VOL. XLIX, NO. 88.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, APRIL 11, 1919.

$1.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

MONDAY'S ELECTION

DREW BIG VOTE

NORTHVILLE TOWNSHIP CAST 854; WOMEN TURNED OUT FELL FORCE.

ENTIRE REPUBLICAN TICKET ELECTED; DRY VOTE NEARLY 40 TO 1.

Monday's election drew out the largest vote ever, but that was to be expected, because there are now about as many women voters as there are men. In Northville township there were 854 votes taken here and about 830 cast, for count. About 24 odd were spoiled or not voted. All in all that was a mighty good showing. Nearly half of the vote was by women and the fact that so comparatively few ballots were thrown out or left out by the voter shows that the women have learned how to vote much more quickly than the men did.

The entire Republican ticket was elected by majorities ranging from 175 to 461.

The "wet" amendment lost by a vote of 402 No. to 153 Yes.

The Good Roads bond issue carried by a vote of 612 Yes to 105 No, and the salary amendment lost by 75.

Following is the vote in full, the first named being Republican in each case:

Supervisor	William J. Lanning	631

TEMPLAR OFFICERS INSTALLED.

Past Commander Tupper of Northville Commandery was present Tuesday evening to help install the new officers. Dr. Tupper is just back from France and has given the Knights Templar many interesting side lights on the work of our armies overseas. He says the French are hard hit, but they reveal many wonderful traits. He says there is no place like the U. S. A.

NOVI VOTES FOR GOOD ROADS

At the town meeting held at Novi Monday, there was enthusiasm manifested for good roads that speaks well for the future benefits of the town. Supervisor Harry Bogart, and C. C. Yerkes, president of the Northville Auto club, spoke in favor of a goodly sized appropriation and there was $12,000 finally raised for road purposes.

In the amounts raised will be for the building of a new road from Grand River to Wixom and one mile on the Novi-Northville road, south from the South Lyon road towards Northville.

The county commissioners are to build a new road from the east side of Walled Lake to Novi corners.

NORTHVILLE VOTES

GOOD ROADS MONDAY

At the town meeting held Monday in the Northville village hall the following money was ordered raised by taxation for the ensuing year:

General Fund	$3,000.00
Poor Fund	300.00
Permanent Roads	2,000.00
Road Repairs	3,500.00

From the Road Repair fund it was voted to spend $500 on repairing the Ridge Road beginning at the Henderson Hill, going south; 500 south on the Frank Johnson road at Mead's Mills; $500 on the Benton hill at Mead's Mills.

The total amount raised is about $5,005 more than last year.

'NOTHER LETTER FROM CORP. JOHN COUCH

John Couch writes his sister as follows, under date of March 18:

"Dear Sister: Another Sunday finds me still at Base 81, A. P. O. 731. I am well and enjoying the mild sunny days, it being so unusual for the sun to shine.

"Tomorrow is St. Patrick's day, and a year ago I was entering the trenches at Verdun. From now on, I will be remembering better what happened from day to day during the months of our activities.

"I wouldn't have known it was St. Patrick's day a year ago when we hiked from Lemmes at 8 in the evening to our support positions between Verdun and Metz, arriving about 3:30 next morning—that is most of us arrived, but a lot couldn't make it—but a little Irishman by the name of Patrick Walsh, carrying a pack as big as himself, had made the hike o. k. and was sitting beside Lieut. Bastin while we were resting, and the Lieutenant asked him how he ever made it. Pat said it was St. Patrick's day or he never could. A Frenchman was guiding us and he was a fool or got lost, or both. We hiked 34 kilometers—or about 20 miles—after riding in box cars for 36 hours, eating iron rations until they gave out, and then we ate our rations, for which we nearly got court-martialed. We were in our position 3 days before the supply train arrived. We spent the time working on roads and watching anti-aircraft guns fire at Bosch's planes. The shells would explode awfully close to the planes, as we could see by the puffs of black and white smoke, some guns firing black powder or high explosive shells, others just ordinary shrapnel that made white smoke.

"Well, I hope to see you some time this summer. You might mail me a letter here and if I am not here it will be forwarded.

"Cpl. JOHN V. COUCH, U. S. M. C."

(Miss Couch states that all the letters they write to her brother lately are now being returned to Northville, which leads his friends to think he will soon be among those embarking for the U. S. A.)

STIMPSON COMPANY AT LOUISVILLE, KY.

The following article from the Louisville, Kentucky, Evening Post will be of interest to many Northville people:

"The announcement of the acquisition of a new metal industry of unusual importance is made by Tampton Aubuchon, general manager of the Louisville Industrial Foundation.

"Negotiations have been closed with the Stimpson Computing Scale Company resulting in the establishment here of a manufacturing plant giving employment to 250 skilled mechanics. The company will manufacture a complete line of Stimpson automatic weighing and computing scales, and will produce between 5,000 and 10,000 scales per annum. The Stimpson company will be a Kentucky corporation, with a capital of $350,000. Its machinery and equipment are now being installed in the Sneed building at 815 West Market. The company's product will be manufactured under the patents of Walter F. Stimpson, the foremost inventor of computing and automatic weighing devices, who will be identified with the company in the capacity of director.

"At the present time there are more than 150,000 Stimpson computing scales in use in groceries, markets and other wholesale and retail establishments throughout the United States and foreign countries.

"It is estimated that the plant will have an annual output valued in excess of $1,500,000, and an annual payroll of more than $390,000."

The annual meeting of the Northville Auto club occurs at the council room at 7:30 tonight (Friday). Every auto owner and every person interested in good roads and better conditions for motorists, whether members of the club or not, is urged to be present.

PLANT TREES TO ESCAPE EROSION

No Other Tree So Well Adapted for Use in Gullies as Black or Yellow Locust.

Suckers Freely From Roots, Grows Rapidly and Makes One of Best Woods for Fence Posts—Forms Protective Cover.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the farm has places that are washing badly, the owners should lose no time in starting to reclaim them by planting trees.

In the upper Piedmont, mountain, and Mississippi valley sections no other tree is so well adapted for planting in gullies as black (or "yellow") locust. It has a large root system, suckers freely from the root, grows rapidly, and makes one of the most lasting woods for fence posts. Small sections or seedlings from 1 to 2 feet high with roots should be set out in the spring on gully banks and over the gully bottoms in soil made loose by mattock, plow, or dynamite. A spacing of approximately 8 by 8 feet apart is advisable, taking advantage of naturally favorable situations and avoiding the middle of stream channels. The little trees can be dug up in locust thickets, or obtained from commercial nurseries.

Stop Gully Erosion.

For the dry, clayey soils of the Piedmont, the native shortleaf pine (Pinus echinata) is well adapted for stopping gully erosion. It is very frequently observed coming in naturally in such places, and even when young exerts a marked influence in holding the soil. When set out in gullies its growth is fairly rapid, and in a few years, it forms a complete protective cover. Young shortleaf pines are often found in great numbers in an old field recently turned out. They are much more

CARE IN HANDLING MACHINES

Approximately $100,000,000 Constitutes Annual Loss Due to Lack of Good Shelter.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

A certain farm-equipment dealer has one record customer who buys a new binder every three years, and who at one time was in debt for three binders which he purchased in a period of seven years. This farmer uses a ready-made apple tree as a shelter for his grain harvester. When one tree rots he plants another. And although he and his family work hard, he is always paying last season's debts with next year's income. Why isn't he successful?

If the agricultural implements which have rusted and rotted to pieces in fence corners and barnyards could be placed end to end, they would probably stretch from here to infinity. Approximately $100,000,000 constitutes the annual loss due to lack of care in handling farm machinery—a tribute to catch-up methods. The average farmer will sit up all night to save the life of a day-old calf or a litter of pigs and think nothing of it, yet the same man will begrudge the time and labor necessary to haul valuable tools from the fields to proper shelters.

FOOD INSPECTION EXTENDED

Service of Bureau of Markets Now Covers 45 Receiving Markets—Work Is Broadened.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The food products inspection service of the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, has been extended until it now covers 45 large receiving markets. As shippers and receivers become acquainted with the service, which supplies a neutral inspection of perishables, the condition of shipments improves, owing to better packing and loading of cars, while the operation of the service has tended to prevent loss through delays in unloading cars. Although, as first established, the service received applications only from shippers, recent legislation broadens its work and applications for inspection are now received from shippers, receivers, dealers, and other interested persons, a nominal fee being charged in each instance.

Among commendations of the inspection service received from farmers and shippers' organizations is the endorsement of the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' association in a resolution passed at a recent convention.

LESSONS OF ORCHARD APPLIED TO WOODLAND

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Before planting your orchard you decide what are the most profitable varieties and plant only those. You don't want too great a variety.

In handling the woodland it is best to keep only a few of the most profitable varieties of forest trees and cut out the others.

You plant your fruit trees far apart because you want low-spreading tops, easy to pick from.

In planting forest trees you don't want to pick the fruit, so you plant the trees near together and obtain tall, straight trees with small tops.

You prune your fruit trees in order to get less wood and better fruit.

Don't waste time pruning forest trees, because you are not growing forest fruit but wood. Cut out the poorer trees for wood and leave the best ones for lumber.

DESTROY ALL GARDEN PESTS

Good Plan to Burn Off Old Bean Vines and Other Vegetation Making Breeding Places.

A good way to rid the garden of insect pests is to burn off all the old bean vines, pumpkin and melon vines, and other vegetation, as such spots make excellent breeding places for these pests. The refuse should first be raked into small piles, then dried, and after burning the ashes should be scattered over the garden plot to sweeten the soil.

Helps for Spring Housecleaning.

For cleaning woodwork and furniture tepid soapsuds made of soft water with a bland soap may be safely used on the finest woods. Pianos, tables, desks and all other pieces are washed by wringing soft cloths from this suds until they are merely damp and not wet, washing a small part of the surface at a time and drying it with a clean cloth immediately until the whole surface has been gone over. Afterward a safe polish may be used, if needed. If wiped dry very quickly the washing rag may be quite wet without injury to any kind of wood.

For polishing a mixture of crude (not refined) linseed oil and turpentine in equal parts is successful. Apply with a piece of flannel and afterward polish with a soft rag. This is a cheap and lasting preparation. Pulverized pumice stone makes a good lighter for the surface of a piece of furniture that has become dull. Moisten a soft flannel cloth with a few drops of linseed oil and rub the pumice stone on with this. When spots and scratches have disappeared with the rubbing, wipe off the surface with a cheesecloth rag and then rub with a little linseed oil on a flannel cloth. The degree of the polish depends upon the amount of rubbing.

A Dustless Duster.

Take one part raw linseed oil and mix with four parts gasoline and bottle, taking the same precautions as with gasoline alone to guard against fires. Take the cloth or rag used for the duster, moisten it by pouring the liquid on it, open it out and swing it a few times in the open air until the gasoline has evaporated out of it, when a slight film of oil will still remain in the cloth, sufficient to hold the dust firmly on its surface and wipe cleanly and quickly a varnished surface. If properly prepared no undesirable oil will remain on the furniture.

Washing Enamel Paint.

The beauty of white paint and enamel that are so deservedly popular is dependent upon spotlessness. There are various things that will remove spots therefrom, but the following method will leave the paint almost better than when new. It works like a charm upon paint or enameled metal beds, foy, and doubtless upon numerous other things.

Have ready two white cheesecloth cloths. Put them into hot water and then wring out until they are no longer wet, but merely dampened. Upon one of them rub a good white soap. The result will be a heavy cream, but not a lather. Rub this upon the soiled places until the latter disappears, which will be immediately unless the case be a very bad one; then wipe off with the other cloth. The secret of success lies in the cream that is not a lather, in the mildness of the soap used, and in the dampness instead of the wetness of the white cloths.

New Jersey Fabrics.

One of the novelties prepared by the French houses for the next winter season is a double jersey of wool. It consists of two layers interlocked with each other and measuring the thickness of the little finger. It will be used for coats. Another novelty in the line of jersey is for this coming summer and will be in the shape of knitted wool jersey of extreme softness and thickness, and will be used as a full substitute on coats, wraps and dresses, especially around the neck.

School Clothes and Uniforms

Those schools for girls that insist upon uniforms for their students have the best of reasons for taking this course. They have an understanding of youthful human nature and know what to expect of schoolgirls. Usually when the young miss arrives at the flapper stage—when she enters her teens and the high school—she becomes self-conscious and at the same time rather heady and difficult in the matter of clothes. Girls in their teens are very sensitive and uniforms spare them many heartburnings. Where uniforms are not required, mothers should dictate and insist upon plain and sensible clothes for school, requiring neatness and comfort in them. The best people follow this rule to prevent smothering in their girls and to keep their minds from being distracted.

Of all colors for school wear navy blue has the strongest following. Many schools demand black. Occasionally brown is the favored color, but it is warm looking in summer. Any one of them is reliable. Gray is pretty but grows tiresome.

For the flapper there is no garment that outclasses the middie for becomingness and comfort, and it is the foundation of nearly all of this season's school dresses. Many variations of it have appeared and one of them is pictured here. Navy blue men's wear serge trimmed with white braid makes a promising beginning for a middie that runs true to form with a sailor collar and tie. But this pretty garment capers away from the true middie, making a digression in favor of true buttons that serve to fasten the body of it to a yoke. It also displays a tiny vestee with braid and embroidered anchor in white, and patch pockets adorned with braid and buttons. Finally there is a narrow patent leather belt that fits in with the middie style very well.

The gym suit shown in the picture is made of black serge, with bloomers having plaits instead of gathers in the material. These are worn with a white middie of plain, heavy cotton and a small, red silk tie.

Julia Bonney

No One Silhouette.

Styles are so varied this season that it can never be truthfully said that any one silhouette predominates. One frock shown features a slight back flare at the hips and for the sake of variety Paris has recently sent over some dresses that flare oddly in front on the skirt section, with the waist flaring in the back. This eccentricity is arrived at by the use of a loose panel on the back of the bodice, caught into the blouse slightly at the waistline, while the skirt is equipped with a straight or draped apron overskirt.

Starving in the Midst of Plenty

Acid-Stomach Steals Strength and Good Feelings From Millions

One of the worst features of acid-stomach is that very often it literally starves its victims in the midst of plenty. And the strange thing about it is that the people with acid-stomachs seldom know what their trouble really is.

No matter how good or wholesome the food may be, or how much they eat, they do not gain in strength. This is clearly explained by the fact that an acid-stomach cannot properly digest food. Instead of healthy, normal digestion, the excess acid causes the food to sour and ferment. Then when this mass of sour, fermented food, charged with excess acid, passes into the intestines, it becomes the breeding place for all kinds of germs and toxic poisons, which in turn are absorbed into the blood and in this way distributed throughout the entire body. And that is exactly why it is that so many thousands of people eat and eat and keep on eating and yet are literally starving in the midst of plenty. Their acid-stomachs make it absolutely impossible for them to get the full measure of nourishment out of their food. And it doesn't take long for this poor nourishment to show its ill effects in a weakened, emaciated body.

You may say: "My stomach doesn't hurt me." That may be true, because many victims of acid-stomach do not actually suffer stomach pains. Then again, there are millions who do suffer all kinds of aches and pains—headaches, rheumatic twinges, gout, lumbago, pains around the heart and in the chest—who never dream that an acid-stomach is the real cause of the trouble.

Naturally, the sensible thing to do is to strike right at the very cause of this trouble and clean the excess acid out of the stomach. There is a quick, easy way to do this. A wonderful new remedy quickly removes the excess acid without the slightest discomfort. It is EATONIC. Made in the form of tablets—they are good to eat—just like a bit of candy. They literally absorb the injurious excess acid and carry it away through the intestines. They also drive the blast out of the body—in fact you can fairly feel it work. Make a test of EATONIC in your own case today. Get a big box of EATONIC from your druggist. See for yourself how surely it brings quick relief in those painful attacks of indigestion, bitter heartburn, belching, disgusting food repeating, that awful bloated, lumpy feeling after eating and other stomach miseries. Banish all your stomach troubles so completely that you forget you have a stomach. Then you can eat what you like and digest your food in comfort without fear of distressing after effects.

If EATONIC does not relieve you, it will not cost you one penny. You can return it to your druggist and get your money back. So if you have the slightest question about your health—if you feel you are not getting all the strength out of your food—if you are not feeling tip-top, ready for your work, full of vim and vigor—do give EATONIC a fair trial this very day and see how much better you will feel.

AND IT WASN'T SO.

One of the stock arguments "ever since the year one," so to speak, of the anti-suffragists has been that women would demean themselves by going to the horrid polling places full of tobacco smoke, profanity and all the other bad things that were alleged to be necessary to the proper casting of the ballots of the enfranchised element of American citizenship. And some women, even among those who felt that they should have the right to vote, actually believed this, even after it had been disproved for years in the equal suffrage states.

But how different the reality! Probably the voting facilities in Northville are not vastly different from those of most country towns, and while our village hall is no palatial affair at its best, no Northville woman had the least expectation of receiving anything but the most courteous treatment from such men as go to make up the personnel of the officials on such an occasion. And from the male voters with whom they mingled they didn't expect nor receive, any whiffs of tobacco smoke in their faces, any swearing or rough treatment of any kind, nor did they expect to wade through any filth or tumble over any cuss-pidors or anything of that sort, and they didn't. Neither do we imagine that city women had to put up with any such things, or ever will.

Everything here—as probably in other places—was as quiet and orderly as possible, and if any newly enfranchised voter felt it, beforehand, a disagreeable duty to cast her ballot she probably never will feel so again.

Northville Newslets.

Don't forget the masquerade at the school house tonight.

Hon. M. N. Johnson and wife have moved back from Lansing to their Northville home and Mr. Johnson now makes the trip back and forth for the week-end.

Dr. Malloy operated on Miss Ruth Baulkman for appendicitis Sunday night and the patient is doing nicely, at the home of Mrs. Fred Lyke where she has been living for some time past.

The township election board was a weary bunch "the morning after." It took them till six o'clock a. m. Tuesday to complete the counting. Now just see what you did, ladies!

Mr. Whale of Kalamazoo was a visitor in Oxford a few days ago. He isn't married (there are as good fish in the sea as ever were caught) and if he is well, let us hope that at least his parents didn't name him Jonah.

The regular evening meeting and spring spread of The King's Daughters will be held with Mrs. N. C. Schrader, Thursday, April 15. Supper at six o'clock. Members are requested to come, and bring usual dishes.

The Lady Macabees' benefit entertainment at the Alseum Tuesday night brought out a full house. The "colored ladies" did their part in real professional style and received plenty of applause, also causing much curiosity as to "who was who."

Half a hundred women were at the school building Friday evening to attend the meeting for instructions to voters. Township Clerk Miller gave an excellent demonstration of the balloting process using blackboard illustrations, and answering a number of questions.

Mr. and Mrs. Willard Arms of Rose Center have purchased the Mercy Evans property on Randolph street. Mr. Arms is operator at the P. M. station at Rose Center, and when he retires from that business they expect to make their home in Northville. Mr. Arms was station agent at Novi for some years and his wife was Eliza Goodell of that place.

Harrison Merritt, living on the Base Line south and east of South Lyon, is 77 years of age, yet this winter he has hewed out the timbers and erected a tool shed 22x26 feet in size on his farm. The part of it, of which he is particularly proud is the fact that he did all the work alone and had no help even in erecting and placing the rafters. This, we should judge, would be an undertaking many much younger men could feel proud of.—South Lyon Herald.

Mrs. J. B. Cook is once more on the way to recovery.

A recent advertiser for milk customers via the Record's liner department came in this week to cancel the advertisement, stating that said ad had already made it necessary that more cows be bought before any further customers could be cared for.

A shadow social is to be given in the brick school house a few miles west of town on the evening of April 16th, with program in connection. Miss Viola Miller is the teacher of the school.

From the George B. Yerkes big stock farm northeast of the village comes the champion daily milk record received at the Northville Condensery plant. Saturday and Sunday showed $97 lbs. each day. Now Mr. Yerkes is trying for the monthly high record mark. George has a fine herd of Holsteins and expects to soon produce 1,000 lbs. per day.

After 6 years of afternoon work at the James A. Huff hardware store, Roy G. Clark now proposes to devote his spare time to the manufacture of ice cream and sherbets. He has fitted up a very nice place in the basement of his high street bungalow for this purpose. Mr. Clark will continue his mail service as usual.

A "mere man" was heard to remark Monday that "the (deleted) here) women didn't know enough, any way, to fix their ballots right," were "all the time asking questions" and so on. According to our local election officials it would be better if more men "asked questions," as the said officials inform the Record that scarcely any of the ballots believed to have been deposited by women were spoiled, the most of those thrown out being the ones cast during the hours when very few women were voting.

Charles Evans, for the past four years manager of the Quirk Farms and who resigned that position March 1, has accepted the position of manager of the Detroit tuberculosis farm at Northville. This farm is one of 642 acres recently purchased by the city of Detroit and located just west of Northville. Mr. Evans' work will consist in improving the tract from the rough into a thoroughly up-to-date farm and tuberculosis sanitarium, with a large dairy and poultry department, etc. He will make his home in this village until a suitable house can be erected on the farm for him—Belleville Enterprise.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and for years it was supposed to be incurable. Doctors prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Catarrh is a local disease, greatly influenced by constitutional conditions and therefore requires constitutional treatment. One Hundred Dollars reward is offered for any case that Hall's Catarrh Medicine fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio. Sold by Druggists, etc. Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

COME-WIN A PRIZE.

If you win one of the two prizes offered for best costume at the masquerade, right there before a whole crowd, won't it be worth a hundred dollars to you. Come anyway and take a chance. Good music—take a chance. Eight o'clock, at the High school gym tonight.

RED CROSS NOTES.

The quota of sewing at the workrooms is now completed. There will be more to do later on, and members will be notified in due time. There is still knitting yarn, however, and enough for a dozen pairs of children's stockings is yet uncalled for.

Please remember that our social meeting at the school building next week is—emphatically—an informal affair, and in no sense a "dress-up" occasion.

There are still a few garments that have been taken home to finish which have not yet been turned in. It is requested that this be done as soon as possible, as the work is to be sent away next week.

The existence of local board for Division No. 4, Wayne county, came to an end Monday, when the books, blanks and records of the organization were shipped to the provost marshal general at Washington, and board members have nothing to remind them of their war time work, except the memory of the service—Plymouth Mail.

When Charles Hubble of the lumber yard opened the door of a box car Tuesday that contained a shipment of lumber from West Virginia he found a hound and her puppy in so weak a condition that they could not stand. Mr. Hubble got them food and water, and had to hold the starved creatures up while they partook of the refreshments. Later he returned and found them quite lively. He says that they must have been confined in the car at least twenty days—Holly Advertiser.

Impurities in the Blood Directly the Cause of Many Human Ailments

This time of the year many people suffer from what is termed "SPRING FEVER" which in many cases is due to the stagnant condition of the blood because of the toxic poisons stored up within the body. You have a tired feeling and wonder why. It is because the various organs of the body are not doing their normal duties.

Until nature takes hold you should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alternative and blood-purifier. This can be had in taking Supreme Brand Blood and Skin Purifier which is composed of the following ingredients, many of which you know as old-time remedies: Ginger Root, Mandrake Root, Licorice Root, Broom Corn Seed, Trifolium, Alex. Senna, Sarsaparilla Root, Poke Root, Red Clover, Burdock Root, Potassium Iodide, Soda Benzoate and Soda Salicylate.

The Real Merits of this preparation are its powers of restoring and strengthening the system, cleansing and enriching the blood when it has become impure, such impurities often showing themselves by eruptions, pimples, blotches, etc. It stimulates nature to expel impurities from the system through the natural channels, thus cleansing the blood and restoring the system to a pure and healthy state, as through the blood all the organs and tissues of the body are reached.

This is an excellent remedy for rheumatism, kidney trouble, and a general reconstructive tonic which should be taken especially by those who have had influenza or hard winter colds. Many people have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition. In all such ailments this remedy has accomplished a wonderful amount of good.

SUPREME BRAND BLOOD AND SKIN PURIFIER can be secured by calling the Northville Chemical Co., Phone 36-W., or purchased from Ambler & Son, where a stock is carried for the convenience of our customers.

Jay Leavenworth of Novi was in town Tuesday just about to leave for the north part of the state to bring back another car-load of milch cows. Mr. Leavenworth tells during the year many car-loads of first-class livestock and depends on the liner ads in the Record almost entirely to notify the public of his sales.

At the annual meeting of the Oakland County Horticultural society, which includes a number of Northville-vicinity people in its membership held at Birmingham Saturday, E. J. Verduyn of Novi was re-elected president; Carl Tibbitts, Farmington, vice-president; Harry Rackham, Northville, secretary; and Smith Green, Walled Lake, treasurer.

AND IT WASN'T SO.

One of the stock arguments "ever since the year one," so to speak, of the anti-suffragists has been that women would demean themselves by going to the horrid polling places full of tobacco smoke, profanity and all the other bad things that were alleged to be necessary to the proper casting of the ballots of the enfranchised element of American citizenship. And some women, even among those who felt that they should have the right to vote, actually believed this, even after it had been disproved for years in the equal suffrage states.

But how different the reality. Probably the voting facilities in Northville are not vastly different from those of most country towns, and while our village hall is no palatial affair at its best, no Northville woman had the least expectation of receiving anything but the most courteous treatment from such men as go to make up the personnel of the officials on such an occasion. And from the male voters with whom they mingled they didn't expect nor receive, any whiffs of tobacco smoke in their faces, any swearing or rough treatment of any kind, nor did they expect to wade through any filth or tumble over any cuss-pidors or anything of that sort, and they didn't. Neither do we imagine that city women had to put up with any such things, or ever will.

Everything here—as probably in other places—was as quiet and orderly as possible, and if any newly enfranchised voter felt it, beforehand, a disagreeable duty to cast her ballot, she probably never will feel so again.

If Women Only Knew

What a Heap of Happiness It Would Bring to Northville Homes.

Hard to do housework with an aching back.

Brings you hours of misery at leisure or at work.

If women only knew the cause—that

Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.

It would save much needless woe.

Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.

Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.

Mr. Minnie Grant, 190 E. Congress street, Detroit, Mich., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble, my feet and ankles swelled and I had puffy sacs beneath my eyes. My kidneys didn't act right at all and I was down in bed for quite a time. My back often felt as if it would break in two. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with good results, I decided to try them. Four boxes of Doan's cured me and I haven't had any trouble in some time."

WIXOM CHURCH NOTES.

Ten Million Victory Gardens Should Be Planted Early This Spring

By C. L. PACK, War Garden Commission

The war garden commission, which has been credited with much of the effort by which the number of home gardens in America has been steadily increased during the last three years, till 1918 saw more than five and a quarter millions of patriots raising food at home to win the war, has received word from Herbert C. Hoover that the work must not lag this year. From every viewpoint the continued creation of food, f. o. b. the back door, is considered desirable.

The nation's health authorities have reported to the commission that a material improvement in the health of the nation, particularly among men and women beyond the prime of life, has been brought about by the moderate exercise, sunshine and fresh air and lively interest brought about through the general adoption of gardening as an avocation.

And the fiscal guardians of the government have not been slow to recognize the home garden as a great national asset. Lifting the average law-and-crediting each garden with creating $25 of wealth—that is, supplying food for which $25 otherwise would have been spent—last year's gardens put not less than $132,000,000 in the way of being lent to the government in return for Liberty bonds and War Savings stamps. That much of this money was so invested is proved by the number of garden clubs that became subscribers for bonds in each of the war loans.

But even more important than the money lent to the government by home gardeners as a direct result of their outdoor activities is the habit of thrift created, engendered and fostered by the garden returns. Students of national economy have concluded that few will willingly return to the practice of buying from day to day the things that can be raised in the garden.

So the war garden commission is encouraged to hope that its efforts to have ten million Victory gardens, which is the new name for the war garden planted this year will be successful.

Now is the time to start little or big garden clubs, elect officers for the year, hold meetings to swap experiences and suggest methods, invite speakers who have a message, and study garden pamphlets, bulletins and seedsmen's catalogues.

Bohemia Protected Against Anarchy by Great Faith and Patriotism

By THOMAS MASARYK, President

The bolshevik government in Russia will last longer than is generally supposed, not because of the inherent force of the ideas and methods of the bolsheviks, as many persons erroneously think, but because of the weakness of the other parties, which are sleeping in a dangerous state of lethargy.

I am not afraid that Bohemia, even though surrounded by countries in liquidation, like Russia, like Germany, like Austria-Hungary, will be disappointed because of anarchy in realizing its fullest hopes of resurrection. I do not fear that in the least, in spite of its unfortunate geographical position. The Czechoslovak republic will be protected from the infection by its great faith, its great patriotism, and by good organization and preparation. The new state, like the other victories of the entente, need fear nothing from this anarchy which never has and never will have power to destroy the edifice created by victory.

As to the Hungarians who are unwilling to renounce their claims to Slovakia, it is possible there may be some questions. But over the outcome I feel no anxiety. Whether the outcome shall be settled by force of arms; whether as a matter of right, the triumph will be ours.

Will American Women Replace Service Uniform With Sex Lure Drapery?

By ELIZABETH NEFF, W. C. T. U. Dress Campaign

Is the American girl going to slump back into prewar style-slavery? She has worthily worn a military uniform, she has won honors for service and bravery side by side with our soldiers; she has nursed the wounded and cheered the homesick; she has fought for great ideals. Now will she let herself degenerate into the mere female of her species? Will the American woman allow her service uniform to be replaced by the suggestive draperies of sex lure? Is she willing to be a living poster or a grotesque cartoon for the advertisement of manufacturers' goods?

If she will not why does the American woman, supreme arbiter in other respects, submit meekly, abjectly to the wildest freak of fashion decreed by men—in American men who have the continental conception of woman and dress her in the continental half-freak character part?

Is it patriotic, when the physical development and health of our girls is a national asset, to invite disease by unhygienic clothing? Is it fair to the young manhood of our nation to suggest in our homes the very temptation from which we try to protect it on the street?

It is the American girl who must henceforth restore order out of chaos, must set the standard of purity, and to do it she must dress her part. What shall the new world leader, the American girl, wear? It is easy to say what she will not wear, and that is a homely uniform dandified by the phrase "dress reform." If the art of all ages cannot design costumes for our pretty American girls that will be beautiful, graceful, comfortable, healthful and modest, then the art of all ages has failed and it is up to this important young person to take the matter in hand herself. Therefore it is time for woman to set herself a new standard of modesty.

This is, in brief, the new campaign begun by the W. C. T. U. for the advancement of social purity. It is summarized in this official resolution:

"Whereas, Certain styles of women's dress are unhygienic, immodest, inconvenient and conducive to extravagance and immorality; therefore Be it resolved, That the women of the W. C. T. U. use their influence to demand simpler and more modest clothing for both day and evening wear and discourage the unseasonable wearing of summer furs, winter pumps, narrow skirts and open necks as well as constant changes of fashion."

Oxen the "Beast of Burden" in Brussels

Germany commandeered most of the horses in Brussels, Belgium, making it necessary to use oxen in the wagons. Picture shows ox in a city dust cart that was formerly drawn by a horse.

BREEDING CHICKENS ON COMMUNITY PLAN

In some communities the practice is followed of choosing one breed and sticking to it.

There is the advantage of shipping. A crate of uniform size and breed looks well. A community can send a carload, and by shipping a car get higher prices and lower freight rate than when the individual ships.

Then there is more interest in the breed which your neighbor is growing. The poultry crank enthralls his neighbors; he will persuade them to get a good poultry judge to come and go over their flocks. The community can afford the fifty to a hundred dollars this would probably cost for a good judge, whereas the individual might not be able to pay the bill.

Poultry clubs and breed clubs are doing on a long-distance scale what the community can do near at hand. For example, the Rhode Island Red club has created a fund to give publicity to their breed. They have secured a secretary to look after their interests, and are enlisting all of their members in a publicity campaign. They tell them to obtain and tabulate all facts favorable to Rhode Island Reds, such as high egg records, early maturity, vitality, etc., and give these facts the widest possible publicity. Check up on all egg contests and give publicity to any facts established that are favorable to the Rhode Island Reds. Secure in writing the opinions of government experts as to the merits of the Reds," etc., etc.

We all remember the boom the White Orpingtons had several years ago through the extravagant advertising of one breeder, and the publicity he gave his customers' records as well as his own.

There is profit in getting together and making yourself heard when things worth while are accomplished.

Rubber Factories in India Resemble an Ordinary Dairy

In southern India a factory at which high-grade rubber is made resembles a dairy, the milklike appearance of the latex adding to this illusion, as well as the precautions taken to insure absolute cleanliness. One of two methods of manufacture is generally adopted. If the estate is young and only a few trees are being tapped the rubber is made in the form of biscuits or sheets. The biscuits are placed on racks in a warm room or an artificial dryer and allowed to remain there until dry. The finished biscuits are pale-amber colored and transparent, and for this reason are popular on the market, for their purity and freedom from dirt can be judged by holding them to the light and looking through them.

"Everything Lovely and the Goose Hangs High"

The most popular explanation of the origin of the expression "Everything is lovely and the goose hangs high" is this: That it comes from the southern country amusement known as "goose pulling." A goose, its neck carefully plucked and well greased, was hung by its feet to a branch of a tree. The men would ride past at a gallop, trying to catch it by the neck and pull its head off. The better the goose was in dodging the greaser the fun. When the goose hung high, so that the competitors had to stand in their stirrups to grasp at it, the joy was greatest. Another suggested origin is that it refers to the fact that wild geese fly in clear weather; this explanation would change "hangs" to "hunks."

Relief.

A man is relieved and gay when he has put his heart into his work and done his best; but what he has said and done otherwise shall give him no peace.—Emerson

London Board of Education Is Experimenting With the Simplified Spelling Form

The London board of education has after many refusals sanctioned experiments in simplified spelling. Speaking on the subject at University college, Prof. Walter Rippman, chief inspector of London university, said:

"It was necessary to have a code of spelling which would represent not dialects, but standard speech of the whole English speaking race. It was hoped that the United States government could be brought to co-operate with the British government in bringing this about."

Miss Walsh of Honeywell Road school, Battersea, where the experiment in simplified spelling is being made, said that learning to read in the simplified form was a much happier experience for a child than under the old method.

A number of Miss Walsh's pupils, of an average of six years of age, gave a demonstration of word-building by the simplified method. All could read with facility both in the old and new form of spelling.

The Origin of "Blue Blood"

"Blue blood" appears to mean the blood of a fair skinned race as it strikes the eyes of a dark skinned people; in its Spanish form, sangre azul, it seems to have been first used to describe the blue veins on the fair skin of the foreign northern aristocratic classes of Spain.

Mother's Cook Book

Be diplomatic—a farmer out West kept himself supplied with coal by making faces at the engineer as the train went by.

A Few Choice Dishes. When meal time is taken at noon there is no dish which touches the spot like a nice hot soup.

Coconut Soup. The trouble of preparing this delicious soup will be swallowed and forgotten with the first taste. Cook two pounds of veal bones in two quarts of water added cold. When reduced to one quart add the chopped meat of one coconut and cook one-half hour. Strain and add the milk of the nut and a pint of cream. Reheat and thicken with a tablespoonful of flour and butter cooked together. Season with salt, cayenne and onion juice. When ready to serve pour over two beaten eggs.

Victoria's Favorite Soup. Remove the fat from a quart of water in which a chicken has been cooked. Season well with salt, pepper, onion juice and celery salt. Mash the yolks of three hard-cooked eggs, mix with half a cupful of bread crumbs soaked in milk until soft. Chop white meat of chicken until it is fine as meal and stir it into the egg and bread crumb paste. Add a pint of hot cream, slowly, then the chicken liquor. Boil five minutes, add more seasonings, if too thin, add more crumbs. It should be a puree.

The feet of chickens, wing tips of fowls, tough ends of steaks all make fine flavored soups.

Squaw Dish.

As Indians are very fond of preparing this dish it has taken the name from them. Cut bacon in thin slices and cook until crisp, pour off half the fat from a quart of a pound of bacon and add a quart of corn, fresh from the cob is best, but canned will do. Stir until the corn is cooked if fresh, and thoroughly hot, if canned. Season with salt and pepper and serve. Bake pears by dotting with bits of butter, add sugar, lemon juice and taste them while baking. Serve either hot or cold.

Express and Implied Powers of Congress as Interpreted by the U. S. Supreme Court

The express powers of congress are those which are expressly granted by the Constitution of the United States and the implied powers are whatever is necessary, under the Constitution, to give force and effect to its express powers. In determining what acts are necessary and proper in the exercise of expressly enumerated powers an interpretation has been applied by the supreme court itself. Chief Justice Marshall, in an early decision, said: "Let the end be legitimate, let it be within the scope of the Constitution, and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited but consist with the letter and spirit of the Constitution" are constitutional. Thus the supreme court held that under the taxing and borrowing power congress may charter a federal bank and exempt its notes from state taxation; or create a system of national banks, and levy a prohibitive tax upon the issues of state banks; or issue paper money and make it a legal tender for all debts. Similarly, the power given congress to regulate commerce has been held to authorize legislation concerning navigation, pilotage, the transportation of goods and passengers between the states of the union, the restricting or prohibiting of foreign immigration, etc. Thus almost every constitutional grant of express power to congress has been held to carry with it an implied grant of necessary powers to give effect to the express grant.

Monster Vessel Had to Be Turned on Its Side to Pass Through the Welland Canal

That ships were cut in two in order to get them out of the Great Lakes and into transatlantic service when the war put its tremendous demand on American shipping is commonly known; but the expedient adopted to get the giant Charles R. Van Hise through the Welland canal attracted little attention. This vessel was of too wide a beam to pass through the Welland canal. It was floated through by turning it on its side.

The Charles R. Van Hise is a 9,000-ton freighter, twice as large as any of the other vessels taken from the Great Lakes. The locks of the Welland canal are 260 feet long and 44 feet wide. Besides cutting the Van Hise in two, it was necessary to turn her on her side, and then she had only eight inches of clearance. This plan for handling large ships on the lakes was devised by F. A. Eastis and carried out by the shipping board engineers.

Six pontoon tanks were placed on the forward section of the Van Hise. The tanks, when filled, held about 500 tons of water. The pumps were put to work, filling the tanks, steam being furnished by the tugs. It required about five hours to fill the tanks, when the bow section of the vessel had rolled over perfectly on its side.

The forward section was towed from Buffalo to Port Colborne, Canada, the entrance to the Welland canal. She was then towed into the first lock and the gates were closed, which revealed the project was a success.

Telephone Girls Must Have the Foundation of Singing Voice, Music Teacher Says

Has the telephone girl the sweetest singing voice? Judging from inquiries among well-known singing masters, the opinion seems to be that the telephone, in regard to voice production and development, is of great value.

"One has only to compare the singing of years ago," one of these teachers said, "with that of the present day to realize this. There may have been much music in the singing of the past, but there was certainly little clearness. People did not realize the value of each word, and the care that should be taken to enunciate each syllable."

Nowadays, when the telephone is one of the pivots of our daily life, the necessity to speak clearly and distinctly is obvious. "The telephone girl, who is at her instrument all day, most certainly possesses the foundation of a good singing voice," said one master, "and probably there are many Melbas and Calves among them."

Cleaning Bottles.

Small brass shavings found at any machine shop where brass is used. After using with soda pour water and all into small cloth bag, sugar, salt or tobacco bag, hang up, let dry; they never rust, are always ready, won't scratch, as brass is softer than glass, yet sharp and pointed enough to clean all corners.

SHORT AND SNAPPY

Some wives are so averse to mending that they won't even try to patch up quarrels. The man who lives for himself alone is apt to be neglected by the world at large. Yes, Elizabeth, it rains on the rich and poor alike if they are unable to swipe an umbrella. Love may be blind, but the girl's father and the dog seldom require the services of an oculist.

For Colds, Catarrh or Influenza

Do you feel weak and unequal to the work ahead of you? Do you still cough a little, or does your nose bother you? Are you pale? Is your blood thin and watery? Better put your body into shape—Build strong! An old, reliable blood-maker and herbal tonic made from wild roots and herbs, is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This "nature remedy" comes in tablet or liquid form. It will build up your body, cure your cold, and protect you from disease germs which lurk everywhere. One of the active ingredients of this temperance alterative and tonic is wild cherry bark with stillingia, which is so good for the lungs and for coughs, also Oregon grape root, blood root, stone root, Queen's root, all skillfully combined in this Medical Discovery. These roots have a direct action on the stomach, improving digestion and assimilation. These herbal extracts in the "Discovery" aid in blood-making, and are best for scrofula. By improving the blood they aid in throwing off an attack of influenza. Catarrh should be treated, first, as a blood disease, with this alternative. Then, in addition, the nose should be washed daily with Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Send 10c for trial pkg. of Medical Discovery Tablets or Catarrh Tablets to Dr. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.

In a Fix.

"What are you puzzling over, John?" asked his wife. "Why, that Mrs. Newrich we gave the St. Bernard pup to, writes asking if it should be fed on meat or dog biscuit." "Well, on biscuit, shouldn't it?" "Yes, but she spells biscuit with a 'k,' and if I spelled the word right it might hurt her feelings." "Oh, say meat, then." "But she spells meat with two 'e's.'"

Result of Work.

"Maud Ketcham's hands do not show any signs of toil." "The ring with the engagement ring on it does."

The scale of justice must be a sort of trial balance.

Health Was Shattered

Mrs. Hayes Was Discouraged Until Doan's Made Her Well.

"I was in awful shape from kidney trouble," says Mrs. Frank Hayes, 42 Dover St., Boston, Mass. "When I got up out of a chair, I felt as though someone had stuck a knife into the small of my back and it fairly took my breath away. The kidney secretions passed often and only a little at a time. They were so acrid I would get a sharp pain as I believed I could be heard a block away. They deposited brick-dust-like sediment and their odor was something awful. My complexion became sallow and I had large puffs under my eyes. I was troubled with spells of gasping for breath and had such dizzy attacks I often fell right off my feet. Spots floated before my eyes and I got so nervous I couldn't stand any noise. I cried over nothing at all, became irritable and imagined all sorts of things. My health was shattered and I became discouraged. I continued to grow worse in spite of any treatment and came pretty near dying several times. After several months of this horror, I heard about Doan's Kidney Pills. I used a dozen boxes of Doan's and was cured. I was entirely well and have enjoyed good health ever since."

HOW CAN YOU TELL YOUR FAVORITE TOBACCO?

As Plain as the Nose on Your Face—Just Smell It

Smokers do not have to put tobacco in their pipes to find out if they like it. They can just rub the tobacco between the palms of their hands and smell it. The nose is an infallible guide to smoking enjoyment.

All snacking tobaccos employ some flavoring "to improve the flavour and burning qualities of the leaves", to quote the Encyclopedia Britannica. Naturally, there is considerable difference in the kind of flavorings used, and the nose quickly detects this difference. TUXEDO Tobacco uses the purest, most wholesome, and delicious of all flavorings—chocolate. And the almost universal liking for chocolate in a great measure explains the widespread popularity of TUXEDO Tobacco.

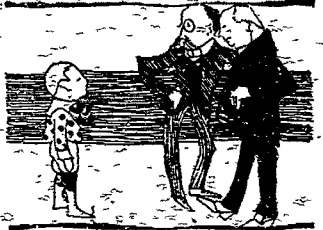

Carefully aged, old Burley tobacco, plus a dash of pure chocolate, gives TUXEDO Tobacco a pure fragrance, your nose can quickly distinguish from any other tobacco. Try it and see.

Japan in the War.
Japan entered the war because of a treaty with Great Britain, concluded in 1902. The original alliance preceded the Russo-Japanese war. In 1905 the alliance was further extended to provide for the defense of British interests in India and Afghanistan, while England agreed to give Japan a free hand on Korea. In 1911 it was again modified by the agreement that Great Britain should not be bound to aid Japan against any power with whom she had a treaty of arbitration—thus excluding the United States as a possible enemy. The alliance has been extended to 1921.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

"Ask him," I suggested.
"Meaning that you don't think I can't get him to agree to my plan? I'll bet my seal ring against yours that I can make him propose before dark. Mine is a very curious one too. A Russian—dude gave it to me. I never met him, but he sent it to my dressing room with some flowers."
It seemed to me to be a possible way to gain a little solitude for reflection, and I assented to the wager.
"You don't intend to tell him, then, that you are engaged already?"
"Oh, no, not until he proposes. Of course I might like him better than I do Ned. Then I'd never tell him."

The rest of us went into the house. As we came in the telephone was ringing. Asking Lucile's permission, I answered it.
"Hello!" said a male voice, speaking with staccato sharpness. "May I speak to Mr. Lipton S. Clair?"
I put my hand over the mouthpiece and turned around. Lucile had gone upstairs, but Bopp was gazing idly out of the window.

"Is Mr. Clair still there in the yard?" I asked him.
"No, he went off down the beach with Miss Dunmore."
"Hello!" I spoke again into the telephone. "Mr. Clair was here a moment ago, but he has just gone for a walk with a young lady."
"Impossible!" The voice at the other end shot that emphatically at me.
"It's so."
"Clair is a woman hater."
"What if he is? This one is going to convert him."
"Humph. She can't do it. Who is she?"
"Her name is Miss Vida Dunmore."
"Vida Dunmore there?"
"Certainly."
"Thank heaven!" he ejaculated fervently. "I've been waiting for hours for her to get here. How does she come to be there?"

I explained to the young man, who proved to be Ned Blaney, as I had already suspected, all about the wreck of the Mary Bell and the casting ashore of her passengers.
"Thanks very much," said Blaney, with considerable relief in his voice. "I'll come right over after her. Don't tell her that I called up and I will surprise her. Goodbye."
He hung up before I could tell him that he probably couldn't get any kind of boat to come over to the island, but I judged that he would find that out soon enough for himself.
"Where's Miss Green?" I asked Bopp.
"I advised her to the down for a little while and rest. This search is wearing her out. She is leaving everything in my charge."
"I presume that congratulations are in order," I said, extending my hand with as good a show of cordiality as I could muster. "I do congratulate you, Mr. Bopp."
"We're not regularly engaged," Bopp said sourly. "She has promised to be mine if I can find her mother. That makes me just about as near engaged to her as if we had never met."
So Lucile's promise had a string tied to it. My heart leaped exultantly. There was a chance yet.
"Let's have a drink on the strength of your engagement anyway," I said, starting toward the kitchen.
"Water?" queried Bopp, hoping against hope.
"Why, yes."
"No, thanks. My tummy is looking for Mount Ararat now." He sank disconsolately into a seat. In a moment he rose wearily. "I've got to start out again. I promised Lucile I would search while she rested."

Hardly had he left the house when the telephone rang again. I answered it.
"Hello."
"Hello. Is that you, Mr. Blaney?"
"Will you call Lucile to the telephone? I want to."
The voice ceased abruptly.
"Hello," I called, "hello, hello!"
There was no answer.
The voice I had just been listening to was that of Mrs. Green.
After a while I got central's attention and demanded to be told why I had been cut off.

"That party called up from a private telephone," said central sweetly. "She had no right to use it. It is a summer telephone only, and the instrument is to be taken out next week."
"But it was Mrs. Green who was talking."
"It couldn't be," central was positive. "You are speaking from Mrs. Green's residence yourself."

"It was Mrs. Green. I recognized her voice."
"Just a minute." There was a pause, then: "Hello! That party called up from Huntington's. What could Mrs. Green be doing there on a stormy day like this?"
I could not explain to a gossip, telephone operator what had really happened to Mrs. Green. I did not know much about it myself, and the few facts of her disappearance that I was cognizant of would hardly sound well if repeated.

"Mrs. Green," I hazarded, "went out walking, and I suppose she stopped in at Mr. Huntington's."
"Do you know," asked central, "that Huntington's is on a small island three miles south of where you are and three miles from the mainland? The walking is not very good."
I felt as if I had stepped off into space from a high platform. "Probably—that is the chances are"—I pondered—the chances are that she decided to row, and the wind may have carried her out of her way."

I finally persuaded central to call up Huntington's. I think it was curiosity that made her relent. I could be sure that she would be listening to whatever might be said by Mrs. Green and myself.
"Hello."
"Hello, Mrs. Green! This is Mr. Blaney."
"Hello, Mr. Blaney!" There was a ring of ladylike indignation in her voice. "Can you explain to me, Mr. Blaney, how I happened to find myself in a rowboat out in the middle of the lake, wearing my red silk dress and a nightcap tied under one ear?"
"Wait a minute, Mrs. Green, central is listening."
"I don't care. She always does. She probably wants to know just as much as I do. What happened? Was there an earthquake? I remember the island was sort of wobbly and hard to walk on."

"No, there wasn't any earthquake," I answered. "We were fasting, you remember."
"Yes, I remember that, but I'm not any more. The first thing I did when I landed was to break into this house and cook myself a can of baked beans. It's funny if there wasn't any earthquake. I remember the floor of the house all running in funny little waves."

"I'm afraid our time must be nearly up," I suggested in the hope of turning the conversation. "Central will cut us off."
"No, I won't," interposed a third voice, the sweetly professional one of the operator. "Talk all you want. There ain't anybody waiting for the line."
"I suppose I must have got into the boat when the earthquake commenced," persisted Mrs. Green, "but how did I get on the decolletee red dress? And where did I get the nightcap? I have not worn that dress for ten years."

I told her that we would have to wait until she got home to explain a number of things. "Lucile will be very glad to know that you are safe," I added casually as if she had just gone over to a neighbor's, hoping to deceive central. "She was afraid you might get wet."
"Did Lucile know I was going?" inquired the startled Mrs. Green, who apparently did not catch on to my acting.
"No, not until after you had started," I said, skirting the edge of the truth neatly. "She will be very glad to hear that you are all right. I'll tell her as soon as she wakes up. She is resting now."

"Sleeping? Now? What for?"
"Why," I explained, "she was up all night."
"What?" And all alone on that island with you two young fellows and no chaperon?
"Oh, no," I hastened to reassure her and central, "not alone with us! There are a lot of people here—six or seven, I should say."
"Holding a convention of earthquake sufferers, I suppose," Mrs. Green surmised caustically. "What sort of people are they?"
"Oh, very nice people," I answered promptly. "One of them is a lady."
"How do you know she is a lady," inquired Mrs. Green—"just because she happened to be wearing skirts when she arrived?"
"Oh, no!" I said hastily. How could I tell this elderly, dignified lady that our feminine guest had not worn skirts on her arrival?

"Humph!" Mrs. Green was not particularly impressed. "The sooner I get back the letter, you'll have to send some one over after me because there weren't any oars in the boat I came in. I wouldn't go out in a rowboat again anyway. Send a big boat or I won't leave here."
"I'll send for you just as soon as can." I was glad to have the conversation draw to a close. It had been bad enough already, but who could tell what else might come out if we kept on talking? "The storm ought to quiet down soon now. Goodbye for the present."

"Wait a minute. I want to ask"—
I am afraid I was guilty of rank discourtesy in hanging up the receiver before I heard her question, but I knew I should be unable to answer it anyway, and I had to have an opportunity to think what it was all about.
First of all, Lucile must be told and an end put to her anxiety. I went upstairs and called "Lucile!"

CHAPTER X.
The Clair Hunter.
THERE WAS NO answer, and I stepped to the door of her room, which stood open. She was lying on her bed, dressed, with her head on her arm, sleeping the dead sleep of utter exhaustion. She seemed very small and childish, and her fingers curled adorably, like a baby's. I didn't have the heart to waken her, so I uptoad out. The news would be just as welcome when she wakened of her own accord, and sleep would do her much good.

When I came downstairs I saw Bopp go through the yard, looking under every bush and into every gully. I went out to tell him that Mrs. Green was located.
"He stopped when he saw me."
"I see Clair has cut you out with four actresses friend," he said. "I saw them arm-in-arm on the beach a minute ago. There's no use talking, Monty, you can't seem to hold a girl's attention long enough to slip a ring on her. Why don't you try advertising in one of those matrimonial papers?"
"I made no answer, but turned around abruptly and went back to the house. I was angry enough myself to let him blurt out the crack of doom before I would tell him that Mrs. Green was found."

When I entered the house the telephone was ringing again. I took off the receiver.
"Hello!" I said.
"Hello!" said a masculine voice. "I am a newspaper man, representing the Hamman syndicate. I understand that you had an earthquake over there this morning and that Mrs. Green, the wife of the president of the First National bank, made her escape in an aeroplane dressed in a spangled red ball gown. I want to know if I have these facts absolutely correct before I—"

I carefully lowered the receiver until it hung suspended from the wires and tiptoed away from the telephone, letting him talk to the empty air.
The story was out.
When I went out, after leaving the reporter holding the wire, so to speak, I took Tootles for a walk, and then turned my attention to the undeveloped food supply which I had discovered earlier when walking with Vida. There were hundreds of fresh water clams on the beach, and it was possible to dig them in the cove when the water was not particularly rough. I spent the afternoon wading, compensated for the cold discomfort of the performance by the thought that by providing food I would win back a large share of the favor I had lost with Lucile. Not that she would admit that she needed food. Not she.

"Are you still looking for Mrs. Green?" Clair called out.

Vida and Lipton S. Clair strolled by while I was wading. It seemed to me that she was making rapid progress toward winning her bet.
"Are you still looking for Mrs. Green?" Clair called out as I fished under water curiously.
"No," I replied shortly, "I am teaching a pet fish to swim."
"You look as though you were talking one of those barefoot cures."

"I didn't know you could cure bare feet," supplied Vida. "By the way, Mr. Blaney, does your ring come off easily?"
"It would from your hand. Do you wish to wear it?"
"Oh, no, not yet—not until I am entitled to. You can begin to work it off though."

Did any one call me up on the telephone? asked Mr. Clair.
"Yes," I said.
"Why didn't you call me?" he demanded crossly. "I haven't been far away."
The self assurance of this man enraged me. Here he was, an uninvited guest, complaining that he was not paged as he would have been in a hotel. I wondered where he got his ideas of the social relations of modern people. Who could have spoiled him so? Sometimes the adulation of women will put an ego on the bias that way, but Clair was a professed woman hater. I only hope that some day he will write a play which it will be a pleasure to review.

HOPE-BUBBLES

By PEARL B. MEYER.

At twelve o'clock noon, just one week from the day of her mysterious fight, Hannah Hawley, set her new suitcase down on the stone step and threw open the kitchen door. While walking down the dusty road, long before she came in sight of the house, she had pictured how that room would look. She was not disappointed.

In the sink soiled dishes towered until they hobbled with the faucet nozzle. The stove, rusty brown from neglect, tottered under its unfair burden of pots and kettles, grease-smear. Crowning feature in this remarkable bit of still life, seated within reaching distance of the table, his plate held perforce on his knees, was her lord and master, Zebadee Hawley.

"Well, Zeb, I'm home," Hannah announced.
"Ye had a mighty interesting time, Zeb," she commenced. "I want to tell you all about it."
Zebadee's lips were set in a hard, thin line.

"It all started from your plan to have the barn roof slated," she continued. "You know I've gotten up every night it rained for the last five years to put basins on the attic floor under the leaky spots in the roof."
"Then all of a sudden, for no reason whatever, it occurred to me that I hadn't had a holiday in all the thirty years we'd been married. I decided to take it then and there. I know you'll see the sense of that, too, when I explain I took $300 from the tin box. That was counting $10 a year for vacation purposes which I know you would say isn't much. This is what I did with it."

"Do you remember the first time we went to the city after we were married, we looked at a pair of high-heeled slippers in a store window? You said you were going to buy me a pair like that some day to dance in—your ways thought I danced so pretty. I was that tickled I couldn't rest till I got back and told Sylvie—Bess about it. She just wished her husband would get her something like that. But, Zeb—you forgot to buy them."

Hannah went to the door and brought in the suitcase. Opening it, she reached down and lifted out a pair of white satin slippers with absurdly high heels.
"I've got them," she announced haltingly, then she turned on her heel as the only clean spot in the room where she dared risk her immaculate toes. A wistful expression shadowed her face as she stroked the sleek pointed toes.

"I'm too old to dance, I know; but— I've got them."
"There have been so many things you were going to get me, Zeb, and every time I rushed off to tell Sylvie what you had promised. She always wished her husband would do the same. Then I'd wait, and dream, and hope. But—some way you always forgot."

For the first time Zebadee gave noticeable signs of life. He stirred uneasily in his chair and shot her a side-long glance.
"So last week I went away to have some of those good times you used to talk about and to buy the things I have hoped to possess ever since you said I should have them."

Zebadee gave her another swift glance. Her eyes were cast down. Her shoulders drooped.
"Zeb—" Her voice shook suddenly. "This is all it amounted to—just a foolish pair of white satin slippers. I found—I found that all the beautiful, vari-colored hope-bubbles that had danced so tantalizingly before my eyes and had kept my spirit soaring through the years of hard work—they had burst. Zen, I am too old. I have outgrown my hopes."

Zebadee twisted half round in his chair in order not to face the suspicious glowering of her eyes.
"I stayed a week in the hotel to think it over."
"I cried some, Zeb, the disappointment was so bitter. I prayed a great deal, and I thought and thought all day. Finally I came to the conclusion that it was more my fault than yours that the most of my hopes were never realized." She made a quick little dab at her wet eyes. "Patience carried to an extreme can be a fault," she concluded.

Zebadee Hawley sprang from his chair so suddenly that it fell over backward, clattering. Thrusting his hands deep in his pockets, he strode to the open door, where he stood gazing at the marvel of efficiency looming before him in the guise of a modern dairy barn.

"Here's the money that's left Zeb," Hannah said in a toneless voice. "I didn't spend much, after all."
Her husband faced about and glared at her. "I don't want it," he growled. "Keep it and take what more you want." She could see he was struggling with an emotion alien to his nature.

"I'm glad the house roof is slated," he continued hurriedly. "Of course I'm glad. And as for those hope-bubbles you're talking about—he was swinging from one foot to the other, embarrassment printed in every line of his flushed face—even if those young ones did burst, don't you think we might be able to think up a few middle-aged ones to take their place? Ones that might come true?"

Hannah stared at him blankly for a moment; then she gave a little gasp of astonishment.

"Oh, Zeb," she breathed, a gush of tears blinding her eyes.

CALLUS CORNS LIFT RIGHT OFF

Doesn't hurt to lift them off with fingers

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of the feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore or tender.

RANKS WITH WORLD'S GREAT

Achievements of Sir Isaac Newton Give Him an Assured Place Among Immortals.

According to a legend which, however, is seriously considered by certain authorities, in the year 1665 the fall of an apple as Newton sat in his garden suggested the most magnificent of his subsequent discoveries—the law of universal gravitation. On his first attempt to explain the lunar and planetary motions he employed an estimate then in use of the radius of the earth which, based on the value of a degree of latitude then prevalent, was so erroneous as to produce a discrepancy between the real force of gravity and that required by theory to explain the motions and indicated only an approximate verification of his theory. Accordingly, he abandoned for a number of years the hypothesis that a homogeneous attracting sphere behaved as if all matter was concentrated at its center, and took up other studies, consisting chiefly of investigations of the nature of light and the construction of telescopes. He also propounded new theories on light and color. Newton died March 20 1727 (old style), and his remains were interred in Westminster abbey.

Whiskers Reappearing.
A noticeable feature in masculine appearance is the increasing fashion of whiskers. At present they are only small affairs of the Albert variety, made popular by the prince consort. The whisker is no longer than two fingers' breadth, but there is no telling what dimensions these side products of the war may assume.

It is an army fashion, just as beards were an after-growth of the Crimea. The present whisker originated among officers whose right arm, stiff or impaired through wounds, cannot be raised easily to the level of the ear, and so prevents a clean shave to the top of the cheek—London Chronicle.

Agitation.
