ALL SET FOR THE BIG FAIR

BUSY WORKERS WILL PLACE BIG TENTS NEXT MONDAY AND TUESDAY.

NEW MAIN BUILDING READY FOR EXHIBITORS; SPACE ALL TAKEN

Everything seems to be all set for Northville's big Wayne County Fair, and every day will be a great day.

The big tents will all be in place by Monday night to be ready for the exhibits on Tuesday. The new Main building is complete and ready for occupancy.

The stock tents will this year be located on the east side of the grounds and the ground north of Main building will be given over to concessions, lunch rooms, etc.

The Fair opens Wednesday, and all exhibits are to be in place by noon of that day. The star event of the forenoon is the registered shooting tournament at nine o'clock, and in the afternoon comes the baby show in the Main building, the Farmington-Northville ball game at three o'clock, and Sam Carrothers with his minstrels and dancing in front of the grand stand.

Thursday sees the beginning of the track events including a 2-16 mile heat by Asa Wilkes, the "Guideless Wonder," the Plymouth-Wayne ball game and free attractions.

Friday's schedule promises several horse racing events, besides another exhibition of speed and intelligence by the wonderful horse Asa Wilkes, a ball game between the winners of Wednesday's and Thursday's games, Carrothers' minstrels, etc.

Saturday has been designated as "Detroit Day," and this is the day for the famous Detroit Moslem Patrol and band, 100 strong, in one of the finest drills ever seen here. Two horse-races are on the card for that day, Asa Wilkes will again appear and there will be the colored minstrels and several added special attractions.

Besides all these special features there is the Fair, of which they are but accessories. The exhibits of all kinds will be second in quality to none anywhere. The live stock, poultry and pet stock, agricultural horticultural and mechanical and educational departments promise to even excel those of our two preceding fairs, which certainly means something worth while.

The woman's department, which has previously been a source of surprise and pleased comment from visitors, will be more attractive than ever with the increased space for displaying the numberless articles of exquisite fancy work, the specimens of the preserving art in household supplies and culinary skill and all the rest.

The trade exhibits also, will be numerous and high class, as usual.

Then there are to be dances every evening in Forester hall, and on Saturday night, from 7:30 to 12 o'clock, everybody who desires can dance on the new Main street pavement, to the inspiring music furnished by the city band.

The Henderson Stock Co., the entertainers who occupied the Alseum theatre throughout fair week last year, are to have a show there every night next week, with a different program for each evening.

Besides all these and many others features, visitors to the fair can obtain appetizing lunches and dinners, served by the different societies at the fair grounds, and of course there will be the pink lemonade, the peanuts and popcorn, souvenirs and all the other pleasant things that go to the make-up of any first-class fair, including of course a Midway and the ever-popular Merry-go-round.

"Sure, you'll be there."

NORTHVILLE STILL LEADS.

Up to this evening, Mt. Clemens leads Northville by four dispatches, two interviews and a feature story in the acquisition of Ford factories. Pontiac Daily Press. Well, but Mt. Clemens has a population of somewhere around eight or nine thousand to Northville's two thousand or a little more, so Northville's "batting average" is still ahead, at that. And besides, we have already met Mr Ford, business propositionally, and he is ours—and right on the job.

J. W. Clark was in Detroit Wednesday, looking over the coal situation.

NORTHVILLE HAS REGULAR STRIKE

Northville is nothing if not up-to-date, and was only to be expected that when strikes were the fashion all over the country should be in the procession. Last Saturday night, the entire gang of cement mixers working on the street improvements demanded a wage of 50 cents an hour for ten hours, in place of the 50 cents an hour they were receiving for 12 hours' work. The demand was refused by the Wayne County Road commission, and the big cement machine stood idle near the Wing street crossing Monday and Tuesday. Meanwhile, the rest of the workmen kept busy preparing the ground, distributing sand, gravel and cement and on Wednesday morning the mixer was set going again with an entirely new force of cement men, who seem to be getting along just as fast as the others did, and even faster, as there are now no delays on account of supplies not coming along fast enough. It is stated that the two days apparently lost will not at all delay the finishing of the job, for the reason above intimated.

NEXT WEEK'S RACES.

The races to be held next week in connection with Northville's third annual fair give every promise of being of the top-notch class and already a good field of starters in the several events are assured. The following are the events for the three days:

Northville State Savings Bank

We Are The Silent Partner Of The People

August 1st, 1919, this Bank changed its rate of interest on Savings Deposits from three to four per cent, thereby giving the people of the vicinity the benefit of a 33 1/3 Per Cent raise in income on their money. Now, for the Bank to play even on its profits it must assume the responsibility of caring for at least $100,000 additional business, and in order to save a loss in profits it must get that increase in business the sooner the better. The Board of Directors knew all this before making the change, but in order to meet competition of other towns and to keep the money at home for home use, it was decided to make the raise in rate.

We are glad to say that the people seem to appreciate the situation, since during the first month of August our Savings Deposits increased $25,000. Give us three more months of the same and we can all smile when we pay to you about $10,000.00 for spending money—your DIVIDENDS in the partnership.

"Ladies' Aid" Is a Fifth Wheel in the Machinery of a Political Party

By MARY GARRETT HAY, Eastern Political Leader

The Ladies' Aid is a fifth wheel in the machinery of a political party. Men and women should work together. There is no place for the Ladies' Aid in politics. Men and women should serve side by side on the committees, should labor together in the assembly districts, should together evolve plans, platforms and policies; should, in short, be political partners.

Together both sexes can do better work than either acting alone. Men have had the experience, the long, practical training in political procedure. They have the business alertness, keenness, accuracy and understanding of the interrelation of things. Association with them will be beneficial to women. On the other hand women have the strong humanitarian instincts, a love for clean moral standards and a passion for improving and reforming. Women can check men's predatory business tendencies; men can check women's visionary schemes. If the two sexes co-operate in a cordial, earnest fashion we may expect splendid results.

Because I so thoroughly believe in the co-operation of the sexes in politics I am continually urging women to enroll in the parties and to work for them. Let women enter the parties and work from within to reform them if they think there is need of reform. Women, like men, who do not stand aside and idly criticize, but who roll up their sleeves and work, are today the most useful citizens and the best patriots.

Wood for Aircraft Propeller Blades Adds to Our Forestry Problem

By C. L. PACK, American Forestry Association

We have just seen four sets of propeller blades take the giant dirigible R-34 across the ocean and back. These eight blades are made of wood. The experts have found nothing to take the place of wood in those blades I do not believe they ever will.

Those blades are but seven feet long, but much more wood than that is used in turning them and finding just what will stand the terrific tests. A propeller makes about 1,700 revolutions a minute. The whurr of propeller blades will soon be multiplied by a million, and they carry a message to the business world that must be answered.

With over-ocean transportation demonstrated the peace burden placed upon the forests of this country will make the call upon them due to war insignificant, and one of the biggest reconstruction problems before us today is a national forest policy.

The lake states now import lumber from other sections of the country. estimate the supply of southern pine will be exhausted within the next years. New England no longer produces enough lumber for its needs. The center of the lumber industry is rapidly moving to the Pacific coast.

In the wood-using industry there are few concerns that can point to a five-year supply. They give work to thousands of people, and export products valued at $130,000,000 every year, to say nothing of the home market. The United States exported three and one-half billion board feet of lumber and saw logs a year before the war.

Europe's need now will be around seven billion feet a year for some time. Many of the forests of France have been destroyed and the American Forestry association is collecting a fund to help reforest the devastated areas.

There is an end to all things, and there is certainly coming an end to our forest supply if the question of a national forest policy is not solved and solved quickly.

War Spirit Will Enable the American People to Solve H. C. L. Problem

By FRANK O. LOWDEN, Governor of Illinois

The greatest achievements the American people made during the war were not the result of legislation but of the united and determined will of our people to do all the things and make all the sacrifices necessary to the winning of the war.

If that spirit can be recaptured in this crisis we will avert the grave dangers which threaten us in the high and increasing prices of the necessities of life.

Let the farmer reflect that any further increase in the price of the products of his farm, though it may mean a temporary profit, may also mean future disaster to him.

Let the business-man realize that every avoidable increase in the price of a necessity of life he either produces or sells is as much a menace to the future peace of society as the bomb of the anarchist.

In this crisis no man is justified in raising prices unless he must do so to avoid closing down his business. I want to say, with all the emphasis that I can command, that it is not a question now of present profits, but the real question is the preservation of business.

Let labor realize that an increase in wages at this time affords but temporary relief. For such increase, too, results inevitably in an increased cost of living.

If our people generally, without reference to class, will resolve that prices of commodities have gone high enough and be sure they will go no higher and a decline will begin.

We talk much these days, and with reason, of self-restraint. That self-restraint can be exercised nowhere more wisely than in buying. If, now, the people will resolve to buy for the present only the things they must have; if they will cease to anticipate the future; if they will practice thrift and economy, profiteering everywhere will be baffled.

Col. John V. Clinin, One Hundred and Thirtieth Infantry, Prairie division—Military training itself instills the spirit of patriotism, obedience to proper authority and discipline, a regard for law and order which is the basis of good citizenship. The military physical training system insures the development of strong bodies in which may be incased the brilliant intellect of the American citizen. It breaks down the walls of racial and religious prejudice, and truly makes men equal.

In the Valley of the Itchen

St. Cross, Winchester.

ON THIS morning of spring, when the sun, at last, after many weeks of retirement, has shown his golden face above the eastward downs, any city even so fair as Winchester seems for the moment, undesirable. One seeks instinctively a wider sky-space, hills and meadows, and the flow of the new-fallen waters for company. These are in the valley of the Itchen; writes a correspondent of the Christian Science Monitor.

Through the cathedral close the way lies, down the avenue past the western door and out before the spaces of emerald lawn; above which towers this majestic pile, within whose walls, and around them, are memories so much of England's history, from great Alfred and Chaucer, past William of Wykeham and Wolsey, to the modern men of learning and lawn sleeves. Beautifully harmonious are the surroundings, both in line and color—soft greens of full-round Norman arches, vivid greens of cloister-garth; blending with the darker tints of immemorial yew, and the golden screen of lichens upon gnarled tree-trunks. Here are rich reds and browns, upon the tiled copings of mossy walls, on barge-boards of ancient gabled roofs and in the delicate rose-pink network of interlacing twigs, through which the cathedral town is seen. Thus, among ever-changing charms, you twist and turn—now round a corner, beneath the shadow of an arch, now out again into the full sunlight, before another bend leads you once more through the pleasant gloom of the eastern gate.

Beside Wykeham's college, modestly fronting the road, is a little humble, buff-colored building, with an oriel window, and a legend reminding us that here Jane Austen lived her later days. Her house, among so many surrounding grandeur, wears—as I suppose the writer herself wore—an air of shy timidity, not without grace in these, sometimes, too blatant days.

Here are Wykehamists, fresh-faced, in straw hats, symbolizing a coming summer, and here, past the gray ruins of Wolsey castle—where Mary of England, before her marriage, feted her Spanish husband-to-be—are the fresh green water-meadows of the Itchen, and, beyond, clear-cut against the skyline, the tree-crowned ridge of St. Catherine's hill, with memories of King Charles II and of the college's "Duice Domum."

The Waters Splash and Bubble. On either side the meadow path the waters splash and bubble, swish and eddy, with a music most melodious and meaningful, even to those unlearned in fish lore. Gray gulls hover, mirrored in the shining surface, and linger over it, so as to set one wondering what lure it was that led them from their open sea into this inland Hampshire valley. Down below, above a sandy bed, the forest of fern-like water weeds bends to the current, and the minnows—or the minnow-kind—dart and play about its glades. Right ahead there is age-long majesty again—the gabled roofs and towered church of the Hospital of St. Cross, embowered in ancestral elms. Here I sit, upon a white stile, to enjoy a fleeting glimpse of a thatched roof, and watch, across the sliding water-mirror, the fringe of pink feathery grasses nodding and quivering to the breeze.

I am tempted almost to go into the hospital, and demand the "Wayfarer's Dole"—not that I want the dole—which, moreover, is meager during these days—but that it is pleasant to partake of a charity practiced for so many centuries by the brethren in red and black. Some say—I hardly know with what truth—that St. Cross is the hospital in which Anthony Trollope placed "The Warden" of the novel so named, and of "Barchester Towers." Trollope, in his autobiography names Salisbury, not Winton, as the city in which he first conceived the story of that gentle priest; but, Barsetshire being a county of his own imagining, he may well have conjured a little with English topography. And, thinking of Trollope—while my eyes linger upon the crocus-gemmed lawns of St. Cross, and the orange-budded chestnut twigs shiny with flowing sap—how many others, famous in literature, have trod these velvet paths, and those of the hills on either hand!

A Goody Five. "Old John of Gaunt, time-honored Lancaster" perhaps, from his place at King's Lambourn; Alexander Pope, a boy from fair Twyford village, musing already upon the nature of man; John Keble of the "Christian Year," from his vicarage at Hursley; John Keats, from over Hazeley Down, with the "Ode to Autumn" fashioning itself in his mind.

Where are the songs of spring—eye where are they? Think not of them, thou hast thy music too. While barred clouds bloom the soft-dying day, And touch the stubble-plains with rosy hue.

and—matching the best of these in genius and in charm—the gentle author of "Emma" and "Northanger Abbey" from her modest home by the cathedral close. Truly a goody five!

Hereabouts the path mounts awhile from the river bed, beside hedges, that are vocal with the soft flutter of wings, the fluting of hidden birds, and the sudden stir and rustle of small hedgerow life. Drawn by patient brown ponies, slowly mounting the hill, come, two gypsy-carts, green-painted, from whose rickety chimneys long wreaths of blue smoke curl upward and vanish. The weather-tanned nomads, each at a horse's head, the cheery, eager-eyed, tangled boys behind them, the momentary glimpses of a "home," caught through half-open doors, leave somehow, a sense of alluring vagabondage.

A moment later I am down in the valley meadows again, where going is not easy, over those winter sodden ways. But what matter mud and water, when every copse is bursting into leaf, and the young spring carols in your ears? Even the pink pigs cease from their nosing on the bank, to gaze and grunt acquiescence. Two gray mares cock their ears, and stare; a speckled trout splashes from under my very feet, ankle-deep in the flood that pours, joyously through every water-gate. Across bridge after bridge, wading rather than walking, I reach terra firma again, and soon am resting beneath the big yew tree that stands beside Twyford church.

MASS OF WONDROUS COLORS

Beauties of Sea-Gardens Along the Massachusetts Coast Are Almost Beyond Description.

Along the rocky coast of Nahant, Mass., the tide, rising and falling through a distance of nine feet, leaves as it recedes, quiet pools in the holes and crevices, at the base of the cliffs, where flourish little worlds of marine plant and animal. Of these tide-pools of Nahant, the "Agassiz cave" contains one of the most beautiful of the sea-gardens of the northern shore. Completely covered at high tide, at low water the mysteries of its recesses are revealed to wondering human eyes.

Many-colored star-fishes and sea anemones, gorgeous sea weeds, fragile, pink-hearted hydroids, clustered in flower-like masses, delicate pink fronds of coralline, iridescent, violet-tipped Irish moss gleaming like jewels in the sunlight, and velvety green clusters of sea-lettuce—these are some of the beauties of the tide-pool. All have been exactly reproduced in the American museum, under the direction of Roy W. Miner, associate curator of the department of invertebrate zoology.

Ended in Smoke.

I was a member of the summer colony in a small New England town. We were ever in search of novelty, and toward the end of the season decided to have a play and give the natives a treat.

The whole town came out, and (we thought) were duly impressed. At the climax the hero stalked in, brandishing a document, and, in a dramatic voice, cried, "I have the papers." Then a voice from the back row bellowed, "I have the makin's!" That, of course, ruined our play.

Needless to say, we attempted no more dramatics.—Chicago Tribune.

Little Pessimist.

For weeks the weather had been beautiful, and the morning of the picnic there was not a cloud in the sky. When everything was packed and all were ready to start, Buddy hurried into the house and came out carrying an umbrella, muttering to himself "It'll be sure to rain before we get back."

Types of Hats for Juveniles

Long and short-napped beavers, felt and wool-fur hats account for the great majority of hats for little girls. Then there are velvet tams, conspicuously, classy in the best grades, and some trimmed hats for little misses. Nearly all hats for children are quite plain, with a band and sash of ribbon for trimming, in most cases, or a bit of feather ornament on velvet-tams. But to suit the taste of those who are not in sympathy with these plain styles, there are others that make up a very interesting minority in the displays of children's hats. One of these is shown here, together with two long-napped beaver models and a practical tam of wool fur or plush.

Far and away the most popular of the various beaver shapes are made up of wide floppy-brimmed models and those with narrow drooping brims and square crowns, like those shown in the picture. Between these two widths of brim there are some very attractive shapes with round crown and brims that curve upward (in the fashion of a French sailor hat) and are moderately wide. All of them are finished with band or sash of ribbon. The tam shown is one of many, with crowns more or less full and made of duvetyne, velvet, plush, and other materials.

A dressy bonnet for a tiny girl, as pictured, is covered with satin shirred to the brim and crown. The wide collar of shirred velvet is finished at the base with a quilling of ribbon with bow and ends at the back, and a cluster of three little roses nestle in the ribbon quilling. Among the trimmings, which find most favor, because they are most appropriate for misses' hats, are pom-poms of wool or fur and flat "pin-wheels" of ostrich feathers. These appear on Blue Devil tams with fine effect. For older misses, those nearing the debutante class, there is greater variety than in hats for younger girls. Hatters' plush, metallic and metal brocade facings on upturned brims, and brilliant colors in shades toned-down by dark ribbon trims, are outstanding features in styles for the "subdeb."

New Fabrics Make Their Debut

There are a number of new velvet and suede surfaced cloths, each with a novel name of its own, that are being exploited this fall in many garments. Some of them are very much like duvetyne, others resemble chiffon velvet, and others still are to be classed with heavy erect-pile velvet. They are of wool and made by the same looms that turn out wonderful wool furs or fur fabrics, and they appear in all the new displays of fall coats and suits.

In the picture above, an evening wrap that wop the distinction of honorable mention at a recent fashion show is shown, made of one of these fabrics called "woolvel." The name amounts to a definition, since it is a heavy, supple velvet of wool that makes a fine medium for the strong, brilliant orange color now parading in the limelight of fashionable favor.

It is not usual to use this color for making entire garments, but it appears everywhere in the decoration of millinery and in touches on frocks made in dark colors or black. But it is the part of evening wraps this season to be gorgeous, and colors cannot be too pronounced or too brilliant for them. The very wide and luxurious collar of opossum fur in natural gray tones, and the black satin lining, are items in the composition of this flashing wrap that give it dignity and character.

Aside from its fashionable color and beauty of texture this wrap merited its honorable mention among many noteworthy competitors because it is wonderfully well draped. It arrives at unusual gracefulness by the simplest means, merely a few plaits and very clever cutting that reveal the fine hand of an expert. There is no limit to the extravagance of evening wraps in richness of material and in the splendor of their luxurious fur collars and trimmings. These new fabrics are more moderately priced, but equal to holding their own in company with more expensive but not more sumptuous rivals.

Julia Bottomley

Handkerchief Linen for Underwear. Handkerchief linen, in a wide variety of colors, is being used for underwear this season. Chemises and pantaloons are being embroidered in mauve, cerise, blue, jade green, peach and other shades to match the material. The linen is soft and dainty and seems unusually fresh when laundered.

Feathers on Frocks.

Dance frocks are showing "finer feathers" than they were very recently. The trimming may be either ostrich, choux, flower effects or beads. Slender wisps are seen more than the fringes, and are always seen in contrasting color.

CELERY COMBINATIONS.

Celery is said to be especially good for sufferers from nervousness and rheumatism. It is a vegetable found in the market all the year and is usually reasonable in price. It is especially good as a salad vegetable and combines with all vegetables and fruits because of its nutty flavor. Served as a fresh, crisp relish it is perhaps at its best. Curled by cutting small stalks in two-inch lengths and fringing the ends it makes a most attractive garnish. Let the celery stand in cold water for a time and the strings will curl. The ways of combining celery with other foods is numberless. The following are suggestive:

Celery Sandwiches.—Take half a cupful of white, crisp and tender celery, cut very fine; add one-fourth of a cupful of minced, nuts—pecans are best—one and one-half tablespoonfuls of mayonnaise dressing; salt and cayenne to taste. Mix until well blended and use as sandwich filling on white-buttered bread.

Celery Fritters.—Barbolic the celery until nearly cooked; add cutting into three-inch pieces season with salt and pepper and dip in fritter batter. Fry in deep fat and drain on brown paper. Serve hot.

Creamed Celery in a Cheese Shell.—Use the shell of a pineapple or Edam cheese for a receptacle. Cook the celery until tender; add it to a rich cream sauce with a cupful of parboiled oysters. Pour into the shell, cover with buttered crumbs and bake until the crumbs are brown. Do not have the oven too hot or the cheese will melt or burn and the beauty of the dish will be spoiled.

Celery and Grapefruit Salad.—Take three sections of grapefruit with the membrane removed; arrange in a nest of head lettuce with nicely shredded celery and a few shredded almonds that have been blanched. Put a ball of mayonnaise in the center and serve well chilled.

Scrambled Eggs With Celery.—Melt one tablespoonful of butter, add four tablespoonfuls of chopped celery; cook slowly for 15 minutes; add four eggs, a half-cupful of milk, stir until set, season with salt, pepper and butter and serve at once.

Celery parboiled and used as an escalloped dish with white sauce and cheese is a dish good enough to serve more frequently.

People who do not take time to eat and sleep, presently are obliged to take time to die. People who from false notions of economy live upon improper food, are shortly put to the greater expense of a funeral—Olive Green.

"Can't tell how an oyster makes his shell? No! nor I neither."

"A DOZEN OF DIVINE POINTS."

May is the spawning season for oysters and in June, July and August they are never as good, lacking flavor, which is nature's way of protecting her own. Of the ways of cooking and serving oysters there is no end. For a light supper, served from the chafing dish, they seem especially adapted.

Royal Stew.—Place the oysters in the chafing dish with enough of the liquor to float them in the pan. Chop a head of celery, add a heaping tablespoonful of chopped red pepper. As the liquid in the pan is heating, add two tablespoonfuls of butter, salt and pepper to season, and when thoroughly hot fill the pan with sweet milk. Add the celery and pepper and when boiling-hot and well-blended add a spoonful of currant jelly and serve at once.

Oyster Toodle.—Dice one-quarter of a pound of salt pork and cook slowly until well tried out. Add one pint of sliced raw potatoes, cover and cook in the fat until tender. Pour in a pint of hot milk, thicken with a tablespoonful each of butter and flour cooked together. Add a pint of oysters and when the edges curl, season and serve at once.

Creamed Oysters.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter, add a slice of onion minced, and cook until a pale yellow. Add a teaspoonful of flour and a cupful of tomato. When well cooked add a pint of drained oysters and cook until the edges curl. Add a drop of tabasco sauce, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of chopped parsley and serve on toast.

Oyster Short Cake.—Make a short cake baked in thinner layers than the regular cake. Split and butter generously as soon as baked. Curl the oysters in their own liquor and arrange them on the cake; cover and pour over a thickened white sauce, using the liquor and milk or cream with butter and flour cooked together for thickening.

Fried Oysters.—Try dipping the oysters in milk instead of egg and then in crumbs and fry in hot butter; the change will be very agreeable.

ROBIN'S LANE

By IZOLA FORRESTER.

Hardy had been home a week, and still he felt like a stranger in Taftville. Not but what everybody welcomed him, but they did it in an easy-going sort of way that left his own enthusiasm cold after ten years of anticipation.

He had been twenty-four when he had started West. There had been two incentives, his father's demand that he throw up engineering and go into the store, and Winifred's refusal to marry him.

His yearning to make good and show them the sort of man he really was had been the spur all the years he had worked and climbed. Winifred had told him she liked boys who were "steady."

That meant the hardware store, and "Irving & Son" on the long black and gold sign over the door. He had laughed bitterly, out in the lonely Arizona nights, before he had struck his right pace, and yet there had been the sting of homesickness in it too.

With all the joy of adventure and experience, the little mill town on the Yantic River back in Connecticut was home to him, and Winifred was the only girl who could bring a thrill to his heart, just little Winifred Blake with her big blue eyes that seemed to challenge a fellow to do the very best that was in him.

He had seen her only at a distance since his return—once in church, twice down along Main street when she was waiting for the car. Then he met her on the old hill road coming from the reservoir. Saturday afternoon, her hands filled with violets.

"You know they always did grow longer and larger up there," she said, as he waited beside her in the road.

"I was going up after some," Hardy told her awkwardly.

"Take the short cut through Robin's lane, why don't you? Do you remember the way?"

And Hardy deliberately prevaricated. No, he was sorry. He had absolutely forgotten the short cut. "Wouldn't she just turn back and show it to him?" Winifred hesitated, laughed a little and looked as if she didn't believe him.

"We always went that way after violets," Hardy reminded him. "It's just the little lane below the big woodlot. You know it well."

But Hardy shook his head, looking down into her eyes until she ignored him, and watched the fringe of pines and red oaks ahead of them, with slender white birches lifting tremulous new leaves in the sunlight.

He had made up his mind all the way home that he would ask her again. She had only been seventeen then. Now she was twenty-seven, and it seemed as if the years had only made her sweeter and more desirable. There was something indefinable about her now, something that evaded him. She seemed sure of herself, poised and tranquil, eyed, more tender, too, in her way.

It must have been lonely for her there in the little mill town.

"See the island over yonder," Winifred said suddenly. They had come to the crest of the hill overlooking the reservoir. It had always looked like a miniature western mountain scene, the broad lake with its rocky pine-edged shores, and rocky islands here and there. "What splendid times we used to have up here, Hardy."

"I've never forgotten one of them," he said slowly. "When you're a thousand miles and more away from home, only memories seem real."

"I know," she rejoined quickly. "All the time I was in Japan I felt that way, and when we were sent down to the Philippines it was even worse, for there I would meet somebody from home once in a while, and everything they said made me want to take the next boat back."

"You've been away?" he exclaimed. "With Aunt Dora and Uncle Phil," she nodded her head. "There were so many of us at home, and when he was sent to the East by his company, he wanted a secretary, so I coaxed him to take me. Then he died in Tokio, and because I understood the trade situation pretty well, they made me sales manager instead of trying to break in a new man. I've only been home about two months. They want me to try South America this time, but I'm tired of it. I suppose women are just tabby cats after all. You work and make believe you like it, and all the time you're thinking of some cozy corner to curl up in and rest. I'm going to buy the Prendergast place and fix up the garden beautifully, and have five cats."

Hardy laughed, laughed until she turned to look at him almost resentfully. He was so tall and broad shouldered, so resolute and sure of himself, just as she remembered him. One reason why she had gone away was to show him that girls didn't have to stay at home.

"You can't buy it," he told her teasingly, "because I knew you loved it and the deed is waiting for me now. We could make it the homestead, Winnie. I'll have to go West now and then, and I want you to come along. I want to show you all the places where I've thought of you and told myself to keep up my nerve and go back after you and make you say yes."

Winifred looked up at him over the violets held to her lips.

"I always wondered why you stayed so long," she said. "I thought you were just a quitter, Hardy, when you didn't take me with you before."

Safe Drinking Water from Cisterns

When Well Constructed, Well Operated and Equipped With Filter, They Furnish Valuable Supply for All Household Use

(By United States Department of Agriculture)

Notwithstanding the serious objections to cistern water for all household use, thoroughly well-constructed, well-operated cisterns are a boon, and their more extensive use is urged.

Vital features of a cistern from which the water supply is obtained are: Absolute water-tightness, top, sides and bottom, and close screening of inlet and waste pipes; provision for excluding from the cistern the first portion of each rainfall until the roof or other collecting area has become rinsed thoroughly; a first-class filter of clean, well-selected sand and thoroughly burned charcoal. The flow in the filter should be downward, and the top area of the filter bed and the rate of flow to the bed must be so harmonized and regulated that slow, effective filtration (not rapid straining) is secured. A waste pipe should be provided which removes surplus inflow from the bottom of the cistern where impurities tend naturally to settle. Periodic and thorough cleaning of the cistern and filter is necessary. From time to time the clogged sand should be raked or removed from the filter and the dirty charcoal replaced.

The practice of throwing charcoal into cisterns to absorb the odors of decaying organic matter is of little advantage. Boiling cistern water, or "dosing" it with chemicals to sterilize it, although safe precautions, injure the Cistern filter—Cost, $150. A, hoghead or large tank; B, tight cover, C, wire screen, D, 1/2-inch two-way rain cock, E, 1/2-inch union, F, 1/2-inch brass or galvanized pipe, perforated; G, tight overhanging cover, filter box may be wood, iron, brick or concrete, or four feet of large-size vitrified pipe; H, 24-inch layer fine sand, I, six-inch layer well-burned wood charcoal size of wheat grains, J, two-inch layer of gravel size of small pea to give support and drainage, K, 1/2-inch two-way rain cock with one branch piped to waste, L, suction pipe, M, cistern, side walls six to ten inches thick, N, one-inch overflow, O, sump or catch basin, P, emergency overflow, Q, screw cap (remove cap and attach head pump when cleaning cistern), R, waste pipe, S, swing check valve, T, screened ventilator. When starting operation waste the first water filtered; throttle cocks D and K to give the desired low rate of filtration; maintain water level above sand layer, thus protecting the surface film of mud.

Wholesomeness of the water and should be regarded as emergency measures—never as suitable substitutes for the best possible construction and operation.

If rain water is filtered effectively, the keeping qualities will be improved and large-sized cisterns may be used. That method of filtration which resembles most nearly the slow percolation of rainfall into the ground will give the greatest degree of purification. Such a filter can be constructed with a barrel or large galvanized iron tank, placed above the ground so it can be easily cared for, and filled with some suitable filtering material. The water as it drains from the roof should pass through this material before it enters the cistern, the rate being kept down to one pint in four minutes (45 gallons in 24 hours) for each square foot of area in the filter bed.

Sand is one of the best and most available filtering materials, and well-burned charcoal is most useful in removing color, taste, and odor. Fine sand removes particles to a greater extent than does coarse sand, but on the other hand it clogs more quickly. Crushed quartz and thoroughly clean pit or beach sand, such as is used in mixing mortar, are employed extensively. The size of the grains should be quite uniform and should be such that all could be sifted through holes made in a sheet of paper by a medium-sized awl or knitting needle. A depth of two feet of carefully selected sand free from clay, loam, and vegetable matter, is preferable to a greater depth of sand of indifferent quality. As the thin surface layer becomes clogged with continued use, it may be scratched or furrowed or a half inch or so may be scraped off with a trowel, until eventually the bed is reduced to 12 or 15 inches in thickness. The sand removed either should be washed and returned, or be replaced with new sand. It is advantageous to place about six inches of well-burned charcoal under the two-foot bed of sand. Triple-burned, triple-ground wood charcoal, the pieces averaging the size of wheat grains, has given excellent results and costs normally about 60 cents a bushel, in sacks, at kilns in eastern states.

Complete statistics for 1917 show 1,353,792 babies were born in the states comprising the birth registration area. The birth rate exceeded the death rate by 74.4 per cent, the United States public health reports show.

Data published in the report shows: Mortality rate among infants under one year 93.8 per cent a thousand, a total of 9.38 per cent of the total born. Total death rate for 1917 (all ages and all causes), 13.7 among white, 22.5 among negroes.

Twins born in 1917, 14,394 pairs.

Triplets born same periods, 155 trios.

The report says that courts are strictly upholding local ordinances governing health and sanitation.

Included in the report are health hints warning the public against a recurrence of the "flu" epidemics which swept the country last winter, and which may, in many cases, be forestalled by vaccination. The danger of smallpox is also pointed out.

How Sharp Soft Pine Stick May Be Used for Lettering

A storekeeper, who wished to make some large signs with heavy letters, whittled one end of a soft-pine stick down to a sharp, broad edge, and used it to letter the cards. A tool made of this kind of wood works equally well with ink or paint and, in the hands of an amateur, will make a much cleaner letter than a brush. The whittled end resembles the chisel edge on a rod-sable lettering brush, so that the ordinary motions are made in using it; but, being more rigid, it demands less skill on the part of the workman.

Variety of Uses for the 3,000,000,000 Bushels of Corn Wasted Annually

It is estimated that 3,000,000,000 bushels of corn are thrown away every year in the United States, although they can be turned to useful account in a variety of ways.

The cobs may be cooked in a closed tank with water at about 100 degrees above the boiling point. After an hour they are thoroughly softened, and when pressed yield a fluid that is evaporated in an open kettle to a thick sirup. This sirup is an excellent adhesive gum, suitable for use in the paper-box industry, in the manufacture of fiber board, for bill posting and for gumming labels. Its employment in place of starch, dextrine and flour paste would make an enormous saving of foodstuffs. The solid material left from the pressing is mainly cellulose, and may be ground coarsely, mixed with molasses and dried for stock feed. Or, by simple chemical treatment, it can be made to yield 75 per cent of its weight in pure glucose.

If yeast is added and fermentation allowed, it will produce alcohol. The cob cellulose may also be used in the manufacture of artificial silk and leather, or may be employed as an absorbent of nitro-glycerine in the manufacture of dynamite.

LOVE

If somebody loves you, You cannot be sad; You're cause for rejoicing, You're cause to be glad, You're a subject for some "As you journey, your way, If somebody loves you, You ought to be gay."

If somebody loves you, You're bound to get gay And blow in the cash In a wild reckless way. If somebody loves you, You'll part from your self And make quite an all-around Fool of yourself.

If somebody loves you, You'll write foolish notes In lovey-dove language Upon which she dotes. She'll save them and sue you And wed you by force, The jury will find for you, The plaintiff, of course. —Exchange.

William Penn, the Founder of Pennsylvania, Died at the Age of Seventy-Four

In 1715, on July 30, William Penn, the Quaker founder of Pennsylvania, died at the age of seventy-four. Penn received the charter for the territory from Charles II in 1680. He was granted almost sovereign powers of government. Immediately upon taking office he pledged to the people freedom to form their own laws and protection and security against oppression. During his long governorship his pledges were amply sustained. He organized a free society of traders and under his wise and beneficent control the prosperity of the colony grew rapidly. Penn's treaties with the Indians secured his settlement from the invasion that so retarded the development of the other colonies and enormously facilitated the increase of its population.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., SEP. 19, 1919.

HOLLY WON IN TWO GOOD GAMES

The Holly Tigers captured their prey, the Northville Independents, by taking both games of ball after two very hot contests. It was a pitcher's battle in both games and it kept the large audiences that witnessed the contest both at Northville and Holly in suspense up to the time the last man was out in the ninth. German for Northville was pitted against Miles Maines, the old Detroit Tiger pitcher, and the game stood 1 to 0 up to the eighth inning at Northville when the strain of hard pitching seemed to weaken the throwing arm of our local man, and four runs resulted and Hutchins took German's place in the box. Up to this time the old Toledo twirler had the Tigers at his mercy. Then came the awful ninth for the opposing pitcher, Maines, whom Northville pounded out four runs in the ninth. Our boys did not quite play their usual game but it was a great ball contest and we will have to contend that the best team won. The spectators were in abundance being the largest crowd of the year. In the return game at Holly the boys found another big crowd that had come from miles around to see the second contest and another real game it was. Jones and Snow were the battery for the Holly Tigers while Hutchins and Hanitz were acting for Northville. The former practically won the game in the first inning for after two men were out and two on bases a Holly batter made a three base hit and two runs resulted. After that our boys were on edge and only three more runs resulted in the entire game. Northville scored two tallies in the seventh and in the ninth had two on bases and none out. At this point when the Independents were making it very interesting for pitcher Jones, Jack Maines replaced him and it was only luck that saved the day for Holly. Jay Stimpson hit a liner to the second baseman who made a phenomenal catch and doubled to the second baseman. Had this ball gotten through for a hit it would have been undoubtedly Northville's game. Only one decision in the two games could have had any argument and umpire Green can be congratulated upon his work.

These two clubs are able to come together again at Milford fair on Friday provided that Northville wins from Howell on Thursday and Holly from Stockbridge on Wednesday.

Score at Northville:
Holly 0 0 0 0 1 0 6 0
Attendance 700.
At Holly:
Holly 2 0 0 2 0 1 0 0
Attendance 650.

Prominent Women Gather In Michigan To Hold Grand Peace Jubilee Pageant

Miss Frances D. Partridge

Mrs. Alberta V. Droelle

Miss Bina M. West

In commemoration of the valiant work accomplished in the service of their country by their many members, and those of their families, who served under their country's flag during the great war, the Woman's Benefit Association is holding a Grand Peace Jubilee Pageant at their beautiful headquarters in Port Huron, Michigan, September 15 to 19. Delegates and representatives from every state in the union and all the provinces in Canada, are in attendance.

Most prominent among the special events at the Peace Jubilee is the demobilization of the Association's Service Flag, each one of the many stars on it representing the family of an Association member which gave a father, son or brother to the cause of humanity. Besides these men who did their bit in khaki, 3,000 reviews of the Woman's Benefit Association were organized as active units of the Red Cross and over 200,000 members enthusiastically gave their every effort in this work during the war.

Prominent among the speakers at the Jubilee are Governor Steager, of Michigan, with his staff, Mayor James Cousens of Detroit, and Major Edwin Denby, U. S. Marine Corps, of Detroit, who has the honor of giving the demobilization address.

A crowd which is taxing Port Huron's accommodations to the utmost is gathered for the Jubilee and every available inch of hotel space, both in the city and at the nearby summer resorts is engaged. In addition the S. S. Naronic, flagship of the Northern Navigation Company Fleet is being used as a hotel and is docked near the Association's headquarters. At the same time as the Grand Peace Jubilee Pageant is being held, the Association holds its Quadrennial Supreme Review to which 110 delegates hold credentials.

This woman's society, the largest in the world, began its career very modestly 27 years ago under the guiding hand of Miss Bina M. West, a Michigan girl. She still ranks as its leader with the title of Supreme Commander. Today 115,000 women are enrolled in the Association and it ranks foremost among all the fraternal societies in America for women.

Miss Frances D. Partridge, the Supreme Record Keeper is devoting her life to the work, and ranks with the leading women actuaries of the continent. In her custody repose investments of over twelve million dollars, earning interest of over half a million yearly.

As great commander for Michigan, Mrs. Alberta V. Droelle, of Detroit, has made an enviable record. Her efforts in directing fraternal work towards finding homes for homeless children throughout the state have gained for her a wide reputation. As a woman of executive ability she has few equals. Mrs. Droelle is secretary of the Detroit League of Women Voters, treasurer of the Michigan Fraternal Congress and a member of the Supreme Conference Board of the Woman's Benefit Association. During the war she took an active part in women's patriotic work. At the Grand Peace Jubilee there will be nine tableaux representing allied nations. Mrs. Droelle has charge of the tableaux "United States" which will be presented by Michigan women.

FAIR TIME AGAIN

The Purpose of Our Own Festival and a History of Some Others

What is a fair? We can't all answer that from a single viewpoint. It means something different to practically every one of us. There is no doubt, though, that the feeling of gaiety is universal—even to those who must work like Turks to make the occasion a success.

The man or woman with a groutch has no business at our fair this year. You must go prepared to enjoy the blare of band music and the million noises that aren't music. You must be keyed up to revel in the sight of thousands of chattering holiday-makers, of bright decorations, of pretty girls, of sideshows and ballyhoos, of popcorn balls in red tissue and sweating glasses of orangeade, of sizzling sandwiches and ice cream cones, of live-stock and household and implement displays, of patterning trotters and picers and running horses, of buzzing grandstand, of golden sunshine and yellow dust-clouds. Yes, and tired feet and whimpering babies with heat-rash and smart cheeks here and there—for we haven't reached the land of perfection yet.

Now let's peel the surface off the situation and see what's inside. This year's fair is going to be a pretty fine advertisement for our whole community—the surrounding farm lands and farmers, the town and its enterprising, public-spirited merchants. And really that is the rock-bottom purpose of holding a fair—advertising. It is a community aim and effort to show its people how much they amount to, and to show outsiders that this is a mighty good place to live in—prosperous, progressive country and neighborly people. A man looking for a place in which to settle down couldn't reasonably ask for anything more or better.

Courtesy to Visitors.

The folks of this community understand one another. Our farmers know the town business men with whom they deal. Our business men are pretty well acquainted with most of the people who come into their stores. Now we want to show—all of us—our spirit of kindness and intelligence to the strangers within our gates during the festival season. It is the best sort of advertising we can put forth.

It is inestimably worth while to us if visitors go home and say: "I always like to attend their fair. The whole town seems to wiggle its latching at me. And they're the 'whitest' people!—go out of their way to be polite—ready to give information or do a little favor—I'm certainly going back often and get acquainted with some of them."

In order further to answer the question which introduces this article, we take down our handy reference book—a large red volume—and turn to page 426. Therein we learn that the word "fair" is derived from the Old French "feire," the modern French "foire," the Italian "fierra," the Latin "feria," meaning holiday, and that this is connected with the Latin "festus," meaning feast.

In the United States there are no fairs of the kind that have been common in the Old World. The term here is applied to a variety of exhibitions, such as church, charity and agricultural exhibitions, and local, state, national, or international expositions or fairs. The fact is, the term is applied to all exhibitions where people are expected to bestow patronage or make purchases.

THE FAIR

By Douglas Malloch.

We wrest no subterranean store from out of caverns deep and dark,
Nor with the blood-red hand of war make harvest of a nation's tears.

Ours is the wealth of God's good soil, and on his earth we leave no mark
But furrows of the farmer's toil, the business of a thousand years.

Here we assemble what we grew, here we have gathered of the yield,
The products of the work we do, our answer to the ones who ask.
These are the children of the seed, arisen in the fertile field,
A world of weary ones to feed—a noble duty, honest task.

Even in joy of labor done we have our hour for deeper thought,
To see the glory of the sun in smiling fruit and golden grain;
Even in the frolic of the fair we realize how God has wrought
Till herds increase and blossoms bear, fed by his sunshine and his rain.

All mindful of our work again another season yet to be,
Let us come forth rejoicing then to pass a merry week away—
Proud of the treasures that are ours, with merriment and industry
Taking of earth both fruit and flowers, taking of life both work and play.

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

There is noticeable everywhere a distinct change in the trend of motor car buying.

It is evident that a sharp preference has sprung up for the solid virtues of reliability and economy.

And, as a result, numbers who last year drove other types of cars are this year placing orders for Dorts.

Its pronounced ability to travel smoothly and comfortably, to endure capably hard usage, and to keep operative cost at a low level, is a matter of exact record.

It handles lightly, turns in a small radius, picks up nimbly, and holds the road closely at all speeds.

It is a car that you can rest assured will satisfy you fully.

MODERN MAZE IN NORTHVILLE TOWN

"DETOUR" SAYS ONE SIGN
"DON'T" SAYS ANOTHER. BUS-INESS SECTION LOST.

DIFFICULTY DUE TO TEARING UP
TWO MAIN STREETS AND ROUT-ING TRAFFIC OVER TWISTING BYWAYS.

The modern labyrinth has been discovered. It is in this village.

Motorists who endeavor to pass through Northville on their way to any of the cities or villages that lie beyond it on the improved roads of Oakland, Wayne and Washtenaw counties, have seriously considered adopting the plan whereby a mythological personage found his way out of the labyrinth of old—namely tying a cord to a post when they enter the town and letting it unroll behind them as they venture onward.

The reason is, thus: Northville at the best, has probably the most crooked meandering streets in the state. They wind about here and there, like forest trails, uphill and down dale, ending in railway tracks, factory yard or blind pocket. Then this summer it was decided that the two main streets should be paved.
The decision came rather suddenly and without much preparation the work was started. Both streets were torn up throughout the length of the town, and closed. Every other street in town, it seems crosses one or both, somewhere or other.

The powers that be put up detour signs. The signs say simply "detour" and "follow the arrows." Usually the arrows point at right angles to each other. The signs do not indicate where the detour will carry you, you simply detour, serenely confident in the knowledge that presently another sign will say the same thing and point somewhere else.

One Pontiac motoring party Sunday spent half an hour trying to find the business section of the village. Half a dozen citizens gave differing directions and finally the machine came to a halt in the yard of a factory. A sympathetic Northvillian was ready with his aid, which was the advice either to go out into the country by way of a road opening handily near,
and thence take a fresh start back into the town, or else to retrace the route already covered, in the hope of detecting a break in the detourage.

Eventually the party secured a guide and was conducted to its destination.

Northville will have fine streets,
when it gets them—Pontiac Daily Press.

IMPORTANT CHANGES ON D. U. R.

Next Monday morning, September
22, the fall timetable on the Orchard Lake division will be effective whereby the Orchard Lake limited will be cancelled; the resorters generally having deserted the cottages until school closes next summer.

Outside of this cancellation there are but few changes from the present week day timetable, which will also be the Saturday schedule. Northbound there will be an additional car at 6:32 a. m. from the Junction to Farmington. Southbound the car now leaving the Junction at 6:45 a.
m. for Detroit will start from Farmington at 6:38 a. m.

We call particular attention to a slight change in the time of the limited leaving Northville for Detroit.
It will leave two minutes earlier than now—at 6:38 a. m. instead of 6:40 a.
m. as at present.

On September 28 the Sunday timetable changes with hourly service to Northville and Pontiac, the first car being at 6:45 a. m. Additional cars for Redford and Grand Lawn will run at 8:15 a. m. and hourly to 8:15 p. m.
the latter car as well as the one at 7:15 p. m. going to the Junction as will cars at 8:45 p. m. and 9:35 p. m.
Additional cars will leave Orchard Lake for Pontiac at 1:52 p. m. and hourly to 5:52 p. m.

Cars will leave Northville for Detroit as at present and will leave Pontiac at 7:00 a. m. and hourly to 9:01
p. m., 10:11 p. m. for Detroit. Additional cars will leave. Pontiac for Orchard Lake at 1:31 p. m. and hourly to 5:31 p. m., and for the Junction at 11:11 p. m. and 12:11 a. m. Additional cars for Detroit will leave the Junction at 5:23 a. m., 7:23 a. m.,
8:23 a. m., from Farmington at 6:18
a. m. and from Grand Lawn at 9:35
a. m., and hourly to 7:35 p. m.

Milford expects to have a concrete road through the village next summer.

The Oxford Leader remarks concerning apiece of highway near that village, commenced several years ago by one contractor and now finished by another: "The road was supposed to be under construction for the past three years by an alleged company. It is not reported whether the remains of the old contractors were unearthed while the late operations were in progress."

To the Village, Clerk of the Village of Northville, and the Highway Commissioner of the Township of Northville, Wayne County, Michigan.

Sirs:

You are hereby notified that the Board of County Road Commissioners, for the County of Wayne, did at a meeting of said Board held Friday, August 15th, 1919, decide and determine that the certain road described in the minutes of such Board should be a county road under the jurisdiction of said Board of County Road Commissioners. Why Is Northville Firm?

Because Its Citizens Have Learned The Truth.

After reading this generous and en- couraging report from Mr. Clark, those who have the misfortune to suffer, as he did, will naturally long to get similar relief. But to get the same good as Mr. Clark had, you should get the same remedy. There are of course, other kidney pills but there are no other kidney pills the same as Doan's. That is why North- ville people demand the genuine.

N. L. Clark, retired farmer, Grace avenue, Northville, says: "It has been some time since I have had to take Doan's Kidney Pills, but, speak- ing from past experience, I couldn't advise anyone to use a more reliable medicine than Doan's. Whenever my back bothered me or my kidneys acted irregularly, Doan's Kidney Pills soon rid me of the trouble."

Price 50c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Clark had. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Petition received from property owners and tenants on Main street relative to cement step along sidewalk on each side of Main street from Cen- ter street to alley east of Northville State Savings bank. Moved by Bal-den, seconded by Cole, that petition be granted. Yeas, Bal- den, Cole; Nays, Simmons, Miller, Hills. Motion lost. Council adjourned.

And we Invite You to make this Store Your Headquarters while here.

NEW FALL FURNITURE

Everything in Furniture and Rugs is advancing in price nearly every week. Most of the manu- facturers have sold the entire output of their factories for from four to six months ahead. The dealer who failed to place his orders early and in large quantities will not be able to get any mer- chandise for the fall and holiday trade. Because of the scarcity of all material en- tering into the manufacture of furniture and rugs and the rapid increase in cost of both labor and material, dealers are now compelled to buy, not knowing what the goods will cost. The price is fixed the day shipment is made, from 30 to 60 days later.

We saw these conditions coming and instead of waiting for the July market as nearly all dealers did, we placed our orders early and now we have the goods in our store for your inspection.

NORTHVILLE and PLYMOUTH.

A CHALLENGE.

If Manager German of the Northville Independents wants a game with the Cubs, all they ask is a square deal. If he can use men from Redford, Plymouth, Carleton, Northville and Detroit, the Cubs ought to be allowed to have two extra men, at least, from Novi or Commerce. The Independents haven't got to go away to play ball.

Just cover the Cubs' $100 and we will play them any day in the week.

THE REPLY.

To the Manager of the Base Line Cubs, whoever that may be: Your challenge above taken from last week's Record is before me. First, a comment on the challenge. No name is signed as manager, and I would like to know whom I am to talk business with, as a square deal is requested. If anything else but a square deal with me is wanted, no further talk with me on this matter can be had. You state that we have players from Redford, Plymouth, Carleton, Northville and Detroit, yet in your list that has reached me you have the nerve to name your players from Pontiac, Commerce, Novi, Wixom, Detroit and Base Line.

Now boys, I will overlook all technicalities and will gladly accept your challenge together with my same players, but will have to ask that the game and further arguments be put off until after our Northville Big Fair that takes place next week.

Respectfully yours,
HARRY S. GERMAN

HE PROVED HIS FAITH.

Late Tuesday afternoon, as the shades of night were falling, D. B. Bunn, the local agent for Fordson tractors, received by truck direct from the Dearborn factory a tractor which he contemplates demonstrating at the Fair next week. It was nearly dark when the implement and equipment which were brought with the tractor were unloaded and those who were watching the unloading process expressed their doubts about the ability of the machine to run up the steep grade, recently made on the east side of the Ford garage. Mr. Bunn quietly informed the skeptical ones that he would go up alright and he demonstrated his faith in the machine by climbing aboard and heading the tractor up the hill. The grade is so very steep that some of the men expressed fears that the little machine would tip over backwards and cautioned Mr. Bunn to be careful. With unquestioned faith in the machine he is offering his customers, Mr. Bunn threw in the clutch and drove the tractor up the steep incline without any trouble and into the garage with the speed and ease of a Ford car. It was certainly a fine demonstration of the pulling power of the Fordson and if any one doubts this story Mr. Bunn will do the trick again.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS NOTES.

The next regular meeting will be held Wednesday evening, Sept. 24, in Foresters' hall. Let us make a special effort for a full attendance. This coming Saturday Sept. 20, there will be a sale of home baked goods at Huff's hardware store. Let us all help to make it a success. Any home product that is good to eat gladly accepted.

Wheat in History.

The Romans introduced wheat into Great Britain. They did not have to carry it far, because before they invaded Britain they had conquered Gaul. The place of modern times and the Gauls were growing large crops of wheat when the Romans crossed to the western islands. The Britons began to grow wheat and the Saxons continued the work. Still through the Middle Ages the bread of the poorer classes was made of flour from the common grains.

New York's First Railroad

The first railroad in New York state and one of the first passenger railroads in the United States was constructed of wooden rails from Albany to Schenectady, a distance of 17 miles, in 1831. Ten years later the Erie rail route was opened from Buffalo to Schenectady.

VALUE OF FAIR
TO OUR PEOPLE

Agricultural and Industrial Show for Both the Town and Country Folks.

AN EXCHANGE FOR NEW IDEAS

Besides, It Appeals to All of Us Who Want to Be Amused While We're Learning—Closer Touch With Home Lives of Neighbors.

The fair is an educational clearing house. It is an agricultural and industrial institute for residents of both town and country. It is a short course in better farming and better living. It is a physical demonstration of why the man who farms with his head instead of with his hands must inevitably succeed.

It is a comprehensive exhibition of what the ambitious boy or girl may achieve in agriculture, livestock raising, canning horticultural home gardening, domestic science or household economy. It is an exposition of the marvelous improvement in farm machinery and agricultural implements. It is an object lesson in the great part which improved machinery plays in the development and cultivation of the farm and the increased prosperity of the farmer.

Look for Yourself.

The educational value of our fair lies in the fact that it is demonstrative in character. The eye is a more convincing instructor than the ear. We are slow to accept and slow to act until we have had optical proof of its superiority over the old.

Often it is difficult to secure the attention of the busy man or woman long enough to give such a demonstration. Not infrequently it happens that farmers who would be most benefited by better methods of farming are not sufficiently interested to be present at any special meeting called for the purpose of discussing the subject.

But the fair appeals to that trait of mankind which demands entertainment and amusement and becomes a common forum for the discussion of all matters having to do with agriculture, industry, the home and the school.

In this clearing house of education the farmer learns what the manufacturer, the merchant and the banker are and have been doing to make his labor less arduous and his farm more profitable and the town resident learns what rapid progress is being made in agriculture. A bond of common interest is created which means much to both town and country.

Value to Everybody.

The farmer learns by actual observation of the newest devices and improvements in agricultural implements. He learns their use and benefits. He learns in what way they assist in soil cultivation, in plant growth, in sowing, in harvesting, in threshing. He learns the economic value of the more modern machinery, of the use of motor power on the farm.

The urban dweller is furnished a vivid picture of the agricultural resources of the community. He learns about the fertility of the soil in the vicinity; of what is being done to increase the farm yield; to improve the quality of the stock; and to multiply the total dairy product.

Every man and woman, whether town or country resident, is brought into closer touch with the home life of others. All realize that broader education which means co-operation—that ideal education which is service to self and all humanity.

COME AND SEE US

YOU will find the latch-string of this newspaper office hanging out all ready to be pulled during fair time, and once inside you will be met with cordial welcome. If we don't know you personally, this is a first-rate opportunity to get acquainted. If you're an old acquaintance, you'll have the advantage of not feeling like company.

ABOUT OUR NEIGHBORS.

Interesting items from our exchanges—gathered with pencil, paste pot and scissors.

Last week's output of farm tractors at the Ford plant at Dearborn was more than 300 machines daily. Miss Fay Luella Myers of Redford was first prize winner at the State fair in the between-two-and-three-year class. She was absolutely perfect on all points considered.

Milford Boy Scouts, awarded first prize at the Oakland county rally of Scouts in June are to receive the trophy, a silver loving cup, this Friday evening, with appropriate ceremonies.

The Lahser road running north from the seven mile road to the Oakland county line has been completed and opened by the Wayne county road commission, making a new route to the Oakland lake region for Detroit motorists. The commission expects to complete the posting of every mile of road in the county this week.

Mrs. George Cleary of Pontiac has the distinction of being the first woman juror ever drawn on a panel for circuit court. She was selected to represent the Third ward of that city Tuesday morning when the jurors presented themselves. Mrs. Cleary was among those present. Owing to the fact that no steps have yet been taken by the board of supervisors to provide jury rooms for women, it became necessary for Judge Rockwell to excuse Mrs. Cleary for the term—Birmingham Eccentric.

FAIR NOTES.

It only remains for the weather department to show a four-day smile next week to insure a record-smashing success for the fair.

The Ponsford special prizes for the best canned fruit assortments are on view in the Ponsford store window, and are attracting much favorable comment.

It is expected that the special prizes offered for baking done by girls under fifteen will bring out some surprising talent on the part of the little maids of Northville and vicinity.

A good many of the expert bakers of this section will no doubt compete for the valuable special premiums offered by J. A. Huff in that line. Mrs. Flora Larkins, superintendent of the baby show, notifies the Record that she has just received a special prize of $100 to be given to the baby who is a member of the largest family.

Honesty First Requisite.

It would be an unspeakable advantage, both to the public and private; if men would consider that great truth that no man is wise or safe but he that is honest.—S. J. Walter Raleigh.

Dear Friends—

Jim Kern is going to be a candidate for Sherin this fall and his friends think he will be a strong candidate as he has a barrel of Old Rye Whiskey in his cellar. Poke Early says his wife may take a notion to run for School Director or Treasurer or anything else, but he is at the head of the Eating table.

Well, they say I am going out of Business, but I say not. I am going to run a store in Northville of I have to build a log shanty to run it in. I have too many good customers to quit the business now. But I am selling out. I sell out every day, but I have more coming.

I am headquarters for everything that is good to eat. All kinds of Bread at 14 cents.
Pies, Cookies and Fried Cakes at lowest prices. Lots of Flour at reduced prices. Coffee and Tea by the wholesale, the best, at the price it used to be.

I will cut the prices and cut the meat, to please the people I work cheap and hard myself. People say I am a Fool. I would like to have them tell me something I don't know, but there is one thing, I hope I have more brains than to pile dirt on a cement road. If we have plenty of rain it will not need any mixing. But this is a good place to buy Candy Cigars and Tobacco.

McKahn Business Not Transferred.

The transfer of the McKahn coal business to Mr. Harlow, as announced in The Record last week, has not been consummated, on account of the illness of the purchaser. Mrs. McKahn is still in possession of the business, and will doubtless offer it for sale in the near future.

Cady Street Improvements.

Some of the improvements along Cady street are interesting and attracting considerable attention. George Goodell has just completed a fine new porch at his residence. Ray Klump is treating his home to a new coat of paint.

Frank Green has built a porch and other repairs.

Roy VanValkenburg is building a new chimney from the ground up, and H. Jackson is also building a new porch.

Charles Tibble is making marked improvements in his home (formerly John Ambler place) on West Main St., by raising the house and filling up the lot with the surplus sand from the road which is being graded. Mr. and Mrs. C. R. McDougall were given an extremely pleasant surprise party by about twenty of their neighbors last Thursday evening and were presented with a handsome cut glass water set as a token of the esteem in which they are held by their Northville friends. Mr. and Mrs. McDougall left Saturday for their new home at Harzen Island.

The Michigan Agricultural College will open its sixty-second year on Tuesday, September 30, offering courses in Agriculture, Engineering, Home Economics, Veterinary Medicine and Forestry. Indications are that the largest entering class in the history of the school will enroll for the year. The courses in agriculture are proving especially popular.

Is Northville a Mecca for some modern Diogenes, or was this merely a lost opportunity? One of the men employed in the road-building operations on Center Street last week hung his vest on Dr. Schuyler's fence and forgot to take it away for a day or two. Coming back for the garment—naturally in some excitement—he found it just as he left it, with $110 in one of the pockets.

E. L. Smith of Howell has bought the Robt. Thompson property on Wing street—formerly the I. N. Stark-weather home—as a residence, and will be associated with S. A. Lovewell in the Lovewell Farms business. Mr. Smith is a recognized "live wire" and in combination with another one like Mr. Lovewell things may be expected to "hum" more busily than ever in the real estate business.

The Michigan Agricultural College reports that a disappointment is in store for many farmers who had expected to eat sorghum molasses on their pancakes next winter. It transpires that a large part of the supposed sorghum seed planted in Michigan this year was from a cross between the "lasses timber and broom corn, resulting in the sweeping away of a whole lot of "sweet hopen" and plans.

Postmaster Tinnam has again been on the sick list this week.

Miss Lydella Murdock has accepted a position at the Northville Drug Company's store.

Wallace G. Metheson, who has been ill for the past two months, is now staying at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour Brown.

The birthday of Miss Alberta Elizabeth Ross was inadvertently mentioned last week as "September 31," instead of August 31.

A number of Northville people have attended the fairs at Ann Arbor and at Milford this week. The Record was represented at both places.

Arthur Simmons now drives a new Dort car, which he purchased through the local agency of Hills Bros. The Dorts are winning public favor rapidly.

Ladies, don't forget those dandy special prizes offered by Mr. Huff for baked goods and by Mr. Ponsford for assortments of canned fruits and vegetables.

There are to be no motion pictures at the Alseium through fair week, as the Henderson Stock Co. have leased the theatre for the entire week.

As another indication of Northville's growing prosperity, the combined business of the two local banks as shown by their regular reports in this issue foots up a total of approximately $1,300,000.

The officials of the Fair have interviewed the county road commissioners as to the use of the new pavements next week and it is probable that the streets will be opened up for possible without danger to the roadways.

Edward Martin of Wixom, who has been suffering from necrosis of the bone in one of his ankles for many months past, underwent the amputation of the diseased member Wednesday, at the hands of Dr. T. B. Henry, at the home of Mrs. Elizabeth Nixon on Main street.

It is hoped that the young girls of Northville and vicinity will make a showing of baking skill at the fair that will surprise everybody. The premiums and the honor are worth trying for, and especially as all the entries of baked goods submitted will be sold and the proceeds turned over to the owners of the articles.

New houses already completed or still under construction in Northville are two on the Balder lots on South Wing street, the Carrington residence, Orchard Heights, George Alexander's house on Beal Ave., Charles Hills' on north Wing street, George Henry's on Rogers streets, George Grinnell's on Cady street, the Richardson bungalow on High street, besides other dwellings under various improvements.

The monthly social supper at the Presbyterian church last Friday night was a great success. A delicious supper was served to 230 people, followed by a pleasing program which included a charming little song by three of the Sunday school girls, Barbara Blackburn, Aylis Brown and Ida Ross Cavell, a humorous reading by Mrs. W. L. Tinnam a vocal solo by Mrs. A. E. Stanley, a talk by Carroll Dubiar on his army experiences and music by Schoute's 12 piece orchestra, which also played during the supper hour.

ANOTHER MACCABEE DANCE.
The Maccabees will give another of their dances at Forester Hall, Friday, Sept. 19th. All are invited to attend.

PEESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

ROOMS FOR FAIR TIME.
There will be a demand for rooms during the fair and any householders who wish to let rooms at that time can obtain without charge the required signs, "Rooms to Rent" by calling at the secretary's office Record building.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.
Mr. L. R. MontGomerie the "Shanty Preacher," among the Lumber Jacks of the North woods, will preach at both morning and evening services. Morning subject, "The Second Coming of Christ." All not regular attendants of other churches are cordially urged to come and hear Mr. MontGomerie.

AUCTION SALE.
On Wednesday, Oct. 1st, Geo. B. Yerkes and Sam Pickard will have an Auction sale, at the Geo. B. Yerkes Farm northeast of Northville, 51 Holstein registered and high grade dairy cattle. Sale begins at 12:30 sharp, rain or shine, and the auctioneers are to be Harry Robinson, Frank Boyle and George Rattenbury, with F. J. Fishbeck of Howell as pedigree reader.

Mrs. Balder announces that her Fall Millinery is now ready, and she will be pleased to show the new styles at any time.

Barnes listened at the door until he heard the water clattering down the stairway, and then went swiftly down the hall to No. 30. Mr. Prosser was sleeping just as soundly and as resolutely as at midnight.

"By gad!" he muttered, half-aloud. "Everything was as clear as day to him now. Boiling into his own room, he closed the door, and stood stockstill for many minutes, trying to picture the scene in the cottage."

He found a letter in his box when he went downstairs, after stuffing the tin box deep into his pocket. Before he slit the envelope he knew that Sprouse was the writer. The message was brief:

"After due consideration, I feel that it would be a mistake for you to abandon your present duties at this time. It might be misunderstood. Stick to the company until something better turns up. With this thought in view I withdraw the two days' limit mentioned recently to you, and extend the time to one week. Yours very truly,
"J. H. WILSON."

"Gad, the fellow thinks of everything," said Barnes to himself. "He is positively uncanny."

He read between the lines, and saw there a distinct warning. It had not occurred to him that his plan to leave for New York that day with Miss Cameron might be attended by disastrous results.

But the jewels? What of them? He could not go gallivanting about the country with a half million dollars' worth of precious stones in his possession.

He spent the early part of the forenoon in wandering nervously about the hotel—upstairs and down. The jewels were locked in his pack upstairs. He went up to his room half a dozen times and almost instantly walked down again, after satisfying himself that the pack had not been rifled.

For the next three days and nights rehearsals were in full swing, with scarcely a moment's let-up. And so the time crept by, up to the night of the performance. Miss Cameron remained in ignorance of the close proximity of the jewels, and the police of Crowdale remained in even denser ignorance as to the whereabouts of the man who robbed Mr. Hasselwein of all his spare cash and an excellent gold watch.

No time was lost by the countess in getting word to her compatriots in New York. Barnes posted a dozen letters for her; each contained the tidings of her safety and the assurance that she would soon follow in person. Those three days and nights were full of joy and enchantment for Barnes. He actually debased himself by wishing that the Rushcroft company might find it imperative to go on rehearsing for weeks in that dim, enchanted temple.

He sat for hours in one of the most uncomfortable seats he had ever known, devouring with hungry eyes the shadowy, interested face so close to his own—and never tired.

On the afternoon of the dress rehearsal he led her, after an hour of almost insupportable repression, to the rear of the auditorium. Dropping into the seat beside her he blurted out, almost in anguish:

"I can't stand it any longer. I cannot be near you without—why, I—I—well, it is more than I can struggle against, that's all. You've either got to send me away altogether or—let me love you without restraint. I tell you I can't go on as I am now. You know I love you, don't you? You know I worship you. Don't be frightened. I just had to tell you today. I should have gone mad if I had tried to keep it up any longer." He waited breathlessly for her to speak. She sat silent and rigid, looking straight before her. "Is it hopeless?" he went on at last, huskily. "Must I ask your forgiveness for my presumption and—go away from you?"

She turned to him and laid her hand upon his arm.

"Am I not like other women? Why should I forgive you for loving me? Doesn't every woman want to be loved? No, no, my friend! Wait! A moment ago I was so weak and trembled that I thought I—oh, I was afraid for myself. Now I am quite calm and sensible. See how well I have myself in hand? I do not tremble, I am strong. We may now discuss ourselves calmly, sensibly. Oh! What are you doing?"

"I too am strong," he whispered. "I am sure of my ground now, and I am not afraid."

He clasped the hand that rested on his sleeve and, as he pressed it to his heart, his other arm stole over her shoulders and drew her close to his compliant body. For an instant she resisted, and then relaxed into complete submission. Her head sank upon his shoulder.

"Oh!" she sighed, and there was wonder, joy—even perplexity, in the tremulous sigh of capitulation. "Oh," came softly from her parted lips again at the end of the first long, passionate kiss.

CHAPTER XXI.

The End in Sight.

Barnes, soaring beyond all previous heights of exaltation, ranged dizzily between "front" and "back" at the Grand opera house that evening. He was in the "wings" with her, whispering in her delighted ear; in the dressing-room, listening to her soft words of encouragement to the excited leading lady; on the narrow stairs, leading up to the stage, assisting her to mount them; and all the time he was dreading the moment when he would awake and find it all a dream.

"There was an annoying fly in his ointment, however," she said simply. "I love you," she said simply. "I want more than anything else in all the world to be your wife. But I cannot promise now. I must have time to think, time to—"

"Why should you require more time than I?" he persisted. "What is time to us? Why make wanton waste of it?"

"I know that I cannot find happiness except with you," she replied. "No matter what happens to me, I shall always love you. I shall never forget the joy of this. But—I cannot promise now," she finished gently and kissed him.

Between the second and third acts Tommy Gray rushed back with the box-office statement. The gross was $359. The instant that fact became known to Mr. Rushcroft he informed Barnes that they had a "knockout," a gold mine, and that never in all his career had he known a season to start off so auspiciously as this one.

Three days later Barnes and "Miss Jones" said farewell to the strollers and boarded a day train for New York city. They left the company in a condition of prosperity. The show was averaging two hundred dollars nightly and Mr. Rushcroft was already booking return engagements for the early fall. He was looking forward to a tour of Europe at the close of the war.

Barnes' sister, Mrs. Courtney, met them at the Grand Central terminal. "It's now a quarter to five," said Barnes after the greeting and presentation. "Drop me at the Fifth Avenue bank, Edith. I want to leave something in my safety box downstairs. She'll be more than five minutes."

He got down from the automobile at Forty-fourth street and shot across the sidewalk into the bank, casting quick, apprehensive glances through the five o'clock crowd on the avenue as he sprinted. In his hand he lugged the heavy, weatherbeaten pack. His sister and the Countess stared after him in amazement.

Presently he emerged from the bank, still carrying the bag. He was beaming. A certain worried, haggard expression had vanished from his face, and for the first time in eight hours he treated his traveling wardrobe with scorn and indifference.

"Thank God, they're off my mind at last," he cried. "That is the first good, long breath I've had in a week. No, not now. It's a long story and I can't tell it in Fifth Avenue. It would be extremely annoying to have both of you die of heart failure with all these people looking on."

He felt her hand on his arm, and knew that she was looking at him with wide, incredulous eyes, but he faced straight ahead. He was terribly afraid that the girl beside him was preparing to shed tears of joy and relief. He could feel her searching in her jacket pocket for a handkerchief.

Mrs. Courtney was not only curious but apprehensive. She hadn't the faintest idea who Miss Cameron was, nor where her brother had picked her up. But she saw at a glance that she was lovely, and her soul was filled with strange misgivings. She was like all sisters who have pet bachelor brothers. She hoped that poor Tom hadn't gone and made a fool of himself.

The few minutes' conversation she had with the stranger only served to increase her alarm. Miss Cameron's voice and smile—and her eyes!—were positively alluring.

She had had a night letter from Tom that morning in which he said that he was bringing a young lady friend down from the north—and would she meet them at the station and put her up for a couple of days? That was all she knew of the dazzling stranger up to the moment she saw her. Immediately after that she knew by intuition a great deal more about her than Tom could have told in volumes of correspondence. She knew, also, that Tom was lost forever!

"Now tell me," said the countess the instant they entered the Courtney apartment. She gripped both of his arms with her firm little hands and looked straight into his eyes, eagerly, hopefully. She had forgotten Mrs. Courtney's presence, she had not taken the time to remove her hat or jacket.

"Let's all sit down," said he. "My knees are unaccountably weak. Come along, Edie. Listen to the romance of my life."

And when the story was finished the countess took his hand in hers and held it to her cool cheek. The tears were still drowning her eyes.

"Oh, you poor dear! Was that why you grew so haggard and pale and hollow-eyed?"

"Partly," said he with great significance.

"And you had them in your pack all the time? You—"

"I had Sprouse's most solemn word not to touch them for a week. He is the only man I feared. He is the only one who could have—"

"May I use your telephone, Mrs. Courtney?" cried she suddenly. She sprang to her feet, quivering with excitement. "Pray forgive me for being so ill-mannered, but I—I must call up one or two people at once. They are my friends. You will understand, I am sure."

Barnes was pacing the floor nervously when his sister returned after conducting her new guest to the room prepared for her. The countess was at the telephone before the door closed behind her hostess.

"I wish you had been a little more explicit in your telegram, Tom," she said peevishly. "If I had known who she is I wouldn't have put her in that room. Now I shall have to move Aunt Kate back into it tomorrow and give Miss Cameron the big one at the end of the hall." Which goes to prove that Tom's sister was a bit of a snob in her way. "Stop walking like that and come here." She faced him accusingly. "Have you told all there is to tell, sir?"

"Can't you see for yourself, Edie, that I'm in love with her? Desperately, horribly, madly in love with her."

"Yes," She Breathed.

Don't giggle like that! I couldn't have told you while she was present, could I?"

"That isn't what I want to know. Is she in love with you? That's what I'm after."

"Yes," said he, but frowned anxiously.

"She is perfectly adorable," said she, and was at once aware of a guilty, nagging impression that she would not have said it to him half an hour earlier for anything in the world.

She was strangely white and subdued when she rejoined them later on. She had removed her hat. The other woman saw nothing but the wealth of sun-kissed hair that rippled. Barnes went forward to meet her, filled with a sudden apprehension.

"What is it? You are pale and—what have you heard?"

She stopped and looked searchingly into his eyes. A warm flush rose to her cheeks; her own eyes grew soft and tender and wistful.

"They all believe that the war will last two or three years longer," she said huskily. "I cannot go back to my own country till it is all over. They implore me to remain here with them until—until my fortunes are mended." She turned to Mrs. Courtney and went on without the slightest trace of indecision or embarrassment in her manner. "You see, Mrs. Courtney, I am very, very poor. They have taken everything. I—I fear I shall have to accept this kind, generous proffer of a—her voice shook slightly—"of a home with my friends until the Russians are driven out."

Barnes' silence was more eloquent than words. Her eyes fell. Not until Mrs. Courtney expressed the hope that Miss Cameron would condescend to accept the hospitality of her home until plans for the future were definitely fixed was there a sign that the object of her concern had given a thought to what she was saying.

"You are so very kind," stammered the countess. "But I cannot think of imposing upon—"

"Leave it to me, Edie," said Barnes gently, and, laying his hand upon his sister's arm, he led her from the room. Then he came swiftly back to the outstretched arms of the exile.

"A very brief New York engagement," he whispered in her ear; he knew not how long afterward. Her head was pressed against his shoulder, her eyes were closed, her lips parted in the ecstasy of passion.

"Yes," she breathed, so faintly that he barely heard the strongest word ever put into the language of man.

Half an hour later he was speeding down the avenue in a taxi. His blood was singing, his heart was bursting with joy—his head was light; for the feel of her was still in his arms, the voice of her in his enraptured ears.

He was hurrying homeward to the "diggings" he was soon to desert forever. He was to spend the night at his sister's apartment. When he issued forth from his "diggings" at half-past seven he was attired in evening clothes, and there was not a woman in all New York, young or old, who would have denied him a second glance.

Later on in the evening three of the countess' friends arrived at the Courtney home to pay their respects to their fair compatriot and to discuss the crown jewels. They came and brought with them the consoling information that arrangements were practically completed for the delivery of the jewels into the custody of the French embassy at Washington, through whose intervention they were to be allowed to leave the United States without the formalities usually observed in cases of suspected smuggling. Upon the arrival in America of trusted messengers from Paris, headed by no less a personage than the ambassador himself, the imperial treasure was to pass into hands that would carry it safely to France. Prince Sebastian, still in Halifax, had been apprised by telegraph of the recovery of the jewels, and was expected to sail for England by the earliest steamer.

And while the visitors at the Courtney house were lifting their glasses to toast the prince they loved, and, in turn, the beautiful cousin who had braved so much and fared so luckily, and the tall wayfarer who had come into her life, a small man was stooping over a rifle's knapsack in a room far downtown, glumly regarding the result of an unusually hazardous undertaking, even for one who could perform such miracles as he. Scratching his chin, he grunted—for he was the kind who bears disappointment with a grin—and sat himself down at the big library table in the center of the room. Carefully selecting a pen-point he wrote:

"It will be quite obvious to you that I called unexpectedly tonight. The week was up, you see. I take the liberty of leaving under the paperweight at my elbow a two-dollar bill. It ought to be ample payment for the damage done to your faithful traveling companion. Have the necessary stitches taken in the gash and you will find the kit as good as new. I was more or less certain not to find what I was after, but as I have done no irreparable injury I am sure you will forgive my love of adventure and excitement. It was really quite difficult to get from the fire escape to your window, but it was a delightful experience. Try crawling along that ten-inch ledge yourself some day and see if it isn't productive of a pleasant thrill. I shall not forget your promises to return good for evil some day. God knows I hope I may never be in a position to test your sincerity. We may meet again, and I hope under agreeable circumstances. Kindly pay my deepest respects to the Countess Ted, and believe me to be,

"Yours very respectfully,

"SPROUSE."

"P. S.—I saw O'Dowd today. He left a message for you and the countess. Tell them—said he, that I ask God's blessing for them forever. He is off tomorrow for Brazil. He was very much relieved when he heard that I did not get the jewels the first time I went after them, and immensely entertained by my jolly description of how I went after them the second. By the way, you will be interested to learn that he has cut loose from the crowd he was trailing with. Mostly nuts, he says. Dynamiting munition plants in Canada was a grand project, says he, and it would have come to something if the d—d women had only left the d—d men alone. The explosives are O'Dowd's."

Ten hours before Barnes found this illuminating message on his library table he stood at the window of a lofty Park avenue apartment-building his arm about the slender, yielding figure of the only other occupant of the room. Pointing out over the black housetops, he directed her attention to the myriad lights in the upper floors of a great hostelry to the south and west and said:

"That is where you are going to live, darling."

GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil is enclosed in odorless, tasteless capsules containing about 5 drops each. Take them as you would a pill, with a swallow of water. INSPIRATION AT ODD TIMES
How Longfellow Wrote "Wreck of the Hesperus"—Rossini Composed Music in Bed.

Longfellow's "Wreck of the Hesperus" came to him as he was sitting by his bedside, the night after a violent storm. He went to bed, but could not sleep; the Hesperus would not be denied; and as he lay the verses flowed on without let or hindrance until the poem was completed.

One at least of Rossini's splendid pieces of music was composed in bed. It was when he was young, poor and unknown, and lived in wretched quarters. After writing a duet the composer allowed his manuscripts to slip off the sheets and fall under the bed, and moreover he believed it would be unlucky to pick the sheets up; so he went to work to rewrite the duet. To his disgust he could not remember it. It was therefore necessary to write a new one. This he had finished when a friend entered.

"Try that," said the composer, "and tell me what you think of it." The verdict was favorable.

"Now," said Rossini, "look under the bed. You'll find another duet there. Try that, too."

The friend did so, and declared the original composition was much the better. It is included in his works today.

Lift off Corns!

Doesn't hurt a bit and Freezone costs only a few cents.

With your fingers! You can lift off any hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the hard skin calluses from bottom of feet.

A tiny bottle of "Freezone" costs little at any drug store; apply a few drops upon the corn or callus. Instantly it stops hurting, then shortly you lift that bothersome corn or callus right off. Foot and all, without one bit of pain or soreness. Truly! No humbug!—Adv.

AIMING ABOUT LONG ENOUGH

Old Gentleman Evidently Thought Prospective Son-in-Law Should Be Getting Ready to Fire.

John Bewine was the most bashful lad in a Wessex village. For three years he had been keeping company with Lottie Reid, but he could not bring his courage up to the popping point. On Sunday night, as he was leaving the garden gate of his innamorata, he encountered the old man, who had begun to chafe under the diffidence of his daughter's sweetheart.

"Look-ee here, John!" exclaimed gaterfamilias; "you have been coming to see my daughter for several years now, and I want to know what your intentions are."

"W-w-well, s-s-sir," stammered John, "I am aiming to-to m-marry her."

"Aiming!" snorted the old man. "Well, don't you think it about time that you fired?"—London Tit-Bits.

The Cult of Fashion.
Young lady at the theater to friend: "What do you think of this play, my dear?" "Why, it's absurd! Three months are supposed to pass between the first and second acts, and the heroine's still got the same hat on!"

No Interest.

Home Town Helps

REASONS FOR OWNING HOME

Fourteen Points That Will Not Cause So Much Controversy as Another Famous Set.

1. In the long run the home owner is more prosperous than the renter.
2. The home owner is permanent; the shifter does little good to his city or himself.
3. The home owner is progressive; the renter is not interested in progressive movements.
4. Habits of thrift learned in home buying add to the wealth of the individual and the city.
5. The home owner beautifies the city; the renter does not.
6. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better worker than the renter and keeps his position after the renter is discharged.
7. The owner of a home has an ever present protection against poverty and will not become a charge upon the community.
8. No city of renters can ever succeed. No nation of tenants ever became great.
9. A city that is worth living in is worth owning a home in.
10. Other things being equal, the home owner is a better citizen, a better soldier, a better American than the renter.
11. The prosperity of any city depends upon the prosperity of its individual citizens.
12. The more beautiful our city is the more people will be attracted to it.
13. Home owners add to the buying power of a municipality. Tenants detract.
14. Self-respect and independence are the greatest assets in life. Health and happiness are the children of success.

NURSERY-GROWN TREES BEST

Excellent Reasons Why Wild Varieties Are Not Suitable for Growth in Cities.

Digging wild trees for home planting is not successful as a rule. In the first place wild trees are likely to grow where they are crowded and are drawn out taller than they should be. Others have not had an opportunity to develop evenly and may be well shaped on one side only. Then the roots have been left to spread out at long distances and the trees cannot be removed without breaking off important roots, so the trees will be a long while in recovering and a large percentage will die.

Nursery-grown trees are grown where they develop evenly on all sides, and are frequently transplanted and root pruned, which keeps them from growing too spindling and the roots are thus confined to a small area, so the trees can easily and safely be transplanted.

In making home plantings it is a grave error to attempt to use wild trees.

If many trees are to be used it is advisable to visit a nursery and personally select each specimen.

Urges Value of Beechnut.

A writer in the Chicago Daily News makes a plea for the beechnut. A high-grade quality of this nut might easily be made a delicious article of food. The beech tree, well grown, is an object of great beauty. In Europe extensive avenues of them are found, and the fruit carefully conserved. Many a township could easily handle along its roadsides 10,000 noble beeches and as many hickories, not to speak of a large sprinkling of other nut trees and shrubs, all of them largely taking care of themselves. Each town or county could have its own nursery for fostering a high grade of nut trees and shrubs.

To Get Rid of Ants.

Powdered borax sprinkled around the infested places will exterminate both red and black ants. Powdered cloves are said to drive them away. Another plan is to grease a plate with lard and set it where these insects abound. They prefer lard to anything else, and will forsake sugar for it. Place a few sticks around the plate for the ants to climb up on. Occasionally turn the plate bottom side up over the fire, and the ants will fall in with the melted lard. Or, use a small amount of oil of turpentine, run into the cracks with an ordinary sewing machine oil can.

Home Gardens Pay.

Garden work is health giving, especially for those whose occupations are indoors. To allow land that might grow food to lie idle is almost criminal in this war-torn world. The products of the garden are simply indispensable to a wholesome dietary. When home grown their quality must be better than any that can be bought. Next year should see a further increase, instead of a further decrease, in home gardens.

Life.

Our life is precious to us for the activity that we are capable of, and still more because that activity may be so adjusted as to give us the consciousness of acting in harmony with the divine mind.—Archbishop Thomas Back Given Out?

Housework is too hard for a woman who is half sick, nervous and always tired. But it keeps piling up, and gives weak kidneys no time to recover. If your back is lame and aching and your kidneys irregular, if you have "blue spells," sick headaches, nervousness, dizziness and rheumatic pains, use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have done wonders for thousands of worn out women.

A Michigan Case

Mrs. James M. Murphy, 516 Maple St., Saint Ste. Marie, Mich., says: "Kidney troubles came on me and I was so miserable from a steady ache across my back that I was often unable to attend to my work about the house. My kidneys were out of order. My feet and hands swelled and I suffered from dizzy spells. I felt all run down until I took Doan's Kidney Pills. This medicine cured all the kidney symptoms and put me in the best of shape."

PAT EVIDENTLY MADE GOOD

News From America Seemed to Prove Irishman Had Not Misjudged His Capacity.

Pat Finnegan had left his wife in Ireland and gone to America to try his fortune and establish a home for his family in the new world. It was some two or three weeks after Pat's departure that his wife stood in the meager garden in front of her home, looking down the road her man had gone, and moodily speculating on his success. She was rudely startled by the harsh voice of Mrs. O'Leary calling her over the fence.

"Have you heard the news from America, Mrs. Finnegan?"

"Faith, an' Oi have not."

"'Tis in the paper this mornin'. Read it fer yersilf. 'America gone dry. Last alcoholic drink sold at midnight, June 20.'"

Mrs. Finnegan looked doubtful for a minute; then, swelling with pride and casting a triumphant glance at Mrs. O'Leary, she shouted back:

"Faith, an' Pat always said, 'give him two weeks an' there was not a country in the world he couldn't drink dry.'"

TWO "GUIDELESS WONDERS."

The owner of the horse Asa Wilkes is evidently something of a "Guideless Wonder" himself, at least he is not guided in his dealings by any of the ordinary principles of business integrity, and cares more about money than about keeping his word.

Because of being offered a larger sum somewhere else, he will not appear at the fair here with his horse next week, and he has also served Milford the same trick this week.

Deepest sympathy is expressed on all sides, for Miss Kathleen Safford and her parents in the misfortune that came to her last Saturday when she was so badly injured by a fall as to necessitate later the removal of two joints of her spine. Dr. Thomas B. Henry performing the operation. She is doing as well as can be expected under the circumstances.

Attention Dairymen

We have the following to offer in Feeds:
Car Unicorn Dairy Ration, 26 per cent protein
Car Larre Dairy Feed 20 per cent protein.
Car of Michigan Winter Wheat Bran.
Gust Barnhart is a good feeder and he says it is worth $5.00 more a ton to him than western bran.

Feeds seem pretty expensive, but when we stop to consider the matter we must agree there never was a time when 100 pounds of milk or a day's wages would buy more pounds of reliable Dairy Feeds than it will to-day. So don't begrudge the cow her daily bread, but feed her cheerfully and she will more than repay you.

We carry a good line of Roofing Boards, Ship-Lap, 2x4's, Shingles, Fence Posts, Wire Fencing, Barbed Wire, Tile, etc.
Timothy Seed
"Toot" is getting those rickety milk wagons pretty well fixed up, but he says he cannot shoe those good horses of yours unless you drive them down.
