AMERICAN BELL & FOUNDRY COMPANY

TWENTIETH ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT ITS OFFICE LAST WEEK.

FRANK S. HARMON RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT-MANAGER; LARGEST YEAR SINCE ORGANIZATION.

The twentieth annual meeting of the American Bell & Foundry company which was held last week was important because of the fact that when the year was started in prospect for a successful year on account of the war conditions looked anything but favorable. Coke, iron and other materials had advanced in price beyond the thoughts of possibility and wages had necessarily advanced in keeping with material and living expenses. For instance, coke had gone from $4.00 a ton to more than double that amount. While iron had jumped from around $30 a ton to $50. Through the foresight of Manager Harmon however, the com-

FRANK S. HARMON

The man who has so successfully managed the American Bell & Foundry company's business for more than nineteen years pany had a considerable amount of material on hand that had been bought at much less than the advanced prices of the middle of the year.

As noted last week the company had a very good year, in fact so far as dollars and cents were concerned, was the largest year in the company's history. A dividend of 25% of the capital stock of $50,000 was declared and the officers and directors elected as follows:

President and Manager—Frank S. Harmon.
Vice-President—Chas. S. Filkins
Secretary—Frank S. Neal.
Treasurer—Robt. C. Yerkes
Clerk—William Phillips, Chas. H. Coldren, Spencer Clark.

Mr. Phillips had resigned as secretary on account of moving to Highland Park, an office which he had held since the organization of the company. Mr. Phillips now holds a good position with the Ford people in that city. President Harmon has announced the re-appointment of Ray Bogart as assistant manager and he will have charge as heretofore in Mr. Harmon's absence. Mr. Bogart has been a very faithful and efficient assistant and has shown splendid ability and success in his work. During Mr. Harmon's lengthy absence last year on account of ill health, Mr. Bogart was in full charge. Miss Hazel Bishop is another fixture who has been in the office as typist and book-keeper for a long and successful period and is booked for another year.

Charles Van Valkenburg will continue as the efficient superintendent of the foundry and James VanDyne as the valued head of the manufacturing department.

The success, remarkable success it may well be said, of the company, is chiefly attributed to the personal efforts of President Harmon and to his keen business ability and efficient management. For nineteen years the best efforts of his life have been given to the success of this concern. Even sometimes at the seeming cost of health, and many times surely at the cost of vacations and enjoyment, year after year, the best and uninterrupted efforts of his life have been given towards the furthering of the foundry's interest.

The American Bell & Foundry company was organized November 13, 1899, with something like twenty stockholders and with a capital of $13,000. The first officers, elected consisted of F. S. Harmon, L. A. Beal, C. S. Filkins, E. H. Lapham, R. C. Yerkes, Wm. Phillips, and Jas. Shaw. Four of the above directors are still serving in that capacity. Mr. Lapham retired from the board and as a stockholder some years ago when he moved to Detroit to take a position with the Union Trust company, and Jas. Shaw and L. A. Beal also disposed of their stock a number of years ago.

It was not at all easy to sell stock at the time of the organization of this company. The Globe Furniture company buildings then on the site now occupied by the Simpson Scale factory and the Bell Foundry molding rooms had been destroyed by Northville's greatest fire the previous May soon after the Globe company had been bought up by the Michigan School Furniture company. The trust had agreed to continue the Globe company's business and on an increased scale but after the fire the new concern simply took the insurance money and said there was no place in which to continue the business. Therefore for a time things did not look any too bright around the town. However the stock was taken and Mr. Harmon consented to be the manager, and, as has been stated above, from the first it proved under his direction to be a success. He gathered about him a valuable corps of laborers, superintendents and a capable office force, but his was the hand always at the helm. The best efforts of his life have been given to the success of this company and that the outcome so far has been far beyond expectations must be a source of some satisfaction and pride to himself as well as to his friends and Northville in general.

JOHNSON GETS ON 4 GOOD COMMITTEES

NORTHVILLE'S NEW MEMBER OF THE STATE LEGISLATURE FARES WELL.

LANDS PLACE ON IMPORTANT ROADS COMMITTEE; ALSO ON CAPITOL AND PUBLIC BUILDINGS.

Representative Milo N. Johnson, Northville's contribution from the Third district in the state legislature, has shared well for a first term and he starts out very nicely.

He has landed on four good committees by appointment of Speaker Reid. They are Roads and Bridges, Capitol and Public Buildings, Village Corporations, and Postoffice Asylum.

That of Roads and Bridges is of particular importance this year owing to the money proposed for expenditure on state highways in 1919, all of which will be first referred to this committee.

CUSTER SOLDIER SENDS MENU

Corporal Franklin W. VanValkenburg of Camp Custer rather resents the periodical propaganda that Uncle Sam's boys aren't properly provided for, etc., and, as a sample submits the following menus, which, though used some weeks ago, serve to show how the boys fared on Thanksgiving and Christmas, respectively.

Thanksgiving: "Celery, fresh potatoes, roast turkey, oyster dressing; giblet gravy, cranberry sauce, mashed potatoes, candied sweet potatoes; creamed peas; pumpkin pie, mince pie, cheese; chocolate cake, apples, bananas, oranges, coffee; jelly rolls, cigars, cigarettes."

HENRY HAS "SOME" NEWSPAPER STAFF

If Henry Ford's new National weekly, the Dearborn Independent, does not prove to be a success it will certainly not be because of lack of an experienced and capable staff, nearly every member of which has made good through experience on the Detroit News force. E. G. Pipp, the general manager of the new venture, is one of the best all-round newspaper men in the United States; the associate editor, H. W. Rowland, is the News' Sunday editor; the chief editorial writer, William J. Cameron, is one of the most versatile and popular writers in the country; C. C. Bradner of "After thoughts" fame is the official humorist of the new paper and besides all these are Henry A. Montgomery, Charlotte Tarsney and Mrs. L. E. Gilbert, also well known former members of the News force.

TOWN BOARD ASKS D. U. R. WHY THEY RAISED FARES.

The D. U. R. officials representing the D. J. & M. division were summoned here last week by the Northville township board to show cause for increasing their fares between Northville and Detroit and local points via Plymouth and Wayne contrary to the township franchise. The D. U. R.'s argument was that increased expenses demanded the increase and that even at the advanced figure they were losing money. The company agreed however to maintain a 5 cent rate from Waterford to either Northville or Plymouth.

Cass Benton spoke in behalf of the former rates and called the official's attention to the apparent injustice being done. Pending the outcome of action taken by the Wayne town officials, the matter here was left in abeyance by the local board.

CARD OF THANKS.

Mr. and Mrs. John Wilson extend sincere thanks to Mrs. Cleaver and other neighbors for great kindness during Mrs. Wilson's illness.

SENATOR HAYES GETS IMPORTANT CHAIRMANSHIP.

Senator Walter Hayes of Detroit, who represents this First district in the state senate, this year has been appointed chairman of the Executive committee. This means that in all matters of legislation he will really represent the Governor, and all appointments made by the governor requiring senate approval will pass through his hands. Mr. Hayes is one of the leading business men of Detroit and one of Michigan's leading bank officials. This district is fortunate in having the services of so capable a man.

Men!

A Grocer's advertisement is rarely addressed to the sterner sex, but in view of the following, it is at least, we believe, pardonable.

Upon inventory we found several hundred cigars which Mr. Blackburn had purchased from a firm which was financially on the wrong side of the ledger. These cigars were originally intended for a 10c seller. To close out and for immediate sale, we offer the above cigars at 6 for 25c, not more than 12 cigars to a customer, for we want a goodly number of men to have an opportunity to avail themselves of this bargain.

FOR SATURDAY—and during the week whenever practically men are available, we shall have Head Lettuce, Shallots, beyond celery, Cabbage, Carrots, Parsnips, Rutabagas, Sweet Potatoes, the meals. We ask that you be rather lenient with us until your wishes to get bread the Grocery Line have been carried out, for in matters of the children, befriending and a general rearrangement of stock and fixtures, we, perhaps, do not realize your wants as we should like.

We shall be glad to explain Our Credit Deposit Plan.

EMERSON FELT PINCH OF WAR

Great American Poet Wrote to Friend Telling Him of the Financial Crisis.

In the early days of the Civil war, Emerson wrote to a friend of the financial crisis:

"The first of January (1862) has found me in quite as poor a plight as the rest of the Americans. Not a penny from my books since last June, which usually yield $500 or $600 a year; no dividends from the banks or from Lidian-Plymouth property. Then almost all income from lectures has quite ceased, so that your letter found me in a study how to pay $300 or $400 with $50. Meanwhile we are trying to be as unconsuming as candles under an extinguisher and 'tis frightful to think how many rivals we have in distress and in economy. But far better that this grinding should go on from bad to worse than that we be driven by any impatience into a hasty peace, or any peace restoring the old rotten ness."

BOSCHEE'S SYRUP

Why use ordinary cough remedies
when Boschee's Syrup has been used so successfully for fifty-one years in all parts of the United States for coughs, bronchitis, colds, settled in the throat, especially lung troubles? It gives the patient a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expec-toration in the morning, gives nature
a chance to soothe the inflamed parts, throw off the disease, helping the patient to regain his health. Made in America and sold for more than half a century. Adv.

times think, for the worse. Anyhow it seems only yesterday that the prop-

and offer him a cup of something red and joyful. But now if he takes you back there at all it is b'cuz he wants to know just about how soon you think you'll be able to settle that little bill."

RECIPE FOR GRAY HAIR.

To half pint of water add 1 oz. Bay
Rum, a small box of Barbo Compound, and 3/4 oz. of glycerine. Any druggist can put this up or you can mix it at home at very little cost. Full directions for making and use come in each box of Barbo Compound. It will gradually darken streaked, faded gray hair and make it soft and glossy. It will not color the scalp, is not sticky or greasy, and does not rub off. Adv.

Suffered For Years Back and Kidneys Were in Bad Shape, But Doan's Removed all the Trouble

"My kidneys were so weak that the least cold I caught would affect them and start my back aching until I could hardly endure the misery," says Mrs. D. C. Ross, 973 Fulton St., Brocklyn, N. Y. "In the morning when I first got up, my back was so lame, I could hardly bend over and any move sent darts of pain through my kidneys. It was hard for me to walk up stairs or scoop, and to move
while lying down sent darts of pain through me."

The kidney secret distressing and the water remained in my system, making my feet and hands swell. There were dark circles under my eyes and I became so dizzy I could hardly see.
I had rheumatic pains in my knees and it was all I could do to get around.
For years I was in that shape and I wore plasters and used all kinds of medicine to no avail until I tried Doan's Kidney Pills. They rid me of the trouble and strengthened my back and kidneys. When I have taken Doan's since, they have always benefited me."

PISO'S

MEDICS PUZZLED BY "DOCTOR" VAN

His Cure of Shell Shock Cases in France Astonishes
Physicians.

NEVER STUDIED MEDICINE

Sergeant Accomplishes Wonderful Results in Treatment of Patients Suffering From Nervous Afflictions—Says He Is Not Hypnotist.

"Doctor" Van isn't a doctor really—that is, he has never been inside a medical school. He is not a commissioned officer, either. Two days after war was declared in America he enlisted in one of the cities of the middle-West and came over as a private.
He is a sergeant now. His experiences —driving an ambulance first, and after that in the front line and then in various camps in France until he was sent to a base hospital as a patient—would fill several diaries. If he keeps such things, which I doubt.

But there are a great many men in that base hospital who owe their returning health to him after they had been in bed for weeks, and even months. Now, although they admit that he is well again, they will not let him go from the hospital, because a transfer is a long and tedious business to bring about, and they need him
there to help out with the patients.

He was out of bed only a day or so himself when he came across two boys in one of the wards who had been in the hospital since April. They had been shell shocked, and in all those months, from April to September, they had grown scarcely any better.

Asks Leave to Try.
"Captain," Sergeant Van said one morning to the doctor in charge of the ward, "do you mind if I see what I can do for those men there?—I think I may be able to help them out a bit if you don't mind."

The captain looked at him interest-edly. If it had been any other man the captain would have been indifferent, perhaps. But Sergeant Van has a way with him.

"Oh, go ahead, Van," the captain agreed. "Do anything you please."

Next morning on his rounds the captain stopped beside the bed of the first of the two men who had been shell shocked.

"How's it coming this morning,
boy?" he asked.

"F' fine, sir," was the answer, a little unsteadily given, perhaps, but the captain did not notice that. He sat down on the bed and looked at the boy in amazement. "Those were the first words he had spoken aloud since the day he came to the hospital, unconscious, five months before.

At that moment Sergeant Van hove into sight from the diet kitchen. He had a plate of milk toast—a plate the boy in bed followed with an interested gaze.

"Beg pardon, sir," Sergeant Van said, saluting, "but I must ask you to wait until my patient has had his breakfast before you talk with him."

The astonished captain allowed himself to be wayed from the bed to the nearest chair and watched in amazement the boy devour the toast. His hands shook so from shell shock that he could scarcely manage it, but he was propped up and fed himself, with every appearance of keen interest in his food. The day before the boy had not been able to swallow anything but liquid food, and he couldn't have held the spoon.

The captain beckoned Sergeant Van
to the end of the ward.

"Did you do that?" he demanded.

"Yes sir," admitted Sergeant Van.

"How in blue blazes!" began the captain and paused for lack of words.

"I'll show you if you like, sir."

"I would like," ordered the captain.

So Van showed him, though the doctor couldn't quite make it out at that just what Van did. He stroked their heads a little, and massaged their throats a bit, and all the time he talked to them in the quietest voice in the world. Ten minutes after he began the boys were asleep, naturally, without a tremor in the bodies that had been nerve-racked for weeks.

The doctor looked at Sergeant Van helplessly and left shaking his head.

Two weeks later Sergeant Van held a clinic before a major general of the medical corps and several majors and still more captains and lieutenants—all men of reputation in America as doctors. Two of his subjects were the men over whom he worked that first morning. They came into the clinic, clear-eyed and straight, and ruddy as athletes from the field.

They passed tests that the doctors couldn't pass themselves.

Since then the shell shock cases have been in Van's hands. The doctors shake their heads and wonder.

In the camp and the hospital they call him the "hypnotist."

"It isn't that I hypnotized them, at all," he will tell you. "I just tell them that they are bigger than their nerves, and that they can control them if they really want to. And I show them how.
They believe it because I tell them it is so, and then, you see, they are well."

But the doctors continue to wonder and say that Van has discovered the first really successful treatment for shell shock.

HEAD HUNTER IN AMERICAN ARMY

Moro Entertains Hospital Patients With Wild Songs and Curious Chants.

HAS FIVE BAYONET WOUNDS

Astonishes Doctors by Rapid Recovery
From Injuries Received While Fighting in Ranks of Yankees
—Has Remarkable Record.

Philippine—The most remarkable patient in Base Hospital No. 35 is a Moro head-hunter, who turned up in France six months ago with a company of American soldiers who had just come from the Philippine Islands.

His name is recorded as Philipino Moro, and his home as the Philippine Islands. No one suspected him of having a remarkable record until his story came out one day after a chance meeting with the colonel in charge of the base hospital to which he was taken from the front. And this is how it happened:

A Red Cross searcher hearing of a man suffering from five bayonet wounds who had just been brought into Base Hospital No. 35, hurried to his bedside with fruit and an offer to send home any messages he might wish delivered. The man, unusually big and dark, accepted the fruit gratefully, but assured her that he would be well enough himself to write soon to his sister; his only living relative.

Sings Weird Songs.

And he kept his word in spite of the five bayonet wounds which healed so rapidly that all the doctors of the hospital marveled at the remarkable constitution of the dark-skinned man.
The patient was soon convalescent,
and the first place he visited was the Red Cross recreation hut. Some one was playing the piano, as usual, and during the afternoon one of the members of the sanitary corps sang one of Burley's negro songs, "Deep River." Philipino offered to sing the song in the original and astonished his audience with a weird version full of minor notes and harmonies that made shivers run up and down susceptible backs.

And thereafter the Filipino insisted on entertaining gatherings in the recreation hut each afternoon with wild songs and curious chants and recitations. Some of these were very spicy tales indeed of the underworld and its demizens, and finally the Moro waxed confidential and began telling tales of the wilds of the Philippine Islands and the days when he had hunted heads.

The colonel of the hospital, attracted by the reports of these seances, dropped in one afternoon to listen.

"I don't believe he's a Moro at all,"
he announced. "He's too tall. I served in the Philippines and I never saw but two Moros as tall as that man."

Just then the Filipino came up and satured the colonel.

"Excuse, sir," he said in his broken English. "Perhaps you remember me?
I know you in the Philippine Islands."

"By George, I'll have to take it all back," admitted the colonel. "He's one of the two men I was speaking of.
He comes from the head-hunting tribe, all right. He became very much attached to one of our soldiers, who taught him English. But I never expected to meet him in France or wearing the uniform of an American soldier."

WEAK KIDNEYS MEAN A WEAK BODY

When you're fifty, your body begins to break a little at the hinges. Motion is more slow and deliberate. Not so young as I used to be is a frequent and unwelcome thought. Certain bodily functions upon which good health and good spirits so much depend, are impaired. The weak spot is generally the bladder. Unpleasant symptoms show themselves. Painful and annoying complications in other organs arise. This is particularly true with elderly people. If you only know how, this trouble can be obviated.

For over 200 years GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil has been relieving the inconvenience and pain due to advancing years. It is a standard, old-time home remedy, and needs no introduction. It is now put in odorless, tasteless capsules.
These are easier and more pleasant to take than the oil in bottles.

Each capsule contains about one dose of five drops. Take them just like you would any pill, with a small swallow of water.
They soak into the system and throw off the poisons which are making you old before your time. They will quickly relieve these stiffened joints, that backache, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, gall stones, gravel, "brick dust," etc. They are an effective remedy for all diseases of the bladder, kidney, liver, stomach and allied organs.

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules
cleanse the kidneys and purify the blood.
They frequently ward off attacks of the dangerous and fatal diseases of the kidneys. They have a beneficial effect, and often completely cure the diseases of the bodily organs allied with the bladder and kidneys.

If you are troubled with soreness across the loins or with "simple" aches and pains in the back take warning, it may be the preliminary indications of some dreadful malediction which can be warded off or cured
if taken in time.

These newspaper quotations represent live cattle prices in Chicago on December 30th, 1918.

The list shows price ranges on nine general classified groups with a spread of $13.85 per cwt.—the lowest at $6.50 and the highest at $20.35.

Why this variation in price?

Because the meat from different animals varies greatly in quality and weight.

Although the quotations shown are in nine divisions, Swift & Company grades cattle into 34 general classes, and each class into a variety of weights and qualities.

As a result of these differences in cattle prices, (due to differences in weights and meat qualities), there is a range of 15 cents in Swift & Company's selling prices of beef carcasses.

These facts explain:

- 1—Why retail prices vary in different stores.
- 2—Why it would be difficult to regulate prices of cattle or beef.
- 3—Why it requires experts to judge cattle and to sell meat, so as to yield the profit of only a fraction of a cent a pound—a profit too small to affect prices.

Grow Wheat in Western Canada One Crop Often Pays for the Land

Western Canada offers the greatest advantages to home seekers. Large profits are assured. You can buy on easy payment terms.

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 per Acre

Land similar to that which through many years has averaged from 29 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of cases are on record where in Western Canada a single crop has paid the cost of land and production. The Government of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta want the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to Grain Growing and Stock Raising.

Though Western Canada offers land at such low figures, the high prices of grain, cattle, sheep and hogs will remain.

Loans for the purchase of stock may be had at low interest; there are good shipping facilities; best of markets; free schools; churches; splendid climate; low taxation (none on improvements).

DAIRY FACTS

TO ELIMINATE SCRUB BULLS

interesting Figures Brought Out by Department of Agriculture in Several Sections.

Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.

That the need of pure-bred bulls is urgent in many parts of the country is evident from the facts brought out by the United States department of agriculture's study of eight districts in the states of Iowa, Minnesota and Massachusetts in which there were no associations. In this survey information was obtained regarding 1,219 farmers owning 817 bulls whose average value was $76. Had the owners of these cheap bulls been properly organized the same investment would have purchased the necessary bulls at an average of $288. On the farms mentioned nearly four times as many bulls were used as would have been required under proper organization. The farmers were therefore feeding four bulls when they should have been feeding only one.

Pure-Bred Bulls Are Needed to Develop Profitable Dairy Herd.

Data from one of the first bull associations organized under the direction of the department of agriculture illustrate this very well. Before the association was formed the bulls in use had an average market value of $89. The average price paid by the association for registered bulls was $240. Price does not always correspond to value, yet as the bulls were carefully selected the price in this case is doubtless a fair index of true worth. In this association each farmer's investment for a share in a good registered bull was $14 less than his former investment in an animal of inferior breeding and doubtful merit.

Actual first-cost figures from other co-operative bull associations are even more encouraging. In one association having more than 100 members the original cost to each member was only $28. The members already have had the use of good pure-bred bulls for four years and probably will have their use six years longer without additional cost other than for maintenance. Another association with more than 50 members has had the use of good pure-bred bulls for more than seven years at an average investment of less than $25 a member, with prospects of being able to use them for three or four years more. Practically all dairymen desire to raise pure-bred cattle, but comparatively few can afford individually to purchase such bulls as are needed to develop a profitable pure-bred herd. The bull association overcomes the difficulty, and the money saved can be used toward the purchase of registered females.

When questioned regarding the value of co-operative bull associations, 150 farmers in Maryland, Michigan and Minnesota estimated that the use of bulls belonging to the organization increased the value of the offspring in the first generation from 20 to 80 per cent, with an average of 65 per cent. Usually in business transactions in which there is a probability of great gain there is a possibility of heavy loss, but in bull associations the chances of profit are excellent, with little probability of loss. The investment is so small and the chance for herd improvement so great that the net returns greatly exceed the small original investment.

HIGH PRODUCING DAIRY COW

Animal is Delicate and Well-Balanced Piece of Machinery—Good Shelter Is Important.

A high-producing dairy animal is a delicate and well-balanced piece of machinery, and consequently she cannot continue normal production if she is exposed to severe winter weather. It is therefore essential that the discomforts incident to cold weather be eliminated if possible. The comfortable cow will repay in milk the necessary labor for her protection. Dairymen as a rule are more careful with their cows than the average farmer who merely produces the milk for family use.

DAIRY COWS REQUIRE SALT

Best Plan to Give Small Quantity in Feed and Place Rock Salt in Boxes in Yard.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The dairy cow requires an ounce of salt a day, and while she should be given all she needs, she should not be forced to take more than she wants. It is best, therefore, to give only a small quantity in the feed and to place rock salt in boxes in the yard.

"BOBBY"

By VALERIE H. JENKINS.

(Copyright, 1918, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Richard A—drove his car swiftly along the road to Way Fells' pretty country station.

"One minute to make it in! I hope he's a patient sort of fellow."

He was the prospective landscape gardener whom Walter M., an old friend, was sending down at Richard's request, and who was to begin work immediately on the A's country estate. Walter M., an agricultural expert, was a man to be relied upon, and the A's had left the matter of selection wholly to him. The result of their request had been a telegram, announcing that "Bobby G.—" personal friend and expert," would arrive at Way Fells on the afternoon express from the city.

The train was just pulling out of the station when Richard stopped the automobile at the curb. There were only a few arrivals, as Way Fells consists mostly of large country estates which are reached more easily by motor than by train. A peddler with his pack, an elderly gentleman, who was met by an enthusiastic party, a girl in brown, who carried a suitcase, and a fussy little woman with two fussy little children were the only passengers to get off at Way Fells.

Deciding that the fellow must have lost his train, Richard was turning away again toward his car, when a sweet but hesitating voice caught his attention. It was the girl in brown talking to the freight agent.

"Could you tell me," she was saying, "whether I could hire any sort of conveyance here to take me to Mr. Richard A's estate—Bellemere? I think it is called?"

"Ah, some friend of mother's, probably," thought Richard. "Funny, though, she didn't wait, asking someone to meet her. I never saw her before, that's certain."

"I beg your pardon," he said, approaching the girl. "I am Richard A—and I should be glad to take you up. Mother must have forgotten that you were coming. Is this your suitcase, Miss—er—?"

"Miss G.—Roberta G.—but you are mistaken. Surely Mr. M.—must have written to say that I was coming. I am the landscape gardener whom Mrs. A—asked Mr. M.—to send down here?"

"Roberta G.—! Landscape gardener!" cried Richard. "Why—er—? To tell the truth, Miss G.—I was expecting a man 'not a girl—you see, Mr. M.—called you 'Bobby' in his telegram."

Richard's pet prejudice, at that time, was the farmerette movement. Farming was a man's job, he declared, and had better be left to their experienced hands, than to be indulged in as a whim by girls.

In the days that followed she learned the true reason for his change of manner, and could not help being somewhat amused over his absurd prejudice. Miss A.—, on the contrary, was far more cordial, and at the end of two weeks, was calling her Roberta, and asking her advice on various matters. The men who worked on the estate admired her from the start; first, because she was young and attractive, but gradually, through respect for her trained and thorough knowledge of the work she had fitted herself to do.

Richard's manner was still the same, although he was necessarily brought into close companionship with her, for Mrs. A.—preferred that her son should manage all details of the estate.

When Roberta had been at Bellemere for almost a month, word was brought to the house by one of the workmen that Miss G.—had been thrown from her horse near the outskirts of the estate almost a mile away. Mrs. A.—was very much alarmed and sent her son back with the workman at once.

Richard took the little car and hastened to reach the spot where the accident occurred. As he neared the scene he reproached himself for the unnecessary coolness with which he had treated Roberta.

The white face, half turned to the ground, rebuked him far more than his conscience for his past actions. Richard drove slowly to avoid giving her unnecessary pain, but before they had gone far a rut in the road-jolted the car quite heavily and Roberta opened her eyes, wincing at the pain. She could not remember at first what had happened, and tried to raise herself to an erect position, but her right arm fell back limply when she tried to extend it.

"My arm," she said weakly. "I must have broken it. The horse—fell—and—"

"Yes, I know," answered Richard; "but you mustn't try to talk now. I'm so sorry you were hurt, and it is more than half my fault, too."

"You mustn't say that," she said, "because it's not true."

"But it is true, and so is the rest of it. Do you suppose you could ever forgive me, Bobby, dear?"

"I think I could try," she replied, and a faint color came into her face at the last words.

"Because, you see, I know now that I was wrong; but more than that, because I want you always for my own, little Bobby."

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and maybe despondent; it makes anyone so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

A good kidney medicine, possessing real healing and curative value, should be a blessing to thousands of nervous, over-worked women.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney liver and bladder medicine will do for them. Every reader of this paper, who has not already tried it, by enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., may receive sample size bottle by Parcel Post. You can purchase the medium and large size bottles at all drug stores. Adv.

A Coated Tongue? What it Means

A bad breath, coated tongue, bad taste in the mouth, languor and debility, are usually signs that the liver is out of order.

PROF. HEMMETER says: "The liver is an organ secondary in importance only to the heart."

We can manufacture poisons within our own bodies which are as deadly as a snake's venom.

The liver acts as a guard over our well-being, sifting out the poisons and ashes from the general circulation.

A blockade in the intestines piles a heavy burden upon the liver. If the intestines are choked or clogged up, the circulation of the blood becomes poisoned and the system becomes loaded with toxic waste, and we suffer from headache, yellow-coated tongue, bad taste in mouth, nausea, or gas, acid dyspepsia, languor, debility, yellow skin or eyes. At such times one should take a pleasant laxative. Such a one is made of May-apple, leaves of aloes, Jalap, put into ready-to-use form by Doctor Pierce, nearly fifty years ago, and sold for 25 cents by all druggists as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets.

STOCKTON, CALIF.—"For constipation, sick headache, an inactive liver, indigestion and biliousness there is nothing so equal Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I have tried other things but like the 'Pellets' best of any."—Mrs. F. CAMPBELL, 323 S. Grant Street.

An Independent Newspaper published every Friday morning by the Neal Printing Co., at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville post-office as Second-Class matter.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JAN. 17, 1919.

The importance of cooperation between the Wayne and Oakland road commissioners in regard to the condition of the Northville-Nowi-Walled Lake road cannot be over-estimated and especially as regards Northville. The fact that people to the north and west of us who would, under normal circumstances, come to this village for trading purposes, cannot do so on account of impassable roads during muddy weather, but can go to Farmington, Redford and Detroit rapidly and easily over an excellent highway, must inevitably divert a large amount of trade from here. As to whether the people of this section would come to our village if the roads were all in proper condition, it is only needful to recall the hundreds of motor cars that fill our streets during the summer. Many excellent promises have been made in answer to pressure brought to bear by the Automobile club, but so far it has been promises only.

The first number of the metamorphosed Dearborn Independent, the Ford National Weekly, dated Jan. 11, 1919, comes to the Record's exchange desk this week. The publication is in magazine form and a glance at the names of the contributors, the quality of the paper and the technical features leads immediately to the realization that here indeed is a new departure in the way of a weekly periodical at the low price of one dollar a year. Dearborn certainly has reason to be proud of such an institution as the new weekly. One regular department which will be of especial interest to people at large, is "Mr. Ford's Own Page" by means of which he expresses his personal views on many matters of practical value.

NORTHVILLE SOLDIER HURT BY AMBULANCE

Peter L. Perkins of the 23rd U. S. Engineers has recently written his home folks of an accident which has made him a patient in the base hospital in France, and he describes the "engagement" in this way, in a letter postmarked December 18: "Had a little bad luck the other day. Tackled an ambulance barehanded and the blooming thing knocked me for a goal, then jumped on me while I was down. Hardly a fair fight, was it? I came out, wonderfully well—one busted rib and one cracked rib and a pretty sore chest. It happened in front of the regimental infirmary and it was only a few seconds before I was under the Dr's care. They patched me up and shot me off to the hospital and here I am. Had a ride on one of Uncle Sam's hospital trains, and am in a room on the third floor of one of the hotels loaned for a hospital. Am getting fine care and good grub. A few days later he writes: "Just a week since I arrived here, and am up and nearly O. K. again, except that my shoulder and arm are still pretty sore. Have been running around for the past three days, in a bath robe, but spoke to a nurse this morning about a uniform and she promised me one. There is a bunch leaving this hospital for the first lap of the journey to the States. Here's luck to them. There are two from this room, and I envy them, but will take a chance, with my good health, and wait awhile. The way things look to me now, I'll say that I'll be home about the last of February or the first of March. May get there sooner, or possibly a little later. Don't make any calculations either way, for that is only the way I have it doped out. I may be 'way off.' Don't think I'll get back to the regiment at all. Don't worry about me for I'm making at fine now."

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION. The Rally meeting of the local Union, postponed from last week, will be held at the home of Mrs. E. V. Belles on Wednesday, Jan. 22, at 3 p. m. Mrs. Patterson, of Plymouth, will be present to speak to us, giving a "Registration questionnaires." All ladies interested whether they are members of the Union or not, are earnestly requested to be present. Bring note book and pencil.

The opening games of the basketball season were played in the gym last Friday evening. Both local teams won, the boys by a score of 32 to 14, and the girls by 12 to 4. The opposing teams represented Redford High school.

The following are the honor students for grades 3 to 6 inclusive for the month of December:

George Beard, 6-A, 1-B; Arthur Schultz, 6-A, 1-B; Mildred Elliott, 6-A, 1-B; Robert Cole, 4-A, 2-B; Jean Murray, 2-A, 9-B; Irene Franklin, 2-A, 5-B; Ival Franklin, 3-A, 3-B; Marie Schoof, 3-A, 3-B; Ruth Sessions, 3-A, 3-B; Helen Cattermole, 2-A, 4-B; Alvin Hotelling, 2-A, 4-B; Geraldine Huff, 1-A, 5-B; Clarence Smith, 7-B, Eleanor Martz, 7-B.

SHUBERT-GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" which has been running for eight months at the Booth Theatre, New York, and three months at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, commences an engagement at the Shubert-Garrick theatre, Detroit, Sunday evening, January 19th.

The play is a dramatic version of Tarkington's widely-read Willie Baxter stories. With rare skill Stuart Walker has transferred the Tarkington story to the stage, giving it all the bubbling spirit of "youth and love and summertime" by a delightful cast of young people. Gregory Kelly, universally considered the best actor of youthful roles on the American stage, has one of the best roles of his career in love-sick Willie Baxter. Lillian Ross has been a sensation as the ten-year-old villain of the piece, sister Jane. Ruth Gordon plays the fluffy haired "baby talk girl," Lola Pratt. Judith Lowry upholds the banner of the grown-ups by her sympathetic portrayal of Willie and Jane's mother.

Dear Friends:—Poke Easily has been carrying an Irish potato in his pocket for rheumatism and has now got so much better he can stoop over and stick the potato on the spout of an oil can.

When Sam Johnson, who lives near Peoria, Illinois, finished shucking corn for a farmer and received his pay he had $92, a good watch and a shucking peg. Having friends in Peoria, he decided to take a visit. He arrived there about 3 p.m. and the first thing he saw was a saloon. He went in and took a drink. There were a few bystanders who noticed his roll and kindly asked him to have a drink with them, and of course he had to treat them for their good fellowship. Then he felt good, and they threw dice and played cards. That night about 10 o'clock the police found Sam in an alley back of the saloon with one ear torn off and a gash in his head. He was minus his money and his watch, but had the shucking peg left. He can shuck corn with it next fall. (N. B. The Illinois legislature has passed the Prohibition amendment 84 to 66)

DEATH OF MRS. LYDIA NORTHROP

Mrs. Lydia Northrop, one of Northville's oldest and most esteemed residents, died Wednesday, January 8, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Crocker on Randolph Street, where she had been cared for during some months past. "Aunt Lydia" as she was familiarly known to her many friends, had been entirely helpless for nearly a year as the result of a fall. She was 88 years of age, and was the widow of Julius C. Northrop, who died about six years ago, leaving his partner of a half-century of wedded companionship alone, save for the kindly oversight of relatives of her husband, as she had no children or other near connections of her own blood.

Funeral services were held from the Crocker residence Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. Edward V. Belles, and her body was laid beside that of her husband in Rural Hill cemetery.

FARM BUREAU MEETING HERE

A Farm Bureau meeting will be held at the High school Saturday afternoon and evening, January 26. All are welcome, and as it is free it is hoped a large crowd will attend. Harry B. Clark has charge of the program, which will consist of a talk in orcharding by Mr. Pickford of the U. S. C. a talk on marketing by Milton Carmichael, editor of the Detroit Courier, and one on the work of the Farm Bureau by O. J. Gregg, Wayne County Agricultural agent. The ladies will be given a demonstration on some "Home Economics" subjects by Miss Bessie Rogers, Home demonstration agent. The evening program will be devoted to horticultural, dairying and home economics, illustrated by stereoscopic slides. Remember the date—January 26.

MRS. MARTHA WEBBER

Mrs. Martha Webber, formerly of this place who had been cared for at the County home at Elmore for several years past, died there Tuesday. The body was brought to Northville for burial in Oakwood cemetery. Brief services were held Thursday afternoon in the chapel of the Methodist church.

It is the intention of the Library board to have a benefit evening about the middle of February at the Alseum theatre. In response to many requests an endeavor will be made to put on the picturization of Louisa M. Alcott's famous story "Little Women," which will certainly furnish an exceptional treat for Northville.

The Michigan Telephone company proposes to raise telephone rentals in Northville and all over Michigan about 50% in the near future and has asked the State Railroad commission for power to do so. An Independent Newspaper published every Friday morning by the Neal Printing Co., at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville post-office as Second-Class matter.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., JAN. 17, 1919.

The importance of cooperation between the Wayne and Oakland road commissioners in regard to the condition of the Northville-Nowi-Walled Lake road cannot be over-estimated and especially as regards Northville. The fact that people to the north and west of us who would, under normal circumstances, come to this village for trading purposes, cannot do so on account of impassable roads during muddy weather, but can go to Farmington, Redford and Detroit rapidly and easily over an excellent highway, must inevitably divert a large amount of trade from here. As to whether the people of this section would come to our village if the roads were all in proper condition, it is only needful to recall the hundreds of motor cars that fill our streets during the summer. Many excellent promises have been made in answer to pressure brought to bear by the Automobile club, but so far it has been promises only.

The first number of the metamorphosed Dearborn Independent, the Ford National Weekly, dated Jan. 11, 1919, comes to the Record's exchange desk this week. The publication is in magazine form and a glance at the names of the contributors the quality of the paper and the technical features leads immediately to the realization that here indeed is a new departure in the way of a weekly periodical at the low price of one dollar a year. Dearborn certainly has reason to be proud of such an institution as the new weekly. One regular department which will be of especial interest to people at large, is "Mr. Ford's Own Page" by means of which he expresses his personal views on many matters of practical value.

BIG "FARMERS" SESSION AT THE M. A. C.

Michigan's "cattle kings," "sheep barons," and breeders and feeders of blooded horses and swine will rally at the Michigan Agricultural college on February 5 and 6 to grapple with matters of moment to the livestock industry within the state. The meeting, according to Prof. G. A. Brown of M. A. C., will be conducted under the auspices of the Michigan Improved Livestock, Breeders and Feeders association and its many associate bodies. The meetings will take place at the same time as Farmers' and Housewives Week at M. A. C. from February 3 to February 7.

EXPOSE FAKE "MEDICINE" FOR "SICK" ERUIT TREES.

An old-time fraud in the form of a "powder" for inoculating fruit trees against disease, has appeared in the state again, the department of horticulture of M. A. C., has been advised. The treatment recommended is that a hole be bored in the tree to be treated, this hole to be filled with the "medicine," the theory being that this "medicine" will then be taken up by the sap and distributed to the trunk and branches making them immune to all troubles. This is nonsense and owners of orchards are warned again to be on guard against spending money with persons promoting this fraud.

SHUBERT-GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

Booth Tarkington's "Seventeen" which has been running for eight months at the Booth Theatre, New York, and three months at the Plymouth Theatre, Boston, commences an engagement at the Shubert-Garrick theatre, Detroit, Sunday evening, January 19th.

The play is a dramatic version of Tarkington's widely-read Willie Baxter stories. With rare skill Stuart Walker has transferred the Tarkington story to the stage, giving it all the bubbling spirit of "youth and love and summertime" by a delightful cast of young people. Gregory Kelly, universally considered the best actor of youthful roles on the American stage, has one of the best roles of his career in love-sick Willie Baxter. Lillian Ross has been a sensation as the ten-year-old villain of the piece, sister Jane. Ruth Gordon plays the fluffy haired "baby talk girl." Lola Pratt, Judith Lowry upholds the banner of the grown-ups by her sympathetic portrayal of Willie and Jane's mother.

THE GROWING AMERICAN TOY INDUSTRY.

The closing of the ports of Germany during the last four years has denuded the markets of the world of practically all German made toys. In some of these markets it is doubtful if the stocks will ever be replenished for Germany. During the war England has been securing many of her toys from France, Italy and Japan, and it is probable that in the future American toys will also find a good market there.

The toy manufacturers of America have had such an increase of orders since the signing of the armistice that the demand far exceeds their output. Before the war there were but seventy-one firms in the United States engaged in the manufacture of toys, with an annual business of only about $7,500,000. However, during the war ninety-four new toy factories were started and it is estimated that the aggregate business of the entire toy industry for the year 1918 will be more than $20,000,000. The assurances which American toy manufacturers are receiving from toy dealers, that they will not deal in German-made toys for many years to come, is greatly stimulating our American industry, and will do much toward making the United States the foremost toy-producing country of the world.

Toy makers are planning to use thousands of crippled soldiers in their work, which is not only light, but is of such a nature that, even should a soldier be unable to come to the factory, the work could be performed by him at home. This home-work plan has been carried on successfully for many years in the toy centres of Europe, and it is probable that many of our boys who have been crippled by the war will be able to secure congenial and profitable employment in the American toy industry.

ANOTHER "REFORM" NEEDED.

General dissatisfaction seems to prevail especially among the country newspapers in regard to the ineffective system of mail delivery prevailing in Detroit. All the country papers in this part of the state have more or less subscribers in the big city, and most of the papers go to their local postoffices Thursday evening, but in most instances are not delivered at their final destination in Detroit until the following Monday. "Insufficient help" has been the excuse given, but now that the war is over it would seem that the Detroit postal service need no longer be poor on that account.

KEEP ACCOUNTS.

Farming is a business the same as banking or running a mercantile establishment. There are products to be sold and articles to be bought. The keeping of a record of these and determining the relation of the outgo to the income are important considerations on every farm. The farmer should know what his income is and just how he is disposing of it. He can know this only by keeping books and the first of the new year is the proper time to begin.

A Bit of Advice

First—Don't Delay. Second—Don't

If you suffer from backache, head-and are languid in the morning; if the kidney secretions are irregular often need help.

Doan's Kidney Pills are especially prepared for kidney trouble. They are recommended by thousands. Can

Mrs. W. S. Dickerson, 25 Yerkes St.,

PROTEIN FOODS WHICH ARE WITHIN YOUR PURSE.

Food Portions Supplying Equal Amounts of Protein: 1 Egg; 1 Glass of Milk; 1 1/2 Ounces of Edible Portion of Meat; 1 Ounce of Cheese; 1/4 Ounces of Cottage Cheese.

PROTEIN FOODS ARE NECESSARY

Housewife Should Be Sure That Diet Contains Some Kind of Meat or a Substitute.

MILK IMPORTANT FOR CHILD

List Given Suggests Total Amount of Complete-Protein Food Desirable for Family Served in Form of Central Dish.

In planning meals and when buying supplies, it is well to think of the following foods as in a class by themselves: Milk, eggs, cheese of all kinds, meats (excepting salt pork and bacon), poultry, fish and sea food. These foods are grouped together because they provide what is now called adequate or complete protein or protein combinations. The term "adequate" or "complete" is used in connection with these proteins because of their important relation to the proteins of the body.

Protein is an essential part of all the tissues of the body, including the muscles, the blood, and the organs. The material out of which body protein is made is constantly changing. It is sometimes said that the muscles and other tissues of the body "wear out" and are in constant need of "repair." This is not an apt description of what really takes place; for it suggests periods of disorder in the body followed by periods of strength and well-being. As a matter of fact, the process by which body proteins take in new material to replace the old is a perfectly normal and healthy one which involves no "wearing out." The process does, however, create a never-ending demand for protein materials in the food.

Two Kinds of Proteins.

The proteins of the diet are found chiefly in two classes of materials. To the first class belong milk, eggs, cheese, and flesh foods, all of which are relatively expensive under most conditions of living, and to the second belong the cereals (wheat, oats, corn, barley, rice, and rye), and also beans, peas, and cowpeas, all of which are relatively cheap. There is an important difference between the proteins of these two classes of foods. The first are complete and the second incomplete. This means that of the "building stones," or, as chemists say, the amino acids, necessary for making body protein, the first supply all, while the second, with a few possible exceptions, are lacking in one or two.

To use bread or cereals in other forms to the exclusion of milk, eggs, cheese and similar foods is unsafe from the standpoint of health, but to use the latter foods in greater amount than is needed usually adds to the cost of the diet. It becomes an important matter, therefore, to know how much of the perfect protein food one should use. It is generally agreed that a child under six should have either one quart of milk a day, or, better still, three-fourths of a quart and one egg. A child over six should have a minimum of a pint of milk a day and a small amount of the other foods in the group. A family consisting of four adults—two men and two women—all doing moderately active muscular work, should have a quart of milk a day and at least one and a half pounds of other complete protein foods or their equivalent in milk. For supplying protein a quart of milk may be considered the equivalent of eight ounces of the other complete protein foods.

Depending on Cereals.

If the housekeeper decides to depend chiefly on the relatively inexpensive cereals, beans and peas, for most of the protein needed by her family, and to use the more expensive protein foods in amounts sufficient for body maintenance, she has on her hands the problem of determining how far the small supply will go and what kind of dishes she can prepare from them. To begin with, she should remember that the usefulness of these foods is not dependent on the form in which they are served, providing, of course, they are prepared in wholesome ways. For example, an egg used in the preparation of muffins, corn bread, custard or ice cream goes as far toward making body protein as when it is boiled or poached.

Most housekeepers serve a central dish of meat or meat substitute for dinner and for luncheon or supper and some serve such a dish for breakfast. This habit has the advantage of assuring a regular supply of the complete protein foods, but it may lead to the use of unnecessarily large amounts of them. A meal may be quite unusual in form and yet perfectly nutritious. It may consist of an unstrained meat soup containing the meat itself, with bread, or of cottage cheese with bread, butter, fruit, and vegetables. Or, it may seem to consist of dessert only, as when strawberry shortcake with milk as a beverage constitutes a supper or luncheon.

The total amount of complete-protein food decided on by the housekeeper as desirable for her family may be served chiefly in the form of a central meat dish, or in the form of soups, vegetable dishes, and desserts as the following list suggests:

Dishes Supplying Complete Protein.

Soups.
Meat soups with the meat left in.
Purées of dried beans or peas if made with milk or served as they often are, with slices of hard-boiled egg.
Milk soups, particularly if thickened with egg yolks.
Cheese soup.

Sauces.
Milk sauces, particularly if enriched with egg yolks.

Breads.
Ordinary bread made with milk.
Popovers, muffins, or other quick breads made with milk and eggs.

Vegetables.
Sweet corn baked with milk and eggs.
Fattening made with vegetables or fruit cooked in batter.
Tomatoes, peppers or onions stuffed with chopped meat or cheese.
Bean or pea loaves made with cheese.

Salads.
Meat and fish salads.
Cottage cheese salad.
Legg salad.

Desserts.
Custards.
Sponge cake.
Milk puddings.
Ice cream containing milk or milk and eggs.

MEAT SUBSTITUTES

No matter how much bread a person eats, or how much cornmeal or oatmeal, he falls short by just a little of obtaining everything needed for body protein unless he eats some of the complete protein foods. Eggs, cheese, fish, and poultry resemble meat in containing complete protein, and they are sometimes called meat substitutes. Cereals, beans, and peas, on the other hand, are called meat substitutes, but meat savers.

Use Apples Freely.

The only fresh fruit many families in the North have during the cold months is the apple. Different ways of utilizing this kitchen standby are sure of a welcome from the cook.

The department of agriculture suggests the following ways of serving the apple:

Fresh apples may be stuffed with sausage and then baked; sliced and fried in fat to serve with meats, or served raw in salads.

Canned, dried or stewed apples may be varied greatly by changing the flavors used.

Canned apples make a delicious addition to custards or soufflés, adding a piquant flavor.

Canned, dried or fresh, they form an acceptable basis for Brown Betty made with crumbles.

Fresh or canned, the fruit may be utilized in short cakes and in apple sauce.

WHAT CAN WE DO?

The work to be done in the reconstruction of devastated countries is appalling—or would be if the war that devastated them had not also so augmented the strength and resources of the Red Cross that it can undertake any task of mercy. In every direction almost, its help is needed. The ending of the war has not lessened the need for foreign relief work and the task of reconstruction is going to be a long one. But if American people stand by the Red Cross, and the best American talent and executive ability continues to be dedicated to it, we may live with the comforting assurance that America is doing its great part to alleviate human misery.

Under the stress of the war a working organization has been built up, having the benefit of experience behind it, and a knowledge of the best way of doing things. Now that we have such an efficient organization, it may be depended upon to do the relief work at home and abroad, that must be done. The character of the work will change somewhat as time passes. Just now peoples in desperate straits are being relieved. In the south of Europe, Serbia, the region south of the Danube, Armenia, starvation and disease face populations despoiled of their homes and industries, and reduced by thousands upon thousands of victims of the war. Their immediate requirements, of food, medicine and shelter must be taken care of and some provision made to educate their youth in agriculture and other means of support. And this is only one corner of the earth that cries for succor at the hands of the Red Cross. In the Holy Land, as a result of the war, one-third of the population of Lebanon died of disease and hunger.

Things will not be again as they were before the great war. We shall help more those people of other countries, less fortunate than ours, who are not able to help themselves, and those at home whose fate is hard. The Red Cross has shown what it can do in a great emergency—the tasks before it lengthen, and they are great undertakings.

New Blouses Pass in Review

In the passing show of blouses there are many of dark georgette crepe, some of them having a lighter color introduced in vestees or panels or emplacements. Occasionally the dark crepe is made up over an underbodice in a light color, which it does not veil entirely, leaving a chemisette, or vest, and at least part of the collar of the light color uncovered. For the blouse of dark crepe is not usually a simple affair; its regular business in life being to tone up a plain skirt and manage a semidress toilette without other help.

But the blouse of dark georgette shown in the picture is one of those that may be classed as simple, although it has several distinguishing new style features. It reveals a flavor that comes from the far East in the sleeves and neck—which are inspirations of the mandarin coat, and it merits as much consideration as its more complicated rivals, for it embodies fine style. It is very good looking. This blouse is not made over an underbodice in contrasting color, but color contrast is introduced by means of parallel rows of beads that extend from the round neck to the waistline. A handsome, large blossom is outlined in embroidery silk at the left front, where it suggests a corsage flower; it matches the crepe in color. This is an item that distinguishes this particular blouse, for in nearly all models that are embroidered the design appears on each side.

Among the new models in blouses there are a few high-neck designs; for not everyone can wear even the becoming round-neck and Chinese collar styles. It is in these high-neck blouses that light colors are introduced in vestees and collars, the standing collar of the light georgette sometimes embellished with a little embroidery in the color of the dark crepe, or hemstitched with it. Very small buttons, covered with the dark crepe over a foundation of satin to match, make a charming finish. They have nothing to do with the fastening of the blouse—this is accomplished by small snap fasteners.

Julia Bottomley

About the Edges of Things

The crocheted edge is frequently used instead of the more expensive real lace edge about every bit of handwork, from doilies to envelope chemise. Still, even the most practiced of needlewomen rather balk when it comes to punching all those holes in the edge. But one needlewoman experimented instead of uselessly balking. She discovered that a single row of machine hemstitching did the trick to perfection. So never mind stewing over the punch work any more. Simply have the hemstitching done first, and the crocheting will be delightfully easy to follow with.

New Handkerchiefs.

Handkerchiefs of crepe de chine are in brilliant colors. They are apparently well liked. Also colored linen and batiste are the rage. Some of them are quite small and have rounded corners.

Transparent Cretonnes.

Some new cretonnes for house-furnishing are woven in such manner that the light shines through special parts of the pattern with a very clear and beautiful effect, bringing out the color and design of flowers, while the background keeps its subdued, soft tones. Particularly handsome is a cretonne of this type with shaded pink roses on a black ground. The special weave of the fabric makes the roses and some of the leaves stand out against the dark background, giving the effect of a sunlit window even on a dull and overcast day.

Warm Velvet Negligees.

Velvet negligees have only one drawback: they are expensive. But they are not only beautiful, they are ideally comfortable for the cold days of winter. And those one sees this season are of such wide variety and of such lovely design, that everybody must surely find one that is becoming.

FEED ROUGHAGE AND SAVE GRAIN.

FEED ROUGHAGE TO SAVE GRAIN

Straw and Stover Satisfactory for Making Up Large Part of Winter Ration.

HUMAN FOOD IS CONSERVED

Largest Profits Returned From Herds Maintained Most Largely on Roughages—Not Good for Fattening—Swine.

Only those feeds should be used in wintering live stock which will keep the animals in a thrifty, growing condition. In following this policy it is possible for the stockman to cut down his own feed bills and prevent from going to waste many of his home-grown farm products which in the past have been entirely or partially lost in utilizing as far as possible corn stover, straw and such material, other products formerly fed to live stock, but which are suited and much needed for human food, can be conserved.

It is estimated that the total amount of corn stover and straws burned, plowed under, allowed to rot in stacks, and wasted in other ways is worth over $100,000,000. This is an appalling loss, and if these feedstuffs were used in the feeding of cattle, sheep, and horses it would result in increased profits to individual farmers as well as tend to increase the supply of meat and dairy products.

After three years' study with cattle in the corn belt the office of Farm Management of the United States department of agriculture has demonstrated that the breeding herds maintained most largely on roughage, such as oat or wheat straw and corn stover (with a very small quantity of concentrate feed, such as cottonseed meal, corn, etc.), are the herds from which the large profits are returned.

How Straw Is Used.

Of the total amount of straw produced annually in the United States, 54.9 per cent, or 64,708,000 tons, is estimated to have been used for feeding purposes, while that used for bedding is estimated at 12.3 per cent, or 14,519,000 tons. Accordingly, the total used in live stock production would be about 67.2 per cent, or 79,227,000 tons. The straw that was sold, plowed under, and burned amounted to about 32.8 per cent of the total, or 39,527,000 tons. Thus more than one-third of the total production of straw is being used to disadvantage, one-half of which is an almost total loss. If straw is not used by live stock or plowed under, its value as a soil-enriching material is mainly lost. Its chief value as a fertilizing material lies not in its fertilizing elements, but in its tissues as a source of humus. Because of its value as a food and, when used for bedding, as an absorbent of liquid manure, it is very poor economy to plow straw under when it can be used as a feedstuff or bedding material.

Use Straw and Stover.

Practical experience as well as experimental work has taught that straw and stover can be used very economically in the rations of almost all kinds of live stock. These roughages are and should be used in the fattening rations of all farm animals except hogs, and should compose a large part of all wintering or keeping rations for cattle, sheep, and horses. Breeding herds of beef cattle or dry dairy cows can be successfully kept on rations composed largely of these materials. Flocks of breeding ewes do well with such feeds when some grain is added. Horses doing very light or no work need little grain if given a plentiful allowance of clean, bright straw or stover. Under certain conditions, of course, grain should be added to the ration, but it should be conserved as largely as possible for human consumption.

Utilize Corn Stover.

The estimated total yield of corn stover in the United States is 245,253,000 tons. According to figures from the bureau of crop estimates, the corn stover was disposed of as follows: 57 per cent (140,000,000 tons) was fed to cattle; 23.6 per cent (58,000,000 tons) fed to other live stock; 3.7 per cent (9,000,000 tons) burned; 10.3 per cent (25,000,000 tons) plowed under; 2.6 per cent (6,000,000 tons) sold and 1.9 per cent (4,600,000 tons) used for other purposes, most of which was bedding. The yield of dry stover, as estimated varies from 1 to 6 1/2 tons per acre, with the average close to 3 tons per acre. The estimated value is about $2 a ton.

The disposition of corn stover in the United States is very similar in character to the disposition of straw, though differing somewhat in degree. About 55 per cent of the straw is fed, while 81.5 per cent of the stover is utilized in that way. Of the stover fed to live stock, however, it is estimated that at least 35 per cent is wasted. Straw is burned to the extent of 15 per cent, while only 3.7 per cent of the stover is disposed of in that manner. Straw sold amounted to 7.8 per cent, while only 2.6 per cent of the stover is marketed. This is to be expected, since straw is more easily handled in marketing. About 12 per cent of all straw is used for bedding, while less than 2 per cent of the stover is so used.

It is needless to say that burning the stover is a great waste, although it seems to offer a quick and easy method of cleaning the ground preparatory to plowing. This system is most largely practiced where the corn is snapped, or husked, in the field, leaving the stalks standing.

In some sections of the United States cattle are wintered with stover as the sole roughage, supplemented with a little grain. Breeding cows or stockers will winter nicely on stover and oat straw, together with a small quantity of either cottonseed meal, linseed oil meal, or corn. The meal, when fed without other grain, should be fed in the cake form, preferably of nut size. When fed in that manner it is not lost by dropping through cracks or by being blown away, and is not spoiled by saliva or rain.

In preparing stover for feeding purposes, cutting and shocking under general conditions involves less labor than shredding, and the waste is about offset by the labor factor. Chopping or shredding increases the palatability and reduces the storage space for housing the crop, but the labor involved greatly increases the cost of preparation. If cheap power and labor are available on the farm, shredding or cutting is to be recommended. Dry corn stover may be shredded or cut and put into the silo if sufficient water is added. The waste is greatly decreased in this manner, and the resulting feed somewhat resembles green silage and has been used successfully by some farmers.

A practice in certain sections, which is both uneconomical and wasteful is that of "pulling the fodder," or stripping the leaves from the stalk, leaving the stalk to be burned. Of the corn that is allowed to mature in the field, about 49 per cent is handled in that way. Another wasteful practice is that of "topping" the corn, by which the stalk above the top ear is removed and either stored or shocked for fodder. About 13 per cent of the matured corn is so handled. Of the stalks left standing in the field, 35 per cent are pastured, 33 per cent are plowed under, and 12 per cent are burned.

The total value of the stover produced in the United States in 1914 was about $436,337,000. Almost 4 per cent as stated above, or about $14,757,000 worth of it was burned. This waste is astonishing when one considers the feeding value of the material thus destroyed. To utilize the wasted straw and stover by feeding to cattle would, of course, involve the use of large quantities of concentrated feeds.

CUTTING FEED BILLS

The utilization of cottonseed meal and other feeds with our wasted straws and stover would mean not only a tremendous saving in the cost of producing meats and dairy products during the feeding of horses, but also a great saving in the cost of enriching the soil. Losses from these two sources from a nation-wide standpoint, as well as from the standpoint of the individual farmer, constitute a greater total than that of all other losses (except from disease) occurring on the American farm today.
