Storing Your Car in Winter

Have you thought anything about the care of your car this winter? If you have a nicely heated garage of your own, this will not interest you. If not, consider the risk as well as the inconvenience of having your car in a place that is not provided with heat. The damage to paint and tires, the effect of extreme cold, dampness and changing temperature, the expansion and contraction of metal, the hardening of oil in the transmission and differentials, is considerable. It's a very expensive way to house a car.

We can take care of you, at much less cost, in our evenly-heated, fire proof building, where your car will be always ready for you at a few minute's notice. Now is a good time to settle the question, while there is still some space available. Come and see us.

YOUR DENTIST advises you to have your teeth looked over once or twice a year to make sure they're all right. He's right. And we advise the same thing as to your car. Now, as the end of the summer, is the best time. Bring the car in and let us look it over.

Come in and look over the Dodge 1917 Model, now on display.

FIRE AT NOVI WEDNESDAY MORNING

POST OFFICE AND CONTENTS, RESIDENCE AND SHOP, ALL COMPLETELY DESTROYED.

One of the worst fires in the history of Novi village took place early Wednesday morning, when the post-office and store building, the McCowan-Walter residence and the building formerly used as a blacksmith shop burned to the ground, with practically all their contents. The fire seems to have started in the post office and store building, and everything contained therein, including books, records, mail bags and mail was completely destroyed. The loss on the buildings is partially covered by insurance. The shop mentioned was filled with agricultural implements, for which Mr. Walter was sales agent. The cause of the fire is not known.

No one of the family had yet been in the store that morning and the fire had been carefully attended to the night before. One theory is that the electric wiring may have become defective, and another is that a robbery was committed and the fire started to cover the crime, as it is asserted by some of the first comers that the back door of the store was open. Postmaster Claude Walter is a former resident of Northville, and many friends here regret the bad luck that has thus come to him.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN.

"A bit of nonsense now and then is relished by the best of men." But some men's wives and theatre audiences are subjected continuously to the exuberance—or shall we say thoughtlessness—of some people.

There is no disposition on the part of the Alseum Theatre Co. to be harsh with anyone who so far forgets his manners and the teachings of his parents that his animal spirits and play becomes a form of rowdiness. It is nothing to be proud of, to have the entire village know that Henry or John was fined $10 or perhaps sent to the house of correction for thirty days just because they erroneously believed their money permitted them to act like barroom habitués instead of the gentlemen we believe most of them to be.

It is the aim of Manager Thompson and his advisors to try pleasant methods first, with all offenders. But in the event these are ignored severe measures will be adopted and enforced.

There is a time when patience is no longer a virtue but an object of ridicule. We do not want our well behaved patrons to suffer so ask their co-operation in reporting any one guilty of an offensive or objectionable act.

We are sure we can count on both the good will of our patrons and also the common sense and better judgment of all to keep good order.

ALSEUM THEATRE CO.

SUCCESSFUL "JUBILEE" MEETING

The union meeting held Sunday night at the Alseum theatre in celebration of the placing of Michigan on the prohibition honor roll was a great success, both in attendance and enthusiasm. The singing of the tri-church double male quartet was greatly enjoyed, judging from the applause, and the music by the Stark orchestra was also a pleasing feature. Pastors Grass, Webber and Walker were the speakers and each one "caught the crowd" in turn by his witty and wise remarks, giving each church represented the opportunity to "point with pride" to its chosen leader.

Auction Sale.

Harry Clark is to have a big sale of 30 Holstein cattle, 65 registered; also horses, hogs, farm tools, milking machine, gasoline engine etc. on his farm three miles west of town on the Base Line, Tuesday, Nov. 28. The sale begins at 9 o'clock a. m., and lunch will be served at noon. Three of the best known auctioneers of this part of the country have been secured—Harry C. Robinson, Frank J. Boyle and L. W. Lovewell. D. U. R. cars will be met from 9 to 12 o'clock at the waiting room.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that owing to so many complaints being made, bicycle and wagon riding is hereby forbidden on any sidewalk in the village.

By order Village Council, ERNEST LYKE Marshall.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

The last word in musical comedy is the latest of the Winter Garden shows, "The Passing Show of 1916," which comes to the Garrick theatre, Detroit, for a limited engagement of one week commencing next Monday evening. More pretty girls, more beautiful and startling costumes, tuneful music, dancers, singers and comedians, are crowded into this entertainment than has ever been presented by any previous attraction bearing the Winter Garden label and hailing from that historic home of mirth, melody and girls. The one big spectacular feature of the entertainment is the charge of the U. S. Cavalry on the Mexican border. "The Passing Show of 1916" has two acts and sixteen scenes, crowded to overflowing with song, dance and travesty on things political and dramatic. Ed Wynn, the leading comedian, is seen to advantage all through the entertainment. Regular matinees will be given on Wednesday and Saturday.

NOTICE.

On Monday, November 20, I will open up a wood-working and repair shop in the stone blacksmith shop on Main street, in connection with Hugh Clawson, where I will be prepared to do all kinds of wagon and buggy repairing. Also see me for new work. J. N. ASHLEY.

ORPHEUM THEATRE, DETROIT.

Foreign nations have contributed much to vaudeville but never, it is declared, a more startling and elaborate feature than the Al Golem company which will be seen at the Orpheum theatre next week. The Golem company who are said to be official entertainers to the Shah of Persia, have a pantomimic production entitled "The Slave Dealers" which consists of ten episodes. Six other acts, feature films before and after the vaudeville and a dancing contest on Friday night among local amateurs are other numbers on the Orpheum program.

THE DEUTCHLAND'S COMMANDEE, AND SCENES ATTENDING HER SECOND TRIP TO AMERICA

Under cover of darkness and a heavy mist the Prussian submarine Deutschland slipped into the harbor at New London, Conn., and made fast at the State pier. East New London. Her evasion of two cordons of Albes' scout cruisers, one in the North Sea and the other just outside the three mile limit of the United States, has caused shipping men to gape with astonishment for the second time within four months.

The large picture shows the Deutschland in her berth at New London. The arrow points to the craft. In the upper corner is Captain Paul Koenig, the commander of the vessel. The lower picture shows the photographer taking the large picture and being snapped as he did so by another photographer. The Deutschland's cargo approximated five hundred tons, valued, according to Captain Koenig, at $10,000,000, and consisted of dyestuffs and drugs.

TIMELY TOPICS FOR ALL INTERESTED IN BETTER FARMING

IMPROVING FARM BUTTER

Better Methods of Handling Milk and Cream Will insure a Superior Product, Say Dairy Specialists of U. S. Department of Agriculture.

Washington, D. C.—The adoption of more careful methods of handling milk and cream and improved practices in the making of farm butter will reduce rather than increase the trouble incident to home production of this food, say dairy specialists of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, and will result in a superior product which can be sold more easily and for a better price than the average farm butter. Last year about thirty million pounds of butter, much of which originated on the farm, was washed or rejected because it was of such poor quality that it could not be profitably offered on the regular butter markets.

CHURN CREAM ONLY.

Cream alone should be churned. It may be skimmed as soon as it rises or may be separated by a mechanical separator. The latter plan is the more efficient, and though requiring a considerable initial outlay often will be profitable. The cream should be set aside in a clean place by separate pailings. A temperature of 50° F. or lower should be maintained until from 12 to 18 hours before churning time, when the various batches should be stirred together well and brought to a temperature of about 70° F. by placing the container in a bucket of warm water. One of the first acts of the farm housewife who decides to adopt improved methods should be to purchase a dairy thermometer. Temperatures play an important part in the development of flavors in butter, and always should be determined with fair accuracy. After the cream is mixed it should be kept approximately 70° F. until just before churning time, when it should be reduced to about 58° F. where this is possible (or to such temperature the operation of churning within 25 or 30 minutes.)

CHURNING

The barrel type has been found by dairy specialists to be one of the most satisfactory churns. The dasher or plunger type requires a somewhat greater expenditure of labor. Earthenware churns are especially undesirable unless perfectly glazed, since if pores are exposed they absorb milk and cream which later decay side them are difficult to clean and sometimes injure the body of the butter.

The churn should be scalded preparatory to churning, but should be cooled with water before the cream is placed inside. The cream should be poured in through a coarse strainer. Every few minutes during the early part of the churning gas should be allowed to escape from the churn. If the temperature is right the churning should require about 25 or 30 minutes. The process is completed when the granules of butter are about the size of large wheat kernels. The buttermilk should then be drained off and the butter granules repeatedly washed with cold water while still in the churn. The washings should be continued until all milk is removed. Under no circumstances should working be depended on to remove surplus milk.

WORKING AND PACKING

When the butter is free from all milk it should be taken from the churn with a paddle and placed on a worker. The hands should never touch the butter, both on account of sanitary reasons and because the body warmth may melt the fat. The working should be done carefully to avoid making the butter greasy. Before the butter is worked, a fine salt should be added at the rate of about an ounce per pound of fat.

HONEST GIRL GETS TOWN LOT

Her Reward for Returning Lost Diamond to Owner.

Cincinnati, Ohio.—Beatrice Bunnings, 14 years old, of South Fort Thomas, Ky., has been presented with a lot 50x150 feet by Blair P. Wilson of Huntington, W. Va., the capitalist who is president of a real estate company in Fort Thomas.

Beatrice was blackberry picking when she found what she thought was a piece of glass. She saw Wilson inspecting some grading and showed the "glass" to him. The instant Wilson saw the "glass" he felt his tie. He found his diamond stud valued at $875 missing. "I've lost my diamond, let me see what you found," he said. The piece of "glass" was his diamond. "I am a lucky man to get it back so quickly and you are a lucky girl to find it," he said to Miss Bunnings. "I am going to give you one of these lots."

DIGS UP MASTODON'S TOOTH

Kansas Man Finds Relic of Prehistoric Period.

Cottonwood Falls, Kan.—A big tooth, which is supposed to be the remains of the jaw of a mastodon of a prehistoric period, has just been unearthed by T. E. Nichols while he was doing some excavation work on Diamond Creek. The trench had been sunk to a depth of 53 feet when the massive tooth was found. It weighs over three pounds, measures 1 foot and 3 inches in circumference around its base and is 3 inches in height.

There are six flanges or points to the tooth, which extend upward in regular pairs. The tooth has two large roots. From the peculiar formation of the points of the tooth it is believed that it belonged to a carnivorous or flesh eating animal. Another workman found a large bone nearby and it resembled a knee cap.

Miss Justine Johnson and her three-piece skunk set.

Miss Justine Johnson, the actress who wins more than her share of beauty prizes, bought this three-piece skunk set in New York last week. The fact that she bought it proves that it's the latest style. The set is adaptable for all outdoor wear, and looks particularly pleasing to the eye on material such as velvet.

TRAPPER HAS FUTURE HOME IN FAR NORTH

Driven Out of Other Parts of Land. He Finds Permanent Refuge

Perhaps the most romantic commercial industry in the world is the fur trade of the Hudson Bay Co. This organization of "gentlemen adventurers," as it was called at first, has opened the great northland and supplied a large part of the world's fur. Furthermore, time and civilization have not changed its ways nor rubbed the glamour of romance off its designs: for the great northland must be much the same. There are barrens and forests and mountains that civilization can never conquer. Here in the north the trapper, who has been driven out of every other part of the land, has found a permanent home.

In some places railroads have carried civilization into the Hudson Bay country, and the great company has met it half way by establishing motorboat lines to connect with the rail road, and more elaborate stores to sell the wares of the north. But there are other Hudson Bay posts that are so far removed from the world that it is nine years from the time the goods leave London until the furs for which they are exchanged return.

These remote little posts consist of nothing but a square factor's house, a few tents and a little wooden church where an itinerant priest holds services once a year. And all about for distances that weary the imagination to picture are frozen barrens and for ages and lakes.

To a white man, this is the most inhospitable country in the world, but the ease with which an Indian trapper lives and travels in it is amazing. He knows how to find the caribou and the snow shoe rabbit, and how to keep warm at night in a hole in the snow. With a dog, a sledge, an ax, chunk of bacon, a rifle and a few cartridges, he will face that wilderness alone, for weeks or months—and all to bring wealth to the great company.

Lecturer Says She'll Win Love After "Passing On."

St. Paul, Minn.—Mrs. Elizabeth Harlow Goetz, pastor of the Spiritualist Church, Baltimore, Md., in an address before the twenty-fourth annual convention of the National Spiritualists' Association, in session here, declared that woman possessed the greatest spiritual attraction and will win the love of a man after "passing on" regardless of his choice on earth.

"In my own case," she said, "I am my husband's second wife, but some time I shall know whether his former wife, or I have the greatest attraction. If you're living in hell here, you'll take it with you when you pass on," she also told her hearers.

LESSON FOR NOVEMBER 19TH

Lesson Title: "From Melita to Rome."
 Lesson Text: Acts 28: 11-31. Memorize vs. 30, 31.

Golden Text: "I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth."—Om. 1:16.

I. THE UNASHAMED MAN

Do you remember a time in your boyhood when your mother looked at you very seriously and said: "Aren't you ashamed of yourself?" Your attitude and response showed that you were! You had been up to some mischief and you knew it. Perhaps you were in part ashamed because you were caught; but you were also ashamed because your mother disapproved. You knew that your mother's judgment was right. You knew that you ought not to do anything she could not approve. It was this latter sort of shame which was worth while and which did the most good.

The man who knows no shame is the man who knows the most sin. Shame is, in part, the product of the sensitive conscience. It comes also from a comparison of our lives with others. It comes out of that inner voice which speaks to us from God when we do wrong. Paul said: "I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." It is good for a man to have a religion of which he is not ashamed. How about your religion? Does it compare favorably with others? Will it match up with your mother's religion? Are you giving as much attention to it as you should? What spirit stirs within you when you meet a truly religious man? How does your religion compare with that type which Jesus Christ taught and lived? Thank God if in your soul there ever rises a sense of shame because your religion is below par!

II. The Power of God.

Paul believed in the gospel because it manifested the "power of God." It is the power of God applied to the problems of human life and human society which gives us hope. We fail in our strength. We try, and are discouraged because we do not accomplish. We give up because having tried we see no hope of success. Here God enters. He puts his power at our disposal. He gives his grace for our help. By his strength, as Paul said, we can do all things!

The marvel of the twentieth century is that so many people are willing to do without the help of God which is so freely offered to make them live happy, helpful, healthful.

III. The Encouragement of Friends

When Paul was on his way to Rome he was met by a group of friends who accompanied him on the way. Their presence made the journey shorter. The Record says that when Paul saw them "he thanked God and took courage." Many a man has done the same when he met a friend. All along the journey of life our friends are with us in this until clean. Rinse in clean needed." It is also true that we ourselves ought to be showing friendship to others whose journey is long and

SCOTCH WOMEN LIKE COAL MAN'S JOB

Two jolly Scotch coal "men."

In some parts of Glasgow women have taken the places of coal men. In the east end of the city they are to be seen daily and from the expressions on their faces they evidently enjoy taking the place of the man who is "doing his bit" for king and country on the firing line.

whose burden is heavy. You like help on your journey. How much help have you yourself given to others? It would be well worth while to meditate on how we shall secure helpful friends. Also how we shall become such friends ourselves. What instances of the power of friendship have you known? How far have retarded Christians been made such as they were because of the lack of helpful friendship?

IV. "This Chain."

Paul mentions that because of his hope and service he is bound with "this chain." Think what he did in spite of it! It did not limit him but inspired him. Every man is bound by some "chain." Instead of bemoaning that fact he should be glad for what he is stimulated to do in spite of his "chain." Sometimes a "chain" is God's way of offering opportunity.

V. How Did He Do It?

The Record says that Paul was in Rome "two whole years in his own hired dwelling." There he received all who came to him, always preaching the gospel with boldness. Where did Paul get the money to pay his rent? How could he, a prisoner, maintain himself in Rome? Is it not a fine thing that gifts came to him from some of the churches which he had founded? Thus they shared in his work. It is good to pay a living wage to Christian ministers and missionaries. A living wage must be determined by the community in which they dwell, its demands upon them, and their home responsibilities. Your church makes a mistake if it does not pay its minister a living wage. He is doing God's work for the kingdom. You share in it in proportion to your gifts.

Household Hints

THINGS WORTH KNOWING

Chestnuts may be kept in fine "eating" condition by drying for three or four days after gathering, then placing in cold fruit jars and fastening rubbers and caps securely. This method entirely prevents them from becoming "flinty."

Never put tin or metal covers over vinegar; it spoils the vinegar—makes it flat and tasteless.

To clean white feathers, make paste same when he met a friend. All along of gasoline and flour, wash feathers the journey of life our friends are with us in this until clean. Rinse in clean needed." It is also true that we ourselves ought to be showing friendship to others whose journey is long and inexpensive. Gloves can be cleaned the same way; to get best results put on the hands and rub.

As the time is drawing near to use yarn, try steaming the yarn while in skein and hang up to dry before using; it will not shrink or stretch.

CANDIES

Maple Fudge—One cup brown sugar, one cup granulated sugar, three-fourths cup sweet milk. Place over slow fire and let boil fifteen minutes. Remove from fire, add one teaspoon vanilla and one teaspoon sugar, beat until thickens, add one-half cup chopped nuts, spread on buttered tin and cut when cool.

THE TABLE

Fried Eggplant—Cut eggplant in slices half inch thick; pare each piece and lay in weak salt water brine; keep them well under brine for an hour or more, then wipe each slice, dip it in beaten egg and roll in bread crumbs or grated crackers. Fry in hot lard till soft and a nice brown color.

Pudding a la Zouave—Pare four good-sized apples and grate them into a pint of milk; add one-fourth pound bleached and chopped almonds, one-fourth grated nutmeg and yolks of three eggs beaten with one-half cup sugar. Stir until sugar is dissolved and bake in moderate oven until custard is set. Beat whites of eggs to a stiff froth, add three tablespoons powdered sugar, beat again; spread over top of pudding, dust thickly with powdered sugar and set in oven to brown. Serve cold.

Sausage and Potato Roll—Fry sausage until done, then chop fine. Boil and mash six potatoes, beating out all lumps. Add one cup milk, tablespoon melted butter, enough salted flour to make a dough. Place on floured board; roll into a sheet, place sausage in center, roll up dough, put in baking pan, brush with melted butter. Serve 500 as done.

Sweet Pepper Patties—Six medium-sized peppers remove seeds, cut in strips, cook in well salted water ten minutes; drain, add generous cup of cheese cut fine, two eggs and two tablespoons flour. Mix well and fry on well greased griddle a spoonful in a place. Fry on both sides. Easily made and an excellent substitute for meat.

FUR-SETS OF THE SEASON

"Sets" are another feature of the season. The fur set this season consists of hat, as well as pelerine or scarf, and muff. The short, flaring cape or pelerine to be worn with tailored dresses, either of a combination of fur and velvet, or all fur, is especially in favor. Often the fur set matches the gown as moleskin with a taupe velour dress. Muffs last season hung by cords. This winter they will hang by velvet ribbons or muff-keepers, with jeweled garniture of slides and buckles.

Some of the short-coats are made in very jaunty styles, flaring from the shoulder and falling in ripples.

Many of the longer suit coats are fitted above the waistline and have fullness below that point.

Some of the smartest suits are made in Moyen Age effect. Others are belted in, while still others are so made as to outline the figure. Belted effects, indeed, continue to find favor despite their lack of novelty.

SLEEVES AND COLLARS, ETC.

Sleeves are important in the season's styles. They vary from none whatever in some of the evening dresses to long sleeves that flare mitten-like over the hands—the prettiest

NIFTY WINTER SUIT

Unusual for its simplicity is this walking frock. But it still maintains that look of "good dressiness" that is not commonly found in a more extravagantly trimmed and embellished suit. The garment is of duvetyné cloth with a moleskin vest and collar and bids fair to be the popular choice of milady for fall and winter wear.

STREET COSTUME

This suit was one of a dozen at the recent fashion show in New York that represented an investment of more than $100,000. It is made of blue black velvet in Russian blouse effect. The hat is one of the latest transparent models.

type of long sleeves. Nearly all the sleeves have the set-in armhole, come outlining the upper arm, some the lower. Then there are half-length types with ruffles, others are draped at the elbow, and, to be sure, there is the leg-o'-mutton sleeve of which we have heard so much. On period dresses the sleeves follow the period, the Renaissance gown having one type, the Directoire quite another.

Collars are of every known shape, variety and style, there being but one thing lacking in all of them, that is, anything that constricts the throat in front! A number of them, even on tailored dresses, stand away from the neck entirely in girlish round shapes. The most normal and comfortable sort of neck finish for older women is some form of the fichu.

The prevailing style note of the season is the "matching-up" of the details of the costume, either to each other, in a contrasting color to the costume itself.

Cows Have Hopes.

Marquette, Mich.—"Cows have their ambitions like human beings, and when they go to their meals they should be fed in courses, with a cocktail as an appetizer and a dessert for the finish." This is the assertion of State Senator Alton T. Roberts of this city, who is looking after the welfare of a fancy dairy. "Several years ago one of my men tried phonographic music as a means of inducing the cows to give more and better milk. For a time the soothing tones brought results, but after a while the cows became tired of the music and we began to experiment on other things." The senator is not feeding alcohol to his cattle. Instead, he is using the red table beet as an appetizer.

We Have Never Seen Such WONDERFUL COATS As Those Now Being Received

The winter fashions for women's coats are the prettiest that we have seen in many a day. Indeed it seems as though we could choose almost any style, cut or color in a broad cloth or wool velour, so many pretty new models are here. And black opossum, raccoon or mink.

But they are one and all delightful for a coat that can be used on almost any occasion, and the styles were never more effective or becoming. Fashioned generously full, some being caught at the waistline with a loose belt, others in full flare from the shoulder.

The sleeves are large and roomy, and the collar are large, and all the coats are full length models. Many have the all-fur collar of Hudson seal, black opossum, raccoon or mink.

They come in broadcloths, silk velours, silk plushes, and wool velours in black, navy, brown, green and burgundy.

NOBLE WORK TO AID STRICKEN KIDDIES

Three children's ambulances, to be used in infantile paratyphoid cases and to be maintained by the Militia of Mercy, of which Mr. John Hays Hammond is president, were christened in front of the City Hall, New York city, by four-year-old Ellen Anderson by breaking a bottle of milk on the spring. One of the ambulances will be used in New York, the second in Brooklyn and the third will go to Boston. It is expected that other ambulances will be maintained in other sections of the country.

WARREN ENTITLED TO CREDIT.

On the face of the score card it now looks as if President Wilson had been re-elected. However it will take the final count to make the decision. That Michigan stayed in the G. O. P. column the republicans have much for which to thank National Committeeman Charles B. Warren of Detroit. He conducted the national campaign in Michigan with a zeal and systemization of work that counted for success. The state central committee and the Wayne county committee seemed to be busy along other lines and practically the whole burden was placed on Mr. Warren, but he was equal to the occasion and from a "doubtful" state Michigan awakened and turned over into the safe republican columns by a huge majority. Much credit is due Mr. Warren, and if some other National Committeemen had been on the job as much as he there would have been a different result, it is safe to say.

The architect of the Northville Record's editorial column objects to so much "Piracy on the high seas" as is practiced by its exchanges. But what would some papers amount to were it not for exchanges—South Lyon Herald. Sure enough. We revel in 'em ourselves, but always try to give the proper credit—as does also the Herald, we are glad to say. The "pirate" way is complimentary but very provoking.

For the first time in the history of this country a woman will sit in the next national congress. She will probably feel "like a cat in a strange garret" and she probably won't put her feet on her desk or require a cuspidor, but we are frantically anxious to know if she will be designated as "Congresswoman Rankin" and referred to as "The gentlewoman from Montana."

A new social "stunt" is the giving of "slumber parties." After much puzzlement we have discovered that the guests arrive the night before and stay to breakfast. The music probably consists of lullabies and the costumes are changed during the evening.

There still are some parents who don't mind their children as they should, but children report some improvement in this respect.—Pontiac Press Gazette. In the exceptions mentioned the children have no doubt spared the rod and spoiled the parent.

Several Oakland county women have gone with their respective and possibly respected husbands "up north" to hunt, which almost tempts us to make some original (?) and brilliant (?) remarks about the dears and the dear little deer—but we refrain.

A modern psychologist asserts that insomnia can be avoided by "creating a mental vacuum." Our only reason for doubting the fact is because so many people appear to be awake who ought, on that hypothesis, to sleep all the time.

A physician at Wayne was recently presented by some grateful patient or other wealthy admirer with a big turkey for Thanksgiving. Probably the doc. already owned an automobile, but if he didn't he might trade the turk for one.

A man 91 years old committed suicide the other day at Wilmont, Mich. Evidently the poor old fellow had no ambition to live to be a hundred, but it seems as if he was old enough to know better, anyway.

John Tyre was arrested at Pontiac the other day, though not for auto speeding as might be supposed. It was just an ordinary drunk, but what an opportunity lost for John and the newspaper!

Wixom Whisperings

The following from the Milford Times' files of 1880 shows that Wixom was certainly on the map at that time in a musical way: "The Wixom band of fifteen instruments attended the State Band tournament at Flint. It is reported here that they only lacked one point of carrying off the second prize in the third class which, no doubt greatly elates the boys being an achievement of which, considering the formidable competition to which they were subjected, they may well feel proud."

The body of John R. Wait, a resident of this vicinity for the greater part of his life, was brought from Battle Creek Monday for burial in the Novi cemetery, where a short service was conducted by Mr. Huey, pastor of the Baptist church. Mr. Wait, who had lived in Detroit since leaving here seven years ago, was recovering apparently, from a long illness, and went to Battle Creek a few weeks ago to visit his sister. He soon became so much worse that it was necessary to remove him to a hospital where he passed away November 9, after intense suffering, with dropsy and heart trouble. Mr. Wait's wife, who was Miss Jennie Fuller of this township, and their only child, a little daughter, Stella, both died in 1892. The nearest surviving relatives are a sister, Mrs. John Darlington of Battle Creek and a brother, William Wait of Novi.

(By the Pastor.)
Morning service at 10 o'clock. Subject, "The Great Decision." This service is of special importance. A full attendance is desired.
Sunday school at 11:30. There was a slight decline in attendance last Sunday; prove that this was only a temporary slump by being present next Sunday.
Christian Endeavor at 6 o'clock. The good attendance of the past few evenings should be continued; however there is room for more. The C. E. is not an exclusive organization, there is a hearty welcome for all.
Evening service at 7 o'clock. The subject will be, "The Peril Of An Empty Heart."
The Martha chapter of the Guild requests all the friends of the congregation to save their old rubbers for it. This very efficient organization is on a quest for funds and hope to realize something from the sale of old rubbers. Every one will be glad to co-operate in this enterprise.

The Naomi circle of the Westminster Guild will meet at the home of Cornelia Mueller. Mary Sowles will assist in the entertaining. A full attendance is desired. Monday evening is the time.

The Woman's Missionary society will hold their annual Praise Service Sunday evening, Nov. 26. Every effort will be made to make this the best Praise Service yet held by them. Plan to be present one week from next Sunday.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)
The topics for next Sunday will be in the morning, "Consecration," and in the evening, "An old time Revival."
It has been some time since we have had our regular evening services, owing to the union services in the interest of the great campaign just closed. Now let every member of the church and congregation be on hand to make the evening service what it ought to be.
The Sunday school at 11:30
The Epworth League at 6 o'clock.
The League will serve a "Hash Supper" at the parlors of the church next Wednesday evening.

Beginning Sunday Dec. 3, there will be a series of evangelistic services conducted by the Buck Evangelistic Company, who are now conducting services in Pontiac, with the five churches, including the First and Central Methodist, Presbyterian, Congregational and Baptist. The meetings here will be in the interest and under the co-operation of the Methodist, Presbyterian and Baptist churches, and everybody is invited to share in all the services. The dates are Dec. 3 to 17 inclusive. Let all our people plan nothing else during this time.

The L. R. S. annual bazaar and chicken pie dinner last Wednesday afternoon and evening was a great success in every way, and the society greatly appreciates the liberal patronage of the public.

The Woman's Home Missionary society will meet with Mrs. Geo. Johnston next Tuesday afternoon.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

(By the Pastor.)
Well, I love old Michigan more than ever because she had sense enough to vote dry. On the 26th day of January she can celebrate her eightieth birthday—and leave it to the pastors of Northville when there is celebrating to be done.
It looks now as though we might settle down to morning and evening services.

The subject for Sunday morning will be "How to become the friend of God." Remember that friendship is not a one-sided affair.

The Sunday evening topic will be "Steadfastness." Instability is one of the prevailing hindrances to Christ's cause. What is needed is more non-skid Christians. One of the most difficult experiences of the pastor's life is keeping his church in the King's Highway. Some are everlastingly skidding off out of the way of life and duty.

We were pleased to give the hand of fellowship to three new members last Sunday. I hope they are non-skids; we have enough smooth treads already.

A Twice Told Tale

One of Interest to Our Readers.

Good news bears repeating, and when it is confirmed after a long lapse of time, even if we hesitated to believe it at first hearing, we feel secure in accepting its truth now. The following experience of a Northville man is confirmed after three years.

H. Priest, Mill street, Northville, says: "Heavy lifting brought on my kidney trouble. The kidney secretions were too frequent and painful in passage. I also had pains through my back. I had rheumatic pains and mornings was stiff and sore. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and they cured the attacks."

(Statement given Feb'y 17, 1913) On September 19, 1916, Mr. Priest added: "Doan's Kidney Pills are all right and what I said in my former statement still holds good. When my kidneys got out of fix, a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills soon relieved the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Priest has twice recommended. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. —Advertisement 49.

A local phenomenon that has been the cause of much comment is the fact that there are at least two panes of glass left unsmashed in the windows of the vacant house at the corner of Center and Dunlap streets. How did it ever happen, boys?

Rev. Michael J. Comerford, formerly pastor of St. Michael's Catholic church at Pinckney, who died last Sunday in St. Mary's hospital, Detroit, after a two years illness with pernicious anemia, will be remembered here by many people outside his own denomination. At one of the St. Mary's society's banquets several years ago he acted as toastmaster and his witty ability in that position made him one of the stars of perhaps the most brilliant company of speakers ever assembled here at a social function.

The following from the Ypsilanti Record refers to a person well known in Northville for many years during which she has been here many times. "Mrs. Florence S. Mrs. Babbitt has had the honor of making this presentation at the last three Grand chapter meetings in Michigan, first at Grand Rapids, next at Battle Creek and again this year, on October 11, at Grand Rapids."

Detective Stories

These stories give the exploits of one of the craftiest and most daring criminals of French fiction. The stories are now appearing on the picture screen and have just been released.

FANTOMAS

These stories are along typical French lines, which portray the "crook" as he actually is, and not as a hero in any sense of the word.

The Marquis and Marquise de Tergall, living in their Chateau des L'ages, were in such financial straits the Marquis begged his wife to sell her jewelry. He wrote a jeweler, who made him an offer after having looked at the gems.

The maid pretended to busy herself, trying to hear something of their conversation. Not until the Marquis had pointedly sent her away did he read to his wife the letter he had written:

"Chamberieux Jewelry Co.,
"Mons, France."

"Attention Mr. Chamberieux:
"After having talked over the matter with my wife, I accept your proposition of $50,000 for the jewels we wish to sell. I shall be at the European Hotel, R. 30, in St. Calais, Wednesday next, at 9 a m.

"I shall turn over the jewel-case, with its contents, upon receipt of $50,000 in cash.

"Yours sincerely,
"MARQUIS DE TERGALL."

From behind the door the maid had heard everything, when she was called into the room by the bell.

"Mail this letter," said the Marquis. Rosa took the missive, knowing all she wanted to know.

On Wednesday the Marquis de Tergall arrived at Saint-Calais and went to the Hotel European. He was taken to room 30, and after a few minutes' rest, looked at his jewels for the last time.

Mr. Chamberieux was punctual. After the men had greeted each other, the jeweler began to examine the jewels carefully.

Meanwhile strange things were going on in the next room.

This room was occupied by a young abbe whose grave, quiet manners had rendered him sympathetic to everybody. On this particular morning, as soon as the abbe had gone, a man crawled out from under the bed, bolted the door and came back to listen to what was going on in the next room.

The jeweler, having estimated the jewels, handed a check to the Marquis.

"But," said the Marquis, "I asked for cash."

"Well, the bank is just five minutes from here."

The Marquis agreed to this; yet, when he went out, he locked the door after him secretly.

Left alone, Chamberieux tried to put the jewel case in his pocket, but this being impossible he put it in a drawer, which he locked, placing the key in his pocket.

In the next room the man finished the mysterious work he had started. Seeing a traveling bag on a chair, he took from it a priest's gown and hat. These he put on.

It took the marquis five minutes to cash his check. On his way back he passed the abbe in the hall of the hotel. The jeweler was calmly awaiting his return when he unlocked the door.

"Get the money?"

"Yes," replied the marquis.

The jeweler went to the drawer in which he had locked the Tergall jewels, which had just passed into his possession. The drawer was empty. Thinking he must have opened the wrong one he pulled the other open. It also was empty.

"What's the matter?" asked the Marquis.

"Where's the jewel case?"

"Where did you put it?"

"In there; and it's gone!"

The jeweler seemed to lose his head. "You've stolen it!"

He sprang upon the marquis without warning. The two men engaged in a terrible struggle, the jeweler crying "Thief! Thief!" at the top of his lungs. Soon attention of hotel guests and servants was attracted, and the police were summoned.

While the hotel was thus upset, a woman, walking beside the railway track in the suburbs, saw a package thrown from a train outward bound. Opening it, they discovered it contained a priest's gown and hat. They turned them over to the police.

The marquis and the jeweler were in Room 30 when the examining magistrate arrived. The two men accused each other, the jeweler alleging theft, and the marquis saying he was the victim of an unwarranted assault. When the former pointed to the drawer, the magistrate ordered the furniture moved from the wall.

When it was rolled aside, there was a big hole in the wall. An immediate search was made of the next room. The debris on the floor showed that the hole had been made only a short time before.

"Who has this room?" asked the magistrate.

"An abbe," answered the hotel manager.

"Has he gone?"

"He goes out early every morning, and he always comes back about this time."

"He went this morning," smiled the magistrate, sceptically. "If we want to see him, we'll have to hurry."

"You're mistaken this time. Here he comes!"

The manager was correct. The abbe was walking down the hall. When questioned, he produced a telegram which he had just received:

"A sinner who wants absolution would like to have you come Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock to the little chapel on the road to Mags."

The jeweler was thoroughly convinced from the inquiry that he had been too hasty in accusing the marquis of robbing him. As the lived at no great distance from the city, he decided to ride home on a bicycle he had at the hotel although it was growing dark.

While descending a steep hill, the marquis was suddenly thrown from his machine. A cord had been stretched across the road. Not giving him time to rise, two men sprang from the sides of the road and seized him. The money he had received from the sale of the jewels—$50,000—was wrested from him. The men escaped in the darkness.

When the Marquis de Tergall awoke he was scarcely able to speak. Rosa, the chambermaid, was furtively listening to the account the marquis was giving his wife.

When Rosa heard enough for her purpose, she walked to a window looking upon a well-shaded part of the grounds. A man was below her.

"It is you, Bebe?" she whispered.

The man answered in the affirmative. Rosa gave him an account of what she had heard the marquis relate to his wife.

"And he suspects no one?"

"No. He said he was under the impression that the assistant detective was too dark."

"That's good. Keep him in the dark. If he follows you out of the street and takes me in it, I don't wish to have his hand on me. Put it in your waist and keep quiet. I, you don't know me."

Rosa knew him all too well. After he had disappeared, she looked at the package he had entrusted to her. It contained the $50,000 in bank notes which had been stolen from the marquis.

FIRST PART: The Prisoner of Louvain.

Juve, the great detective, sent hastily for Fandor, his journalist-friend, who assisted him so materially in the pursuit of Fantomas. Despite the fact he had more than once had the great criminal in his hands, the master of mystery had always managed to elude him before justice could mete out to him the punishment he richly deserved. Yet Fantomas had not eluded justice, although he had eluded Juve. He was in prison at Louvain, Belgium, serving a life sentence for it is the custom of the country to commute the sentence of death to life punishment.

"I can't believe Fantomas had a hand in the robbery of the jeweler and the Marquis de Tergall," protested Fandor. "He's safely in prison."

"Yes; but he left some apt pupils," Juve answered.

"I'll admit it. I'm not so much afraid of their depredations as I am of the fact they may be able to effect Fantomas' escape."

"Now you are talking about something that has given me many an hour of hard thought. I've believed all along Fantomas should be executed instead of continuing as a menace to society, even if he is in prison. So I've made up my mind how the trick can be turned. This is my plan."

"I shall take the place of Fantomas in prison at Louvain. I shall effect his escape and two of our best detectives, Michel and Leon, shall track him; he will return to France. Once on French territory he will be arrested. Then it will be for you to break the news that Fantomas can't be arrested in France at the same time he is a prisoner in Belgium. I shall be brought back to confront the prisoner, and then the revelation will be made. We have Fantomas safely in France and this time he cannot escape the guillotine."

"In case I should not succeed, wait until six months have elapsed and then hand this letter to the chief of police."

He bade Fandor farewell and departed for Louvain.

Trusting to his own resourcefulness, Fantomas was not without hope that the day was not far distant when his escape could be effected. Hence he was not surprised one night to see beams of light fall through the window of his cell. These were in the form of flashes, a code known to the police and the Apaches of Paris. One flash stood for A, two flashes stood for B, and so on.

Fantomas attentively followed the signs. Soon he was able to make out that an effort was to be made to rescue him.

The following day, when the prison commission was about to go through the prison at Louvain, a request was made by a member of the Austrian penitentiary board for permission to visit the place. This was readily granted. The Austrian was an extraordinarily stout man, his eyes were shaded by thick spectacles and he seemed to have difficulty in walking. When the members of the board reached the cell occupied by Fantomas, the Austrian visitor asked if he might speak to the prisoner.

As soon as the visitor was admitted, he glanced at Fantomas, who sat on the floor, leaning against the wall, and he was struck by the fact that the prisoner's eyes were shaded by thick spectacles and he seemed to have difficulty in walking.

When the Austrian reached the main hall, he recalled he had left his glasses in the cell. As it was quite dark in the cell, the visitor asked the guard to turn on the light. The man departed for the switch. The stranger then ordered Fantomas to dress himself in the clothes which he had deposited when he came the time before. The prisoner put on the guard's uniform hurriedly, and, thanks to the mustaches and little beard, did, indeed, look not unlike the guard, who had gone to turn on the light.

Meanwhile the visitor was not idle. He slipped out of the clothes he wore and into the prison garments of Fantomas. The criminal put all the discarded clothing into a black bag, and walked out of the cell, and out of the prison to freedom. He had not recognized that the man who had made it possible for him to do this was none other than Juve, his implacable enemy.

When Fantomas left the prison he did not see two men were following him. They were Michel and Leon, detailed to the case by Juve.

It was until he had entered the train for Paris that Fantomas was aware that he was being followed.

When the train stopped at a village some distance from Paris, Fantomas alighted to walk up and down the platform. He did not let on that he knew he was being followed. A train bound in the opposite direction stopped at the station. Fantomas waited until it had started. Then he sprang into the express car, thus giving his pursuers the slip.

From a compartment, which he occupied alone, Charles Pradier, just appointed examining magistrate at St. Calais, left the train at a station, and did not have time to get back when the train started. He jumped into the baggage car where Fantomas was hiding. With that absolute lack of feeling which marked all his crimes, Fantomas sprang upon the unsuspecting man and murdered him. Not until he searched the body did he learn his victim was the new magistrate at St. Calais.

A lightning flash of genius made plan to the great criminal what he should do. It was nothing less than to take the place of the dead man and assume his duties at St. Calais.

At St. Calais Judge Pradier was expected. The false magistrate presented himself at the hotel, and took the rooms which had been reserved for him.

The next morning the false magistrate was introduced to the work which awaited him. Among the cases were those of the robberies of the jeweler and the Marquis de Tergall.

Fantomas knew the Tergall jewels could not easily be disposed of, since their descriptions had been sent broadcast. He started a quiet search of the town and was rewarded by coming upon Bebe and Ribonard, the man who had textuously bored the hole in the hotel wall. He surprised the men together, and confronted them with a cruel smile.

"What apt pupils you are," sneered Fantomas. "Here you are, working away without saving anything to the master. Yet don't think for an instant that I have forgotten you. I shall see you soon. And always remember that I love you."

At the first opportunity he read the missive.

"You know that I have always loved you, in spite of your marriage. But it is impossible for me to meet you today. Be patient, my love, for I shall see you soon. And always remember that I love you."

"Antoinette."

The Marquis de Tergall had been unable to go hunting because of a sudden chill. His wife attended him with due solicitude, and just as she left him lighted a fire in the gas grate. This fact she told Fantomas when she descended to find that he had not joined the hunters.

Fantomas managed to get to the gas meter in the basement without being observed. He turned off the gas for a moment, then turned it on again. In the bedroom of the marquis, the gas grate flickered and went out. Soon the room began to fill with gas fumes.

ARRESTED ON HIS HONEYMOON

36-YEAR-OLD TEXAS GIRL'S ARMY ROMANCE PALES DURING THE WEDDING TRIP

CAMP FOLLOWER'S CONQUEST

Indiana Man Had Posed in Border Town as an Army Contractor With Money.

Llano Grande, Tex.—Charles Walker of Crawfordville, Ind., who under the assumed name of Harry Southern paid court and was married to pretty Amy Martin, the 16-year-old daughter of a well-to-do merchant of this place, was arrested at Houston while the couple were on their honeymoon and he is in jail on the charge of having committed several forgeries.

He also has confessed that he has a wife and three children living in Crawfordville.

It was with tearful eyes that the deluded bride of Walker returned to her home here. She was accompanied by her father, who went to Houston to take charge of his daughter as soon as he learned of the man's arrest. "I wish you had killed the viper instead of arresting him," he told the police officers.

The romance with its tragic ending which has come into the life of Amy Martin was due to the mobilization of troops upon the lower Rio Grande border. Before the coming of the soldiers there was no more peaceful community in the entire frontier region than Llano Grande. When the Indiana National Guard came to Mercedes, situated only three miles from Llano Grande, Walker, alias Southern, soon became a familiar figure in the camp.

He was not a soldier but he came down on the same train with the troops. He worked at different jobs at Mercedes and put in his idle time in the camp of the troops. A few weeks ago he came to Llano Grande with a party of soldiers and happened to meet Miss Martin in her father's store. He made other visits and the couple were soon in company with each other almost every day. Southern claimed that he was making good money as a contractor of supplies for troops. His only basis for this statement was that he had acted as intermediary in placing orders for ice cream for the mess of the Indiana company with which he spent much of his time.

Finally, Southern obtained the promise of the girl to be his wife and the wedding took place a few days ago at the Martin home. It was quite an event in Llano Grande, and the couple departed immediately after the ceremony for Kansas to spend their honeymoon with a sister of the bride, amid the blessings of relatives and soldiers.

Walker's money ran out when they reached Houston and he left his bride in the railroad station with the explanation that he would go "up town to an ice cream factory where he had been buying supplies and get a check cashed. He placed an order for a small quantity of ice cream to be shipped to Indiana troops at Mercedes and offered a check for $38 in payment. He received the difference in cash and returned to the depot.

In a short while he visited the ice cream factory a second time and asked to have another check cashed. In the meanwhile the ice cream manufacturer had telegraphed Sergt. Bradley, whose name was on the check, and the reply came back that it was a forgery. Walker was taken into custody and placed in jail. He loudly protested his innocence.

"You will break the little girl's heart," she told the police.

The bride was heartbroken when notified that her husband had been arrested. She was permitted to visit the jail and have a talk with him.

"Will you stand by me?" he asked. "Maybe I will," she said.

But that was before she learned that he already had a wife and children. She willingly came back to her home here with her father.

It is stated by the police that Walker has confessed other misdeeds and that there are enough charges against him to keep him in the penitentiary a long time, even if the charge of forgery in Texas is not pressed against him.

A Partnership for You With Ray Harroun

Prompt Action Gets Big Profits

A chance to enter the field of automobile manufacture with the greatest genius it has ever produced—that is the opportunity we are offering Detroit and Michigan people today.

The Automobile Industry and Ray Harroun!

Only a Detroit can adequately foretell the sure success of such a combination.

No well-managed automobile factory in Detroit has ever scored anything but an unqualified victory.

And here is the man who, beyond all others, has demonstrated his ability as a designer, an organizer and a producer. The

HARROUN

$10 PAR; COSTS YOU $5.50

We have underwritten a certain amount of this stock, which we offer at the remarkably low price—$5.50 for each share of $10 par value.

PRICE WILL ADVANCE VERY SOON

Within one week, following the sending out of application blanks, the automobile distributors of the United States sent in signed requisitions for more than 50,000 Harroun cars, representing a value of more than $30,000,000.

It is this stock on which all dividends will be paid. These dividends, remember, will be paid on a basis of par value, not on the amount of your investment. You get two for one.

ACTIVE? WELL, LISTEN!

Don't confuse Harroun Motors with any of the speculative securities you may have heard of. The Harroun Corporation is right now a tremendously active concern.

Before the Corporation was launched, a revolutionary car to sell at $595 was already designed and building. Its announcement was followed by the purchase of a big plant at Wayne and a tremendous amount of adjacent property to care for expansion.

Within a very few days an addition will be begun, multiplying the size of the present plant many times over.

DONT MISS THIS CHANCE!

Detroit and Michigan are full of people who are mourning because they missed their chance to ally themselves and other companies in their early stages, when the stock was cheap.

Don't join these people on the mourner's bench. An investment in Harroun Motors should make you independently wealthy, just as it would have done if made in these other companies at a similar stage in their development.

YOUR CHANCE IS HERE AND NOW

Send us your name and address. We will forward by return mail some interesting information on Mr. Harroun's plans and those of his associates.

Better yet, drop in at our office and let us tell you the whole story of Harroun Motors Corporation stock.

BREAD IMPROVER IS BIG AID IN REDUCING THE COST OF LIVING

Ho-Mayde Makes Deliciously Good Bread From Even Cheaper Grades of Flour.

"With the price of baker's bread increased, and no indications that former prices will prevail for months and perhaps years, thousands of women are making bread in their own kitchens in an effort to reduce the cost of living," said C. L. Chapin, general manager of the Ho-Mayde Products Co., of Detroit.

"And many of these women have found Ho-Mayde Bread Improver of great assistance in making bread, because the wholesome product, when dissolved in the yeast, assures absolutely dependable results."

"The Bread Improver shortens the time of bread making and prevents failures. It makes larger, softer and whiter loaves and imparts a nut-like flavor to the bread.

"It is not necessary to set bread over night when Ho-Mayde is used. Bread set in the morning is out of the oven by noon and by its use an extra loaf is made from the same materials."

"Hundreds of housewives have informed me that they have greatly reduced the cost of living by using Ho-Mayde, as they are assured light, nutritious loaves of excellent bread even when the cheaper grades of flour are used."

The Ho-Mayde Products Co., which is sending sample packages of the Bread Improver to all women, upon request, has received testimonial letters from hundreds of housewives, as well as editors of several women's magazines, highly endorsing Ho-Mayde. It is said that Ho-Mayde will play a prominent part in reviving bread making, which, for the average woman, is almost a lost art.
