FORESTERS' ANNUAL BIGGEST TIME EVER

RECORD ATTENDANCE AT THEIR BANQUET AND BALL LAST FRI- DAY NIGHT.

The Northville Foresters' seven-teenth annual banquet and ball, given in their hall Friday, March 28, proved to be probably the largest and most all-round successful party they have ever held, and one of the biggest affairs of its kind ever given in Northville. A splendid supper was served to over 800 people in a most efficient manner, the ladies supplying invaluable aid to the supper committee, and keeping chairman LeFever busy carving the 150 pounds of meat required. After supper the audience was given a treat by Chief Ranger Martz, who acted as toastmaster, when he called upon Dr. Tom Henry, one of the oldest members of Court Northville. Dr. Henry gave a most inspiring talk and was roundly applauded, as was Grand Chief Ranger S. S. Cronin of Pontiac, who also made a very interesting speech. After this part of the program was concluded, dancing was enjoyed until the small hours, Montgomery's orchestra furnishing especially fine music. The big room was beautifully decorated with evergreens, flags and bunting, and presented an extremely attractive appearance. Pretty souvenirs were furnished the soldier-members of the order, and the entire occasion was a credit to all who had a part in its planning and executing.

KNOCKS LADIES' AID AS CHURCH HELP

REV. MEALLY SAYS THE SYSTEM OF MONEY RAISING IS UNSCRIP- TURAL.

Rev. E. Meally, pastor of Mills Methodist Episcopal church at Huron, came out with a statement last Thursday that ladies' aid societies are the greatest handicap to efficiency the work of the church, not because they are composed of women, but because of their unscriptural and unbusiness-like methods in obtaining money for the church. "Every dollar raised for any Christian enterprise," he said, "unless it be by direct giving and prompted by sympathetic interest in the work of the church, is a handicap to the efficient work of the church." He asks his church treasurer to pay all current bills before attending to the minister's salary, and tells his people if they do no more than pay (Continued on page 2)

DEATH OF J. M. GREENE.

After months of suffering J. M. Greene 70 years of age, a former Northville resident, died at his home in Farmington last Friday, March 28, from the effects of an injury received last November. Mr. Greene moved from Farmington to Northville some years ago, purchased a home, and lived here for a number of years, moving back to Farmington two or three years ago. He was much respected as a citizen and many Northville friends sympathize with Mrs. Green in her great loss. Funeral services were held from the home Tuesday, conducted by Rev. Clyde McGee of Chicago, who paid a high tribute to the life and character of Mr. Greene. The widow and one brother, Horace Greene of this village, are the near surviving relatives.

KNIGHTS TEMPLAR ELECTION.

The annual election of Northville Commandery No. 39, occurred Tuesday evening. It was the largest meeting of the kind ever held by this organization. A review of the year's work was given by Charles A. Dolph, Commander, showing the valuable work done and offering suggestions for future expansion. The present membership to be reported to Grand headquarters is 191, a net increase of 14 for the year. The reports of the Recorder and the treasurer showed the amount and character of the year's activity. The following officers will serve for the ensuing year: William Kay—Commander; Herbert Thayer—Generalissimo; Daniel Murray—Capt. General; Isaac D. Wright—Prelate; Barton A. Wheeler—Treasurer; Frank Dolph—Recorder; Andrew Taylor—Sen. Warden; James A. Huff—Junior Warden; Joseph Grace—Warder. The installations will occur next Tuesday evening and will be for Commandery members only.

RED CROSS WILL MEET SOCIALLY.

The officers of the local Red Cross unit are planning for an informal meeting of the entire membership at the High school building on the afternoon of April 18. The affair will take the form of an informal luncheon, to be followed by some entertaining features, and it is hoped, a good general social time. The important matter of reorganization or dissolution of the unit will be discussed, among other things. The invitations are to be sent out next week, and it is urgently requested that any person who has been doing Red Cross work shall notify Mrs. C. L. Dubuay should such person fail to receive her invitation, as it is possible some one's name may be accidentally overlooked. It will not be in the least a "dress-up" occasion.

ANNUAL MEETING N'VILLE AUTO CLUB

The annual meeting of the Northville Auto club will be held in the Council room of the village hall next week Friday evening, April 11, at 7:30. Every auto owner and member is asked to be present.

NO REGULATIONS FOR PRIVATE BANKS

BILL TO THAT EFFECT WAS KILLED IN THE HOUSE LAST WEEK.

The Legislature last week sounded the death knell of bills to abolish private banks when by a vote of 79 to 8 the legislators declined to adopt the resolution offered by Representative Lynn J. Lewis, that his bill to put the private bankers out of business or force them to incorporate like other banks come to a vote.

Early in the session Representative Lewis introduced two bills, one of which designed to abolish private banks, and the other to permit the incorporation of state banks with a capitalization of $10,000 in villages of 500 population. The second bill was necessary if the first should be passed, as under the present banking law no state bank can incorporate for less than $20,000.

Representative Lewis assailed the committee on private corporations for "strangling" his bills and insisted that they be put on the floor of the house so that the members could have an opportunity to vote on them.

Representative Johnson of this place supported Mr. Lewis in his endeavors on the ground that private banks should be subjected to the same laws and rules as state banks and that depositors in private banks should be afforded the same protection as other banks.

PERRIN & SONS FORD AGENCY SOLD

An important business deal has been put through this week whereby Dayton B. Bunn, formerly of South Lyon, became the proprietor of the Ford Garage operated by F. N. Perrin & Sons, for some years past. In exchange for the business, stock and equipment, the Perrins become the owners of the John Wilson farm on the Base Line road, a few miles west of town.

Mr. Bunn has already taken possession of the Northville business, but the other parties in the deal have not yet made decisive plans. The exchange was conducted by Real Estate Agent Lovewell of this place.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS NOTES.

(By the Press Correspondent.) Our regular meeting next Wednesday night, April 9, comes on the anniversary of Lee's surrender at Appomattox.

Flowers in the Soul.

Every human soul has the germ of some flowers within, and they would open, if they could only find sunshine and free air to expand in. I always told you that not having enough of sunshine was what ailed the world. Make people happy, and there will not be half the quarreling, or a tenth part of the wickedness there is.—Mrs. Child.

Hear the Minute Men at the Methodist church service next Sunday.

JONES' NIDDER.

Sergt. William T. Jones of this place lately of the U. S. overseas service, and Miss Mary Inez Nidder of Farina, Illinois, were married Tuesday, March 26, at Edinburg, Ill. The parents of the bride are Mr. and Mrs. Esly Nidder, prominent farm residents of Farina. The groom has made his home in Northville with Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Clark for some years past and is one of our popular young men. Mr. and Mrs. Jones will stay at the Clark home for the present until they can make arrangements for their permanent residence, which is to be in Northville. Many friends are extending hearty good wishes to "Bill" and his bride.

OUTGROWING HOME SPACE.

Record readers will note in this issue a considerable addition to the space usually devoted to our local advertisements and other "home grown" news. Two entire pages have been necessary this week, to accommodate the increased amount of home printing we have had to do. This arrangement has been made to avoid a two-page insert as in last week's paper. A number of interesting features will be found on pages 2 and 3, including the sample ballot on page 3, with full information as to how the real ones should be used next Monday.

AUTO CLUB MEMBERS RENEWING.

Members of the Northville Auto club may now renew their membership for 1919 either at the secretary's office or by leaving their $2.00 dues with Treasurer L. A. Babbitt. The annual meeting of the club will be called within the next week or so. New members are also solicited and membership can be taken out by anyone, whether an owner of an auto or not.

NOTICE TO WOMEN VOTERS.

A school of instruction for voters will be held by the Township Clerk of Northville in the High school auditorium this Friday evening, April 4, at 7:30 o'clock. KNOCKS LADIES' AID AS CHURCH HELP their own current bills they have no right to call themselves Christians.

Mr. Meally has the distinction of having served as Methodist Episcopal minister for a longer time in Port Huron than any other minister, and set a new precedent when he requested his congregation to reduce his salary and apply the difference on the church debt.

Mr. Meally was at one time superintendent of schools at Plymouth.

Local Northville pastors do not agree with Pastor Meally although they admit that the Ladies' aid might better give more time and attention to the social duties of the church if the men folks did more of the financial work and thus relieve the women of a part of that end of their labor. The Ladies Aid members are doing a noble work and without their efforts the church would be seriously injured.

17-YEAR LOCUSTS EXPECTED THIS SEASON

INTERESTING INFORMATION ABOUT SO-CALLED "PLAGUE" SHOWS HOW TO AVOID DAMAGE TO ORCHARDS FROM THESE INSECTS.

A visitation from the seventeen-year locusts can be expected in the central and southern tier of counties in late May and early June, entomologists of the experiment station at M. A. C. predict. The insect specialists are basing their forecast on records which show that the last "plague" occurred just 17 years ago, in 1902. In scientific circles the "locusts" are called the "periodical cicada."

The periodical cicada, the entomologists say, of which sometimes harmful, is at the same time one of the most interesting of natural phenomena. After lying underground for 17 years, the creature comes to the surface for a few weeks in the spring of every seventeenth year. Its size is about that of an adult cricket—the black fellows that can be found everywhere during the summer months.

This, according to the entomologists, is the seventeenth year, and if nature holds to her customs of the past, the locusts can be expected to emerge from the ground during the last week in May, or the first week in June. When it first makes its appearance, it is without wings, and is called a pupa. This pupa, upon coming to the surface, guided by some inerring instinct, scrambles towards the nearest shrub or tree and begins forthwith to climb and fasten itself to a twig or branch. About a half hour after arriving at its moorings, its skin splits open along the back, and out of this "shell" crawls a new creature, with wings.

Under normal conditions the insects remain in evidence for a period of two months or so, and as a rule their disappearance is almost as sudden as their appearance. Most of them usually make their way back into the ground by the end of July.

Persons who have studied the locust say that as a rule it eats little or nothing during its six weeks' visit. Such damage as is done is wrought by the adult female, which in laying its eggs, splits the bark of the young twigs of trees and bushes. If the swarm happens to be in a forest, or woodlot of oak or other similar trees, the damage is usually relatively slight, but if the habitat of the locusts happens to be a young apple orchard, the harm done is often quite extensive. It is sometimes recommended, when locusts are expected, that the usual pruning operations during the winter and spring be deferred in order to offer a larger twig growth, and to distribute by this means the damage over a larger surface.

Considerable damage is sometimes brought on, too, by the open wounds, through which harmful insects and diseases sometimes gain entrance to the trees.

The eggs usually are laid in the trees about two weeks after the insects first come out of the ground, and the young hatch out towards the end of July. The larva from these eggs run about the limbs a bit, like so many ants, and then deliberately loosen their holds and fall to the ground, into which they burrow for their sixteen years' subterranean life. In the ground the larva live on sap sucked from roots, but in spite of their large numbers, it is said that except in unusual instances, they do very little damage.

One of the most striking characteristics of the cicada is its peculiar note or song. Where there are large numbers of them, this is said to be so noisy that it is said to drown out even the cowbells.

A Northville Man Gives Evidence His Testimony Will Interest Every Northville Reader.

The value of local evidence is indisputable. It is the kind of evidence we accept as true because we know we can prove it for ourselves. There has been plenty of such evidence in the Northville papers lately, and this straightforward testimony has established a confidence in the minds of Northville people that will not be easily shaken.

RUN THE HOUSEHOLD ON BUDGET SYSTEM

Keep Careful Accounts and Divide Family Income Wisely— Suggestions for Various Salaries.

A budget is absolutely necessary to the wise and well-proportioned running of a household. No budget can be made to fit all families, even families of similar size, locality, etc., but the well-proportioned budget provides a fair financial basis, a starting point from which to begin the work of wisely dividing the family income.

The main thing is to get the budget started, to keep careful accounts in a way that will permit analysis of expenditures for at least several months; a year, if possible. Many people keep accounts, personal and household, only in a way that balances cash and shows how it has been generally expended. A budget should do better than that.

An exact budget is difficult to provide at present, with all living prices in a state of flux but with a prevailing upward tendency. Figures differ greatly in various sections of the country; frequently in various sections of the same state. But in strictly industrial centers, it has been authentically computed, food usually consumes about 48 per cent of the ordinary income, shelter 18 per cent, fuel and light 6 per cent, and the various "sundries" so grouped because so difficult of more exact classification, 20 per cent. In the following suggestive budgets for varying incomes the "savings" item has been placed first as most necessary where the family income is not too large and is practically inelastic. This item may include life insurance, savings bank accounts and such favorable income-bearing governmental securities absolutely necessary with the kind of incomes noted—as Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps.

For the initial preparation of a budget household co-operation must be obtained. The exact disposal of certain larger items, such as rent, fuel, food, must be decided, plans only changed thereafter when proven impracticable as at first arranged. A full account of personal and household expenditures should be kept for future reference and possible budget readjustments. Fairly, justly tried, the budget system will lift many a family from a financial slough of despond to sunshiny financial heights.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarhal deafness. NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP SAMPLE BALLOT

THE SILVER STRIPES.

When we've honored the heroes returning from France,
And we've mourned for the heroes who fell,
When we've done all we can for the home-coming man,
Who stood to the shot and the snarl,
Let us keep in mind those who lingered behind—
The thousands who waited to go,
The brave and the true, who did all they could do,
Yet have only the silver to show.

They went from their homes at the summons for men,
They drilled in the heat of the sun,
They fell into line with a pluck that was fine,
Each cheerfully shouldered a gun,
They were ready to die for Old Glory on high,
They were eager to meet with the foe;
They were just like the rest of our bravest and best,
Tho' they've only the silver to show.

Their bodies stayed here, but their spirits were there,
And the boys who looked death in the face
For the cause, had no fear—for they knew, wanting here,
There were many to fill up each place,
Oh, the ships came and went, 'till the battle was spent
And the tyrant went down with the blow,
But he still might have reigned but for those who remained
And have only the silver to show.

So here's to the soldier who never saw France,
And here's to the boys unafraid,
Let us give them their due; they were glorious, too,
And it isn't their fault that they stayed.
They were eager to share in the sacrifice there;
Let them share in the peace that we know.
For we know they were brave, by the service they gave,
Tho' they've only the silver to show.

GLAD TO PAY

CALLS PROPOSED MEASURE "APPEAL TO TREASON."

Adoption of the proposed wine and beer bill by Michigan voters on April 7, in the face of the recently accepted federal amendment for national prohibition, would be a disloyal act, in the opinion of Prof. Edwin C. Goddard of the law faculty of the University of Michigan, who attacks the measure from a legal angle and brands it as an "appeal to treason."

"Originally," declared Professor Goddard, "the question was simply whether we preferred a Michigan with wine and beer, or a Michigan-bone dry. The adoption of the federal prohibition amendment, however, has changed the question from one of Michigan wet or Michigan dry to Michigan loyal or Michigan treasonable."

"The point involved is this: The federal amendment decrees national prohibition, but in face of this fact, the voters of Michigan are being asked now to make a part of our state constitution 'forever' a measure that would make Michigan wet in direct contravention of what the federal constitution now prescribes. 'The issue now is that of old state's rights versus our central federal government. It was for the preservation of the principle that the central government of the United States is supreme—that the civil war was fought."

FIND FORTY JOKES IN WINE-BEER BILL.

A wag among the many who are holding down seats in this season's state legislature, has pinned a name upon the proposed wine and beer amendment of the wets which promises to stick with it until after the election of April 7. Some time ago the dries issued a pamphlet enumerating 40 flaws in the measure, and taking his cue from this, the capitol wit christened the amendment "The Forty Jokers." It is upon the presence of these "jokers" in the amendment, which make it something other than what it purports to be, that the dries are losing their hopes for the defeat of the measure by Michigan voters on election day.

"Mother Ann."

"Mother Ann" was a friendly nickname given to a woman named Ann Lee, an English woman, who came to the United States during the revolutionary period and founded the sect called Shakers. She was illiterate, but a good woman, a religious enthusiast and popular in her day.

THE 1919 WHEAT CROP.

If weather conditions in this country are favorable there will be a record wheat crop in 1919. And every bushel of this wheat under the government guarantee will bring the farmer $2.25. This guarantee has back of it an appropriation of a billion dollars made by congress for the purpose of supporting the wheat price. It is possible that the loss to the government may not be as great as anticipated. Mr. Hoover informs us that Europe will need more wheat than the estimates have called for. There will be no wheat raised in Russia, Serbia or Bulgaria, so these countries, which are usually exporters, will be obliged to import wheat. The Australian wheat crop for 1919 will be small, and the Argentine crop will not exceed the usual amount. These conditions may force up the market price of wheat and relieve the pockets of Messrs. Taxpayer & Co. As the pockets of Taxpayer & Co. are not especially full at present, such a result would be a welcome one.

ONE-THIRD OF WORLD'S GOLD

Back of Every Victory Liberty Bond—
No Safer Guarantee Than Our Surplus Gold Possible.

Gold is the basis of all credit.
The United States is now about to enter a fifth great popular campaign for the sale of government bonds to the citizens of the nation. America has contracted more than $5,000,000, 000 of debt since December 1 last in paying war bills, and this money must be raised by the people.

Every reader of this paper undoubtedly believes that United States government bonds are the safest investment on earth. But many of them do not perhaps know just how to explain their belief.

One of the reasons why United States government bonds are the safest investment on earth is that the United States now possesses one-third of the world's gold. This has come about as a result of the war. The nation had large gold holdings before the fighting began in 1914, but since then the nations of the earth have been forced to send us shiploads of gold in order to get needed supplies and maintain trade relations.

The Federal Reserve banks do not hold, probably, more than two-thirds of this nation's supply of gold, yet they have in their reserves more than one-half as much as the state banks of the next 14 most wealthy nations, and abroad the state banks have collected practically every gold piece that the people possessed.

The following table bearing this fact in mind, tells why the government bonds are the safest investment known:

Nations With Greatest Gold Holdings	Total Gold Holdings
Bank of France	$63,000,000
Bank of Germany	60,000,000
Bank of England (with note re-serve)	56,000,000
Bank of Spain	43,000,000
Bank of Russia	40,000,000
Argentine conversion fund	37,000,000
Bank of Japan	35,000,000
Bank of the Netherlands	28,000,000
Bank of Italy	21,000,000
United States (Federal Reserve banks only)	2,000,000,000

The Gorton Store

FOR MEN AND BOYS.

Taken from Nature—The wild roots and barks that go into the composition of one of the oldest and best known blood-tonics are gathered mostly on our reservations—brought or shipped to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce discovered 50 years ago, that Nature has provided freely for the needs of her children and that in her laboratory were the remedies. Extracts of Queen's root, Stone root, Black Cherry-bark and Bloodroot, as prepared, combined and preserved without alcohol, in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, constitute the most effective and certain tonic, alterative and tissue-rebuilding remedy ever offered to the public. This tonic soon became known all over the world.

It is purely vegetable and free from alcohol or narcotics. It will search out and purify and poisonous matter and drive it from the system. Buy it now in tablets or liquid. All druggists, or send Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., 10c for trial package.

It will clear the skin, eczema, pimples, rash, blotches will dry up and disappear; boils, carbuncles and other evidences of tainted blood will pass away.

The Cause.

Laura, the colored girl, did not come until 9 a. m.

"What's the matter?" asked the housewife.

"Sit up with a dead man last night."

It was in the midst of the influenza epidemic, and the housewife feared that the death might have been due to that disease and it might be carried by the colored girl, so she quickly asked:

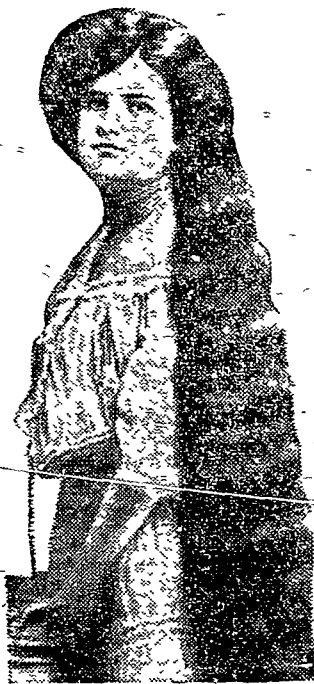

"What did he die of?"

"A little bit," said Laura.

DANDRUFF MAKES HAIR FALL OUT

A small bottle of "Danderine" keeps hair thick, strong, beautiful.

Girls! Try this! Doubles beauty of your hair in a few moments.

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you can not find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a small bottle of Knowlton's Danderine for a few cents at any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.—Adv.

CHAPTER VIII.

More Complications.

"I KNEW you didn't look like Ned Blaney," the girl said. "You see, I'm engaged to him, and I ought to know what he looks like unless I'm delirious. What dramatic critic are you?"

"I'm the only one who is not the author of an unproduced play."

"I'm sorry you're a critic. I don't like critics, except one. I had a clipping that he wrote about me that was the one thing that I saved from the wreck. I'd show it to you, but Miss Green borrowed it."

"This is it," I handed her the water-soaked fragment of paper.

"Did you read it?" she exclaimed with girlish enthusiasm. "Isn't he a dear?"

"Thank you," I murmured.

"Are you that dramatic critic?" she demanded, sitting bolt upright in bed and holding out her hands to me.

My impulse was to take her in my arms just as any one would pick up a child, but I knew she did not intend anything like that, so I took both her hands instead.

Just at that moment some one tapped and Miss Dunmore said: "Come in."

Lucile entered, say our handclasp, blushed and stammered, "I didn't mean to intrude."

"Intrude? Not a bit of it," chattered the other. "I want to thank you for sending this adorable man up to me. I think I've been in love with him ever since he wrote that article in the paper about me last week."

Of course she meant as much by that as you mean when you say that you just love ice cream soda or buckwheat pancakes with sausage, or whatever it is that you do just love, but to Lucile it verified all that she had suspected. With one scornful glance at me she left the room with a murmured excuse about finding some clothing for Miss Dunmore to put on.

That look from Lucile would have spoiled for me the brightest day that ever was mustered, but the young lady had not noticed it.

"I wonder why she didn't stay," she mused. "I'm afraid she doesn't like me. I wonder if it is on account of the clothes I wore. It was just an accident that I had them in my grip. Ned—that's my fiance, you know—thought I looked well in that costume, so I was always going to keep it, even after I was an old married woman with ten children. I wonder if the water will hurt it?"

I told her I thought it would be all right when it was dried.

"The captain said my tailored skirt was too heavy to swim in and told me to take it off. I did—and put my costume on instead. Was it too dreadful?"

Soon Kent came up with a bundle of clothes for Miss Dunmore from Miss Green, and, promising to wait for her downstairs, I exposed myself and went in search of Lucile.

I found Captain Perkins and Jim, a nondescript picture in the evening clothes and blazer suit, wandering ill at ease about the living room. I asked for Miss Green.

"She went out with that other young man," said the captain. "She said she was going to look for her mother." I had almost forgotten the missing Mrs.

Lucile Saw Our Handclasp.

Green. I was about to start out searching again when I remembered my promise to Miss Dunmore.

"And where is Mr. Clair?" I asked.

"I seen him out in the yard looking for walnuts under them hard maple trees," volunteered Jim. "I didn't tell him they weren't a nut bearing tree on this island. What's the use? It ain't nutting time yet now."

Miss Dunmore came downstairs in a dress of Lucile's, or rather a blouse and skirt of the sailor suit order. She seemed very little ruffled by her adventure on the high seas.

"Where is Miss Green?" she asked, looking around. "I want to thank her for her kindness."

"She is out searching for her mother. That sounded like a foolish statement, so I qualified it. "Her mother disappeared last night during the storm."

"Oh!" Miss Dunmore did not seem particularly impressed. "I don't see how any one could get lost on a little island like this."

"That's where the mystery comes in. There are only about half a dozen places she could be, and we've looked in all of them."

"I had a brother who walked in his sleep," said Captain Perkins, following up a train of thought suggested by Mrs. Green's disappearance. "Do you want to hear the story about the funny place where the zebra bit him?"

"A little later," I suggested hastily. "Just now we all ought to scatter and help look for Mrs. Green."

"How was she dressed?" Captain Perkins inquired.

"I don't know. I'm not sure whether she was dressed at all or not—that is, she probably had on a kimono or something, but I don't think she had on regular skirts and things."

"We might take a stroll along the beach," suggested Jim, whom I suspected of wanting to display his striped clothing in public. "Possibly we might find something we could eat."

After the captain and Jim had started out, Miss Dunmore seemed lost in deep and bewildered thought. I forbore to break in on so portentous a brain struggle.

At last she spoke. "Where do you suppose the zebra did bite Captain Perkins' brother?"

"If you go with him perhaps he will tell you," I said, with an idea of doing my searching alone with a weather eye constantly peeled for Lucile and Bopp.

"No," she demurred. "I would much rather go hunting with you. It will be more fun."

Evidently she thought that hunting old ladies in the underbrush was one of our innocent island pastimes.

I sighed. We sallied forth. If I had wanted to run across Lucile when I was alone I was just as anxious to avoid her while I was in the company of Miss Dunmore.

"Do we have to find her before lunch?"

I explained painstakingly the remote possibility either of finding Mrs. Green or of having any lunch. Contrary to my expectations, she took the information about the lack of food just as cheerfully as she had everything else. I don't believe it would be possible to dampen the spirits of that girl—not that she was unresponsive to another's distress, for I have rarely met one so sympathetic, but she was persistently optimistic.

"I don't mind going without lunch a bit," she smiled. "I very seldom eat anything until after the show at night anyway. Only there won't be any show tonight to eat after, will there? That will seem funny. I've always been in shows ever since I was a kid, except a few weeks in the middle of summer, and then generally I was rehearsing."

She laughed gayly.

Vida chattered away with all the heedless gaiety of a child who knows that some one is going to provide the next meal. She told me at length about her fiance. That took a lot of the romance out of our walk. Not that I was falling in love with Vida—not a bit of it—but it was too bad as long as I had lost favor with Lucile on her account to have her tell me about her love affair with some one else. I have since reasoned that she regarded me as being old enough to be her father or her Uncle Jack and treated me accordingly.

"I wouldn't mind being all alone with you on this island," she confided "if you were only Jack."

"Jack? Who is Jack?"

"I mean Ned," she explained. "I was going to marry Jack, but Ned wouldn't have it. We wouldn't care much about food even," she went on. "Ned would find something for me. He's dreadfully ingenious. That comes from writing plays. I guess. One has to be clever to think out plots for plays, don't you think?"

"Not most of them," I lapsed into my critical manner. "Not at clever as you have to be to sell them."

"He wrote a play once about two people on a desert island. There was a bully part for the girl in it. They found bananas and coconuts to eat and some kind of birds' eggs."

"In plays and stories dealing with castaways on an island," I explained, "the scene is always conveniently located on a tropical island where all sorts of food products grow wild. May I ask if in Mr. Blaney's play there was any treasure buried on the island?"

"Yes," she assented.

"And were they attacked by savages armed with poisoned darts?"

"Oh, you've read his play!"

"No, but I know just what ought to be in every castaway story. This island that we are on, you see, is quite different. Nothing more nourishing than spruce gum ever grows here, and there isn't a native with a poisoned dart within a thousand miles unless you count Lucile."

"What do you mean by that?"

I did not answer. An idea had germinated from something she had said.

There was a natural food resource on the island. I might be able to develop it, quietly by myself and then if it was successful confer it as a boon on the entire community.

When we were about two-thirds of the way around the island a stinging patter of raindrops drove us to shelter. There was a small lattice summer house overlooking the lake near by, and we hastened toward it. In our path was a shallow strip of water left by the waves of the night before and augmented by the rain. Vida looked in dismay at the muddy water.

"I never can cross it!" she wailed. "These are Miss Green's shoes, and I must not ruin them."

"We've got to get under cover," I argued.

"You could carry me across," she suggested practically—"that is, if you can lift me."

"I carried you farther than that this morning."

"Were you the brave man who risked his life for me?" she exclaimed impulsively, then added with naive content:

"I picked her up easily and splashed through."

"I know Ned can never thank you enough. Just pick me up in your big strong arms and put me down the minute we get across."

So she gathered her skirts carefully about her, and I picked her up easily and splashed through the puddle. I carried her into the summer house. Lucile and Bopp were there. I stood a moment in stupefied silence and then put Vida down.

"It started to rain," I stammered, "and we had to hunt up shelter. Miss Dunmore was so afraid of spoiling your clothes."

"That's all right," said Lucile sweetly. "I don't mind their being wrinkled a bit. I'm going to have that suit pressed anyway."

Floundering in the sea of a woman's sarcasm, I was utterly at a loss for an answer.

CHAPTER IX.

Engaged If—

"DON'T believe you have met Mr. Bopp yet," said Lucile to Vida as the girl gained her breath.

"At least you were not conscious when you first saw each other."

"What name did you say?"

"Mr. Bopp, my fiance."

"Your fiance?" I ejaculated.

"Yes," Lucile turned to me. "I wanted to tell you two the first ones. I knew you would appreciate our happiness."

My mind refused to grasp this disaster. I had never seriously considered Bopp as running even a very dangerous second.

My mind guzzling over Lucile's statement, I heard Vida's clear soft voice saying, "Mr. Bopp, I am pleased—why, aren't you called 'Bopp'?"

"Bopp?" repeated Lucile curiously.

"Yes, don't you call him that? All the girls in the 'Show Girl' company did. I was in the chorus then. We used to regard him as almost one of the company, he was around with us so much. We had a good time that season," she added reflectively.

Lucile murmured, "I should imagine so."

"I know you will be happy," Vida was saying. "I've been engaged a good many times and I enjoy it more every time."

"You must be terribly tired, Monty," I heard Lucile say; "no sleep for thirty-six hours and no food for three days. I wish that there were something that I could do for you."

I listened in amazement. Could this be Lucile, and was she addressing me? She was. I puzzled over the gentleness in her tones and the solicitude she was showing for my welfare. I did not hit upon the answer then, but I have since.

After awhile the rain let up, and we went back to the house to see what the others might have discovered and lay a plan of campaign. Vida elected to stay out of doors, and I suggested that she take on Mr. Clair for a walk. I told her that he was a woman hater and thus inadvertently aroused her interest.

"I'll have to make him change his ideas," she looked up at me innocent. "Do you think I can do it?"

Lucile murmured, "I should imagine so."

"I know you will be happy," Vida was saying. "I've been engaged a good many times and I enjoy it more every time."

"You must be terribly tired, Monty," I heard Lucile say; "no sleep for thirty-six hours and no food for three days. I wish that there were something that I could do for you."

I listened in amazement. Could this be Lucile, and was she addressing me? She was. I puzzled over the gentleness in her tones and the solicitude she was showing for my welfare. I did not hit upon the answer then, but I have since.

After awhile the rain let up, and we went back to the house to see what the others might have discovered and lay a plan of campaign. Vida elected to stay out of doors, and I suggested that she take on Mr. Clair for a walk. I told her that he was a woman hater and thus inadvertently aroused her interest.

FREE HERD OF TUBERCULOSIS

Satisfactory Progress in Plan of Eradication Made During First Year of Work.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The tuberculosis-free accredited herd plan, inaugurated in December, 1917, and worked out in co-operation with the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture, was slightly changed at the twenty-second annual meeting of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association held at Chicago in December. It was agreed to strike out the word "purebred" so as to admit to certification grade herds in addition to registered cattle. The annual conference between representatives of the United States Live Stock Sanitary association and the Purebred Cattle Breeders' association resulted in the further endorsement of the tuberculosis eradication campaign and a recommendation that the work be extended as rapidly as possible.

The accredited-herd plan is to test cattle with tuberculin at the request of the owner, eliminate any reacting animals either by slaughter or by following prescribed sanitary measures, repeat the test at prescribed intervals, and list as tuberculosis-free accredited herds all herds entitled to that distinction.

Very satisfactory progress has been made during the first year of the work, and prospects for the future are bright. During the year 296 herds, comprising 9,284 cattle, have been fully "accredited" as free from tuberculosis, and 1,462 herds, having 35,052 cattle, passed one successful test in preparation for certification. In addition 3,622 herds, both purebred and grade, totaling 98,002 animals, have been under supervision for the eradication of tuberculosis. Each month additional herds are added to the list.

HEIFERS DROP FIRST CALF

According to Experiment Carried on at Maryland College Thirty Months Is Best Age.

About thirty months was found to be the best age for Ayrshire heifers to drop their first calf, according to an experiment carried on at the Maryland Agricultural college. If the calves were dropped six months earlier, the milk flow was lessened considerably, but if dropped six months later the decrease was slight. This will vary for the breeds according to size; the smaller the breed type, the shorter the time. Eckles of Minnesota found that this variation would be three to five months which would bring the minimum age for Jerseys and Guernseys about twenty-five months and for Holsteins, thirty months. This is for well-developed animals.

PASTEURIZED CREAM IS AID

It Yields More Uniform Article of Butter and Helps to Improve Keeping Qualities.

The relation of pasteurized cream to butter is now recognized as follows: It yields a more uniform product, aids in producing a higher scoring butter, improves its keeping qualities; avoids undesirable fermentations and gives protection from disease germs; overcomes questionable odors; increases value of skim milk and creates a steadier market. The slight increase in cost of production, per pound, when butter is made from pasteurized cream, is more than overcome by the benefits derived from this process.

CLEANLINESS IS IMPORTANT

Cows Should Be Milked in Small-Top or Covered Pail and All Utensils Sterilized.

It is important to keep cows clean and milk them in clean surroundings. Milk them in a small-top or covered pail. All utensils which come into contact with the milk should be thoroughly sterilized with steam for at least five minutes.

"Them are very wild roses in your garden, grandmother. One of them growed at me dreadfully."—Woman's Home Companion.

SAGE TEA DARKENS HAIR TO ANY SHADE

Don't stay Gray! Here's an Old-time Recipe that Anybody can Apply.

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out-of-date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.—Adv.

All Things Explained.

Joan was to have a birthday party, having attained the enormous age of six years. She was very anxious indeed, to comport herself correctly and was plying her mother with questions.

"Well, dear," said her mother in answer to one concerning the advisability of saying grace before the meal.

"For such an informal little party, I hardly think you need."

Accordingly, when all the little guests were seated round the table, Joan from the head announced solemnly: "Mother, since this is such an informal little party we need not say grace."

Every voter should attend this meeting, as everybody can learn something new about this vital question of "Wet or Dry?" when Mr. Hoshal speaks. APRILS MANY ANNIVERSARIES.

Have you ever thought of April as one of the most prolific months in the entire year in important anniversaries? A Record paragrapher has been looking them up (inspired thereto by one of Hills Bros' big calendars,) with the April 6, 1917, the U. S. declared a state of war with Germany. Lee surrendered at Appomattox; April 12, 1861, Fort Sumpter was bombarded April 25, 1898; the U. S. declared war with Spain; April 14, 1912, the Titanic went down, with a sacrifice of 1500 lives; April 27, 1822, Ulysses S. Grant was born. Then there is the Easter season with its various ceremonial days commemorating the greatest event the world has ever known, and besides all these we have "Patriotic day" on Apr. 19, and southern Memorial day Apr. 26, to say nothing of the very first day of the month when "fools abound and jokers flourish."

Dear Friends:

Time changes all things but the liar, the loafer and the dead beat; also the man who can take a drink or let it alone but does not let it alone; also the neutral who does not care which way it goes—but is sure to go to the polls and vote "yes" on the amendment, which will start a lot more boys on the road to ruin and delirium tremens. If the young people could have seen some of the men we have boarded here that were taking the cure, and could have heard their groans and curses and pleadings for whisky, and seen them jump and scream and rave, there would be few voters for a wet state.

Well, it is housecleaning time, and I have a lot of fine Brooms that I will sell at 80 cents apiece; also Barn Brooms at 85 cents.

Nice, clean Onion Sets at 10 cents the quart, red and yellow, and white ones at 15 cents or 2 quarts for 25 cents.

I am still headquarters for Potatoes, for Seed and for Eating. No. 10 Cans of Apples at 60 cents per case just like they come off the tree. Also 5 kinds of Bread for Saturday at 13 cents per loaf, and do not forget the Bulk Dill Pickles, and Sour and Sweet Pickles, so good and so cheap.

The monopolists have tried to put me out of the Milk deal, but I am still in the ring, with Good Milk and Low Prices.

This scheme to rob the working people by high prices is something fierce. Their slogan is to get all they can, regardless of the others people's welfare. I will say to the Farmers, bring on your Eggs. I will pay cash for them. I am also selling Calf Meal, the best, at 5 cents per lb.

Will have lots of Binder Twine, at lower prices than last year. Am selling lots of Good Pork for 25 cents per pound, and Beans to match.

I now have the Rice Seed Co. Seeds that were sent to Charley. They were left with Mr. Bogart. Hills and the Rice company wrote to me, asking if I would take them. I already had a lot of their seeds, but I told them I would take them. This leaves me with a large assortment, and I will sell them at cost to clean up the deal.
