage, in Washington, D. C. on October 7, of Mr. Paul Smith Dubuar of Seattle, Wash., son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Dubuar of this place, to Miss Meda Virginia Hyland of the capital city. The bridegroom is one of the particularly fine young men Northville has sent out into wider fields and many good wishes will follow the young people to their future home at Seattle, Washington. Mr. and Mrs. Dubuar are expected to arrive here today for a visit with the former's parents.

FRESHMEN RECEPTION GREAT SUCCESS.
The Sophomores gave the Freshmen their annual reception in Cattermole hall last Thursday evening. The room was decorated in keeping with the season—cornstalks, Jack-o-lanterns and the like—being used. The Freshies were made to go through the usual number of stunts after which refreshments were served. Dancing closed a very enjoyable evening. When departing the Freshies were met outside the hall by the Iodine squad and prettily decorated.

The most fun came when the Freshmen received orders to report at the school house Friday evening under the penalty of death. With the aid of shoe blacking, baby food and flour they were made presentable for their march down town. After singing a number of songs on the corner they were taken through the country in autos and dropped, with instructions to forget their collars and ties for three days.

STRAYED OR STOLEN.

A brown eyed lass has strayed away.
Who will tell us where to find her?
She went to northern climes one day,
To teach, they say,
This feared that some mischievous wind,
Has caught her in its hurrying gale
So quick, that naught was left behind,
To tell the tale.

She was not very tall you see,
Nor yet so very large around;
Indeed a little spry she was,
Who tipped the beam
At somewhere near a witches weight.
Please tell us where she may be found
That we no longer guess her fate
As in a dream.

Perhaps; that with this merry maid,
The snow flakes did acquaintance claim,
And in their sportive jesting played
Too roughly with her?
So that some snowdrifts o'er her may
Have tossed their dainty counterpane;
And it will take a sunny day
In spring to find her.

Perhaps; some wandering Brownies found
And quickly claim her as their own;
And tightly clasp hands around,
To cave or dell,
Or drifting cloud, or mystic town.

Or chimney top, where Brownies dwell
Have whisked her off; Ah—who can tell?
Yes who can tell?

Who ever finds this lassie sweet,
And safely brings her home again,
Or tidings bring of her retreat,
Will surely gain
Our hearty thanks; and so we pray,
You'll quickly turn her feet this way
And hasten on that summer's day
Which waits her home.

HERMAN BARTRUM KILLED.

The second former Northville man to meet a tragic death in Detroit within a few months was Herman Bartrum, who was so badly hurt last Friday in a grade crossing accident that he died Saturday afternoon. Mr. Bartrum was the driver of a truck for the United Fuel & Supply Co. and was crossing the Grand Trunk tracks at Canal avenue, when his machine was struck by a passenger train.

The funeral was held from the home in Detroit, Tuesday and the body was brought here for interment in Rural Hill cemetery, the entire service being in charge of the Northville Foresters' lodge, of which the deceased was a member. Mr. Bartrum, who was 42 years of age, leaves a widow three children, his parents and two brothers all of Detroit, except one brother, Harry, of this place.

OLIVER SUTPHIN DEAD.
Oliver Sutphin brother of Mrs. E. J. Tremper of this place died Sunday night at the home of his daughter, in Detroit where he was recently taken from Northville, after having been ill here for some weeks. Mr. Sutphin was 83 years of age and had been a resident of Michigan 63 years. He had lived for some time at the Tremper home, and was quite well known here.

WEEKLY CALENDAR.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.
(By the Pastor.)
The Sunday morning sermon will be a special appeal to men, but not exclusively. So come with your wives and families.

In the afternoon there will be a mass meeting for men at the Presbyterian church, addressed by William Asher of the Billy Sunday party. In the evening a general mass meeting for all at the M. E. church. Mr. Asher will also address this meeting. Let us men make a good showing in the interest of the cause that stands for the protection of childhood and the sacredness of the home. This is a time when men should realize the dignity of true manhood. You ought to attend with her. You are needed on the job. So get busy.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.
(By the Pastor.)
Next Sunday is to be observed as Men's Day. The subject of the morning sermon will be "The Kind of Man The World Most Needs."

The Sunday School will be held at the usual hour. This should be one time when the men should outnumber the women in attendance. Let every male member of the Presbyterian congregation take it upon himself to be present at the Sunday school.

At 2:30 there will be a meeting for men only in the Presbyterian church to be addressed by Mr. William Asher, a member of the Sunday Evangelistic Party.

The Christian Endeavor will meet at the usual hour. Mrs. Webber is to have charge of the meeting. A large attendance is desired. Endeavorers please do not forget the business meeting tonight, Friday.

At 7 o'clock there will be a Union meeting in the M. E. church. Mr. Asher will be the speaker.

The pastor is very grateful for the co-operation that has been shown by so many in connection with the special October services. It is hoped that the good attendance of the past two Sundays will be increased next Sunday. Every wife is urged to bring her husband, every mother her son and every daughter, her father, to the morning and evening services and to send them to the meeting in the afternoon. Let every one co-operate in making the day count mightily for the manhood and the community. No man is an island. Let us strive to be a part of the community.

The Westwinding Gypsies will meet Wednesday, Oct. 18, with Mrs. Paul Alexander. Miss Finney will be assistant hostess.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.
(By the Pastor.)
Next Sunday should be a great day for the churches and the men of Northville. There is no institution to which the men of the community are more greatly obligated than to that of the Christian church. There is no interest of life but that is conserved and nourished by the church.

This church opens its doors and extends a hearty invitation and the most cordial greetings to everybody not affiliated with some other church.

The pastor's sermon topic for the morning service will be "The Measure of a Man." The choir will furnish special music.

Epworth League at 6. Leader, Miss Pickett, topic, "Missions Among The Women of India."

Union evangelistic service at 7. Address by Mr. Wm. Asher of the "Billy" Sunday party.

We urge all of our men to attend the meeting for men only at the Presbyterian church at 3 P. M., where Mr. Wm. Asher will speak.

The W. H. M. S. will meet with Mrs. F. S. Neal next Tuesday afternoon at 2:50 o'clock. All ladies invited.

Prayer meeting, Thursday evening at 7 o'clock.

Auction Sale.
Charles Moyer will sell stock, grain and farm tools on the Sanford farm south-west of Novi Thursday, October 19. John Wedow, auctioneer.

W. J. Davis will have an auction sale Saturday, Oct. 14, at the premises on Grace Ave. The sale begins at 2 o'clock and includes all kinds of household goods, also garden tools. The household effects of Geo. Stanley will be sold also. Milt Brown is the auctioneer.

TRY A LITER IN THE RECORD.

SADDLER SPRINGS TO BE USED

WILL NOT LONG LAY IDLE AT THE EXPENSE OF VILLAGE.

The Saddler springs will soon be made use of instead of being a constant expense.

The council's fire department committee has been investigating the cost of installing a pump and motor at the Saddler springs to connect with the water mains so that an ample supply of water can be maintained at all times in the reservoir.

Chairman McLean of the committee has secured estimates and states that the whole business, including the developing of the springs and motor, will be only about five hundred dollars. Members of the council say that enough water can be sold next year to the Wayne County Road commissioners to more than pay the expense of the whole matter, and in addition, everybody can have all the water they want and when they want it, besides insuring an ample fire protection at all times.

When completed this will be one of the biggest things any council has ever accomplished for Northville and every citizen will appreciate it.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, DETROIT.
"The Return of Draw Egan" with William S. Hart in the typical role of a western bad man with a price on his head, will be the principal film feature critics.

Some twenty world-famous artists constitute the roster of principals, there being four celebrated sopranos in the varied pictures and musical program to be offered in the Majestic theatre Detroit for the coming week.

"Mad Mad", a new Keystone comedy with Charles Murray, a Mut and Jeff Comdy travelogue and topical review will be other film while Henry Santrey organist and orchestra will offer new musical selections.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Comments By
Rev. Ernest Bourner Allen, D. D.
 Pastor of the Washington Street
 Congregational Church and the Marion Lawrence Sunday School,
 Toledo, Ohio.

LESSON FOR OCTOBER 15th, 1916

Lesson Title: "The Appeal to Caesar."

Lesson Text: Acts 25. Memorize vs. 10, 11.

Golden Text: "It is enough for the disciple that he be as his teacher, and the servant as his lord." Matt. 10.25.

I. Playing Politics.

Paul was first tried before Felix. Later he was tried before Festus, a Roman, the new governor of Palestine. The trial was held in Caesarea. The Jews claimed they had evidence and witnesses who could be produced at Jerusalem. Festus was about to adjourn the court to meet again at Jerusalem when Paul appealed to Caesar. The Record says that Festus desired "to gain favor with the Jews." It was for this reason, therefore, that he proposed to Paul to continue the trial at Jerusalem - Festus tried to shift the responsibility. When the "principal men" get after the judge, or a preacher, or a mayor, he will have a hard time. Favoritism is easier than justice. It is more popular to "play to the galleries" than to take the right course. How far are we making it easier for our judges, and preachers, and mayors to do the right thing and to speak the true word?

II. The Supreme Court.

When Paul was again unjustly accused by the Jews he avoided all further discussion by saying, "I appeal unto Caesar." It was the right of a Roman citizen. No one could take away that. All the resources of the Roman Empire guaranteed a man in exercising that right.

Every man has a supreme court to which he brings finally his moral problems and to which he makes moral appeal. What is your supreme court? Your neighbor's opinion? Your own conscience? Your mother's judgment? The custom of your community? As Paul makes a great revelation of himself when his angels find appeal on moral questions. "Either made it when he said: 'Here I stand, I can do no other.' He had declared that he would not change his utterances unless they prove to him out of God's word, or by appeal to his reason, that he was wrong. Garrison said it when he fought slavery unequivocally and eloquently everywhere. What fight are you making which is based upon your appeal to your supreme court?"

III. Answers to Prayer.

The answers to prayer do not always come as we anticipate. Paul had prayed that he might be allowed to preach the Gospel in Rome. He had probably made every possible endeavor to go there. Now he is to go—but as a prisoner! It seemed a curious answer, but after all it gave him his opportunity. Splendidly did he use it.

How can we tell when prayer is answered? Think over the answers which have come in your own life and think of their meaning. Why should a Christian people report answers to prayer more frequently? It would help others. Such testimony would often be very personal but it is personal testimony that counts. The world is eager to hear it even if it does not always act upon it as it should.

IV. The Disciple and His Lord.

Jesus suffered!
 So did Paul!
 So do uncounted thousands of Christians today. The reason is given in the Golden Text: "It is enough for the disciple that he be as his teacher and the servant as his lord." It is indeed high honor that we should be permitted to suffer, as did Jesus. It will bring its discipline. We shall grow under it. We shall thus give our testimony for the cause we profess to follow.

Nothing upsets the critic of Christianity more than the faithful living of Christian people, even in face of sorrow and defeat. He can't explain it. He doesn't understand it. He would like to ignore it but it is impossible. Suffering for Christ draws us nearer to him. We understand more fully his own service for us. The cost of our redemption is immeasurable. Some price we must each pay in real suffering, if we share in the redemption of others. We ought not to evade it. Nor should we grow discouraged because it befalls us. It came to us. It will come to us.

SENSATIONAL TEXAS DANCER ADVOCATES SUNRISE EXERCISES ON THE ROOF TOP

Miss Ladd at her sunrise exercises on roof of New York hotel.

Urging girls to pay more attention to early morning exercises, Miss Margaret Ladd of Texas sets the example by doing the light fantastic on top of the roof of a New York hotel, where she is now resting after five years of strenuous work in Paris.

Household Hint

Poor Man's Mushrooms—Radishes have always been considered good only to eat raw. Try the following when mushrooms are at a premium. Peel and slice large radishes and when you put your steak in the pan turn in the sliced radishes and allow them to cook in the juice of the steak until quite brown. Remove taking them out put in a generous piece of butter. Season with salt and pepper. They can hardly be detected from the real article. Radishes are always very good when boiled as turnips are. Boil until very soft, season, mash and cream.

Pineapple and Banana Salad—Use canned pineapple which is in slices. Cut it into small dice and drain away juice. To one cup pineapple add one cup finely sliced bananas and pour over it a syrup flavored with mara schino. Serve to lemon cups.

Cottage Cheese—Pour out water over the curd milk, let it stand for five minutes turn into a bag and let hang overnight to drain. When ready to serve wash the curd with a little sweet or sour milk or cream; beat light, add salt and pepper.

Corn Pudding—Into a pint of milk stir three beaten eggs and a little melted butter. Scrape the corn from six ears add to the custard with a teaspoonful of salt, a little sugar, wet with a little flour or corn starch. Bake in quick oven.

Tomato Jelly—Select tomatoes which are not over ripe. Cut in thick slices and stew without water, in double boiler, until tender. Drain through jelly bag without squeezing. The pulp will spot the color of the jelly. To each quart of juice add juice and grated rind of one lemon. Boil 20 minutes, skim and strain, and mix the juice with equal measure of sugar or honey. Cook until the juice reaches the jelly stage, not more than five minutes, and turn into jelly glasses. In the top ones are quite ripe, boil them the first time with peaches of fruit apples.

Cheese Balls—Add two tablespoon or melted butter to one pint of dry cottage cheese, rub smooth, add half teaspoon salt, a tablespoon of paprika and a dash of pepper. Form into balls the size of English walnuts, roll in flour, dip in egg and bread crumbs. Serve as a hors d'oeuvre with lettuce and crackers.

Breakfast Muffins—Dissolve one half teaspoon of soda in one tablespoon of warm water and add it to one half pint of sour milk, beat two egg yolks, add to milk then add one half cup of flour, then fold in the whites of the eggs. Bake in greased muffin pans twenty minutes.

Fritters from Leftover Corn—Make a batter for fritters. To a pint of the batter add a cup of corn-cup from the cob. Split the corn across the cobs and scrape with a knife.

Corn Patties—One cup of leftover corn, stir and scraped from the cob. Combine three-fourths cup of milk, two beaten eggs, one cupful of flour, a tablespoonful of sugar and the same of baking powder and a little salt. Stir in the corn at the last and drop from the spoon in muffin pans.

GETTING READY FOR HALLOWE'EN

Halloween time draws nigh and little Johnny or Joe or Willie, as the case may be, is not going to be caught unprepared. Like as not he has hidden away material for a jack-o'-lantern and is working away tirelessly in some sequestered spot.

What Women Will Wear This Winter

CONTRASTING COLORS.

The pointed overskirts and the shorter tunic skirts, and even the skirts themselves, are lined with a bright contrasting color of satin. Peppers are also so lined, flaring cuffs likewise. The effect of a dark blue or a black sun dress, lined with crimson, bright blue, pearl gray or white is so attractive that one stops to admire the ensemble.

FUR-TRIMMED COATS A WINTER FAVORITE

This plum colored pedagogue, trimmed with bands of fur, will be a popular garment this winter. It is said to have had its origin in Paris.

"BLUE BIRD" MODEL OF BROWN VELVET HAT IS MUCH IN EVIDENCE THIS FALL

This is the latest model of fall and winter hat. It is a smart little Smolin "Blue Bird" style of dark brown panne velvet with a guinea hen set at a jaunty angle on the front of the crown.

This style hat will be worn extensively this fall, fashion experts say, by the smart set.

NEW DRESS BELTS.

A very new fashion feature is the encircling dress belts. They are of the gown's color and have in the center front an applied oblong ornament of a bright contrasting color. This space is generally covered by an old scroll design done in beads, glass or metal threads and adorned with buttons and decorative touches.

NEW COAT LENGTH.

The new coat length styles are of two lengths. Both are short and both are coming to the waist. The shorter one is long, it stops just a few inches out of the bottom of the skirt. The other is sleeve length, that is to say it ends at the lower part of the wrist length of sleeve.

FUR TRIMMING.

Fur is employed extensively for trimming and in greater variety than heretofore. It is used for the traditional collars and cuffs, to be sure, but a new dimension is in the form of patches. For instance, it may be applied on the sides at the bottom of the three quarter length coat or the street frock, or it may be used at the front and back leaving the sides untrimmed.

NEW WEAVE IN VELVET.

A new style velvet is being exploited. It is called "Pied" velvet. It is a velvet of a color and weave that is very soft and firm. The pile is up or down in this material. It is said to be very soft and pliant and gives a pleasing and curious look. Many of the new coats and hats of this season are of this velvet.

NEW DRESS MATERIAL.

A new and very heavy stuff is coming which is called "old time" but is really a new material made up of the counters. It is especially suited to street frocks and coats.

Do the most practical street frock and coats there are the tweeds, home spun, and others and other fine lined cloths. Burelle is a new weave of patches. In the form of a new weave of patches. For instance, it may be

WHAT "HOME RULE" AIMS AT.

In Michigan the power of county prohibition is a fact already reserved to the people. Any county, on petition of a certain proportion of its voters, can submit the question of county prohibition to its people. Many Michigan counties have done this, and many Michigan counties are and for a long time have been "dry." At the coming election there will be two propositions on the ballots affecting the liquor business in this state. One proposition is to make the whole state "dry," as some other states are—that is the prohibition amendment on which votes shall be cast "Yes" or "No." The other proposition is to destroy the rights that the counties now have to regulate their own liquor affairs—that is the liquor interests' proposal and is called "home rule."

The purpose of "home rule" is to take away from the county and the power of home rule in its own liquor affairs, and transfer that power to the village and township and to say if "home rule" carries no county in Michigan will be to vote in counties on its own internal liquor affairs. The power will be taken up by the village and township and the township and village in a county.

What "home rule" aims to do is to destroy at one blow all that Michigan has created in the way of community decency and community self-government. Editor of Detroit News.

A pumpkin pie which was sold in Milan recently when it was reported as having "baked" a profit of a very acceptable sum. It would be interesting to know just how much real profit was realized had the cost of the ingredients, together with the fuel, time and work been computed at the present prices of materials and labor. But then, such is life and so are the ways and means for raising money for the various needs of various organizations. Had most of the pie-makers been asked to give the equivalent in cash they would probably have thought they couldn't afford it.

Our office Polyanna, who is also somewhat statistically disposed on occasion reminds people that if any are inclined to grumble about disagreeable weather they should recall the fact that from Friday, Sept. 29 to Sunday, Oct. 8 inclusive, there was not one cloudy day. Nine ideally beautiful autumn days, with maximum temperatures ranging from 60 to 84 degrees, ought to last the weather man quite a while as point-to-point material when folks get sore about his prognostications.

Every county, town and village in Michigan already has "Home Rule" and the voters are not likely to get mixed on that proposition. A further vote on Home Rule if carried would put Northville and Plymouth and every local option county in Michigan right back where it was two years ago, and that would be wetter than wet, and the bitter fights would have to be gone all over again. The only safe proposition is to vote "No" on Home Rule and "Yes" on State wide prohibition.

A "milk war" is on in New York, with incidentals that make the old-time phrase "as mild as milk" seem rather a misnomer.

Don't expatiate too much on the goodness of the season's pumpkin pie, or somebody will boost the price. Pontiac Press Gazette.

Alack and alas! The warning comes too late. The luscious p. p. already costs three cents more per. than at this time last year. However, to avoid a further inflation of price we are willing to refer to 'em as punk pies.

Holly's High school has a band of its own, but the tutors are not among the rooters.

EXTRAORDINARY GRAND OPERA EVENT.

Perhaps the most interesting and important musical-theatrical event of the present amusement is the coming engagement of the San Carlo Grand Opera Company, at the Garrick Theatre, Detroit, the week of Oct. 23. This famous organization of song-birds drew immense audiences upon their first visit to Detroit last season, and the individual stars of the company, as well as the organization as a whole, received high encomiums from the pens of the city's leading and an equal number of mezzo sopranos and contraltos four eminent tenors, four distinguished baritones and three noted basses.

Eight different grand operas are to be presented, six evenings and two matinees, and there will be four separate casts of principals heard during the engagement. The matinees are on Wednesday and Saturday.

The repertoire is: Monday, "Aida"; Tuesday, "Rigoletto"; Wednesday matinee, "Carmen"; Wednesday-evening, "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Pagliacci"; Thursday, "La Gioconda"; Friday, "Lohengrin"; Saturday afternoon, "Martha"; Saturday evening, "Il Trovatore."

The regular seat sale will open Thursday, Oct. 19, although mail orders for this extraordinary operative event will be received from this time forward. The prices will be popular in character, no seat being higher than two dollars and ranging down as low as fifty cents. The boxes will be slightly higher.

Home Rule Cards are Displayed in Every Saloon

THE so-called Home Rule Amendment is backed by every brewer and saloon keeper in Michigan. To them it means the continuation of the business in which they are engaged.

There is no defense of the saloon presented, for there is none. They seek to get your mind off the real issue by introducing this Home Rule Amendment.

State-wide Prohibition, backed by law enforcement, will insure the passing of the saloon. If it wouldn't, why is it being fought by the saloon interest?

If prohibition increased the consumption of liquor as they would have you believe, wouldn't the distillers and brewers favor prohibition in every state in the Union?

Look these facts squarely in the face. Keep your mind on the real issue, The Saloon, and vote "No" on Home Rule. "Yes" on Prohibition.

A big new discovery in cigarette blending

The big thing about Chesterfields is their unique blend. The Chesterfield blend is an entirely new combination of tobaccos. This blend is the most important new development in cigarette making in 20 years.

As a result, Chesterfields produce a totally new kind of cigarette enjoyment—they satisfy! Just like a "bite" before bedtime satisfies when you're hungry.

But with all that, Chesterfields are MILD, too!

This new enjoyment (satisfy, yet mild) comes ONLY in Chesterfields because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend.

Does Prohibition Prohibit?

- Prohibition does Not Prohibit.
Prohibition substitutes the blind-pig, the pocket-peddler, drug-store saloon, the jug train, the express blind tiger, all illegal, living by illegal means, existing by law violation by their patrons, for the licensed saloon. Prohibition cannot relieve the people they seek to abolish.
Alabama bears witness to the fallacy of prohibition.

Alabama's Testimony:

(From the National Monthly, July.)
Alabama's prohibition law has been flagrantly violated in the rural communities since it became operative two years ago. Men, known as prohibitionists, are financially concerned, in this wholesale violation of law. State representatives who voted for passage of prohibition are parties to a conspiracy to make money out of the law. All this has been an open secret for a long time. But no one was prepared for the revelation that millions are invested in this lawless enterprise.

IN GIRARD, ALABAMA, IN JUNE, $1,500,000.00 WORTH OF CONTRABAND LIQUORS WERE FOUND. GIRARD HAS 5,000 POPULATION. STATE TROOPS WERE CALLED OUT TO GUARD THE LIQUOR. THEY WERE ON DUTY SIX WEEKS.

- Illicit stills and "moonshining" are prevalent all over Alabama.
The law says manufacture and sale of liquor in Alabama is unlawful.
Liquor is being made and sold illegally all over the state. State officials themselves are at the head of this illegitimate industry.
Alabama residents did not want prohibition. It was thrust on them by legislative enactment. By legislators with axes to grind. By men in high office, sworn to observe and enforce laws, who voted for it, that they might illegally make money in dealing with a commodity they themselves had declared contraband.
Had Home Rule obtained in Alabama such graft, such demoralization, such out-lawry would not now exist.
Similarly, conditions with state-wide prohibition will exist in Michigan.
Don't Alabama-ize Michigan.
Vote for the Home Rule system that permits each city, village and township to decide its liquor problem for itself. Settle the liquor question by adopting Home Rule.

THE LOST NECKLACE

Who Stole It?

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Mr. William Donnay sat in his study reading. He was an old gentleman, a very rich and lived in elegant style. All his immediate family had died and left him alone in his old age. There was but one person to inherit his wealth, a grandson, and the young man found it irksome, to wait until he should step into his grandfather's shoes. Mr. Donnay, senior, had a lad which interested him at a time of life when activity did not. In the upper part of his house was a large room in which were stored many and varied curios. There were relics of war, pottery that had been dug up by archaeologists after having been buried some 2,000 or 3,000 years. There were Egyptian ornaments and one shining jewel that had decorated the person of some ancient princess were in cases, and even those intrinsically valuable, were exposed to the clutches of any one who might take a fancy to them. On this particular morning when Mr. William Donnay sat reading in his study there was a knock at the door and his valet, Simpson, entered. Mr. Donnay looked up inquiringly. "There's been more stealing," Mr. Donnay, said Simpson. "The amber necklace has been taken from its case in the museum."

Mr. Donnay's brow darkened. "And the diamond pendant has gone with it." Mr. Donnay did not hasten to reply, but when he did he said "Well, Simpson, I presume I must investigate these thefts. I'll see my lawyers and learn what can be done." Gerald Donnay had seen the valet enter his grandfather's study and followed him, stopping near enough to the door, that had been left partly open, to hear what was said. When he had heard it he hurried away to his grandfather's attorney.

It was 2 o'clock in the afternoon when an office boy admitted the young man to the law offices of Harley & Rogers, but it was long after 3 when George Harley hurried in from court. When the lawyer entered with a brief nod of greeting to the stranger the youth came forward eagerly. "Mr. Harley?" he inquired.

"Yes," returned the lawyer, admitting the client to his private office and scanning the card which he found on his desk. "You wished to see me, Mr. Donnay?" "It is a very pressing matter," said the other, drawing a chair close to the desk and sitting down in a matter of the utmost secrecy. "A case of private fidelity?" "Something of the sort. You see Mr. Harley, I live with my grandfather, Colonel Donnay, and the old gentleman is—er—rather eccentric—drivably penurious don't you know? He laughed in an embarrassed manner. "Doesn't like to see a young fellow enjoy life, eh?" questioned Harley. "That's it! Grows every time I ask for a check, and he seems to forget that some day all the money will be mine—unless he changes his will, and he's apt to do that any moment."

"And the matter about which you wished to consult me?" suggested Harley. The young man grew paler, and his voice dropped almost to a whisper. "It's about a necklace—an amber necklace of great value." It has been in the Donnay family for many generations, and, aside from the fact that it is made up of 100 carat beads of pure amber, there is a pendant which is almost priceless; it is a large canary diamond." He paused and moistened his dry lips.

"And the necklace has been stolen?" Gerald Donnay started violently, and his light blue eyes wore a frightened expression. "Who told you that?" he demanded. "I surmised it. Please go on with your story, Mr. Donnay."

"Pardon me, Mr. Harley; I am much upset over the whole occurrence. My grandfather keeps the necklace in his museum on the top floor of the house. Last night it was intact in its case. This morning my grandfather appeared at the breakfast table much agitated, saying that the amber necklace had disappeared and there was no sign of burglary. You see it places me in a very unpleasant position."

"Why?" "Because only yesterday I had asked my grandfather to help me out of a grave financial difficulty. He refused. His natural inference is that I helped myself to the necklace. "He cannot have a high opinion of your integrity," remarked the lawyer bluntly. "He hasn't, in fact, he has more than once unjustly accused me of helping myself to various articles of value about the place." "And what is your theory?" asked George Harley, fastening his keen eyes on the other's face. "Do you believe it was an inside job?" "Yes; I am sure that I can lay my hand on the guilty man. It is grandfather's valet, Simpson, an Englishman who has been with him for many years—a sly rascal, believe me, sir!" Young Donnay spoke vindictively. "Simpson is still in the house?" "Oh, yes. Probably he has secreted the necklace and after my grandfather's death will dispose of it to excellent advantage."

"And what can I do in the matter?" "This," said Gerald Donnay, leaning over and tapping a long forefinger on the polished top of the desk—"this Mr. Harley. I want you to go to my grandfather's house with me and prove to him that I am guiltless in the matter of the amber necklace. Also help me to find the real thief!" "You are sure that we can't fasten the guilt upon Simpson?" "Positive," said the other confidently. "Can you come home with me now, Mr. Harley?" Harley was thoughtful for a few moments, staring at the pale, anxious face of his client.

Suddenly he jumped up and reached for his hat and overcoat. "Let us go now, Mr. Donnay. My car is at the door." Five minutes later they were speeding uptown to the quiet cross street where the Donnays lived. During the ride George Harley learned that the household consisted merely of Colonel Donnay and his grandson, Gerald, and that the colonel was enjoying his usual health.

When they mounted the brownstone steps of the mansion the door opened, and a manservant presented himself. He was a quiet, middle aged man with graying hair and rosy cheeks and trusting eyes. "The valet, Simpson, attending the door during another servant's absence," guessed Harley, and he was right. "My grandfather, Simpson?" demanded Gerald sharply. "Taking a nap," Mr. Gerald, and he bees not to be disturbed."

"Very good! Now, Mr. Harley, suppose we go up to the top floor," said Gerald as he led the way up several flights of richly carpeted stairs to the top floor of the house. "This is the museum," he announced, opening a narrow iron door at the head of the last staircase, "and here is the place from which the amber necklace was stolen."

George Harley glanced around at the rich collection of antiques which crowded the cases and walls of the narrow gallery. Then he stared down at the velvet lined tray where the amber necklace had temptingly lain. "Where is Simpson's room?" asked the lawyer. "On the floor below—in the wing. I will lead you there."

Gerald Donnay started for the door, but George Harley stooped to pick up a small plain yellow object from the floor under the case. He slipped it into his pocket and strolled stately. On the landing stair he picked up another one and was equally reticent about its finding. Gerald Donnay led the way along a narrow hall to a door at the end which gave upon the corridor of the wing where the servants were quartered.

"Here is Simpson's room," he said, opening the door. Harley was rising from picking up a third bead, and he did not detect the triumphant smile that lighted the young man's face. It took three minutes to search the prime belongings of Abel Simpson, and it was absurdly plain that the old valet was a clumsy thief. The amber necklace, a bundle of scattered beads, was found in a box of collars, half concealed by a package of letters from Simpson's English friends. "What did I tell you?" demanded Gerald breathlessly. "Where is the pendant—the canary diamond?"

"Joy! It has disappeared! The old rascal has recognized its value and undoubtedly concealed it. I wonder what grandfather will say now!" chuckled the young man. "He will feel bad to think that Simpson has deceived him, has been faithless after all," suggested the lawyer. "Of course you know this means imprisonment for Simpson."

Gerald winced. "Of course grandfather will never prosecute him," he said hastily. "At least I can prove that I am innocent," he ended in an injured tone. "I hope so," was Harley's dry reply as they left the room. "Now, Mr. Donnay," he resumed briskly, "show me the location of your own room and that of Colonel Donnay, if you please."

Somewhat reluctantly Gerald Donnay pointed out his own bedroom, a large front apartment on the same floor as the servants' wing. It was luxuriously furnished and bore evidence that Gerald Donnay possessed an indulgent grandfather. "This is my room," said Gerald impatiently, as they entered the room. "There can't be anything to interest you here, Mr. Harley."

The afternoon was closing in, and the room was growing dim. "Would you mind making a light, Mr. Donnay?" said the lawyer quietly. When Gerald Donnay switched on the electric lights and turned around it was to face the muzzle of George Harley's automatic pistol. The young man's face was a study in expression, as his long jaw slowly dropped and his pale eyes started from their sockets. Slowly, his shaking hands were lifted, above his head. "Don't shoot!" he said weakly. "I won't—provided you hand over that diamond pendant," ordered Harley, poking the nose of his weapon into Gerald's thin back. And when the diamond pendant had been removed from the mattress, where Gerald had sewn it, and Harley had placed it in his pocket, the lawyer said to the cowering thief: "Now, forget that we discovered the broken necklace in Simpson's room. Remember that you placed it there, and also remember that the beads which you 'planted' so cleverly that they marked a trail from the museum to Simpson's room, were your undoing. They are also scattered along the hall from the valet's room to your door—this you did not know! Now, shall we interview Colonel Donnay?"

Maxwell Service SERVES Maxwell has put a real meaning into the word "Service". Simply by requiring every Maxwell dealer to carry a full supply of Maxwell parts—so that he can replace any damaged or worn part at once, without waiting for parts to be shipped from the factory. If you are a Maxwell owner your car will always be in running order because our dealer—any Maxwell dealer—can give you real and immediate service. If he couldn't, he wouldn't be a Maxwell dealer. KEEP THE RECORD STRAIGHT AND HEW TO THE BATTLE LINE

By Dwight G. F. Warner, Campaign Manager Michigan Home Rule League

As campaign manager for the Michigan Home Rule League I want to have a distinct, clear-cut understanding with the men and women of Michigan. I want every body to know, at all times, just where I stand on every phase of the fight—and why. I shall make a truthful, straightforward presentation of my case and I am going to ask the people of Michigan to back me up in my demand that those who are advocating prohibition and opposing Home Rule and local self-government shall be held to the strictest accountability for their carry-overance in this contest. I am opposed to prohibition for many reasons and every one of these reasons is sufficient to condemn prohibition in the eyes of every good citizen. I am opposed to prohibition because it is a dishonest measure. It is dishonest because it is not intended to be a prohibition measure. It would simply change the channels through which liquors are supplied to consumers in Michigan. It is a dishonest measure because it would destroy property without compensation; increase taxes on real estate and personal property, and deprive men of their employment without giving anything of value in return. I am opposed to prohibition because it is unsound as a governmental policy. Every prohibition were intended to prohibit it would not be enforceable, and to put upon the statutes or write into the Constitution a law that is not to be enforced is to make hypocrites of our people and perjurers of our public servants. I am opposed to prohibition because it drives from the liquor business every law-abiding man engaged in the business and at the same time attracts the lawless and vicious element and protects them in their lawlessness. I am opposed to prohibition because it makes the proper regulation of the liquor business practically an impossibility. It puts the law in the attitude of closing its eyes to the liquor business and pretending to deny that there is a liquor business, although everybody knows that the most pernicious form of the liquor business, namely—the illicit sale of liquor, flourishes and thrives under prohibition laws. I am opposed to prohibition because I believe in the separation of church and state and I most seriously object to the injection of religious opinions into the state's political affairs. Knowing as I do that religion never covers the political field except to engender hatred and strife, bitterness and persecution. I am for Home Rule because I believe in local self-government in all matters pertaining to local affairs and because I know that it is detrimental to our American form of government to force the opinions of one community upon another. Prohibition, even if it should be made to prohibit, and there is no indication whatsoever that it will ever prohibit, is not and cannot be a temperance measure for the simple reason that temperance means self-control and prohibition means control by others. The professional prohibitionists are not sincere in their advocacy of self-government by any unit or geographical division. Even now while they are fighting against local self-government and Home Rule in Michigan they are demanding, in the name of temperance, local self-government and Home Rule in Pennsylvania and other States. In their official publication they admit that the fight for prohibition in the various units, town, city, county and State, has but one object and that is to lead up to nation-wide prohibition, which is intended to destroy even the right of a State to reject prohibition, no matter how overwhelming may be the majority sentiment against such preposterous invasion of individual and community rights. Other objections, and they are manifold, will be brought out as the campaign progresses, but what I want to do now is to urge the people of Michigan to cooperate with me in demanding that the law be clear cut and that the attitude and purpose of the leaders of both sides shall be well defined. The people of Michigan should demand that the prohibition supporters shall declare clearly and frankly just why they are advocating prohibition and just what they propose. It shall mean to the people of this State. The people of Michigan have a right to know what the prohibitionists mean when they talk of prohibition and when they ask the people of this State to vote for it they have a right to know whether or not it is intended to prohibit, and if so, to what extent. They have a right to know whether it is the purpose of the prohibitionists to shut out liquor from the State of Michigan or whether it is their purpose to have this State flooded with shipments of liquor from Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and certain parts of Canada. They have a right to know why what unit of governmental control is advocated by the prohibitionists. They have a right to know why the prohibitionists can advocate Home Rule and local self-government in one, State, county unit in another, State-wide prohibition in another, and Nation-wide prohibition for all. They have a right to know what element of sincerity there may be in the prohibition movement when the professional prohibitionists insist upon providing in their prohibition laws ways and means whereby consumers shall obtain liquors in wholesale quantities. They have a right to know why the Nation-wide prohibition bill, supported even now by the very men who are demanding State-wide prohibition for Michigan, is so worded as to provide for the lawful manufacture, transportation and importation of liquors in wholesale quantities for personal use throughout the length and breadth of this Nation. They have a right to know why it is that the Hobson bill is so drawn as to make lawful the establishment of a distillery on every farm in the United States and the establishment of a kitchen bar in every home in the land. They have a right to know why the professional prohibitionists talk so hysterically upon the subject of drunkenness and contend so vociferously for the sacrifice of any and every fundamental governmental principle that may stand in the way of prohibition when these very prohibitionists are committed, body and soul, to the preservation of the lawful right of every man to make and use as much liquor as his hide will hold. I yield place to no man in my opposition to intemperance and in my advocacy of that self control which means real temperance, and for this very reason I shall demand and expect the co-operation of every Michigan man who values his right to control his own personal conduct under the guidance of the conscience that was given to him by his Creator.

Cider making time America was discovered 527 years ago on the 12th of Oct. Mrs. Ella Warby is the new clerk in the Brock general store. Frank Woodworth is moving his family to Northville this week. Mrs. Priscilla Dennis has resumed occupancy of her home here, recently vacated by Dr. Malloy and family. A number of Northville men attended the men's meeting in the Bully Sunday tabernacle in Detroit Sunday afternoon. Charles Welsh fell from a ladder Saturday while picking apples, and fractured his right ankle beside being badly bruised. Mr and Mrs. J. McKee have bought the Mrs. Snider place in Northville, and are moving there. Two horses died last week of paralysis near Utica, this state, which has caused some fear of an epidemic of the disease in that section. The beautiful weather last Saturday evening brought out a regular summer crowd and our streets presented as lively a scene as earlier in the season. The kindergartens were resumed in the library last week, with Miss Scott of Detroit substituting for Mrs. Whittem who had the latest recovery from her illness. An enjoyable dinner was given Monday by the help sewing club at the residence of Mrs. Harry Tait as a farewell to Mrs. G. F. Porter before her departure from town. About 100 of the books from the Ladies' Library were sent to a Chicago house the first of this week for re-binding. The necessity of having a large number of books thus repaired calls for one of the largest annual expenditures of the institution. The King's Daughters will have their fall spread next Tuesday, Oct. 17, at 6 o'clock in the Presbyterian church parlors. The delegates who attended the convention will also give their reports. Large attendance is desired. Bring fork, spoon, cup, saucer and plate. The Chinese Empire is going to have a new railroad costing 60,000,000 dollars. The road is to be built by one of America's leading railroad engineers, George A. Kyle of the Siemens-Carey Company of St. Paul-Minn. The American International corporation is going to finance the big project. Wayne is jubilant - very naturally - over the fact that the Harroun Motors Company has bought the plant of the defunct Prouty & Glass carriage factory as a starting point for the establishing of a big automobile factory which will employ 2,000 men. The factory is assured - if Wayne does her part, also. The Rochester Era issued, last week, a "Get-Together Edition," containing pictures of buildings, streets and public officials of the town and a large amount of local advertising, altogether indicating this little Oakland county city as a very desirable place to belong to. The edition was a 22 page one, with eleven full-page ads. At a meeting of the Library trustees last Saturday it was decided to make the library opening hour in the evening 30 minutes earlier, and to continue closing at 8:30 as during the summer months. Patrons are requested to remember that hereafter the evening hours are from 6:30 to 8:30, town clock time - if the t. c. is running.

E. J. Bradner is sufficiently improved in health to be able to walk out every day when the weather permits. S. D. Meseraull and family, who rented a part of the Houck house, will, instead, reside in the Millard house in Bealton. New smoke stacks have been erected this week on the Stimpson and Dubuar factories, under superintendence of a workman from Detroit. Mrs. Maye Stark, who was quite badly hurt by a fall last week at the home of her nephew, E. C. Stark, where she makes her home, has not been quite so well this week. The Clover Leaf Whist Club gave a six o'clock dinner, at the F. B. Macomber home last evening in honor of Mrs. Geo. Stanley who is to leave Northville soon for her new home in Detroit. Wm. Stotten has produced pleasing results in the way of a beautiful drive around Puchler hill, which property he purchased some time ago, by the expenditure of a large sum of money in road work. Northville also, is afflicted with a house famine, with consequent hoisting of rents. There seems to be, besides, an increasing number of application from people who are desirous of purchasing homes here. Mrs. C. C. Yerkes, Mrs. F. H. Lapham and Mrs. H. E. Taft were in Detroit Tuesday settling taxes for the St. Joseph's home, and a director of the Woman's Federated club. The ladies went on delegates from the local society. The marriage of Miss Abby Johnson of Moorstown and Dr. Clifford of Chelsea occurred Wednesday evening at the home of the former's brother in law, Mrs. Johnson taught science in the N. H. S. the past four years and won many warm friends here. Fire prevention day was very generally observed around these parts - the rain in the morning preventing all fires for the burning of rubbish. The governor should have consulted with the weather department when issuing his proclamation for the aforesaid "day" ("Collused" is original with this department, but what's the matter with it?). The Twin Six Club held their first meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Boyden Wednesday evening. After a two course supper, the guests enjoyed an evening of unusual stunts. The club will give a masked dance Wednesday evening, Oct. 25. The members are: Dr. and Mrs. P. R. Alexander, Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Taft, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Power, Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Boyden, the Misses Madeline Barnum and Bertha White, and Harold Turner and Don Ball. Automobile Sunday brought an attendance at the Presbyterian church that filled the auditorium nearly to capacity point. The admirable discourse by the pastor, Mr. Webber, on "The Automobile, A Peril And A Blessing" won favorable comment on every side for the logical, convincing and impartial manner in which the speaker presented the moral and spiritual dangers as well as the pleasures and advantages accruing through this paramount product of our generation and our own Michigan metropolis. Sixteen members of the Lenox Missionary society of the First United Presbyterian church of Detroit were entertained Saturday at the home of Mrs. F. B. Macomber. The party was chaperoned by Mrs. R. F. Grandy and Miss Isabel Beam, who assisted Mrs. Macomber as visiting hostesses. The others, were Mrs. Robt. Hutton, Mrs. J. H. Westlake, and Mrs. John Weaver and the Misses Mabel Barrett, Ida Anderson, Julia Michael, Mabel Glenn, Ida Stricker, Mary Morrison, Arla Greer, Martha Balkwell, Abbie Jerome.

Margaret Milross and Clara Kohler Northville ladies present were Mrs. F. S. Neal, Mrs. E. C. Hinkley and Mrs. Bert Stark.

On Saturday evening Naude O'Neil, who has been called America's greatest emotional stress, will be seen in "Princess Romanoff," based on Sardou's great play, "Pedora." The scenes are intensely dramatic but the tragedy is atoned for by the happy ending. Those holding season tickets for the lecture course must be sure to attend to having them reserved for the season before the opening of the course, thus avoiding possible disappointment later on. The seats will be placed on sale Monday, Oct. 1. Single admissions will be 35 cents. The course will open Friday evening, Oct. 20 with, The Concert Favorites, a trio of attractive and versatile young women whose splendid voices, histrionic and musical skill insure a very fine entertainment. Contestants will remember that the prize for the winner of the ticket sale contest will be awarded Friday evening - the lucky young lady taking her choice between a diamond ring and a wrist watch. CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY. Christian Science service in the Ladies Library Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock. W. T. C. Notes. (By the Press Correspondent) The next regular meeting of the W. T. FLY PAPER AIDS IN AN ARREST

Man Trying to Elope Alabama Deputies Entangled in It.
Birmingham, Ala.—Deputies Mack Murree and Floyd Jacobs recovered help from several sheets of fly paper, at Decatur, Ala., when they went to arrest Robert Tapscott, who has been wanted for two years on warrants charging him with violation of the prohibition laws.

The deputies were admitted to the Tapscott home by Tapscott's father, who informed them his son was in an adjoining room. When they entered it they found Tapscott floundering in half a dozen sheets of fly paper. He had tried to jump from his bed to a window, but landed in the sticky substance. He was trying to disentangle himself when the deputies captured him.

Too Many Ministers' Are Molly-Coddled, He Says.

Sioux City, Iowa.—Delivering his farewell address to the members of his congregation, Rev. A. C. DeLapp, pastor of the local Methodist Episcopal Church said:

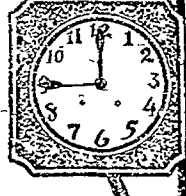

"I have attended theaters and am not ashamed of the fact. In this I have not been so perverse as some ministers who attend the theater only when they are away from their charge.

"Too many preachers are 'mollycoddled' by the congregation," he said, "and to many preachers baby the congregation."
"The theater is not bad," he said. "I went to theaters, because I wanted to understand the vast world that is attached to them. I wanted to know how to appeal to these people. In doing this, I have not lowered my standard in my own sight nor, I believe, in God's sight."

Dies Three Times Returns To Life

Calls for Water After His Second Demise

Strange Case of 300-Pound Laborer Fatally Injured by Fall from Hay Wagon.

Denver, Colo.—Death comes, but once to the ordinary man, but to Charles Gallagher, 58 years old, and weighing nearly 300 pounds, it came three times before it decided to remain. Three times in the early morning hours nurses and physicians in the county hospital pronounced their patient dead only to learn in two of the instances that the evidences of death had been false—that the heart had failed it was not until rigor mortis stiffened the body following the third death that the authorities felt safe in turning the body over to the coroner.

It was about 1 o'clock on the previous afternoon that some farmhands employed on the ranch of I. L. Taylor near Arvad heard screams for help. Hurring in the direction of the shouts they found Char. Gallagher, another workman, had fallen from a hay wagon with the result that his back had been broken. They summoned Mr. Taylor, who hurried Gallagher to the county hospital in a motor car, arriving there about 2.30 o'clock.

There it was found that in addition to the broken back, Gallagher also was suffering from a fracture of the skull. Death was almost a certainty. But neither the doctors nor the nurses had even a vision of the multitudinous death to come.

Therefore, when at 1.35 o'clock next morning Gallagher's pulse, heart and breathing ceased, the physicians applied the usual tests for death and ordered the body and bed of Gallagher into the "dressing room" or "dead room," to be shrouded. The garments of death were wrapped about the body of the man, the eyes were closed, the hands were pinioned that when the rigor of death came they would be in place. Then the door was closed and the "dead" man left for the coroner.

The operation had consumed about fifteen minutes. Five minutes later, Miss Grace Cramer, a nurse, passing the door of the dressing room, paused at a horrible, gurgling, straining sound from within. She turned and opened the door.

With a scream the nurse half reeled, then leaped forward. There on the bed, his face contorted, his wrists purple, his broken frame convulsing and swaying as he struggled against his bonds, Charles Gallagher, pronounced dead twenty minutes before, was seeking to free his hands and to call for help.

Quickly the nurse released his bonds and summoned the physicians. The excited beating of the pulse soothed and became normal again. For fully five minutes there was every evidence of an entire return to life. Then the pulse weakened once more, the eyes glazed dead and the stethoscopes denoted that the heart had ceased its beating entirely. From one to another traveled the glances of the physicians.

"There's no doubt about it this time," they said. "But just the same we'll watch."
And there they remained, watching the still form of the man on the bed. A quarter of an hour, a half hour, half test after test was made. And with every test there came the reply that life was gone. Five minutes more—eight minutes more—and then the cry, "His heart's beating again!"

It was a physician with his ear to a stethoscope. Another doctor listened. The faint beating of the heart became stronger; at the wrists there came evidence of pulse. Life had returned.

But this time life was fainter, feebler. Where the pulse had been strong before, it was weak now. Gallagher, twice dead, turned his head slightly his lips mumbled something. The nurse bent low.

"What is it?"
"Water—water," his lips gasped. The nurse turned. She hurried forth and returned. But when she entered the room again the doctors once more were applying the stethoscopes and shaking their heads. For life had departed again. And this time in certainty.

But with two returns to life already recorded, there was not even a chance of certainty now. It was not until three hours later, when the hospital authorities felt sure that life really had departed that the authorities felt safe in notifying the coroner that the body really was ready for his care.
"Explanation"—excuse me—one of the physicians when questioned about the strange case, "there isn't any explanation. The man just died three times, and that's all there is to it. Every test of death that we know was applied to him, and the all showed that life was negative. The man was dead—to every possible test—when he came to life again. That is the only explanation that can be given."

"Temperature Wasn't Right
An incident follow had been perceived to buy a thermometer by a doctor, of a town in and a few days later he came back with it, complaining that it didn't give satisfaction.
"What's the matter with it?" asked the doctor.
"Ah, damn, but it ain't made no difference round here. Some days it's too hot and other days it's too hot!"
Careless of Her.
"Oh, say, who was here to see you last night?"
"Only Myrtle, father."
"Well, tell Myrtle that she left her pipe on the piano."

SAVE MICHIGAN FROM THE FATE OF MAINE

By Dwight G. F. Warner, Campaign Manager Michigan Home Rule League. Here are three facts that the voters of Michigan ought to consider when listening to the appeals of the lobbyists to put Michigan in the class with Maine, which has suffered for nearly seventy years from the blight of prohibition and the abolition of the bootlegger. The first of these facts is that in all the breadth and length of this mighty nation there is only one place where, 90 per cent of all arrests are for drunkenness and that place is the City of Rockland, in the prohibition state of Maine. The second fact is that there is one city among all the municipalities in the forty-eight commonwealths of this nation—just one city that has the disgraceful distinction of having one arrest for drunkenness for every eight persons who have the misfortune to live within its bacchanalian boundaries. That city is the city of Bangor, in the prohibition state of Maine. The third in this trio of damning facts is related in a news dispatch from Bangor, Maine, and printed in the Boston American. The story in itself is plain tale easily told in a few words but with a marvelous amount of reading between the lines and it should settle once and for all any doubt as to the degrading and degenerating influence of prohibition in its relation to law enforcement and common decency in public life. I want every man and woman in Michigan to read this news item that I am reproducing herewith and I want every reader to ponder over the unspeakable iniquity of trying to foist upon Michigan the same kind of law that has debauched Maine into a state of sodden drunkenness and put the bootlegger in charge of civil government. BANGOR, ME., Sept. 8.—Having won his point against Mayor Woodman by threatening to resign if he could not keep the saloons closed during the street car strike, Police Chief Gilman says now that he will keep them closed through the strike and as much longer as he thinks best. The chief has scored a signal victory, but he says that he is not going in for a fanatical enforcement of the state prohibition law. The difference between the chief and the mayor came down to a point where the chief tendered his resignation. This settled the matter. The mayor withdrew and the saloons remained closed, just as the chief meant to have them. The strength of the chief's position was apparent today when he made his statement about keeping the town "dry" as long as he saw fit, possibly after the strike is ended. Meanwhile the trolley company declared there is no strike. The strikers asked the company to enter into a contract providing for arbitration of questions relating to the discharge of employees. But President Ryder has informed them that the company considers the strike over, and in any event would not discuss the matter with any organization or make any sort of contract with the strikers' union. President Ryder added that the company would not be so ungrateful as to discharge its new men to make places for disloyal and unworthy employes. The case of Walter W. Peterson, a Maine Central engineer, who was fined $100 for pulling off a trolley and assaulting the conductor, will come upon appeal in the supreme court next week. In the municipal court Charles E. Sleeper, one of the trolley company's new conductors, was found not guilty on a charge of assaulting Martin Nagle, a striker, with a loaded revolver. Evidence showed that the revolver which he drew on Nagle was unloaded. CONDUCTOR SET FREE Charles E. Sleeper, a non-union conductor, who appeared before Judge Wentworth today to answer a charge of threatening to shoot Martin Nagle, a strike sympathizer, was found not guilty. Sleeper claimed that he had been called names by a crowd of men who threatened him on Main street and that he had drawn the revolver, which was empty, to frighten them away. Judge Wentworth warned both the strike-breakers and the strikers against carrying weapons and told the strike-breakers not to mind being called names. He said that he himself had been called a "scab" for riding on one of the company's cars. Things remain at a high tension here and people continue to walk instead of ride. Feeling runs high and the authorities say that the slightest break on either side may incite an outbreak. And Maine is dry.
