LOCAL TEMPLARS WILL CELEBRATE BIG EVENT

NORTHVILLE COMMANDERY TO ENTERTAIN GRAND OFFICERS ON OCCASION OF REACHING HUNDREDTH MARK IN MEMBERSHIP.

The event to which local Knights Templar have been looking forward for several months will occur next Tuesday afternoon and evening, when the one hundredth living member will be enrolled.

Two or three reasons make the occasion noteworthy. Commanderies are seldom allowed in towns as small as Northville for the reason that material is not available for a good working membership. It is not often that a small Commandery can make gains that will put its active membership to the 100 mark or beyond and so it is worth commemorating.

Northville Commandery started the Templar year with 87 members and will complete it April 1, with 102 members and the year ahead promises well.

The present celebration is important, too, because of the attendance of nearly all the Grand Commandery officers of Michigan, who number about 14. These men have been watching the activities of their local brethren with a great deal of interest because of the intensive campaign to make Northville Commandery more influential.

The program for Tuesday includes a group photograph of the Grand Commandery officers, visiting Sir Knights and the local membership, a banquet with speeches by visitors and others and the ritual work for the evening. The total expected attendance is placed at 150 and it will be a memorable affair for all concerned.

FORESTERS CELEBRATE SEVENTEENTH ANNUAL

The Northville Foresters have all their plans under way for an especially "big time" next week Friday night, March 28, when they will hold their seventeenth annual banquet, with those of their 36 soldier members who have returned from the U. S. service, as honor guests.

These occasions have always been listed among the most successful and enjoyable events of each year, and every effort is being made to have this one even better than any which has preceded it.

Very pretty little souvenir folders have been printed, containing the soldier honor roll, which will be presented to the members whose names appear thereon. Everything is to be free to the soldier boys.

VOTE FOR GOOD ROADS AT COMING ELECTION

The following extracts from an editorial in the Detroit News may serve to correct a false impression that exists in some degree concerning the amendment to permit the good roads bond issue:

A vote for the amendment is not a vote to appropriate $50,000,000 outright, but purely an enabling act, to give the Legislature authority, but not bind it, to issue bonds to improve highways, in an amount not to exceed $50,000,000. The Legislature, under the amendment, could issue good roads bonds in such amounts, and for such periods of time as it deemed wise as long as the total did not exceed $10,000,000.

The amendment would provide for state road building activities for about 10 years. "By ratifying the amendment Michigan will receive from the Federal Government one dollar for every dollar spent by the State on the trunk line system."

If it is not ratified the State will forfeit nearly $7,000,000 of Federal aid money already available for work on Michigan's trunk line system.

"Let the electors fix in their minds that the general proposition is for a $50,000,000 limitation, not a $50,000,000 appropriation. Many states have already taken the necessary action to secure the Federal aid."

INSTRUCTION FOR VOTERS.

Arrangements are under way for the holding of a school of instruction for voters who wish to be so instructed, and the first week in April has been designated as the best time for the same. The place has not been fully decided upon, but will be announced later.

RED CROSS NOTES.

The work rooms at the High school building will be open and warmed as usual, while the schools are closed for the spring vacation, Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday are the afternoons for work, and more help is needed. The southeast door will be unlocked.

Knitters for children's stockings are very necessary. Call at the work rooms for yarn on any of the above afternoons.

In response to a call from headquarters, used clothing will be received the first three afternoons of next week, commencing March 23, for refugee use. The articles most wanted are clothing for women and children, but please do not send anything not in decent wearing condition.

BENJAMIN TOLLMAN DEAD.

Benjamin Tollman, known for most of his lifetime as "Blind Bennie," died Tuesday at the home of his sister, Mrs. Geistler, in North Farmington, where he had been cared for since suffering a paralytic stroke a few weeks ago. Mr. Tollman had lived in Northville for several years past, until a few months ago, when he moved to Plymouth. Funeral services were held from the sister's home Friday afternoon, conducted by Rev. W. C. Francis of the Northville Methodist church, where the deceased was a member and a regular attendant while a resident here.

CHURCH SUPPER NEXT THURSDAY.

The "Try It" circle of the Baptist church is to serve a six o'clock supper Thursday, March 27, in the church parlors, to which the public is invited. The menu will include meat pie, mashed potatoes, salads, sandwiches, pickles, cake and coffee, all for the small price of 35 cents.

LOOK AT CHILD'S TONGUE IF SICK, CROSS, FEVERISH

HURRY, MOTHER! REMOVE POIS-SONS FROM LITTLE STOMACH, LIVER, BOWELS.

GIVE CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS
AT ONCE IF BILIOUS OR CONSTIPATED.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When feverish, cross, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, doesn't eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach-ache, sore throat, diarrhea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently moves out of the little bowels without griping, and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless "fruit laxative," they love its delicious taste and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. To be sure you get the genuine, ask to see that it is made up by California Fig Syrup Company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.—Adv.

On Himself.

Novelist Booth Tarkington tells with gusto this story against himself.

"I was struggling around an artist's Red Cross fair when two pretty flappers of sixteen or so came up and asked me for my autograph.

"I haven't got a fountain pen," I said. Much flattered, "Will pencil do?" "Yes," replied the older flapper, and so I took out a pencil and signed my name in the Morocco bound book that she had given me.

"The flapper studied my signature with a frown. Then she looked up and said:

"Aren't you Robert W. Chambers?" "No," said I. "I'm Booth Tarkington."

"The flapper turned to her friend with a shrug of disgust.

"Lend me your rubber, May," she said."

Snapping It Back.

Transatlantic Airplane Service Sure to Be Established Very Soon

By COL. WILLIAM A. BISHOP, Ace of Aces

The crossing of the Atlantic by airplane is a matter of only a few months, I believe, and thereafter will become a regular thing. One or two years and there will arise tremendous development in standardizing aerial transportation and passenger traffic. England is eager for the honor of producing the first machine and the first aeronaut who makes the flight. She feels keenly that America should not be allowed to win this prize as she has won laurels in the matter of yacht racing and other sports. Her rivalry is friendly but quite determined, and America had better look to herself. I'm betting on the old country. I'm hoping to make such a flight myself. Would be rather jolly to do it in a small machine, wouldn't it? John Bufronghe—your famous naturalist, you know—says he wants to come along with me, and perhaps I may take him. Would be sort of cementing the relationship of the two countries, you understand, although I don't think England and America need any.

It seems to me that England has quite a chance to win the honor of the first transatlantic flight. When I left that country a few months ago there were at least five large concerns working on a machine that will make the flight in all safety, and it is whispered that three other organizations are building gigantic planes, larger than any ever designed before, which will be able to carry several passengers. So sure are the Englishmen of being able to fly straight across the ocean that they are not even building their planes on the seagoing models. They rest assured they will never have to touch water. The English are either building or are about to build a vast airdrome at St. John's, N. B. Somehow the Englishmen don't seem to care about flying from England to America. They want to fly from America to England. Their reasons are sentimental, I suppose—want to land at home, under the old Union Jack, and all that sort of thing.

The thing is quite simple when all is said. Any small machine equipped with either of two powerful makes of American motors could do the trick, and the only reason I am not attempting the feat just now is because I'm under contract to do something else.

Illinois Leads in Nation-wide Demand for Reform in People's Nursing

By DR. M. L. HARRIS, President Illinois Hospital Association

The scarcity of registered nurses in the influenza epidemic was a national scandal. Illinois purposes to correct this condition by legislation which opens the way for general nursing by qualified persons. Hence the introduction of the "people's nursing bill" in the general assembly. The lead of Illinois for reform will be followed in many states.

The reform will be a godsend to the people of Illinois, rich and poor. Since the influenza came upon us it has been almost impossible to obtain registered nurses. The doctors of Illinois had hard work getting nurses even before the epidemic. In 50 per cent of Illinois towns there are no registered nurses. The registered nurses are so scarce that they can pick their own places to go, almost, and can charge their own price.

We are not opposing the registered nurses or the requirements for registered nurses. Our bill upholds all the requirements in their code. But the scarcity of nurses must be corrected. Under the law even a member of the family could not legally care for stricken relatives. Our bill does not permit nursing of patients in critical operations by other than registered nurses, but it does provide for the availability of great numbers of women who would do good work as nurses in just such emergencies as the recent influenza epidemic.

The feature of the bill is that it provides for a one-year course in training schools. Instead of two years, as under the present law, and authorizes the state board of registration to certify graduates of the one-year-term schools as registered nurses.

Section 13 reads: "Any training school for nurses in this state in good standing may provide a course of one year's training, and may graduate persons completing such course provided such persons shall have reached the age of twenty years and have the same qualifications as to preliminary education as are prescribed in Section 3 of this act." Section 3 prescribes a certificate as a graduate of the grammar-school course in Illinois, or the equivalent of such schooling.

This measure has the backing of the Chicago Medical society, the Journal of the American Medical association, the Illinois hospital association and the public generally.

The Mere Sight of an American Girl Spells H-O-M-E to the Doughboy

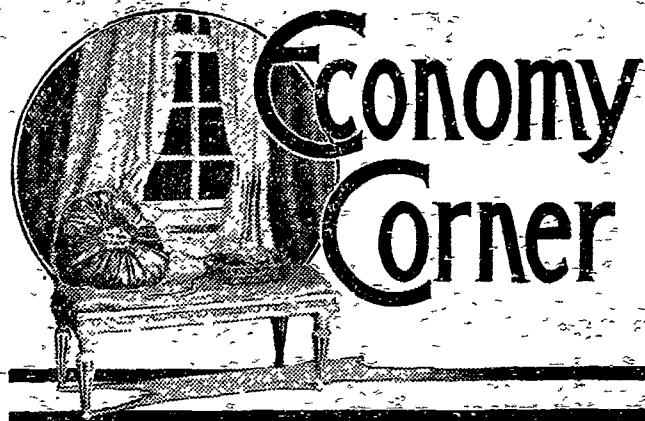

By MARY ROBERTS RINEHART, American Writer

It has been said that the American girl's work is done abroad, and that the sooner mother gets her home again the better. In my long tour I saw a few girls who seemed overtired and nerve-strained. These were chiefly young women whose work kept them confined closely in offices. They had not the stimulus of anything social or very interesting. Mostly they had been for a long time in the little towns where they were first assigned. They had no chance to see other places or to meet fellow Americans or mingle in the life of the camps even to the extent of the canteen workers. These girls should be relieved, either by transfer or by being sent home. Fresh helpers should replace them.

The canteen and general welfare girls—and I saw hundreds of them—are not in any more danger of moral or physical breakdown now than they have been at any time since they went over. And that is negligible. When they are fatigued they can rest.

Oh, what a psychological effect a good doughnut can have upon a doughboy! I have seen homesickness vanish with the first mouthful. Even when the doughnut is made by the 'prentice hand of a French peasant woman it performs miracles of cheer. When it is made and proffered by an American girl, with an American smile—well, say—words can't describe what happens. You have to be there and see it. And it's beautiful.

Our boys need the American girl as a tie. The mere sight of her spells H-O-M-E and the best traditions of America.

The time is at hand for taking out summer clothes that have been packed away and packing away winter garments that are to do further service in another season. And this is the time, of all times, to go out after that frightful pest the moth, that works so much havoc from year to year, and to kill off insects and eggs. All garments that can be washed and ironed should be made clean by this process before packing, and the ironing is to be thoroughly done with a hot iron. Garments cleaned by several immersions in gasoline may be relied upon to be free of animal life, and sunlight is fatal. It is said, to the moth, so a good airing in sun and wind will be practical for garments that will not fade.

But the moth takes up its abode in closets, baseboards, door and window casings, and all sorts of crevices; in carpets, furniture and hangings, and is hard to dislodge.

Gasoline is a very effective destroyer of the insect and its eggs and does no harm to the furniture, woodwork or hangings that are washed with it. It is a dangerous remedy to handle unless the right precautions are taken. But it will make a finish of moths in furniture and is the most convenient remedy to use.

Choose a clear, bright day and have all the doors and windows in the rooms to be treated wide open. See that there is no fire or burning gas jet in the house or flame from any source. Take an oil can, with a fog sprout or an old tea kettle, and pour a stream of gasoline along all crevices where the moths might be lodged. Gasoline may be sprayed over chairs, couches, or anywhere else that is difficult to get at. Hangings should be sprayed Dainty Aprons of Silk.

Just why serving-afternoon tea requires a silken apron is a mystery, but that the little accessory is altogether fascinating and adds charm to the most enchanting of hostesses is very clear. Picture a straight knee-length apron of white taffeta striped in inch-wide ribbon of black velvet and banded and sashed with the same. Why, it's irresistible! Such a trivoli makes an unusual gift. The width of these aprons is generous—the edges all but meeting at the back. A pretty one for home use can be made from an old silk frock, for, of course, any color is permissible.

Brocade Jersey Sweater.

Some of the smart new sweaters are made of a sort of jersey-silk brocade into a soft pattern. These sweaters are made with great simplicity, depending on the attractiveness of the fabric to give them charm.

Georgette Blouses Hold Center of Stage

Sometimes alone and sometimes in the company of other fine fabrics, Georgette crepe in blouses continues to hold the center of the stage in spring styles. Its part in the drama of fashions is amplified and made interesting by all sorts of embellishments. Silk embroidery—bead embroidery, needlework, lace, in frills and insets—tucks and other stitchery, small buttons, are all among the available things that contribute toward the success of the star performer. And the variety of designs is interesting. In fact, if variety is the spice of life in fashions, then life is highly spiced this spring, whichever way one may look.

One cannot stroll far in a waist shop without coming upon blouses in the darker colored crepe among the many in white, pink and flesh. And among the darker waists, there are always navy blue models that inspire a longing to possess them in every woman of well-regulated taste. The always lovely combination of navy blue and beige is here again, and navy with American Beauty glows among the successes of the season's color combinations. Biege combines well with many stronger colors.

In the blouse pictured a vest of satin, and odd cuffs of it, matching the crepe in color, help out in the construction of the model. Satin-covered buttons and both silk and bead embroidery make a rich finish for it. It is a good choice when one is looking for a dressy blouse to match a tailored suit in color.

For utility blouses voile deserves to be given much consideration. It is as dainty as Georgette and will stand the strain of wear and constant laundering better than anything else. It pays to buy a fine quality and to put handwork into its making and decoration, since these are the things that make a blouse high grade.

Julia Bottomley

For the Young Girl.

Simple evening dresses, and dance frocks play an important part in the wardrobe of the young woman and, for the spring, pompadour taffetas, are very popular. Easter is quite late this year and evening frocks selected for post-Easter festivities may be very summery in character. When pompadour taffeta is selected, only the one material is used, except where filmy net is used to drape the top of bodice and edge the short puffed taffeta sleeves. Many charming little dance frocks are made of fine white net, trimmed fancifully with puffs of taffeta ribbon applied in lover's knot designs, etc., on both skirt and bodice.

Oilcloth Bags and Rag Bags.

Oilcloth shopping bags, made of black, shiny oilcloth, gaily painted with brilliant flowers in red, yellow, green and blue, are decidedly cheerful and make the task of marketing a brighter one.

Oh! My Face

People who have impure or impoverished blood, should be careful to take only a temperance remedy made of wild roots and bark such as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is and has been for nearly 50 years. Ingredients printed on wrapper.

The first day you start to take this reliable medicine, impure germs and accumulation begin to separate in the blood and are then expelled through the eliminative organs.

In place of the impurities, the arteries and veins gradually get fresh vitalized blood and the action of this good blood on the skin means that pimples, boils, carbuncles, eczema, rash, acne and all skin blemishes will disappear. Then you must remember that when the blood is right, the liver, stomach, bowels and kidneys become healthy, active and vigorous and you will have no more trouble with indigestion, backache, headache.

Get Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to-day at any medicine dealer, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10c for trial package to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

Occasionally one should "clean house" with castor oil or any pills made up of the May apple, leaves of aloë and root of jalap, first put up by Dr. Pierce and now sold by almost all druggists in this country, as Doctor Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. Always convenient to take.

"Blue" and Worried?

"Blue," worried, half-back—people should find out the cause of their troubles. Often it is merely faulty kidney action, which allows the blood to get loaded up with poisons that irritate the nerves. Backache, headaches, dizziness and annoying bladder troubles are added proofs that the kidneys need help. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Thousands thank them for relief from just such troubles.

A Michigan Case. Mrs. Wm. Campbell, W. Spruce St., Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., says: "I was subject to severe backaches and sharp pains across my kidneys. My back ached at night and mornings, I felt tired and had no strength. I often had nervous spells, accompanied by severe headaches. I used Doan's Kidney Pills and one box gave me entire relief. I never fail to recommend this medicine when I have an opportunity. Doan's completely and permanently cured me."

SMOKING TOBACCO FACTS FROM THE ENCYCLOPAEDIA

The Use of Flavorings Determines Difference in Brands

The Encyclopedia Britannica says about the manufacture of smoking tobacco: "...on the Continent and in America, certain 'sauces' are employed. The use of the 'sauces' is to improve the flavor and burning qualities of the leaves." Which indicates that a smoker's enjoyment depends as much upon the flavoring used as upon the tobacco.

Your nose is a sure guide in the matter of flavorings. Try this simple test with several tobacco brands: pour some tobacco into your palm, rub briskly, and smell. You will notice a distinct difference in the fragrance of every brand. The tobacco that smells best to you will smoke best in your pipe, you can rest assured.

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL HAIR

A small bottle of "Danderine" makes hair thick, glossy and wavy.

Removes all dandruff, stops itching scalp and falling hair.

To be possessed of a head of heavy, beautiful hair—soft, lustrous, fluffy, wavy and free from dandruff is merely a matter of using a little Danderine.

It is easy and inexpensive to have nice, soft hair and lots of it. Just get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine now—it costs but a few cents—all drug stores recommend it—apply a little as directed and within ten minutes there will be an appearance of abundance, freshness, fluffiness and an incomparable gloss and lustre, and try as you will you cannot find a trace of dandruff or falling hair; but your real surprise will be after about two weeks' use, when you will see new hair—fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—sprouting out all over your scalp—Danderine is, we believe, the only sure hair-grower, destroyer of dandruff and cure for itching scalp, and it never fails to stop falling hair at once.

If you want to prove how pretty and soft your hair really is, moisten a cloth with a little Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair—taking one small strand at a time. Your hair will be soft, glossy and beautiful in just a few moments—a delightful surprise awaits everyone who tries this. Adv.

Some Don't Know It.

Here's a registration card which, though late, still has its laugh.

Louis Yvonne was born in sunny Italy. When he registered he was required to fill out an information slip giving name and other personal facts. He was a bright boy and made no mistakes until he came to the line marked "Born," followed by a blank space. In this Louis wrote down very neatly the one word, "Yes."

WOMEN NEED SWAMP-ROOT

Thousands of women have kidney and bladder trouble and they suspect it. Women's complaints can rarely be anything else but kidney trouble—the result of kidney or bladder disease.

If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

Pain in the back, headache, loss of ambition, nervousness, are often times symptoms of kidney trouble.

Don't delay starting treatment. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription, obtained at any drug store, may be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Get a medium or large size bottle immediately from any drug store. However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure to mention this paper.—Adv.

FIVE FRIDAYS

By FRANK R. ADAMS

"You seem to know a good deal about detective methods," I said, with mock admiration.

"Feh," he responded seriously. "I ought to. I've been chased by some of the best detectives in New York."

Then he added proudly, "I had Burns after me once."

"Under her window is the first place to look," said Kent, alive with interest now in the scheme. "Where did she sleep?"

I picked out the window of Mrs. Green's room, and we carefully searched the wet ground underneath by lighting matches.

"Isn't it more probable that she would come out by the door?" I suggested. "She could never climb from that second-story window."

"Sure she could," he asserted. "See that rain pipe here? It goes alongside her window. A lady like her could shin up and down that like a mouse."

Someway the picture of my future mother-in-law (I hoped) frisking up and down a narrow water pipe was beyond my imagination.

"Look here!" exclaimed my companion, pointing to the ground in front of him. "Is that or is it not the print of a lady's shoe?"

I looked. There was certainly a footprint there, and it was small and narrow.

"It's fresh, too. You can tell by the mud that it's been made since the heavy rain. Old footprints would have been washed out anyhow."

This was sure enough reasoning. Kent started to walk in the direction that the footprints led, and I followed. All at once Kent stopped, and lit several matches all in one place.

"I think I've solved the mystery," he said, bending over the mud. "But it looks bad for the doll. There's a guy following her. Look at these marks."

With a shudder I verified his statement. Larger footprints were in the mud with the small ones. The owner of the larger shoes had evidently followed the lady, because in many cases the small footprints were partially obliterated by the larger ones.

Kent echoed my own thought. "Gee, I wish we had brought the gun with us."

"Let's hurry on before it's too late," I urged.

We pressed forward at a killing pace, only stopping once in awhile to assure ourselves that we were on the right track. At one place the ground was trampled over a considerable area.

"He caught up with her here," Kent interpreted. "They struggled. Look, she dropped this."

He picked up a handkerchief. By the light of a match I discovered that it was marked "G." There could be no doubt; we were on the right track.

"She got away from him, though," exclaimed Kent. "See here, just beyond her footsteps are ahead again."

CHAPTER VI. More Mystery.

A QUICK spurt of flame ahead halted us in our search for Mrs. Green. We heard an indistinct murmur of voices, the sound of twigs being broken, then absolute silence.

"Sh!" Kent whispered. "As we are not armed, we must creep up as close as we can, then when the son of a gun pipes us off we can spring on him before he can wing us. Do you get me?"

I admitted that his plan was good.

"Then on your knees and be careful," he commanded. We crept through mud puddles without noticing them.

Then I heard the sound of a safety match being scratched unsuccessfully against a box. When it finally lighted what would be revealed?

A jagged circle of yellow light flickered a moment while I crouched ready to spring, then burned dimmer and went out. The silence was unbroken until the light disappeared, then Bopp's laugh rang out loud and clear, followed a moment later by a hysterical giggle which I recognized as Lucile's.

While I scuttled away as hastily as possible in order to be out of range before he could light another match, I heard him say in a childish falsetto, "One—two—three for Monty!"

I did not hear what else he had to offer because I got out of earshot as soon as possible. A few hundred yards on the trail back to the house Kent joined me. We proceeded Indian fashion silently for a while.

Finally he ruminated: "It's sure queer how I forgot about her and him being on the island. If it hadn't been for them we was doing fine. I suppose we'll have to go back to the house and begin all over again."

"No more footprints," I insisted hastily. "We'll just hunt as plain amateur hunters and cat out the detective stuff."

Kent was visibly crestfallen. Suddenly the muffled report of a gun reached our ears.

"They've found her," said Kent without enthusiasm. "Let's go back."

I hesitated. I hated to face Lucile after the ridiculous scene of a short time before. Finally I assented.

When we reached the house no one was in sight.

"Probably upstairs putting the old dame to bed," Kent said.

I went up, tapped on Mrs. Green's door and entered. There was no sign of her. Puzzled, I went downstairs.

"Nobody there," I announced to Kent.

Just at that moment there was a sound outside, and I looked out to see Lucile and Bopp arriving.

"Well," sighed Lucile, "where's mother?"

"Where did you put her?" I countered.

"I haven't seen her," I exclaimed Lucile. "I haven't seen her," Kent interjected.

"Then who fired the revolver?" "Didn't you?" interposed Bopp.

"No."

"Who did, then?" with sudden apprehension.

Kent picked up the gun from the table and broke it. Six loaded cartridges dropped out.

"This cannon ain't been fired," he said, sniffing the barrel.

We looked at one another with frightened eyes. What unseen force was playing pranks on us? First the disappearance of Mrs. Green, then the revolver shot coming out of the air—it seemed too much to account for by natural means.

When the telephone bell rang, our nerves, all on paper edge, gave one united leap. I answered the summons.

"Hello!" I said.

"This is the telegraph operator at Fair View," said a masculine voice. "Have you got a party at your place named N. Blaney or something like that?"

"Yes, I am Mr. Blaney."

"Probably it's for you, then. We got a rush message for N. Blaney which we can't deliver to you on account of the storm. Are you expecting anything?"

"Yes," I assented; "I am always getting telegrams. Read it to me over the telephone."

"I can't do that. I don't know you. You'll have to get Mr. Green or one of his family to take the message for you."

"Very well. Hold the wire," I requested, putting my hand over the mouthpiece. "Lucile, will you take this telegram? It's for me, but they say they'll have to read it to some member of the family because they don't know me."

Lucile took the receiver, picked up a pencil hanging by a string to the telephone and wrote down the telegram on a scratch pad on the wall as the operator read it over the wire. When it was done, without comment she handed it to me.

It read as follows:

N. Blaney—Coming to you at last. Arrive today. Have marriage license ready. VIVA DUMMORE.

"Wait," I exclaimed; "this can't be for me. Call up that operator again."

"Don't try to explain," said Lucile coldly. "I suppose you don't even know who Vida Dummore is?"

I debated a moment as to whether I should lie or not, but what was the use? I did know a Vida Dummore, an actress. In fact, I had seen and criticized her work only the week before.

"Yes," I said slowly. "I know her, or I know a girl by that name, but we are not friends. This telegram is a mistake."

I saw that she did not believe me, but I had no chance to explain, because in an instant we had all jumped to our feet and were straining our overwrought nerves to catch a sound which punctuated the roar of the storm.

Somewhere near a revolver shot had been fired.

We all hastened out of doors.

"Do you suppose some one is shooting at mother?" Lucile worried.

I tried to reassure her, but my efforts were politely repulsed. Apparently the matter of the telegram had erected a wall of ice between us.

"It sounded as if it came from the beach," Kent pointed in the direction of the dock.

"No, I am sure it was inland," argued Bopp.

At heart I was inclined to agree with my rival, but rather than appear to do so I started for the water front.

Around a bank of bushes I came in full sight of the lake. There was a comparatively quiet cove where the dock was, but just beyond a headland which sheltered the cove the waves were piling over themselves in boiling torrents where a sharp toothed reef was hidden a couple of feet below the surface.

The explanation of the revolver shots was obvious. A small steamboat was jammed hard and fast on the rocks and was pounding herself with a violence which prophesied a short life for her hull. Just as I appeared a man forer of the pilothouse fired a revolver in the air. As soon as he saw me he began to wave his arms violently and pointed to three other figures crouched on the deck.

By this time the rest of our party had caught up with me.

"He seems to be signaling," Bopp interpreted sagely. "Wonder what he wants."

"What would you want if you were in a boat aground in the lake with every chance of going to pieces in ten minutes?" I yelled so as to be heard above the sea. "I suppose you would be wishing for some poached plover's eggs on a strip of toast?"

"They can't expect us to come out there and get them," he decided. "No boat could live in that sea. It would be suicide to attempt to reach them."

"We must do something," Lucile decided, with ready sympathy. "I'm very fond of the captain. He's been bringing our supplies for ten years."

"Is that the supply boat?" Bopp demanded.

"Why, yes; certainly."

"We must do something at once," Bopp began to run around in busy circles in the sand. "We must attempt to reach the poor devils. Kent, where is that boat of yours?"

"I drew it up on the shore here, right alongside the dock. Why, where is it?"

"Gone, eh?" Bopp shook his head knowingly. "Probably the heavy sea washed it off."

"Yes, but no sea ever untied the knot I had in her painter around this post here," Kent would have seen a mystery in Utopia. His mind insisted upon being pitted against the unknown.

"Well, what are we going to do?" Bopp said helplessly. "Those poor devils out there are counting on us. Think of being on a vessel loaded with bread, butter, eggs, vegetables and meat and having it break up under your feet. What shall we do?"

"I'm afraid we won't have time to do anything," I decided. "Her back is broken. It's only a question of seconds now."

The people on board realized it too. They hastily launched a life raft over the side and scrambled on to it as the decks crumpled beneath them and became a twisted mass of timbers that writhed for a moment and fell back into the waves to become driftwood.

The raft fortunately had cleared the wreck in plenty of time and was now drifting past our cove toward the mainland. The men on board seemed busy arranging a sort of mast and sail made out of an oar and a couple of oiskins. When they got that rigged up two of them held it up while a third attempted to steer with a second oar.

"They're going to try to land on the other point of the cove," Lucile said. "We must be there to help them when they come ashore. There are rocks about a hundred yards out where the raft will strike if it isn't driven past."

She led off on a dog trot which took the last tack out of me when I attempted to follow. I got there some way, however, but minus the power of speech.

"Don't land here!" shouted Lucile into the teeth of the gale. "Dangerous rocks!"

They discovered the rocks for themselves almost immediately and slid off from the raft in a compact group. Under the direction of Kent, who had read a book about it somewhere, we formed ourselves into a life line by holding on to one another's hands and wading out into the surf.

One by one the shipwrecked victims struggled to us and were passed on up to the shore. Three were landed in this way, but the fourth failed to make it. I could see a head bobbing up and down a hundred feet away, but in a moment the head disappeared altogether.

Are You a Superior Person?

A professor of psychology announced to his class somewhat humorously one day that he should propound a problem by means of which each member could prove to his own satisfaction whether or not he was a superior person. The average person, he explained, never works it out; only the person of superior practical ability succeeds. Here is the problem, as propounded by the Youth's Companion:

A map has two pails, one of which holds exactly five quarts and the other exactly three quarts. He is sent to the river to bring back exactly seven quarts of water, no more, no less. With only the five-quart pail and the three-quart pail how can he measure exactly seven quarts? Can you solve it?

ENID'S POSTER

By SOPHIA B. COHEN.

"Home, home, home," the rumbling wheels of the express kept up a noisy accompaniment to the riotous song of joy in Enid Blair's heart. After an absence of five years she was coming back to the little village where she was born and had lived until the lure of the city grew too strong for her to resist. Her heart beat quickly as she thought of the old folks and of Tom Marvin.

Tom Marvin—his name brought up long-forgotten memories. Would he be the same? They had been comrades in Millville and had faithfully promised to write to each other when she left. At first her letters had gone and come quite regularly. Enid was working hard, and soon her efforts at painting gained recognition. Then, with her triumphant success, came harder work and a gradual forgetfulness of the old Millville associations, and their correspondence ceased altogether. Tom also was busy. She heard vaguely that he was the life and soul of the movement on foot to arouse the sleepy, picturesque village of Millville and make a busy, enterprising town of it. She heard, too, that he had been highly successful and was now one of the leading citizens of the town. A cold fear clutched at her heart. Had he married?

Enid took a short vacation from her work and during the time met Tom only once. He had nodded to her as he passed on as casual acquaintances. The next three weeks were busy ones for Enid. The establishing of her studio left her no time to think of Tom's coldness. Finally the last touches had been added and a neat placard outside announced that "Miss Blair needs a model for a war poster."

Many applicants came, but none seemed to be just what she wanted.

Even Uncle Billy, the town patriarch, offered himself as a model, and loathed out of the studio very much hurt at having been firmly refused in spite of all his pleading. He could not seem to understand that what Enid needed was a young man, upright and strong, and poor old Billy was almost ninety and bent double with rheumatism.

After a month of anxious waiting, Enid despaired and had almost decided to go back to the city, where she could easily obtain a model at an hour's notice. Then, at the beginning of the fifth week as Enid was just starting to pack, Tom Marvin walked in with the placard under his arm. Enid dropped the box she was holding and stared.

"Er—Miss Blair," he began awkwardly. "You need a model; maybe I will do."

Enid thought she detected a twinkle of laughter through his diffidence, and immediately regained her composure.

"Let me see," she said, deliberately, and appraised him with cold, professional calm while he squirmed under her impersonal gaze.

"Yes, you'll do, Mr. Marvin," she said briskly, and Tom felt strangely, unreasonably elated.

The sittings began immediately, and were a source of pain and joy to them both. Tom thought Enid looked prettier than ever in her long smock as she bent her fair head critically this way and that to observe the effect of the poster, but he could not break down the barrier of reserve that stood between them. And Enid could not but notice how strong and manly Tom had grown. So the sittings went on. They spoke of many things, but never of that which lay nearest the hearts of both. The poster grew, and the sketches of color took on definite form. Enid saw with joy that it was far exceeding her anticipation, and in her mind attributed this to her inspiring model.

Finally the poster was done. Tom sat dully for a moment when he realized that there were to be no more sittings. Then a happy thought came to him.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he asked.

The abrupt words brought Enid out of her reverie. She looked at him in bewilderment.

"Will you sell that poster to me?" he repeated.

"But I intended to donate it for the drive next week," she faltered.

Then she suddenly realized that she would see him no more after she left Millville. Why not keep the poster as a remembrance?

"No, I won't sell it to you," she added somewhat fiercely.

"Why?" He stepped nearer.

Enid could keep the tears back no longer.

"Can't you understand?" she sobbed. He did understand, and she was in his arms immediately.

"Enid, do you mean—?" A stifled "yes" from his shoulder told him all he wished to know. There was no need of explanations.

The next week a wonderful poster was donated for the drive in the name of Mr. and Mrs. Marvin. There was no need of keeping it now, for Enid, had Tom forever, and as for him, why she could paint innumerable pictures of him any time.

A LETTER FROM SERGT. CARL VAN.

Sergeant Carl Van Valkenburg writes his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Van Valkenburg, as follows, from Chapman Field, Miami, Florida:

"It is very hot here today, something above 80 in this office, but a nice breeze is blowing in from the bay, which makes it very nice, at that. So far, I like the place, but I haven't been around much as yet. Last night I took a walk down the palm grove and up to the bay, and it was sure nice.

"It seems queer to see so much tropical country and everything that goes with it. The field itself is on good foundation being built on a rock-bed of coral formation. One would be led to believe that at some time the bay had extended over this section. In all parts of the camp, when they wanted to do anything they first had to blast the rocks away. I don't wonder it took a long time to build this place. The other morning it rained for nearly an hour, and as soon as it stopped one would not have known that it had rained at all. The flying field itself, however, had to be filled in for 18 inches; big dredges coming up along the outside digging their way up and at the same time filling in the field, which at present is soft and boggy, and it will take it some time to dry out. The water from the bay followed the dredges, so we have a nice canal five or six feet deep most of the way around the field.

"I was just thinking that it is just a year ago today that I was getting ready to come south for my health or whatever you want to call it. I never expected to stay on this side all the time, but as I did, I will be in the service for some time yet."

GROCERY AND MEAT MARKET; EX-CHANGE HOTEL and FEED BARN.

Dear Friends:

Peter, Peter,
Pumpkin Eater,
Had a wife
And couldn't keep her.

Until Couch started his Grocery and Meat Market. He went there for his Potatoes, Meat, and Flour, and now can keep her very well without putting her in a pumpkin shell. Well, the Smiths store is here, and I can say as the little boy said when the Dr. said to him, "Well, Boy, how do you like the new baby?" and the boy said, "the baby is alright, but there are other things we need more."

Well, do not forget the Dill, and Sour, and Sweet Pickles, cheaper and better than when they came out of the patch.

I have good Ground Coffee, 25 cts, better than lots of their 35 ct. Coffee.

I am headquarters for Potatoes, Beans, both Navy and Lima. Lots of Barrel Pork, 25 cts, per pound.

Tea, and Tea-Bittings. And the best of it is, I would rather sell on time than for cash, because if I get held up and the hold-up man gets the accounts, he will be glad to give some of it back to me. I can collect them when he will fail. I can nearly get blood out of a turnip.

Don't Mistake The Cause

Many Northville People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It.
Do you have backache?
Are you tired and worn out?
Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed?
Are the kidney secretions irregular?
Highly colored; contain sediment?
Likely your kidneys are at fault.
Weak kidneys give warning of distress.

Heed the warning; don't delay—
Use a tested kidney remedy—
Read this Ann Arbor testimony—
P. J. Desmond, 301-W Summit St., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "Whenever my kidneys get weak, causing my back to ache or be sore, or the kidney secretions pass too freely, or when I am tired or languid, I use a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am soon all right again. Doan's have never failed to help me and I keep them in the Northville Newslets.

Only two women voted at the Redford village election.

Mrs. C. J. Ball has been quite ill
this week with a cold.

Wayne, also, has elected a woman to the office of village treasurer.

Vote "No" on the brewers' amendment, and "Yes" on the good roads bond proposition.

Mrs. Flora Peterson has resumed her work at the Edison office after a two or three weeks' illness.

The twin babies at the Harry Morris home are doing nicely since they were brought back to Northville.

Ladies, remember that next Saturday, March 22, is your last chance to register for the spring election.

Although 123 women voted at Mil-ford's municipal election, none of the four women nominated were elected.

Miss Ella Wilcox who has been seriously ill for several months has recovered sufficiently to be able to walk up town.

K. P. Club room open tonight and every Friday night. Tonight there will be cigars on hand for those who enjoy the rolled up weed.

Fred Allen, formerly of this village, has again been elected village clerk at Orion, where he has had a furniture and undertaking business for some years past.

That Candlemas day ground hog has a completely ruined reputation.
The "mushrats" put it all over him when they decided not to prepare winter quarters, last fall.

A pleasant little dance was given in Foresters' hall Saturday night as a "welcome home" to one of our soldiers, Sergt. Bill Jones, who has recently returned from France.

W. A. Parmenter has sold his property on Northside lately occupied by Mrs. C. C. Keyes to Henry Toussaint, and Mrs. Keyes has moved to the Wm
Walter house on Grace avenue.

A Town Corners citizen has not been in good health of late and the medicine man advised him to have his teeth drawn and new ones substituted. He has had one tooth pulled up to date and is much improved.—Town Corners
Cor. Orion Review.

The D. U. R. will turn their tracks off "Grand" River opposite the garage and cross to Davison street over their own property. The present track from the garage to Davison street will be abandoned entirely, leaving our business section clear.—Farmington Enterprise.

The Detroit Edison Co. is extending its service line east of this village and has contracted with the farmers from the village limits east to Fred Everett's, to furnish them light and power service. This means that at least a dozen farm homes will soon be equipped with electricity.—South Lyon Herald.

In many cities and towns "Registration Drives" are being planned.
A house to house canvass will enlist every qualified woman to register in time to cast her vote April 7th. Many communities manifest a certain pride in showing that their women are not only intelligent enough to vote but are alert along civic lines, and possess a high degree of patriotism.

The Holly Advertiser is the only one of the Record's exchanges which notifies any considerable quantity of wrongly marked ballots where women voted in large numbers, but the Advertiser states that many spoiled ballots are an annual occurrence there anyway. In nearly every paper comment is made on the correctness with which the women voters marked their ballots.

Peter Barley, who has been quite seriously sick, is somewhat better.

Today—Friday, March 21—is, alma-nac-al-ly speaking, the first day of spring.

Catholic services will be held next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock, in Scott's hall.

The Hustlers' circle of the Baptist church will hold a bake sale at Huff's store Saturday, March 22.

Miss Ruth Christensen has been nominated as treasurer on the Novi Democratic township ticket.

The Main 500-club was entertained at a six o'clock dinner Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Alexander.

John Knapp, who has been on the sick list for some weeks past, is improved enough to be out of doors a little this week.

Street Commissioner Austin has been doing some much-needed and effective work on the village streets by the floating process.

The Quality club was entertained at a six o'clock dinner Wednesday by Mrs. C. A. Ponsford and Mrs. E. E.
Miller at the Ponsford home.

Maple syrup making has been more or less prevalent in town of late, according to the number of maple trees possessed by the various property owners.

W. J. Thompson, proprietor of the Alseum, has now resumed personal management of that theatre, which has been very successfully conducted by Mrs. Seymour Brown for some months past.

The annual public ball of the Plymouth High School Alumni is to take place this Friday evening in the new Penniman-Allen auditorium. A number of Northville young people will probably attend.

A very pleasant family gathering was held last Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McCullough in honor of three members of the family whose birthdays occur in March.
Some very nice gifts were presented and a delicious dinner was enjoyed.

Miss Mary Keeler, a foster sister of Mrs. George Grinnell died at the Grinnell home Wednesday. The body was taken to Romeo Thursday for the funeral and burial. Miss Keeler had lived in Northville for about four months.

A Wayne bill has been introduced in the legislature increasing the pay of the Chief Deputy Sheriff Larkins and Turnkey Brooks to $3,000 and Undersheriff Wilson to $2,000. Increased work of the office is the claim for the bulge.

A very pleasant social gathering was held in the Library Monday evening, when F. J. Cechran and Mrs. B.
R. Gilbert were the hostesses for a party of 20 men and women. Games, music and a dainty luncheon were features of the occasion.

Northville people are reminded that the Library building is now available for all kinds of social gatherings, and at a reasonable rental. During the fuel stringency of a year ago, it was decided by the board that the limited supply would not allow any extra use, so the building has only been used for the regular purposes from that time until this spring.

The new "Between Ourselves" club of eight ladies held an extremely pleasant first meeting Monday afternoon with Mrs. Charles A. Dolph.
The luncheon menu, decorations and favors were carried out in a color scheme appropriate to St. Patrick's day. During the afternoon the affair was discovered to be an unintentional birthday party for one of the members,
Mrs. Lizzie Harger.

The Plymouth Mail tells of the death on Tuesday, March 11, of Mrs. Walter Riggs at her home in Bay City, after a few days' illness following a surgical operation. Mrs. Riggs, who was a daughter of Mrs. Herbert Hughes of Waterford, was well known in Northville as Sadie Hughes, attending school here during her girlhood. She was married only a year ago, her husband being a Plymouth boy, brother of E. L. and Eugene Riggs of that place.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy.
Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surface. Hall's Catarrh Medicine acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. All Druggists. 75c.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS NOTES.

(By the Press Correspondent.)

An impromptu celebration of the 28th anniversary of Corps No. 225, was held at last week's meeting, the absence and illness of the three first officers having prevented the usual annual preparations for observation of that event. By a fortunate coincidence, Mrs. Ida Joslin, now of Detroit, the first president of the Corps, was present, and was elected to preside.
Only eight of the charter members are now living and of these, our chaplain, Mrs. Olive Charter, and Mrs. Joslin were the only ones present. Four new members were initiated, four elected and three applications received.
Ice-cream and wafers were served by the executive committee at the close of the meeting.

The next regular meeting will be held March 28. Let every member try to be present. There will be initiation and balloting. Those who were not at the last meeting missed a good, "sweet" time.

HEAVIEST EGG PRODUCTION IS IN SPRING AND IS ATTRACTIVE TIME FOR RANGING

Incubator Hatched Chicks Allowed to Run Out Early in Spring.

(By WILLIAM A. LIPPINCOTT, Professor of Poultry Husbandry, Kansas State Agricultural College.)

Greenness, grit, grubs and gumption are essentials for thrifty chicks. Gumption may have to be bred into the chicks to a large extent, but the greenness, grit and grubs can be easily and economically furnished if the chicks are range-raised. And the fact that the heaviest egg production of the year comes in the spring which is the most attractive time for ranging, is no mere coincidence.

The reasons why ranging is attractive in the spring are that everywhere tender green shoots are available, which chickens, young and old, love. And there is an abundance of insects, worms and grubs which the birds not only greatly enjoy, but which furnish material out of which blood, muscle and feathers may be made by growing chicks and egg whites by laying hens. So eagerly are these things sought after that it keeps the youngsters hustling from sunrise to sundown, and getting a world of good exercise which is so necessary for young stock. It keeps the birds hunting (too, which is very essential in keeping the system of the heavy layer in good working order).

Greatest of Faults.

One of the greatest faults of poultry feeding is over-feeding. The art of feeding laying stock or young chicks lies in so stimulating the appetite that they will consume large amounts of feed without clogging the system. There is no surer way to defeat this than to overfeed and nothing in the method of feeding, short of starvation, will do more damage to growing chicks or cut down egg production quicker than over-feeding. On one range the chance of over-feeding is almost negligible. One may put out hoppers of feed for the growing young stock, containing the grains both ground and whole, which are not available on the range without fear of the chicks over-eating. The real test is the youngsters find the bugs and worms and succulent green shoots so much more palatable than they do the grains that they spend most of their time rustling for the latter, and only consuming enough of the grain to meet their actual necessities. With all the fussing thing they do their appetites are never quite satisfied, which is the approved state for young chicks, and it is a poor range that does not furnish an abundance of one sort or hard substance or another that will serve as grinders in the gizzard.

Hard on Town Lotter.

Now this is all very fine for the poultry man or woman who lives in the country or suburbs and has plenty of range at his disposal on which to raise his birds though even with him, if he lives in the North or Central states, there will be three months in the year when the range is not attractive. But what about the town lotter who is trying to rear a few in his own back yard? What is he going to do for free range? The answer is in the case of everything else that is scarce—get a substitute. And there are substitutes and good ones, too. Aside from the fact that because of its attractiveness, the range helps to make the fowls happy and contented, and happiness and contentment add thrift to chicks and help hens to lay, the range does not furnish anything that cannot be secured independently. Of course, every poultryman knows that he can get commercial grit, of sizes suitable for either chicks or hens, which is even more efficient for grinding than the ordinary stones or pebbles picked up about the farm. Almost every poultryman knows, too, that he can easily furnish tender, green succulence to his chicks by the use of the oat sprouter, though it is surprising to find how comparatively few are doing it. Commercial oat sprouters are to be had from poultry supply houses at reasonable prices, or if one has the least knack with tools he can easily make one that will be equally efficient. It is surprising what a difference a bunch of well-sprouted oats each day will make in the contentment and thrift of either laying hens or young chicks, whether it be on the town lot or with the farm flock in winter. With young chicks sliced onion is well relished, and by slicing them so that one may cut the rings and make long strings he may find a way to start a rough-and-tumble scrap among the little fellows any time they appear a bit listless and drowsy. For the older stock, however, there is nothing better than sprouted oats, and the poultryman who tries to get along without them when the fowls are not on free range, is in all probability not getting the egg production or the thrift that his flock is capable of.

Furnish Some Green Feed.

If for any reason it is not possible to furnish sprouted-oats, some succulent feed, and preferably a green feed, should be furnished. Alfalfa meal fed in a mash does not take the place of a succulent feed. Kale, cabbage, lettuce or stock beets are all good. In fact, any form of green feed that is tender enough to be relished by the fowls is all right. It will be found by the use of a simple square or rectangular frame made of two by fours and covered with poultry netting of small mesh, it is possible to keep a constant though limited supply of green feed before the chickens all the time in the growing season. If after oats or rape, or even lettuce, has been sown off a spot about the size of the frame, and the frame is laid down over it, the oats or lettuce, as the case may be, may grow to be nearly four inches high before the chicks can get at it through the wire. If well sprinkled in dry weather the plants will keep growing throughout the spring and summer months, and the chickens will keep eating off the tops as fast as they grow to the place where they may be reached.

Supply of Animal Feed.

It may be more fun to chase grasshoppers, catch flies or dig worms than to eat meat scrap in a dry mash or drink sour milk from a pail but it is doubtful whether the lively grasshopper or wriggling worm furnishes any better supply of animal feed than do milk and meat scrap. Butter milk and sour milk as poultry feeds have not risen to the high place in the estimation of most poultrymen to which they are entitled and which they will ultimately reach. While they are suggested here as substitutes for the grubs and insects of the range, as a matter of fact they are so desirable as poultry feeds, that the person who can furnish them even on the range is to be considered fortunate.

The price of meat-crap has advanced very materially during recent months and will probably advance in proportion more. But it must go a good ways yet before the poultryman can afford to do without it, if he does not have an abundant supply of milk.

One of the most important factors in allowing chickens free range is the fact that they take a constant and abundant amount of exercise. It is not at all necessary to have a free range in order to induce fowls to take a large amount of exercise. It may be done inside the chicken house or in the back yard by feeding the grains in a deep litter of straw, leaves, or shavings, and forcing the birds, whether young or old, to scratch continually and vigorously in order to supply what their appetites demand.

Of course when the birds are exercising on free range they are doing it in fresh air which ought to be the case when they are exercising in the house. Neither in winter nor summer can one expect thrifty chicks or vigorous hens unless they are forced to take not only abundant exercise but to take it in fresh air. Cold air is not half so injurious to chickens as bad air caused by restricted ventilation.

NEGLECTED FEET ARE CAUSE OF SUFFERING

With Hens Laying Is Discouraged and Disease Invited.

Quarters Provided Are Faulty in Construction—Wind Passing Under Buildings Makes Floors Very Uncomfortable.

Keeping the feet warm is essential to the comfort and health of human beings. The same is true of hens. Neglect of this will cause suffering, prevent laying and invite disease. Sometimes this is true because the owners have left them to shift for themselves. More frequently quarters have been provided but they were faulty in construction. One of the more common errors is leaving an open space which allows the wind to pass under the building and in the winter season makes the floors very cold. In many other cases the hens get cold feet by going on the snow. In winter as well as in summer hens need exercise and it ought not all to be taken where they are kept at night. They should have a shed, open on one side, in which to spend a part of every day on which conditions are not suitable for giving them wider range. If this cannot be furnished they must be either pretty closely confined or else be allowed out of doors on many days when the ground is covered with snow. Of the two evils the former is least.

VALUE IS ADDED TO BLUE GRASS

Sweet Clover Supplies Nitrogen to Soil and Helps to Produce Better Stand.

PASTURE SEASON IS LONGER

Some Experimenting Generally Required as Local Conditions Vary—Combination Will Maintain Itself Permanently.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

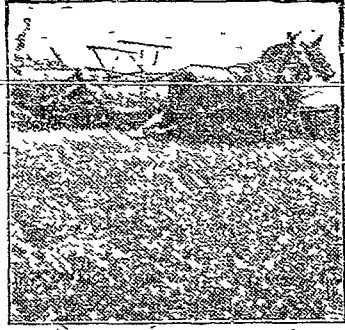

Perhaps there is no use for sweet clover that gives such promise and that seems of such wide application as its combination with blue grass for pasture.

Both crops grow together well, even when there is a perfect stand of each. The sweet clover adds nitrogen to the soil; and where the stand of blue grass is poor this helps it to thicken and produce a much better stand than would be possible without sweet clover. Furthermore, the clover adds greatly to the total amount of pasture produced and gives a longer pasture season. It comes on in the spring two or three weeks earlier than most other grasses and the live stock can be turned out to pasture just that much earlier. In some instances this combination has more than doubled the carrying capacity of an acre of blue grass alone. A first class pasture of this kind will easily carry two 1,000-pound steers on an acre in the spring and early summer, and as a usual thing, will carry more than one such steer during the remainder of the pasture season.

May Harvest Seed.

If not pastured too heavily the sweet clover will produce seed enough to reseed the pasture, and often a crop of from three to eight bushels of seed an acre can be harvested, in addition to the pasture produced throughout the season. The experience of a few men is that when such a combination pasture is handled in this way it will maintain itself from year to year, and it is unnecessary to sow any great amount of seed to keep up the sweet clover in combination with blue grass.

In establishing a combination sweet clover and blue grass pasture the problem of getting a stand, as compared with the growth of sweet clover in rotation, is fundamentally different. In some instances the pasture must be plowed, limed, and seeded anew. On old blue grass pastures of long-standing, which still have a fairly good line supply, a stand of sweet clover often can be secured simply by sowing the seed late in March or early in April and allowing live stock to trample the seed into the ground. In other instances it is more convenient to start such a pasture on a part of a rotation area, a seedling of sweet clover and timothy being made in oats after the necessary application of lime, the blue grass being allowed to come in of its own accord.

Experiments Often Necessary.

To determine the method that will succeed in getting a stand of sweet clover and blue grass for pasture, it will generally require some experimenting, as local conditions vary greatly. In some instances it has been found successful to sow sweet clover with timothy, the blue grass being allowed to come in, so that in a few years there is a perfect stand of sweet clover and blue grass. Pastures of this kind will make luxuriant growth annually, and if care is exercised to permit a part of the sweet clover to produce seed each year, no other attention is necessary.

MOLDY GRAIN HURTS FOWLS

Digestion of Birds Is Injured and Makes Them Less Profitable—Also Produces Canker.

Be careful not to feed any moldy grain or allow the fowls to get moldy materials of any kind, for that not only injures their digestion and makes them less profitable but also is likely to produce canker.

INJURIOUS TO SHEEP FLOCK

Allowing Animals to Be Out in Snow in Day Time and Shut in Damp Shed at Night Is Bad.

Nothing is more harmful to the health of sheep than allowing them to be out in the yard all day in a snow or rain storm and shutting them up in cold damp sheds at night to shiver with the chill and dampness.

TOP DRESSING WITH MANURE AIDS WHEAT

Application Should Be Made When Ground Is Still Dry.

Acid Phosphate May Well Be Added to Each Load of Fertilizer Before Spreading—Do Not Smother the Plants.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Farmers have been very busy and short of help during the past season. Doubtless in many cases the manure pile is still in the barnyard. There was neither time nor help at hand to spread this manure at the usual time, and as a result the wheat may now be growing on land that is not as fertile as is desirable.

In such cases it will be of great help to the wheat crop and of profit to the farmer if manure, or straw not needed for other purposes, is spread evenly and thinly on the more level wheat fields this winter. Such application should be made when the ground is dry or frozen. In case fertilizer has not been applied recently to the land and it is known that phosphorus is needed, 40 or 50 pounds of acid phosphate may well be added to each load of manure before spreading. The application of manure should not be heavy—probably not over six tons to the acre in any case—and it should be spread evenly so as not to smother the plants.

COST OF PORK PRODUCTION

Young Growing Pigs Become Thin in Flesh if Compelled to Exist on Pasture Alone.

While a liberal use of pasture undoubtedly lowers the cost of producing pork, it is possible to overdo the matter. Mature hogs will live on a good blue grass or clover pasture without any grain, but young, growing pigs become thin in flesh if compelled to exist on pasture alone. Their growth is stopped. And when this happens they do not finish satisfactorily for the fall trade. Those which are to be marketed in the spring when a year old get along very well on pasture alone during the grazing season and fatten well during the winter. From 1 to 3 per cent of the hog's weight in grain along with the pasture gives the most satisfactory results in the majority of cases.

TIME TO SPADE IN GARDENS

Work May Be Done Much Earlier on Sandy Soils Than on Heavy or Clayey Kinds.

Spading may be done much earlier on sandy soils than on heavy or clayey soils. When the soil adheres together in a heavy lump it is too wet for working. Allow such a garden to dry a little more, because if too wet the clods that form will often remain unbroken throughout the whole summer. When manure and leaves have been spread over the surface of the garden it will be an advantage to get this material down into the soil.

WOOD ASHES OF MUCH VALUE

Average Composition Derived From Mixed Timber Is Equivalent to 70 Per Cent Carbonate.

Wood ashes have a much larger value than coal ashes. Their value lies in their content of potash, phosphoric acid and lime. The average composition of wood ashes derived from mixed hard and soft wood timber and produced in the household fires is about 5 per cent potash, 2½ per cent phosphoric acid and 35 per cent lime, equivalent to 70 per cent lime carbonate.

CULL ALL WEAK SPECIMENS

Fowls That Do Not Give Promise of Being Profitable Should Be Disposed of at Once.

If there are any culls, weak specimens or any birds that do not give promise of being profitable they should be disposed of immediately before they eat any more grain than is necessary to get them in proper condition to sell.

VENTILATION IS NECESSARY

Essential for Preservation of Health of Fowls—Direct Draft Should Be Prevented.

While good ventilation is absolutely necessary in preserving the health of the fowls through winter, a direct draft should not be allowed to reach the birds, especially when they are or their roosts.

DRUGGISTS! VICK'S VAPORUB SHORTAGE OVERCOME AT LAST

The Deal Scheduled for Last November, Which Was Postponed on Account of the Influenza Epidemic, Is Now Re-instated—Good During the Month of March.

OVER ONE MILLION JARS OF VAPORUB PRODUCED EACH WEEK

It is with pride that we announce to the drug trade that the shortage of Vick's Vaporub, which has lasted since last October, is now overcome. Since January 1st, we have been running our laboratory twenty-three and a half hours out of every twenty-four. Last week we shipped the last of our back orders, and retail druggists, therefore, are no longer requested to order in small quantities only.

NOVEMBER DEAL RE-INSTATED

This deal, which we had expected to put on last November and which had to be postponed on account of the shortage of Vaporub, is re-instated for the month of March. This allows a discount of 10% on shipments from jobbers' stock of quantities of from 1 to 4 gross. 5% of this discount is allowed by the jobber and 5% by us.

We advise the retail druggists to place their orders immediately, so that the jobbers will be able to get prompt shipments to them.

THANKS OF THE PUBLIC DUE THE DRUG TRADE DURING THE INFLUENZA EPIDEMIC.

The thanks of the American public are certainly due the entire drug trade—retail, wholesale and manufacturing—for what they accomplished during the recent influenza epidemic.

The war caused a shortage of physicians—nurses were almost impossible to obtain—the demand on the drug trade was unexpected and overwhelming, and to this demand they responded nobly. Retail druggists kept open day and night and slept where they dropped behind the prescription counter. Wholesale druggists called their salesmen off the road to help all orders—hundreds wired us to ship Vick's Vaporub by the quickest route, regardless of expense.

During the influenza epidemic Vick's Vaporub was used as an external application in connection with the physician's treatment, and thousands of people, unable to obtain a doctor, relied on Vick's almost exclusively. Literally millions of families all over the country, from California to Maine, and from the Great Lakes to the Gulf, have found Vick's Vaporub the ideal home remedy for croup and cold troubles.

VOTERS, READ THIS CAREFULLY.

What would happen if the so-called "beer and wine Amendment" should be adopted at the election on April 7, 1919? It would take effect May 7, of this year. Saloons would be legal for every kind of beer, wine, ale, and porter, and hard cider.

The local option law would be repealed and no new law could be passed by the legislature, or initiated by the people giving a county the right to prohibit such liquors.

Such liquors could be imported transported, or possessed by the bottle or by the carload anywhere in Michigan.

It would be forever lawful (except in licensed saloons and breweries) to give such liquor to any boy, girl, common drunkard, posted person, locomotive engineer, electric motor-man, jitney driver, member of fire department, policeman, in fact anybody.

A city or village could not by ordinance even regulate the number of saloons' use of screens, hours of closing, the employment of girls in saloons, the collection of a license fee, or any other matter. These are but a few of the results. VOTE AND VOTE NO.
