

THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

VOL. XLIX NO. 50.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH. FRIDAY, JULY 4, 1919.

$1.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

FIFTH ANNUAL ALUMNI BANQUET

The fifth annual meeting and banquet of the Northville High school Alumni association, held Friday, June 27, was a most successful and enjoyable affair. Although the attendance is said to have been slightly less than that of last year, the same spirit of good-fellowship and cordiality prevailed that has made the previous gatherings so delightful.

The business meeting, held before the serving of the banquet, was brief. The new officers, elected by acclamation, are Louise Thayer Bryan, president; Milo N. Johnson, vice-president; Helen Lanning, secretary; Wendell Miller, treasurer. It was voted that the association purchase equipment for the serving of future banquets, and a subscription was started among the members for that purpose, toward which the school board agreed to contribute $50, with the understanding that the equipment shall be used for school functions.

The company was formed in line by classes, for the march from the auditorium to the gymnasium, where a delicious repast was served to about 165 or 170 members and their friends. The decorative scheme was in white, yellow and green, with daisies as the floral motif. Bouquets, and also boutonnières of these pretty blossoms combined with asparagus ferns adorned the tables, shades in the form of daisies softened the glare of the electric lights, ribbons of crepe paper in white and yellow formed the overhead decorations, and the railing of the running track was transformed into a hedge of green by maple boughs.

Under direction of N. I. Coif, the dinner was efficiently served by the High school Juniors, with Stuart Coif as leader, and their prettily systematized work was much complimented. Montgomery's orchestra furnished very agreeable music during the supper hour receiving much applause.

The after-dinner program opened with a brief welcome by the retiring president, Floyd Northrop, who gave a special welcome to the returned soldiers present. Supt. Thad J. Knapp of the Highland Park schools, proved to be an excellent toastmaster, filling that rather difficult position both wittily and wisely.

Prof. John G. Winter of the U. of M. spoke on "The University" in an entertaining and instructive way that commanded close attention as well as frequent laughter and applause, and Miss Martha Horton handled her topic "Patriotism in 1919" both skillfully and charmingly. Lieutenant Albert Holmes of Ypsilanti gave an interesting talk on "Impressions of France," showing a keen insight in regard to the differences due to racial characteristics and environment between the people of France and America. Extremely enjoyable features were the exquisite violin selections by Miss Marquitta Wallin of Detroit, accompanied by her sister, Alice, as pianist, and the beautiful vocal numbers by Miss Margaret Schulling of Detroit. Both musicians were insistently encouraged after each selection.

The entire affair was handled in a systematic and thoroughly capable manner and showed unmistakably that the association was exceedingly fortunate in the selection of its committees, its caterer, and its entire staff of assistants.

WARNER-MARTINDALE WEDDING

Saturday afternoon, June 28, in Detroit, in St. Matthias church, Miss Clarissa Laura Martindale, daughter of Wales C. Martindale, became the bride of Howard Warner of Farmington, Rev. H. C. Atwater performing the ceremony before an embankment of palms, gladioli, and snapdragons.

Miss Martindale was attended by her sister, Mrs. E. Carew Martindale, as matron of honor, and by Miss Edwina Martindale and Miss Edessa Warner as bridesmaids.

Harley D. Warner assisted his brother as best man, and F. Carew Martindale, of Lansing, and George C. Martindale of Chicago, were the ushers.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the church parlors. After a short wedding trip to Mackinac, Mr. and Mrs. Warner will take up their residence in their new home in Farmington.

DEATH OF WILLIAM DAVIS

William J. Davis, formerly of this place, died Wednesday, June 25, at his mother's home in Detroit, of heart trouble. Mr. Davis lived in Northville for about seven years, during

NOTED STATESMAN WILL LECTURE AT THE CHAUTAUQUA

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS

Wherever men gather in America, there politics and political opinions hold forth. And wherever these things are known, the name of Frank B. Willis is a by-word.

The effectiveness of his administrative ability while Governor of Ohio, the eloquence of his oratory and the genius and insight of his mind have made him one of the most popular lecturers on the Chautauqua platform.

which he was a regular attendant of the Methodist church where he was a member of the choir and of the male quartet for some years. Funeral services, under the auspices of the Masonic order, were held in Detroit Friday, with burial in Grand Lawn cemetery, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Van Valkenburg of this place furnished the music at the services.

Mr. Davis is survived by his wife and a little daughter.

BIG BOUNTIES PAID.

The following letter received by the Herald from the secretary of state, in reply to an inquiry, will be of particular interest to woodchuck hunters, as it very materially increases the bounty on these pests over what most townships pay.

"Relative to recent legislation providing for a bounty on woodchucks, weasels, hawks, etc., your inquiry of the 20th, such a law was enacted by the 1919 legislature and becomes operative August 14, 1919. By its terms a bounty of 50c is allowed for the killing of a weasel, woodchuck, great horned owl, barred owl or hawk, except marsh hawk, blue hawk or mouse hawk and 25c for each crow. Application for such bounty is made to the township, village or city clerk, who issues an order on the county clerk for the payment of same.—South Lyon Herald.

AUTO THIEVES VISIT NORTHVILLE.

Northville is now "honored" with a place on the automobile-stealers' list. Monday night, Will Elliott's newspaper delivery truck was taken from his yard, close to the house, evidently by a gang numerous enough to propel the machine by hand as far as the cement road. The next day the car was found on the Northville Outer belt drive, near Grand River avenue, stripped of all its tires, batteries and most of its other accessories.

FAIR NOTES.

Everybody is congratulating everybody else that Northville is to have another fair. Folks seem to like 'em first rate.

N. C. Schrader has once more consented to take charge of the concessions and attractions department, and he already "has his ear to the ground" for the right things in the amusement line. It is safe to say that this part of the 1919 fair will be of first class quality.

NOTICE TO TAXPAYERS.

Village taxes will be received at the Northville State Savings bank on and after Monday, June 16, until July 25th. MARY LITSENBERGER Village Treasurer.

BOARD OF COMMERCE AFTER A FACTORY

OPERA HOUSE BUILDING MAY BE USED BY BIG CORSET COMPANY.

Headed by President James Huff, the Board of Commerce has been very active the past two weeks in an endeavor to secure a branch of the American Lady Corset company's factory for Northville. The matter has progressed very satisfactorily and the prospects for closing the deal next week look good.

The American is one of the largest Corset factories in the world and is controlled by the Siegle's of Detroit where their main establishment is located.

An option lease has been secured on the Opera House building of Mr. Shafer which will have to undergo a few changes so that the entire first floor can be utilized. The factory will employ 100 or more persons mostly women and with a pay roll of $1,200 to $1,500 per week ought to prove of material benefit.

The soliciting committee appointed to raise the necessary money to put the building in shape, James A. Huff, N. C. Schrader, Wm. Gorton, W. J. Fitzgerald and A. E. Stanley. There appears to be no question but what the required amount will be raised.

HOWELL BALL TEAM COMES JULY 12TH

The ball game scheduled here for last Friday between Harry German's Northville Independents and Holly did not materialize, but the Farmington team was substituted for Holly. It was a good game from start to finish as the score of 3 to 0 in favor of Northville indicates.

The Farmington pitcher, Goers, held the locals to five hits and John Clark Schaubater, the catcher and Herman Maas all helped the visitors to hold Northville to the small score of three.

German pitched the first five innings and Stimpson the balance of the game for the Independents and the Oakland county bunch were only able to obtain one hit during the game thus causing them a shut out.

The game was free from errors on both sides and the same two teams will no doubt be dated against each other again in the near future.

The Howell Sluggers of Howell will play here Saturday, July 12, when another good game may be looked forward to. Mr. Smith who is at the Lovewell Farm Agency, secured and recommended this team to come to Northville and they will be on hand to start at 3:30 on next week Saturday.

Howell Sluggers coming Saturday, July 12th.

GET YOUR AUTO DRIVER'S LICENSE.

Commencing August 14 every person who drives an auto of any sort or description must have a driver's license. The only exception is that a person who has a chauffeur's license is not required to have a driver's license.

Members of the Northville Auto Club can secure application blanks and have the same sworn to at the Club's office, Record building, free of charge.

After being filled out and sworn to the application must be approved by a deputy sheriff in the township in which the driver resides. Get your applications in during the early part of July to save delay.

REDUCED RATES ON RAILROADS

U. S. RAILROAD ADMINISTRATION MAKES SPECIAL FREIGHT AND PASSENGER FARES TO STATE AND COUNTY EXPOSITIONS.

MICHIGAN STATE FAIR VICTORY

G. W. Dickinson Leads Committee Which Carries On Successful Fight for Fair Patrons.

Following importunities by a committee of the International Association of Fairs and Expositions, of which G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the Michigan State Fair, was a moving spirit, the Government Railroad Administration has broadened largely its ruling of the railroad return free privilege for fairs.

Coincident with this sweeping victory for the Michigan State Fair, after a fight of several years, the Railroad Administration announced that railroads would give a one and a third fare to all passengers to state and county fairs this year.

Prior to 1915 the railroads returned free exhibits to fairs when the ownership had not been changed. During that year the privilege was taken away and full rates were levied up to last year when Mr. Dickinson succeeded in having the return free privilege reinstated. However, the new reduced rate for exhibits, as now granted by the Railroad Administration, goes farther than anything ever before obtained.

Under the old return free privilege an exhibitor making a circuit of a number of fairs was allowed to return free only from the last fair in the circuit to the original starting point. The concession obtained by Mr. Dickinson and other members of the committee this year is such that the exhibitor pays only half fare when making the circuit or visiting a single fair. Horses were not included under the ruling of last year.

Convinced Railroad Head.

The committee convinced Walker D. Hines, director general of railroads, that this was a direct blow at the horse breeding industry of the country, shown by the war to be one of the most important of industries, despite the automobiles.

The decision of the Railroad Administration for so sweeping a concession to state and county fairs of the country is a direct recognition by the Government of the growing importance such institutions are assuming as great educational factors. It will mean vastly larger and better exhibitions at fairs and will permit display of record breaking stocks and products over a far greater field.

In Michigan it will mean that exhibitors may show their products at the Michigan State Fair at one-half the cost for transportation of former years. The ruling regarding passenger fares also will mean that many thousands of persons in the state will have the opportunity of visiting the fair this year at two-thirds of the transportation cost of all previous years.

In Solitude.

All weighty things are done in solitude—that is, without society. The means of improvement consist not in projects, nor in any violent designs, for these cool and cool very soon, but in patient practicing for whole long days, by which I make the thing clear to my highest reason.—Jean Paul Richter.

HOME TOWN HELPS

BUILD WITH IDEA OF BEAUTY

House Should Never Be Planned Solely Along Lines of Economy and Practical Utility.

An earnest plea for more beauty in building is submitted by a writer in the magazine Touchstone, who says in part:

"Building a home should be approached with reverence as well as joyous enthusiasm. There is no adventure in life more fraught with romance than the creating of a home. We are apt to turn to the past for precedent in architectural styles, whereas we should concern ourselves chiefly with the honest expression of our needs and surroundings."

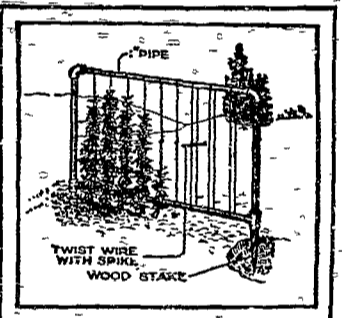

"Love of beauty was almost a religion with the Greeks. To build an ugly thing was a misdemeanor punishable with ostracism. Our country would be a much more delightful and much more agreeable place to live in if our home-builders were guided by wise architects who took as much thought for beauty as they do for economy and profit. Every home is an investment, and a beautiful home returns far more interest on the money expended than does an ugly one."

"Would it not be well for us, now that we are facing an era of home building such as the world has seldom known, to pause a little and approach our task with greater carelessness? We should remember that we are building for the future as well as for present delight and that our descendants may turn to our work with respect as we look into the past and bow before the genius of the ancient master builders."

TRELLIS EASY TO CONSTRUCT

Twisted Wires Support Sweet-Pea Plants in a Most Satisfactory Manner.

A very satisfactory Sweet-pea trellis can be made by stretching wires on a frame of two-inch hard-wood or one-inch pipe, the length of the frame being the same as the length of the rows. The wires should be placed loosely about the frame, as shown, then tightened by twisting them with a spike. A trellis of this kind can be used for several years, and if desired can be removed at the end of each season.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Red Raspberries on Town Lot

Just a small patch of a good variety of red raspberry will afford fresh fruit for the table for many weeks. Some of the new varieties are ever-bearing. Perhaps one of the best is the Eskimo Park.

In setting out the plants first manure and spade the bed as for a garden. If the plants are trained to a wire trellis they can be set two feet apart. Six or eight plants will be sufficient for an average family and ought to produce at least a pint a day from each plant.

By having so few plants, they can be watered and well cared for. Hand weeding about the plant is always the best way to cultivate raspberries.—Thrill Magazine.

Do You Think It Paid?

St. Joseph, Mo., employed a full-time expert garden instructor last year who organized the pupils of the elementary school into garden clubs. About 3,000 pupils reported that they were doing garden work before the schools closed in June, says their superintendent. Of this number 2,394 entered their names for membership in the United States school garden army. The school children gardened 32 acres without help and helped their parents work an area of 394 acres. Although the season was very unfavorable, a conservative estimate of the food produced by the pupils would be $15,000 at market prices.

Keep the City Clean.

With springtime usually comes a "clean up" campaign, and a movement in that direction is general in cities and towns throughout the United States. Appeal is made to civic pride, and people are urged to make their localities better places in which to live. This is good and desirable. But why not keep cleaning up all the year round? If things are not thrown into the streets, particularly bits of waste paper, they will not have to be picked up. Receptacles for refuse, if placed in back yards and used, will help much in maintaining a condition of neatness. The cleanly habit can easily be acquired.

To Build American Prosperity on the Impregnable Rock of Economy

BY THE WIFE OF THE JUNIOR SENATOR FROM NEW YORK

How many of the women who worked so ardently for the war are now working with equal ardor for peace? A certain service is badly needed just now by our country. It is a vital service and can be performed at no loss of time and at a monetary gain.

While money is needed by the United States to carry out the extensive program of readjustment which peace brings in its train, a part of the readjustment program and one which is far more important than just the gathering of money is the great task we have before us of learning what intelligent thrift is and putting our knowledge into such effective practice that we shall not only eliminate waste during 1919 but shall accustom countless generations of Americans to build prosperity on the impregnable rock of sensible economy.

The savings division of the United States treasury is calling upon every person to model life on the following lines: To save intelligently, to spend wisely, to avoid waste, and to invest safely. It may sound easy, it may sound like things you have heard often before, but apply it conscientiously for a week to every bit of time, energy and money over which you have control, and you will be amazed to see the immense amount of personal readjustment there is waiting for you to do.

And every individual who brings this power of thrift into his life adds just that amount of vitality to the life of the nation.

Besides pointing out the particular mountain at the peak of which is a promised land for every climber, the treasury is furnishing an easy and convenient ascension by means of Thrift and War Savings stamps. Through them the smallest saving can be converted into a profitable investment. Twenty-five cents buys a Thrift stamp and sixteen Thrift stamps are exchangeable with a few pennies additional for a five-dollar War Savings stamp, bearing 4 per cent interest compounded quarterly. In other words a War Savings stamp bought now for a trifle over four dollars will be redeemed for five dollars five years from now. But of course, if necessary, they can be cashed in at any post office on ten days' notice. Taking the maximum purchase allowed—two hundred War Savings stamps—a little over eight hundred dollars invested at convenience during the year will return a thousand dollars January 1, 1924. War Savings stamps indeed offer the best and safest small investment.

It must not be forgotten that besides this personal monetary gain there are two other distinct benefits. The money thus loaned the government is accomplishing those tasks of national readjustment in which every woman should be just as eager to do her share as she has been in serving for the war. Lastly, while accumulating W. S. S., often with just odds and ends of unnecessary expenditure, we are acquiring firm habits of sensible economy on which depend our own and our country's future.

This is truly a special post-war work for women, who are directly responsible for the ideals of the next generation. Let us make a nation of wise spenders and farsighted savers. No child will rest satisfied until he has acquired enough "Thriftness" to fill his card. And when that is done he will not be content until another card has been begun.

If you want to train your child in the all-paying ways of economy, start him today with a 25-cent Thrift stamp.

Germany Lives for Revenge and Will Seek It at First Opportunity

By LIEUT. COL. B. M. CHIPERFIELD, Judge Advocate 13rd Division

I do not think I overstate the case when I say that the German people are not conquered. They have in their hearts a great hate for England and France, and while they will sign the peace treaty and make the best of it, yet they will do it, in my judgment, with the reservation that the time will come when they can have their revenge.

The German people along the Rhine paid the American soldiers great respect and implicit obedience. But they have a holy hate for the British and French. They also have a bitter feeling for the American nation, because they now believe that they would have won the war if the United States had not come in.

The constant surprise along the Rhine and in Germany for the American today is the great number of children in all the towns. I never saw so many children, and the military idea is born in them. Scores of these youngsters everywhere were playing at war with sticks for rifles.

These children will not grow up with a horror of war in their hearts, because Germany has not been hurt at home with horrors, as have France and Belgium.

I am certain they will feel that somehow, sometime they will yet realize their slogan—"Der Tag."

Germany lives for revenge and will seek it at the first opportunity.

Why Every Citizen Who Can Should Own His Home and Should Build Now

By GEORGE M. REYNOLDS, Chicago Bank President

It should be every man's ambition to own his home. In realizing that ambition he will be providing for the future of his family and himself. He will be doing far more than merely furnishing a roof over the heads of those he loves; he will be laying the foundation upon which his children will build firmness and nobility of character.

A permanent residence in the home you own means the development of a higher type of citizenship, for the home owners have pride in the community. They know that the general standard of the community will be raised or lowered by the interest or lack of interest they take in civic affairs.

Apparently not much is to be gained by waiting for a decline in prices of building materials, for authorities tell us it is impossible for prices to recede to any considerable extent in the face of costs of production which are likely to continue without much change for at least a year or two longer.

Pretty Party Frocks

If you would forget that there is anything in the world but joy, spend a little time looking at the party frocks in which the summer girl will dance some hours away. If these dance frocks flourished in the daytime, bees and butterflies might pursue them, for they certainly borrow from flowers their color and piquancy and sunshine glimmers in their brocades and embroideries. Evening gowns indulge in sumptuous materials, in gold and silver tissue, in rich embroideries and twinkling sequins and all kinds of shimmering things—including the new shot taffetas. Finally they turn to tulle and laces or sheer crepe. A world of fine and fragile fabrics belongs to them.

Black georgette over a satin slip serves for the dignified gown at the left of the picture. Its construction is so simple that the picture tells about all that can be told. It has a very plain bodice with round neck, bound with brocade. The skirt is gathered to this and hangs straight with an overhanging panel at the front that is embroidered near the bottom. The same embroidery appears at the sides below the hipline. A very gorgeous sash of heavy brocaded ribbon makes the wide girdle with one long hanging end.

Petticoat Substitute.

The long, slim suit and dress skirts almost make the wearing of petticoats an impossibility. But we may be just as modestly and comfortably clad, for there are the long bloomers or pantalettes are usually chosen in dark suit colors and may be had ankle length or shorter and with or without ruffles. A new style has an accordion plaited piece set in just above the shoe tops. For summer the short silk jersey bloomers in flesh and pink with uneven insets of lace at the knee, are perhaps the newest. Camisoles of silk jersey with lace or embroidered in pink and blue silk are also very new.

Hats for Midsummer

Dress hats for midsummer, as compared to other millinery, are as orchids compared to other, lovely, blossoms. These millinery blooms are the most fragile, most splendid of all, the fairest and the shortest lived. They are midsummer interpreted in hats by designers whose fancies are unhampered by thoughts of anything but beauty. They look to the sheerest fabrics and to the most beautiful colors to translate their thoughts into millinery.

In the last hat, georgette is shirred over a wire frame with a wide ruffle flowing about the brim edge. This is one of a few models in which the crown is not flexible. Although in this particular hat there are no flowers or fruit in the trimming it is an exception to the rule, the designer having placed a sash of ribbon about the crown, tied in a generous but simple bow near the front.

In the group of three hats made for the heart of summer, two are of printed georgette and one of plain georgette in the sheerest quality. The same wide-brimmed, graceful shapes appear developed in laces, malines and nets. Brims usually have lines in flowing curves about the face and crowns are often flexible. The hat at the right of the group is a lovely example. A vague flower motif against a black ground provides color. There is no trimming except the sash of velvet ribbon, in one of the colors in the crepe, that is brought about the crown and tied in a bow at the back.

Substitute for Furs.

The reported decision of clothing manufacturers, particularly specialty houses, of going more into leather-lined or convertible overcoats for next fall and winter finds an echo in the women's wear trade. According to a dress goods representative the suggestion that leather be substituted in some cases for fur trimmings has met with quite a little response. The price consideration is not one that holds the important place for the change, even though there is a difference in favor of the use of leather, but the novelty of leather trimmings is expected to be a big factor.

In the hat at the left there is a hint of sport styles in the covering. It is of white crepe georgette with gay figures of Rin-tin-tin and Nanette sporting themselves over its surface. A covered silk cord with small tassels at the ends disposes itself in a careless bow on the crown—to answer "present" in case any one asks for the whereabouts of trimming.

Blue and orchid is a color combination much in evidence this season, especially for evening and semi-evening gowns.

STILL FAITHFUL TO STUARTS?

Pretender of that Line to Britain's Throne Is Now Prince Rupert of Bavaria.

There was once to be found in Britain a little group of romantic sentimentalists who remained faithful to the Stuart line, and celebrated on January 30 a kind of Jacobite feast day. A writer in Living Age remembers seeing postage stamps bearing the likeness of the "pretender," who happened to be a princess of Bavaria. These were attached to the envelope by the side of the official postage stamp, thus constituting a source of annoyance to the serious minded Victorians.

Since the death of his mother, Maria Theresa of Bavaria, a few weeks ago, ex-Prince Rupert of Bavaria is now the official Stuart pretender to the throne of Great Britain. The muse of history has ever had a leaning toward irony.

A Feeling of Security

You naturally feel secure when you know that the medicine you are about to take is absolutely pure and contains no harmful or habit producing drugs.

Such a medicine is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, kidney, liver and bladder remedy. The same standard of purity, strength and excellence is maintained in every bottle of Swamp-Root.

It is scientifically compounded from vegetable herbs.

It is not a stimulant and is taken in teaspoonful doses.

It is not recommended for everything. It is nature's great helper in relieving and overcoming kidney, liver and bladder troubles.

A sworn statement of purity is with every bottle of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root.

If you need a medicine, you should have the best. On sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to try this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper—Advt.

Couldn't Hear Him Crow.

Baby Marie Osborn was being featured at an East side theater. It must have been a show particularly suited for the little folk. At one point in the story a rooster flew on a fence. In the early morning, flapped his wings proudly and crowed lustily. When he appeared on the fence, so realistic was the picture that the audience became silent. Then the stillness was broken by a small voice, lost in the realism of the thing: "Mother, mother, I can't hear him crow!"—Indianapolis News.

Up the Magdalena River

Scene on the Magdalena River.

THE trip by the Magdalena river from the sea to Bogotá, the capital of Colombia, is one of the most interesting the traveler can find. The London Times. The time of the voyage varies from nine to fourteen days, according to whether it is made in the wet or dry season.

During the trip one ascends from sea level to 9,000 feet above it; there are three separate trains, and two steamers; the scenery varies from sweltering forest to wide, airy pastures, wheatfields and rugged blue mountain peaks; the dwellings of the people change from insouciant, palm-thatched huts to the imposing Spanish style stone mansions of the ancient city of Bogotá.

Puerto Colombia, with the turquoise Caribbean washing its feet, is a port by courtesy. Steamers call there for the convenience of Barranquilla. Wide-spread, sunny, flower-bedecked Barranquilla sits upon the bank of the Magdalena, and continuously and passionately discusses the question of water transport, for it can have no direct access to the sea until the Magdalena bar is conquered.

From Barranquilla one takes a river steamer to La Dorada. On the flat-bottomed river boat, drawing only a foot or two of water, travelers must provide themselves with bedding; the steamship company lends a canvas cot, but nothing else, and the Barranquilla hotels specialize in providing the visitor for Bogotá with the outfit—a pillow of tree-cotton, a couple of tiny sheets, a mosquito netting, "bar," a couple of little towels. No other bedding is needed, for the heat is stifling but the judicious also take table delicacies and everything needed in the way of beverages, with the exception of coffee, of which there is a constant and most excellent flow.

Soon the forest closes down to the edge of the water, as unconquered, as dominant, as in Quesada's day, 400 years ago. Quesada took two years to ascend the river to Bogotá, the survivors of his party arriving ragged and starving; the marvel is that a single one of those adventurers reached the plains.

Scene of Great Beauty.

The jade of banana leaves, whipped into rags by the wind, the glaucous green of lilies, the emerald of the palms, the Jasper of the great forest giants, is only broken here and there by a trail of flowering vine or the rare sight of a high-perched mauve or gold orchid; where open spaces occur there are low-growing bushes, covered with flowers, and one sees a host of butterflies and birds, but usually there is nothing but the river and the green wall of forest. When rain falls in a straight sheet even the forest is blotted out and the alligators and turtles of the margins are invisible until the sun reappears.

When a stop is made for wood or to deliver merchandise to some little trading point the outlet for some rich region producing sugar, hides, coffee or tobacco, all the village comes to the little wharf, guns are fired and the church bell is rung in the steamer's honor; there are a number of such places below Puerto Berrio. Puerto Berrio is important as the starting point for the wonderful Cauca Valley, worth some trouble to reach and possessing a perpetual June climate, a wealth of fruit and flowers, a fertile soil and mountains sown with precious minerals.

At La Dorada, where the blue mountains have suddenly come nearer and turn green and purple, there is little but a row of modest cottages, and the railway sheds; but here is the train for Beltrán, the line leaving the river, and traversing a wonderful country of bright green pastures with sturdy herds grazing, fine luscious trees and hills that rise grotesquely, topped with fantastic rocks like battlemented castles of the middle ages. All this region is famous for its tobacco, and has exported it to Europe for over a hundred years. The train stops at Honda, where one looks far down at the rapids; the town is bright and pretty, the center of a gold mining industry, and here, by the way, one buys four cigars of excellent tobacco for the equivalent of 24¢.

There is another halt at Mariquita, where Quesada died, and where today an English company has established one of the terminals of an aerial tramway across the broken country, forests and mountains into the Cauca valley. The tall standards march along into the distance almost directly west; I believe that the enterprise has been, as it deserves, very successful—I heard of a grand piano having been carried triumphantly by this air line.

Trains Go Slowly.

About five hours is occupied by the train journey, and then Beltrán is reached with its waiting steamer for the river. The steamers, for the upper river are small, the dining tables set out on the open main-deck in picnic style. There are only six cabins on this little boat, and most of the score of passengers sleep outside under a sapphire velvet sky set with a million diamonds. This sky seems very close above; the air is soft, full of woodland scents; all night one hears the song of the river only overcome when at first flush of dawn hundreds of ringing bird voices begin to call from the bushes.

With full daylight comes realization of the beauty of the río arriba. Here the steep, folded mountain spurs stand down to the water's edge, little white cliffs marking the force of the flood in the rainy season; brilliant green on the long crests, these spurs take on deep violet shadows in the innumerable clefts and gorges.

When the steamer reaches Girardot, with its scarlet blossoms, its cobbled streets tipping down to the river, and its eternal clothes-washing on the flat stones of the margin, there is but one section of the journey still to be traversed—the railroad to Bogotá. During this final stage there is a great deal of steady climbing to the upland plateau, and a long run across the cool plains. One passes through regions of wonderful fruit—rose-apples and nisperos, granadillas, and manzanas and melons; ascends through a cutting whose sides are jet black because here is a seam of excellent coal providing fuel for the railway; and, after rolling through level lands where cattle graze peacefully beside willow-bordered brooks, sees at last the twin peaks of Monserrat and Guadalupe, with the white walls of Bogotá at their feet. The mountains stand like a vast purple barrier; beyond lies that lake of legends, Guatavita, a score of gold-bearing rivers; the emerald mines of Muso from which the finest stones in the world, and the largest annual quantities, are produced.

Rationing and Improved Health.

It is not true that under rationing the health of the nation "is suffering from lack of good food," says the Weekly Scotsman. "On the contrary, the health of the children in the schools has never been so good, and but for the influenza epidemic the death rate would in all probability never have been so low. Of essential foods everyone has had enough. Butter has been short precisely because it was necessary to safeguard the children's milk, but no one who understands the work done by the ministry of food in securing the raw material for, and arranging the manufacture of, margarine will say that the subject of fat in general has been neglected."

Not Worth $10.

An American unused to court etiquette was invited just before the war, says Collier's, to dine with a German prince. A glittering flunky presented a silver plate to him just before the hors d'oeuvres were served. He blushed, fumbled in his pocket, then said to himself, "I have nothing but a $10 note, but I don't think any German dinner is worth $10," so he let the plate pass. He then discovered that the plate was intended to receive the white gloves that he ought to have worn!—Boston Post.

How Paris Was Named.

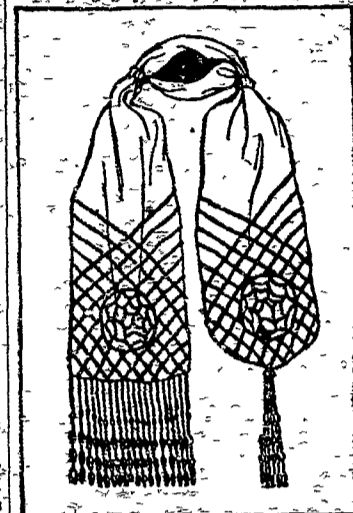

In 52 B. C., when Caesar conquered Gaul, Paris was called, in Gallic, Lutetia (Mud-town). At that time it was inhabited by a Celtic tribe, the Parisii. They burned their town rather than surrender to Caesar, so that general ordered a new town built at the same time, and called it after the tribe, Parisii. This was the original form of the present name, Paris.

NEW BEADED BAGS

Conceals That Lend Daintiness to Milady's Costumes.

Women Can Easily Produce Their Own Handsome Bags and Purses at Home.

Smart shops that specialize in novelties are devoting much space to the display of new beaded bags and there is sufficient variety in their shape and coloring to make them intensely interesting. Everything that can be made with beads is exceedingly smart this season. Women who never thought that they would have the patience to attempt them are making beaded bags. Two pretty novelties are shown here. One is a large affair in blue and tan beads sewed on in tiny squares. The handle is entirely of blue beads. Each square measures one-fourth inch high by one-half inch wide and each square requires from 32 to 36 beads.

Many of the handsomest bags are so expensive, that it is far more economical to make them at home. To develop a design in the beads these may be sewed singly, a back stitch taken with each bead. Another way is to string the beads on a strong thread, then couch down the string, taking stitches between the beads. Either method may be used with satisfaction and frequently the sewer imagines that she is making better progress if she strings the beads before sewing them onto the frame.

Miser's purses are very fashionable this year, and some beautiful designs are shown. The one illustrated is made of black silk tricolette embroidered in steel beads. One can work out a number of delightful color schemes with these bags.

Beaded Bag in Blue and Tan.

The miser's purse has a deep fringe of steel beads at one end and a heavy tassel of the same beads at the other end. It is seldom that both ends are finished alike in the newest effects.

TOPS OF UNBLEACHED MUSLIN

Spreads Are Delightfully Easy to Make and Are Both Decorative and Artistic.

This is the time for some lovely unbleached muslin spreads. They are delightfully easy to make and ever so artistic. Make a square of the muslin (sometimes it is possible to get it wide enough to fashion the entire cover without piecing), and border the square with a three-inch band of colored chambray (rose or blue would be pretty), and then place a motif of the chambray in the center—it matters not how simple it is, though you can make it as handsome as you please. Floral designs are the best, and you will be surprised what pretty novelties you can yourself draw for the purpose. Pencil them upon the center of the spread, or, better yet, pencil them upon paper and cut them out. Then place the paper design upon the spread and draw a pencil line about the edges, thus transferring the pattern to the muslin. Next proceed to place the paper designs over the colored chambray and cut out the chambray accordingly, except that the chambray should extend a good eighth of an inch beyond the paper patterns, for turning in. Next place the center of the cutout chambray designs to the center of the penciled designs and place a pin in the center to hold them together. Proceed to turn in the edges of the chambray to exactly fit within the designs penciled upon the muslin and baste them down.

Next applique the chambray permanently to the muslin by an outline stitch of silk or mercerized cotton the color of the chambray. It is a pretty idea, if the design consists of flowers, to make center of French knots in a contrasting color. The stems should be done in an outline stitch of green, unless some other color fits better in to the scheme.

FALL SKIRTS ALSO NARROW

Advance Models From Paris Follow Spring Style, Despite the Ruling in America.

Already a little foreword regarding fall styles has come from Paris. The skirts of these advance models are as narrow as those of the present season and fully as short as the skirts Paris approved for spring in opposition to the American ruling for long skirts.

The coats of the models now being offered as a suggestion for the first fall style development show a decided tendency to run to short-waisted effects. This may be an indication that the empire waistline is to be favored in much of the apparel shown for fall and winter. This is, however, pure guesswork, as the dresses that have come over from the other side with these short-waisted suits are not on empire lines, and all the separate coats shown have normal waistline, belted loosely.

NAVY AND WHITE FOR FALL

Certainly women are wondering about fall headgear. This hat, a new creation for the coming season, is of navy and white taffeta. It is very becoming and youthful.

FINDINGS ADD TO EXPENSE

Home Dressmaker Knows That It Pays to Save Accessories From Discarded Garments.

Findings, these days, may well mount up into several dollars for even a very simple frock, as we soon discover if we attempt a little home dressmaking, either with or without the aid of a seamstress. Belting by the yard, hooks and eyes, snaps, sewing silk, have all advanced enormously, and apparently have no immediate intention of coming down in price.

And so it really is worth while to conserve these accessories of dressmaking in a manner that has not been thought of by American women for many years. But why should we not save them? It hardly ever happens that hooks and eyes and buttons are worn out when a garment is worn out.

Of course if we give the garments away, then it is decidedly inconsiderate and a piece of false thrift to rob them of buttons or other fasteners, but if we wear the garment put ourselves—and most of us do nowadays—then we should take care that all findings are taken out before the garment goes into the rag bag.

And so the gentle art of ripping may be revived. We may find it expedient to rip apart worn-out silk frocks in search of the pieces of good silk that can be used to make the top of a silk petticoat, or parts of a white summer frock; for pieces of sheer material that can be washed and freshened to use in making linings to frocks later on.

MODES OF THE MOMENT

Paris is shortening her skirts. Looped silk in silk or wool is popular.

A number of the Paris creations are developed in black and white.

Separate skirts are assuming an important position in woman's wardrobe.

There is a revival of the lace parapet of grandmother's days. One striking one has black lace mounted over green tulle.

Headresses of all sorts are popular and are worn low on the head, covering the entire brow and quite often the eyebrows.

Laundering Organdie.

Add two tablespoonfuls of prepared gum arabic water to a quart of lukewarm water and dip the organdie, after it has been dried, into this; roll the garment into a tight roll and allow to get partly dry; take an atomizer containing lukewarm water; with this atomize the outside of the roll, which will be drier than the inside. Iron on the wrong side as far as possible.

WORSE THAN DEADLY POISON GAS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. It attacks young and old alike. In most cases the victim is warned of the approaching danger. Nature fights back. Headache, indigestion, insomnia, lame back, lumbago, sciatica, rheumatism, pain in the joints and lower abdomen, difficulty in urinating, all are indications of trouble brewing in your kidneys.

When such symptoms appear you will almost certainly find quick relief in GOLD MEDAL HAMMILL'S OIL CAPSULES.

This famous old remedy has stood the test for two hundred years in helping mankind to fight off disease. It is imported direct from the home laboratories in Holland, where it has helped to develop the Dutch into one of the sturdiest and healthiest races in the world, and it may be had at almost every drug store. Your money is promptly refunded if it does not relieve you. Be sure to get the genuine GOLD MEDAL Brand, in sealed packages, three sizes.—Adv.

MEANS DEATH OF GRAMMAR

New Rule Which Has Abolished Formal and Elaborate English Style of Former Days.

English as commonly written today certainly seems to have lost the purity and strength that it had a century ago, observes the Spokane Spokesman-Review. Then such masters of the language as Cobbe, Coleridge, DeQuincy or Hazlitt were journalists as well as poets or essayists, and their leading articles lost nothing of effect on the public from being literary.

The arrival of the age of steam, electricity and cheap postage was followed by a change, not for the better, in the popular style of speaking and writing. "Say what you have to say as briefly and quickly as possible, and don't bother about fineness of expression," became the general rule and practice. The new millions of readers demanded that their reading be expressed in the language of "every-day speech." The obligation of compressing conclusions about important matters into 1,000 words, or fewer, is death, in the end, to style. The literary form favored is in touch with the turned-up trousers fashion of wearing one's clothing. It is free and easy and cramped with linguistic atrocities. Plural subjects are polysyngetically wedded to singular verbs, and Lindley Murray turns in his grave on account of the death of grammar.

"BAYER CROSS" ON GENUINE ASPIRIN

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" to be genuine must be marked with the safety "Bayer Cross." Always buy an unbroken Bayer package which contains proper directions to safely relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Colds and pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost but a few cents at drug stores—larger packages also. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoacetic-acidester of Salicylic acid.—Adv.

Creasures of Circumstances.

Judge—What is a fair compensation for the receiver and his attorney in this case?

Attorney—I should say, your honor, $1,000 for the attorney and $500 for the receiver would be a very meager allowance, considering the great amount of actual work performed.

Judge—The amount in the hands of the receiver is how much?

Attorney—Fifteen hundred dollars.

Couldn't Move In Bed Twelve Weeks From Rheumatic Trouble. Now Praises Doan's.

"For twelve weeks I lay abed, unable to move a muscle," says Mrs. Gust Johnson, 654 E. Seventh St., Red Wing, Minn.

"The pains that shot through my entire body seemed more than any human being could stand. My hands and arms and lower limbs were put in splints to stop them from twisting into knots. Every ligament seemed ready to snap. I can't understand how I endured such agony."

"Several physicians agreed that I had inflammatory rheumatism, but their medicine didn't give me any relief. My folks wanted to take me to a hospital, but I would not let them. The doctors said that nothing could be done for me."

"I had been an invalid now for two years, before I finally decided to resort to Doan's Kidney Pills. I used twelve boxes and they surely did prove their wonderful merit. It is a year since, and I have enjoyed the best health of all my life. I weigh nearly 170 pounds and am like a different person in every respect. I shall always praise Doan's Kidney Pills."

Our next regular meeting, Wednesday, July 9, is the last before the summer vacation. There will not be another meeting until the fourth Wednesday evening in August, the 27th. Let us have a good attendance, as there are important matters to discuss, including the arrangements for our annual picnic.

Flowers in the Soul.
Every human soul has the germ of some flowers within; and they would open, if they could only find sunshine and free air to expand in. I always told you that not having enough of sunshine was what ailed the world. Make people happy, and there will not be half the quarreling, or a tenth part of the wickedness there is—Mrs. Child.

Airquakes.

An English astronomer of prominence has advanced the theory that there are airquakes, entirely independent of earthquakes, that are caused by the explosion of meteors in the atmosphere.

A FUTURE "WORLD CHAMP" PREPARING FOR STATE FAIR PHYSICAL CULTURE CONTEST

WALTER J. HORTON.

Walter J. Horton, 6 years old, of 553 Canfield avenue west, Detroit, is preparing for the annual physical culture contest held in connection with the Michigan State Fair. Walter is a champion, having won first place in his class last year. He stands 3 1/2 feet high and weighs 47 pounds. Physical culture experts, who conduct the contest, each year, declare he is a perfect specimen of boyhood. At the fair, this year, to be held in Detroit from August 29 to September 7, hundreds of boys and girls and men and women, who are working for physical betterment during the summer, will be seen in these contests. G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the fair association, gives this department his personal attention.

Baby Culture At State Fair Turns 'em Out Like This

CORA LOUISE CAMP.

Cora Louise Camp, 2 1/2 years old, of Detroit, is one of the babies who have been entered in the Better Babies Contest at the Michigan State Fair, for the past two years. She is a striking example of what scientific and hygienic principles in raising a baby will accomplish. She is a sample of the better babies which have resulted in Michigan from the educational campaign carried on by the state fair. This little Miss will be among the entrants in the contest this year, where hundreds of babies will be given the most minute examinations by leading baby experts, during the ten days of the fair, in Detroit from August 29 to September 7.

On With the Dance

ORIENTAL pipes and drums will play one-steps and fox trots for a great community dance up and down the broad pavement of the Midway the opening night of the Michigan State Fair, Detroit, Aug. 29 to Sept. 7. For this novel feature the pavement is to be washed and waxed from the Administration Building to the Grandstand. Admission to the grounds will be free while the dancing is going on from 5 to 8 p. m. American brass bands will play the waitzes.

GARRICK THEATRE, DETROIT.

For the tenth and last week of her Detroit engagement at the Garrick Theatre Miss Bonstelle has selected a three act satirical comedy, "Penny" by Martin Brown.

A peculiar phrase is attached to "Penny"—four men have read the script and all agree it is impossible, while every woman that has read it has raved over its possibilities, so it remains to be seen whether masculine or feminine judgement wins out. Miss Bonstelle maintains that men object to it because of the principal male character, which they declare impossible and that no such man exists, while Miss Bonstelle maintains that they set forth this claim because they are not honest enough to confess to the duplicity of their brothers.

The play is in four acts and three scenes—a corner of the roof on a Fifth Avenue Hotel, Sunrise Farm at MacConigle's Gap, New Hampshire, and a motor car in a fog in London.

COAL SHORTAGE
ON WAY; GOVT.
SAYS BUY NOW

May Be Repetition of 1917-18
Conditions Next Winter Says
Geological Survey.

MINES IDLE WITHOUT ORDERS.

Those Who Delay Ordering Longer May Not Get Their Fuel Later On.

The United States Geological Survey announces from Washington the probability of another general coal shortage next fall and winter. The announcement is based, the Survey states, upon a nation-wide study of conditions in the bituminous field. Unless steps are taken at once, the Survey says, to place the mines upon a basis of increased production, there is every prospect of a repetition to some degree of the situation that prevailed in the United States during the winter of 1917-18.

The only way production can be stimulated at the present time, it is said, is by placing orders with the mines for coal which will be needed later on. Production during the first five months of the year, reads the statement, "fell 57,292,000 net tons, or approximately 25% below production during the first five months of 1918. Mines are producing coal now at the rate of from 8,000,000 to 8,500,000 tons a week. An average output of 10,700,000 tons a week must be maintained from June 1 to January 1 next if the country's estimated needs of 500,000,000 tons this year are to be met."

Evil of Delayed Orders.

At no time during this year has the rate of production approached the required tonnage. The tendency on the part of buyers to hold off placing their orders is, limiting production, as the mines cannot store coal at the point of production, and when the rush of orders for the winter's needs comes next fall there is grave danger that the mines, with depleted labor forces and the probability of less adequate transportation, will be unable to meet the demands. The result of such a situation would be an insufficient supply for the requirements of domestic consumers, public utilities and industrial users generally.

"It is believed that requirements for this year," reads a Survey statement to Fuel Administrator Garfield, "will be about 530,000,000 tons of bituminous coal, of which approximately 30,000,000 tons have been used from stocks accumulated last year, leaving 500,000,000 tons to be produced. Of this 500,000,000 tons 178,000,000 tons were produced during the first five months, leaving 322,000,000 tons to be produced in the remaining 30 weeks, or an average of 10,700,000 tons a week."

"Thus far this year production has been at the rate of 8,200,000 tons a week. In 1918 production was at the rate of 11,300,000 tons a week."

"This production will be difficult of accomplishment. The capacity of operating mines at the present time with labor now on the payroll is about 10% lower than it was last year. This deficiency may be made up in part or wholly if the mines have orders sufficient to run them five or six days a week unless the threatened exodus of foreign-born labor occurs."

May Be Car Shortage.

"Present wage agreements between operators and miners expire with the proclamation of peace by the President. A suspension of mining operations while a new wage agreement is being negotiated would, of course, seriously interfere with the production of coal and if it should occur during the fall would cause a panic among buyers and consumers of coal."

There is no use in gambling upon this or any other contingency, fuel administration officials say. The firm or individual who wants to be sure of an adequate coal supply next winter can be certain by buying coal now. There is no other way such assurance can be obtained. Transportation also promises to be a limiting factor if the flood tide of demand comes at a time when the country's record crops are being carried. In some districts it would appear certain that, notwithstanding the utmost endeavors of the Railroad Administration and the utilization of its experience last fall, car shortage will be a cause limiting bituminous coal production, and for that reason it is problematical whether the expected production of 500,000,000 tons can be attained this year.

Shortage of labor already is a factor that is cutting down the output in some coal producing sections, according to the Survey's report. The operators report that from 38,000 to 40,000 foreign-born miners expect to return to Europe as soon as they can get passports and that many have already returned. If continued this movement will be capable of producing but one result—a reduction of the amount of coal mined in districts where the mine labor is largely foreign-born, and there are many such districts.

He who needs coal should hesitate no longer. Now is the time to buy coal.

Tragedy and Mystery.

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Bart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "kern-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray" the leading lady. They are doing hotel work for their board. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night two mounted men leave the tavern under odd circumstances. A little later one of the two riders is brought back dying, the other having been killed. Both have been shot. The whole affair is most mysterious.

CHAPTER IV.—Continued.

"They was hitched jest about a hundred yards below Mr. Curtis' property, on the off-side o' the road. I hadn't any more'n got to our front gate when I heard some one running in the road up there behind me. 'Fore I knowed what was happenin', bang went a gun. I almost jumped out'n my boots. The running had stopped. The horses was carlin' an' tearing so I thought I'd—"

"Where'd the shot come from?" demanded Jones.

"Up the road some'eres, I couldn't swear just where. Must'a been up by the road that cuts in to Green Fancy. So I thought, 'I'd hustle in an' see if pa was awake, an' git my gun. Jest then pa stuck his head out'n the window an' yelled what the hell's the matter. Your betcher life I sung out who I was mighty quick, 'cause pa's purty spry with a gun an' I didn't want him takin' me fer burglars sneakin' around the house. While we wuz talkin' there one of the hosses started our way lickety-split, an' in about two seconds it went by us. It was purty dark, but we see plain as day that there was a man in the saddle, beidin' low over the hoss' neck and shoun't to it. We waited a couple o' minutes, wonderin' what to do, an' list'nin' to the boss gittin' funder and funder away in the direction of the cross-roads. Then 'way down there by the pike we heard another shot. Right there an' then pa said he'd put on his clothes an' we'd set out to see what it was all about."

"Well, pa come out with my gun an' his'n an' we waits up to where I seen the hosses. Shore 'nough, one of 'em was still hitched to the fence, an' t'other was gone. We stood around a minute or two examin' the hoss an' then pa says let's go up the road a ways an' see if we c'n see anythin'. An' by gosh, we hadn't gone more'n fifty feet afore we come plumb on a man layin' in the middle of the road. Pa shook him an' he didn't let out a sound. He was warm, but dead as a tombstone. I wuz fer leavin' him there till we c'd git the coroner, but pa says no. We'd carry him down to our porch an' lay him there, so's he'd be out o' danger. I jumps on Polly an' lights out fer here. Mr. Jones, to telephone up to Saint Liz fer the sheriff an' the coroner, not givin' a dang what I run into on the way. Polly shied some-thing terrible jest afore we got to the pike an' I come derailed near bel'n' thrown. An' right there 'side the road was this feller, all in a heap. Thinks I, you poor cuss, you must 'a tried to stop that feller on hysback an' he plunked you. That accounted fer the second shot. The thing that worries all of us is did the same man do the shootin', or was there two of 'em, one waitin' down the cross-roads?"

"Must have been two," said Jones, thoughtfully. "The same man couldn't have got down there ahead of him, that's sure. Did anybody go up to Green Fancy to make inquiries?"

"'Twasn't necessary. Mr. Curtis heard the shootin' an' jest before we left he sent a man out to see what it was all about. The old skeezicks that's been drivin' his car lately come down half-dressed. He said nothin' out of the way had happened up at Green Fancy."

"It's most mysterious," said Barnes, glancing round the circle of awed faces. "There must have been some one lying in wait for these men, and with a very definite purpose in mind."

"Strikes me," said Jones, "that these two men were up to some kind of dirty work themselves, else why did they say they were goin' to Spanish Falls? They were queer actin' men, I'll have to say that."

His eyes met Barnes' and there was a queer light in them.

"You don't happen to know anything about this, do you, Mr. Barnes?" he demanded, suddenly.

CHAPTER V.

The Farm-Boy Tells a Ghastly Story and an Irishman Enters. Barnes stared. "What do you mean?" he demanded sharply.

"I mean just what I said. What do you know about this business?"

"How should I know anything about it?"

"Well, we don't know who you are, nor what you're doing up here, nor what your real profession is. That's why I ask the question."

"I see," said Barnes, after a moment. He grasped the situation and he admitted to himself that Jones had cause for his suspicions. "It has occurred to you that I may be a detective or a secret-service man, isn't that the case? Well, I am neither. Did you know any more about these two men, Mr. Jones, than you know about me?"

"I don't know anything about 'em."

"What was their business?"

"Mr. Roon was lookin' for a place to bring his daughter who has consumption. He didn't want to take her to a regular consumptive community, he said, an' so he was lookin' for a quiet place where she wouldn't be as-

"I think he's going now," she whispered.

sociatin' with lungers all the time. That was his business, Mr. Barnes, an' I guess you'd call it respectable, wouldn't you?"

"Perfectly. But why should he be troubled by my presence here if—"

Miss Thackeray put an end to the discussion in a most effectual manner. "Oh, for the Lord's sake, cut it out! Wait till he's dead, can't you?" she whispered fiercely. "You've got all the time in the world to talk, and he hasn't more than ten minutes left to breathe unless that rube doctor gets here pretty soon. I think he's going now. Keep still, all of you. Is he breathing, Mr. Barnes? That awful cough just now seemed to—"

Her eyes were fixed on the still face. "Why—why, how tightly he holds his head! I can't get it away—he must be alive, Mr. Barnes. Where is that silly doctor?"

Barnes unclasped the rigid fingers of the man called Andrew Paul, and, shaking his head sadly, drew her away from the improvised bier. He and the shivering Mr. Dillingford conducted her to the dining room, where a single kerosene lamp gave out a feeble, rather ghastly light.

"Would you like a little brandy?" inquired Barnes, as she sat down limply in the chair he pulled out for her. "I have a flask upstairs in my—"

"I never touch it," she said. "I'm all right. My legs wobble a little but—"

Sit down Mr. Barnes. I've got something to say to you and I'd better say it now, because it may come in pretty handy for you later on. Don't let those women come in here, Dilly. "This afternoon I walked up in the woods back of the tavern to go over some lines in a new piece we are to do later on—God knows when! I could see the house from where I was sitting. Roon's windows were plainly visible. I saw Roon standing at a window looking toward the cross-roads with a pair of field-glasses. Every once in a while he would turn to Paul, who stood beside him with a notebook, and say something to him. Paul wrote it down. Then he would look again, turning the glasses this way and that. Suddenly my eyes almost popped out of my head. Paul had gone away from the window. He came back and he had a couple of revolvers in his hands. They stood there for a few minutes carefully examining the weapons and reloading them with fresh cartridges. Just as I was about to start down to the house—it was a little after six o'clock, and getting awfully dark and overcast—Roon took up the glasses again. He seemed to be excited and called his companion. Paul grabbed the glasses and looked down the road. They both became very much excited, pointing and gesticulating, and taking turn about with the glasses."

"About six o'clock, you say," said Barnes, greatly interested.

"It was a quarter after six when I got back to the house. I spoke to Mr. Bacon about what I'd seen, and he said he believed they were German spies, up to some kind of mischief along the Canadian border. Then about half an hour later you came to the tavern. I saw Roon sneak out to the head of the stairs and listen to your conversation with Jones when you registered. That gave me an idea. It was you they were watching the road for."

Barnes held up his hand for silence. "Listen," he said in a low voice. "I will tell you who they were looking for. As briefly as possible he recounted his experience with the strange young woman at the cross-roads. "From the beginning I have connected this tragedy with the place called Green Fancy. I'll stake my last penny that they have been hanging around here waiting for the arrival of that young woman. They knew she was coming and they doubtless knew what she was bringing with her. What do you know about Green Fancy?"

He was vastly excited. His active imagination was creating all sorts of possibilities and complications, deceptions and intrigues.

Bacon was the one who answered. "People live up there and since we've been here two or three men visitors have come down from the place to sample our stock of wet goods. I talked with a couple of 'em day before yesterday. They were out for a horseback ride and stopped here for a mug of ale."

"Were they foreigners?" inquired Barnes.

"If you want to call an Irishman a foreigner, I'll have to say one of them was. He had a beautiful brogue. The other was an American, I'm sure. Yesterday they rode past here with a couple of swell-looking women. I saw them turn up the road to Green Fancy."

The arrival of four or five men, who stamped into the already crowded hallway from the porch outside, claimed the attention of the quartette. Among them was the doctor who, they were soon to discover, was also the corner of the county. A very officious deputy sheriff was also in the group.

Mr. Jones called out from the doorway. "Mr. Barnes, you're wanted in there."

"All right," he responded. "The doctor had been working over the prostrate form on the tables. As Barnes entered the room, he looked up and declared that the man was dead."

"This is Mr. Barnes," said Putnam Jones, indicating the tall traveler with a short jerk of his thumb.

"I am from the sheriff's office," said the man who stood beside the doctor. The rest of the crowd evidently had been ordered to stand back from the tables. "Did you ever see this man before?"

"Not until he was carried in here an hour ago."

"What's your business up here, Mr. Barnes?"

"I have no business up here. I just happened to stroll in this evening."

"Well," said the sheriff darkly, "I guess I'll have to ask you to stick around here till we clear this business up. We don't know you an'—"

Well, we can't take any chances. You understand, I reckon."

"I certainly fail to understand, Mr. Sheriff. I know nothing whatever of this affair and I intend to continue on my way tomorrow morning."

"Well, I guess not. You got to stay here till we are satisfied that you don't know anything about this business. That's all."

"And I to consider myself under arrest, sir?"

"I wouldn't go so far as to say that. You just stick around here, that's all I got to say. If you're all right, we'll soon find it out. What's more, if you are all right you'll be willin' to stay. Do you get me?"

"I certainly do. And I can now assure you, Mr. Sheriff, that I'd like nothing better than to stick around here, as you put it. I'd like to help clear this matter up. In the meantime, you may readily find out who I am and why I am here by telegraphing to the mayor of New York city. This document, which experience has taught me to carry for just such an emergency as this, may have some weight with you." He opened his bill folder and drew forth a neatly creased sheet of paper. "Read it, please, and note the date, the signature, the official seal of the New York police department, and also the rather interesting silver print pasted in the lower left hand corner. I think you will agree that it is a good likeness of me. Each year I take the precaution of having myself certified by the police department at home before venturing into unknown and perhaps unfriendly communities."

"Yes," said the sheriff dubiously; "but how do I know it ain't a forgery?"

"You don't know, of course. But in case it shouldn't be a forgery and I am subjected to the indignity of arrest or even detention, you would have a nasty time defending yourself in a civil suit for damages. I shall remain here, as you suggest, but only for the purpose of aiding you in getting to the bottom of this affair."

Standing on Jim Conley's front porch a little after sunrise, Barnes made the following declaration:

"Everything goes to show that these men were up here for one of two reasons. They were either trying to prevent or to enact a crime. The latter is my belief. They were afraid of me. Why? Because they believed I was trailing them and likely to spoil their game. Gentlemen, those fellows were here for the purpose of robbing the place you call Green Fancy."

"What's that?" came a rich, mellow voice from the outskirts of the crowd. A man pushed his way through and confronted Barnes. He was a tall, good-looking fellow of thirty-five, and it was apparent that he had dressed in haste. "My name is O'Dowd, and I am a guest of Mr. Curtis at Green Fancy. Why do you think they meant to rob his place?"

"Well," began Barnes, dryly, "it would seem that his place is the only big in the neighborhood that would bear robbing. My name is Barnes. Of course, Mr. O'Dowd, it is mere speculation on my part."

"But who shot the man?" demanded the Irishman. "He certainly wasn't winged by anyone from our place. Why, Lord love you, sir, there isn't a soul at Green Fancy who could shoot a thier if he saw one. This is Mr. De Soto, also a guest at Green Fancy. He will, I think, bear me out in upsetting your theory."

A second man approached, shaking his head vigorously. He was a thin, pale man with a singularly scholastic face. Quite an unprepossessing, sanguinary person, thought Barnes.

"Mr. Curtis' chauffeur, I think, was, said the killing occurred just above this house," said he, visibly excited. "Green Fancy is at least a mile from here, isn't it? You don't shoot burglars a mile from the place they are planning to rob, do you?"

"Bedad," said O'Dowd, "it beats the devil!"

"I'll admit it's a bit out of reason," said Barnes. "The second man could only have been shot by some one who was lying in wait for him."

"Bedad," said O'Dowd, "it beats the devil. There's something big in this thing, Mr. Barnes—something a long shot bigger than any of us suspects."

"You'll find that it resolves itself into a problem for Washington to solve," said De Soto darkly. "Nothing local about it, take my word for it. These men were up to some international devilment. There'll be a stir in Washington over this, sure as anything."

"What time was it that you heard the shots up at Green Fancy?" ventured Barnes.

"Lord love you," cried O'Dowd, "we didn't hear a sound. Mr. Curtis, who has insomnia the worst way, woke out to see what all the racket was about. The man, it seems, made such a devil of a racket when he came home with the news that the whole house was up in pajamas and pees noirs."

"I think I have a slight acquaintance with the chauffeur," said Barnes. "He gave me the most thrilling motor ride I've ever experienced. Gad, I'll never forget it!"

Barnes, having been forced into this unsolvable combination of mystery and violence, finds himself getting in deeper and deeper.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

Finish every day and be done with it. You have done what you could, some blunders have crept in, forget them as soon as you can. Tomorrow is a new day; you shall begin it well and serenely and with too high a spirit to be cumbered with your old nonsense. — Emerson.

WHAT FOODS GO TOGETHER

We should avoid in our menu planning to serve today a cream soup, tea meat, sweet potatoes, a vegetable with drawn butter sauce and a salad with mayonnaise dressing and ice cream with chocolate sauce—all dishes very high in caloric value. We must not feast one day and starve the next. Dishes hard to digest should be withheld entirely from children, but dishes well liked but difficult of digestion may be served at a meal which also provides for the children, without an entirely different menu. Concentrated foods should be served with something which will serve to dilute them, hence the custom of serving dry crackers with cheese or combined with a white sauce on toast, mixed with ice, macaroni, hominy, bread and milk in various dishes.

Butter, another concentrated food, is used on bread and potatoes. Small portions of food of various kinds can be digested where large ones would cause trouble.

The most important thing for the housewife to see to each day is that her family has well balanced meals, or if a light meal one time, make it up in the next so that the daily average is well kept.

The housewife who plans her meals a week or a month ahead, has the opportunity to give her family the best of balanced meals.

A good rule to remember in serving food is never to give the same dish or flavor twice in the same meal if it is of pronounced flavor even if served in entirely different form, for no one enjoys a tomato salad following a tomato soup and tomato catsup and tomato conserve on the same table. Each food should be cooked to develop its own particular flavor and not be served so smothered in seasoning (however good) that destroys its peculiar charm.

Condiments aid digestion, add flavor and enhance the pleasure of many dishes; however they should be used sparingly and never given to children.

Serving meals in courses helps to enhance the artistic effect, and is often easier than getting the meal all at once. The last course should be like the last word—one that leaves a sweet and pleasant taste in the mouth and a desire to have more.

The woman who studies food combinations and proper serving of them will enjoy a trip to some tea room or hotel to see some new garnishment or new dish which will be her pleasure to repeat for her family.

Talk happiness, the world is sad enough. Without your woes. No path is wholly rough. Look for places that are smooth and clear. And speak to these to rest the weary ear. Of earth, so hurt by one continuous strain. Of human discontent and grief and pain.

A SYMPOSIUM OF SALADS.

A salad is one of the indispensable dishes. In these days a dinner is not complete without some form of salad appropriate to the meal served.

Cheese Jelly Salad.—Mix half a cupful of grated cheese with a cupful of whipped cream, season to taste with salt and pepper and add one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in a cupful of water. Mold in large or individual molds and when the jelly begins to harden cover with grated cheese. Serve with French dressing to which grated cheese has been added.

Benares Salad.—Add two tart apples chopped to two cupfuls of grated coconut, and one-half cupful of celery, two tablespoonsful of chopped onion, one tablespoonful each of chopped parsley and red pepper. Serve with French dressing.

Goldsmith Salad.—To one-half cupful of minced apple add one-fourth of a cupful of minced celery, one-fourth of a cupful of minced olives, hickory nuts and green peppers. Mix with a mayonnaise dressing and serve in pepper of tomato cups.

Head Lettuce with Blackstone Dressing.—Wash and drain the lettuce until free from moisture then serve with four tablespoonsful of mayonnaise dressing, four tablespoonsful of whipped cream, two tablespoonsful of chili sauce, two tablespoonsful each of tomato catsup and vinegar. A spoonful or two of creamed Roquefort cheese may be added for variety.

Spanish Pepper Salad.—Dissolve half a box of gelatin in half a cupful of cold water and add a half cupful of vinegar. Add half a cupful of sugar, the juice of a lemon and a teaspoonful of salt, with one cupful of boiling water. Mix with six canned pimientos, two cupfuls of celery, one cupful of pecans cut fine, then mold in individual molds and serve on lettuce with mayonnaise dressing.

INCREASE WEIGHT AND VITALITY WITH PHOSPHATE

Nothing Like Plain Bitro-Phosphate to Put on Firm, Healthy Flesh and to Increase Strength, Vigor and Nerve Force.

The average person is beginning to realize more and more that the lack of physical strength and nerve exhaustion (frequently evidenced by excessive thinness) are the direct cause not only of the failure to succeed in life's struggle for the necessities of existence, but also for the handicap in one's social aspirations. Compare the thin, sickly, angular frame with

At the seaside too, the plump well-rounded figure is most admired.

The well rounded form which is usually accompanied by the bloom of health and attractiveness.

That millions of people are conscious of this handicap is evident from the continued appearance in newspapers and magazines of many suggestions proposing various remedies in food or medicine or exercises, either of which might or might not be appropriate for a given case.

Science indicates that a healthy nerve system is absolutely essential to a strong, robust body and mind. Weak nerves indicate a gradual decline in the healthy state, leaving scrawny, hollow, a flat chest, bony neck and scrawny arms and

Our bodies need more phosphate than most of them are able to extract from the foods we eat nowadays, and many opinions among scientists and doctors which may be taken into the human system, that so effectively supplies this deficiency.

Bitro-Phosphate is a food element known as bitro-phosphate and sold by good druggists everywhere.

The essential phosphoric food elements in bitro-phosphate, assimilated by the nerve cells should soon produce a pleasing change in nerve energy and hence increased vitality and strength. With the burdens of nervousness, sleeplessness, lack of energy, etc., lifted, normal weight with its attractive fullness and ruddy glow of health replaces the former picture of skin and bones.

CAUTION.—Although Bitro-Phosphate is unexcelled for its effectiveness and attendant disorders, owing to its tendency to increase weight, one should watch the scales while taking it unless it is the desire to put on flesh.

Garage Fire

Flint, Mich., June 17th.

The four automobiles that were in the garage fire Sunday morning were insured in the Citizens Mutual Automobile Insurance Company at Howell.

The adjuster for the company met with the owners of the automobiles and made a satisfactory settlement, making a total cash settlement of $3,249.00. The owners of the cars were very much pleased with the prompt and satisfactory adjustment.

The adjuster for the company said they were able to pay in cash because they had accumulated a surplus during the five seasons and had on hand over $80,000. Automobile owners who take a policy in the Big Mutual know that when a serious loss occurs that the company has the money on hand to pay promptly, and the fact that the company has written over 46,000 policies gives each member the benefit of a very low rate of insurance due to quantity production.

Grow Wheat in Western Canada

One Crop Often Pays for the Land

Western Canada offers the greatest advantages to home seekers. Large profits are assured. You can buy on easy payment terms.

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 per Acre—Land similar to that which through many years has averaged from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of cases are on record where in Western Canada a single crop has paid the cost of land and production. The Government of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta want the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to grain growing and stock raising.

Though Western Canada offers land at such low figures, the high prices of grain, cattle, sheep and hogs will remain.

Loans for the purchase of stock may be had at low interest; there are good shipping facilities; best of markets; free schools; churches; splendid climate; low taxation (none on improvements). For particulars as to location of land for sale, maps, illustrated literature, reduced railway rates, etc., apply to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can.

HALFWAY MEASURES FUTILE IN FIGHTING TUBERCULOSIS IN POULTRY—GET AN AX

Fowl Infected With "T. B." May Appear Healthy Until Disease Has Advanced.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
"T. B." in the flock does not stand for "talented breadwinners." It signifies that the fowl are afflicted with tuberculosis, which means that the flock as a unit must "go west." Halfway measures are futile in fighting tuberculosis, as there is no treatment of any avail against the disease in poultry. The one practical course is to kill off the whole flock with maximum expedition and immediately thereafter to disinfect thoroughly all the houses and runs.

Tuberculosis of fowls is a chronic contagious disease, characterized by the development of nodules called tubercles in various organs of the body, but most frequently in the liver, spleen and intestines. T. B. of fowls is readily communicated to most species of birds and to several species of mammals, but it is almost impossible to communicate the tuberculosis of man and cattle to fowls. Parrots and the smaller caged birds are very susceptible to human tuberculosis, however, and are often affected by it.

T. B. Introduced by Purchase.
Tuberculosis is generally introduced into the poultry yard by fowls purchased from infected flocks, or by eggs of diseased birds that are obtained for hatching. If the disease exists in neighboring flocks, the contagion may be carried by small birds or animals passing from one yard to another. A peculiarity of tuberculosis of birds is that the liver and intestines are nearly always very severely affected, and that as a consequence the bacilli are very numerous in the intestinal contents and are scattered with the droppings everywhere that the fowl go. The introduction of a single diseased bird, therefore, may cause the infection of the greater part of the flock in a few weeks. In the same way when wild birds contract the disease the bacilli are carried and deposited in all the yards which they visit.

The eggs of diseased birds frequently contain the bacilli, as has been proved by the inoculation of material from such eggs into susceptible experimental animals. The young chicks hatched from such infected eggs are diseased when they leave the shell, and of course soon infect the poultry with which they run. Moreover, since the infertile incubated eggs are often fed to chickens, it is evident that even the eggs which do not hatch may introduce the contagion unless they are cooked before feeding. Pigs, cats, rats and mice are especially liable to be infected with fowl tuberculosis from eating the carcasses of birds which have died, to the extent that these animals transmit the contagion to other fowls. Even calves and goats are sometimes found suffering from this form of tuberculosis.

No Early External Evidences.
For the most part there are no external symptoms of T. B. in the flock until the disease has reached an advanced stage of development. Then the birds begin to show a gradual loss of weight, wasting of muscles, paleness of the comb, and toward the end dullness and sleepiness. Very often there is at the same time a tuberculous inflammation of the joints and of the sheaths of tendons, which is revealed by lameness, swelling of the joints and legs, and sometimes by the formation of hard external tumors of considerable size. Occasionally the skin over the swollen joints breaks, the interior of the joint is ulcerated, and a small quantity of pus containing large numbers of tubercle bacilli is discharged. Swellings and bony enlargements of the joints of fowl are invariably suspicious and their nature should always be investigated by killing the bird and examining the liver, spleen and intestines to determine whether these have on their surfaces any whitish or yellowish spots which when cut into prove to be tuberculous masses.

As was previously mentioned prevention by the rapid extermination of the diseased flock is the only effective control when T. B. goes on a rampage among the fowl. If any birds slightly affected are retained the chances are they will be subsequent carriers and distributors of the disease. Hence it is not advisable to keep any fowls that have been exposed to the contagion, no matter how valuable they may be. The birds that have died or are killed, as well as all the acculated manure, sweepings and scrapings of the poultry houses, should be completely destroyed by fire.

So far as known there is no danger of communicating the disease to man by eating the cooked flesh of tuberculous fowls. In most cases, however, the diseased birds are so emaciated and their general health so affected that their flesh is not fit for human consumption. It is better, in all cases, to burn the carcasses of the birds in which tuberculosis nodules are found, and thus avoid all danger of the disease being communicated to either man or animals.

PREVENT SPREAD OF VIRULENT DISEASES

Dead Animals Should Be Buried Deep or Burned.

Left on Surface of Ground Their Odor Soon Invites Scavengers to Congregate and to Bring Infectious Material.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
The carcasses of animals which have succumbed to infectious diseases like anthrax, hog cholera, blackleg, tuberculosis, etc., are charged with myriads of virulent disease germs, and just as long as they remain where scavengers can reach them and portions of them can be carried away promiscuously, they are a dangerous menace over a large territory to all animals which are liable to be attacked by disease germs. Even carcasses of animals which have died from other causes than infectious diseases, unless they are disposed of in a proper way, are a source of danger.

Left on the surface of the ground, their odor soon invites scavengers to congregate and to bring with them the infectious material with which they may have become contaminated by eating carrion elsewhere.

Dead animals on the farm should be buried deep enough to prevent them from being dug up again, or they should be burned. To burn large carcasses like those of dead horses and cattle is difficult and laborious and requires a large quantity of fuel. In most instances it is more economical to bury them. All animals which have died from infectious diseases and are buried should be covered with a heavy layer of lime before the graves are closed.

In the winter, when the ground is frozen, it is more difficult to dig graves than at other seasons of the year, but it is just in cold weather that disease germs remain alive and virulent longest in dead organic matter and that scavengers travel the longest distances, have the best appetites, and are most likely to carry disease germs on and in their bodies. The extra trouble of digging graves in the winter is easily offset by the greater danger it counteracts. Low temperature prevents the multiplication of disease germs, but many kinds of disease germs are not killed or deprived of their pernicious possibilities by exposure to a lower temperature than the lowest reached during an icy arctic winter.

Everywhere farmers not only should attend to the proper and safe disposal of the bodies of their own animals which unfortunately die, but they should insist on the proper disposal of the bodies of all animals which die anywhere in the regions in which their farms are located.

POULTRY NOTES

Alfalfa, clover, cabbage and turnips make good green feed.

Do not overlook the fact that the chicks must have shade.

Bran and shorts with milk or beef scrap furnish the protein.

If given different feeds, the hen will balance her own ration.

Do not keep little chicks in a very dusty place, and if it is so dry as to be dusty, a little sprinkling will make them more healthful.

Outstanding Dogs of the Country
To Be Bench at State Fair Show

"ATTENTION TITO", CHAMPION POMERANIAN, OWNED BY MRS. FRANK J. NAVIN, DETROIT.

It is seldom that a dog, never before shown in a ring, can go from puppies or novice classes to winners, but this is just what this little black fellow did. You have before you a fine specimen of the toy breed called Pomeranians. This particular dog's name is "Attention Tito" and the owner is Mrs. Frank J. Navin, of Detroit, whose husband is the owner of the Detroit Tigers.

Mrs. Navin bought "Attention Tito" last winter and exhibited him for the first time at the Detroit Kennel Club's show last March. Tito won all his classes and topped off these honors by getting winners. Later on he was declared best Pomeranian in the show and on the final night of the show he got the highest honor a toy can win being awarded the dark green ribbon declaring him best toy of any breed.

"Attention Tito" will be entered in the licensed show which will be held in connection with the Michigan State Fair. The dogs will be on exhibition and pass before the judges on Aug. 30 and 31 and Sept. 1. Secretary Manager G. W. Dickinson, who is putting on the affair, will devote the entire upper floor of the poultry building to the dogs. His show last year was the biggest given in the country during the summer and fall months and this year's affair should be much bigger. Toy breeds, which will be judged by Eano Meyer, prominent expert of Cincinnati, O., will carry a big entry list.

Dark Ways - Darkness.

Night is proverbially the time for criminal activity, and Spaniards say: "The false coin passes at night." Too often successful men ignore old friends, or, as the Spaniards say: "With the glories they forget the memorias." Shrewdness has worked off undesirable articles. Spain tells that "The saddle and mane make the horse sell." Waste labor is "To carry iron to Vizcaya." A man born to good fortune is "the son of a white hen."

Increasing the Penalty.

"I'd have been tempted to protest against that taxicab fare." "It was cheaper to pay. The driver would have kept the counting machine running all the time we were arguing."

"Mother Ann."

"Mother Ann" was a friendly nickname given to a woman named Ann Lee, an English woman, who came to the United States during the revolutionary period and founded the sect called Shakers. She was illiterate, but a good woman, a religious enthusiast, and popular in her day.
