VOL. XLIX, NO. 46.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1919.

$1.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CLAUDE J. MCKAHN DIED LAST WEEK

PROMINENT NORTHVILLE BUSINESS MAN - PASSED AWAY IN PRIME OF HIS LIFE.

DEATH FOLLOWED AN OPERATION AT PROVIDENCE HOSPITAL IN DETROIT.

Following, by a week, an operation at Providence hospital, Detroit, Claude J. McKahn passed away Thursday night of last week.

Just in the prime of life, at the head of one of Northville's leading business firms, surrounded by the comforts and enjoyment of delightful home life and countless friends, the summons came with startling suddenness. He was nearly thirty-eight years of age, and had lived in Northville all his life except the few years he was superintendent of the Rochester-Canandaigua (N. Y.) and later the manager of Milwaukee (Wis.) Interurban electric lines. He returned from the latter city on the death of his father here a little more than five years ago, taking over the business of the McKahn Fuel & Ice company.

Amidst a profusion of flowers and attended by scores of friends the funeral was held from the home Sunday afternoon, Rev. E. V. Belles officiating. The Northville F. & A. M. lodge acted as escort and conducted the impressive exercises at the interment in Rural Hill.

Thus while the wife, mother and daughter are so sadly bereaved, they have the remembrance of a well-spent life, a dutiful and loving son, husband and father. Northville has suffered also a great loss not only in the business affairs of the town but in the community life as well and as a valued member of the village council, he will be much missed.

THE MONKEY WRENCH VS. GOOD ROADS.

Walled Lake, Mich., May 26, 1919. Editor Record: In glancing over your paper found an article in regard to the Novi road proposition voted on by a few of the chosen ones town meeting day.

There is no question in regard to the condition of the road, but how many miles are there in Novi in the same condition and are traveled as much as the road in question?

Suppose Mr. Voter, we build all the roads in the township under the Novi Good Road System, build the road regardless of cost; no limit to the amount of money to be spent. The figures published "a little over $500 per thousand," which is liable to run into $650 or better per thousand if there is no limit to the amount to be spent. What would it cost you?

$120 per thousand at the lowest figures and still have your county tax. Where are you at? If it sounds like a good business proposition let us build them all if not why build this one. This troublesome road will cost you just as much as the man who lives on it; the farther you live away from this road the less your money is worth—perhaps ten cents on the dollar. It seems that one with a normal amount of gray matter could see that we were handed a lemon.

Would advise the township to use the monkey wrench that stopped the machinery and tighten up some of the loose nuts on the Novi road machine and then there will be no one to throw monkey wrenches or crow-bars into it.

A MONKEY WRENCH THROWER.

SERVICE FOR HARRY RATTENBURY.

The memorial services for Harry J. Rattenbury of the 39th Infantry company C., who was killed in France August 6th, will be held at the Newburg church Sunday, June 15, at 3 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Marion Carpenter of Detroit.

MEMORIAL DAY

FITTINGLY OBSERVED

Northville's observance of Memorial day May 30, 1919, was without doubt in many respects the best ever carried out here. The program as previously arranged by the G. A. R. was followed with few variations. The singing by the male quartet and a band music were excellent and a splendid patriotic address was given by Rev. W. C. Francis, the exercises in the Alseum theatre being attended by the Grand Army Veterans, Woman's Relief Corps and World War soldiers in a body. The building was filled to capacity, and scores of people were unable to obtain even standing room inside the doors. The decorations, arranged by ladies of the Relief Corps, were unusually beautiful.

The parade was formed as scheduled and our little group of soldiers of the sixties was escorted by the band, the W. R. C., World War soldiers and Knights Templar to Oakland cemetery, where the G. A. R. ritual service for the dead was given, taps sounded, and a military rifle salute of three volleys was fired by the soldiers of the nineteen hundreds, nearly 40 of whom were in line of march, under command of Lieut. C. E. Murphy. Other Northville commissioned officers present were Major T. B. Hegry and Lieutenants Raymond DesAutels and Conrad Langfield.

After the return from the cemetery a fine exhibition of military movements was given on the public square by Lieut. Murphy and his boys, including guard mount, the government rifles adding greatly to the appearance of the drill.

The handsome silver souvenir rings, the gift of Northville township, were presented to the young soldiers at this time, Rev. E. V. Belles making the presentation speech and Supervisor Lanning, assisted by Jared Lapham, bestowing the gifts.

A splendid supper was served by the Relief Corps ladies in Forester's hall with the old and the young veterans, the band and other guests, about 140 partaking of the excellent repast provided. The World War soldiers were requested to register, and the result showed that 3; of them were present at the banquet.

MRS. MCKAHN TO CARRY ON BUSINESS.

Mrs. Julia McKahn intends to continue the coal and ice business of her late husband under the old name of McKahn Fuel & Ice Co. Mrs. McKahn had assisted her husband to a considerable extent in his business for some years past and therefore is familiar with the business. She will also be assisted in the management by her brother, Albert Zimmer, who came here recently from Milwaukee after a year's army service. Mr. Zimmer is a very pleasant young man to meet and has hustle and ability that will prove of value in carrying on the business.

Mrs. McKahn is also fortunate in being able to retain the services of the splendid force of employees that Mr. McKahn had surrounded himself with, Will Sonnenburg, Jessa Beach and Miss Ruth Preston and the future success of the company seems assured.

DETROITERS TO ATTEND WELFARE CONFERENCE

Over at Belleville a similar election was held a few weeks ago for this same sort of a purpose and there were but 5 who voted no on either question. Northville ought to show as much enterprise as Belleville or more, shouldn't it? Think it over! It's now or never.

Lovewell) were appointed to present by-laws for permanent organization at the next meeting, Tuesday, night, June 10 at the same hour and place.

FISH DIDN'T LIKE CHLORINE AT BAY CITY

Twenty-seven one-thousandths of a grain of chlorine, which is used to purify every gallon of water that flows through the water mains that supply Bay City, killed 95,000,000—pike and perch eggs in two days there this spring—and set back for at least one year the efforts of the United States Bureau of Fisheries to make Bay City the pike perch center of the state and one of the biggest in the world.

Supt. W. W. Thayer of the Northville United States Bureau of Fisheries, who had charge of the effort this spring, was there recently to settle up matters in connection with the experiment, pay the city for the water used in the experiment—the water that killed the eggs—and store the battery used in the experiment.

The experiment there was initiated April 28, under the direction of Mr. Thayer. The supposed process of fertilization was allowed to continue for a period of 20 days. Samples of the eggs which had been nursed from two to 20 days were sent to Washington for examination, and the report from Washington showed the development of all the germs had been stopped and the eggs killed.

Mr. Thayer was not aware of the use of chlorine in the Bay City water when he first started the experiment or he would have waited until he could have arranged for water from the bay.

Catarrrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless this inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces of the Eustachian tube. Catarrh of the ears can be cured by Catarrh Medicine. Circulars free. # SEAPORT for POLAND

One of Danzig's Finest Streets.

DANZIG, which by the peace treaty becomes an internationalized city and the outlet for Poland to the Baltic, is thus described in a bulletin issued by the National Geographic Society:

Picture a far north Venice, but through with streams and canals, equipped also with a sort of irrigation system to flood the country for miles about, not for cultivation but for defense; a city of typical Philadelphia streets, only with those long rows of stoops made of stone and highly decorated and jutting into the roadway instead of on the sidewalks, and you catch but a glimpse of the composite Danzig.

As a city of churches Danzig vies with Brooklyn; its crooked, winding streets suggest those Boston thoroughfares of cowpath derivation; and were its grain warehouses more modern the visitor might believe himself in Minneapolis—that is he might until he heard their names—such as Golden Pelican, Little Ship, Gray Goose and Milk Maid—then he might look about for some popular resorts of New York's Greenwich village.

In no other German city is medieval architecture to be found in such variety and preservation as in Danzig. Conspicuous both in Polish and German history, Danzig was one of the four principal centers of the Hanseatic League while not far from the Vistula is Marienburg, capital of the Teutonic Order of Knights, which flourished in Danzig.

Ancient Art Works Intact.

Physically, Danzig escaped many effects of the reformation. Even in her famous St. Mary's church, one of the largest Protestant edifices in the world, covering an area as great as the Cathedral of Notre Dame in Paris, are to be found reliquaries and manuscripts, embroideries of Roman, Byzantine and Gothic designs, treasures in precious metals, stones and ivories, and a noted collection of vestments. Among its art works is the famous "Last Judgment" of Hans Meulman. In appearance almost as much like a fortress as a church, bringing to mind Luther's militant hymn "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," the church has been called "one of the most German things in Germany." In many ways it suggests the Prussian militarist spirit. From the vaulting, for example, projects one of Napoleon's cannon balls.

But the Danzig visitor needs no indirect intimation of militarism. The city was one of the most strongly fortified places in the now-shattered German empire. To the east and south of the city older defenses were supplemented in recent years by a score of bastions. Along the Vistula, on which the city lies, to its mouth at Neufahrwasser, four miles away, stretches a line of forts. In addition three sides of the town could be inundated by the garrison.

Quaint House Architecture.

Streets are lined with ornate old houses of the Hanseatic period, crowned with high gables, often profusely ornamented. Balconies overhang the streets and in spite of the impediment they offer to traffic, many of the elevated stone porches still remain. Gargoyles grin from ancient walls. Vistas abound. There are many old water gates. One of these, the Hobe Tor, is fashioned after a Roman arch. Another, the Kran Thor, with each successive story projecting farther than the one below, looks like the leaning tower of Pisa.

Danzig's beginnings are not known. Poland, Denmark, Pomerania and Brandenburg held it at various early times. In the fourteenth century it came under the sway of the Teutonic Knights. Not long afterward it became one of the four centers of the Hanseatic league. With the decline of the league it allied itself with Poland, retaining most of its rights as a free city. It had a flag derived from the red and white emblem of the league, employing the red as a field upon which were three gold crowns, arranged vertically.

Separation From Poland.

Russians and Saxons took the city and the score or more neighboring villages it governed in 1734. When Poland was partitioned, four years before the American colonists signed the Declaration of Independence, Danzig was separated from Poland and 21 years later Prussia gained possession of it. Again made a free city by Napoleon, it passed once more to Poland, then back to Prussia in 1814.

Danzig became the capital of West Prussia. Government and private docks were located there. Shipbuilding and the making of munitions were introduced and amber, beer and liquors were other products. Its granaries, built on an island, were erected when it was the principal grain shipping port for Poland and Silesia.

Danzig is a little farther, by rail northeast of Berlin than Boston is from New York. Its population in 1919 was about that of Columbus, O.

WELL EQUIPPED BY NATURE

Simple Explanation of Remarkable Sense of Hearing That Is Possessed by the Owl.

It is held by naturalists that in order to capture its prey the owl must depend even more upon its sense of hearing than upon its sense of sight. The tufts of feathers that distinguish the short-eared and the long-eared owls are, of course, no more ears than they are horns. The true ear of the owl is a most remarkable organ.

The facial disk of feathers that gives the owl its characteristic appearance serves as a kind of sounding-board or ear-trumpet to concentrate the slightest sounds and to transmit them to the orifice of the true ear, concealed in the small feathers behind the eye. Even in the barn owl, which possesses the least complicated arrangement of this kind, the orifice of the ear is covered by a remarkable flap of the skin, while in the other species there are striking differences in the size and shape of this orifice and its covering flap on the two sides of the head.

The exact way in which owls utilize this elaborately specialized apparatus has still to be discovered.

Water in Wood.

All wood contains more or less water; even the driest wood known contains two or three pounds of water to every 100 pounds of weight. Absolutely dry wood is unknown. For the heat needed to obtain it would dissolve the wood and convert it into gas and charcoal.

A Swiss authority on the characteristics of wood believes that a sufficiently powerful and perfect microscope would show that the ultimate wood cell is composed of crystals like grains of sugar or salt and that thin films of water hold the crystals apart, yet bind them into a mass.

A good microscope shows the wood cell and reveals its spiral bandages and its openings and cavities, but no instrument yet made reveals the ultimate crystals that, as many believe, do exist and that would explain why water cannot be expelled from wood without destroying the wood itself.—New York Sun.

Justice to Franklin.

Philadelphians love to set forth the fact that there were written two of the most notable literary achievements of the world, the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States, both of them remarkable for fine literary quality, for precision of statement, for lucid presentation of facts, for logical arrangement. But it is possible, so it has been unkindly suggested, that they do not always remember that neither of these important productions was written by a Philadelphian. But to anyone who may make a suggestion it may with justice be said that the "Autobiography" of Franklin, one of the few great autobiographies of the world, was written by a Philadelphian, and also his "Poor Richard," and other world-famous works.

New Things in Costume Jewelry

The charm of novelty belongs to costume jewelry, which is chosen for the sake of color or because it accentuates a style in dress, or merely because it is smart and fashionable. However fine and beautiful real jewels may be their owners tire of always wearing the same pieces and take to passing fads with as much relish as if they were jewelless. Just how there is a vogue for necklaces and beads of all kinds, with Chinese and East Indian designs featured among numberless others, including old Venetian and American Indian ideas.

In costume jewelry, that is jewelry which is not made of precious metals or stones, there is one abiding favorite, and that is the necklace of good pearl beads. Other things may come and go, but they go on forever, because they are so like the beautiful genuine pearls. Good, even strands of pearl beads cost more now than in days before the war, but there is a great range in prices for them, depending upon color, luster, degree of destructibility and the greenness with which the beads are strung.

The handsomest Chinese beads, of imitation jade and carved ivory and of composition or glass, are often strung on very handsome silk cord. The strand usually supports a large medallion of carved ivory or jade, or whatever material makes the head, with some mystic figure or character wrought in it which looks equal to warding off bad luck and is probably intended to make its wearer feel secure. Very handsome and brilliant jet beads, sometimes alternating with sparkling crystal beads on the string, have many admirers among older women, while smooth white coral, or white splashed with pale pink, are liked for girls and young women. Everyone envies the owner of a strand of carved ivory beads and next to everyone wears a necklace of the most brilliant red in opaque beads, of all sizes and shapes. The color of every jewel under the sun is imitated in glass beads and in mock jewels set in metal and joined by metal chains. Among these women find the necklace that matches their frocks or those that provide a contrasting color touch. Happy she who has among her possessions a strand of amber beads, and thrice blessed is the owner of a necklace of opals. Then, the strands of gold or silver beads which one sees so rarely, are again in favor, for these have their imitations that answer the purpose of costume jewelry. It would not be easy to find a style of jeweled neck chain or necklace which is not now represented.

Shoe-Blouses in Russian Style

The Russian blouse has many admirers whose allegiance never fails, and every time a new interpretation of it appears on the horizon of fashion's world they give it a heartfelt welcome. Just now, Russian blouses are arriving in considerable force, made of sheer fabrics and of all the supple, lightweight silks that insure flowing lines. Beginning with fine net and lace the blouse proceeds through crepe georgette and crepe de chine to silk jersey and satins that have the same softness and to the new weaves in silk that belong to the tricotette family. In all of these it proves graceful and fascinating.

Leaving out all the others and considering only the enchanting models shown in crepe georgette, we find both the plain and figured varieties used and that the charm of this beautiful fabric goes far in itself toward making the success of the blouses. This is illustrated by the two models shown in the picture for both are simply designed. A simulated vest, set in with a piping of satin, and two folds of satin about its skirt tell the brief story of decorations on the blouse of figure georgette. It is fastened at the front with small, round satin-covered buttons, set close together, and has a slash of heavy satin ribbon finished with silk fringe. The blouse has a small turnover collar and may be buttoned up to the throat, or left open, as pictured. The blouse of plain georgette at the right of the picture is embellished with narrow embroidered bands. The skirt portion is uneven in length, being long at the left side and sloping upward all the way round, so that it is quite short across the back. This blouse is worn over a satin skirt with drapery that corresponds by being longer at the left than at the right side and its sleeves are finished by cuffs of the same satin. The narrow girdle is made of the georgette.

"Then don't bother about any one else's wedding breakfast. Just attend to your own."

"She's engaged to Bopp," I protested feebly.

"To make you angry," she whispered. "I can't talk to you any more because Ned is getting red behind his ears. That means that he is fearfully jealous. I must run along and be scolded. Think it over."

She skipped blithely to the side of her room to be lord and master (may I say?) smiling into his face with a look of childlike and ingratiating that would have eaten the boldest Mr. Green had he been in Blaney's shoes.

"Mr. Blaney will explain it to Lucile," I said, taking my acquiescence for granted. "You see, I need you terribly because I have no other woman friend with me. My own mother—her lips quivered."

"The sorry," said Mrs. Green. "Has she been dead long?"

"She isn't dead, but she's in a stock company in St. Louis."

"You really ought to go to the mainland," I said, thinking to help matters out. "In order to bring back some clothes for Lucile."

"What's that?" Mrs. Green turned. "Hasn't she any clothes on?"

"Certainly," I said, hopping into the breach. "She has plenty of clothes on, but they would not be suitable for her to wear to go over to the mainland and register at a hotel."

Vida spoke the truth almost as convincingly as she lied.

"Please come," she urged.

"I'll go," I decided. The older woman, fortunately she forgot that her own costume was a trifle bizarre for a morning wedding, even in Fair View.

I conducted the company to the dock and saw that they were made as comfortable as possible in the Merry Widow.

"Bill," I commanded, "get that rowboat that Mr. Blaney rowed over in and tie it on behind the Merry Widow."

I departed for the summer house, vaguely wondering if I could alter the reporter without using chloroform.

When I entered the summer house he eyed me with a cold gleaming sort of hate, that made me think of Italian daggers or Malay krisises.

"If I let you go," I began the parley, "how much will you take to shut up and not ask any questions?"

"Nothing doing," he declared without hesitation. "I'm going to get you and I'm going to get you good."

"That's all right," I conciliated. "You can get me just as soon as you like, but all I ask is that you do nothing to injure some perfectly harmless people."

He looked at me keenly.

"You're not the caretaker here, as I thought, are you?"

their first attention. Started by your panegyric, its fame will grow, the public will attend. I shall get contracts for more plays and I shall have arrived."

"Very clever," I sneered, "but your play is probably rotten, and I shall tell the public so."

"Then I'll tell all I know about what has happened on Green's Island, and I shall hint at a lot of things I don't know. If you will agree to like my play I'll promise to shut up and not ask any more questions."

He looked me squarely in the eye.

"Does Mrs. Green ordinarily drink too much?" he asked.

His guess was too near the mark for comfort. I took out my knife and cut his bonds.

"Thanks, old man," said the reporter, slowly stretching his aching muscles.

"They are waiting to take you back to Fair View," I informed him.

"They?" he inquired. "Who are they?"

"All the principal characters in that story you were going to write. By the way, your name is Jones—Clarence Jones—you're an old school friend of mine."

"Any particulars?" he asked, as we walked down to the dock.

"It isn't necessary. They won't have a chance to pump you because you are going to be towed behind the rest in a rowboat."

"Why is that?"

"You promised not to ask any more questions," I reminded him.

At the dock I introduced him personally to his fellow voyagers and he took his seat docilely in the rowboat.

Bill Johnson cranked up his engine, and the Merry Widow started blithely away. When she was a few feet from the dock the engine stopped.

"What's the matter—broke down?" I shouted.

"No," answered Bill. "I just stop her because you forgot to tell me what for Mrs. Green be on Huntington's Island. You say you tal me, and you forget."

"Yes," chimed in Mrs. Green, "and I want to know how I came to be floating out on the lake during the storm with my red dress on."

I reflected a moment.

"The young man in the rowboat knows all about it," I shouted. "You can ask him as soon as you get to the mainland." I didn't add that he would not answer.

"Mr. Blaney," yelled the reporter as the engine started up again.

"Yes," I replied.

"The name of that play is 'The Honor of Thieves.'"

"All right," I waved my hand in farewell.

The Merry Widow towed my troubles around a point of land at the entrance of the cove and out of sight.

I smiled to myself as I turned away, and I whistled an aria that was partly Puccini's and partly my own in places where I couldn't remember the original.

Some one coughed in back of me. I turned. Parting the bushes on either side like the folds of a heavy green velvet drop curtain stood the shy spirit of the wood.

"I had to make you turn around," she said apologetically, "and get it over with."

Never was a fairer-Rosalind. She held up her head with a fine courage in spite of the crimson blushes which chased each other over her face and neck, and she stood straight in the high heeled soft boots, a slender figure, almost boyish.

"Won't you sit down?" I had risen and indicated the log seat opposite mine.

"Were you expecting some one?" she asked, casting an anxious look at the seat.

"Why, yes," I pretended to be hesitant about confiding to her. "I was expecting some one, a lady, one that I am very fond of, but I am afraid that she has disappointed me. Won't you take her place?"

"Thank you," she said simply and slid into the seat.

When I poured her some of the tea and offered her such food as was available she accepted everything and ate with unembarrassed appetite. It may sound unromantic to say that we satisfied our hunger without conversation, but remember that there had been many hours when talk had been our only substitute for food. Tootles had some of everything, including tea, which proves to my mind conclusively that she isn't a regular dog. But no more of that.

"I'm sorry," my vis-a-vis said at last, leaning forward with her chin resting on the backs of her clasped hands, "I'm sorry to be sitting in the place of some one else whom you would prefer to have here." Then she added, with a little sigh, "That is, if you would prefer some one else."

"I would and I wouldn't," I smiled. "I am trying to imagine that you are she."

"In these—in this costume?"

"It is difficult to imagine her dressed as you are, but not impossible. I admit, though, that it would be easier to picture you in her dress than her in yours."

"Why did she not come?"

"I have displeased her."

"If she has been angry it must be that she forgot for the moment how brave you are and how kind."

"She said she never wanted to see me again."

"And you said you would never enter her house again. Yet you broke your word when she was in danger, and she was very glad to see you indeed." She reached across the table impulsively and laid her small brown fingers in my palm.

"What would you do in that case?"

"I'd come and find you," she answered, "and when I'd found you, I'd put my hands in yours, just like this, and I'd ask your forgiveness for being a cross, cranky old maid."

"But she isn't an old maid," I held her fingers tightly.

"She'll be twenty-five tomorrow," she laughed. "And if a girl isn't married by the time she is twenty-five she is an old maid."

"Then she'll never be an old maid," I declared, "because by this time tomorrow she'll be married—that is," I added, "if she'll accept a stout, middle-aged man for a husband."

"There isn't one on this island," she declared, looking at me with shining eyes. "You can't claim to be stout when your belt nearly reaches around you twice. Mony," she gave my hand a quick little squeeze, "you're a deat."

"Will you marry me?" I asked.

"Of course, I decided that long ago. Do you suppose I'd let any man see me in this costume unless he was going to marry me?"

I pulled her toward me.

"Excuse me, folks," said a voice, "I hate like the deuce to butt in on the Southern and Marlowe stuff and I certainly have enjoyed it, but I've got to make a getaway and I can't do a Brodie out of this tree without disturbing you."

Eve to the Rescue

By DOROTHY DOUGLAS

(Copyright, 1919, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Eve had waited long and patiently for Teddy to keep his appointment in the hotel lounge. It was apparent, however, since it was a full half-hour past the time of meeting, that the business engagement had prevented him from coming.

Eve was thoroughly disappointed. She was looking even more adorable than usual in her new Poirer tulle that was distinctly bizarre in silhouette, yet curiously suggestive of extreme elegance.

Also Eve felt in a most chatty mood and wanted to dance more than she had longed to for many months. Altogether she was feeling abused—and more than a little lonesome.

At least she had been lonesome until she had found intense interest in a young officer who she considered had been abominably treated in the tea lounge.

Eve had watched him go in and sent herself at a small table among the dancers, only to be told by a waiter that he could not have tea there unless accompanied by a lady.

She had watched his thoroughly astonished gaze at the waiter and his well-bred and immediate succumbing to the law of the hotel. Eve felt sorry for the young officer, so obviously wanted his afternoon tea.

"British" marked him all over—his easy carriage, the well-worn uniform, the peculiar air of detachment from his surroundings.

In another instant Eve had recognized him as the famous war correspondent whose every word she had read with an interest bordering on fascination. And now his personality was claiming her, in a far more amazing manner. One of the most unhoping longings of her life had been a desire to meet John Travers, and now here he was before her very eyes and in most distressing need of feminine companionship.

He was sauntering slowly from the lounge, and in a moment would pass near enough for Eve to touch his khaki shoulder.

Eve had never before made up her mind to a most unconventional act so quickly. Her heart had no time to tremble its beat before she approached the famous officer. Her smile was of the truly Eve variety.

"Oh, Mr. Travers," she called softly. "It is perfectly scandalous of me to ask you, but I would love to be the lady you require in order to have a cup in the lounge."

Eve was a trifle breathless by the time Travers' eyes had turned upon her in wholly delightful surprise. A brilliant flush, too, swept defiantly into her cheeks.

Altogether Eve was a lovely applicant for favor.

"How jolly of you," Travers said quickly. His acceptance of her was so swift and natural that even the most eagle-eyed Mrs. Grundy would have failed to see the delightful un-conventionality of it. He turned then and they went toward a cozy table that boasted a suggestion of seclusion in the big room.

Eve was smiling radiantly now. She tried to tell herself that she had actually approached a strange man and offered her company to him, but somehow the facts slipped away from her mind and they chatted with a naturalness born of the fact that the great adventure had claimed them.

"You have been here only a few days," Eve was saying as she daintily poured the tea, "and if anyone had told me that I would have the pleasure of offering you a cup of tea like this—Eve suited the action to words—I could not have believed him."

The sincerity of Eve had quickly stamped itself on Travers' brain. That keen, sensitive mind of his was not likely to err in its impressions of human beings.

He would have been grateful to anyone who had been good enough to tide him over the lonely hour that threatened him, but that the particular one should have velvety eyes and scarlet lips as two of a full dozen charms was a tremendous bit of luck.

Travers took advantage of his good fortune and held Eve's entire interest, giving her a few of the vivid sensations that New York's streets had offered him.

"I am coming to hear you lecture," she confided to him, "but I will treasure what you have told me here far more than anything you tell the whole audience."

John Travers had a queer un-British desire to tell Eve that he felt as if some day there might be more things for her ear alone. Instead he smiled his whimsical smile straight into her eyes.

"You see," she continued, while the effect of his smile traveled down to her heart, "we ordinary people appreciate more than you have any idea of the mere presence of you—great people. To see you personally, or even just to touch you in a passing crowd—that in itself creates a tremendous elation in us."

Travers again laughed.

"You Americans have the most delightful ability to express the delicate, agreeable thoughts that come into your heads. We Britishers are hopeless, quite hopeless in the niceties of conversation."

He looked seriously at Eve, then continued: "Now if I were to express to you the charming, whimsical picture that your coming to me as you did has flung on my mind I would, I feel, be happy to tell you how more than happy I am that you are having tea with me—a perfect stranger in America."

It was Eve now who laughed.

"You don't do it badly at all, though," she retorted him the very first of her veiled glances. Her eyes had been openly frank, her manner chummy and even boyish. Now the woman had come forward to challenge the man.

Travers sensed the change, but stood his ground even as the British army was wont to stand its ground though the enemy outnumbered it by many thousands of men.

Eve looked deep and long into the young correspondent's eyes as if she would imprint therein some kind of memory of herself. She felt in part quite inadequate to enter any arena when John Travers was already there. A soft, gentle sigh escaped her lips.

"Do you fancy a dance?" Travers asked her suddenly. "It's many a day since I did any dancing, but I fancy we can drag through."

"I am sure we can," Eve laughed and rose.

A moment later they were, among the dancers, but it was all a dream to Eve. She could not realize that John Travers' arm was in reality touching the back of her Poirer costume and that her own hand lay in his. It must be a dream, and she would wake to find that she did not even know him.

However, Travers made it more than apparent that he was actually there.

He kept up a light conversation at a quite alarming extent for him. It was almost as if he were trying to erase for a few wonderful moments the tragic scenes that had crowded themselves before his tired brain during four long years of war. He was fighting the awful reality of war as he had seen it, but, too, the British in him was fighting to remain sensible.

There was something very, very compelling in the charming Eve, and he wanted not to become entirely at the mercy of the first attractive girl with whom he had danced in four years. Yet there was no denying the tremor that her hand was sending up his arm nor the delightful contentment her presence near him was producing.

"Are you going to be in our country very long?" he found Eve to be asking.

Travers swiftly calculated the number of weeks his lectures would take him, and to that he added a week or so for the advancement of his courtship of Eve. He made up his mind that the latter would not take over long if he had all the say, and answered Eve when it was all thought out.

"There are one or two things I must attend to when my lectures are finished. You American girls are tremendously clever at giving strangers the right of way in New York—so perhaps I may call on you to help me decide my course. If you assist, I will be back in England before three months have passed."

Eve pondered for a long time on Travers' words and found them food for reflection—quite, quite romantic reflections.

"I have so enjoyed assisting you this afternoon that I am positive when you ask a great favor I will be there to help you," she said. Her voice was wonderfully soft and Travers sensed a warmth as well in its depths.

At least he knew he would not return to England without Eve somewhere on the steamer, and she would be there not as Eve—single.

How Bird Flights Are Observed.

In spite of their difficult and exacting task, a few airmen have found opportunity to observe and record the heights at which various migrating birds are accustomed to fly. Thus, from French soldiers of the air it is learned that swallows have been observed to maintain an average altitude of 700 yards, and wild ducks one of 1,900 yards, and that green plovers have been seen at a height of 2,150 yards. Incidentally it may be mentioned that the ducks were moving at a speed of 65½ miles an hour when flying upward and 60 miles an hour when flying horizontally. Another aviator when flying at 9,500 feet saw swallows high above him. And another who made his observations at a height of 5,000 feet during a heavy bombardment, with antiaircraft shells bursting all about him, says that he saw 240 golden plovers, perhaps driven higher than usual by the fact that the vicinity was an unpleasant belt to cross.

For Salesmen.

No man is ever criticized for having pleasant, gentle manners; and you don't have to be a six-foot Adonis to have this faculty, either.

No man ever lost anything by being clean and spruce—sprick and span. If you are slovenly about your person, you usually become just so about your business, and buyers know it.

Don't approach a gentleman as if you had known him all your life. Don't stick out one hand, and, with the other, shove out a cigar. Be modest and retiring. Speak slowly and forcefully, and when you speak, say something! Gab is excess baggage.

Work! Here is the rock that about ninety out of a hundred split on. Work! Did you ever hear a man say, "Jim Jones is a good fellow and a worker?" More often you hear, "Jim is just a good fellow."—New Success Magazine.

FARM STOCK

FEED CROPS TO LIVE STOCK

Investigations Show Profit From Feeding Steers on Surplus Corn and Roughage.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That the southern farmer who raises a surplus of corn and farm roughage can market them at a handsome price through steers of good quality, when properly purchased, and can retain fertilizing elements of the feeds on his farm, is clearly shown in recent investigations by the United States department of agriculture.

Three lots of native steers, grade animals two to three years old, of medium good quality, and averaging about 825 pounds at the beginning of the experiment, were fed for about five months on full feed. The animals in lot 1 received a daily allowance of 39.1 pounds of corn silage, 5.7 pounds of cottonseed meal, 4.9 pounds of oat straw; those of lot 2, 37.4 pounds of corn silage, 7.6 pounds of ear corn, 3 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 2.9 pounds of oat straw; and the steers of lot 3, 38.5 pounds of corn silage, 6 pounds of shelled corn, 3 pounds of cottonseed meal, and 3.5 pounds of oat straw.

At marketing time these groups of animals averaged, respectively, 1,044, 1,059, and 1,066 pounds an animal; the steers of lot 1 having accomplished a daily gain of 1.56 pounds, those of lot 2, 1.66 pounds, and the animals of group 3, 1.7 pounds during the feeding period.

When the pork made is credited to the steers of lots 2 and 3, they paid for corn at 70 cents a bushel, and then made over $14 a head profit, or almost as much income as resulted from the cottonseed meal-fed steers. Without hogs following the steers the feeding of corn would have been considerably less profitable than feeding cottonseed meal alone. It cost $9.33 to make 100 pounds of gain in the case of lot 1, $10.82 for lot 2, and $10.75 for lot 3, where no pork credit is given the steers. Each steer in lots 1, 2 and 3 made a net profit of $15.19, $11.37, and $11.48, respectively, when no credit is given the steers of lots 2 and 3 for the pork produced. This pork credit probably amounted to about $3 a steer.

It is particularly noteworthy that the shrinkage in transit to market of these cattle during a 34-hour run ranged from 54 to 64 pounds a head, which indicates that silage, where properly fed in conjunction with supplementary grains, results in less shrinkage in transit than where cattle are fattened on grass and marketed directly from pastures. The steers under consideration in this experiment made good killing records, the carcasses being well covered with fat and generally satisfactory. The animals of lot 1 made a dressing record of 58.2 per cent, those of lot 2, 57.3 per cent, and those of lot 3, 57.4 per cent of marketable meat.

A Bunch of Southern Cattle.

Many Hogs Die During Summer Months If Not Given Protection of Some Kind.

Many hogs die from the effects of heat during the summer months. If there is no natural shade in the pasture, places should be provided where the hogs may get relief from the heat. A cheap and practical plan is to build sheds with roofs of poles and straw, supported by posts. This will allow the free circulation of air, and if the water supply is near, will enable the hogs to pass the hot weather safely.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Orphan lambs can be raised on cow's milk.

When a few sheep are cared for properly one may expect a flock in a short time.

When legume hay is used as a horse feed, the quality should be good and the quantity fed limited.

There should be a pasture for the colts, so that it will not be necessary for them to follow the team into the field.

To Play Great Organ at the Methodist Centenary

MRS. MONTGOMERY LYNCH of Seattle will play the great $50,000 organ in the presentation of "The Wayfarer," the magnificent pageant of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, in Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13. Montgomery Lynch, her husband, will direct the chorus of 1,000 voices, which is a part of the pageant.

REDUCED FARE ADDS INTEREST

Visitors to Methodist Centenary to Be Well Cared For.

REGISTRATIONS ON INCREASE

Housing Committee of the Celebration Have More Than Forty Thousand Rooms in Private Homes at Their Disposal. Where Those Who Attend Can Be Lodged as Conveniently as at a Hotel.

Announcement by the government that a special low rate of one and a third fares for the round trip has been authorized for the celebration. Columbus, O., June 20 to July 13, has tremendously increased the interest in that event and advanced manifold the inquiries and registrations coming from all parts of the United States. At headquarters the other day a single mail brought cash registrations from 14 separate states and South America.

The low rate has increased work for the special committees, which are responsible for housing the large influx of visitors now seen to be certain. Accommodations fall into three classes.

First, the hotels, which have an average daily capacity of 5,900 visitors.

The second field of accommodation will be in public buildings, which have been specially fitted up for this sort of service for the celebration. These include the State School for the Blind, the State School for the Deaf, the large barracks which were provided at Ohio State university for the student army training corps, and other buildings of a similar nature held in reserve should the throng exceed even present generous expectations.

The third line of convenience for the hospitality of Columbus is in the homes of the citizens themselves. More than 40,000 rooms have been listed with the housing committee, and these are card indexed by location, telephone number and best means of access. Visitors to the celebration can be lodged as conveniently as a clerk at a hotel assigns a visitor to his room. In order that there might be no misunderstanding, the committee in charge has a uniform rate for accommodations in private dwellings. The charge will be Lamb's Money. Cecil, aged four, had often gone with Aunt Elsie to the garden to weed, and had asked the names of the different weeds, and was told that one was lamb's-quarters. Several days later he went to the garden for lettuce, and called excitedly: "Oh, come quick, Aunt Elsie; here is some lamb's money."

31 per day for a single person in a room and $1.50 per day for two persons in a room. Always generously provided with restaurants, Columbus at the present time is having its number largely reinforced by reason of many places being turned into restaurants which were occupied as cafes before May 24, when the state became dry. In addition to these, extraordinary facilities for feeding large numbers quickly are being installed in the exposition grounds.

MONSTER SCREEN AT METHODIST CENTENARY

Special Lantern Devised For Throwing Pictures.

Finishing details are being placed on the arrangements for the erection of the largest screen for the projection of pictures ever built in the world. This is to be one of the features of the Methodist Centenary Celebration, to be held in Columbus, June 20 to July 13.

This monster screen will have a surface for pictures 115x115 feet. The actual structure will be several feet larger in each direction. A special lantern has been successfully devised for throwing these tremendous pictures the necessary distance. The screen will be 250 feet from the nearest spectator and will be built to withstand 40 pounds pressure to the square foot. The lantern which will project these pictures has already successfully thrown pictures on a screen in New York City across a distance of four and a half city blocks. According to Architect Harry C. Holbrook, the screen will be, in effect, three sides of a house. It is necessary to give it the foundations equivalent to a four story building.

In order that there may be as much salvage as possible after the screen has served its purpose, the picture face will be of fitted lumber, which later will be treated with a white surface preparation.

The estimated cost of this screen will be $8,000. The screen and the lantern will be used in showing the tens of thousands of views, made all over the world by the Methodist Missionary Survey, which has the finest collection of pictorial reviews anywhere in the world.

At a recent special election at Belleville, a proposition to bond the village for the expense of laying a cement pavement on one of the streets carried with but five negative votes cast.

A watch, a lot of jewelry and some money was "burgled" Monday from the home of Mrs. Bitter of Pontiac while everybody was gone to the circus. There isn't the least doubt that Mrs. Bitter felt equal to her name.

Mrs. Brown's Northville friends are glad to know that she has so far been very successful in her new venture, for which her experience here and her excellent business ability have admirably fitted her.

Milford vicinity again came into the limelight the other day, when Oakland county officers raided a farmhouse 4 miles west of the village and confiscated a complete and extensive outfit for making raisin rum. A large amount of both mash and liquor was found, besides the machinery for making them. It was also discovered that the men who escaped from the officers during the previous "fight" at Milford had driven to this same farm house the night the big haul of liquor was made at the Milford railway station.

When Henry Ford comes to town,
The Boys begin to step around.

Now that the D. P. F., War Stamps and Liberty Bonds are out of the way, what am I going to do with my money? Why, of course, there's the Loan Association.

That concern is organized for the express purpose of helping people to build or purchase homes and as the Government is devising ways for the building of more homes, it will be as patriotic for me to put my money into the Association as to buy a bond. I will not miss a dollar or so a week and I can get some other fellows also, so that after a little time the Association will have more money to lend. The Secretary tells me that lots of people speak to him about starting in but fail to connect—likely a little mud on the walks and they don't want to "come across"—but—

I'M GOING TO DO IT.

Western Canada's "Horn of Plenty" Offers You Health & Wealth

Western Canada for years has helped feed the world—the same responsibility of production still rests upon her. While high prices for Grain, Cattle and Sheep are sure to remain, price of land is much below its value. Land capable of yielding 20 to 43 bushels of wheat to the acre can be had on easy terms at from $13 to $30 per acre—good grazing land at much less.

Many farms paid for from a single year's crop. Raising cattle, sheep and hogs brings equal success. The Government encourages farming and stock raising. Railway and Land Companies offer unusual inducements to Home Seekers. Farms may be stocked by loans at moderate interest. Western Canada offers low taxation, good markets and shipping; free schools, churches and healthful climate.

For particulars as to reduced railway rates, location of land, illustrated literature, etc., apply to Dept. of Lands, Ottawa, Can. or M. V. MacKINZIE, 176 Jefferson Ave., DETROIT, MICH. Canadian Government Agent.

The KITCHEN CABINET

We believe there is something for each one to do. Some time, some place and some how we believe we can do it and we believe, too. We are ready to do it—right now!

SEASONABLE DISHES.

At this season when fish is so much enjoyed are you serving the hot well seasoned—

Fish Chowder.—Cut up any kind of well cleaned fish and parboil until nearly cooked. In an iron kettle put a fourth of a pound of salt pork cut in dice and brown until crisp. Add six sliced onions to the pork fat, cook for five minutes, then add a half-dozen sliced potatoes, cover with water and cook, adding the fish; when all are tender add milk, some crackers soaked in boiling water, salt and pepper to taste. Serve in soup bowls.

Scallops of Pork and Cabbage.—Place a layer of thinly sliced roast pork, using two cupfuls, a cup and a half of cooked cabbage and a cupful and a half of white sauce, arranged in layers in a baking dish. Put into a hot oven and bake until the sauce is bubbling hot.

Date Souffle.—Beat the whites of four eggs very stiff, add gradually one-half cupful of sugar then stir in a pound of dates that have been stoned and rubbed to a paste. Bake in a well-buttered baking dish until firm. Serve with whipped cream.

Peas and Walnut Salad.—Take equal quantities of cold cooked peas and walnut meats broken in bits, season well with French dressing and let stand one hour, then serve in lemon cups with mayonnaise dressing.

Potato and Nut Salad.—Take three boiled potatoes, three hard-cooked eggs, one-half cupful of walnut meats and a dozen olives. Cut all fine and mix with French dressing. Just before serving add a little mayonnaise.

Spanish Chicken Soup.—Heat three cupfuls of chicken stock and the same of veal. Add a grated onion, a finely minced carrot and two stalks of celery chopped fine. Add one cup of barley and simmer until the barley is done. Season to taste and rub through a sieve before serving.

A half cupful of tapioca put into chicken broth and cooked slowly for half an hour makes a most delicate soup. Season to taste and add beaten egg just before serving.

Heard Him, All Right.

Germany's stiff-necked denseness in sensing the necessity for her strict compliance with the first armistice terms, and her brazen indignation at the harder ones imposed as a penalty for nonfulfillment of the first, make one think of the banker at Weeping Water, Neb., who was asked by an impetuous farmer for a loan. The banker was one of those people who are deaf for commercial purposes. The farmer was chronically wanting to borrow, and his security was getting shaky.

"I'd like to borrow $5,000," pleaded the farmer.

The banker cupped his hand behind his lame ear and said:

"Speak a little louder and cut down the amount."

He Got His.

"For the past decade," declared the grouchy, "women have been neglecting the home more or less."

"Well," said the woman, "if we keep that up about 6,000 years, we'll be about square with the men, won't we?"

After considering awhile he did not attempt to refute her statement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Their Place.

"The nation is desperate for heroes."

"So it is, but only in the movies."—Baltimore American.

Some men's greatness is due to their smallness.

"CALLUS CORNS" LIFT RIGHT OFF

Apply a few drops of "Freezone"—No pain!

Don't suffer! A tiny bottle of Freezone costs but a few cents at any drug store. Apply a few drops on the corns, calluses and "hard skin" on bottom of feet, then lift them off.

When Freezone removes corns from the toes or calluses from the bottom of feet, the skin beneath is left pink and healthy and never sore, tender or irritated.

British in German Graves.

Viscount Curzon, in the house of commons, was asked if the secretary for war would give an assurance that he would permit the remains of British soldiers buried in Germany to be exhumed and brought home for reinterment, should the relatives desire, as soon as the transport facilities permit.

Captain Guest (Joint parliamentary secretary to the treasury) replied that this matter would receive sympathetic consideration as soon as the condition of affairs permitted.

PHYSICALLY FIT AT ANY AGE

It isn't age, it's careless living that puts men "down and out." Keep your internal organs in good condition and you will always be physically fit.

The kidneys are "the most overworked organs in the human body." When they break down, under the strain and the deadly uric acid, accumulates and crystallizes look out! These sharp crystals tear and scratch the delicate urinary channels causing excruciating pain and set up irritations, which may cause premature degeneration and often do turn into deadly Bright's Disease.

One of the first warnings of sluggish kidney action is pain or stiffness in the small of the back, loss of appetite, indigestion or rheumatism.

Do not wait until the danger is upon you. At the first indication of trouble go after the cause at once. Get a trial box of GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules, imported direct from the laboratories in Holland. They will give almost immediate relief. If for any cause they should not, your money will be returned. But be sure to get GOLD MEDAL. None other is genuine. In sealed boxes, three sizes—Adv.

HOUSEHOLD CONVENIENCES.

The skillful worker in any business always keeps up-to-date tools, for he knows he will thus increase his efficiency. The efficient housewife also knows that time, strength and temper are lost by using old, worn-out and cumbersome utensils.

Why use dull paring and carving knives when a small shapen one can be bought which will keep all cutting tools in good order? If there is any one thing which will cause one to use strong language it is a dull carving knife.

A tray to remove food and dishes from the dining table or to carry it to the table is a great saving of steps. If one cannot afford to buy a wheeled tray or tea wagon get the handy man to make you one, using the small wheels from an old gocart. A wire dish drainer is light and can be used as a tray if no other is at hand; for it is easy to carry.

Paper or wooden trays or plates make fine dishes to use in the ice box, for they do not break and may be renewed often at little expense.

Paper of all kinds saves dish washing. Wipe out the greasy dishes with a piece of soft paper before putting them into the dish water. Keep the table wiped up with paper, saving the dishcloth for stains and grease.

A kitchen table covered with zinc or some hard surface that does not need scouring to keep clean is a most necessary kitchen convenience. Some good scales, a good clock, a kitchen cabinet with everything at hand to use in cookery, are all necessary equipment.

Keep a bottle of kerosene near the sink, and when it is dry wipe out with a cloth dampened with kerosene; it will keep clean without scouring. Repeated scourings with various cleaning powders will run the surface, so that it becomes rough and stains easily.

Have a stool that will slip under the table when not needed and use it to sit on while preparing vegetables or doing many kinds of work. It will be found a great saving on tired feet. One can learn to wash and wipe dishes and iron-sitting on a stool. Have a rung on which to rest the feet to change one's position.

A small, simple old rocking chair in the kitchen will save many a breakdown. Drop into it while doing various things and relax when possible.

Keep a card index of recipes in the kitchen in a convenient place to use in planning the meals.

Foot-Ease to be Added to Equipment of Hospital Corps at Fort Wayne.

Under the above heading the Detroit Press, among other things says:

The Plattsburg Camp Manual advises men in training to shake Foot-Ease in their shoes each morning.

There is no foot comforter equal to Allen's Foot-Ease, the antiseptic, healing powder to be shaken into the shoes and sprinkled in the foot-bath for hot, tired, aching, perspiring, smarting, swollen, tender feet, corns, bunions, blisters or callouses. What wouldn't you give to be relieved of one day's pain of your corns and bunions? Here is relief for every day. You won't realize this until you have tried Allen's Foot-Ease yourself. You simply forget all about your feet they are made so comfortable. Ask your druggist to-day for a package of ALLEN'S FOOT-EASE.

THIN PEOPLE SHOULD TAKE PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

Judging from the countless preparations and treatments which are continually being advertised for the purpose of making thin people fleshy, developing "arms, legs and bust" and replacing ugly hollows and angles by the soft, curved lines of health and beauty, there are evidently thousands of men and women who keenly feel their "skeletal thinness."

Thinness and weakness are often due to starved nerves. Our bodies need more phosphate than is contained in modern foods. Physicians claim there is nothing that will supply this deficiency as well as the organic phosphate known among druggists as bitro-phosphate, which is inexpensive and is sold by most all druggists under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. By feeding the nerves directly and by supplying the body cells with the necessary phosphoric food elements, bitro-phosphate should produce a welcome transformation in the appearance; the increase in weight frequently being astonishing.

Increase in weight also carries with it a general improvement in the health. Nervousness, sleeplessness and lack of energy, which usually accompany excessive thinness, should disappear, dull eyes become bright, and pale cheeks glow with the bloom of perfect health.

CAREFUL! Although bitro-phosphate is unsurpassed for relieving nervousness, sleeplessness and general weakness, it should not, owing to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

BILIOUSNESS Caused by Acid-Stomach

If people who are bilious are treated according to local symptoms they seldom get very much better. What relief is obtained is usually temporary. Trace biliousness to its source and remove the cause and this relief is permanent. It will remain strong and healthy.

Doctors say that more than 700,000,000 Americans are afflicted with an Acid-Stomach. Biliousness is one of them. Indigestion, heartburn, belching, sour stomach, flatulency and gas are to its tendency to increase weight, be used by anyone who does not desire to put on flesh.

MARINES SURELY MADE HIT

But Not Altogether to the Extent That One Doughboy "Over There" Imagined.

He was a United States marine, just arrived in France as a relief for one of the men who had been discharged—upon condition of relief. He did not know French, and he wasn't aware of the fact that everything in a sea-coast town like Brest is named after the sea, which, of course, is "la marine."

Therefore, when he walked along the streets reading the signs his eyes began to open wider and wider. Here was the Brasserie de la Marine, here the Patisserie de la Marine, the Cafe de la Marine and everything else that possibly could carry the affix "de la marine." Long the "devil dog" looked. Then he scratched his head.

"Gosh!" he murmured. "I always knew the marines were good, but I never had any idea they'd make such a hit as this. By golly, they've named the whole darned town after 'em!"

NO SECRECY IN MEAT SITUATION WHEN UNITED STATES REPORTS ARE UTILIZED

Government Market Reports Follow These Forkers to Market.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

That every one interested in meat—from the stock raiser to the consumer—may have the benefit of knowing market conditions in the meat industry, the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, issues daily and other reports to facilitate distribution, improve transportation, stabilize values and to help the producers in placing their stock where it will sell to the best advantage.

On the assumption that the dissemination of market information will tend to improve conditions, the bureau of markets has developed a system of market reporting that has already had some effect in restoring confidence in the markets. While the information made available by the bureau is being used most extensively by those actively engaged in some branch of the live-stock or meat industries, it is believed that sooner or later the public generally will utilize this knowledge and with it bring into line any retailers who reduce consumption by an unwarranted margin of profit.

Present Market-Reporting System.

The present market-reporting system, which was begun in the fall of 1916, has developed rapidly, and at present there are 17 service centers, each of which distributes daily, weekly and monthly reports on the various branches of the industry. These include daily reports on meat-trade conditions in Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Washington, Pittsburgh, San Francisco and Los Angeles; daily reports on live-stock loadings; daily reports on the estimated receipts and prices of live stock at Chicago and Kansas City; reports of live-stock movements in grazing and feeding sections; monthly reports on stocks of frozen and cured meats, eggs and poultry; monthly reports on live-stock receipts and shipments at all public stock yards, and monthly estimates on the supply of marketable live stock.

The report on meat-trade conditions at the leading markets brings to the small dealers, as well as to producers, information that was formerly possessed only by the larger meat-packing institutions. Specialists obtain full information daily on the fresh-meat supply, including various grades of beef, veal, pork, lamb and mutton at the markets, and this information is tabulated and distributed widely by telegraph, through a leased-wire system, to meat-market centers. In a similar manner daily price quotations are furnished on different grades of live stock. As applied to fresh meats, this service results in giving to the public full information as to the supply and accurate data on values of all commercial grades. Secrecy is eliminated, so that when prices on meats are high, as compared with values on foot, it is possible to locate the profiteer.

Shipments Reported Each Day.

Daily reports prepared by the bureau furnish the industry with information on live-stock shipments. This information is obtained from transportation companies who report by wire each night to the Chicago office of the bureau. The wide distribution of this information tends to stabilize values. It furnishes to the producer information which will enable him to ship his stock to market where there is the greatest demand. A knowledge of the demand by smaller plants, which these reports furnish, has a tendency to stimulate competition among buyers with the subsequent effect of raising values. Also, when the amount of live stock moving from production areas is known, it is possible to regulate the supply of cars needed and to determine whether car shortages for any particular district are apparent or real. Improving the system of distribution makes fewer cars necessary, and they can be moved with greater dispatch.

The better distribution of live-stock receipts resulting from information obtained from the leading reports enables commission men and buyers to render better service in handling live stock after it arrives at the stock yards. Heavy receipts arriving unexpectedly create congestion and confusion, which in turn invariably result in unnecessary shrinkage and costly delays, working in reality an injury to the producer and thereby discouraging production.

Bureau Issues Variety of Reports.

An important branch of the live-stock reporting system of the bureau of markets consists of the telegraphic bulletins prepared by representatives of the Chicago and Kansas City offices, and issues from time to time during the market hours of each day. They report the actual live-stock arrivals and the exact conditions of the market, and are transmitted over the bureau's leased wires to other markets where local offices are established. Markets all over the country rely on these daily reports, and these prices are used as a basis in determining values.

Steady progress has been made by the bureau in collecting and distributing information obtained from grazing and feeding sections, which is of use in lessening market congestion and preventing violent fluctuations in values. Reports on meats in storage are issued monthly. The bureau also issues monthly reports on receipts and shipments of live stock in 81 of the leading stock yards in the country. In addition the bureau furnishes a weekly bulletin, the Live Stock and Meat Trade News, which supplies miscellaneous trade information coming from outside sources. All of the reports issued by the bureau are given wide publicity and are available to any person who has use for them.

MAKE EQUIPMENT TO CLEAN DAIRY PAILS

Heating Apparatus Is One of Greatest Conveniences.

Low-Pressure Upright Boiler Is Desirable Where a Large Number of Cows Are Kept—Cream Separator Saves Labor.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

One of the greatest conveniences on the farm where cows are kept is some means of heating an abundance of water for washing the milk vessels. Where a considerable number of cows are kept, heating water by means of steam from a small, low-pressure upright boiler is desirable, but on the small farm a stove with a basin fitted into the top (or it may be separate from the top) can be purchased cheaply, and will serve the purpose, provided the water is properly heated. Water can be pumped from the well directly into the basin. In order to avoid heating the milk room and to do away with smoke and ashes, the water heater should be placed immediately outside the milk room and, if elevated, the water from it can be run into the washing vat.

Some equipment is necessary in which to wash utensils used in handling milk. A vat is very convenient. One end of the vat can be used for washing and the other for rinsing and scalding.

Fiber brushes for washing milk utensils should replace the common dishrag, as they do better work and are more easily kept clean.

On every farm where as many as four or five cows are kept a cream separator is advisable, as it will reduce the labor required in handling the milk from cows more than any other one thing.

A refrigerator or ice box is desirable upon every farm where either a few or many cows are kept if it is practicable to secure ice for use in summer.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Every farm should have a small flock of sheep.

Turnips make a good and cheap fall forage for hogs.

Ranginess in the young stock is a highly desirable quality.

Rape is one of the common annual pasture crops for hogs and sheep.

For feeding calves, no ration has been found which will do as well as milk.

Sows running through filth and then being suckled will often cause pigs to scour.

Calves are always greedy, and for this reason over-feeding should be avoided.

Owners of beef-breeding cows should use every possible means to insure a maximum number of calves.

The high price of wool and the demand for mutton have caused farmers to look with more favor on sheep.
