POLITICAL BANQUET GREAT SUCCESS

BAPTIST LADIES FED A CROWD IN THE RINK FRIDAY NIGHT.

CONGRESSMAN KELLEY GAVE A GREAT TALK FOR C. O. P. AND MR. HALLOCK FOR THE DEMS.

The political banquet given by the Baptist ladies in the Rink Friday night was a great success. A large crowd was present and 250 were treated to a splendid chicken pie dinner.

P. J. Hallock of Detroit spoke for the Democrats, and defended that party's policies from his standpoint in an able manner. He said the president was in favor of a large defensive navy, but there was no real danger of war between the United States and a foreign country than there was between New York and Pennsylvania.

Congressman Kelly said he agreed with Mr. Hallock as to the remote danger of war, and because of there being no danger of war he could not see when or how the president has kept us out of war.

Mr. Kelly told of the thousands upon thousands of men throughout the United States employed solely in the manufacture of armaments and asked how they were to be employed when the war is over. The congressman claims that under the democratic free trade laws now in force, the factories in this country cannot compete with foreign manufacturers unless wages are cut to a figure where American labor could not exist.

It was a pleasant evening and all the speakers seemed with good feeling and courtesy. Rev. Frank Brass acted as toastmaster, and brief remarks were made by Pastors Webber of the Presbyterian church and Walker of the Methodist. Ex-Gov. Warner and wife of Farmington were present and occupied seats at the speakers' table. Mr. Warner was induced to make a few remarks and he gave a State-wide prohibition a big boost and the "Home Rule" program a jolt. He urged that the only safe plan was to vote "Yes" on State wide and "No" on so-called Home Rule. Governor Warner also spoke a good word for Mr. Sleeper.

He stated that while Mr. Sweet was a splendid citizen, so was Mr. Sleeper and that Mr. Sleeper had carried every vote in his home town excepting 19. "There were 500 votes cast," said the Governor, "and probably more than 300 were dry votes at that and a man who stands so high with the dries in his own town as that, is a good argument that he is deserving of the entire dry republican vote all over Michigan. You republicans will make no mistake in voting for Mr. Sleeper. He is entitled to every one of your votes and your loyal support."

Mrs. Griffin sang in a very charming manner two very appropriate patriotic solos and closed by leading the assembly in the singing of America.

During the supper the Montgomery-Wilcox-Perkins orchestra furnished some very nice music which was much appreciated. The Northville band also favored with several selections and thus ended another very pleasant affair.

Another Pioneer
PASSES AWAY

CAME HERE BY WAGON TRAIN WHEN MICHIGAN WAS A WILDERNESS.

Mrs. Elecia Ambler died at the home of her son, Wm. E., last Tuesday evening after a long illness.

She was one of Northville's oldest and best known citizens, being 84 years old and a resident of Northville for many years, driving thru to Michigan with her parents from New York in a wagon when but a child. They settled in Athens, Calhoun county, among the Indians and many were the stories she could tell of the red men. Her father was a Baptist minister in the days when a sermon was at least two hours long.

Some years later she was united in marriage with John Ambler, a place, who died about 10 years ago. One son, William, with whom she made her home, survives.

Funeral services will be held from the home this Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Rev. F. I. Walker, pastor of the church to which Mrs. Ambler belonged, and where she was a faithful attendant so long as her health permitted, will officiate.

We were pleased with the congregations Sunday. Your presence would have made them still better. Perhaps you had company and could not come. I don't know, but your Lord does know so if you can fix it up with Him, it doesn't matter about the pastor's opinion.

May we not begin the third year with deeper interest in the Master's cause? If so, it will mean deeper consecration on our part.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE SOCIETY.

Christian Science service in the Ladies Library Sunday morning at 10:45 o'clock.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Of all the actors fitted to play the part of a hero of romance not one can equal Lou Tellegen. As leading man for Sarah Bernhardt on her last American tour he acted in many costume plays, for which he is so peculiarly suited.

The Garrick Company are presenting Lou Tellegen in "A King Of Nowhere," by J. and L. DuRocher Macpherson, at the Garrick theatre, Detroit, for one week beginning next Monday evening, November 6. They style the play a romantic comedy. Tellegen plays the part of a Celtic Knight.

The scale is laid in the court of Henry VIII. He is a wreck of a man, but the terror of his court.

There is a strong love interest in the play, beautifully upheld by Mercedes Desmore as the Lady Margaret Silchester, and Sidney Greenstreet's characterization of King Henry is one of the features of a splendid performance.

"VOTING SLOGAN" SOLVES PROBLEM

NEWSPAPER MAN EVOLVES ONE WHEREBY DANGER OF MIX-UP ON AMENDMENTS IS ELIMINATED.

Publisher Stuart H. Perry of the Adrian Daily Telegram presents voters with a "slogan" which, if followed, will prevent any one from making a mistake on his ballot on the four amendments up for decision at next Tuesday's election.

Mr. Perry points out the fact that the prohibition amendment and the legislative local acts repeal amendment are each but six lines long on the ballot, while "home rule" and "fraternal insurance" occupy ten and 52 lines respectively. He considers the first two worthy of all good men's support, so says "VOTE FOR THE TWO SHORT ONES; KILL THE TWO LONG ONES." Keep this in mind and you will be all right.

BAND CONCERT AND PICTURE SHOW

WILL BE GIVEN AS A BENEFIT IN THE ALSEIUM, WEDNESDAY EVENING NOV. 8.

That our Northville band may be properly equipped for next summer's concerts, regular practice is necessary each week during the winter. This requires the services of a competent instructor and also a constant supply of the latest popular music. These are expenses that must be met the year around. During the summer concert season the funds are supplied by liberal contributions from the business men of the village. To meet current expenses the boys propose giving a series of entertainments during the winter, putting on one each month. By liberal patronage of these, Northville will be helping to secure for another season the concerts so much appreciated by the public. Be sure and get tickets for yourself and family your sweetheart or sister, for this first entertainment next Wednesday evening, Nov. 8, in the Alseium when the following program will be given:

Manager Thompson has secured this famous 5 reel feature, "Monte Carlo," for the occasion.

PART ONE.
March, West Mount Cadets, Woods Selection, Light Cavalry, Suppe March, Our Directors, Bigelow 3 Reels Pictures, Monte Carlo

PART TWO

THE RECORD ALL HOME PRINT THIS WEEK.

Owing to the big demand for advertising space in the Record, it has been found necessary to have an all home print issue this week. The situation has, of course, involved an amount of type-setting and other work scarcely to be realized by the average reader but it has also given us opportunity to demonstrate what can be done in our particular line when business necessities demand.

NOT SUCH BIG MEN.

Recruiting officers of the U S Marine Corps stationed south of the Mason and Dixon line recently requested officials at the marine headquarters to reduce the minimum weight for recruits in the South from four to six pounds. The Southerner is usually small-boned, wiry and light, they said, though as a class they are as sound and enduring as men from other sections. The "large, raw-boned Southerner" who figures in romance is seldom seen in real life.

PUBLICITY

By Otto H. Kahn.

Favorable public opinion is recognized by capable business men as a valuable asset and misunderstanding a liability that no industry can afford to carry. Otto H. Kahn, the nation's leading banker, in discussing publicity from the standpoint of a financier, said:

"One of the characteristics of finance heretofore has been the cult of silence, some of its rites have been almost those of an occult science. To meet attacks with dignified silence, to maintain an austere demeanor, to cultivate an etiquette of reticence, has been one of its traditions. Nothing could have been more calculated to irritate democracy, which dislikes and suspects secrecy and resents aloofness. And the instinct of democracy is right.

"Men occupying conspicuous and leading places in finance as in every other calling touching the people's interests, are legitimate objects for public scrutiny in the exercise of their functions. If opportunity for such scrutiny is denied, if the people are denied the desire for information, there is met with silence, secrecy, impatience and resentment, the public mind very naturally becomes infected with suspicion and lends a willing ear to all sorts of gossip and rumors.

"The people properly and justly insist that the same mere light that beats upon a throne should also beat upon the high places of finance and commerce. It is for those occupying such places to show cause why they should be considered fit persons to be entrusted with them, the test being not merely ability, but just as much, if not more, character, self-restraint, fair-mindedness and due sense of duty towards the public. Finance, instead of avoiding publicity in all of its aspects, should welcome it and seek it. Publicity won't hurt its dignity. A dignity which can be preserved only by inclusion, which cannot hold its own in the market place, is neither merited nor worth having.

"We must more and more get out of the seclusion of our offices, out into the rough and tumble of democracy, out to get to know the people and get known by them. Not to know one another means but too frequently to misunderstand one another, and there is no more fruitful source of trouble than to misunderstand one another's kind and ways and motives."

FEWER LAWS

By Geo. W. Wickersham.

It would be a good thing if our legislative bodies, not excluding the Congress of the United States, would give themselves a long rest from the business of framing multitudinous new statutes, with which to clutter their own records and the law libraries of the world. They could profitably devote a term of years to analyzing existing laws, simplifying, standardizing and modernizing those which are essential to good government, and ruthlessly repealing those which we could do without. The sweet reasonableness which they would acquire from this task might convince them that problems of such importance as to require brand new legislation are comparatively rare in the life of a State. There is a fight ahead for any set of reformers who may try to indulge in a renegade breathing spell. For as Associate Justice Hughes, formerly of the Supreme Court, pointed out, in a recent address to the State Bar Association of New York, there is a tendency in all democracies to indulge in excessive legislation. The latter appears to be an expression of the power of democracy. It is useless to cavil at it. But the energy and independence of thinking that it represents may be directed into new channels and in time it may seem more admirable to the citizens to have codified a group of laws than to have added lavishly to their number, with the sole result of rendering them chaotic and difficult to enforce.

Already more attention is being paid in Congress and in the Legislature of the State of New York to the science of the formulation of laws. There is a realization that clear, intelligible English must be used, that other statutes on the same subject must be examined, in order to learn whether the new bill will link up with existing legislation. New York State employs a bill-drafting expert at Albany. At Columbia University there is a bill-drafting department, and other educational institutions are beginning to study the subject.

It is well that we have these signs of progress to encourage us. For there have been examples in the past not only of frivolous lawmaking, but of statutes framed for dishonest motives and expressed in such manner that they would be difficult, or impossible, to enforce. An interesting point is the tendency among English-speaking people to legislate against human ills, such as poverty, which appeal to the popular imagination, but which no legislation can remove. Many measures which pass the legislatures never have been and never will be enforced. We need fewer laws, more carefully drawn—laws that can be respected and honestly enforced.

SPACE VERSUS CASH.

In explaining to readers why free notices cannot be given to societies and organizations when they are holding "entertainments for profit," the Asheville Citizen remarks that a good deal of free space is donated to purely charitable enterprises, and that this is considered as the contribution of the newspaper to such charities. Is it so considered by the men and women in charge of such charities? If when such matter is presented for free publication, the value of the space required were to be estimated, as with advertising copy, and a cash contribution of such amount were to be tendered in lieu of the publication of the matter, would it be declined, and the publication of the matter be accepted in preference? Let some publisher, suggests the Editor and Publisher, try the experiment. He is curious to know whether charity workers consider a donation of free space as a real contribution to their work.

UNCLE SAM BUYS FORESTS.

More than 66,000 acres of land in the Appalachian and White mountains were recently approved by the national forest reservation commission for purchase by the government. About 36,000 acres are in New Hampshire, adjoining what is called the "White Mountain Purchase Area." This makes nearly 700,000 acres of the White mountain region that the government will own. Several smaller tracts were also purchased in North Carolina. About 3,000,000 left over from the fund previously appropriated will be used for developing these lands.

Did the Goblins get you—in any way—Tuesday night?

Ladies, don't forget that but two more months of your leap-year privileges (?) are still left.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Wisdom have moved to their newly purchased home on Rogers street.

Mrs. E. B. Thompson, who has been ill for the past few weeks, is now convalescing very satisfactorily.

A man demonstrating blinder twine by means of an ingenious contraption was attracting considerable attention in front of Huff's hardware store Tuesday.

The building moved this week from the Edison Co's new premises on North Center street will be placed on a lot on Carpenter avenue, Northside, recently acquired by Mr. Scott, and will form the nucleus of a pretty bungalow he is to erect thereon.

As pointed out in another column VOTE FOR THE TWO SHORT NOTES; KILL THE TWO LONG ONES. This is the less and short of the whole matter of the amendments as far as your ballot is concerned. If, as we hope, you are in favor of the affirmative.

Miss Belle McClelland of south Padlock street is seriously ill with appendicitis at the city hospital. Pontiac Press-Gazette. The young lady referred to is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cloud McClelland, and the family were well known residents of Northville for several years, being active members of the Baptist church.

Childless couples should move to Metamora. It seems to be in the air there, at least so Metamora claims, and they seem to have the goods to substantiate their statement. In that village of less than 200 inhabitants, there are six pairs of twins, a record which it is doubted any town of its size in America can equal.—Oxford Leader.

We are informed that a skunk farmer of Ramsey, Inc., has succeeded in developing a species of skunks said to be devoid of the power to emit the disagreeable odor common to their kind. A pen of the animals was exhibited at several county fairs this fall and attracted unusual attention.

It is said. They would probably have attracted still more had they been just plain, ordinary specimens of the Mephitis Mephitis.

All the "reliable signs" point to either a severe winter or a mild winter as usual. The goose bones, corn husks, muskrat houses, rabbit fur, etc., etc., all indicate either one or the other. Take your choice and stick to it until compelled to retract.

As a means toward eliminating British interference with our mails, post-office authorities recently announced that they would no longer allow any mails going from the United States to the U. S. postal agency at Shanghai, China, to be dispatched through Vancouver, B. C. Army transports will hereafter carry mails to the Philippine islands, they also said.

The coal shortage is not going to affect Pontiac, according to the Press-Gazette, which states that the difficulty in Detroit is due to the shortage on some of the big lines, and the whole trouble, with those comes from the fact that they can't get their cars back for so long a time when they send them to that city, for which reason these roads refuse to send cars there. Pontiac dealers get their coal over other lines, so have experienced no trouble thus far.

There is at present about $500,000,000 in gold in the U. S. treasury in New York city. This is said to be more gold than was ever gathered into one place since the world began. With another year of war the United States will be entirely out of debt while the rest of the world will be its debtors, statisticians say.

Our Uncle-Samuel is at liberty, as far as we are concerned to whack up with us any time he feels that the responsibility is too heavy for him.

We are wondering if any Northville women "bit" on the "letter chain" business whereby they were to get a "guaranteed silk petticoat" for ten cents? The government has taken the matter in hand and is after the originators of the scheme, but that will probably not restore the dimes that were sent to Minneapolis at the rate of 25,000 per day, causing a congestion of mail that drew the attention of the federal authorities. How anybody ever would "fall for" such an absurd scheme passes comprehension, but obviously a whole lot of women did.

My Conception of the Presidency

By CHARLES EVANS HUGHES.

On the eve of Election Day the American people are entitled to a summary of the things I have stood for in this campaign, as they are things I shall stand for as President.

No man can tell in advance what unexpected demands the next four years may present but one whose conception of the President's duty rests upon fundamental principles can describe with entire sincerity how the problems of administration would be approached and in what spirit they would be solved.

A man charged with the duty of reaching a desired goal knows that the road to it is found in following that path which sound judgment and clear vision open up step by step. I can see the road I expect to travel.

I propose first of all to start right. The President is primarily an executive. It is his supreme duty to attend to the business of the nation, to safeguard its interests, to anticipate its needs, to enforce its law.

The first act of a President who takes this view of his duties is to call about him the ablest cabinet the country can furnish, men who can deal with the tremendous international and domestic problems which will confront us in the next four years.

My conception of the Presidency differs absolutely from that of Mr. Wilson. I look upon the President as the administrative head of the government. He looks upon the President as primarily the political leader and lawmaker of the nation.

In the two departments of government most closely touching our foreign relations—the Department of State and the Department of the Navy—he chose men whom he knew to be wholly unequal to their duties. Administrative obligation was subordinated to political exigency. I can assure the country that any administration upon my direction will stand upon sound administrative ground with the ablest cabinet the country can supply.

Across the road we are to travel this next four years, even though we start right and move with prudence and courage, serious hazards are thrown like breaks in a roadway made by a torrential rain. These all raise out of the war torrent which has overwhelmed Europe. The first has to do with our foreign relations. It is the President's duty to safeguard the interests of our own nation and to preserve the friendship of every nation.

No man is more determined than I to maintain the peace, which the United States, Spain, Sweden, Norway and all the American republics now enjoy. But I should seek to maintain that peace by a firm and courteous insistence on the rights of our citizens at home and abroad.

An American in Mexico is subject to Mexican law, but he is an American still and is entitled to the protection of his own government in his lawful business. For one I shall never consent to a policy which leaves Americans helpless against the lawlessness of any country in which they have a right to do business.

There confronts labor in the next four years a condition more serious than any that American laboring men have been called upon to face. When this war began over a million American working men were seeking vainly for employment. When the war ends and the developed energies of a new Europe are thrown into commercial production, our nation will face a competition such as it never knew.

One of two things must happen—either millions of men will be seeking work in vain or else there must be thought out in advance the problem of commercial organization as France and England and Germany are seeking to think out the problem today. Every one of these nations is preparing to defend its own market by a protective tariff. The end of the war will end also the opportunities for labor created by the war. The millions in the trenches today will be our industrial competitors tomorrow. If we are to save our laboring men from catastrophe we must plan a tariff protection along sound, just and economic lines. To this endeavor I pledge myself and the men who are to be my colleagues.

In this matter again I differ absolutely from the policy of the present administration. Democratic platforms have declared that the government has no right to levy tariff duties except for income. This is the fundamental faith of the Democratic party.

I pledge myself and those who stand with me to deal with the needs of laboring men the country over, whatever their trade or organization, upon the principle of giving the largest protection possible to every American working man and the largest participation possible in the prosperity of our industries with special favors to none.

Finally it is to be remembered that every European government is putting itself behind its industries; organizing them, encouraging them and suggesting economies. When the commercial struggle begins anew, the industries of every European country will go into the world market backed by the effective cooperation and intelligent oversight of their government.

Our national policy requires that government maintain a strict supervision of business organization. This can be done effectively and yet leave the government free to encourage legitimate and wholesome business enterprise. I stand for such supervision and control of business, but I demand also that business great and small (and especially for the small business) be treated fairly and justly. Only under such conditions can business pay living wages or compete with foreign manufacturers.

In this respect again the present administration holds a policy entirely opposite. It has viewed business enterprise with suspicion and has made the government a brake to stop the wheels of legitimate industrial progress. It has treated the business men of this country as though they were suspicious characters. It has assumed that capital and labor are natural enemies. In four years it has put this country further on the road to chaos than has been accomplished in a generation before. The men who stand with me believe in the honesty of the American business man; they believe no less in the honesty of the American working man; they believe that the common good is to be found not in class war but in mutual justice and fair dealing between capital and labor in the abstract, but as between men and men.

You know the road we have traveled this last four years. Mr. Bryan and Mr. Daniels are its monuments of executive efficiency. Our murdered and forsaken citizens in Mexico reveal a conception of American citizenship plain enough to send a new one for American patriotism to adopt; the monument of class bitterness raised by this administration throws a sinister shadow across our political horizon; the unjust accusation against business men has left a bitter taste in our national life. If you prefer this path it is plainly marked. And the end of it is class war.

You ask what road I propose to travel? These are the milestones which mark it—an executive responsible to the whole nation, a cabinet chosen from the ablest Americans, a foreign policy that stands courageously but firmly for American rights, a flag that protects the American in his lawful rights wherever his legitimate business may take him, a preparation for trade competition which shall protect all groups of American workmen, a government oversight of business which will fearlessly eliminate abuses, but will act on the assumption that the average business man is honest, and finally a domestic policy which looks to industrial peace, and to sound and permanent prosperity based upon the development of American trade and the building up of American industries.

We Americans are in one boat. You cannot strike a blow at one group without injury to all. Common justice and fair play will settle our difficulties if suspicion and bitterness are let alone. Those are the principles by which I propose to be guided.

Vote for a Square Deal and Defeat "Home Rule"

VOTE NOV. 7
MICHIGAN
"YES" FOR PROHIBITION
"NO" ON HOME RULE

On Nov. 7 every voter will receive ballots for four Constitutional Amendments. Two of these relate to the liquor traffic and two do not. Your special attention is called to the two amendments relating to the liquor traffic.

Every voter must vote twice on the liquor traffic. Every enemy of the saloon must vote "YES" on the Dry State-wide Amendment to Article XVI, Section 11, for prohibition. Every voter, wet or dry, who believes in the square deal, will vote "NO" on the "wet" or so-called "Home Rule" Amendment to Article VIII, Section 30.

What is the so-called "home rule" amendment? It is a plan to change the Michigan Local Option Law so that the voting unit will be the city, village or township instead of the county, as at present. It is distinctly a wet measure, advocated by the Michigan Home Rule League, which is the anti-prohibition organization of the Michigan saloons who are backed by the brewers and distillers in many other states than Michigan.

Who wants the so-called "home rule" amendment? The saloon crowd, brewers and distillers. Who are fighting the "home rule" amendment? The United Dry Federation of Michigan, including the Michigan Anti-Saloon League, Michigan Grange, Michigan Gleaners, Michigan State Sunday School Association, The Trade Union Dry League, W. C. T. U., and other great organizations, both Catholic and Protestant.

Amendment to Article XVI of the Constitution, by adding thereto a section to be known as Section 11, providing for prohibition in the state forever of the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale, giving away, bartering or furnishing of any vinous, malt, brewed, fermented, spirituous or intoxicating liquors, except for medicinal, mechanical, chemical, scientific or sacramental purposes.

Section 11. The manufacture, sale, keeping for sale, giving away, bartering or furnishing of any vinous, malt brewed, fermented, spirituous or intoxicating liquors, except for medicinal, chemical, scientific or sacramental purposes shall be after April 30th, 1918, prohibited in the state forever. The legislature shall by law provide regulations for the sale of such liquors for medicinal, mechanical, chemical, scientific and sacramental purposes.

To vote Dry put a cross after YES

What the "wets" want in Michigan is to defeat state-wide prohibition and nullify county local option—and to do this they hope to deceive enough dry voters so as to get a majority, November 7.

If the state-wide dry amendment is defeated and the wet "home rule" amendment is adopted, the county local option law of Michigan will be destroyed and the state will be as wet legally as it was before Van Buren County went dry in 1890.

Amendment to Article VIII of the Constitution by adding thereto a section to be known as Section 30, providing that every incorporated city and village, and organized township shall each have the right to determine whether or not there shall be prohibited therein the manufacture and sale of malt, brewed, fermented, vinous, distilled or intoxicating liquors.

Section 30. Every incorporated city, every incorporated village and every organized township (meaning thereby all that part of a township outside the limits of an incorporated city or village located partly or wholly therein) shall each have the right to determine by a majority vote of the electors thereof, whether or not there shall be prohibited therein the manufacture and sale of malt, brewed, fermented, vinous, distilled or intoxicating liquors.

Halloween was celebrated by a jolly crowd of young people in Cattermole

The Halloween "sprites" were very moderate in their depredations

A WARNING AGAINST DANGEROUS MEASURE

SO-CALLED FRATERNAL AMENDMENT SAID TO STRIKE AT THE HEART OF BENEFIT SYSTEM

One of the most important elections ever held in the state will be that of November 7th.

Besides voting for candidates for National, State, District and county offices, the electors will be called upon to express themselves on four constitutional amendments.

Among these is a so-called Fraternal amendment, which, if it carries, will disrupt the entire Fraternal system. This amendment has been placed upon the ballot through the efforts of anti-Fraternalists, who are cleverly befogging the real purport of the proposition by advertising themselves as the "Fraternal Amendment League."

The "Fraternal Amendment League" with headquarters at Grand Rapids has organized branch leagues in many counties and has sent out tons of literature, referring to the constitutional amendment as a Fraternal amendment. Unwittingly, however, this self-styled fraternal organization, referring to the proposed amendment in its newspaper advertising says: "The present amendment differs somewhat in its phraseology but it is identical in its general provisions and in its purpose with the original one." By this reference to the "original one" is meant the amendment which the Fraternalists of the state so overwhelmingly defeated two years ago.

The campaign against the amendment two years ago was conducted by the Fraternal Voters' League which represented a large majority of all the fraternal societies in the state. The Fraternal Voters' League has again been organized and has formed a complete organization in every county in the state. Literature is being sent out as to the exact purport of the anti-fraternal amendment, so that none may be misled into voting for a proposition which is against rather than for them and their cause.

If the voter on election day reflects the true sentiment of those who believe in the Fraternal System it will be as overwhelming against the anti-fraternalists as it was two years ago. More than 60 societies under the Fraternal Voters' League organization are opposing the anti-fraternal amendment.

Every member of these societies would be affected by this amendment, which, if adopted would do away with the lodge system, take away from fraternal societies the right to self-government and open the doors to all forms of wild cat insurance. The phraseology of the proposed law makes it impossible for voters to comprehend the vicious points which are intended to strike at the very heart of the fraternal benefit system, therefore every active Fraternalist is asking friends to vote "NO" on the amendment.

MAJESTIC THEATRE, DETROIT.

A brand new characterization is promised by Mary Pickford when she comes next week starting Sunday afternoon to the Majestic theatre in "Less Than The Dust." There will be special music and a variety of other films as usual and new songs by Henry Santrey, including "Love Me At Twilight," by Irving Berlin.

APPROPOS OF THE H. OF C. OF L.

Judge E. C. Roberts of the Lenox elevator tells this one:

"We paid $5.25 for beans yesterday and that reminds me:

"When beans climbed to the two dollars per bushel mark a few years ago I picked out a dandy big, fine looking bean, had it mounted on a stick pin and wore it. It created many a laugh, and was a good advertiser of the price of beans.

"Alas, today at the present price I can't afford to waste a bean on a stick pin."—Durand Express

A Success

The conversation had turned to the many men who had met success. "There, for instance," said one man, pointing down the street, "goes a man who began life in poverty and now lives on the fat of the land." McFee looked. "Yes, I know him," he replied. "He's an agent for an antifraternal concern."—Judge.

Stone Soldier

He Coolly Stood Guard In the Presence of Mexican Bandits

By F. A. MITCHEL

During the administration of the government of Mexico by Porfirio Diaz a young American, Edward Ingersoll, who had just married a young woman, went to the state of Durango to settle. Northern capital was then pouring into Mexico, and the prospect of prosperity was greater than ever before. Diaz had held the discordant elements in check for many years, and it looked as if the continued succession of revolutions was over.

The young emigrant was a stonecutter and settled in a town where the wooden buildings were being torn down to give place to those of a more substantial character. Having purchased a small tract on the outskirts of the place, he built on it a dwelling house and a shed, under which he kept his material. Besides getting out the ordinary stonework for the ornamentation of buildings, he designed and constructed marble monuments. His instincts were artistic, and although his figures were crude, some of them were fairly well executed.

But scarcely had Ingersoll become settled when the revolution was started which was destined to result in the downfall of the man whose iron hand had kept the peace in Mexico. The Madero revolution destroyed the equilibrium under which Mexico had prospered, and Madero was succeeded by Huerta. In addition to the regular forces (if they deserve the name) pitted against each other, bands of men whose only object was plunder were let loose, and if anything were needed to complete the wreck of Mexico they supplied the deficiency.

The orders which had kept Ingersoll busy dropped away. His business was paralyzed. He would have pulled up and gone back to the United States, but what means he had were invested in his storeyard, and he could not get it out. He must wait for some new power to seize the government of Mexico that would restore the conflicting elements. Hoping against hope, he remained where he was, but made what preparation he could with his limited means to resist any attack that might be made upon his premises by marauders from the different armies or the bandits.

Having plenty of stone in his yard, he built a miniature fortress around his dwelling. A parapet was constructed of headstones, either finished or partly finished. Square apertures were left, intended for loopholes through which to fire. But since there was no one except Ingersoll to do the firing and since he had no ordinance there was little prospect of a successful defense.

There were several stone figures in the yard which Ingersoll thought of putting up on his fortress as scare crows—that is, in the hope that an enemy seeing them from a distance would believe them to be veritable defenders. But unfortunately they were not suitable to the purpose. One was a white marble angel blowing the resurrection trumpet, another was a saint that had been ordered for a church. There was only one that would be a suitable decoration for a fortification, a life size statue of a soldier that had been ordered to mark the grave of a young man who had died in the Mexican military service. He was represented standing as if on guard, the butt of his musket on the ground, the barrel resting against his shoulder. Ingersoll could not hope that this stone figure would be mistaken for a live man, but it was the only soldier like defense at hand, so he lifted it by a derrick onto the rampart.

The fort might deceive an enemy if it could not be plainly seen, but in broad daylight it would deceive no body. At night it would not be seen at all.

There came a time when a bandit chief determined to loot the town near which Ingersoll lived. He had sent one of his men into the place to discover where the richest plunder was to be obtained and to report thereon. When the spy returned among other persons who might be compelled to disgorge what would be worth having he named Ingersoll. There was no plunder in stones, manufactured or unmanufactured, but Ingersoll was supposed to have money and would doubtless pay well for the lives of himself and family. The spy did not visit the storeyard, but had heard that some sort of defense had been constructed. The bandit chief, when he approached the town at night, expecting to take the people off their guard and prevent their having time to organize a defense, sent a detachment under one Manuel Nunez to swoop down on the storeyard and extort all the money the owner had.

"I learn," he said, "that the man is a gringo, and if he doesn't give you all the ready cash you have reason to suppose he possesses kill him and take what you find."

Now, these instructions were given in the house of an American settler whose premises the bandits had looted and were overheard by the despoiled man, who sent his son to Ingersoll to tell him what was to be meted out to him. When the boy appeared at the storeyard conveying the awful news it was after dark. He had made a short cut through a forest and a marsh, with both of which he was sufficiently familiar to traverse, but they would be impassable for the bandits, who must take a roundabout route over the road. They had not yet started when the boy left, but were preparing to do so. The Ingersolls calculated that they would have an hour to decide whether to take to flight and if they concluded to remain they would have at least an hour for preparation.

Ingersoll was for immediate flight. His wife was not so minded. They could not take with them their furniture or other effects which they had been a long while accumulating, and the woman could not bear to give them up even if she risked the lives of all of them by remaining to protect their property. She had given much thought to making their fortress effective, outlasting, womanlike, to deception instead of force. She advocated remaining and trying the effect of a certain ruse she had contrived.

About 11 o'clock at night Nunez, with his detachment, came in sight of Ingersoll's premises. One of Ingersoll's children, a girl of twelve, was hiding at an outpost and ran back home by a short path to report their coming. When the bandits came within a few hundred yards of the storeyard Nunez, who was at their front, suddenly saw a light ahead of him. It was not a bright light, but enough to reveal to him the head and shoulders of a man in the uniform of a Mexican soldier standing with his musket leaning against his left shoulder and with both hands screening a burning match from the wind. He held the flame over a pipe he held in his mouth and lighted his pipe. Even the little puffs of smoke were visible. Then the match went out as suddenly as it had been lighted, and all was dark again.

Nunez halted, and his men did the same. When the light went out he turned and said:

"It seems that the place is defended by a force of regular troops."

"And a fortification," put in one of the men. "Didn't you see that the man stood on a parapet?"

At that moment there came from the storeyard the notes of a bugle sounding "taps."

"We are not out for soldiers," said Nunez. "I am quite sure the captain would not approve of our bringing on a fight that might land us at the end of a rope and interfere generally with his plans."

"Certainly not," called a voice from the rear.

"But, since we must pass the place," said another, "we may get a nearer view."

"Very well," said Nunez. "Let us proceed."

Now every one on the premises, expecting an attack, was listening, and when the tread of feet was heard at a convenient distance up the road Tommy Ingersoll, a youth whose figure was much smaller than the one on the rampart, stationed himself behind it with a match in his hand. Ingersoll, at his wife's suggestion, had dug a hole from the back of the stone soldier's neck to his mouth and inserted a rubber tube. A tobacco pipe had been placed between the lips, and by suction at the other end of the tube the figure would appear to smoke. When the bandits were heard approaching Tom used his own arms in place of the soldier's to strike a match and hold it over the pipe. His father, at the other end of the tube did the smoking, and the soldier seemed to the bandits to relight his pipe. The light, however, was so small that they got a view not much better than before.

One of the articles the American had laid in for the defense of his fortress was a drum. It belonged to a little boy in the neighborhood and was not in itself an important weapon. But it is not the cannon, the rifle, the sword alone in war that are useful. As in the shrill tone of the bugle, so in the beat of a drum there is inspiration. The Ingersoll garrison did not intend their drum as a means of keeping up their courage, but to inspire their enemy with terror.

The Ingersolls could hear faint sounds made by their enemies and did not know but that they were crawling up upon them. A hurried council of war was held and the question discussed as to what auxiliary to the stone soldier could be adopted. While they were debating Tom seized the drum and began to beat the long roll, which is a signal in all armies for the men to turn out to repel an attack. As an adjunct to this Ingersoll himself sang out, "Fall in!" in a number of different tones, to lead the bandits to suppose that the orders came from different officers.

Nunez gave an order to tread softly and pass the place without a word, lest the garrison be aroused. So the bandits went stealthily by the stone soldier with a stone gun, the only defender of the Ingersoll premises. Nunez led them into the town, where they found the main force plundering, and they joined their comrades in the work. When it had been finished and they were marching on the chief asked Nunez how much he had acquired from the Ingersoll storeyard.

"Nothing," replied Nunez. "The gringo succeeded in getting protection from the troops. I did not think it prudent to arouse them, since it might have led to interference in sacking the town. I led my men by the place stealthily."

"A wise decision," replied the chief. Ingersoll remained in Mexico till the raids to the United States occurred, when he thought it better to leave his property and save the lives of himself and his family. Having reached the Texas border with his wife and family, Ingersoll took part in the punitive expedition that started in after the bandits.

A new aeroplane manufactured by the Williams-Aeroplane Co. of Fenton was left in a field a few nights ago ready for a trial trip next day and during the night was destroyed by fire, unmistakably of incendiary origin. Every effort is being made to discover the perpetrators.

The plate-glass-scratcher has now appeared in Pontiac, which is an indication that the "Injun" city is getting into the metropolitan class. But then, that isn't much consolation to the property owners whose big

The people of this vicinity are very much interested in the success of our former townsman and ex-postmaster, O. H. P. Green, who is a candidate for Sheriff.

We believe Mr. Green the logical candidate for this office, not only from the standpoint of his popularity but from that of his excellent qualifications. This alone should win for him the support of all parties.

In these days of clever criminals, Oakland county should have the best possible man available for Sheriff. Mr. Green would be no experiment. He is a shrewd detective and has invariably met with success in outwitting many classes of law violators not only in recent years but as far back as we have knowledge of him as an officer. His very efficient services as Under Sheriff during the past four years is sufficient evidence of his fitness for the Sheriff's office. As a matter of business economy and efficiency, the voters of Oakland county could not do better than to elect O. H. P. Green for Sheriff. We predict a nice majority for him at the coming election.—Orion Review.

VOTE MICHIGAN DRY

ANOTHER REASON WHY!

The Saloon got his money!

It deprived him and his family of shoes, clothing, groceries, meats, dry goods and the barest necessities of life.

The saloon that killed the man in him and made him an outcast

That robbed him of his ambition, decency, self-respect and the respect of his fellowmen, that made him a human derelict on the sea of life

Now has the nerve to ask him to vote for "home rule"

The saloonkeepers of Michigan not only want prohibition defeated, but they want a still greater freedom to carry on their damnable traffic in human life.

If "Home Rule" carries it will enable the saloon to control the elections of our state.

It will enable them to plant "floaters" in townships and villages, and swing the election their way.

Does any thinking man doubt that they will do that after reading of present registration irregularities and past election frauds?

You can't stop the growth of a weed by clipping it here and there. You must pull it up by the roots!

You can't REGULATE the saloon BECAUSE IT REFUSES TO OBSERVE OR OBEY REGULATORY LAWS. This has been proven time and time again!

And now it's time for ACTION!

Take the saloon off the corner and remove the barroom, with its filthy mouth yawning and gaping for the young manhood of Michigan.

Vote Michigan Dry

by voting "YES" on the amendment to Article 16, to be known as Section 11, providing for STATEWIDE PROHIBITION!

Vote "NO" on the amendment to Article 8, to be known as Section 30, this being the saloon's deceptive "home rule" measure.

Do it for Mankind and Michigan!
