SIXTH CHAUTAUQUA GIVES SATISFACTION

NORTHVILLE'S ANNUAL BIG SUMMER TENT MEETING. PRO NOUNCED THE "BEST EVER."

Next Season's Chautauqua Is Assured By Those Who Subscribed For Tickets.

The general opinion seems to be that, taken as a whole, Northville's sixth successive Chautauqua, which closed with Monday night's session, was the best of all. There was not a poor number on the entire program, while even the weather was unusually favorable, as instead of the stifling heat that has prevailed almost every time previously, the temperature was agreeably cool except on the first afternoon.

The attractions were, without exception, high class in every respect. It would be merely a matter of personal opinion to specify, as there were entertainments to please people of all the varying tastes that go to make up a community, and what one person would regard as the star feature of the ten programs, might not be so termed by another. Anyway, that it was a splendid Chautauqua is the universal verdict, and that view was probably responsible for the fact that the remaining 150 of the 400 season tickets demanded by the local committee before signing a contract for next year, were readily pledged Monday night, with some to spare for good measure. This adds away with the usual deficit which comes out of the pockets of the guarantors who have sometimes had to put up a considerable amount to cover it. This has been a manifest injustice, which should not have been permitted by the Northville public. Monday night, however, on a suggestion from Rev. E. V. Belles, a collection was taken which covered about half of this year's deficit, so the loss will not all have to be borne by the guarantors this time. Something that should be specially mentioned, however, is the Junior Chautauqua. The pretty little play given by the girls at the closing meeting was wonderfully well done and was really a remarkable achievement for the children, with so short a time for preparation. The Boy Scouts were also given a short time for demonstrating their work. The athletic stunts for the boys also resulted in the winning of honors for a number of youngsters during the week.

The boys who won in the athletic contests were, in the order named: First class, Harold Shafer, Harland Wilcox, Raymond Elliott, second class Howard Cof, Jack Blackburn, Wayne VanDyne.

A number of Northville ladies very kindly contributed flowers from their gardens for the platform and the handsome decorations elicited much praise from all who came to take part in the program.

NORTHVILLE SCHOOLS OPEN SEPTEMBER 2

When the Northville schools open on Tuesday, September 2 next, it will be with the best of prospects for a most successful and profitable year. A splendid corps of teachers has been engaged, including Supt. Bowen and several of his former assistants. The new members of the faculty come with the highest endorsement.

The buildings and equipments are being put in the best possible shape and no public schools in the state can have a better outlook for the school year of 1919-20.

The list of teachers and their positions is as follows:
D. C. Bowen, Superintendent
C. V. Millard, Principal
Della McLachlan, Science.
Gertrude Seaton, Latin and French.
Ida Barley, English and Physical Training.
Isabel Walters, Mathematics.
Ruth Toyne, History and English.
Mary McCully, Commercial.
Ruth Green, Music and Drawing.
Leonard Packard, Grade 6.
Myrtle Munro, Grade 5.
Lucille Hopkins, Grade 4.
Ruth Clark, Grade 3.
Ruth Rutter, Grade 2.
Elsie Reese, Grade 1.
Hazel Albarn, Kindergarten.

FITZGERALD LEAVES NORTHVILLE.

W. J. Fitzgerald, for several years past the Edison Co's efficient and popular Division Superintendent for the district of which Northville is headquarters, has been appointed to the position of manager for the company at Monroe. He is to be succeeded here by Robert Brown, who has been associated with the Detroit offices for some time. Mr. Fitzgerald has made many friends for himself and the company since he has been in Northville and the departure of both himself and his wife is much regretted. The district includes Howell, Brighton, South Lyon, New Hudson, Plymouth, Redford, Farmington and Greenfield.

STARKWEATHER BARN BURNED MONDAY

Two large grain and hay barns on the E. M. Starkweather stock farm were completely wiped out of existence Monday morning, by fire, which started, it is supposed, from a hot box on a grain superior in operation for the annual thrashing. The first intimation of the danger came when blazing straw was thrown into the barn from the carrier and with no facilities for fire fighting the interior was quickly a mass of flames. Only the direction of the wind saved the residence and the milk station, probably, from also going up in smoke. An alarm was sounded from the village fire gong and scores of men hurried to the scene of the conflagration as fast as possible under present road conditions, to give all the assistance they could. The loss, which included 250 bushels of grain, two big stacks of straw and some tools, is estimated at about $10,000, but is nearly covered by insurance. The separator, which was also burned, was the property of Joe Stire.

WOMAN'S CLUB ANNUAL PICNIC.

The date of the annual picnic of the Northville Woman's club has been fixed for next Friday afternoon, August 22, and it is again to be held at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Yerkes, an ideal place for such a gathering. Each member is reminded to bring sufficient dishes to serve her own party. The picnic, which is usually held in June, has been delayed for various reasons this year. The new club calendars will be ready for distribution that day.

The window displays made at Stanley's Drug Store the Rexall Store are especially attractive.

Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Miller and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Blackburn took a trip to Wallaceburg, Ont., Tuesday, and this Friday the above mentioned persons, together with Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Murphy, are enjoying an excursion to Cedar Point.

Saved Considerable Money

Writes Leonard Warehose Manager.

James Joy Miller, manager for Leonard's, writes that they are using Dayton Airless Tires since last January on piano trucks and giving them hard service every day throughout the winter, and so far this summer are entirely satisfied; has no more troubles of any kind with his tires and, best of all, his men are now making regular trips on time and that he is saving considerable money.

He also writes that when he needs tires again he will order the Dayton Airless.

We have been selling these tires and advising the public to use them for nearly one year and the above testimonial is only one of a hundred we can get; these tires do all we say they will—they are puncture proof, ride easy, give longer service, will not injure the car and are practical in every sense. Pleasure car owners who have them swear by them.

Dayton Airless Tires ease your mind and ease your pocketbook, as they last for a longer period of time. Nothing can happen but wear.

The H. & C. Improved Rubbish BURNER

The H. & C. Rubbish Burner is the safest—sparks cannot fly around, because the burner, which is made of the highest grade sheet steel, is perforated sufficiently to afford a good draft, but confines the fire; because of the hinged cover there's not a possible chance of leaving the burner uncovered.

Most durable and efficient; it is corrugated, spot-welded and thoroughly stiffened and braced (not fastened together with screws).

The bottom or lower grate sets up several inches from the ground, thus affording a good draft; it is well supported and spot-welded to sides. Notice that this burner rests securely on the ground, whether soft or uneven it doesn't matter—it has no legs to become bent, loose or sink into the ground and possibly topple the burner over.

Strong, liberal steel handles securely fastened to the sides are provided the strong cover hinge is spot-welded to cover and side.

Northville State Savings Bank

What 4% Means

THE NORTHVILLE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF NORTHVILLE pays 4% interest, compounded twice a year. What does 4% compounded interest mean? It means that if the interest is allowed to remain on deposit with the principal sum, interest will be paid on interest—that is, $1.00 placed at 4% compound interest, will double itself in a little less than eighteen years through the interest additions.

To secure the best results it is necessary to set aside weekly or monthly a fixed sum from your income, and deposit it to your account. The tables here given show what may be accomplished by this method. The interest earnings equal from 20 to 50% of the money deposited during the periods shown. That is, if monthly deposits of $5 are made for twenty years, the total sum would be $1,200. With 4% compound interest, it will amount to $1,833.50; the earnings added equaling $633.50, or 52% of the money actually saved.

PLAN FOR FIGHT ON CANE BORER

Parasites From Tropical Countries Offer Best Means of Destroying Pests.

CONFINED TO THREE REGIONS

Insects Reduce Yield of Sugar in Varying Measure, Averaging About 20 Per Cent—Feed on Other Plants Than Sugar Cane.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
Importation of parasites from Cuba and other tropical countries offers the most hopeful method of ridding the sugar-cane growing region of the United States of the sugar-cane moth borer, or at least of keeping it under control and reducing the injury from it.

Damage in Three Regions.

The sugar-cane moth borer in the United States is confined to three isolated regions, closely conforming to the areas of large commercial plantings of sugar cane—southern Louisiana, southern Florida, and the extreme southern tip of Texas. Throughout those regions it reduces the yield of sugar in varying measure, averaging, perhaps, about 20 per cent. The chief damage results from the larva tunneling lengthwise through the mature cane, not killing it, but injuring it severely, retarding its growth, and subjecting it to the fungous disease known as "red rot." A measure of damage follows larval attacks upon very young plants, resulting in what is known as "dead hearts."

The moth borer feeds on a number of plants other than sugar cane, rendering usual methods of control extraordinarily difficult and, for the most part, not efficacious. Experiments in poisoning, attraction to light traps, and the like have not proved effective. Five definite recommendations are made, however, other than the introduction of parasites.

How to Fight Pests.

Scraps of cane left about the factory and derricks after the grinding season should be destroyed, probably by burning, and cars in which cane is shipped should be kept free of such scraps. Seed cane should be planted in the fall and kept as deeply covered as practicable. Cane for shipment beyond the infested area should be selected so as to obtain it free from borers or, if this is impracticable, it should be soaked for at least an hour in Bordeaux mixture or a solution of nicotine sulphate previous to shipment. The "trash," "leaves," or "shucks" left on the fields after cutting should not be burned but should be lightly covered with earth in the fall and plowed out in the spring. The cutting out of "dead hearts" and dead plants is said to be theoretically sound practice and, where an abundance of cheap labor is obtainable, might be recommended.

It is pointed out that the introduction of parasites has proved effective in Hawaii, and that experiments in the United States have given promising results. If the introduction of beneficial parasites can be undertaken it should be done on a large scale, and it would be advisable to station two men in Cuba to collect the parasites, and one in Louisiana to receive and ultimately to release them on the plantations.

KILL SQUIRREL-TAIL GRASS

Weed Can Be Eradicated by Preventing It From Producing Seed—It Is Harmful to Stock.

Squirrel-tail grass or wild barley is a bad weed. It helps spread the rust of wheat and oats which has been found on it every year for 30 years in Iowa, and it is injurious to stock, and especially horses. The awns pierce the mucous membrane of the mouth causing irritation and finally ulceration of the jawbones and teeth. The wild barley can be exterminated by keeping it from producing seed. This is simple enough, but it is often difficult to do on land that cannot be plowed or mowed.—North Dakota Agricultural College.

WORST WEED ENEMY OF ALFALFA PLANT

Care Should Be Taken to Prevent Introduction of Dodder.

Grazing Close With Sheep Has Been Recommended as Effective Control Against Noxious Plant—Burn Off Affected Parts.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dodder is considered by many as one of the worst weed enemies of alfalfa. The dodder seeds germinate in the ground and the young plants soon attach themselves to the alfalfa seedlings. As soon as the threadlike stem of dodder is attached firmly to the alfalfa plant the stem connecting it with the ground withers away. Thereafter the dodder lives entirely on the alfalfa. Special care should be exercised to avoid introducing it in the alfalfa seed at planting time.

Grazing close with sheep has been recommended as an effective control against dodder. In the East, however, where dodder is most abundant, sheep are not plentiful, and it is not possible for every alfalfa grower to use the grazing plan. Besides, grazing an alfalfa field too closely with sheep often results in permanent injury to the stand. Some authorities recommend the complete removal of the affected alfalfa plants where the dodder appears only in isolated spots through the field. This practice, however, is only successful in the very early stages of the pest and before it has gained much foothold.

A rapid and efficacious method of stamping out dodder, recommended by specialists of the United States Department of Agriculture, is to watch the alfalfa fields for the initial evidences of dodder, and as soon as signs of the pest appear to sprinkle the infected spots with kerosene, apply the match, and burn off the affected areas. This practice kills out the dodder and, properly applied, does not injure the alfalfa permanently. In burning the doddered portions of the field a blowtorch is useful, but where such a device is not available some readily inflammable material, such as waste or old rags wrapped with wire on the end of a stick and soaked in kerosene, will serve.

CONVERT SUMAC INTO MONEY

Plant May Be Gathered and Sold Profitably to Tanners and Dye Manufacturers.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Sumac, which grows abundantly in certain sections of the United States, may be gathered and sold profitably to tanners and dye manufacturers, say the specialists of the bureau of chemistry, United States department of agriculture. The price of sumac has increased in recent years, because of the decrease in importations of this plant from Sicily. The American sumac, if properly gathered and cured, is equal to the imported article.

In certain sections of Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia good wages can be made, the department of agriculture says, by gathering and selling sumac during July, August and September. Arrangements for the sale of the sumac should be made before it is gathered.

Department Bulletin No. 706 which gives useful information regarding curing and sale of sumac, can be had upon application to the United States department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

PUREBRED FOWL PREFERRED

Given Same Care and Feed They Will Make Better Profit Than Mongrels Account Uniformity.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Purebred poultry means uniformity of products. Uniformity of products means increased profits if they are properly marketed. Given the same care and feed, purebred fowls will make a better profit than mongrels.

INJURIOUS WORK OF CROWS

Rob Nests of Many Small Birds Which Are Helpful to Farmer in Destroying Insects.

Most of the small birds are helpful to the farmer in destroying insects and every protection should be afforded them. They have much to contend with, one of their worst enemies being the crow, which robs so many of the nests during the hatching season.

FEDERAL SUPERVISION OF MEAT INDUSTRY IS URGED BY DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Sheep in the Chill Room of a Large Packing Plant Which Have Been Inspected and Passed as Good Quality Mutton.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

With meat prices to the consumer so high that he is denying himself, and with the prices for live stock, especially beef and lambs, so low to the producer, that he is actually losing money, the nation is confronted with a grave problem which requires solution if we are not to suffer a decline in the live stock industry.

It is an anomalous situation. The department has endeavored to inform itself on the subject, and after conference with senators and members of the house who represent live stock producing regions and who also feel deep concern for the welfare of consumers, deems it important to give to the public certain outstanding facts, which may be summarized as follows:

There is no longer need for meat conservation. The supply is plentiful, and patriotic citizens may freely disregard the meat-saving placards which are still displayed at many eating places.

Europe Needs Pork. Europe needs our surplus pork, but is flung its beef requirements by importations from South America and Australia. Prices of beef cattle have fallen sharply since March 1 on account of the stoppage of exports for army use, and a slack demand for beef at home, due to the continuation of beef conservation under the mistaken idea that such conservation is still necessary to feed the people of Europe. Beef producers and lamb producers who sell their products at this time are confronted with the danger of heavy financial losses which tend to restrict production and cause a serious shortage in future.

The United States will never have a satisfactory and permanent solution of the problem until the manufacture, sale and distribution of meat products are officially supervised by authorized agents of the government, working in co-operation with state and municipal authorities, whose only aim is to serve the public at large and not any particular class. When the federal government is enabled by law to maintain a just supervision over the meat producing industry that will prevent unfair dealings, speculation and profiteering, by furnishing the public from an unimpeachable source all the facts with regard to the industry and when the states and municipalities are enabled by law to exercise similar supervision over intrastate and local business, then only can we expect to have fair and stable markets in which producer and consumer alike will have a square deal.

Beef Industry Crisis.

Some of the particulars of the situation are as follows:

The beef industry in the United States faces a most serious crisis. For a decade before the outbreak of war in Europe farmers and ranchmen had been urged to increase beef cattle production because the industry was not keeping pace with the growth of population. The lowest ebb in production was reached in the fiscal year ended June 30, 1914, when we practically ceased to have fresh dressed beef for export, but began to import it from the southern hemisphere. The campaign for increased production began to bear fruit with the outbreak of the war and beef again gained volume in our exports. Prices rose and farmers were encouraged to expand their beef-making operations. With the entrance of the United States into the war a vigorous successful effort was made to increase the supply of meat for our army, especially beef, by civilian self-denial. Hotels and restaurants, at the request of the government, reduced the size of their beef portions and regularly left beef off their menus. Private families by thousands did likewise. Farmers and ranchmen exerted themselves to the utmost at great risk in order that our soldiers and sailors could have the best food that skill and loving care could produce. The result is history. From an export of beef and beef products of 151,000 pounds in 1914, we exported 590,000,000 pounds of beef and beef products in 1918—almost equaling the great surplus of 1961, when our population was 35,000,000 people less than now. The exports of 1918 were triple the three-year pre-war average.

Europe Does Not Need Beef.

The war is over. In a little while the presence of American soldiers in Europe will be a memory of noble sacrifices. We must not forget that the principal use for the beef we shipped over seas in such quantity was for the men in uniform. Europe short of food though it is, does not need beef from the United States so much as it needs our pork. The stocks of cattle in the most of Europe have not suffered seriously in numbers during the war. Indeed, outside the areas actually overrun by the contending armies, cattle stocks have fairly held their own and, in some cases even increased. Stocks of hogs and sheep have suffered much more severely than have cattle. It is also well known that Europe turned to South America and Australia for beef and lamb as soon as shipping conditions permitted. England and Italy are now buying in those markets. The United States, however, is the only large pork surplus nation, and Europe, suffering for fats with her stocks of swine greatly reduced, can consume our pork surplus readily. The beef and lamb now awaiting market on our farms and ranges must, therefore, find its outlet not overseas but at home.

Prices Compared.

It is important to present the facts concerning the prices for live stock and the prices for meat wholesale and retail. The following comparison exhibits the decline in the prices of cattle on foot:

Prices of Medium and Good Beef Steers at Chicago.
(CENTS PER POUND)
March 1, 1919	13.50-15.50
July 1, 1919	12.00-14.00
Decline	1.50-1.50
Mean per cent decline	14 per cent.

Prices of Choice and Prime Beef Steers on Foot at Chicago.
(CENTS PER POUND)
March 1, 1919	18.50-20.25
July 1, 1919	14.50-15.50
Decline	4.00-4.75
Mean per cent decline	22 per cent.

The alleged reason for this situation is the stoppage of export for army use abroad and the failure of civilian beef consumption to resume its normal status. The hotel and high-class family trade are not consuming the quantities of choice beef which they used before the war, and the families of moderate income are eating only cheaper cuts, the price of which must compensate in part for that of the cuts for which there is a smaller demand. The fact is evident that many persons who desire to eat more meat, especially beef and lamb, are denying themselves.

No Need for Conservation. People do not realize that the necessity for conservation of foods, especially meat, no longer exists, except as a matter of reasonable economy and prevention of sinful waste. We have in prospect the greatest wheat crop in our history; we had in 1918, by far the largest production of pork we ever had, as well as a great increase in our beef, lamb and dairy production. Yet one sees everywhere in hotels, restaurants, and dining cars the "Save Food" signs, which were such a vital influence in the successful prosecution of the food campaign and incidentally, the winning of the war. These "Save Food" signs should now be disregarded. Consumers are unconsciously working harm to themselves and to live stock producers by now restricting their consumption of meat.

This situation is a real menace to the farmer and to the consuming public as well. Many cattle raised in response to the demand for meat production for the army are now maturing, and if marketed on a falling market will cause heavy loss to the producers, with the result that declining production may be expected in the future. Stockmen do not deserve to be penalized for their patriotism, but should be supported by the consuming public in an effort to restore consumption to the normal without delay.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an "adhesive" chain system, the remedy is recommended to those who have been benefited. A prominent druggist says: "Take for example, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism. You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

Nothing to Show for It. Mr. Jones returned home the other evening in fine spirits. "My dear," said he to his wife, "this afternoon I closed the deal for the new house. I had the title examined and found it perfectly clear. The examination cost me a hundred dollars, but—" "Now, isn't that a perfect shame!" exclaimed his young wife. "All that money wasted!"—Cartoons Magazine.

Grow Wheat in Western Canada One Crop Often Pays for the Land

Western Canada offers the greatest advantage to home seekers. Large profits are assured. You can buy on easy payment terms.

Fertile Land at $15 to $30 per Acre—land similar to that which through many years has averaged from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre. Hundreds of cases are on record where in Western Canada a single crop has paid the cost of land and production. The Government of the Dominion and Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta want the farmer to prosper, and extend every possible encouragement and help to Grain Growing and Stock Raising.

Though Western Canada offers land at low figures, the high prices of grain, cattle, sheep and hogs will remain.

Loans for the purchase of stock may be had at low interest; there are good shipping facilities; best of markets; free schools; churches; splendid climate; low taxation (none on improvements). For particulars as to location of lands for sale, maps, illustrated literature, reduced railway rates, etc., apply to Dept. of Immigration, Ottawa, Can., or

"Next Stop, the Azores"

Ponta Delgada, With NC-4 in Harbor.

AIRMEN are preparing to make the Azores islands the aerial junction of the future. They predict that this garden spot of the Atlantic, with its mild climate and other health giving qualities, will become the stopover for all overseas travel by airplane and dirigible. They point out that the exploit of the United States navy in effecting a crossing has virtually put the islands on the map, as far as the general public is concerned; that for many years problems of construction will limit the overseas route, to the Azores, where fuel and other supplies may be replenished, says the New York Tribune.

Rising to a height of more than 7,000 feet—as in the case of Pico—and at the lowest 350 feet above sea level, as the island of Corvo, the islands form an oasis in a desert of water and mist and heavy banks of clouds—clouds that rise off the water in the morning and blot out everything from view, narrowing the horizon to a few feet for the anxious aerial pilot and his navigator.

Already navigators are at work on instruments to eliminate these difficulties. They point on the Azores with all of its mists and clouds to furnish them with correct weather reports, radio stations and rescue ships in case of accident to the planes.

Pleasant Place for Stopover.

And a stopover at the Azores will not be in the nature of a hardship to overseas passengers. What would a tourist find, for example, if his plane dropped him at Ponta Delgada, the capital of St. Michael's? On approaching the island, he would find a great cloud of dense, gray mist resting on the horizon. Nearer it becomes a reddish brown dotted with moldy green.

Veering to the southeast toward Ponta Delgada he would see the city first as a formal white line, or, if the gaze could pierce the cloud, it would be a broken line extending back from the sea wall with a series of white spots, small conical hills of bright green and stiff white houses edged with black trimmings.

The white lines would become walls the next instant, disclosing orange gardens, and the passenger would drop into a little harbor cluttered with tramp sailing ships of a half-dozen nations. The harbor is a busy one, far superior in commercial aspect to the town itself, which has been maintained in all its primitive state by the early Portuguese settlers. The admixture of Moorish and Flemish has not served to quicken the pace of the community, nor that of any other in the island groups, for that matter.

The clouds are most dense in the morning. Toward noon the humidity is a source of discomfort if one is in the city, but not so on the mountain slopes.

The thermometer has never been known to go below 48 degrees in January, the mid-winter month, and it never has risen above 80. The average is 72 degrees the year round.

Weather Is Always Mild.

Some of the finest homes in the world have been built there by wealthy and often titled continentals, principally Portuguese. In the farming districts (and there are large farms among the various islands) many of the natives wear costumes entirely red—short jackets, vests and knee breeches, with gaiters buttoned over the feet, which are often bare. When anything at all is worn on the soles it usually consists of leather sandals.

These people are of retiring disposition, rarely visiting the communities for fear that some one will laugh at them and their dress. In the towns, however, German, English, Portuguese and American commercial visitors have introduced modern modes of dress and influenced social and business life.

The natives do not overwork, unless in caring for the many travelers who come over the sea in search of the health they always find, either climbing the volcanic slopes or bathing in the warm baths of Furnas.

As for scenery, where will one find pine and elm trees growing in the same neighborhood with oranges, bananas, citrons and pomegranates? Long known only as the little islands where there are no snakes, the Azores are believed to have a destiny as replete with adventure as they are full of volcanic crevices and craters, all extinct, but alive with possibilities.

VICTIM OF TURKS' RAPACITY

Dead City of Farmagusta, on Island of Cyprus, a Monument to Their Savagery and Hate.

Farmagusta, "the place of the goddess," is in a desolate corner of the far-famed island of Cyprus. One look at the wrecked city shows plainly that the goddess has forsaken her altars. It looks as though a sandstorm had struck the place and buried its glory beneath a dune, from which rise the remains of churches, towers and a cathedral.

It was not, however, the sands of the tropics that laid the ancient metropolis low. The Turks, wrathful at this city of 300 churches, attacked it in a siege which might have rivaled the lengthy Trojan episode had not hunger overcome the city's defenders. The pillaging of the conquerors completed the ruin wrought by battering rams, fire and stones.

Earthquakes followed and settled the shattered stones further into the sand. But through the city's days of destruction, even today, the outer walls and bastions stand firm. The harbor stronghold of Farmagusta would be a formidable obstacle to attack even in this day of 50-mile guns and scientific artillery fire.

In one corner of the wall stands a tower said to have been the scene of Desdemona's death at the hands of Othello.

Aside from the strong walls there are few bits of intact architecture among the debris. An occasional palm tree growing up through the ruins adds to the effect of abandonment. A few Turks hold the city against time, the only enemy left to it.

Chihuahua Is Smallest.

The smallest of all recognized breeds of dogs is the Chihuahua, which is also one of the most intelligent of all the canine family. This breed is a product of Mexico and is named after a northern country where there are thousands of these little dogs running wild and multiplying each year. It seems a remarkable thing that in spite of the fact that they have never had any dog shows in Mexico, one only has to visit that country and try to purchase a really good, typical little Chihuahua from a native to realize that the Mexicans know the worth of this dog of his own country. How these dogs were bred, probably never will be known. Some authorities have intimated that they were bred some generations back from large squirrels, and this view is borne out by the fact that at one time these dogs ran wild in the woods and that the Chihuahua is nearly as proficient in running up trees as the squirrel.

Personal Influence.

To influence others one must have a hearty fellow feeling for them, be willing to extend a helping hand as occasion demands, to cheer, to comfort, to console. Which means that imagination also counts for much in the exercising of personal influence. The unimaginative can never be genuinely sympathetic. Sincerity, common sense, forcefulness, courage, self-confidence, decision, sympathy, keenness of imagination—these above ought else are the qualities that need to be cultivated by all who would draw on the aid of personal influence in pressing forward to the goal of success.

GATEWAY THAT COSTS LITTLE

Entrance Constructed of Plain Lumber in Standard Dimension Always Easy to Procure.

The gateway here shown was very economically constructed by using lumber supplied in standard dimensions, reports Popular Mechanics Magazine. The uprights are 4 by 4 inches; the lower crosspieces and fence rails, 2 by 4 inches, and the fence spindles and upper crosspieces of the gate, 2 by 2 inches, as are also the short horizontal strips which extend at right angles between the crosspieces, to support vines over the archway. The arches are made of basswood, which is easily bent into shape after being soaked overnight in water. The structure was

By Using Cheap Lumber, an Ornamental Gateway Is Erected at the Entrance to an Undeveloped Park at Trifling Cost.

Painted white, with the exception of the fence spindles, which were given a brown tone; but the color scheme in such a case depends on the surroundings. At very slight expense a gateway of this kind greatly improves the entrance to a farm, a small park, or even a private residence. The example shown stands at the side entrance to a large park, to serve until the development of the neighborhood will make possible something of a more substantial nature.

BETTER THAN WOODEN FENCE

Wall Constructed of Loose Stones Has Many Points of Superiority—Harmonizes With Nature.

The New England stone wall, as a feature in landscape scenery, is sometimes spoken of as a deformity; yet it cannot be denied that the same lines of wooden fence would mar the beauty of our prospect in a greater degree. On account of the loose manner in which the stones are laid one upon another, as well as the character of the materials, this wall harmonizes with the rude aspects of nature better than any kind of masonry. It seems to be less of a blemish than a trimmed hedge or any other kind of fence, unless in ornamental grounds. In wild pastures and lands devoted to rustic labor, the stone wall is the most picturesque boundary mark that has yet been invented. A trimmed hedge in such places would present to the eye an intolerable formality. One of the charms of the loose stone wall is the manifest ease with which it may be overleaped. It menaces no infringement of our liberties. When we look abroad upon the face of a country subdivided only by long lines of loose stones, and overgrown with vines and shrubbery, we feel no sense of constraint. Fences are deformities of prospect which we are obliged to use and tolerate. But the loose stone wall only is expressive of the freedom which is grateful to the traveler and the rambling—Wilson Flagg.

Best to Build for Oneself.

The advice to the citizen to build his own home, if possible, is good.

When a man builds for himself and his family he knows precisely what he gets, and he gets the kind of home he likes. It is better suited to the needs of himself and his family than is one that has been constructed for some other family. The cost of such construction may seem high, but good judges of values believe that an investment of this kind, made carefully and wisely, is the soundest and most satisfactory in the long run.

Roadside Fruit Trees.

The genius of the roadside fruit or nut tree is the hospitality which it symbolizes, and the spirit of neighborly co-operation. It is an established institution in parts of Europe, as in France, Italy and Germany. It is a practice worth thinking about. Both esthetic and utilitarian purposes would be served by general adoption of the rule in communities sufficiently organized to give necessary care to the trees once they have been planted.

Big Production of Fats.

The production of animal fats, exclusive of butterfat, equal to but 70 per cent of the vegetable oil output of the United States in 1912, rose in 1917 to nearly 80 per cent. Including butter, in 1912 the quantity of animal fats was approximately twice as great as that of vegetable oils, while in 1917 the production of the two classes of fats and oils was nearly the same.

It is a great pity that we must experiment with a score of follies, most of them hoary with age, before we can arrive at a point of wisdom.—Sir Richard Cooke.

A SUMMER COLD

A cold in the summer time, as everybody knows, is the hardest kind of a cold to get rid of. The best and quickest way is to go to bed and stay there if you can, with a bottle of "Boschee's Syrup" handy to insure a good night's rest, free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boschee's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and efficient remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. Keep it handy.—Adv.

Wrong Place to Hurry.

Bob Bailey, statehouse elevator operator, was "chaperoning" his elevator as usual, one morning, when in dashed a dashing stenographer, who cried out: "Hurry, Bob. Hurry up. I'm forty-five minutes late. You're so slow." Bob operated the elevator leisurely, as usual, but finally reached the desired floor. The D. S. ran to her room and Bob turned to a bystander and said:

"She lost forty-five minutes making up this morning, and gets mad at me because I can't make it up for her in a seventeen seconds trip on the elevator."—Indianapolis News.

JUDD A. RICHARDSON MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

PROMINENT LIFELONG RESIDENT OF NOVI KILLED AT DEARBORN WEDNESDAY BY COLLISION WITH ELECTRIC CAR.

The people of Novi and all the surrounding section received one of the severest shocks of their lives Wednesday, when news came that Judd A. Richardson had met a sudden and tragic death. Mr. Richardson's entire life had been spent in Novi township and village, and of the family, which for two generations has been one of the most highly esteemed of this section, but one of the immediate members is left, the youngest son Bert, whose business life took him away from Novi some years ago. Mr. Richardson's wife died suddenly a little over two years ago, their only daughter some years before and his parents have also passed away within quite recent years so that, as a family, the Richardsons are now but a memory in Novi. Besides the brother, Bert, a nephew, Herbert Richardson of Detroit son of an older brother are the only living relatives nearer than cousins. The tragedy occurred at Dearborn Wednesday evening, when Mr. Richardson, who was returning from Detroit, is said to have driven upon the interurban tracks directly in front of the second car of a two section train, just after the first car had passed. He was instantly killed and his Dodge touring car wrecked.

Mr. Richardson who was in his later fifties, leaves the enviable record of an honorable, industrious, temperate life, and a wide circle of friends who will long cherish his memory. He had been a member of the Novi Baptist church since his youth.

ABOUT OUR NEIGHBORS.

Interesting items from our exchanges—gathered with pencil, paste pot and scissors.

There will be a big Masonic picnic at Lake Orion on August 20th. Ypsilanti is right up to the times with a new public market.

The Short Slup horse races are scheduled to start at Mt. Clemens August 25.

Holly Masons are discussing plans for the building of a new temple. Pontiac's Masonic fraternity is to erect a $250,000 temple on a recently acquired $25,000 building site.

Rev. Henry Edwards from Little Rock, Ark., as the new pastor of the Baptist church at Plymouth.

Pontiac, also has a vice crusade under way, and several arrests have been made, with more in prospect.

The improvements on the Grand River road west of New Hudson are approaching completion—in some places, at least.

Holly's Chautauqua dates are set for Sept. 3 to 7, with the same attractions that our village enjoyed part of last week and this.

A sweet young thing from Detroit was heard to remark that the sunsets in Orion were beautiful for so small a town—Orion Review.

Two of Orion's principal streets are being graded preparatory to paving. It is expected that between 35 and 40 men will be employed.

Albert Drennan, a 20-year old Detroit boy was drowned at Lake Orion last Thursday. All efforts to find the body have failed, thus far.

Leslie Dunlap of Shelby the father of Fred Dunlap of Rochester celebrated his 102nd birthday last week by assisting in drawing a hay from the fields.

Plymouth is planning to remodel the band stand in Kellogg Park to admit the construction of a public convenience station and also contemplates an addition to the village hall to accommodate the fire apparatus.

The first Wayne County Farm Bureau picnic is dated for Saturday, August 23, to be held at the Avondale stock farm on Michigan Avenue, east of Wayne village. The program begins at 9:30 a. m. with a tractor demonstration in a twenty-acre field, with nine different makes of machines participating. Then there are to be sports and games of all kinds, including base ball, and in the afternoon addresses on farm topics by various able speakers. Also exhibits are to be made by the M. A. C., and the Sand Hill Poultry club. A general invitation is extended to the farmers of the county, and it is expected the affair will be a big success in all respects.

NORTHVILLE TAKES FIRST GAME OF HOWELL SERIES.

The first game of the series for $200 between the Northville Independents and the Howell Tigers was played at Howell last Thursday. It took the Northville team just one and a half hours to take the Tigers into camp, beating them 5 to 2. The game was clean from start to finish—being ruled over by Greene, a league umpire, who hails from Owosso. The game, however, was never over until the ninth inning as Howell looked dangerous several times. It was the errorless game that the club of this village played that enabled them to bring home the bacon—or rather the cash that would buy a whole lot of it. The battery for Northville was Hutchins and Hantz, and with the backing that the balance of the team gave, would make most any team sit up and take notice, so to speak. Hutchins pitched a clever game and the veteran, Fred Hantz, looked the game as he did thirty years ago behind the bat. A hand bill was picked up on the Howell streets advertising the game and one of its quotations was, "Youth and Pep pitted against Age and Knowledge." Some of our boys including Hantz, German, and Burgess had their glasses with them and read it, and the way they played, it must

SUPPLEMENT TO THE NORTHVILLE RECORD.

VOL. I. NO. 4.

THE RECORD: NORTHVILLE, MICH., FRIDAY, AUGUST 15, 1919.

Novi News:

Rev. and Mrs. Slack expect to return from Pontiac this week.
Clare Woodruff and Huber Bourn were home from Detroit, Sunday.
Mr. and Mrs. John Sims of Williamston are visiting the C. C. Rix family.
The travelling of the road from Walled Lake toward Novi is in progress.
J. D. Hasen had the misfortune last week to fall from a load of oats and break his leg.
Mrs. Ruby West has moved to Ypsilanti to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Margaret Dawson.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burch with their daughter and children of Milford visited at the Donelson home, Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Link of Lansing have been spending a week or so with Mr. and Mrs. Rix and enjoyed the Chautauqua at Northville.

Miss Margie Putnam has been on the sick list for the past week or ten days.

Miss Mary Watt of Detroit spent the first of the week with her mother, her sister, Jessie returning to the city with her for a few days' visit.

Rev. and Mrs. Marsh, who have been here for a few weeks will return to their home in Pontiac this week. During their stay they and their sweet little daughter, Irene, have won the hearts of all with whom they have come in contact and their going from us will be regretted. They will carry with them the best wishes for their success in their splendid work in Pontiac. Several young people are preparing to enter the Moody Bible school from the Bethany church of which Rev. Marsh is pastor. It is to be regretted that more of our young people of Novi were not present last Sunday night to hear the excellent sermon delivered by Rev. Marsh, who is especially interested in the young people and their life work.

Quite a number of our Novi people were in attendance all through the Chautauqua at Northville and speak well of the entertainment as a whole.

Those who attended the W. C. T. U. last Wednesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Taylor at the lake had a very pleasant time and listened to a very helpful and interesting address by the County President, Mrs. Metta Lockwood of Holly, who has been in this work a number of years and states facts as she knows them from personal observation and experience. She urged the ladies to keep up the work as now is the time to watch for the cunningly devised ways of the enemy in the wet and dry problem.

It is to be hoped that the members of the Union will feel a deeper interest in this work and know for themselves when and where the meetings are to be held each month and not wait for some one to tell them every time, as it is an established date—the first Wednesday in every month. They will hold a Harvest Home Festival on September 30, and anyone who has anything to donate toward it can communicate with the committee of which Mrs. Mae Holcomb is chairman. The proceeds from the sale of articles will be used to help pay the Novi W. C. T. U. quota. The next meeting will be held with Mrs. Lizzie Coates, September 10, with Mrs. Effie Root in charge of program on "Sabbath Observance," it being necessary to postpone one week. Every member, those who have been members, and all who would like to become members, as well as any who are in none of these classes, will be made welcome. A large attendance is especially desired at this time. Don't wait for some one to jog your memory, but set that date aside for that one purpose and all attend if possible.

One Tuesday of this week a number of the Women's Mission Band and several of the husbands motored out to Pontiac to the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. John Becker and family and gave them a real surprise. It had been previously arranged that Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Spencer would spend the day there, and they entered the house unannounced in advance of the rest. Rev. and Mrs. Slack were called up to meet with the others. A bountiful dinner was spread under large shade trees on the lawn and the "eats" were very satisfying to the most fastidious tastes, several under the supervision of Miss Lulu Becker who, it will be remembered, has for a number of years been teaching Domestic Science in the Detroit school. Miss Clara was home from her work for a short time only and was equally surprised, and in the afternoon Mrs. Frank Becker and children joined the company. Mr. and Mrs. Becker and family were for many years residents of Novi and have always been held in highest esteem in the community. Mrs. Becker has long been a member of the Woman's Mission Band here and occasionally meets with them now. It was a day well spent, was the verdict of all.

JUDD A. RICHARDSON MEETS TRAGIC DEATH

PROMINENT LIFELONG RESIDENT OF NOVI KILLED AT DEARBORN WEDNESDAY BY COLLISION WITH ELECTRIC CAR.

The people of Novi and all the surrounding section received one of the severest shocks of their lives Wednesday, when news came that Judd A. Richardson had met a sudden and tragic death. Mr. Richardson's entire life had been spent in Novi township and village, and of the family, which for two generations has been one of the most highly esteemed of this section, but one of the immediate members is left, the youngest son Bert, whose business life took him away from Novi some years ago. Mr. Richardson's wife died suddenly a little over two years ago, their only daughter some years before and his parents have also passed away within quite recent years, so that, as a family, the Richardsons are now but a memory in Novi.

Besides the brother, Bert, a nephew, Herbert Richardson of Detroit son of an older brother are the only living relatives nearer than cousins. The tragedy occurred at Dearborn Wednesday evening, when Mr. Richardson, who was returning from Detroit, is said to have driven upon the interurban tracks directly in front of the second car of a two section run, just after the first car had passed. He was instantly killed and his Dodge touring car wrecked.

Mr. Richardson, who was in his later fifties, leaves the enviable record of an honorable, industrious, temperate life, and a wide circle of friends who will long cherish his memory. He had been a member of the Novi Baptist church since his youth.

ABOUT OUR NEIGHBORS.

Interesting items from our exchanges gathered with pencil, paste pot and scissors.

There will be a big Masonic picnic at Lake Orion on August 20th. Ypsilanti is right up to the times with a new public market.

The Short Ship horse races are scheduled to start at Mt. Clemens August 25.

Holly Masons are discussing plans for the building of a new temple.

Pontiac's Masonic fraternity is to erect a $250,000 temple on a recently acquired $25,000 building site.

Rev. Henry Edwards from Little Rock, Ark., is the new Pastor of the Baptist Church at Plymouth.

Pontiac, also, has a vice crusade under way, and several arrests have been made, with more in prospect.

The improvements on the Grand River road west of New Hudson are approaching completion in some places, at least.

Holly's Chautauqua dates are set for Sept. 3 to 7, with the same attractions that our village enjoyed part of last week and this.

A sweet young thing from Detroit was heard to remark that the sunsets in Orion were beautiful for so small a town—Orion Review.

Two of Orion's principal streets are being graded preparatory to paving. It is expected that between 25 and 40 men will be employed.

Albert Drennan, a 20-year old Detroit boy was drowned at Lake Orion last Thursday. All efforts to find the body have failed, thus far.

Leslie Dunlap of Shelby the father of Fred Dunlap of Rochester celebrated his 102nd birthday last week by assisting in drawing in hay from the fields.

Plymouth is planning to remodel the band stand in Kellogg Park to admit the construction of a public convenience station and also contemplates an addition to the village hall to accommodate the fire apparatus.

The first Wayne County Farm Bureau picnic is dated for Saturday, August 23, to be held at the Avondale stock farm on Michigan Avenue, east of Wayne village. The program begins at 9:30 a. m. with a tractor demonstration in a twenty-acre field, with nine different makes of machines participating. Then there are to be sports and games of all kinds, including base ball, and in the afternoon addresses on farm topics by various able speakers. Also exhibits are to be made by the M. A. C., and the Sand Hill Poultry club. A general invitation is extended to the farmers of the county, and it is expected the affair will be a big success in all respects.

NORTHVILLE TAKES FIRST GAME OF HOWELL SERIES.

The first game of the series for $200 between the Northville Independents and the Howell Tigers was played at Howell last Thursday. It took the Northville team just one and a half hours to take the Tigers into camp, beating them 5 to 2. The game was clean from start to finish—being ruled over by Greene, a league umpire, who hails from Owosso. The game, however, was never over until the ninth inning as Howell looked dangerous several times. It was the errorless game that the club of this village played that enabled them to bring home the bacon—or rather the cash that would buy a whole lot of it. The battery for Northville was Hutchins and Hantz and with the backing that the balance of the team gave, would make most any team sit up and take notice so to speak. Hutchins pitched a clever game and the veteran, Fred Hantz, looked the same as he did thirty years ago. Hand bill was Howells' streets and one of "Youth and Pi and Knowledge including Hantz had their glassy and the wa."

Dear Friends:

The War ended just in time for Flutie Beecher, as she was almost out of Face Powder.

Well, there is a good time coming. When Uncle Sam and McAdon and Hoover, too, milk the cows and send the milk by Parcel Post to all the people at 5cts a quart and loan the bottles. When you get 8 or 10 you can trade them to some-one in Northville for more milk.

I find in reading the prices set for retailers that I am selling too low on most everything. But if they do not make a fuss about it I will still sell lower.

I have all kinds of Bulk Pepper, Cinnamon, Allspice, Cloves, Mustard, Cream of Tartar and Mixed Pickling. Will sell any of above articles at 35cts. per lb., except cream of tartar at 40cts.

I can now sell all cuts of beef so you can afford to buy it.

My line of Canned Goods is extra fine and priced low. Can sell you Candy, Cigars and Tobacco at Right Price.

I have no High Salaried Clerks or Bookkeepers, or rent to pay. The rent is coming my way.

I have a lot of good horse manure to sell.

A resident of a certain street in town calls attention to the fact that 9 widows reside within the limits of one block.

Mrs. Stillwell was taken to Grace hospital last week for a surgical operation.

Walter Ware, who has been ill with scarlet fever, has resumed his work at the Huff hardware store.

Ernest Potts will open his garage business in the remodeled stone shop on Main street this coming Saturday.

Among last week's marriage licenses appeared the names of Elmer Jackson Northville, and Irma Bierbaum, Cincinnati.

Chas A. Fensford is showing an assortment of merchandise that would do credit to towns much larger than Northville.

The hay-fever season is here, and so are the weeds. What about that state-law that requires the destruction of all noxious weeds before they go to seed?

The steam shovel turned the corner from Main to Rogers street Wednesday and the work of grading for the new paving is progressing rapidly.

Charlie Hills and wife will continue to occupy a part of the Swift house recently purchased by the Wilis-Houk family until the Hills residence is completed.

The D U R tracks on Main street have been torn up this week, to be replaced with heavy steel rails, preparatory to the necessary paving between and at the sides of the track.

The D U R has placed the first of its big new steel motor trailer cars in service in Detroit and several more are to be in use soon. The company is to build 100 of these cars, in its own shops in Highland Park.

Vernon Spencer of Wixom, well known to many Northville people, is winning all sorts of honors playing ball on the Toronto team. A very flattering notice of his work on the Diamond, appeared in the Toronto World of August 6. Young Spencer is a nephew of Mrs. Ben Gilbert of this place.

Mr. Carnegie succeeded in giving away all but a paltry three or four hundred millions of his dollars before his death, in illustration of his belief that it is a disgrace to die rich. And he got rid of an equal amount as the sum above mentioned, at that.

When the baby bawls, and daddy's bald head grows bald, and mother gets things all balled up getting ready for that ball game next Saturday between Howell and Northville, just remember that the game does not start until 5:30 so take your time.

Miss Carolyn Babbitt who for the past six months has been very seriously ill is somewhat improved at this writing. Dr. Alexander Lawbert, New York's most noted specialist and president of the American Medical Association, met Dr. Henry in consultation over her case Thursday.

Arnold Herman Kehrl, of Plymouth Mich was among the 85 men and women receiving diplomas from The Moody Bible Institute of Chicago on August 7 for having completed methods of Christian work. These came from 17 states and 6 foreign countries, and a large proportion are planning to go abroad as missionaries.

Speakers of national reputation will address the big midsummer meeting and basket picnic of Michigan Holstein-Friesian Cattle Breeders at East Lansing, Saturday, August 23. Senator J. M. Hackney of St. Paul, Minn., one of the most successful breeders of Holstein cattle in the country, will bring "A Message from the Northwest."

Judging from the comments of the various country papers on the Record's exchange list, that band of opulent gypsies traveling around the country by motor is rather "up against it" when it comes to municipal courtesy in the different places visited. The outfit has been unceremoniously invited to leave nearly every town. Their stay in Northville some time ago was very brief, also.

Much favorable comment is heard in regard to the fine appearance of the new dining room at the Ambler House. The old hotel dining room has been completely transformed by the newest and most up-to-date decorations and furnishings, in a style unusual for a small town. It is pretty enough to do credit to a city establishment, and certainly does credit to Northville.

Dr. Albert H. Garvin, superintendent of the New York State Tuberculosis Hospital is the prospective head of the new sanitarium west of town. With Wm. H. Maybury of the Detroit health board, Dr. Garvin visited the Northville institution grounds Tuesday.

The most business done in one month in the Wayne County Register of Deeds' office was done for July, 1919 an amount double that of the preceding year. The work is piling up to such an extent that it will soon be necessary to employ additional help.

Married, in Detroit, Thursday, Aug. 7, Mrs. Della Hoyt to Allison N. Stilson, both of Northville. Mr. and Mrs. Stilson are to occupy the living rooms in the east part of the opera house building which have been nicely redecorated and arranged for them.

FAIR NOTES.

There are to be ball games on three days of the fair—Farmington vs Northville Wednesday, Northville vs Wayne, Thursday, and on Friday a game between the winners of the two previous games. The losing team on each of the first two days is to receive a consolation purse of $25, and the victorious team on Friday will get $75, and the vanquished $50. The Women's department has been one of the big features of the fair in the two previous years, on account of the large exhibit and the high quality of the articles displayed in both the needlework and culinary sections, with the increased premiums for this year, it is hoped that even more women and girls will have on view specimens of their skill and industry.

Features at the New Alseium Theatre.

The name of Will S. Hart instantly attracts the attention of all who love a western play and who doesn't? Nobody can fill the bill quite like "Bill." He appears here Saturday night in "The Tiger Man." Admission, 20 cents.

Special notice: The management has secured the famous Goldwyn productions for every Thursday evening commencing next week, Aug. 21. Such stars as Madge Kennedy, Mary Garden, Mabel Normand and others will be featured. Mae Marsh next Thursday in "The Glorious Adventure."

We Should Show Intelligent Thrift, the Symbol of Peacetime Patriotism

By THE WIFE OF THE COMMANDANT, U. S. M. C.

When the United States entered the war it was considered an expression of patriotism to wear a tiny American flag. The finest expression of patriotism one could display now would be the wearing of a tiny Thrift flag, if such an emblem were obtainable, to indicate an understanding of, loyalty to and service for our country in peace time.

Instead of a war with other countries the United States now has before it the tremendous struggle with the tendency to drift back to its prewar habits of careless spending and general waste. Perhaps no country in the world had indulged before the war in such reckless expenditure as the United States. Perhaps no country in the world had been endowed with such lavish resources. The steady demand from our associates in the war and the heavy demands on transportation made saving necessary to husband those resources to meet the needs of the world. If we are to continue a leading nation in the future as in the past we have no choice as to whether we shall save or not.

Lord Rosebery, the great English statesman, has assured us that "Thrift is the surest and strongest foundation of an empire—so sure, so strong, so necessary that no nation can long exist that disregards it."

More recently President Wilson has said: "Economy and everything which ministers to economy supplies the foundations of national life. We have not studied cost or economy as we should, either as organizers of industry, as statesmen or as individuals."

The amazing recovery of France from the Franco-Prussian war is attributed to the personal habits of economy of the French people. They never allow the least commodity to be misused which can be converted into money, and the money in turn into the much-coveted industrial or public service securities floated by the great banking corporations of France. It is estimated that with a population of a little over forty million people, there are twenty-three million savings accounts in France. In reality they save first and spend afterward.

The enormous individual saving which can be effected simply by paying careful attention not to allow any waste to creep in was demonstrated amply during the war. But our success then must not be allowed through negligence to change into failure now. For it is through individual thrift that individual stability and prosperity are assured; through individual prosperity that the prosperity of the community is assured; and through community prosperity that the prosperity of the country is assured.

The peacetime service our country calls for does not mean hoarding. It seeks to awaken in each individual a realization of the tremendous benefits resulting from intelligent, steady saving; from using his best judgment in the outlay of his money; and from some investment, with its production of money by money. Thrift and War Savings stamps are the ideal channel through which streams of money—often the many tiny bits of heedless expenditure—may flow into bodies having real power of achievement.

In other words War Savings stamps create in an easy and fascinating way funds for opportunities which otherwise could not be seized. Their purchase gradually establishes habits of profitable economy which spell personal and national prosperity.

Though we do not wear a thrift banner every man, woman and child can display in each everyday act of their everyday lives intelligent thrift—the symbol of peacetime patriotism.

Demobilized Soldiers Need Work, But the Work Needs Them Just as Much

By COL. ARTHUR WOODS, U. S. War Department

When he was in the army the back private could communicate with his superior officer only through military channels. Now that he is out of it I want him to forget military channels and tell his troubles directly to me. The red chevron on the discharged service man's sleeve does not mean that the army is through with him. We are not through with our men until we have put them into the job which fits them and for which they are fitted.

There are more than enough jobs to go around. The problem is to get the jobs and the men together.

These men have just come back from participation in the greatest experience that will occur in your lifetime or mine. They are veterans, trained by hardship, discipline and loyalty to high ideals to take their place as more useful and more valuable citizens of America than they ever were before.

They need work, but the work needs them just as much.

What we intend to do is to act as a helpful point of contact among all the organizations in the United States which are so splendidly endeavoring to put our returned soldiers into jobs fitted for their abilities and training.

The Public Is Starving for Films Worth While, But It Gets Very Few Indeed

By J. A. QUINN, Los Angeles Theater Owner

Motion picture stardom should be made "safe for democracy." Most films today are trash. One reason is that there are too many so-called movie stars—who aren't—while others who might become real artists are unable to break in. In America today there are only three feminine film stars who are really stars. The rest are merely keeping out girls who have a right to be there. A number who are advertised as stars might fill second parts very well.

But in all the United States there are only three stars worthy of the name. The producers are to blame. They make so-called stars overnight—create them by force of advertising. Instead of selecting them from among girls who are potential artists, it is the producer's pet who breaks into the movies today, not the girl with the real art in her.

The public is the goat. The motion picture today is the biggest joke on earth. The public is starving for films worth while. They get very few.

American Farms Will Yield $9,000,000,000 Value Based on Government Statistics

American farms will this year contribute $8,938,922,000 to the world's wealth from a yield of 5,713,000,000 bushels of corn, wheat, oats, barley and rye. The value of the corn is $4,768,475,000, wheat $2,577,420,000, oats $994,727,000, barley $254,100,000 and rye $124,200,000. These values are based on the government statistics presenting farm prices of July 1.

According to the department of agriculture there is a promise of 2,315,000,000 bushels in corn in reports received up to July 1, while small grains will approximate $2,938,000,000 bushels, when the harvest is completed. Compared with the figures supplied for the previous month this is a loss of 123,000,000 bushels, of which 75,000,000 bushels is wheat and 43,000,000 bushels oats.

The corn crop is attracting more attention than wheat, and shows unusual promise. The area is 102,299,000 acres, compared with 113,835,000 acres as given in July a year ago, and the revised acreage 107,494,000 in December. The total crop is 232,000,000 bushels more than harvested last year. If present condition is maintained to harvest the crop would be around 3,350,000,000 bushels, which would set a new record.

A crop of 103,000,000 bushels rye, although cut down 4,000,000 bushels by blight, rust and drought, is a record one, and 14,000,900 bushels above last year's high mark.

Barley is somewhat of a disappointment with 231,000,000 bushels, compared with 256,000,000 bushels last year. The hay crop of 116,000,000 tons is 26,000,000 tons over last year's.

A wheat crop of 1,161,000,000 bushels is 75,000,000 bushels short of the previous month's returns, but is a record yield. The losses were due to rust and other unfavorable conditions which have made the crop a great disappointment from the early promise. The loss in winter wheat was 54,000,000 bushels, and in spring 21,000,000 bushels. The winter wheat yield will exceed all records, but the spring wheat is short, and is greatly below expectations.

Prospective yields as of July 1, compared with a year ago, and farm prices follow, yields being in millions of bushels and prices in cents:

	1919	1918	Price
Winter wheat.....	839	558	222.0
Spring wheat.....	322	359	176.5
All wheat.....	1,161	917	222.0
Corn.....	2,315	2,388	176.5
Oats.....	1,403	1,338	70.9
Barley.....	231	256	108.4
Rye.....	103	90	135.6
White potatoes.....	391	400	128.4
Sweet potatoes.....	102	86	159.8
Tobacco, pounds.....	1,453	1,340	144.1
Flax.....	42	40	21.74
Rice.....	116	90	31.1
Hay, tons.....	116	90	197.7
Cotton.....	11	12	331.4
Apples, total.....	156	174
Peaches.....	50	39

Farm reserves of wheat on July 1 were 19,644,000 bushels, compared with 8,063,000 bushels last year and a five-year average of 37,413,000 bushels. Supplies in all positions are 57,539,000 bushels compared with 22,372,000 bushels last year. This represents a carry-over into the new crop of below the average.

Who Won the War?

Pres. Wilson Says America Did.
Gen. Haig Says Britain Did.

Who won the war? This is one of the questions that the peace conference failed to answer.

President Wilson gave the American answer in a speech on board the George Washington July 4.

Field Marshal Haig gave the British answer in an address in Newcastle.

President Wilson said: "Then America went in, and if it had not been for America the war would not have been won. My heart swells with pride that I cannot express when I think of the men who crossed the seas from America to fight on those battlefields."

General Haig said: "Don't forget it was the British empire that won this war. We talked a great deal about our allies. It was necessary and right that we should do so to buck them up all we could while the fighting was going on but don't forget it was the British empire that won this war."

Ancient Chinese Poetry — as "Written Pictures"

Several translations of sixteenth, eighteenth and nineteenth century Chinese poems, which have just been printed in an American magazine of verse, will strike many casual readers as being very much like occidental verse; and it is also noticeable that these poems, widely apart in time, are very near together in feeling and technical manner. The Chinese poet, in fact, seems to have anticipated by several centuries the "latest thing" in Western verse expression. And perhaps this is really the case. The Chinese term for such poems is, literally translated, "written pictures," which will also seem to many modern readers a good working definition for verse libre—Christian Science Monitor.

Fighting Heart of Jack Dempsey is an Hierloom From the Days of Feuds

Jack Dempsey, heavyweight champion of the world, although born in Manassa, Col., sprang from the purest type of West Virginia mountaineer stock. The champion's grandfather, Ance Dempsey, was a pioneer settler of Logan county.

The report widely circulated, that Dempsey was born near Williamson, W. Va. is incorrect. It is slightly over a quarter of a century since H. I. Dempsey and the mother of the new champion left their old home there. Jack was born about a year after his parents arrived in the West.

The old Dempsey homestead in the mountains is located only a short distance from the abode of "Devil" Ance Hatfield, who gained widespread notoriety during the Hatfield-McCoy feud.

Although there are still many close relatives of the Dempsey family residing in that vicinity, the present champion has never visited them. Both Dempsey's father and grandfather were farmers and woodsmen and are remembered by old residents there as fearless mountaineers who stood high in a community where courage was demanded of all.

At the present time there are two uncles and several cousins of the champion residing in Mingo county.

Meat Flavors Extended.

We may extend the flavors of meats in various dishes which will satisfy the appetite fully as well as a meal of meat, by using bread, cereals and vegetables.

Chopped Mutton Cutlets.

Remove the lean meat from two pounds of the forequarter of lamb, and put through the meat chopper. Mix the meat with one cupful of dried crumbs, one egg slightly beaten, one cupful of canned tomatoes or milk, three chopped pimientos, two and one-half teaspoonsful of salt. Form into cutlets and put into a very hot well-greased frying pan. Turn the meat frequently until well served on both sides, cook six to eight minutes and remove to a hot platter. Serve with Pimiento Sauce.

Crown two tablespoonfuls of fat and two slices of onion in the pan in which the cutlets were cooked. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour, one cupful of stock from the bones, salt and pepper to taste, stir and cook until smooth and thick; strain and add half a pimiento cut in bits.

Rice With Fried Ham.

Take a cupful of fried ham put through the meat chopper, a half cupful of rice cooked until tender, salt to season, half a small minced onion and a tomato or two for moisture. Bake until well blended and piping hot. Serve from the baking dish.

Tamale Pie.

Add six cupfuls of boiling water to two cupfuls of cornmeal, stir and cook five minutes adding two and one-half teaspoonfuls of salt, then cook over water for an hour. Melt one tablespoonful of fat, add one chopped onion, one pound of chopped beef, a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of pepper, a green or red pepper cut in strips, two cupfuls of tomato, a few ripe olives and raisins. Put a layer of the mush in a baking dish, then a layer of the seasoned meat. Cover with round pats of the mush and bake one-half hour.

Galantine.

Put a pound of steak and half a pound of raw ham through the meat grinder, add two eggs, beaten; juice and rind of a lemon, one and three-fourths cupfuls of bread crumbs, a grating of nutmeg, salt and pepper to taste and one spoonful of tarragon vinegar. Pack into a well-greased pan and steam four hours. Serve with tomato salad, the loaf cut in thin slices.

PATSY

By JACK LAWTON.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Peter Webster drew up his car before the rambling farmhouse and viewed it appraisingly. He had taken upon himself the task of selecting a suitable summer boarding place for his senior partner's nerve-worn daughter—or father, the task, as usual, was thrust upon him.

To Peter, it seemed that he had during the past year, been called upon overmuch to attend to the affairs of this same unknown Miss Patricia Pembroke. In his opinion, his partner's favored daughter was one of a class to be shunned. So Peter deliberately shunned her; though difficult of carrying out was his purpose. Not only the girl's family and adoring mother, but his own financially ambitious one, were anxious to bring the two together, in hope of a possible proud alliance.

Peter, desiring not to be a cause of disappointment, determined to hold aloof. He was fond of his old senior partner; his sympathies went out to the busy man, who must constantly be burdened with added home cares. Therefore Peter had, with much consideration, chosen Miss Pembroke's luxurious car, and also, being a musician, he had selected, at her father's instigation, her new concert grand piano.

From these missions the younger partner had formed his own opinion of the flattered girl's exactions. Patricia Pembroke, it seemed, was always in the center of the social stage.

Here her song charmed, or there she excelled as pianist. Far be it from himself, Peter thought, to continue the tired old father's charge of catering to this brilliant daughter.

He smiled ironically as he rang the rusty bell on the farmhouse. The doctor's prescription of rest for Miss Pembroke in such seclusion would not, he was sure, be long followed.

Having no response to his summons, he passed around to a rear door. Through the screen he could see that the orderly rooms were vacant. Then, far back among the spreading trees of a tangled garden, he saw a blur of pink moving with the sway of a hammock, and he went in its direction.

The girl who looked up at him from the depths of the hammock seemed to be alone in a green solitude. Unblinkingly her blue eyes regarded him, a ruffled pink sunbonnet giving her cheeks a ruddy glow. He saw that the skirt of her pink cambric frock was filled with the green peas she was podding.

"I came," announced Peter, "to make inquiries concerning board, at the farmhouse. No one was there."

"For yourself?" asked the girl calmly, as she continued her podding.

"For a young lady," Peter replied. "Can you tell me where to get information?"

"I can give you all the information you want," the girl replied. "We are not taking anyone."

"But I was directed here," Peter insisted, evidently distressed. His search had been long.

Uninvited, he dropped into a seat beneath the trees. He hoped he might be able to enlist the sympathy of this satisfied young creature in Miss Pembroke's behalf, so that she, in turn, would persuade her mother to take the nervous girl in.

"The young woman who wishes to come," he said, "is tired out after a hard, strenuous winter."

The girl dropped the peas into a pan and took off her sunbonnet. The copper gold of her uncovered hair gleamed in the sunlight. Peter's eyes widened admiringly.

"What work," she questioned, "has this nervous girl been doing?"

"No work," Peter answered brusquely. "But sometimes," he smiled, "one can tire one's self out as thoroughly through play. Here, in this peaceful spot, occupied with your homely tasks, it would be difficult for you to realize how women strive and labor and wear themselves out in a selfish chase for social favor. But that's big language," he added, "for a little girl."

"Perhaps," said the "little girl" unexpectedly, "these women are not always selfish as you think. Perhaps there are those who have trained them for this very success, and would be disappointed terribly at their failure."

Peter Webster stared as though a child had suddenly risen to reprove him. Then across the stillness came a shrill cry.

"Patsy!" called a woman's voice.

"Patsy!"

"She's calling me," said the girl, "but you had better go and see her first."

Perplexedly, and with a regretful backward glance, Peter moved toward the house. A woman stood on the veranda.

"What do you want?" she asked sharply.

Peter stated his errand.

"Land!" the woman exclaimed. "You're late in askin'. Patsy Pembroke came on herself this mornin'. Least, Patsy's the name she told us to call her—short for her long-soundin' one. She's goin' to stay all summer, an' we like her real well. So plain-actin' an' nice an' tickled over the flowers. Anythin' else you wanted to know?"

"Yes," said Peter Webster. He drew a long breath. "I want to know if you'll take me as a boarder, too, off and on?"

"Sure," the farmer's wife agreed. Then eagerly he made his way back to the swaying hammock beneath the

"SHE IS LYING AWAKE"

Synopsis.—Thomas K. Barnes, a wealthy young New Yorker, on a walking trip in New England near the Canadian border, is given a lift in an automobile by a mysterious and attractive girl bound for a house called Green Fancy. At Hart's tavern Barnes finds a stranded troupe of "barn-storming" actors, of which Lyndon Rushcroft is the star and "Miss Thackeray," the leading lady. He learns Green Fancy is a house of mystery. That night Andrew Roon and his servant, guests at the tavern, are shot near Green Fancy. Barnes comes under suspicion and stays to help clear up the double murder. He gets into the Green Fancy grounds; meets the mysterious girl, who gives him the cut direct, and is politely ejected by O'Dowd, an interesting adventurer. Enter at the tavern another man of mystery, Sprouse, "look agent." Barnes visits Green Fancy with the sheriff and stays to dinner. Enter still another mysterious personage, "Loeb," secretary to Curtis, owner of Green Fancy, who does not appear because of illness. Barnes again meets "Miss Cameron," the mysterious girl, who is a fastidious beauty in evening dress. She is a prisoner and secretly appeals to him for help. Sprouse reveals himself as a secret service man and tells the enthralling story of the Green Fancy representatives of a royal house oppressed by Germany and his purpose to recover royal papers and jewels that night.

"With the landlord's approval," he explained, pointing to the instrument, "but unknown to the telephone company, you may be sure. Call him up about half past ten. O'Dowd may be up at this unholy hour, but not she. Now I must be off to discuss literature with Mrs. Jim Conley. The hardest part of my job is to keep her from subscribing for a set of Dickens. Conley's house is not far from Green Fancy. Savvy?"

Barnes, left to his own devices, wandered from taproom to porch, from porch to forge, from forge to taproom, his brain far more active than his legs, his heart as heavy as lead and as light as air by turns. More than once he felt his resorting to a well-known expedient—to determine whether he was awake or dreaming. Could all this be real?

Ten minutes later he was in Sprouse's room, calling for Green Fancy over an extension wire that had cost the company nothing and yielded nothing in return. After some delay O'Dowd's mellow voice sang out:

"Hello! How are you this morning?"

"Hello! How are you this morning?"

"Grievously lonesome," replied Barnes, and wound up a doleful account of himself by imploring O'Dowd to save his life by bringing the entire Green Fancy party over to dinner that night.

O'Dowd was heart-broken. Personally he would go to any extreme to save so valuable a life, but as for the rest of the party, they begged him to say they were sorry to hear of the expected death of so promising a chap and that, while they couldn't come to his party they would be delighted to come to his funeral. In short, it would be impossible for them to accept his kind invitation. The Irishman was so gay and good-humored that Barnes took hope

"By the way, O'Dowd, I'd like to speak with Miss Cameron if she can come to the telephone."

"Don't be surprised if you are cut off suddenly. The coast is clear for the moment, but—Here, Miss Cameron. Careful now."

Her voice, soft and clear and trembling with eagerness, caressed Barnes' eager ear.

"Mr. O'Dowd will see that no evil befalls me here, but he refuses to help me to get away. I quite understand and appreciate his position. I cannot ask him to go so far as that. Help will have to come from the outside. It will be dangerous—terribly dangerous—"

"You say O'Dowd will not assist you to escape?"

"He urges me to stay here and take my chances. He believes that everything will turn out well for me in the end, but I am frightened. I must get away from this place."

"Then keep your eyes and ears open for the next night or two. Can you tell me where your room is located?"

"It is one flight up; the first of the two windows in my room is the third to the right of the entrance. I am confident that someone is stationed below my windows all night long."

"You still insist that I am not to call on the authorities for help?"

"Yes, yes! That must not even be considered. I have not only myself to consider, Mr. Barnes. I am a very small atom in—"

"All right! We'll get along without them," he said cheerily. "Afterward we will discuss the importance of atoms."

"And your reward as well, Mr. Barnes," she said. Her voice trailed off into an indistinct murmur. He heard the receiver click on the hook, and after calling "hello" twice hung up his own with a sigh. Evidently O'Dowd had warned her of the approach of a less considerate person than himself.

CHAPTER XIII.

The Second Wayfarer Receives Two Visitors at Midnight.

The coroner's inquest, over the bodies of Roon and Paul was held that afternoon at St. Elizabeth. Witnesses from Hart's Tavern were among those to testify. The verdict was "murder at the hands of parties unknown."

Sprouse did not appear at the Tavern until long after midnight. The secret agent listened somewhat indifferently to the latter's account of his telephonic experiences. At nine o'clock he yawned prodigiously and announced that he was going to bed, greatly to the surprise of Mr. Barnes, who followed him from the taproom and demanded an explanation.

"People usually go to bed at night, don't they?" said Sprouse patiently. "It is expected, I believe."

"But, my dear man, we are to undertake—"

"I have some cause for believing that one of those chaps in there is from Green Fancy. Go to bed at ten o'clock, my friend, and put out your light. I don't insist on your taking off your clothes, however. I will rap on your door at eleven o'clock. By the way, don't forget to stick your revolver in your pocket."

A few minutes before eleven there came a gentle tapping on Barnes' door. He sprang to his feet and opened it, presenting himself before Sprouse fully dressed and, as the secret agent said later on, "fit to kill."

The night was as black as pitch. Barnes, trusting to the little man's eyes and hanging close upon his coat-tails, followed blindly but gallantly in the tracks of the leader. It seemed to him that they stumbled along parallel to the road for miles before Sprouse came to a halt. "This is the short cut to Green Fancy," he whispered, laying his hand on Barnes' arm. "We save four or five miles, coming this way. Do you know where we are?"

"I haven't the remotest idea."

"About a quarter of a mile below Curtis' house. Are you all right?"

"Fine as a fiddle, except for a barked knee and a skinned elbow, a couple of more or less busted ribs. I've landed into more trees than—"

"Sh!" After a moment of silence, intensified by the mournful squawk of night birds and the chorus of katydids, Sprouse whispered, "Did you hear that?"

Barnes thrilled. This was real melodrama. "Hear what?" he whispered shilly.

"Listen!" After a second or two: "There!"

"It's a woodpecker hammering on the limb of a—"

"Woodpeckers don't hammer at night, my lad. Don't stir! Keep your ears open."

Sprouse clutched his companion's arm and, dropping to his knees in the thick underbrush, pulled the other down after him.

Presently heavy footsteps approached. An unseen pedestrian passed within ten yards of them. They scarcely breathed until the sounds passed entirely out of hearing. Sprouse put his lips close to Barnes' ear,

"Telegraph," he whispered. "It's a system they have of reporting to each other. There are two men-patrolling the grounds near the house. You see what we're up against, Barnes. Do you still want to go on with it?"

"I'll stay by you," replied Barnes sturdily.

Several minutes went by. There was not a sound save the restless patter of rain in the tree tops. At last the faraway thud of footsteps came to the ears of the tense listener. They drew nearer, louder, and once more seemed to be approaching the very spot where he crouched.

Then came the sound of a dull, heavy blow, a hoarse gasp, a momentary commotion in the shrubbery.

"My God! Have You Killed Him?"

and again silence. Barnes' blood ran cold. He waited for the next footfall of the passing man. It never came.

A sharp whisper reached his ears. "Come here—quick!"

He floundered through the brush and almost fell prostrate over the kneeling figure of a man.

"Take care! Lend a hand," whispered Sprouse.

Dropping to his knees, Barnes felt for and touched wet, coarse garments, and gasped:

"My God! Have you killed him?"

"Temporarily," said Sprouse, between his teeth. "Here, unwind the rope I've got around my waist. Take the end—here. Got a knife? Cut off a section about three feet long. I'll get the gag in his mouth while you're doing it. Hangmen always carry their own ropes," he concluded, with grim humor. "Got it cut? Well, cut two more sections, same length."

With incredible swiftness the two of them bound the feet, knees and arms of the inert victim.

"I came prepared," said Sprouse, so calmly that Barnes marveled at the iron nerve of the man.

"By heaven, Sprouse, I—I believe he's dead. We—we haven't any right to kill a—"

"Don't be finicky," snapped Sprouse. "It wasn't much of a crack, and it was necessary." Straightening up, with a sigh of satisfaction, he laid his hand on Barnes' shoulder. "We've just got to go through with it now, Barnes. We'll never get another chance. Putting that fellow out of business queers us forever afterward."

He dropped to his knees and began searching over the ground with his hands. "Here it is. You can't see it, of course, so I'll tell you what it is. A nice little block of sandalwood. I've already got his nice little hammer, so we'll see what we can raise in the way of wireless chit-chat."

Without the slightest hesitation he struck a succession of quick, confident blows upon the block of wood.

"By gad, you are a wonder!"

"Wait till tomorrow before you say that," replied Sprouse, sententiously. "Come along now. Stuck to the trail. We've got to land the other one."

Turning sharply to the right, Sprouse guided his companion through the brush for some distance, and once more came to a halt. Again he stole on ahead, and as before the slow, confident, even careless progress of a man ceased as abruptly as that of the comrade who lay helpless in the thicker below.

Barnes laid a firm, detaining hand on the man's shoulder.

"See here, Sprouse," he whispered, "it's all very well for you, knocking men over like this, but just what is your object? What does all this lead up to?"

Sprouse broke in, and there was not the slightest trace of emotion in his whisper.

"Quite right. You ought to know. I suppose you thought I was bringing you up here for a Romeo and Juliet tete-a-tete with the beautiful Miss Cameron—and for nothing else. Well, in a way, you are right. But, first of all, my business is to recover the crown jewels and parchments. I am going into that house and take them away from the man you know as Loeb, if he has them. If he hasn't them my work here is a failure."

"Going into the house?" gasped Barnes. "Why, my God, man; that is impossible. You would be shot down as an ordinary burglar and—the law would justify them for killing you. I must insist—"

"I am not asking you to go into the house, my friend. I shall go alone," said Sprouse coolly.

"On the other hand, I came up here to rescue a helpless—"

"Keep cool! It's the only way. Now listen. She has designated her room and the windows that are hers. She is lying awake up there now, take it from me, hoping that you will come tonight. I shall lead you directly to her window. And then comes the only chance we take—the only instance where we gamble. There will not be a light in her window, but that won't make any difference. This nobby came I'm carrying is in reality a collapsible fishing rod. First we use it to tap gently on her window ledge or shade or whatever we find. Then you pass up a little note to her. Here is paper and pencil. Say that you are below her window and—all ready to take her away. Tell her to lower her valuables, some clothes, etc., from the window by means of the rope we'll pass up on the pole. There is a remote possibility that she may have the jewels in her room. For certain reasons they may have permitted her to retain them. If such is the case our work is easy. If they have taken them away from her she'll say so, some way or another—and she will not leave! Now I've had a good look at the front of that house. It is covered with a lattice work and huge vines. I can shin up like a squirrel and go through her room to the—"

"Are you crazy, Sprouse? You'd take your life in your hands and—"

"See here!" said Sprouse shortly. "I am not risking my life for the fun of the thing. I am risking it for her, bear that in mind—for her and her people. And if I killed them I wouldn't even say 'Well done, good and faithful servant.' So let's not argue the point. Are you going to stand by me or back out?"

Barnes was stumped. "I'll stand by you," he said, and they stole forward.

There were no lights visible. The house was even darker than the night itself; it was vaguely outlined by a deeper shade of black.

At last they were within a few yards of the entrance and at the edge of a small space that had been cleared of shrubbery. Here Sprouse stopped and began to adjust the sections of his fishing rod.

"Write," he whispered. "There is a faint glow of light up there to the right. The third window, did you say? Well—that's about where I should locate it."

The tiny metallic tip of the rod, held in the upstretched hand of Barnes, much the taller of the two men, barely reached the window ledge. He tapped gently, persistently on the hard surface. Just as they were beginning to think that she was asleep and that their efforts were in vain their straining eyes made out a shadowy object projecting slightly beyond the sill.

After a moment or two of suspense Barnes experienced a peculiar, almost electric shock. Someone had seized the tip of the rod; it stiffened suddenly, the vibrations due to its flexibility ceasing. Someone was untying the bit of paper he had fastened to the rod, and with fingers that shook and were clumsy with eagerness.

He had written: "I am outside with a trusted friend, ready to do your bidding. Two of the guards are safely bound and out of the way. Now is our chance. We will never have another. If you are prepared to come with me now write me a word or two and drop it to the ground. I will pass up a rope to you and you may lower anything you wish to carry away with you. But be exceedingly careful. Take time. Don't hurry a single one of your movements." He signed it with a large "B."

It seemed an hour before their eyes distinguished the shadowy head above. As a matter of fact but a few minutes had passed. During the wait Sprouse had noiselessly removed his coat, a proceeding that puzzled Barnes. Something light fell to the ground. It was Sprouse who stooped and searched for it in the grass. When he resumed an upright posture he put his lips close to Barnes' ear and whispered:

Barnes, Sprouse and "Miss Cameron" have an exciting night at Green Fancy.

DAIRY

NO PLACE FOR SCRUB BULLS

Poor Animals Have Done Much Damage to Dairy Interests and Are Worse Than Worthless.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Bull associations, though few in number, wage eternal warfare on the scrub. The scrub bull has done much damage in this country. He is worse than worthless. He lowers the production of all future generations of the herd he heads. He cannot increase milk production even in a herd of scrubs because, like them, he is a scrub. In a herd of better breeding the damage he may do is almost limitless.

The grade bull is little better because, most of his ancestors being scrubs, he is certain to transmit scrub qualities to his offspring. The grade bull may have the form and color markings of a purebred, but he lacks the power to transmit with any degree of certainty the qualities of any high-producing ancestors he may have. That herd is very poor indeed in which a grade bull can make any marked improvement.

The registered scrub comes of low-producing registered ancestors, therefore he transmits only inferior qualities to his calves. Registration is not enough to guarantee production. Permanent dairy herd improvement can never come from the scrub, the grade or the registered scrub.

A constant fight against the cattle fever tick has put large portions of the southern states into the tick-free area. Why not inaugurate a similar fight all over the United States against scrub bulls, against the scrub, the grade, the registered scrub, against scrub sires of every kind? Taking each state, county by county, why not eliminate the scrub and establish scrub-free areas in every state?

STINGY FEEDER CHEATS SELF

Dairy Cow Must Have Materials for Maintenance as Well as Milk-producing Foods.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The cow requires not only materials for maintenance but must also have protein, fat and carbohydrates to make milk from. The milk contains water, fat, protein (casein or curd), sugar and ash, and these are all made from the constituents of the food. If insufficient protein, fat and carbohydrates are contained in the food given her the cow supplies this deficiency for a time by drawing on her own body, and gradually begins to shrink in quantity or quality of milk, or both. The stingy feeder cheats himself as well as the cow.

FEED AND SALT REGULARLY

Cow Becomes Accustomed to Getting Meals at Certain Time—Deviation Causes Worry.

A cow is pretty much a creature of habit. She becomes accustomed to getting her feed at a certain time each day and if that time arrives without the feed she worries about it and this affects her milk production. For this reason regularity in feeding is very important. Also watering and salting should be attended to punctually. And the water should be good. It is a mistake to require cows to drink tainted water, for it certainly impairs the health if it does not affect the quality of the milk. The man who provides properly for the wants of his cows has a right to expect that they will repay him in a more abundant milk flow.

DAIRY NOTES

A good silo requires also a good ensilage cutter.

In the dairy business harvest continues the year around.

You never saw a cow that would not do better work on good silage than without it.

For a cow that refuses to let down her milk, a feed of something while milking often helps.

The biggest leak in the dairy business comes through keeping two cows to do the work of one.

To estimate the amount of feed left in the silage, figure 1 cubic foot of silage as equal to 40 pounds.

The grocer saw his best customer was a bit ruffled over something, so strove to be extra obliging and pleasant.

"I think," he said blandly, "living is getting cheaper. For instance, a year ago when eggs would have cost you 5 cents more."

"A year ago," said the customer, "when these eggs were fresh, they would have been worth more."

Friends Gave Her Up

Mrs. Hoffman's Recovery From Dropsy. She Used Doan's.

"I was in a dreadful shape," says Mrs. W. B. Hoffman, 838 Oakley Ave., Hammond, Ill. "There was a swelling pain across the small of my back and when I stooped over, knife-like twinges nearly drove me wild. I had large puffs under my eyes and my body bloated badly all over. My feet were swollen to twice their natural size and the skin looked shiny. When I pressed it down, it left a dent there and I knew I was bad off with dropsy."

Mrs. Hoffman. "My friends didn't think I would live very long. I doctored with three different physicians and they didn't help me and I was discouraged. Nobody knows the torture I went through."

"I decided to try Doan's Kidney Pills. I used three boxes and I was cured. I felt fine. As the swelling went down, my appetite picked up and I was soon perfectly healthy. My color came back and people said I looked as well as ever. Doan's Kidney Pills saved my life."
