

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD

VOL. XLVIII, NO. 20.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 7, 1917

$1.00 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

COMMUNITY XMAS AGAIN THIS YEAR

ANOTHER BIG TREE TO BE RAISED ON THE PUBLIC SQUARE.

COUNCIL ARRANGING A SECOND EVENT TO BE AS GOOD AS LAST SEASON.

Northville is to have another Community Christmas tree, similar to that of last year and the council has appointed an arrangement committee as follows: N. G. Schragel, F. S. Earl, Ray Richardson, Mrs. F. S. Harmon for the Red Cross and Mrs. Lida Richardson-Murphy for The King's Daughters. This committee will arrange the program and the council will arrange for the lights, tree, etc.

Mr. Scott has donated a very nice tree and the Edison Co. will put it up and do the electric wiring.

The decorating committee appointed to Messrs. Cramer, Armstrong and Hall.

The Good Fellows' club will arrange Santa Claus end of the program and every person in the town is urged to lend a hand. It is to be everybody's tree and everybody will need to get in the game to give the proper spirit to the occasion. Some money will be required and it is expected that everybody will want to chip in at least a little. Money may be left at either bank, if not paid direct to the solicitor.

HOME TALENT PLAY

NEXT WEDNESDAY EVE.

The home talent play to be given for the benefit of the local Red Cross auxiliary is dated for next Wednesday night, December 13, in the Alseum theatre. The play, which is entitled "Miss Molly" will be presented by a cast made up of some of Northville's best amateur thespians, under management of Mrs. W. L. Tinsam, which facts insure a delightful entertainment. The object of the affair is one which appeals more convincingly just now, perhaps, than almost any other—the raising of money for our own Red Cross society, with which to provide extra comforts for Northville's own soldier boys. A splendid attendance is a fact, assured beforehand.

In addition to the play, there are to be song specialties by a "colored quartet" and a group of jolly chorus girls, all of which makes us a program of unusual promise.

THE LOCAL COAL SITUATION.

The fuel situation as regards Northville has taken a decided turn for the better. Through the efforts of the village authorities, two carloads of coal were received last week by W. E. Ambler, to be delivered as designated by the village president. Last Saturday President Filkins received a telegram that a car of chestnut coal was ready for shipment here on receipt of the money for same. The remittance was promptly made, and in response to another telegram received this week, Tuesday stating one car of chestnut and one car of stove coal awaited shipment at Buffalo, consigned to Mr. Filkins for the village, the money for those was sent. Supposedly the three cars are now on the way to Northville, if one of them has not already arrived by the time the Record is issued.

AUCTION SALE.

Robert Thompson is to have an auction sale at the farm on the Base Line, 1-2 mile west of Northville, beginning at 12:30 o'clock, of horses, milk cows, farm machinery, tools, hay and straw. Auctioneer, George Ratenbury. Date, Dec. 11.

A VICIOUS RUMOR.

Among the many absurd and vicious rumors put into circulation these days, probably through pro-German influences, is "one that the United States proposes to confiscate money on deposit in banks. The absurdity of the statement is obvious on its face. These rumors are wholly without foundation and probably circulated for an evil purpose. The government has no power to confiscate the money of depositors in banks.—From statement of Secretary McAdoo.

Bread 9c a loaf; Cream Puffs fresh every day. Casper's home bakery, North Center street.

RECORD MUST RAISE PRICE.

Owing to the greatly increased cost of production, the Record will be obliged, like most of the other country papers, to raise its subscription price to $1.50 per year. The new rate will begin with the new year. Subscriptions will be taken during December at the old price, consequently it will be greatly to the advantage of subscribers who are in arrears to settle their old accounts and pay in advance for the coming year, during December, 1917.

THE PUBLISHER.

COUNCIL CUTS OUT PENNY MACHINES AND PUNCH BOARDS.

The council has ordered the police department to stop the operation of slot machines and punch boards in the village. The council hasn't objected to the penny machines but finally the punch boards got so thick that jealousy, or something else, led to complaints being made to the council until an order was voted Monday night to stop the whole business. It was a case of overdoing, or the last straw that broke the camel's back.

However, some of the business men no doubt took for their example the permit given by the council to an outdoor show for the use of streets for a week last summer when all kinds of gambling devices were allowed to run wild. They probably supposed they, as taxpayers, would be given nearly as much license as a transient concern that paid nothing for such privilege ad lived in remote parts of the country.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. B. A. Parmenter celebrated the 50th anniversary of their marriage Monday, December 3, at their home in this village. Mr. Parmenter has passed his entire life of 75 years in this immediate vicinity, and for the past 40 years has been engaged, as at present, in the manufacture of cider and vinegar at his mill on the Base Line road.

He was born on the farm now owned by R. Christensen, just north of town, in Novi township. Mr. Parmenter enlisted in the U. S. Navy in 1862 and served on the U. S. S. Elan until she was sunk in an engagement on the Tennessee river, then on the Cincinnati until the end of the war. He was in various battles, and some five years ago he received a medal from the U. S. congress, but so far has refused, with characteristic modesty, to tell even his children the specific act of bravery for which the token was given him.

Mrs. Parmenter, who was Annah Guthrie, was born in Huntington, Indiana, in 1848, coming to Northville when 12 years of age.

The wedding of half-a-century-ago took place in the Guthrie house on Randolph street, now occupied by B. Hayes and family.

All the five children born to Mr. and Mrs. Parmenter are still living; Clarence of Detroit, W. D. of Plymouth, Mrs. E. C. Arthur of Walled Lake and Mrs. John Schoultz and W. A. Parmenter of Northville. In addition they have 12 grandchildren and three great grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Parmenter have been fortunate indeed to reach this far milestone of life holding the esteem of all who know them and surrounded by an unbroken family circle. The Record joins with other friends in the hope that life continues to be kind to them for many years to come.

MURPHY-RICHARDSON.

Married, Saturday evening, Dec. 1, 1917, at the home of and by Rev. J. Earl Webber, pastor of the Royal Oak Presbyterian church, and former pastor of the contracting parties, Lieut. Charles Francis Murphy, U. S. A., to Miss Lida Richardson, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas G. Richardson of this village. Lieutenant and Mrs. Murphy left Royal Oak and Detroit immediately for Charlotte to visit friends for a few days. The young officer's leave of absence expires Dec. 15, when he is to report at Hoboken, N. J.

Both young people are very popular in Northville, where the bride has passed practically her whole life, and where Mr. Murphy has spent many years of late years. Both are members of the Northville Presbyterian church, and many friends of all denominations are wishing them the best of luck. The Record joins heartily in the congratulations and good wishes.

CARD OF THANKS.

A sincerely thank the Baptist ladies, King's Daughters, Senior class, neighbors and friends for beautiful flowers and fruit sent me during my illness.

Ray Baker returned Tuesday from Camp Custer, where he failed to pass the final physical examination.

Corporal Russell Stewart, home from Camp Meade, Maryland, on sick leave, has been a visitor in town this week. He is gaining satisfactorily.

Lloyd Green now ranks as "first class private" which, he writes home, is not so very much in the way of honor, but does bring some increase in his pay.

Earl Dickerson, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Dickerson of Detroit, and grandson of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dickerson of Northville, left home Wednesday for the Great Lakes Naval training station.

The many friends of Ralph W. Ryder will be pleased to hear that he has been transferred to the Special Detail glass composed of twenty men in the 11th F. A. at Camp McArthur. Their study includes telephone, wireless telegraph, war map drawing and reading, flag signaling (both Morse and semaphore codes), and range finding.

A PATRIOTIC MOVE.

The Record is glad to receive the information that following a unanimous vote of the Northville School board to that effect, the study of the German language has been dropped from the curriculum of our school. The students who were taking the study will be given their full allowance of credits. We congratulate our board of education, our school faculty and our young people on their patriotism and good sense in being among the leaders in a movement that must become general in the near future.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Having leased the building on Horton avenue, formerly occupied by J. A. Paddock, I am now prepared to supply a full line of the John Deere Plow Co.'s farm machinery, Syracuse plows, all kinds of plow points, scrapers, corn planters, wheelbarrows, buzz saws and engines, etc. Also tractor and machine oils. Farmers in need of anything along these lines will find it to their advantage to call on me. Satisfactory service, reasonable prices. H. S. DOBBER, Northville, Mich.

CHRISTMAS CHINA.

Mrs. T. H. Turner's annual display of hand-painted china will be placed on sale this coming Saturday at the McCully millinery store, with Mrs. McCully in charge. Realizing that this year is to be a "saying Christmas," Mrs. Turner will have a supply of small articles, also an assortment of hand decorated Christmas cards.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

I will be at the Northville State Savings bank on Tuesday, Dec. 11, and every Tuesday and Friday thereafter until January 31, for the collection of taxes. M. H. SLOAN, Township Treasurer.

HILLS' GROCERY, Northville

GOWDY'S LATEST ACHIEVEMENT ONE OF MOST SPECTACULAR IN BASEBALL GAME

"HANK" GOWDY IN HIS SOLDIER UNIFORM.

It always seemed to us that the most spectacular figure ever produced by a world series or by any other big sporting event was Lank Hank Gowdy, the blond backstop of the Boston Braves, who bludgeoned his way to fame in 1914, wrote Damon Runyon.

Unheralded and unsung, Lankus Hankus went into that series and ripped it wide open. He was supposed to be an apple-pie sort of fellow behind the bat, an indifferent catcher and a bum hitter, but for four stirring days the long Ohioan was a Solomon squatting in the shade of the hickories and a Hercules when he straddled the plate.

An ingenious fellow is Lank Hank Gowdy, with an ingenious smile and an ingenious way of thinking. After the series was all over and we took to reflection and retrospection it seemed to us quite natural that he should have turned out to be a hero.

Salutation Worth While. We saw Lank Hank during the last world series up at the Polo grounds.

He wore a soldier uniform, and he was passing the bat for Clark Griffith's bat and ball fund, smiling his old ingenious smile as he worked through the crowd, saluting friends of his baseball days.

A salutation from Lank Hank is like a blast of fresh air. It is no casual nodding with him—no mumbled how-d'ye-do sort of greeting. He tells the world when he says hello. He is always glad to see people, and he wants them to know it.

It struck us that day that it was singularly appropriate for Lank Hank Gowdy to be there in that uniform; it seemed to us quite in line with his spectacular career, and it strengthened the appeal which the personality of Hank has always had for our imagination.

He was the first baseball notable to enlist for service. Many another will follow in his footsteps during the coming winter, but Lank Hank was first. That will be his claim to fame long after his deeds on the diamond have been forgotten.

GIVES COVIE ANOTHER SHOW

Big Left-Handed Fitcher Did Not Do Much for Tigers This Season, but Jennings Is Hopeful.

It is an open secret that Manager Jennings of the Detroit Americans doubts whether Harry Coveleskie will be able to pitch major league ball next season. Last year the big left-hander was a star; this year he was almost worthless. His arm was weak and his curve ball and confidence were considered by their absence. Coveleskie passed the thirty-year mark several seasons ago, although he is modest regarding his real age. But Jennings undoubtedly will take Coveleskie south, and give him another chance, as he realizes that a come-back is not an impossibility.

Harry Coveleskie.

"THE REAL LADY" IS RETIRED

Winner of Kentucky Futurity and Holder of World's Record Will Never Race Again.

A. F. Cosden has announced that The Real Lady, 2:03, winner of the Kentucky Futurity and holder of the world's record for three-year-old trotters, will never race again. She is said to be as sound as a bell, but she has trotted nine of the fastest races on record for fillies of her age in the last two campaigns, winning $27,675, and her owner is now going to breed her to Peter Volo, 2:02, the only trotter that ever held the record for yearlings, two-year-olds, three-year-olds and four-year-olds.

Leslie Suits Cub Fans. Chicago fans are not concerned about the first base assignment on the Cubs next season. They believe that Leslie is ready for the major leagues even if Barnie Dreyfus of the Pirates should win his fight to obtain the services of Salier.

Harry McCormick, Now An Officer in France

Harry McCormick, former Giant outfielder and pinch hitter, now an officer in the United States army, has arrived in France. He and Eddie Grant, also an ex Giant, attended the Plattsburg camp. Bill O'Hara, who saw fighting in France with the Canadians, and McCormick and Grant all played with the Giants under McGraw. It is somewhat noteworthy that three former members of the same club were among the first players to show their willingness to fight the Huns.

Deacon Phillippe Pitched Forty-Four Innings in Contest Between Pirates and Red Sox. Despite the fact that he pitched in four games and won three decisions over the Giants, Urban (Red) Faber fell just 17 innings short of equaling the all-time "iron man" record for a world's series.

The Chicago pitcher saved from the "bushes" by McGraw to have him beat the Giants out of a world's title, pitched 27 innings in four combats. In the 1903 series between the Pirates and Red Sox, Deacon Phillippe of Pittsburgh twirled 44 innings in that series.

Faber will deserve the tribute that goes with winning three games in the series, and takes his place among a select few who have done this same thing. Only six other pitchers ever performed this feat. They are Bill Dineen of the Red Sox, who won three against Pittsburgh in 1903; Phillippe of Pittsburgh, who won three from Boston in the same series; Christy Mathewson, who took three from the Athletics; all shutouts, in 1905; Babe Adams of Pittsburgh, who captured three from Detroit in 1909; Jack Coombs, who won a trio of decisions over the Cubs in 1910; and Joe Wood of the Red Sox, who was victor in three over the Giants in 1912.

No other pitcher bore quite as heavy a burden as did Phillippe, back in 1903. Of the eight games played, Phillippe started and finished five—the first, third, fourth, seventh and eighth.

Good Work of Maisel. George Maisel, a young brother of the Yankee third baseman, batted .306 in 144 games with the San Francisco club and has stolen 39 bases. Detroit sent Maisel to the coast and undoubtedly has an option on the player.

McGraw to Winter in Havana. Manager McGraw of the Giants will spend a part of the winter in Havana.

CARTER AT THE FRONT

Sensational New York Golfer Driving His Bit in France.

Driver of Red Cross Ambulance Tells of Great War Game for Which He Has Forsaken Links—Under Fire Many Times.

Phil Carter, the sensational young New York golfer, is doing his bit with the American Red Cross in France, where he drives an ambulance close to the firing lines, day after day.

In a recent letter to friends on this side of the pond Carter told something of the great war game for which he has forsaken the links. "He has been under fire many times, and the night drives he has been forced to make, along rough and treacherous roads, without lights, have convinced him that war is a terribly serious game."

"We have often been within two or three miles of the front," wrote Carter, "and it is impossible to describe the sensation that comes over one when he comes within range of the big guns."

"The roar of the heavy artillery is something terrific, and on one occasion we hadn't been in camp more than fifteen minutes when the Germans commenced shelling the whole countryside. You can hear the report when the big guns are fired and then the whistle of the shell as it comes screaming overhead. Then follows a thunderous report, and a lot of earth, a house or whatever the shell hits is thrown high into the air. If you can hear the shell whistle you are all right, but if you can't you have to watch your step, for it is very likely to hit close by."

"The night raids of the German airplane impressed me as the most treacherous and dangerous thing I have encountered, and there is nothing one can do but crawl into a dug-out and wait till the raid comes to an end."

Carter also wrote that the ambulance drivers get furloughs at intervals, which permit them to rest up as they see fit. He takes his recreation on the golf links in Paris, and in this way is keeping on his game.

"FROSTY" DARCY MAY FIGHT

Younger Brother of Australian Champion Wants to Come to United States to Gain Fame.

"Frosty" Darcy, younger brother of unfortunate Les Darcy, may walk or perchance ride up the main street one of these fine days. Mickey King gives the information that he has received a letter from Australia to the effect that "Frosty" wants to come to America and try and win the fame for the name of Darcy.

"Frosty," like Les, is a middleweight of fair ability. He is only eighteen years of age and inasmuch as he has two other brothers fighting for the alphas and as he is under military age, the way will be paved for him to leave Sydney and come over.

$1,000,000 for U. S. As Baseball War Tax

The United States will collect close to $1,000,000 as a baseball war tax next season if patronage is as nearly normal in 1918 as it was this year in the major leagues. The government will get a ten per cent revenue on tickets, in addition to the income tax. The public will have to stand the tariff.

JOE EVANS IS IN THE ARMY

Cleveland Third Sacker, Who Had Previously Asked for Exemption, Reports for Duty.

Joe Evans, third baseman with the Cleveland Americans, is in the army, and President James C. Dunn is on the lookout for a player to fill his shoes. Evans is at Camp Pike, Little Rock, Ark. When the Cleveland third-sacker left here after the close of the season he intended to resume his medical course at the University of Mississippi. When he reached home, however, he changed his mind and reported for duty. Evans had previously applied for exemption. He hopes to be assigned to hospital duty.

QUININE

Rectifying her Mistakes. In the midst of war England has discovered the absolute necessity of rebuilding her school system, of returning to a shorter workday in her factories and of encouraging the building of the child welfare agencies that gave up their activities earlier in the war, notes the Red Cross Magazine. Sir Herbert Fisher asked in parliament last spring for an increase of $3,820,000 over last year's educational budget. The committee on juvenile education has recommended a general fourteen-year age limit for leaving school throughout England with the abolition of all exemptions, and the establishment of day continuation schools for children between fourteen and eighteen with compulsory attendance for at least eight hours a week.

Why of Course. Though thoroughly patriotic, Johnny, aged nine, dining with his mother in one of the cafeterias on wheatless day, could not understand why he should eat corn bread instead of the usual white bread, relates the Indianapolis News.

In the argument that ensued his mother, losing her temper, ordered the young man "to get outside of his portion of bread right away."

After a thoughtful moment, Johnny commented: "Mother, then I would be the peeh'n, wouldn't I?"

Important to Mothers

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, that famous old remedy for infants and children, and see that it bears the Signature of Wm. A. Fletcher. In Use for Over 30 Years. Children Cry for Fletcher's Castoria

Panicky Times. "He is so terribly frugal." "Frugality, my dear, is a sign of aristocracy nowadays."

Natural Place

"So Bill dressed up his story?" "Yes, and then took it to a swallow tale party."

Attic Is Made to Order as a Playroom for the Kiddies.

The attic now provides the home with the most delightful of playrooms, that show in every detail a thorough understanding of what children love, says an exchange. It is a retreat that is their very own, just as they would have dreamed it. If you told them that the alcoves were formed by chance in the plan of the big house, they would smile incredulously. There is an alcove for each child, where each has her own individual set of furniture, decorated with her own story-book pictures.

Deep shelves furnish cages in which the wild animals sleep at night; and the tired hobbyhorse finds a stable and rest. Baby has a playground all her own, out of danger from prancing steed and raging elephant. There is a quiet corner for nurse, too.

What wonderful things are to be seen from the high-up windows, where the sunbeams peep in to wake-up the toys! Perhaps the view may show ships far out on the river or bay, or miles and miles of treetops tossed in the wind, and soft white piled-up clouds.

Sell Wood by Pound.

Circassian walnut is sold by the pound or the ton and not by the foot. As early as 116 B. C. it was introduced into Italy from Persia. Russia is the chief source of Circassian walnut. The logs are so heavy that they will not float, and are sold from the forest with their bark on. Only the heart of the wood is used, and it is the crooked, irregular logs that possess the best figured wood. Even very old trees rarely have a clear length of more than ten feet.

A WOMAN IS AS OLD AS SHE LOOKS

A wrinkled, careworn face can easily make a difference of twenty years in a woman's appearance. A wonderful preparation recently introduced into this country from Egypt, where it has been used for centuries, consists of a combination of nut-oils, which rubbed into the skin every night before retiring, soon drives away wrinkles and makes the skin soft and velvety. Usit is the name given to this preparation and a handsome opal bottle of Usit, delicately perfumed, will be sent to any address. For further distribution a bargain. —Once only. Try Usit Face Powder de Luxe, which is no ordinary face powder, but a preparation appealing to the people of discriminating and refined taste. Four tints—flesh, white, pink and brunette. Delicately perfumed. One 50c bottle Usit and one 50c box Usit Face Powder de Luxe for 75c. Address Usit Mfg Co., 895 Main street, Buffalo, N. Y.

One man may speak for another, but one woman can't talk for another with any degree of satisfaction.

Canadian Farmers' Profit From Wheat

The war's devastation of European crops has caused an unusual demand for grain from the American Continent. The people of the world must be fed and wheat near $2 a bushel offers great profits to the farmer. Canada's invitation is therefore especially attractive. She wants settlers to make money and happy, prosperous homes for themselves by helping her raise immense wheat crops.

You can get a Homestead of 160 acres FREE and other lands at remarkably low prices. During many years Canadian wheat fields have averaged 20 bushels to the acre many yields as high as 45 bushels to the acre. Wonderful crops also of Oats, Barley and Flax. Mixed farming as profitable an industry as grain raising. The excellent grasses full of nutrition are the only food required for beef or dairy purposes. Good schools, churches, markets convenient, climate excellent. There is an extra demand for farm labor to replace the many young men who have volunteered for the war. The government is giving farmers to put extra acreage into grain. Write for literature and particulars to the railway rates to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Canada, or M. V. Defeat Backache and Kidney Trouble With Anuric

Many people in this section have suffered from rheumatism and kidney trouble and have found that Anuric was the most successful remedy to overcome these painful and dangerous ailments. The lucky people are those who have suffered, but who are now well because they heeded nature's warning signal in time to correct their trouble with that wonderful new discovery of Dr. Pierce's called "Anuric" (double strength). You should promptly heed these warnings, some of which are dizzy spells, backache, irregularity of the urine or the painful twinges of rheumatism, sciatica or lumbago. To delay may make possible the dangerous forms of kidney disease, such as stone in the bladder. If you want quick relief buy Anuric now (60¢ a package) or send Dr. Pierce for trial pkg. This will prove that "Anuric" eliminates uric acid as hot water melts sugar.

Cost of Feeding Nippon's Soldiers.
It costs about 43 sen a day (about 22 cents) to feed a private in Japan's Second Imperial body guard regiment, according to an officer quoted in Yum-fu, a venacular paper. Of this, 15 sen goes for a quart of rice and barley (30 per cent barley) and 18 sen for meat and vegetables. This sum is not as small as it seems, as everything is one-third under market price when bought for the army. For breakfast, in addition to the cereal, bean soup is served, and for lunch and supper the menu includes vegetables and fish or meat. Cooking and distribution is carefully done by a staff of 20 men, including three lieutenants, three sergeants and 14 privates or one cook for every 90 men in a regiment of 1-800. Unused food is sold to cheap eating houses, the money thus gained being spent for extra dishes on festive occasions.

Eyesight Basis of Wager.
An Irishman and an Englishman met one day and they had a very heated discussion. Pat, who had only one eye, attracted the Englishman's attention, when he said:
"Those are grand eyes you have."
"How much grander are those you have," said the Englishman in answer.
"I thought," replied Pat, "ye Englishmen were good grammarians. I have but one eye, and you could not say 'those'." Then Pat, who was anxious to outdo the Englishman from a point of wit and humor, said:
"I bet you 20 shillings to your one eye that I can see more with my one eye than you can with your two."
"Done," said the Englishman. "It's a bet."
And Pat, in his truly witty manner, vociferated:
"Arrah shure, I with my one eye can see your two, whereas you with your two eyes can only see my one."
The Englishman collapsed.

KIDNEY TROUBLE NOT EASILY RECOGNIZED

Applicants for Insurance Often Rejected

An examining physician for one of the prominent life-insurance companies, in an interview of the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why so many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease.
Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions. The mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.
We find that Swamp-Root is strictly an herbal compound and we would advise our readers who feel in need of such a remedy to give it a trial. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.
However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

THE HOME BEAUTIFUL

Flowers and Shrubby Their Care and Cultivation

Nasturtiums Are Trailers Rather Than Climbers—A Beautiful Showing of the Graceful Vine.

THE BEAUTY OF VINES

By JOSEPHINE DE MARR.

When in doubt as to what to plant, vines are sound advice. Vines beautify; they are useful; they are easy to grow. They shade from the hot sun; they hide old or obnoxious features; they encourage the birds to nest about the house; they are the drapery nature throws over and about with a lavish hand to soften and embellish.

When preparing to plant vines, be sure to spade deeply, manure heavily, and prepare the soil carefully. After perennial and hardy vines are established it is difficult to cultivate them, therefore, do all you can before planting them. When they begin to "spin" they must have supports, otherwise they will be stunted in growth and unsatisfactory.

There are so many beautiful vines among annuals, perennials and hardy vines that it is hard to decide, if you wish to blot out an old building, cover it with vines. If you dislike the necessary fence, turn it into a thing of beauty by planting vines along its length.

A dead tree renews its youth if vines are allowed to clothe its branches. Let vines shade the porch and thus make it a cool and leafy retreat from the summer's sun. Curtain the shutterless south window with vines and let them grow about the home wherever possible.

The grape is one of the most useful vines. It is hardy; early in the spring its leaves are ready to cast a shadow. Its blossoms are delicately fragrant and its fruit is delicious. Attention must be given it in the way of fertility, pruning and tying.

Among the wild vines the trumpet-vine, Tecoma radicans, wild clematis, (virgin's bower) and bitter-sweet are popular. In transplanting the latter from the woods be sure that you procure one that is fertile, for some of them do not bloom. The Dutchman's pipe is another desirable wild vine, but it is not as common as those mentioned above.

The wild climbing rose has an exquisite flower; and, once started, grows shoots ten to fifteen feet high in one season.

The climbing roses are led by the rambling, and its hybrids. However, its foliage gets shabby and spoils its beauty as a porch plant. It makes a brave show when blooming. The good old prairie queen still continues to be the standard climbing rose. All the Ayrshire roses are hardy, also the Cherokee roses. The sweet briar, Lord Penzance, is in a way a climbing rose.

The wistaria takes a long time to become established, but repay by the blooms.

The Madeira vine, mignonette scented, has tuberous roots, which are not hardy, grows fast and forms a fine screen with its thick, fleshy leaves.

The matrimony vine, although its blooms are small and inconspicuous, grows quickly, throwing out long, graceful sprays that droop to the earth.

HOME TOWN HELPS

SOLVING PROBLEM OF PLAY

American Cities Are Beginning to Meet the Needs of People for Outdoor Recreation.

American cities are beginning to solve the problem of play. It is only in the last few years that the United States has become a country predominantly urban instead of rural in its population, and this urban population has had a hard time getting the outdoor air and exercise it needs, writes Frederic J. Haskin. The solution of the problem seems to lie in the municipal playground and athletic field, which has come to be a feature of the parks of almost every progressive city in the last few years. The federal census bureau has just completed an investigation of the parks and playgrounds of every city in the United States, which contains some interesting facts.

For the purposes of this work, the census bureau takes account of all cities of 30,000 inhabitants or more. There are 213 such cities in the United States—a measure of the rapidity with which the balance of population is moving from the country to the city. Neither the country boy nor the country-dwelling man needs any outdoor recreation facilities; he has only to step across his threshold to be in a "backyard" that affords the sports for which games are only a substitute. Much attention has been given to the problem of furnishing country dwellers with intellectual and artistic recreation, in an attempt to keep them from moving to the city in too great numbers; but there has so far been little attention paid to providing them with outdoor sports within average means after they arrive in the city. But the movement is under way, and it is growing steadily.

SHAPE COURSE, STICK TO IT

This Is Only Effective Policy to Be Pursued by Commercial Club, It Is Declared.

Community building, in its final analysis, resolves itself into a question of energy directed by will. If we want a thing we can get it by shaping out a course and sticking to it, declares the Bryan (Tex.) Eagle. Dallying with every proposition that comes up will never get a business club anywhere. Nothing will be accomplished and the club might as well disband and go home. Every member, particularly every director, should be live, wide-awake and ready to go. Every member should be not only willing but glad to contribute to any worthy movement that means more for the town. And every man in the town should be a member.

A commercial club's supreme purpose as something else than adding a few dollars to the trade of the town and paying a secretary to keep the minutes and the accounts. The ideal secretary is a man of ideas and dynamic force, who can lead his people to the acceptance of those ideas, who can arouse interest of the directors and other members and give them something to do, unconsciously to themselves, that is worth while for the upbuilding of the town.

On "Cleaning Up."

Let's all appoint ourselves as a committee of one to help keep the town clean and healthy and let's make a good start by cleaning up our own premises, urges the Lake Charles, (La.) American Press. In other words, be consistent, let's all practice exactly what we preach. If every person will do this, we shall have one of the healthiest cities in the country. In no other way can this much-to-be-desired condition be obtained. By waiting for the other fellow to start first, nobody starts, and we just go along in a perfunctory way from day to day and year to year. Lake Charles is already healthy and clean, but nobody will deny that the city could be made a whole lot healthier and cleaner, and the way to do it is for everybody to clean up their own premises and keep them clean, and this applies especially to the back yards and alleys where tin cans, empty boxes, discarded tins and that accumulate from time to time.

Depicts the "Great Trek."

An interesting film has just been shown in London dealing with early South African history, and has been praised by General Botha. It depicts the "Great Trek" of the Boer into Natal and Dingans Land in 1836, and follows Piet Retief's adventure through with tremendous realism. Coming into collision with the native Kafirs, and with the British when the latter made Natal an English colony, The Boers pushed on beyond the Drakenberg mountains to found the Transvaal and Orange Free State. "You have depicted the history of my people in a manner at which I can only marvel," Botha told the producer.

Avoid Horticultural Museums.
Nearly all gardens have too many sorts of plants. Do not strive for a horticultural museum, advises a landscape gardener. Try to build a picture and pray to remember that plants are as much raw material as bricks in a garden wall. They are to be used for collective or composite effect, not for individual beauty or effectiveness.

Had To Give Up Was Almost Frantic With the Pain and Suffering of Kidney Complaint. Doan's Made Her Well.

Mrs. Lydia Shuster, 1638 Margaret St., Frankford, Pa., says: "A cold started my kidney trouble. My back began to ache and got sore and lame. My joints and ankles became swollen and painful and it felt as if needles were sticking into them. I finally had to give up and went from bad to worse."
"My kidneys didn't act right and the secretions were scanty and distressing. I had awful dizzy spells when everything before me turned black; one time I couldn't see for twenty minutes. Awful pains in my head set in, the almost frantic and I was so nervous I couldn't stand the least noise. How I suffered! Often I didn't care whether I lived or died."

"I couldn't sleep on account of the terrible pains in my back and head. Nothing seemed to do me a bit of good until, after taking Doan's Kidney Pills, I could soon see they were helping me: the backache stopped, my kidneys were regulated and I no longer had any dizzy spells or rheumatic pains. I still take Doan's occasionally, and the keep my kidneys in good health."

HIS PAR HAD A PREMONITION

Farmer's Son Explained Why Parent Was Not Surprised When Family Party Arrived.

A family of eight, in a large automobile, stopped at a likely-looking farmhouse in the northern part of the state recently to get a drink of cold, pure water, which is believed to lurk about farmhouses, explains the Indianapolis News. To his surprise and evident gratification, the driver of the machine found in the farmer an old-time acquaintance, and plans were made immediately to pay the farmer's family an impromptu visit. The automobile was put away in the barn and, after a hustle and bustle, the hard worked farmer's wife prepared a meal adequate for the sudden increase in eaters.

After the meal the visiting children, in fact the entire family, made free with the house and premises. The head of the visiting family noticed the farmer's oldest boy hanging dejectedly about the rear of the house just before time to do the evening chores.

Well, sonny," said the man, "I guess your father was surprised to see us, wasn't he?"
"Wall, I dunna, ter sartin, but I don't think pap was much surprised," answered the boy.

"Not surprised. Why, how is that? He surely didn't know we were coming, did he?"

"No, I reckon not; leastways he didn't know it would be us. But pap had been complainin' all mornin' that he felt 'knew' something was 'gon' to happen, 'cause, he said, he felt jest that way the day he got his leg busted."

My commission expires Dec. 26, 1920.

TAXES WILL BE HIGH.

Northville township taxes will be high this year—or when you pay them on or before January 15 next. In fact, they will be the highest in this village in the world's history. The rate will be $16.50 per $1,000 assessed valuation against $14.20 a year ago. To the rate of $16.50 may be added about 25% increase in valuation by the state tax commission. Thus the real increase will be over 40%.

Supervisor Lansing states however the increase in the township is confined almost entirely to Northville and owing to the increased school taxes the school taxes alone being $17.50. Last year the school tax was $8.54 per $1,000. This year it will be $11.00. The town tax last year outside of school was $5.46; this year it is $5.14, but with the increased valuation it will be something like $6.20 as a comparative figure.

Farm property comes in for but a very small raise and even at the above figures no one can quibble because practically everybody in the village favored a new school building and new modern educational structures, their upkeep and corps of instructors cost money and usually people do not seriously object to paying school taxes.

The most embarrassing political alien citizen to date heard of is a Greek restaurant keeper at Sioux City, Iowa, who is said to have wrapped small American flags around the specimens of German cars displayed in his windows, as a means of avoiding possible offense to his customers. Such extreme delicacy of tact deserves commendation, but what about the insult to the Stars and Stripes? Somebody would surely fall on the poor fellow for that.

The next number of the Lecture course will be at the church Friday evening, December 7.

Mrs. Dunckel of Lansing is here caring for her daughter, Mrs. B. Kitson, who is quite ill.

Dr. and Mrs. Mowers of Redford ate Thanksgiving dinner with their son, Paul and family here.

M. S. Pratt and wife, Misses Florence and Bertha, and Baby Gerald, were Pontiac visitors Tuesday.

The Thanksgiving social last Friday night gave the Seniors (a class of 11 girls) the nice sum of $20.

Richard T. Boyd of the U. S. S. Massachusetts, stationed off Newport News, visited his sister, Mrs. Herbert Roach, over Sunday.

The young people will have a dancing party at the Maccabee hall Friday evening, Dec. 7. Montgomery's orchestra will furnish the music.

Raymond Abrams has purchased the store building on B. L. Clark's lot, and has moved it on the lot next to the Carpenter store, and will remodel it into a dwelling house.

The Milford Times' gleanings from the files of 1881 contained an item which will be of interest to Wixom people. "At the state tournament last week at Lansing the Wixom band carried off the first prize in the third class. (The members of the Wixom band were given as follows: Frank S. Madison, Saul Kinsman, George B. Madison, Wm. Harmon, John Goite, Oscar Kelsey, Wm. A. Chas. Tuck, Wm. M. Chabbers, John Law, B. W. Munshaw, Frank Munshaw, Fred VanHoven, Geo. Perrigo, David Caloun, Eugene Turman, James G. Madison.)"

F. M. Warner and family spent Thanksgiving with Lieut. Harley Warner and wife at Dayton, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. Emory Ranous of Novi spent Sunday at Arthur Lamb's.

The Ladies' Union met Thursday with Mrs. Mary Crosby.

Supt. J. C. Clark and his wife and daughter, Jean, were entertained Thursday in Detroit, at the home of Mrs. Clark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bullen.

Miss Mildred Simmons was taken very ill from poisoning Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. Eva Dennis of Farmington, where she was under quarantine for diphtheria. Dr. Tupper of Redford was called and under his efficient care she soon recovered.

The body of William Mosher of Pontiac aged 29 years, was brought to Farmington for burial in Oakwood cemetery Monday afternoon. The young man, who was a nephew of Mrs. John Thayer, had been sick with typhoid fever for two weeks. His father, Charles Mosher, died but two months ago. The mother, a son five years old and one brother are the near surviving relatives.

The community was shocked to learn of the death of little Eustenia Rear, of diphtheria, Nov. 25, at the home of her aunt, Mrs. Eva Dennis of Farmington. She was the two-year-old daughter of Mrs. Henry West, formerly Mrs. Harry Rear of Powers Station. Baby Eustenia was of a sunny disposition, always greeting everyone with a smile and will be greatly missed by all who knew her.

Playing Possum.
When caught, the possum will feign death, all the while looking out of the corner of an eye, watching an opportunity to escape. And from this comes the well-known expression, "playing possum." It should be said, however, if one is lucky enough to get a Kentucky dressed possum in the market, there is no danger of its escaping. It has then arrived at a period in its career when possum play has ended.

Platonic Friendship.
"Do you believe in platonic friendship?" "Well, not altogether. My personal opinion is that I'd believe more in platonic friendship if it were carried on with the full knowledge and consent of the husband of the one and the wife of the other."—Detroit Free Press.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Wayne, ss. At a session of the Probate court for said county of Wayne, held in the Probate Court Room in the city of Detroit, on the third day of December in the year one thousand nine hundred and seventeen.

Present, Edward Command, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of JOHN C. GOW, deceased.

William Salow, executor of the last will and testament of said deceased, having rendered to this court his final administration account and filed therewith his petition praying that the residue of said estate be assigned to the persons entitled thereto.

It is ordered, that the eighth day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon Eastern Standard time, at said court room be appointed for examining and allowing said account and hearing said petition.

And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing, in the Northville Record, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Wayne. (A true copy.)

Northville School Notes.

The Eighth grade arithmetic class is very much interested in its work on triangles.

Virginia Benton is greatly missed from our Seventh grade. She has moved to Plymouth.

The Kindergarten children will take part in the exercises at Mother's Meeting Friday evening, Dec. 7.

Anyone who wishes to observe the Eighth grade penmanship class at work may do so next Wednesday, December 12, from 12:45 to 1:30.

Students of chemistry are experimenting on how it feels to be "gassed." They are studying chlorin this week, and one severe headache has already been reported.

Special reports on the great river systems of the world are being prepared by members of the physiography class. Now is when we appreciate our balopticon.

The program Monday morning was given by the Freshmen, consisting of a song by four girls, Amy Sessions, Eliza Murdoch, Arnetta Masters and Nettie Dodge. Also a reading by Leona McKelvey.

The Record's criticism of the order during the Art exhibit at the school house, seems to have been to a great extent a just one. It may be explained by the fact that Mr. Misenar was temporarily absent, and no one else was detailed to do police duty—that not being thought necessary.

In accordance with a communication from the Provost Marshal General of the United States—the teachers of Northville schools have tendered their services to the local Draft board to assist in any and all ways possible in helping citizens to fill out the elaborate and difficult questionnaires soon to be sent to all of those who registered for service last summer.

It is hoped that all parents who possibly can, will be at the parent-teacher meeting in the High school gymnasium Friday, December 7, at 2:30 p. m. Whether your child is Kindergarten or Senior he is more than likely to be benefitted by these informal discussions. Most of the misunderstanding and cross-purposes can be swept away by far-sighted co-operation between father, mother and teacher.

MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas, default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage made by George A. Rackham and Sarah Rackham, his wife, of Detroit, Michigan, to William A. Haines, of the same place, dated April 3, 1912, and recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Wayne on the 6th day of April, 1912, in Liber 626 of Mortgages on page 112, and which mortgage was duly assigned by William A. Haines to Horace H. Rackham, by assignment of mortgage-bearing date July 2, 1915, and which assignment was recorded on July 3, 1915, in Liber 62 of Assignments on page 50. And whereas, by reason of said default, there is claimed to be due on said mortgage at the date of this notice, including principal and interest, the sum of $4,554.00, and no suit or proceeding at law having been instituted to recover the debt now remaining secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof. Now, therefore, notice is hereby given that by virtue of the power of sale in the said mortgage contained and of the statutes of the State of Michigan, the undersigned will sell at public auction to the highest bidder on Monday, February 18, 1918, at 12:00 o'clock noon, Eastern Standard time, at the southerly or Congress street entrance to the Wayne County Building in the city of Detroit, county of Wayne, state of Michigan, (that being the building wherein the Circuit Court for the county of Wayne is held), the premises described in said mortgage, or sufficient thereof to satisfy said indebtedness and the costs and expenses of sale, including an attorney's fee allowed by law and also any sum or sums that shall be paid at or before said sale by the undersigned for taxes to protect his interest in the premises described in said mortgage, such premises being situated in the township of Greenfield, county of Wayne, and state of Michigan, and described as follows:

"All that part of the west one-half of the southwest one-quarter of Section nineteen (19), Town one (1), South of Range eleven (11) east, bounded and described as beginning at the southeasterly corner of said west-half thence north one (1) degree and ten (10) minutes west along the easterly line of said west-half, eighteen and 98-100 (18.98) chains to the center line of the Grand River Road, thence north sixty-one (61) degrees west along the center line of said road five (5) chains and sixty-five (65) links, thence south one (1) degree and two (2) minutes east twenty-one (21) chains and eighty-seven (87) links to a post on the southerly line of said section surrounded with broken glass, thence north eighty-eight (88) degrees and ten (10) minutes east along the southerly line of said section four (4) chains and ninety-five (95) links to the place of beginning; containing 10.0593 acres more or less."

"GERMAN KULTUR" AND GERMAN PLANS

OPINIONS AND INTENTIONS OF YEARS PAST NOW REVEALED.

TRANSLATIONS OF THEIR OWN WORDS SHOW DESIGNS OF SUBJUGATING BOTH NORTH AND SOUTH AMERICA.

The Record has received this week under the above caption, a pamphlet from the War Department of the U. S. which presents in absolutely indisputable form, a quantity of information secured and translated verbatim from original documents of the views and intentions of German leaders for many years past. It is impossible for this paper to reproduce all the startling revelations of decades of plotting and planning, but the following selections cannot fail to be of interest. Peculiarly illuminating in their relation to last week's article in the Record regarding the teaching of the German language in our public schools are the extracts immediately following:

[Letter of a New York German, Robert Thiem, to the Alldeutsche Blätter, Sept. 20, 1902.] The Alldeutsche Blätter thinks that the great hope is for Germans in America to retain their language.

"The Germanization of America has gone ahead too far to be interrupted. Whoever talks of danger of the Americanization of the Germans now here is not well informed or cherishes a false conception of our relations. . . . In a hundred years the American people will be conquered by the victorious German spirit, so that it will present an enormous German Empire. Whoever does not believe this lacks confidence in the strength of the German spirit."

[Hübner-Schleiden, in the Pan-German Central Organ, January, 1903. Wilhelm Hübner-Schleiden is a traveler, student and writer on German colonization.] "Immigration [to the United States] is mainly German and Irish. Since immigrating Germans quickly pick up the English-American language, they make a good cement for the great American structure. Whether it will always be so, whether at last the American Germans will harken to the voice of the blood, and whether the arrogant Irish will ever melt into the American nationality like the Germans is not yet demonstrated. The Monroe doctrine lacks as yet a justification in the unified character of the people."

"It is therefore the duty of everyone who loves languages to see that the future language spoken in America shall be German. It is of the highest importance to keep up the German language in America, to establish German universities, improve the schools, introduce German newspapers, and to see that at American universities German professors are more capable than their English-speaking colleagues, and make their influence felt unmistakably on thought, science, art, and literature. If Germans bear this in mind, and help accordingly, the goal will eventually be reached. At the present moment, the center of German intellectual activity is in Germany; in the remote future it will be in America. The Germans there are the pioneers of a greater German culture, which we may regard as ours in the future. He advises the Germans to compose themselves into an aristocracy of talent, which is the most effective way nowadays to obtain political power. Germans only need to grasp the situation and the future is theirs. Let them show that they mean to maintain Deutschthum, and then emigration may be directed to America with impunity."

As to the German feeling toward this country for years past, the extracts which follow explain themselves. The dates when the opinions were expressed should be especially noted:

[Dr. Otto Hotsch in 1902. Hotsch is a professor of history at the royal academy in Posen and at the war academy in Berlin.]

"The most dangerous foe of Germany in this generation will prove to be the United States."

"The North Americans can not forget that the German settlements may be the entering wedge in South America which is to overturn the Pan-American air castles; and the American consuls, especially the American envoy in Rio Janeiro, Colonel Page Bryan, follow jealously the progress of German colonization and investment. Their fears are our hopes and these are the stronger because we have the population to dispose of and the United States has not. . . . The question whether the German element there will turn to Germany or to the United States will be determined in a few years and it will depend upon the position which Germany takes in fostering church and school . . ."

[Klaus Wagner, 1906.]

"Not only North America but the whole of America must become a bulwark of Germanic Kultur, perhaps the strongest fortress of the Germanic races."

[Von Schultze-Gaevernitz, a professor of political economy in the university of Freiburg, 1899.]

"The more Germany is condemned to an attitude of passive resistance toward the United States the more emphatically must she defend her interests in Central and South America, where she today occupies an authoritative position. Now in matters of equity and respect for the law the Romanic peoples in America can not be judged according to European standards, and in certain circumstances Germany will be constrained all the more to employ coercive political measures in proportion as the amount of German capital invested (in state loans, railways, plantations) in these parts increases. For this purpose we need a fleet capable not only of coping with the miserable forces of South American states, but powerful enough, if the need should arise, to cause Americans to think twice before making any attempt to apply economic Monroe doctrine in South America."

[Johannes Unold, is professor in the Handelshochschule at Munich, 1899.]

"While Englishmen and Yankees are everywhere disliked on account of their sharp and reserved manner, the French were until the seventies, the unrivaled leaders and patterns of these peoples [the South Americans] in their progress toward a higher culture; but now through their want of numbers and through their swift decline into universal corruption, they have forfeited much of their leadership. Would that the Germans might be called through their talents and activities to be the intellectual, economic, and political leaders of these peoples."

"The Germans seem marked by their talents and by their achievements to be the teachers and the intellectual, economic, and political leaders of these people [the Spanish and Portuguese Americans.]

"If the Germans do not accomplish this mission, then, sooner or later, in consequence of political or financial bankruptcy, the nations of Spanish and Portuguese America will come under the domination and exploitation of the United States. . . ."

[W. Wintzer, 1900. Wintzer is a journalist and author. It will be noted that this was written just three years before President Roosevelt had occasion to rebuff the German government for its evident designs on a Venezuelan harbor. Bernhardt, Germany and the Next War, 1911.]

"The isolated groups of Germans abroad greatly benefit our trade, since by preference they obtain their goods from Germany; but they may also be useful to us politically, as we discover in America. The American-Germans have formed a political alliance with the Irish, and thus united constitute a power in the state with which the government must reckon."

[Johannes Volpert, Alldeutsche Blätter, January 17, 1903.]

"From all this it appears that the Monroe doctrine cannot be justified. . . . So it remains only what we Europeans have described as an aspiration. And so it remains only what we Europeans consider it, an imperativeness. With a noisy cry they try to make an impression on the world and succeed, especially with the stupid. The inviolability of the American soil is invoked without there being at hand the slightest means of warding off the attack of a respectable European power."

[Gustav von Schmoller, at the time of his death, 1917, the most distinguished economic historian in Germany.] "The moral sanction of the Monroe doctrine disappeared on the day when the treaty for the annexation of the Philippines was signed by McKinley. Thereby America broke the tacit agreement, 'Do not mix in American affairs and I will not mix in affairs outside America,' and gave us the right to set up a doctrine of a Greater Germany against that of a Greater America. European interests, and with them the German, lie in America in case we have the power to support them effectively. We shall not forbear to accustom America to this point of view."

"It depends on the political situation when German diplomacy shall hold the time fit to put a value on the Germans of Venezuela and their interests by taking possession of a harbor. . . . and thus do the cause of peace and the development of the country the best service. . . . But nothing can be done and German emigration should not be directed to South America unless the question whether Germany means simply to obey the American order or heads off in South America is first answered in the negative."

[Freiherr von Edelsheim, a second lieutenant in the service of the German General Staff in 1901, when he wrote these words.] "Operations against the United States of North America must be entirely different. With that country, in particular, political friction, manifest in commercial aims, has not been lacking in recent years, and has until now been removed chiefly through acquiescence on our part. However, as this submission has its limit, the question arises as to what means we can develop to carry out our purpose with force in order to combat the encroachments of the United States upon our interests. Our main factor is our fleet. . . . It is evident, then, that a naval war against the United States can not be carried on with success without at the same time inaugurating action on land. . . . It is almost a certainty, however, that a victorious assault on the Atlantic coast, trying up the importing and exporting business of the whole country, would bring about such an annoying situation that the government would be willing to treat for peace.

"If the German invading force were equipped and ready for transporting the moment the battle fleet is dispatched under average conditions these corps can begin operations on American soil within four weeks. . . . The United States at this time (1901) is not in a position to oppose our troops with an army of equal rank."

"The fact that one or two of her provinces are occupied by the invaders would not alone move the Americans to sue for peace. To accomplish this end the invaders would have to injure real material damage, by injuring the whole country through the successful seizure of many of the Atlantic seaports in which the threads of the entire wealth of the nation meet. It should be so managed that a line of land operations would be in close juncture with the fleet, through which we would be in a position to seize in a short time many of these important and rich cities, to interrupt their means of supply, disorganize all governmental affairs, assume control of all useful buildings, confiscate all war and transport supplies, and lastly, to impose heavy indemnities. . . ."

"As a matter of fact, Germany is the only great power which is in a position to conquer the United States."

[Kaiser's speech, June 16, 1896.] "The German Empire has become a world empire. Everywhere in distant quarters of the earth thousands of our countrymen are living. German guardians of the sea, German science, German industry, are going across the sea. The value of what Germany has upon the sea amounts to thousands of millions. It is your earnest duty, gentlemen, to help bind this greater German Empire firmly to our ancestral home. . . . It is my wish that, standing in closest union, you help me to do my duty not only to my countrymen in a narrower sense, but also to the many thousands of countrymen in foreign lands. This means that I may be able to protect them if I must."

Get Out and Command. These are the words of Judge of Probate. FLINT, Register.

New Christmas Service— The Gift-Plan Bureau

For many years in the home of a certain man (large giver of gifts)—it has been the custom for the children (and even the older members of the family) to hang in conspicuous places Christmas lists of wished-for things, each list signed by some member of the household. From these lists the gifts are chosen and interchanged in the family, each one receiving just the gift that is wanted.

There are no misfit gifts in that family.

We undertake to extend this plan to the public, making inquiries for you of your relatives and friends.

We all know how perplexed we become in the Christmas season to know what to give. Our friends and relatives are up to the same mental and physical efforts, and after Christmas we all find, alas! that many guesses have proved wrong or maybe many duplicate gifts are received.

A LITTLE CHRISTMAS FAIRY

Wouldn't it be fine if there were that would give us the information we desire, and yet keep our secret from those we wish to remember?

This is just what the Healy Gift Bureau undertakes to do. The method is simple. This is all one needs to do to get the gift. Give us the names and addresses of friends or relatives to whom you wish to give presents, but are not sure of the gifts they would most prefer. We then write and ask them for this information, keeping your name secret. Upon receipt of their answer we notify you that the information may be obtained at the Gift-Plan Bureau. When purchases are made, check them on the slip, and return the slip to the Gift-Plan Bureau, so that duplicates will not be sent by other inquiring persons.

No longer must Christmas giving remain a guessing contest.

No longer need any one give misfit gifts.

No longer need anyone remain ignorant of what is wanted.

FOR THE CHILDREN

The Gift-Plan Bureau operates under the direction of Santa Claus. For ages, children have been writing to Santa Claus.

SANTA CLAUS WRITES TO THE CHILDREN

Upon the request of any adult person, giving us the name of a child to whom gift is to be given at Christmas, Santa Claus will send a letter to that child, telling what gifts are wished for. This will bring in return, a letter to Santa Claus from the child, giving a list of gifts. This list is turned over to the parent, relative or friend who wishes to make the gift.

OF COURSE

Of course in all instances the Gift-Plan Bureau undertakes only to secure the information desired, and can give no assurance that the gift will be made. But it believes that inquiries will be made only in good faith, and that the service of the Bureau will not be used to mislead.

The service is absolutely free and imposes no obligations to purchase the gifts in this store.

Michigan may "point with pride" to the fact that only six hunters were killed this year during the deer hunting season, instead of the usual 12 or 15, and only two of the half-dozen were "bagged" by other hunters as supposed deer.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. McCullough at-

Asa Whipple, although he has a

The Robert Thompson farm, just

Ed Forsyth lost his bay driving horse last week. The animal was shot twice by hunters, in the leg and hip, and it was necessary to kill it.
The animal was in a field about 40 yards from the house when the injury was discovered. On account of being shot twice, it looks like a case of the animal being used for a target by some drunken hunters, rather than a mere accident.—Holly Herald.

The council passed an ordinance believe, did a wise thing in providing salaries for the future.

UNION LABOR COUNTRY'S AID

Head of Vast Organization of Workers Tells of Good Accomplished.

RALLIED TO PATRIOTIC DUTY

With War Incentive, Co-Operation Between Employers and Employees.
Has Become More Marked—Fair Principles Now Universally Established.

By SAMUEL GOMPERS.

Labor's great increase in strength is evidenced whether we measure it by the growth in membership to more than two and a half millions; by the great extension of industrial activities in which union scales and conditions are obligatory, by the government's ever-increasing recognition of organized labor, or by the degree of solidarity.

It is no exaggeration to say there never has been in all labor history such a rapid extension of the principles and practices of industrial democracy as since the United States was forced to enter the world conflict.

And, mark this point—in every case this extension has been made not to impede the nation's war preparations but to accelerate them by promoting co-operation between employers and labor. The initiative in this extension of democracy to industry has been taken by organized labor, but its wisdom has in every instance appealed to federal officials.

In four great branches—shipbuilding, cantment construction, mercantile marine and longshore work—agreements have been perfected between the government, the employers and labor to safeguard even the unorganized men. These agreements have government sanction because of an ever-growing realization of the necessity not only for industrial stability, but for a proper standard of living as the basis for efficiency.

Already the eight-hour law for government contracts has greatly extended the eight-hour day, for in many branches there is hardly a firm not working on government contract.

Although many establishments are now working nine or ten hours, the basic eight-hour day is in effect and the payment of time and a half for overtime beyond eight hours is a sufficient check on the employment of men more than eight hours, except in cases of genuine emergency such as the present.

I predict the war's end will find the eight-hour day practically universal in American industry, as the result not of any spectacular "general strike," but of the recognition, at the insistence of organized labor, that in the long run more and better work can be produced in eight hours than in any longer period.

There is a rapidly growing recognition that workers are the true basis of national strength. If labor's hand is not strong, skillful and willing not a ship will sail, not a gun will roar.
Through this recognition labor will assume a new status in the nation's councils.

Some of our American "bolshheviks" of the Socialist party, of the so-called People's council and other similar irresponsible, undertook a campaign to swerve American labor from the standard of loyalty to self and country.

Their futile efforts have only demonstrated that among all the millions of American workers there were only a handful mean or silly enough to join the traitorous plan.

If cannot too often be emphasized that American workmen are concerned in this great struggle not only as Americans, but as workers. They must help destroy Hohenzollernism, not only because it menaced America and democracy, but because the workers more than any other class stand to suffer by the triumph of Prussianism.

To the capitalist it need matter little in what country he lives, his wealth exalts him above the laws and political government of any country.

With the worker the existence of a military absolutism is of daily concern. Whether he is the slave of the state, as in Prussia, or whether the state is his servant, determines his whole existence. Therefore labor has mobilized for an early and lasting peace.

It must be recognized, however, that labor's unswerving loyalty is not maintained without sacrifice. Not only have the men of labor gone forth as soldiers, not only have they redoubled their efforts in mine and factory, but at the same time they have had to see their families suffer through price increases far beyond any increase in their earnings. Already the standard of living has been reduced far below what is necessary to maintain their energy unimpaired. All this labor has borne with wonderful patience.

The toilers of America are willing to make sacrifices, but they must be sacrifices for the republic and not for private profit.

Labor is with the government in this war because we know the government is with labor to a degree surpassing any other administration. We believe, as we know, that the wise, good-hearted man in the White House will not endure abuses, but will descend upon the war profiteers and put an end to their pernicious practices.

The "First" 500 club was very pleasantly entertained Monday evening by Miss Carrie Simmons.

The New England supper at the Presbyterian church Tuesday evening was largely attended and much enjoyed, the social as well as the excellent culinary part. A number of the guests were in old fashioned costume, as requested, and numerous striking effects were in evidence, as well as some very pretty outfits of various chronological interest. W.
E. Scotten, C. L. Debnar and Harold Belles were the gentlemen who monopolized the admiration of the company of sartorial elegance, and columns of description would not do justice to the effect produced by at least two of them. The ladies' costumes were "too numerous to mention" in a brief space.

"Shure" came the hearty reply;
"there's a couple of drinks in it."

THE DEEP SEA PERIL

By VICTOR ROUSSEAU

(Copyright by W. G. Chapman)

"Now, my plan is this: We must leave the airlock one by one, with rather a light weight of metal on our feet—calculated to enable us to walk, and yet not to keep us down. We shall then simply climb the slopes of Fair Island under the water."

"I think it is the only feasible plan, sir," said Davies briskly.

"How do you feel about it, Ida?" asked Donald in a low tone.

Ida put her hand into his. "I am ready to do anything you wish, Donald, dear," she answered.

"I'll answer for the lady with my own life, sir," said Clouts heartily.

"Then we're decided," said Donald.

"Now, follow me in single file, hands on the shoulders of the one in front of you. All ready?"

He led the way through the darkness, down the ladder at the base of the conning tower toward the storage room in which the diving apparatus was kept. Then he lit a candle.

The Siebert apparatus possesses the merit of simplicity. Donald, as he adjusted it on each with the aid of Davies, did not think it necessary to explain the mechanism. It consisted, first, of a waterproof uniform, then of a glass mask and copper cylinder, the latter covering the upper part of the body and fastening about the shoulders. It contained a supply of compressed oxygen for several hours. The carbonic acid exhaled passed into a receptacle containing caustic soda, which purified it, thus liberating the oxygen, while the nitrogen could be inhaled over and over again.

There was also a single sleeve attached by wires to a little storage battery worn on the neck, in which, when the apparatus had been properly adjusted, a small electric light could be made to burn by the pressure of a button.

They waited a moment while Ida put on the waterproof uniform; then all followed suit. Donald and Davies dressed themselves after Clouts, and attached the weights about the feet of each and to their own. Finally, when all were in readiness, Donald snuffed the candle and lit his electric lamp, which was inclosed in a specially devised glass, calculated to resist a great pressure.

Each of the party was now seated from all sound. They saw each other's faces very dimly through the glass masks.

Donald indicated to Davies that he was to bring up the rear, his hands upon the shoulders of Sam Clouts in front of him. He placed Ida in front of Clouts, and raising her hands, put them upon his own shoulders, himself leading the procession.

He made his way into the conning tower again. He opened the inner chamber of the airlock, admitting Ida and himself, and closed it again. He knew that Clouts and Davies could take care of themselves.

The airlock, built to be used for escape in just such an emergency, was meant for one temporary tenant alone. But two could just manage to squeeze in, and Ida could not have undertaken the plunge alone.

They were breathing the stored oxygen within the copper cylinders. They were safe for the present. The transit was not especially perilous in itself, but there were dangers to face—the possibility of being too heavily weighted and sinking into the ooze; that of being too light and losing balance. These had to be met.

Through the glass mask Donald saw Ida's face. She was composed, and, in spite of the distorting medium, he was sure that he saw a look of trustful love in her eyes.

He started the compressed-air apparatus to keep the sea water out of the lock, and opened the outer door. They looked into the nothingness of the ocean bottom. The well of inkly water was hardly illumined by the faint light that shone from their sleeve-lamps.

Donald pressed Ida's hand. He felt her fingers flutter in his. She understood what she was to do. She placed her head and shoulders within the aperture.

Donald raised her feet and pushed her into the sea. He saw the sign of water slowly her.

And, choking down his fears, he plunged in after her.

CHAPTER IX.

On the Sea Floor.

He struggled for balance as the sea depths enveloped him. He groped in the water as in a fog. The swirl of bubbling air from the oxygen apparatus in the lock carried him some distance from the submarine, and then he felt himself sinking.

He sank very slowly, and as he sank he groped for Ida. He could not find her. The submarine had disappeared completely.

He waded to and fro clumsily. He was like a dead man who wakes in an uninhabited purgatory of desolation. There was nothing anywhere—nothing. Only the yielding water, at which his fingers clutched fruitlessly.

He began to walk for six paces in every direction, calculating that in this way he could bound a parallelogram and return to his starting point. But he saw nothing, and he did not know that he had returned to the place from which he had set out.

He started wildly backward, believing that the submarine lay behind him. As he walked, dragging his weight like a convict's chain and ball, suddenly the outlines of the F55 appeared before him.

He realized that she was lying with her bow higher than her stern. At once, he grasped the situation. She had sunk with her bow toward land, and from this end, therefore, he must start on the ascent of Fair Island's subterranean base.

And this discovery renewed his courage. Of course, the others were endeavoring to make the ascent, while he had gone floundering in the wrong direction, downward toward the heart of the crater.

He made his way parallel with the submarine's bow, keeping well within sight of the elusive craft, which would disappear momentarily before his eyes and suddenly appear again, almost within arm's reach. Suddenly he stopped. He stared at the oozy floor. His light had cast his shadow in front of him.

But that was impossible. It was no shadow. It was a flattened man, a dwarfish figure, ridiculously misproportioned, resembling an image seen in a curved mirror. It approached slowly and uncertainly. For a moment Donald felt his heart stand still with fear. It was a nightmare figure, terror incarnate. A little glow flashed from its arm. They drew together.

They stood looking at each other, peering through their thick masks.

Donald pushed Ida before him and fled out of the cave until he trod upon the ocean ooze again. And they continued to crawl at the bottom of the sea, two helpless human creatures, unbelievably helpless, while around them the fierce, predatory swarms sought their diurnal food.

Donald had found the slope of the island when the water began to grow thick again.

Presently a phosphorescent patch appeared in the distance. It became less hazy, it seemed to concentrate. The ocean suddenly became like transparent jelly.

And, facing him, Donald saw the outline of one of the sea monsters, visible now and horribly magnified. The eyes opened upon his own. They were not curranlike in that medium, but expanded to the full, great orbs like sunflowers that glowered on their prospective prey, larger than the eyes of any beast created since leviathan and behemoth.

However, the creature made no move toward him as Donald, almost paralyzed, remained confronting it. He saw the gorilla form, with its short, budding limbs, the trunk of gorilla's thickness, the narrow flippers, and the triangular head.

He felt as some primeval man might have done when he looked into the face of the mastodon.

The creature did not pursue him, but stood, swaying gently, dreadfully human. Donald snatched at Ida and tried to run. He tripped and fell.

He dragged himself to his feet again. He became aware of a barrier between the monster and himself, which had, perhaps, saved them. He had stumbled upon a spiny substance, a coralloid growth that proved to be the outpost of a submarine forest. "It was a field of crinoids, the yellow lilies of the sea."

Beautiful plants with branching arms, they bent and swayed before Donald's eyes as they drew in the minute forms of life on which they subsisted. They were vegetable octopods; carnivorous scavengers of the deep, which feasted on the small fish that they entangled in their waving branches, and drew by the ciliary movements of the lining of their tentacles toward the central stomach.

Donald saw one of the waving arms sweep down toward him. He tore at it with his fingers. To his surprise, the brittle branch broke loose and settled slowly in the ooze, there to become the embryo of a plant. From every quarter the tentacles, as if apprized of their presence, came swooping slowly toward them.

Donald saw Ida grasped in their clinging clutch. Madly he tore at the graceful, shrinking forms, until he had cloven a wide swath before him, and the arms, baited and baffled of their prey, withdrew.

Argentine's Wheat Crop.

Reports from the Argentine state that weather conditions are ideal for the growth of wheat. The official preliminary estimate is for a crop of 240,000,000 bushels. The large crop of 1915-16 was 173,000,000 bushels, and the average for the five preceding years was 149,000,000 bushels. Domestic requirements are about 70,000,000 bushels. The large crop now growing will be available some time after January 1 if transportation is furnished.

The Argentine oats crop is estimated at 88,000,000 bushels, or 12,000,000 bushels more than the crop of 1915, of which 37,000,000 bushels were exported.

He struggled for balance as the sea depths enveloped him. He groped in the water as in a fog. The swirl of bubbling air from the oxygen apparatus in the lock carried him some distance from the submarine, and then he felt himself sinking.

He sank very slowly, and as he sank he groped for Ida. He could not find her. The submarine had disappeared completely.

He waded to and fro clumsily. He was like a dead man who wakes in an uninhabited purgatory of desolation. There was nothing anywhere—nothing. Only the yielding water, at which his fingers clutched fruitlessly.

He began to walk for six paces in every direction, calculating that in this way he could bound a parallelogram and return to his starting point. But he saw nothing, and he did not know that he had returned to the place from which he had set out.

He started wildly backward, believing that the submarine lay behind him. As he walked, dragging his weight like a convict's chain and ball, suddenly the outlines of the F55 appeared before him.

He realized that she was lying with her bow higher than her stern. At once, he grasped the situation. She had sunk with her bow toward land, and from this end, therefore, he must start on the ascent of Fair Island's subterranean base.

And this discovery renewed his courage. Of course, the others were endeavoring to make the ascent, while he had gone floundering in the wrong direction, downward toward the heart of the crater.

He made his way parallel with the submarine's bow, keeping well within sight of the elusive craft, which would disappear momentarily before his eyes and suddenly appear again, almost within arm's reach. Suddenly he stopped. He stared at the oozy floor. His light had cast his shadow in front of him.

But that was impossible. It was no shadow. It was a flattened man, a dwarfish figure, ridiculously misproportioned, resembling an image seen in a curved mirror. It approached slowly and uncertainly. For a moment Donald felt his heart stand still with fear. It was a nightmare figure, terror incarnate. A little glow flashed from its arm. They drew together.

They stood looking at each other, peering through their thick masks.

Donald pushed Ida before him and fled out of the cave until he trod upon the ocean ooze again. And they continued to crawl at the bottom of the sea, two helpless human creatures, unbelievably helpless, while around them the fierce, predatory swarms sought their diurnal food.

Donald had found the slope of the island when the water began to grow thick again.

The woman's bureau of the American Red Cross has issued a very helpful leaflet for the benefit of those who are willing to sew for hospitals. Under the head of "Hospital Garments and Supplies" this circular enumerates the various kinds of garments and hospital linen that are needed, and tabulates the ratio of these needs—that is, tells what things are needed in large quantities and what in smaller quantities. The Red Cross gathered its information first hand from American and French hospitals, co-operating with the Red Cross commission in Paris. It seems that the needs of American and French hospitals vary a little, but not in many particulars.

The circular says: "Anticipating the severe cold of the winter in France, the report emphasizes the need of warm materials, such as outing flannels, heavy bath robes, etc. for hospital garments. Models for garments were sent to the woman's bureau by the committee in Paris and were given to the standard pattern companies, which agreed to issue patterns in strict conformity with them, so that the woman who wishes to make any of the needed garments may get a correct pattern from any one of the prominent pattern companies. The garments which will probably be needed in largest quantities are pajamas and hospital bed shirts. Pajamas should be made of flannel or good outing flannel, for winter use. The patterns for all garments are issued in two sizes, medium and large. 'For American hospitals two medium-sized garments should be made to every one of large size; for French hospitals, no large sizes are needed.' The same kind of garments and other articles are wanted by both American and French hospitals."

When making pajamas for French hospitals select dark colors, those for American hospitals may be made in either dark or light colors. Patterns for the following articles are now ready:

Pajamas—For winter: Use flannel or outing flannel.

Hospital Bed Shirts—For winter: Use Canton flannel or twill, good quality.

Bath Robes and Conspicuous Robes—For winter: Use heavy bath robes. Bed Jackets—Use bath robes or other warm, soft material.

Conspicuous Suits (lined pajamas)—Use outing flannel of dark, plain color for outside and white for lining. Blue lined with white, with which a red tie can be worn especially desirable.

Bed Socks—Use flannel or outing flannel.

Undershirts—Use lightweight flannel or flannelette in white.

Underdrawers—Use white outing flannel or unbleached muslin.

Bandaged Foot Socks—Use outing flannel, preferably dark, lined with white.

Specific directions for packing and shipping boxes containing garments and hospital supplies will be given in a future article. These boxes are to be shipped to chapters or division supply depots of the Red Cross. When possible each box shipped should be filled with only one kind of garments or supplies.

Decide upon the kind of garment or garments you are willing to make and specialize on these, by confining yourself to one or two garments you can become expert in making them and also build up a fine record of contributions. Pajamas and bed socks are a good combination.

Trench Coats the Latest Fad

Lucille started the ball rolling when she made that altogether captivating suit for the altogether captivating Mary Pickford. It is of khaki-colored cloth and has small flap-pockets at each side of the coat—miniatures of those on the regulation army coat. And it is brightened by whole companies of small, round, steel buttons. They fasten down the pocket flaps and appear in precise rows on the sleeves. Altogether it is a work of art calculated to make a woman loose her head and buy it whether she needs it or not—or was it calculated to make a man lose his heart? Anyway it looks as genuinely military as Mary Pickford's curls and just as adorable. It is a purely feminine interpretation of army clothes—a figurative kiss blown to the colors.

But, for real service and warmth, a coat follows in its wake, called a "trench coat" with good reason. It is of heavy warm cloth in khaki color, has large flap pockets at each side, a belt of the material, that fastens through a trench buckle. There are capacious, practical pockets in the skirt portion and a warm muffler collar. It fastens to the left with bone buttons of a substantial thickness and strain-resisting size. All the requirements of a sturdy winter coat are filled in this latest effort of the coat-maker and more than this. As the uniform of every soldier proclaims his sentiments and his allegiance so the trench coat speaks the mind of its wearer. It appeals to the eternal feminine because it is becoming and it is also picturesque. It is just the garment for the woman who intends to keep busy doing whatever comes to hand to do, in any kind of weather, during the coming winter, and there are always so many things waiting for the charitable to do.

One look at the trench coat is convincing; it may be used for driving the motorcar and anywhere else where real service and comfort are called for. Thanks be, its designer has given us these together with a snappy and definite style that is enough to stiffen the backbone of any ease-loving slacker.

DAIRY

HANDLING MILK IN WINTER

Many Farmers Relax Vigilance in Cold Weather and Low Grade of Milk is Produced.

Many farmers who pay strict attention to the correct handling of their milk and cream during the hot weather relax their vigilance during the winter. The result is that good milk is produced during that part of the year when good milk is difficult to produce and a low grade of milk when it is naturally easy to produce good. Too much dependence should not be placed on the natural coolness of the atmosphere, for the chances are that this will not suffice. It is a noted fact that during the fall and early winter purchasers of milk often find it more difficult to keep the product from getting sour than they do during the hot weather.

Milk should be cooled to at least 50 degrees F. immediately upon being drawn from the can and kept at that temperature until used. If the ordinary coolness of the atmosphere is depended upon for this, it may be hours before the milk reaches the required temperature, and in the meantime microbes have been multiplying which in a short time will render the milk unfit for use. To produce first-class milk the same care is demanded in the winter months as during the summer, cleanliness and a correct temperature being of cardinal importance at all times.

GIVE SORE TEATS ATTENTION

Where Trouble Results From Improper Milking Ointment Made of Zinc and Vaseline.

When cows have sore teats caused by improper milking, applying an ointment made from 1 dram of oxide of zinc and 1 ounce of vaseline applied when the soreness is first apparent will probably be sufficient. If the teats break out in pimples which form scabs it is in all probability a case of cow pox, in which case the affected cows should be isolated from the remainder of the herd and due precaution taken to prevent the spread of the disease, which is very contagious and can be carried to other cows in the herd on the hands or clothes of the milker. Treatment consists in applying three times a day, an ointment made by mixing together 4 drams of boric acid, 20 drops of carbolic acid.

WORD FOR BROWN SWISS COW

Animals Are Remarkably Strong, Healthy and Larger, and Coarser Than Other Dairy Breeds.

Brown Swiss cattle, as the name indicates, originated in Switzerland. They are remarkably strong, healthy animals, larger and coarser than any other dairy breed. While many individuals have made excellent dairy and milk records, the total number of the breed in this country is small and it has not, therefore, been as important a factor in the dairy industries here as it has been in Switzerland. The number of animals is rapidly increasing, and the breed is receiving more attention from dairymen.

CREAM THIEVES ARE FOUND

Minnesota Official Finds That 44 Farmers in Nine Associations Have Defective Machines.

"Have you a cream thief on your farm?" is a pertinent question at the head of a circular being sent out by W. A. McKerrrow of the agricultural extension division of the University of Minnesota.

In answer to the question, Mr. McKerrrow says that 44 farmers in 9 cow-testing associations in Minnesota did have cream thieves, or separators that waste butterfat. Out of 170 separators tested it was found that one in five was stealing from its owner.

To prove up on your separator, it is suggested that you take a sample of your skin milk from the spout and have it tested at your creamery or at the college of agriculture. There is no possible excuse for cream separator losses.

SAVE TROUBLE IN CHURNING

Give Cows One Pound of Cottonseed Meal Each Day and Butter Will Increase in Quality.

If farmers who have trouble churning will give their cows one pound of cottonseed meal daily with their bran or chop they will have no more churning troubles. The butter will increase in quantity and quality and color and come so quickly as to surprise one.

A Thrilling War Story of the North Atlantic

CHAPTER XXVI.

We Sight a Boat.

What immediately followed; how we made ourselves shipshape the best we could, and held on for the next few hours, has comparatively little to do with the interest of this story. Leayord brought the two men on deck, and as Dade was no sailor, but more likely to prove faithful, he was sent down the ladder to assist Masters in the fire-room. Dugan took the change in administration aboard with sea-going philosophy, seemingly feeling no animosity because of the rough handling received, and went to work under my orders with hearty good will. We were all four of us capable seamen, and an hour of hard work placed the Indian Chief in very fair condition, so far as deck and running rigging was concerned. At the end, however, standing on the fore-castle, and staring aft, I had faith that we could handle the hooker, even with that small crew, and bring her safely into the harbor of St. John's. Our earlier weather predictions were not yet verified, at least to any serious extent. Indeed, there was nothing particular to worry about, excepting that temporary steering apparatus, and it had worked long enough now so as to give me confidence.

"What do you make of it, Mr. Leayord?" I questioned, indicating both sea and sky by a wave of the hand. "Was it a circular storm leaving us outside of its radius?" "No, sir; it's not that," and he drew the back of his hand across his lips. "Dugan and I talked about it on the mainyard yonder, and 'tis our judgment, sir, that it's just a slow brooder. There won't be no quick change, but the weather 'll just gradually get heavier until we're scuddin' under bare poles. It'll be maybe tomorrow night before we gets its full weight."

"But you have no doubt we'll weather it?" "Barin' an accident. When do you expect to make that port, sir?" "St. John's." Well, we're a bit off our course now. I'm afraid we may be another night aloft."

He stood motionless, one hand shadowing his eyes, as he gazed out over the port rail. "I was a thinkin' o' them poor cusses out there in the boats, sir," he said finally. "I'm bettin' that most o' them wish they was back on this deck by now."

"No doubt; but there's no way we can help them, and we've got our own work to do. You and Olson go below."

"Yes if—If you think it best. I am so tired—the strain of it; the fear I could not hold out."

"I know." I bent and kissed her, and she clung to me. "But do not think of that any longer; you must go to your room at once and lie down."

"But you will stay on deck all night?" "Not unless the storm increases. In an hour or so I'll call the others, and lie down myself. Come, dear, you belong down in the watch below."

That certainly seemed a lonely deck after she had disappeared down the ladder. I had served many a quiet watch at sea, many a memorable one, but that hour taught me the real lesson of loneliness. We were driving forward recklessly into a wall of darkness, utterly impenetrable to the eye. What horror might be lurking just ahead of the plunging bow, no imagination could picture. From where I stood, clutching the spokes of the wheel, I could not even trace the yards of the mainmast, nor could I perceive on either side the water through which we drove. Yet it was not this which pulled so at my nerve. I had stood at the wheel often, before guiding a great ship through impenetrable darkness, and amid the intensity of the ocean. But then I was alone, alert and ready, merely performing my part of a given task. But now I could not drive from me the consciousness that I stood there alone; that on all that space of deck forward only one solitary man crouched in the blackness; that below in the engine-room, and stokehole, only two more, already worn and weary with toil, stuck grimly to their work; that under my control this great freighter, loaded almost to the deck beams, was flying before the storm, plunging through the wild waters of the mid-Atlantic, with death hovering above in the shriek of the storm. Yet I clung to it grimly, no longer making any attempt to hold any settled course, but merely choosing the easier way in which to meet the force of the storm.

It was two o'clock when, too thoroughly wearied to stand the strain longer, I sent Dugan below to call the mates. Leayord was the heavier man, and the more experienced sailor; so, at my suggestion, he took the wheel, while Olson went forward. I can recall creeping down the ladder, and staggering down the stairs, but nothing more. I must have been asleep even before I reached the berth in the captain's stateroom.

A hand shook me, and I opened my eyes. For an instant I was too dazed to comprehend. The port was closed, but daylight streamed through the thick glass illuminating the stateroom, and I recognized Olson bending over me.

"I had to call you, sir," he explained kindly. "The main royal has broke loose, an' it'll take all hands ter stow it again in this wind; besides that feller Dugan he's gin out entirely, an' there's got ter be another hand sent below to the stokehole."

I sat up, already thoroughly awake. "What time is it?" "Goin' on half after four, sir."

"Why I thought I had just dropped off. Any increase in the weight of the gale, Olson?" "No, sir; I don't think the wind is quite so heavy, and it's gettin' more steadylike; but there's considerable sea."

"I can tell that the way the ship pitches; she's taking water forward."

"Tons o' it; the damned hooker is loaded so deep she's more like a wharf than a ship."

It was a wild scene enough when I emerged from the companion and paused a moment in the protection of the cabin to view the deck forward. Huge crested waves burst over the fore-castle heads, cascading down onto the main deck, and sweeping aft to the scuppers amidships. The vessel staggered under the repeating blows, yet recovered with a buoyancy which gave me renewed courage, plunging forward again to meet the next assault. The continuous boom as they struck against our bows, the mad flapping of the loosened canvas aloft, the ceaseless shrieking of the cordage, made a pandemonium of noise which rendered the human voice almost useless. I put my lips to Olson's ear.

"Can the three of us pass those gaskets?" "It's got to be done, sir, unless we let the sail go; but it's gain' to be no boy's job."

"Where's Dugan?" "Hangin' there to the shrouds, a waitin' for us."

"Then come on; the sooner it's over with, the better."

We went up the ratlines like snails every burst of wind driving us flat against the ropes, where we hung on grimly. Dugan was first to lay out upon the footropes, and I felt no regret when Olson slipped past me in the top, bawling in my ear:

"Let me go next, sir, you haven't been at this sort o' job lately."

However, I made it in my turn, the wind driving me flat against the spar, the footrope dancing madly beneath my weight, the flapping canvas of the loosened sail as stiff as iron. Dugan had the worst of it, but he clung there like a cat, stubbornly fighting inch by inch as he drew in the cloth. He must have had the strength of a giant, and the grip of a vise. It was a ten-minute battle, and when I got safely back into the maintop every muscle of my body throbbed with pain, and I sank down against the mast, struggling to regain my strength. I had my head buried in my arm, conscious only of the wild leaping of the mast, and the sickening sensation caused by its constant swaying, when Dugan's shout sent the blood pounding to my heart. He stood right, clinging to a stay, staring forth into the smother-off the port bow.

"Look, sir! There's a boat!" See, yonder; she'll top the crest in a second—there!

THE MELLOW MARSHMALLOW.

Many a common dish is changed into a most tasty one by the addition of a few marshmallows. Drop in the cut-up marshmallows while heating the icing for the cake; they will melt entirely if fresh and make most delicious frosting. To make pudding sauces, melt them in a little grape juice if the sauce is to be served with a fig or plum pudding, a little vanilla if used with prune or date or with gingerbread.

Cream pie, chocolate pie or custard is made quite elegant by decorating the top with quartered or whole marshmallows just before putting on the meringue.

An apple pie made of thickened apple sauce covered with marshmallows instead of a meringue is both delicious and pleasing to the eye. The pie should be set in the oven to puff and brown the mallow before serving.

Fudge, cream candy and boiled icing stay moist longer and are creamier if marshmallows are added to them.

In any candy they may be dropped in and stirred until dissolved while the candy is cooking.

Delightful margarites are made by putting a marshmallow, dented in the center, where a bit of butter, a nut or a bit of dried fruit may be placed, all on a round cracker, browned in the oven.

When serving children cocoa, a marshmallow pleases them better than cream for a garnish to the cup of cocoa or chocolate.

A boiled custard is improved by adding a handful of marshmallows to the custard when cooking.

Gingerbread cut in squares while hot with a fork, the pieces broken open and a marshmallow placed sandwich fashion in each, then set in the oven to melt, served with whipped cream and a cup of tea, makes a most delectable cake for an afternoon tea.

Dates and prunes stuffed with marshmallows add variety. Mixed with various fruits, a bit of salted dressing and whipped cream, makes a salad hard to equal for deliciousness.

WHOLESOME DISHES.

When roasting mutton, lamb, or in fact any good-sized cut of meat, if one uses a sharp knife, making soft pockets to insert bits of fat, onion, garlic, pepper, or other seasoning, the meat will be much better seasoned than with the usual over method which is too apt to overseason the gravy.

Corn Chowder.—Take an inch thick slice of fat salt pork, and one small onion, one and a half cupsful of corn, one and a fourth cupsful of sliced potatoes, a fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper, one and a half cupsful of hot milk, two tablespoonsful of butter and a teaspoonful of salt. Cut the pork in bits and cook in a frying pan until brown and all the fat is tried out, add the onion and cook it until yellow. Pour boiling water over the potatoes and cook five minutes; then drain. Pour a cupful and a half of boiling water on the onion and pork and simmer 20 minutes, strain this water over the potatoes and cook until they are nearly done, then add the corn, milk and butter with seasoning. Serve very hot with crackers that have been soaked in boiling water, then added to the chowder. Codfish may be used in place of the corn, or in fact any fresh cooked fish.

Graham Cracker Cake.—Take one and a fourth cupsful of sugar, one and a half cupsful of sour milk, two tablespoonsful of butter, two eggs, a teaspoonful of salt and the same of soda, with 32 graham crackers rolled very fine. Mix and bake in two layers. Use lemon filling.

Chicken Croquettes.—Make nice, shapely cakes of well-seasoned mashed potato, cook until brown in hot fat. Remove to a hot platter, make a deep depression in each, fill with hot minced and well seasoned chicken, sprinkle with buttered bread crumbs or rice, egg yolks for a garnish.

Boiled rice with tomato, chopped green pepper, a little onion added to a very small amount of meat, will make a most filling main dish. Bake in the oven until thoroughly heated through.

Creamed Potatoes.—The very best creamed potatoes are prepared from the freshly cooked vegetable. Cut the potatoes in cubes and cook in boiling salted water. While they are cooking prepare a rich white sauce, using four tablespoonsful of butter and four of flour, cook until thick, then add a pint of milk, the richer the milk the better, the white sauce, season well, then stir in the well-drained potatoes, piping hot. Grated cheese or onion juice may be added if desired. Mixing the hot potatoes in the seasoned sauce, they are better seasoned than the cold potatoes will be when added.

Huge, Crested Waves Burst Over the Fore-castle Head.

ing spray—but could not be sure of what it was.

"Are you certain it is a boat?" I questioned. "The thing had no shape to me. What do you say, Olson?"

"A boat, sir; there was a ship o' sail hoisted; it's my notion she's moved to ridin' to a drag. There she is again!"

Aye, I got a fair view that time, as the cockle-shell was thrown high up on the crest of the wave. It was sickening to see that black object hurled high up against the sky, and then disappear utterly into the hollow. The boat must be hoisted; there would be no living otherwise in that sea, and the very fact that it remained aloft was evidence of sailors aboard. I drew myself to my feet, clinging with one hand to a stay hollowing the other to make my voice reach the deck below.

"Mr. Leayord!"

"Aye, aye, sir."

"There is a small boat off the port quarter, riding to a drag."

"A what, sir?"

"A ship's boat off the port quarter—too far away to tell what's aboard her. Can you let her head fall off a point?"

"Not without another hand at the wheel; it takes all my strength to hold her as she is."

"Jump down, Dugan, and lay aft; we must get that boat to leeward, if we help those fellows in this sea."

"Aye, aye, sir."

He scrambled over the top, but Olson and I were content to use the lubber's hole; reaching the deck later, and glad enough to be there alive. I dived into the cabin after a glass, stopping long enough to explain what we had sighted to Vera, who appeared in her stateroom door, fully dressed.

"You have not been in bed?" I asked, indignantly.

"Oh, but I have; indeed I have. Why I must have slept four hours, but I lay down fully dressed. I—I didn't know what might happen. Could you see if there were men in the boat?"

"No, not to distinguish them with the naked eye; the glass will reveal that; but the boat must be occupied to keep afloat in this sea."

"Who can they be, do you suppose—shipwrecked sailors?"

"It would be my guess it will prove to be one of our own boats we've overhauled."

"But how could we?"

"The wind changed after midnight, and, with only the one hand at the wheel, we were obliged to pay off, and run before it. It is not impossible that we are back in almost the same section of sea where we left those fellows. Come up on deck, and we'll know shortly."

She went in for a wrap, but joined me almost immediately. I must have been five minutes locating the boat, yet finally caught it fairly on the crest of a wave. Even at that distance two recognized faces leaped instantly into the circle of vision—Liverpool and McCann.

"It's our own quarterboat," I announced shortly, endeavoring to keep my glasses trained on the right spot. "McCann, and those devils with him."

"Then, shall we stand by, sir?" asked Leayord. "Why should we be picking up that scum?"

I glanced aside at him.

"Why, Mr. Leayord? Well, one reason is, we are American seamen. Those fellows can scarcely hurt us now, and a hand or two more aboard will help us to make port. We've got to have foremen below, and Rapello would be able to spell Masters in the engine-room. I look on your coming as a God-send. Let your helm on another point—there, steady now; hold her just as she is."

Again I caught the boat in the focus of the leveled glasses; it was measurably nearer now, but I could only see four men aboard the craft, the other two being White and Rapello. The tiller was gone, the man at the stern, Jim White, steering by means of a long bar; the sail had been whipped into rags, and a canvas shirt substituted. One man was on his knees bailing furiously, and Tony had an arm in a sling. So intent was I in this endeavor to decipher the details of the tragedy through the glass, I was unaware that Vera had climbed the ladder, and now stood beside me, clinging to the rail. Her voice aroused me to her presence.

"Why, there are only four of them?" "Yes; they must have passed through Hades last night," I answered. "Here, take the glass, there are two bodies lying in the bottom of the boat."

"Can you manage the wheel alone for a bit, Mr. Leayord?"

"I can try, sir."

"Miss Carrington, would you mind giving the mate a hand?"

She fought her way across to him without a word, leaving the glass on the deck.

"Good; hold her as she is, and have Masters slow down. It is going to be a ticklish job to get those fellows on board; has anyone a suggestion?"

"A running noose from the lower main-yard, sir," said Olson.

"That will take only one at a time."

"Two, if they're quick enough about it; but it's the only way, sir. That boat wouldn't live a second close in alongside."

"Right you are; you and Dugan lay out on the yard and get the whip rigged; pick a strong cord and see that it fits the pulley block. I'll keep to the deck, and ease them in. Pass the end down to me; lively now."

Those in the boat saw what we were attempting, realizing at once that we meant to take them aboard. The relief felt was instantly expressed by the waving of hands, and a faint cry reached us across the water. McCann even endeavored to stand up, but was jerked down again. No doubt the recognition of the ship had left them in total despair of rescue, their one thought being that we would permit them to drift by, rather than take them aboard again. The gap between us slowly closed, I could see their faces clearly, uplifted in agonized appeal. They were haggard, crusted with salt, piteous enough in their silent pleading to make me forget the past.

"Boat ahoy!" I roared. "Keep well away from the side; we'll whip you in from the main yard. Have you oars?"

"One pair, sir."

It was Liverpool, and I was glad to note the tone of respect in his answer. "Then hold her back, and drift in slowly stern first; you get the idea. Are those dead men?"

"One of them is; Dubois has his leg broken."

"We'll send a sling down; put Dubois in first, and the rest of you stand by. Are you ready now?"

"Aye, aye, sir."

Olson joined me at the rope, Dugan remaining outstretched on the yard; the ship held motionless except for the rise and fall of the waves. The boat drifted cautiously in stern first, held by the two oars in the hands of Liverpool and White. The former roughly assumed command.

Mrs. Charles Cadwell has sold her home on Grand River road to Detroit parties and has bought a home in Northville, of which she will take possession soon. Mrs. Cadwell's friends here regret her departure.

The Record is informed by Mrs. Kate Simmons of Pontiac that reports which have been circulated alleging that Wallace Simmons had deserted from the Naval service of the U. S. are absolutely false. Mrs. Simmons states that she receives letters every few days from her son, who, she says, "has even acquired a liking for the sleeping hammocks, although during his first week in detention camp he fell out of one and broke his nose. He was first assistant, and is now mail clerk, with an assistant working under him." People who thoughtlessly credit and help to circulate such reports may thus do a terrible injustice to one who should receive all honor as a defender of his country. It would be very easy to write to the Great Lakes training station and find out the truth, for anyone not satisfied to believe good instead of evil reports.
