THE LAST GAME OF THE SEASON

The Northville Independents will play their last game for the season at the driving park next Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. This is the game that so much talk and arguments have resulted into a wager affair and the winner will take $150.

Manager German for the Northville Independents found that Chas Hamilton and Henry Hills were acting managers of the Base Line Cubs and when the three-base ballists met, arrangements were made for next Tuesday's game. Some of the conditions relative to the game are as follows: That German is to pitch for the Northville Independents and is to remain in the box during the nine innings or his substitute shall be another player chosen from his team by the manager of the opposing club. That Weinke shall pitch for the Base Line Cubs and remain nine innings or his substitute shall be a player of the Cubs chosen by the manager of the opposing club. That the Cubs shall be allowed the players Rogers and Weinke of Pontiac and Spencer and Perry of Wixom, thus giving the Cubs four semi-professional men. That the Northville Independents' team shall be no other players than those played with Northville against Howell and Holly. That the umpire shall be Green of Owosso or some other outside official agreeable to both managers. And that the game be played, rain, hail or snow, on Tuesday next. There seems to be no ill feelings between the two teams but as near as can be ascertained is that the Independents had the wager fever with Howell and Holly and the outcome is that the Cubs contracted the fever. There is no question but that both teams as named are each capable of playing good ball and when the friends and backers of both clubs turn out next Tuesday the attendance will, no doubt, equal the big crowd that attended the Howell or Holly games here. Here is hoping that the boys have good weather.

UNIFORMITY IN SCHOOL MATTERS FOR WAYNE COUNTY.

In answer to a call from Supt. of schools, Frank Cody of Detroit, the superintendents of the Wayne county schools held a recent meeting at the Board of Education building in Detroit.

At this meeting plans were made for a uniform course of study for the county, uniform records, and a uniform system of transfers.

The school problem of the county is the problem of the children leaving the city for the nearby towns. By securing uniformity it is hoped that waste may be eliminated and valuable service done the people and children of Wayne county.

Assistant Supt. Fredericks of Detroit and Supt. Bowen of Northville were appointed a committee to arrange for a uniform course of study in reading for the schools of Wayne county.

REDFORD BALL TEAM DEFEATS NORTHVILLE.

The game between Redford and Northville last Saturday at Redford was won by the former, the score being 3 to 2. The game was a good one but the crowd did not seem enthusiastic and that appeared to make the players listless. Both batteries, Hutchins and Hantz for Redford and German and VanBuren for Northville allowed but a few scattering hits. Four of the Redford boys have been playing with the Northville boys this summer and friendship was probably too closely linked to put the vim and fighting spirit in the game to make it a real hot ball game.

INFLUENZA DANGER.

A meeting at Lansing of the 1400 township health officers of Michigan has been called for Oct. 21 by State Health Commissioner Olin, for discussion of strict preventive measures against the recurrence of an influenza epidemic. Six deaths from this dreaded disease have already been reported to the state health department this fall, also several isolated cases. It is hoped that this meeting will bring about conditions that will avert the danger of an epidemic.

Eight new members were received into the Presbyterian church last Sunday morning.

The Northville Independents and the Base Line Cubs' players are all named in another column of this paper. Read them over and see which team you choose.

PUBLIC RECEPTION AT SCHOOL BUILDING

A reception is to be given for the public school teachers Friday evening, October 17, at the High school building. This is to be a Community affair an opportunity for more people to become acquainted with the school, its workings and especially those who have charge of the children each day. Those who attend this function will spend a social hour together and will be supplied with light refreshments. A short program will be given that will be entertaining and instructive and practical.

The general tendency is to let the school affairs run along and give them no great attention until there is some trouble to untangle. This occasion will be one where parents and friends can get another view of the school system in which the boys and girls are getting their training.

WON FIRST GAME.

Northville High played its first scheduled football game in the 4-square League, when they met the Farmington High team last Friday at the fair grounds. The first few minutes of the first quarter was enough evidence that the game was to be close. Toward the end of first quarter the Northville backs had crossed Farmington's line for a touch-down. The other quarters showed the superiority of Northville's team, the final score being 30 to 0. The work of the team as a whole was very good. Farmington played a passing game, while Northville's style was straight football, most of the gains being off end runs. The work of Chapman, Freydl and Watts was spectacular at times, while Wilcox showed good judgment in his choice of plays. Stillwell on the line was a big factor in defense. The ends were played by Dey and Carpenter. Kestell, Thorpe, Atkinson, Taylor, Buckley, and Litsenberger held down the center of the line.

FORMER NORTHVILLE MAN HONORED.

The following from the Toledo Times will be of interest to the many Northville friends of Lee Macomber, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Macomber of this place:

"L. G. Macomber, traffic commissioner of the Commerce club, has been appointed a member of the Central Territory Freight Traffic committee, with headquarters at Chicago."

"Mr. Macomber will practically represent the whole state of Ohio in the important work of the committee, which passes upon rates and practices affecting the whole of the central freight territory, one of the most important districts in the United States."

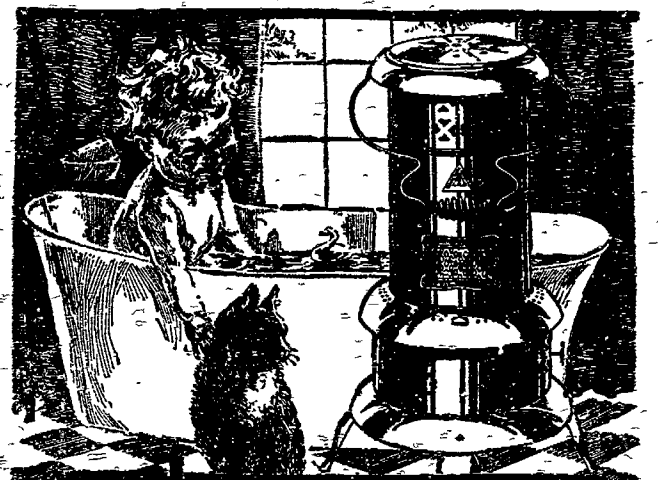

"Mr. Macomber has been in charge of the local traffic bureau since December 1, 1918, and has been active in securing a number of advantages for Toledo shippers and manufacturers. His wide knowledge of railroad conditions and traffic matters has earned for him and Toledo an eminent place among traffic experts. He is also treasurer of the Ohio State Industrial Traffic association."

NORTHVILLE IS FORTUNATE.

Northville is fortunate in having so well an organized force of telephone operators and management. Manager A. D. Hall has shown excellent judgment in gathering about him such an efficient, painstaking and obliging lot of employees as he has. The operators in question are Misses Clara Wagner, chief; Jessie Roe, Marie Wilcox, Laura White, Allie Raynor, Lottie Fritz and Mrs. Sadie Miller. In the repair department are Floyd Shafer and Lawrence Miller, also both experts in their line. Not many towns in Michigan can boast of so good a force and none has better Northville's service is the equal or superior to any town in the state.

MORE BUSINESS CHANGES.

F. S. Harmon and F. S. Neal have purchased the store buildings on the west side of Center street occupied by Shipley's barber shop, the Quick Repair shoe shop; the Elliott's D. U. D. waiting room and the office building occupied by Judge Noble and the McKahn Fuel & Ice company. Mr. Elliott has bought out Jay Goodale's business on Main street, and will move his business there later on. George Pickell has leased the D. U. R. waiting room property and will move there about November 1st, having bought out Will Ely's pool and billiard business.

Do You Know Who Made

The Calendar?

The calendar nearly as we use it was made under the auspices of Julius Caesar or rather reformed by him. Previous to his time they called a year 365 even days. That 1/4 of a day had been piling up so long that March had slipped back into a winter month. He made March again a spring month. The year then began in March so July was the fifth month called Quintilis, they went on sextilis, Septilis, Octilis, Novemilis, Decemilis as you see the words meaning 5th, 6th, etc., up to tenth. Caesar had quintilis changed to July—after his own name Julius—Afterward Augustus Caesar changed sextilis to August after his first name the other four months have remained as they were with the termination "ilis" changed to "ember." In order to avoid the recurrence of the same trouble they made up that 1/4 of a day by putting in the extra day after four years. This calendar was named Caesar after the Julian calendar. But as centuries went on a similar trouble occurred for the year is not quite 1/4 of a day more than 365. In the sixteenth century the discrepancy had amounted to 10 days. Then Pope Gregory assembled scholars and it was decided to drop out the 10 days. October 4, 1582, became October 15. Since they had put in too many days they decided not to call the centennial year a leap year unless it was divisible by 400. So 1900 was not a leap year but 2000 will be. This calendar which we now use was called after the Pope the Gregorian calendar. England being Protestant refused to accept it until 1752 and was by that time 12 days out which she dropped then. Russia being Greek Catholic instead of Roman refused to make the change until during the late war when she was 14 days out. Under the Gregorian calendar it will take many thousands of years before there is an appreciable discrepancy. Of course when the Julian calendar was made the years were reckoned from the founding of Rome. It was not until sometime in the fourth century when at a church council it was decided to count from the birth of Christ. Church scholars at the time of the Gregorian calendar thought they learned that Christ was born near January first so they made January the first month of the year. So September which means seven became the ninth month. October which means eight became the tenth month and so with November and December meaning nine and ten respectively.

IN BANGKOK

A View in Bangkok.

At Singapore the traveler bound for Siam quits the liner and embarks upon one of the small steamers which take the mails to Bangkok. The steamer makes for the low mangrove-fringed shore which marks his destination and presently enters the muddy Bangkok river, writes P. A. Thompson in "Siam." On either side stretch salt marshes, soon hidden behind the luxuriant vegetation. Here on the oozy banks are fern-like attap and rank tropical growths, half submerged, while rising from the firmer ground behind are the slender trunks and graceful fronds of areca and coconut palms.

Bangkok is twelve miles from the coast in a direct line, but so tortuous is the river that it is fully three hours before we arrive. Here a score of small steamers are anchored in mid-stream. Others lie alongside the wharves, together with sailing vessels of all descriptions: merchantmen from Europe, rice boats from up country, and fishing boats from the gulf. Every where we see Chinese toiling. Boats ply to and fro between the banks, and every now and then the little vessels are set dancing and plunging in the wash of the steam launches which tear by. At length we too draw in to a wharf and land amidst piles of goods.

Motley Throng in the Street.
Behind the wharves and mills which line the river on its eastern side, we come upon a long street, white and dusty in the dry months, and in the rainy season a lane of mud. Here at all seasons a motley crowd of Chinese, Siamese, Malays, Hindus and Mahomedans jostle each other, while coolies toll along at a foot pace with "rickshaws" in the last stages of dilapidation. A crazy gharry, bearing a distant resemblance to a London growler and drawn by a diminutive pony, bumps over the uneven surface, and on one side of the road electric trams, packed with natives, are screeching along the ill-laid track. None of these methods of locomotion appeals to us, nor do we feel inclined to mingle with the throng of pedestrians. However, if we are lucky we may find near by a stable, at which we may hire a pair of horse gharry, a sort of miniature victoria. We will not look on while the ponies are being put in, for it is not well to know exactly how much string is used in the composition of our harness. It is certain that the proportion is large, but if only the reins hold out we must be thankful.

On either side are rows of one-storied wooden houses. The shops on the ground floor are quite open to the street, and we can see Chinese carpenters, tailors and bootmakers at work inside, while elsewhere cheap cotton goods and hardware are displayed. Now and then we pass a Chinese joss-house with fantastic roof-ridge, and through the open door we see an altar decked with tinsel and peacocks' feathers.

Official Quarter and Royal Palace.
Our driver expects us to direct him at every step, so if we say nothing he will keep straight on and we shall presently come to the old city wall, white-washed now, and much disfigured with telegraph wires, but with picturesque battlements shaped like the leaves of the sacred Bo tree. Within we are at once sensible of a great improvement as we bowl over the well-kept surface of a broad avenue, planted with plane trees, and bordered by neat rows of brick houses. As we cross a canal we catch a glimpse of trees reflected in the water, and trim lawns, and beyond them pagodas blazing with pure gold in the sunlight. This is the official quarter. Here, too, is the Royal Palace, whose brilliant roofs and iridescent res are seen over the dazzling whiteness of the outer wall.

Just outside the city wall is the Golden Mount, a bell-shaped mound, faced with brick, but so overgrown by trees that it has the appearance of a natural hillock. On the summit is a little shrine surmounted by a pagoda, and to it leads a flight of steps, winding about a hill. From here we look down upon a forest of palms and plane trees, through which break the red roofs of the houses. Everywhere rising above the trees are graceful spires and the manifold roofs of temples,

KEEP BUSY AND LIVE LONG

Notable Examples of Longevity Among Men Who Have Elected to Remain in "Harness."

Maybe it used to be that "the good die young," but it doesn't look as though they're doing it now.

Take, for instance, Rev. Albert Vogel of Jeannette, Pa. He is one hundred and two years old. He's never smoked or chewed tobacco or drank intoxicating liquor. Never quarreled or fought with another man. Always trying to do good and to persuade others to behave themselves.

Rev. Mr. Vogel is the oldest active minister of the gospel in the United States.

Hard work, lots of walking and an occasional fishing trip is his formula for a long and happy life.

Add this reminds us that Rev. Dr. Aaron E. Ballard is president of the Ocean Grove Camp Meeting association, New York, and is ninety-eight years old.

"I never would have lived to this age," Doctor Ballard said, "if I had retired at sixty and commenced twirling my thumbs in idleness."

So it seems the good don't die young if they keep busy.—New York World.

SAYINGS OF CARNEGIE

Educate man and his shackles fall.

I hope Americans will some day find more time for play, like the wiser brethren on the other side.

Immense power is acquired by assuring yourself in your secret reveries that you were born to control affairs.

The day is coming and already we see it dawn, in which the man who dies possessed of millions of available wealth, which was free and in his hands ready to be distributed, will die disgraced.

Labor, capital and business ability are three legs of a three-legged stool; neither is first, neither is second, neither is third; there is no precedence, all being equally necessary. He who would sow discord among the three is an enemy to all.

The first and most seductive peril, and the destroyer of most men, is the drinking of liquor. (Mr. Carnegie himself was a total abstainer, and gave his employees at Skibo castle a 10 per cent advance on their wages every year they reported that they had not touched liquor).—From the Books and Public Addresses of the Ironmaster.

Fish That Spin Silk.
Silk stockings are very expensive nowadays, says Pearson's Weekly. The most costly of all this kind of hosiery, however, is made from silk which is not the product of the silk worms, but a species of shellfish called a puina.

The puina makes its home in the warm waters of the Mediterranean round Sicily. It has an odd little tube at the end of its tongue.

Out of this tube, spider-fashion, or silk-worm fashion, it spins a silk thread with which it fastens itself to any rock to which it wishes to adhere.

When the puina moves on to fresh feeding grounds its silken cable is left behind. This cable, which is called byssus, the Sicilian fishermen gather. Byssus weaves into the softest, finest, sheeniest of fabrics; but it is very rare, and the stockings woven from it consequently are—as has been said—exceedingly expensive.

Variations In Fall Styles

To say the least, suits for fall have been presented in greatly varying styles, much to the satisfaction of women who aspire to looking more slender than they really are, as well as those whose aspirations are all in the other direction. In spite of the persistence with which fashion artists draw attenuated ladies, in wraithing poses, for our admiration, women continue sensible enough to object to looking angular and skinny. The designers of suits have been kind and there are new models for the too slender and the too stout figure. The possessor of a "model thirty-six," or any other model of good proportions, can choose any of the various styles.

At the right of the two suits, shown in the picture above, as a model that will simply shave off pounds from the stout figure. Long and gently curving lines, almost unbroken from head to heels, are cleverly calculated to deceive the eye and smooth out the sharp curves in stout figures. American women having insisted on longer skirts, Paris accepted their decree, and this suit takes advantage of the mode to go to an extreme of it. By this means the figure is lengthened. The coat follows the same strategy and note that the waist line is indicated as very long by the group of three narrow tucks in the back of the coat that end in an arrow head, or "crow toes," far below the normal waistline. Silk embroidery on two flat strips of cloth applied at the sides; in the same color as the suit. These bands are a concession or a recognition of the Ribbon for Costumes.

Ribbon is used to a considerable extent by American designers making up their autumn models. And a big use of ribbon prevails in the development of costumes for several important and extensive theatrical productions.

The business woman must usually be her own beauty doctor, and she need not regret this if she gives herself fifteen minutes time at the end of each day, just before retiring. The hands, as well as the face and scalp, must have systematic attention.

Many girls who do office work, or sell goods over a counter, injure their hands unnecessarily by not washing them often, for much damage is done the nails and skin by permitting an accumulation of dirt to remain in the pores for several hours.

When cleansing hands so stained, soap and water should not be the first application, for nothing but a soft grease will be effective.

The finger tips require several extra strokes. Rinsing must be thorough. Drying finishes the cleaning, but is not the simple process that many persons think, and in the manner of doing it lies half the secret of having pretty nails. Each finger must be taken separately, the towel rubbed down the sides, back and front, beginning at the top.

The common mistake is to begin at the finger base and rub up, which simply trains the cuticle down over the nails and thickens the tips. Every nail must be wiped individually, commencing at the top and pressing gently down to the crescent at the base of the nail.

File the Finger Nails.
To keep the nails in good condition, always file them, never use the scissors to cut. Cleanse under the nails with equal parts of lemon juice and water. Use an orange-wood stick; also keep the cuticle around the nails smooth. Polish the nails whenever necessary.

Nails that break easily must be given a course of olive oil. It should be rubbed into the finger tips each night. Massage well and occasionally give the fingers a bath in hot olive oil.

If it is not convenient to use the oil, vaseline is a good substitute. Whenever doing rough work the fingers should be protected with gloves. If it is not comfortable to wear them over the whole hand, fingers can be cut from old gloves.

Polish for Nails.
An inexpensive and harmless nail polish is made by thoroughly mixing together a half ounce of talcum powder, a half ounce of powdered starch, a half ounce of pulverized boric acid and 15 drops of tincture of carmine. Do not rub the nails until the sensitive flesh beneath burns, as this causes them to become dry and brittle.

GOODBYE, WOMEN'S TROUBLES

The tortures and discomforts of weak, lame and aching back, swollen feet and limbs, weakness, dizziness, nausea, as a rule have their origin in kidney trouble, not "female complaints." These general symptoms of kidney and bladder disease are well known—so is the remedy.

Next time you feel a stinging of pain in the back or are troubled with headache, indigestion, insomnia, irritation in the bladder or pain in the joints and lower abdomen, you will find quick and sure relief in GOLD MEDAL Haariem Oil Capsules. This old and tried remedy for kidney trouble and allied derangements has stood the test for hundreds of years. It does the work. Pains and troubles vanish and new life and health will come as you continue their use. When completely restored to your usual vigor, continue taking a capsule or two each day.

GOLD MEDAL Haariem Oil Capsules are imported from the laboratories at Haariem, Holland. Do not accept a substitute. In sealed boxes, three sizes.—Adv.

DEWS OF EVE

No More Gentle Than "Cascarets" for the Liver, Bowels

It is just as needless as it is dangerous to take violent or hasty cathartics. Nature provides no shock absorbers for your liver and bowels against calomel, harsh pills, sickening oil and salts. Cascarets give quick relief without injury from constipation, biliousness, indigestion, gases and sick headache. Cascarets work while you sleep, removing the toxins, poisons and sour, indigestible waste without griping or inconvenience. Cascarets regulate by strengthening the bowel muscles. They cost so little too.—Adv.

"Forget it. Pay your fare and cut out the bull."
"Get off your foot, I dug up once."
"Where'd you get on?"
"Water street."
"Yes, you did. What happened at at River street, just now?"
"Well, at River street, for one thing, a woman handed you a quarter and you bluffed her out of the change at Hill street four people got on and you rang up three fares; at Prairie street, when you changed that $5 gold piece."
At this point the conductor decided he had enough.

"Move on," he shouted. "There's plenty of room up front. Don't be blockin' the gangway."—San Francisco Chronicle.

A SUMMER COLD

A cold in the summer time, as everybody knows, is the hardest kind of a cold to get rid of. The best and quickest way is to go to bed and stay there if you can, with a bottle of "Boschee's Syrup" handy to insure a good night's rest free from coughing, with easy expectoration in the morning.

But if you can't stay in bed you must keep out of draughts, avoid sudden changes, eat sparingly of simple food and take occasional doses of Boschee's Syrup, which you can buy at any store where medicine is sold, a safe and efficient remedy, made in America for more than fifty years. Keep it handy.—Adv.

The Northville Record.

E. E. BROWN, Publisher.

An Independent Newspaper published every Friday morning at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville post-office as Second-Class matter.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., OCT. 10, 1919.

ADDED A NEW AMBULANCE.

Dealing to give their patrons the very best service and to keep their equipment strictly up-to-date in all its appointments, Schrader Brothers, furniture dealers and funeral directors, have added a handsome new ambulance and the new car arrived in Northville the first of the week from Grand Rapids. The new ambulance is built upon very attractive lines and is the last word in motor ambulance construction. Finished a steel grey, with handsome trimmings and furnishings, the vehicle is one of the finest ever turned out by its builders and Messrs. Schrader are to be commended for the enterprise they have displayed in making this new addition to their equipment.

WILL RETURN SOON.

In response to a letter sent to the Board of County Road Commissioners, Secretary Neal of the Northville Automobile club has received the following information from Engineer-Manager Leroy C. Smith, under date of October 7: "We expect to be back on the job at Northville with the concrete crew in two weeks. Weather permitting, we should be able to complete the mile west of town. Meanwhile, we are hauling material and getting enough ahead of the mixer so there will be no delay from stocking material. It is improbable that we get the Center street road done until spring. We paved the first block so as to accommodate the village as much as possible, anticipating that result. You may rest assured that we are doing our best. Remember, we didn't even know of this project until along in May. We have had all sorts of labor troubles, have had to erect and operate a washing plant to meet the shortage of commercial gravel, and in all we feel that we have pounded the job on the back pretty hard."

The Record believes the general opinion agrees with Mr. Smith that the work has made all the progress that could be expected under the circumstances. The concrete work has been especially rapid when in progress, and if it had been no strike the necessity for the present halt in the cement laying would not have arisen, although even at that, cessation of that part of the building has more apparent than real effect on the completion.

FARRAR AND OTHER BRILLIANT STARS FOR ANN ARBOR CONCERTS.

The Ann Arbor concert series is attracting a great deal of attention throughout the state on account of the exceptionally brilliant array of musical talent which is to participate.

Geraldine Farrar, the wonderful star of the Metropolitan Opera company, who has also become famous as a film artist, will open the series on Saturday evening October 18 (the evening of the day of the Michigan M. A. C. football contest). At her Ann Arbor debut she will be assisted by Arthur Hackett, the young American tenor who has attracted so much attention and Rosita Renard, the Chilean pianist whose concerts in the United States last year were loudly acclaimed. This combination of musicians have prepared a program of song which will please the average layman as well as the skilled musician.

Later in the year five other big numbers will be given, including two concerts by the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, under the leadership of its distinguished conductor, Ossip Gabrilowitsch, and recitals by each, Jascha Heifetz, the young Russian violinist, whose remarkable performances have been nothing short of sensations, Josef Hoffman, the well known pianist, and Riccardo Stracciari, the distinguished Italian baritone, whose stellar work

LOCAL.

A. T. Stewart of Charlevoix has been among the recent former Northville folks to visit the old home town. The thirty-ninth annual convention of the Oakland county W. T. C. U. was held in Pontiac Tuesday and Wednesday.

Born, Sept. 30, to Mr. and Mrs. Merton V. Fish of Detroit, a son, Mrs. Fish was Miss Ruth Vradenburg of Northville before her marriage.

The D. U. R. proposal to be allowed to collect the recent increased fares notwithstanding the injunction now in force, refunding same should the courts finally decide against the raise, has been denied by Attorney General Groesbeck.

The Michigan State Telephone Co. filed its new schedule of rate with the public utilities commission Tuesday. These rates which have been published locally throughout the state cover all exchanges with the exception of Detroit.

with the Chicago Opera company has attracted so much attention. For the accommodation of out-of-town attendants special interurban cars will leave both east and west at the close of all concerts.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

The Ladies' Aid society will hold its monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. George Baker on Tuesday afternoon next.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

There will be preaching services next Sunday, both morning and evening at the customary hours, with Sunday school as usual.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

Next Sunday is Rally Day. Only one morning service—at 10:00 o'clock. Program by Sunday school. Lots of enthusiasm. Good music. A splendid time. That is, of course, if we all come and help. Every person who stays away makes Rally Day a failure so far as he is concerned, and so much less a success for the whole Sunday school and church. Therefore—Come! Evening service at 7:30. Sermon: "The Constraint of Love." Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

"Columbus Day" next Sunday. Little Ione Wood has nearly recovered from the injuries received at the fair.

As noted among the various club reports in the Pontiac Daily Press, Mrs. Minnie Hutton, a former valued member and officer of the Northville Woman's club, is a member of the program committee of the Pontiac Woman's club for the present year.

FRUIT FARM CHANGES HANDS.

S. N. Mason has sold his fruit farm just west of town—the former Robt. Thompson property—to John B. Smith of Plymouth, Superintendent of the Detroit-Eden Gardens. Mr. Smith is also called, "The Melon King of Michigan," and is well known on the Detroit markets. He has elaborate plans for his newly acquired property, and intends to plant the entire 58 acres to fruit, principally apples and plums. Mr. Mason returns to Detroit to devote his time to his business of manufacturing apron lamp shades.

IS VERY MUCH ALIVE.

One of Northville's returned overseas soldiers has had the somewhat unusual experience this week of answering a letter referring to himself as "the late" and extending the sympathy of the U. S. War Department to his family on account of his supposed death. The young man in question is Peter Perkins of the Record force, and the mistake came about through his being seriously injured during his service in France. He was sent to the hospital unconscious and was probably reported killed. The letter received from the War Department was in regard to sending his family his personal property which was turned over to the department during his stay in the hospital on supposition that he had died from his supposed fatal injuries.

NORTHVILLE WOMAN'S CLUB OPENS.

Another of the many delightful social occasions in the history of the Northville Woman's club occurred last Friday, when the club opened its sessions for the season with "President's Day," as has been the custom for many years past. The guests of honor were the ex-presidents, nine of whom are living. Six of these were present at the meeting, and acted as reception committee.

The "exs." with the present president, were seated at a large round table and were asked to give reminiscences of her administration. These were given in place of toasts at the close of the beautifully served collation, the 1919-20 president acting as toastmistress. The library room was especially pretty with an abundance of tastefully arranged decorations in autumn foliage, berries and flowers, as were the large tables and the smaller surrounding ones. The place cards were in the form of the letter X, hand tinted in autumn colors. Instrumental music added to the pleasure of the afternoon, and all united in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." The committee in charge received

STATEMENT OF OWNERSHIP, MANAGEMENT, ETC.

In accordance with the U. S. postal laws, Act August 24, 1912, the following statement is published as of date October 1, 1919.

Name of publication:—The Northville Record.

Editor and Publisher—E. E. Brown. Owner—E. E. Brown. Known bondholders, mortgages, and other security holders owning or holding 1% or more of total amount of bonds, mortgages or other securities are: F. S. Neal. (Signed) E. E. BROWN. Owner.

Sworn and subscribed to before me this 9th day of October, 1919. ERNEST MILLER, Notary Public. My commission expires Feb. 9, 1920.

many compliments and a unanimous vote of thanks for the charming manner in which the affair was carried out.

At the request of the governor and the state fire marshal yesterday was observed in many towns and cities of Michigan as fire prevention day. The day might well have been observed in Northville by cleaning up the alleys in the rear of our business cleaning. There are lots of places there which ought to be removed and the "back yards" given a thorough cleaning. There are lots of places among the rubbish for little fire bugs to find lodgment, and besides the untidy appearance does not reflect any credit upon our pretty village.

The Ford Sedan is high-class in appearance and appointments. The seats are restful and deeply upholstered with cloth of high quality. Large doors give convenient entrance on either side; plate glass windows make it a closed car for inclement weather, and give fresh air when open. With high quality in appearance and equipment there is the simple and safe control in driving. A woman's car—a family car for every day in the year. Ford Sedan, $875. f. o. b., Detroit.

Attention Dairymen

We have the following to offer in Feeds :
Car Unicorn Dairy Ration, 26 per cent protein Car Larre Dairy Feed 20 per cent protein.
Car of Michigan Winter Wheat Bran.

Gust Barnhart is a good feeder and he says it is worth $5.00 more a ton to him than western bran.

Feeds seem pretty expensive, but when we stop to consider the matter we must agree there never was a time when 100 pounds of milk or a day's wages would buy more pounds of reliable Dairy Feeds than it will to-day. So don't begrudge the cow her daily bread, but feed her cheerfully and she will more than repay you.

We carry a good line of Roofing Boards, Ship-Lap, 2x4's, Shingles, Fence Posts, Wire Fencing, Barbed Wire, Tile, etc.

LOCAL TROOP B. S. A. HAS BRIGHT PROSPECTS.

With the assistance of three good assistant Scoutmasters who will look after hikes and other out-of-door activities coming under the head of Scouting, there is going to be "something doing" for the boys who belong to the organization.

If you are a live boy between the ages of 12 and 18 years of age, you will no doubt be interested. The Scout program includes, knot tying, signaling, first aid, proper use of knife and hatchet, fire building, cooking in camp, boxing the compass, as well as general instruction as regards the plant and wild animal life in the open.

It is the intention to secure specialists in different lines from time to time to give instruction, such as a "doctor" to talk on first-aid, an expert in signaling, etc.

For you to take a part in these activities it is necessary that you be between the ages mentioned above.
That you be willing to take an interest in the work, and live up to the Scout Oath and Laws. For the information of those who may not be conversant with these, will quote them here. The Scout Oath taken at the time of joining a troop, follows:

On my honor I will do my best--

1. To do my duty to God and my Country and to obey the Scout Law;

2. To help other people at all times;

3. To keep myself physically strong, mentally awake and morally straight.

The Scout Laws of which there are twelve each of which would be preceded by "A Scout is:" Trustworthy; loyal; helpful; friendly; courteous; kind; obedient; cheerful;
thrifty; brave; clean and Reverent.

Registered Scouts are allowed to purchase and wear the regulation Scout uniform, and badges according to the rank held, ie, tenderfoot; second class Scout or first class Scout.

The Boy Scouts of America are chartered by a special act of Congress, which also provides for the Scout uniform and punishment for any one wearing the same illegally. The President of the United States is Honorary President of the Scouts. A report of the activities is made to Congress each year.

A great many pleasures are in store for those belonging. If you are interested you will be welcomed at the High school gymnasium next Monday evening or in fact any Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

were visitors Friday at E. L. Bryant's.
The family of C. J. Oldenburg are enjoying a beautiful new player piano, the first one purchased in the village of Wixom.

Mrs. Lubbe Lee, who has been visiting her daughter for some time, went to Northville Friday for a visit with her brother before returning to her home at Wyandotte.

Mrs. George Miller and children of Aberdeen, Wash., are visiting at her parental home. Her father, D. D.
Bennett, is expected home from the hospital very soon.

WIXOM CHURCH NOTES.

The topic for the next Sunday morning sermon will be, "Dollar Diplomacy." Don't think this will be a lecture, it will not. It will be a sermon. C. E. service at 7:30 p. m. Topic, "Training in Citizenship." Ser-

ART-RUGS

Safer for baby! Less work for mother!

Right here in town we are selling the prettiest and most practical low-priced floor coverings on the market.

You'll be especially pleased with the unusual beauty of the Congoleum Art-Rug patterns. They combine the two things most desired in modern homes--the truly artistic and the perfectly sanitary!

Congoleum Rugs are beautiful both in design and coloring. They are wonderfully practical, being washable, waterproof and sanitary.
They never gather dirt under them, because they lie flat without tacking. The edges cannot "kick up."

We cannot say too much in praise of this department of our store, because we know that at the prices we are offering you our handsome showing of Rugs you cannot duplicate them anywhere. Our stock was purchased long before the recent increases in price of rugs of all kinds and we have not advanced our prices. Come in and look over our many Rug patterns.

NORTHVILLE and PLYMOUTH.

To The Boys and Girls of Michigan:

Lansing, Michigan, Sept. 25, 1919.

October 27 is the birthday of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt. Colonel Roosevelt, for nearly eight years our president, was, during the greater part of his life-time, our most valued public leader. He was known as the "typical American". He was fearless in his advocacy of what he believed to be right and in his attack upon that which he held to be wrong. His courage, his integrity, and his tireless energy made him our most popular national hero. Probably nothing expressed his philosophy of life more clearly than this quotation, "In short, in life, as in a football game the principle to follow is: Hit the line hard; don't foul, don't shirk, but hit the line hard!"

His picture will be dedicated on his birthday and if, as you look at the likeness of that strong, energetic face, you will vow that you will be good Americans, live clean, strong, true lives and that you will fight the battle for purity and honesty in public life as he fought it, I believe you will please him more than you could in any other way.

Cordially yours,

T. E. JOHNSON.

Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Good Taste.

Good taste is the conscience of the mind. Lowell's definition is compact of thought and is worth dwelling upon.
Good taste is a trait we all agree in valuing, though its meaning as a rule is rather vaguely felt; we urge its cultivation and admire its exercise but the quality itself is generally less analyzed than desired.—Hartley Alexander.

YOU certainly get yours when you lay your smokecards on the table, call for a tidy red tin or a tippy red bag of Prince Albert and roll a makin's cigarette! You'll want to hire a statistical bureau to keep count of your smokestunts! Why, you never dreamed of the sport that lies awaiting your call in a home rolled cigarette when it's P. A. for the packing!

Talk about flavor! Man, man, you haven't got the listen of half your smokecareer until you know what rolling 'em with P. A. can do for your contentment! And, back of P. A.'s flavor, and rare fragrance—proofs of Prince Albert's quality—stands our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch! With P. A. your smokesong in a makin's cigarette will outlast any phonograph record you ever heard! Prince Albert is a cinch to roll. It's crimp cut and stays put like a regular pal!

Prince Albert upsets any notion you ever had as to how delightful a Quality Goes Clear Through

There is noticeable everywhere a distinct change in the trend of motor car buying.

It is evident that a sharp preference has sprung up for the solid virtues of reliability and economy.

And, as a result, numbers who last year drove other types of cars are this year placing orders for Dorts.

Its pronounced ability to travel smoothly and comfortably, to endure capably hard usage, and to keep operative cost at a low level, is a matter of exact record.

It handles lightly, turns in a small radius, picks up nimbly, and holds the road closely at all speeds.

It is a car that you can rest assured will satisfy you fully.

FAIR A GREAT SUCCESS.

A fitting climax to Northville's biggest-ever-week was the free all fresco ball Saturday evening on the new pavement at the main corner. Red, white and blue electric lights and bunting were festooned above the sections used for dancing and delightful music was furnished by the local band. Hundreds of dancers took part in the festivities the brilliant costumes of the Detroit Shriners' demonstrating the color scheme, especially in the earlier part of the evening. The evening's program was opened by President J. A. Huff of the Fair association with a brief but appropriate address of welcome to the assembled crowd of visitors and citizens. A much applauded feature was an exhibition of clog dancing by Mrs. Barnhart, who demonstrated that she is 66 years young, even responding to an encore.

One of Saturday afternoon's later events was an automobile race, with six cars starting.

A pocket-book containing a small sum of money, found on the fair grounds, awaits an owner at the secretary's office, Record building.

The fair management is receiving hosts of compliments on the large number of attractions provided. It was remarked that at some times no less than four interesting events were taking place all at once.

The Woman's department was, as usual, one of the finest on the grounds. The bewildering number of specimens of exquisite fancy work elicited unstinted admiration, but, as heretofore, there was not sufficient space to display it to the best advantage.

The special displays were of the highest possible order and won complimentary remarks from every one who saw them.

The motorcycle races on Thursday and Saturday were exciting from start to finish and afforded the crowd some fine amusement.

What's in a name? It is a pretty hard thing to define, but it was very noticeable that in each event in which the pacer, Henry Ford, appeared, the animal was cheered most enthusiastically by the crowd.

The last heat of the free-for-all pace Saturday afternoon was not finished until nearly seven o'clock, but the crowd remained till the winner was determined.

The Moslem Temple drill Saturday afternoon was one of the finest events of a week-fall of good things. The gorgeous colorings of costumes and banners, the glittering band instruments, and accoutrements, the absolute precision and variety of movements by the large number of men participating, all taking on added brilliancy under the sparkling sunshine of a cloudless sky, made up a scene of beauty never to be forgotten.

The Deep Springs Water Co. won the gratitude of all fair visitors by their generosity in supplying sparkling drinking water in great abundance in many convenient places about the grounds.

The Wayne County Farm Bureau exhibit was very favorably commented upon. It was educational throughout, comprising as it did, the County Agent, work, Home Demonstration agent work and Boys' and Girls' club work. The canned goods exhibited by the canning clubs, and the sewing and vegetable exhibit shown by boys and girls was the most noticed as it shows that the young generation can be taught through groups to do things most worth while as well as become interested in farm life and made to see its many advantages.

The Home Demonstration agent, Miss Marian Rogers, answered the many questions that came up concerning the one-period, cold-pack method of canning which is being demonstrated as most suitable for nearly all farm food including meats, vegetables and fruits. She also answered many other questions in connection with home-making.

THANK YOU.

The third Northville fair was a splendid success in every particular. The weather was ideal and every day saw a large crowd in attendance. Nearly everyone in Plymouth visited Northville on one or more days, and everybody expressed themselves as well pleased with the fair and its attractions. The ball games and races were splendid and furnished plenty of excitement for lovers of these attractions. The poultry exhibit would have been a credit to a much larger fair in number, quality and arrangement. The exhibit of dairy cattle was exceptionally fine. Saturday was Detroit day, and it is estimated that 6,000 Detroiters visited the fair that day. Moslem Park band of Detroit, gave a drill that was the big feature of the day. The fair was brought to a most successful close by a monster dance on Northville's new pavement in the evening.—Plymouth Mail.

BEEES LACK HONEY.

That there is danger of serious losses in Michigan bee hives during the coming winter because of the shortage of sugar for food supplies is the opinion expressed by B. F. Kindig, apianry specialist at the Michigan Agricultural college. Many honey producers of the state have not laid in their sugar stores for winter feeding, and the chances of their getting what they need now are said to be slim. One-third more sugar has already been consumed by the people of the country than was used during the whole year of 1918, and the government is sending out warnings that there is danger of a regular "war time" shortage.

EVIDENTLY DIDN'T COME.

In an editorial on the subject of "county fairs" the Pontiac Daily Press recently said, among other things:

"It is likely that, to achieve greater usefulness, the county fair, such as is staged at Milford and Northville, must be remodeled and cease to compete with the state event. In recent years its character has been changing, to that of a home-coming and the social side has been far more pronounced than any other."

It is quite evident that the Press didn't have a representative at the Northville fair, which everybody agrees has had the distinction of being in a class by itself in the three years of its existence. Although of course there were lots of "home-comers," anything more unlike a "home-coming" per se it would be hard to imagine. It looked a good deal more like a state fair in miniature, according to the thousands who made up the daily attendance. The Press can very easily discover that Northville has had three REAL FAIRS, which are all it has ever had so far, so it is scarcely time yet to "remodel," although the public seems to think that the "bunch of hustlers" who have made such a success of these three are doing exceptionally well along the line of improvements to date. The necessity for a "change of character" hasn't yet appeared, either to management or patrons. The Record would suggest that while the Pontiac Press is a splendid paper its editorial writer certainly missed a good thing in not coming to the Northville fair of 1919. Had he done so, he would certainly smile at a classification like that in the article mentioned.

BOYS AND GIRLS DEMONSTRATE AT THE FAIR.

A new feature introduced at the Northville Wayne County Fair was a poultry demonstration contest put on by members of Wayne County boys' and girls' poultry clubs by teams of twelve members for the purpose of showing the methods used in the poultry clubs in selecting and culling out the "boarders" from the "profit-sharing" birds.

Each member had his or her particular part to do. The captain of the team or demonstrator No. 1, did most of the talking, giving short introduction and brief history of their club and its work. He then introduced the other team-mates and the three together scored and compared the birds as pointed out by the judges. Four teams competed during the week. Dearborn, with Mrs. A. H. Bray as local leader, Belleville, with Miss Genevieve Clark, as local leader, Sand Hill, with Mrs. J. Forrest Lindsay as leader and Cherry Hill, with Mrs. Carl Lewis, as local leader. Prof. Burgess of M. A. C. and A. E. Fuller of Northville acted as judges. Poultry club work is fast becoming popular among the boys' and girls' clubs of Wayne county. Preparations are being made for more extensive work along these lines for the coming year and Pres. Huff of the county fair assured County Leader Stewart that next year the boys' and girls' work would occupy an important place in the county fair.

M. A. C. BREAKS RECORDS.

At the opening of the Michigan Agricultural College the enrollment was 1,400 students with enough more to come later to exceed all previous records of attendance. The freshman class of 600 is the largest ever enrolled there. The agricultural course has the largest number, but Engineering, Home Economics, Veterinary, Medicine and Forestry have a large representation.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

FAIR NOTES.

Mrs. Howard Brown took eight first premiums on needlework at the Northville fair. Mrs. Brown also took first premium in the canned fruit display in competition with eight other contestants. She got second premium on canned fruit last year at the Northville fair, and George Oldenburg captured six first and four second prizes on rabbits. Mr. Oldenburg also got three first and two second prizes on his Silver Lace Wyandottes.—Plymouth Mail.

The Fair association paid out some $300 in premiums within four days after the close of the fair.

The Record was misinformed, last week as to the name of the gentleman who so efficiently filled the office of marshal during the fair. The young man's name is the familiar one of Smith instead of the one given, but nobody of any name could have done the work more acceptably or gracefully.

Remembering the Boys.

A friend of mine performed a wedding ceremony for a young couple in our home town, after which the bridegroom took all the money out of his pocket, which was 75 cents, and turned it to my friend, the minister, and said "I will have to keep 50 cents of this to buy cigars for the boys," and handed him the 25 cents for the fee.—Chicago Tribune.

Really a Cut Price.

Charles had just been vaccinated, and as a reward for his bravery the doctor gave him a quarter. "Thank you for the quarter," said Charles, winking back his tears, "but it was worth a dollar."

Get It Printed.

"So, you got your poem printed?" "Yes," replied the author. "I sent the first stanza to the editor of the Correspondence Column with the inquiry, 'Can any one give me the rest of this poem?' Then I sent in the complete poem over another name!"

Daily Thought.

Labour, you know, is prayer.—Bayard Taylor.

Beautiful, Sweet-Toned, Well-Known

Pianos and Player-Pianos

Many of them practically same as new, going now in our 16TH ANNUAL SALE OF SUMMER RENTAL INSTRUMENTS.

Away Below Regular Price

Sale stock also includes a number of brand new instruments at important reductions.

The greater part of the rental Pianos were selected from our own matchless line—their use by music-lovers, during the season, has not harmed them, and before being offered for sale each one is carefully adjusted and tuned. In appearance, in tone, in service and satisfaction they will give many of them are practically the same as if just received from the factory. You buy now at the price they sold at last spring—less every dollar rental we have received. With these returned rental Pianos we also offer at startling reductions the exchanged instruments which have been accumulating on our floors; also shop-worn sample Pianos and Player-Pianos in our stock. Our clearance prices present, in every case, a substantial saving—a saving that the careful buyer can ill afford not to take advantage of!

The Italians feudists in Detroit are still at the killing business.

E. R. Daggart is driving a new Dort touring car he purchased from Hills Bros, the local dealers.

F. S. Harmon, who has been on the sick list for the past week or two, is improving.

William Robinson has sold his residence on Kellogg street to G. W. Stimpson of Northville—Plymouth Mail.

E. L. Smith spent Sunday and Monday at Howell. Mrs. Smith accompanied him to Northville Tuesday morning.

Messrs. Lovewell and Smith of the Lovewell Farms are now nicely located in their new offices in the Masonic Temple block.

J. W. Cole said his work on strawberries from his patch of a little less than an acre last summer, besides leaving a very liberal allowance for family use and free distribution to friends.

The chief operator and chief dispatcher of the Fere Marquette railway in Detroit, have purchased lots on the Northville road and are planning to build in the spring—Plymouth Mail.

R. P. Woodworth of Grand Rapids has rented Mrs. E. B. Thompson's house on Dunlap street, and will move his family here. He is to be associated with his brother F. R. Woodworth in the latter's growing business.

A "Talk-over" meeting of all the stockholders of the Northville Driving club, officials, superintendents and assistants of the Fair association, has been called for this Friday evening, October 19, in the village hall at 7:30 o'clock.

A double board floor will be placed on top of the new cement floor recently completed in the newly acquired Ford building. The cement work was completed Monday and carpenters are now engaged in laying the two floors to cover the cement.

In Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties aggregate rewards of $5,000 are offered for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the parties who have been committing robberies in the various counties to a total value of $50,000 in the past month.

The Detroit Edison Co's office at Redford was broken into recently and robbed of about $100 and a day or two before that $350 worth of automobile tires and tools were stolen from a garage in that village. Redford seems to be a favorite hunting ground for thieves.

Michigan Oddfellows are to hold their seventy-fifth Grand Lodge meeting October 21-24, in Detroit, when they will commemorate the one-hundredth anniversary of the founding of the order in America. It is expected that more than 5,000 delegates will be in attendance.

Azel Woodmansee, one of our G. A. R. veterans, who was quite badly hurt by falling from a Road commission truck Saturday, is doing as well as can be expected; all things considered. The chief trouble was the breaking of the bones in his nose, a very painful injury at best.

As will be seen by their advertisement in this issue Mrs. J. W. Clark and son, Eural, have decided not to open a downtown office this winter, but will transact business at their home, also at the Huff store Saturday nights. The firm name has been changed to "Clark's Coal Co."

The chain store manager in Detroit who claimed to have been held up a few mornings ago and robbed of $300, has been arrested on accusation of having done the hold-up act on himself, this being the fourth robbery of the same store since his incumbency. "Three times and out" would have been much safer than four times and in.

This is an unusually prolific season for mushrooms, and the customary warnings are being issued for folks who are fond of these fungi. A bulletin sent out by the M. A. C. states that there are six or seven thousand different kinds of 'em and among these 20 or 30 varieties are poisonous, which of course makes it "dead" easy to pick out the right ones—either before or after.

The big apple orchard belonging to F. P. Simmons west of town, is the most beautiful sight for miles around at this time of the year. The trees are loaded down with apples, some of which are marvelous in size. Several of the trees have split in two under the heavy weight of fruit altho precautions were taken to "prop" up the limbs in the most scientific manner.

Northville's newly paved streets were opened for general traffic last Saturday as far as Wing street on Main and also the Center street block already paved, thus releasing the entire business section from restrictions. Everybody is glad to be relieved of the inconveniences, but at the same time it needed only one rainy day to demonstrate that it has all been worth while.

Trade at home.

The bases for Northville's new lighting system are being set this week.

Wayne and Northville High school football teams will contest for honors on the local gridiron this, Friday, afternoon.

A union service was held in the Methodist church Sunday evening as a welcome to the new pastor, Rev. Mr. Marsh, who preached his first sermon here Sunday morning.

Relative to the ball game here next Tuesday, Chas. Hamilton of the Cubs says those independents were so independent that they overlooked our Base Line team this summer. And Harry German says that he does not see why they are called Cubs, but if they are Cubs they will find that we are bears.

Some one over at Wayne did not like the outcome of the Wayne-Northville ball game played during fair week and in last week's issue of the Weekly made some severe criticism of the home team and its management, claiming unfairness on the part of both players and umpires. It seems strange that no complaint was offered as long as Wayne was in the lead, but when the Northville team made its rally in the seventh inning a whole lot of "crabbing" was indulged in. Doubtless, had Wayne won the game no charges of "unfairness" would have been made.

D. P. Yerkes, who has agreed to turn over his mill property and water-power to the Ford interests, is spending some of his spare time these days in making plans for his new mill, which he expects to erect next season. He will build a combination structure suitable for milling purposes and with sufficient storage capacity to meet the needs of this community. The mill is enjoying a very prosperous business these days and when the writer called there a few days ago a car load of flour was being put into sacks for shipment to Detroit parties.

AUCTION SALE.

On Tuesday, October 14, with Geo. Rattenbury as auctioneer, S. N. Mason will have an auction sale of horses, dairy cows, hay, grain, farming tools, harness, and many miscellaneous articles, also some household goods. The sale begins at 1:00 o'clock, on the premises known as the Robert Thompson farm, on the Base Line road 1/2 mile west of Northville.

AUCTION SALE.

On Friday, Oct. 17, commencing at 10 o'clock a m., on the premises 2 miles north and one mile west of Northville, 2 miles west and 1 mile south of Novi, J. W. NORTHVILLE'S BANKING FACILITIES have always been our first thought.

Twelve years ago this bank was organized with a firm conviction that more banking capital was needed in this community. With the steady growth of our business, since organization in 1907, we have done our utmost to satisfactorily serve our customers and the recent increase of our Capital Stock to Fifty Thousand Dollars means still better service and additional security for our depositors.

This bank advocates the payment of FOUR PER CENT interest on Savings deposits for the reason that we believe local depositors should be able to receive as good a return on their Savings at home as elsewhere.

Satisfactory Service to customers is still our definite purpose.

THE SHOEMAN

Uncle Samuel Is Unbusinesslike and Needs a National Budget System

By G. B. CORTELYOU, Former Secretary of the Treasury

The government of the United States for more than one hundred years has been conducted upon financial principles which would have bankrupted a private corporation within a few months.

No public officer has been directly responsible for the adjustment of expenditures to receipts. No public officer has direct control over the estimates of the different departments.

A distinguished gentleman in 1909 was credited with the statement that 30 per cent of the government's entire revenue—a sum totaling $300,000,000—was wasted annually. I cannot attempt with any degree of accuracy to name the exact amount of money spent needlessly during any one fiscal year. It is no exaggeration, however, to say that the figures will run into millions of dollars. This same condition holds today.

I desire to point out that the distribution of immense sums raised mainly by taxation should be subjected to the closest scrutiny, classification and co-ordination. The present method of dealing with money matters is entirely lacking in system.

There is probably no other civilized government—certainly no government which is truly representative—where there has been such a complete lack of supervision of the budget as in the United States.

With a war debt of $25,000,000,000 hanging over us it is no longer practicable to meet an annual deficit by an assessment upon the nation's stockholders—its citizens.

Even the United States, with a total estimated wealth of more than two hundred billion dollars, is not so rich or so powerful that it can afford to disregard the principles of business efficiency or fail to provide itself with a carefully mapped out budgetary plan.

"Not the Fault of the President; It Is the Omission of Our Laws"

By MAJ. HARRY B. HAWES

At the conclusion of hostilities our president appointed himself, selected four associates, and proceeded to the conference in Paris. These five men spoke for the United States of America, and from the first meeting until the treaty was signed they were the voice of the United States.

Whether the commission truly interpreted or failed to interpret the wishes of the American people they were placed in the unfortunate position of not knowing positively what our people wanted. They guessed that it favored a certain policy, which was their policy, and it may be they guessed correctly. To this day they do not know. If they had known there would be no discussion in the senate.

George of England, Clemenceau of France and Orlando of Italy knew that if at any time they failed to properly interpret the wishes of their countries the legislative branches of their governments had in their possession the power of recall. No king, monarch, president or ruler of a single nation in Europe is permitted to exercise the same unrestricted right as our laws give to a president.

The president must not be blamed because he exercised these unusual, extraordinary powers. It is not his fault; it is the omission of our law.

Will the Democratic party, the Republican party, or a new party secure for the people of the United States a right that is possessed even by the people living under the monarchies of Europe, or shall our executive retain and exercise a power more unrestricted, unrestrained and autocratic than that of any European ruler?

This is a problem for the future and is independent of the question of the ratification or approval of the peace treaty or the League of Nations.

Future of the Women of Britain Lies Wholly in the Hands of Labor

By BEATRICE FORBES-ROBERTSON HALE

There are two alternatives before the women of Britain. There are 2,000,000 women who can never marry. If labor speeds up and the people work to throw off the national debt, as the French did after the Franco-Prussian war, then these superfluous women will have a chance in industry. But if the extreme labor agitators have their way everyone will be at loggerheads, the output will diminish and women will be the victims, for they will be unable to get employment. In this event there will be nothing for those 2,000,000 women to do but sink into misery or go to the colonies. Their future lies virtually in the hands of labor.

I wrote in 1914: "Feminism, if it is a live thing, cannot mean the elimination of children from women's lives; one can afford to trust not only life but women for that. The time has already come when women are achieving success in their work and in the upbringing of their children as well. But complete freedom, both to work and to bear children, involves almost unimaginable changes in social conditions, in housing, nursing, education, cooking, cleaning and in industry and the professions. It is the biggest job of the feminist movement, and on its success or failure the whole thing hangs."

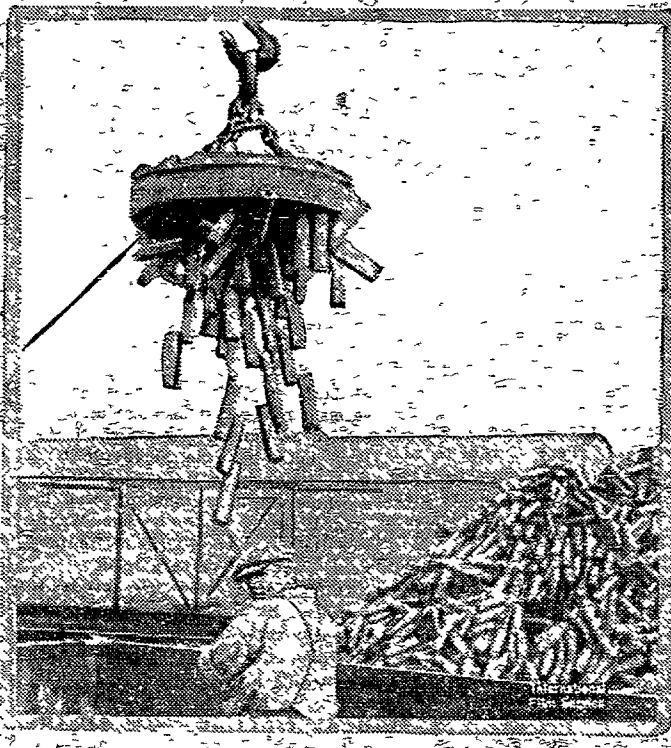

These "unimaginable changes" are already coming about in England as a result of the war, and home life, community life, education and industry are being put on a new basis.

The reconstruction program of the British government is so far-reaching that ten years ago most of us would have called it socialistic, but people have moved forward to meet it.

Frau Clara Mende, German National Assembly—The emigration question particularly concerns the women at this time. Women must impress on the government that no consuls or foreign representatives be selected who are unmarried in order that each place where we are represented the families of our representatives may become centers of German colonies.

Secretary of the Interior Lane—We must stop the concentration of our work in the big cities if we are to solve for long the problem of soaring food prices.

Millions of Unused Shells Go to Scrap Heap

Thousands upon thousands of shells made useless by the cessation of hostilities abroad are being unloaded of their charges, and sent to various metal foundries. The photograph shows shells being unloaded from a box car by means of a monster magnet at the yards in Philadelphia, Pa. They will be melted and remade into implements of peace.

Overcoming Our Failures

Discouragement is a Menace to Happiness

There are times when notwithstanding our efforts we do not seem to make any headway with our ambitions, says a writer. We set high goals for ourselves and we make the attempt to gain them, but even though we plod perseveringly toward them we seem to meet only with obstacles and disappointments. Then it is that we begin to feel that discouragement which is bound to react to our undoing unless we pull ourselves up sharply. Life is not a bed of roses for anyone, for all that we envy the apparent ease and happiness of some of those with whom we come in contact. They, too, have their trials and their disappointments of which we know nothing, and who knows but that they bravely hide their real feelings under a show of prosperity and happiness? No one likes to wear his heart upon his sleeve, and from the proudest to the humblest, from the richest to the poorest, there is ever uppermost the determination to hide the disappointment of ambitions unattained and hopes unfulfilled. It is only through earnest effort that we overcome our failures, whether they affect our spiritual or our worldly desires, and it is for this reason that discouragement is such a menace to happiness.

A FEW CONDENSATIONS

The police at Wilkes-Barre, Pa., are looking for a husky who stole 500 feet of brick paving. A combined electric and sand bath for treating certain ills is the idea of a New York inventor. A school to teach the arts, sciences and agriculture is planned for Iquitos by the Peruvian government. For use where current is not available a ceiling electric light operated by a dry battery has been invented.

Man With Right Attitude Will Keep Morale Right

High courage often runs wild. It's a common thing for daring to run into the foolhardy. And when it does the victim often suffers such severe punishment that it is impossible for him to regain his proper balance with life problems. He loses self-confidence and becomes the lackey of those who choose to use him. So the proper morale keeps a man within his limits and helps him fill them to their capacity. The greater the natural endowments the worse the ruin when morale fails. On the other hand the man with the right attitude in life is almost sure to keep his morale right and win in spite of circumstances.

Data Show Production of Mexican Beans and Cotton

Statistics have just been given out covering the production of Mexican beans and cotton. According to the data at hand the states producing the former in greatest quantity were Jalisco and Sonora, with 37,500,000 and 18,872,775 kilos, respectively, the total production of Mexico, according to official figures, being 101,978,219 kilos.

Mother's Cook Book

I believe in the deep blue sky and the smiling water. I can see through the clouds of the sky. And I am not afraid of the waves of the sea. I believe in the living friendship given by the flowers and the trees; Outwardly they die. But in the heart they live forever.

Honey Dishes.

Honey is the nectar of flowers, gathered by bees and ripened by them in the hive. Honey being a natural sweet is more easily digested and foods prepared from it will keep better than those prepared from sugar and molasses.

Honey Tea Cake.

Take one cupful of strained honey, one-half cupful of sour cream, two eggs, one-half cupful of shortening, two cupfuls of flour, one-half teaspoonful of soda and one teaspoonful of cream of tartar. Add salt to taste. Bake 30 minutes in a loaf pan.

Oberlin Layer Cake.

Take two-thirds of a cupful of shortening, one cupful of honey, three well-beaten eggs, one-half cupful of milk, two cupfuls of flour and one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder. Bake in layers; use whipped cream for filling, which is sweetened with honey.

Honey Cookies.

Take one cupful each of sugar, honey, shortening and sour cream, three eggs well beaten, a teaspoonful of soda, a teaspoonful of flavoring and flour to roll.

Pumpkin Pie.

To one cupful of pumpkin add one-half cupful of honey, two eggs, a pint of milk, one teaspoonful of ginger, a grating of nutmeg and three drops of lemon extract; salt to taste. Mix and fill the shell. Bake slowly.

Honey Sauce for Puddings.

Boil one cupful of honey, one-fourth of a cupful of water, one tablespoonful of butter, a grating of nutmeg or a bit of cinnamon and the juice of one lemon. Cook together 15 minutes.

Honey Salad Dressing.

For a sweet dressing, use equal parts of lemon and orange juice with honey to make a sirup. Mix well and serve on fruit of various kinds.

It Is Important to Have First-Hand Information

It's a great thing to be your own scout.

Other men may know more about the technicalities of a thing. They may even be able to tell you just how to make the money they can't seem to get possession of. But after all a little first hand observation added to ordinary horse sense will go a long way toward putting you on the writing side of the desk. At Waterloo Napoleon had to depend on guides. He did not know the ground. Lacoste was trusted and hitherto had never failed him. Now he is responsible for the loss of life that brought defeat to the French arms and exile to the greatest general the world has ever seen. It's a great thing to have first-hand information.

Army Officer Describes Animals, Birds, Reptiles of Panama Canal Jungle.

The blank spaces on the world's map have been dwindling so rapidly that it is a bit surprising to read of a great wilderness, unmapped, uninhabited and practically unknown, alongside one of the great American thoroughfares. In his account in Natural History, Lieut. Col. Townsend Whelen states that a passage cut from the Panama canal some five miles through a tangled second growth of small trees and other vegetation leads to a gigantic wall of verdure, and this is the beginning of the primeval jungle comprising most of the eastern portion of the Republic of Panama, and extending about 300 miles in length by 50 to 100 miles in width. In this strange new world one can wander unmolested by thorns and creepers, in a climate oddly cool and balmy. The vegetation is most impressive, even terrifying. Giant moras, borigen, cavanillesia, celbas, rubber and fig rising limbless 100 to 200 feet, with tops spreading to shut out the sky, and a lower growth of many kinds of slender tree ferns and palms, developed in semi-darkness, that shorten one's view without hindering progress. Hardly anywhere can one see more than 50 yards. The jungle is alive with a wonderful bird life, which is distributed in zones of altitude on the mountain slopes and locally from the ground to the tree tops—quail, tinamous and pheasants being common near the earth's surface, wrens, humming birds, thrushes and other species, in the low bush level; doves, guans, owls and trogons, half way up, and parrots, harrakeets, macaws, toucans and cotingas, under the leafy roof. Tapir, deer, peccaries and other mammals are abundant, though shy. The many serpents do little harm, the chief dangers being malaria, getting lost and falling branches and fruits.

Difference Between Dawn and Twilight: Ending and Beginning of Phenomenon

Twilight is the diffused illumination of the sky which immediately precedes sunrise and follows sunset. When the sun sets below our horizon, we are not at once plunged into the darkness of night. There is an intermediate period of partial and slowly increasing darkness which we call twilight. It is caused by the reflection of the sunlight by dust and particles of water vapor in the upper atmosphere. The same phenomenon occurs just before sunrise, and, to distinguish it from the evening twilight, is called dawn. Dawn begins and twilight ends when the sun is about 18 degrees below the horizon, and consequently their duration varies with the latitude and with the season of the year. The higher the latitude the smaller the angle at which the sun's path meets the horizon, and hence the longer it takes the sun to sink to a distance of 18 degrees below the horizon. In the tropics twilight rarely lasts longer than 30 minutes, while in the latitude of north Scotland it lasts so long that about midsummer there are several nights on which it fills the entire interval between sunset and sunrise.

SHE HAS NO OCCUPATION

(Else Duncan Yale in Woman's Home Companion.)
She rises up at break of day,
And through her tasks she races;
She cooks the meal as best she may,
And scrubs the children's faces.
While schoolbooks, lunches, ribbons, too,
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."
When breakfast dishes all are done,
She takes a phidling mabye;
She cleans the rooms up one by one,
With one eye watching baby.
The mending pile she then attacks,
By way of variation,
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."
She irons for a little while,
Then presses pants for daddy;
She welcomes with a cheery smile
Returning lass and laddie.
A hearty dinner next she cooks
(No time for relaxation),
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."
For lessons that the children learn
The evening dears is ample;
To "mother-dear" they always turn
For help with each example.
In grammar and geography
She finds her relaxation,
And yet the census man insists
She has "no occupation."

Paints Retard Fire, but Give Little Protection

From tests made at the Bureau of standards it appears that while practically all paint coatings have some fire-retarding action, none of those so far tested affords great protection. All the samples in question were materially damaged by application of flame for a few seconds. Both sodium silicate and whitewash rank comparatively high. These have the advantage of cheapness and can both be used on the same surface. However, according to a recent bulletin of the bureau, no treatment of wood after erection can be expected to serve as an effective fire protection, and the use of such materials should not be made an excuse for omitting any of the usual precautions against fire.

NEIGHBORS

By ANNIE A. CURTIS.

"Can you be satisfied here, Maud?" asked Mr. Burrows.
"Well, I don't know. It's pretty hard to tell," replied his wife. "It isn't the city I shall miss, it's the people. They will all be different, of course."
"Yes, I suppose so. I remember how dissatisfied Ruth was when she and George went out West."
"Joe's sister, Ruth, was frankly disliked by her sister-in-law. Maud had come nearer quarrelling with her than any other member of her husband's family. The classing of her sister-in-law's case with her own raised a spirit of opposition within her."
"If he thinks I'm like Ruth he'll find I'm not."

She quickly thought of the reasons for moving to the quiet country place. They had been such good reasons, too. Several times the doctor had advised fresh country air for her.

"And just because I saw a woman in a funny sunbonnet while I was out there I am stopping it all. I won't be so foolish. I'll make the best of it anyway."

Joe still stood absently tapping the window pane. Maud touched him on the arm saying, "I'm going to like it, Joe. I'll get acquainted with every neighbor and I'll make them like me."

His face grew lighter as he looked at her. "Good for you, Maud. When we take the car out it will be better for you."

"Oh, yes, I'll take you down to work every morning and call for you every night. I'll give everyone round a spin."

"We'll have parties and invite all of our old friends out," said Joe.

"And don't forget the new ones. They'll have to come to our parties." In due time the car arrived. Joe had fixed a part of the barn for a garage. Every morning Maud took him to work.

"Why don't you go for a ride mornings, Maud?" he asked.

"I'm afraid I'll miss someone who calls to see me."

"I never thought of that. Hasn't anyone called yet?"

"No one yet," she said.

He tried to console her by saying that everyone was busy at that time of year. But the busy time passed and no one called. Maud Burrows lost her pink cheeks and the wistful look was always in her eyes. Mr. Burrows asked their family doctor to come down to spend the day. "Just look her over without her getting suspicious Doc," said Joe.

"I thought the country would agree with her. There's lots of company round here isn't there?"

"That is the trouble. She likes company and has always had lots of it. I can't understand why people don't call."

Summer was nearly gone when Joe again thought of the doctor.

"I'll get him down to see if she's improved, and if she hasn't we'll go straight back to the city. She was happy there."

The doctor called again. Maud was very pleased to see him, but did not go from place to place, bidding him to follow her.

"This will never do," the doctor said to himself. "She's lost interest and lost her courage."

"I'm going to give you this place and go back to the city," cried Joe excitedly.

"I don't think that will do," replied the doctor.

"Why, why not?" inquired Joe.

"Because Maud is not strong enough. You must make her take an interest in things."

"How can I? If people won't be friendly I can't make them," replied Joe, very much puzzled.

"Well, do something. You must think of something, boy," said the doctor, as he boarded the train.

A day later Joe complained of not feeling well. "Oh, I hate to go to work, but I suppose I must," he said. An hour later he came back home. Maud cried out at sight of him. His face was swollen and red. "Oh, what is the matter, Joe?"

"I'm sick. I guess I'll lie down for a while."

"I'll get a doctor," said Maud. "There is one at the village."

"I won't see him. If you get anyone call our old doctor. There's a telephone at the next house."

Maud dreaded to go to those people who had never called on her. She tapped at the door and a woman appeared. "May I use your telephone?"

"Surely."

"Is this Dr. Jones? Come right out to the house. Joe is sick. On, can't you come before night? I'm all alone."

When she finished talking with the doctor the woman touched her arm, saying, "You are all alone. I'll go right back with you."

Maud told her the story of her loneliness. "We thought you did not want us to call. Then we hesitated. One of the neighbors heard you make fun of Miss Field's sunbonnet and she is the dearest woman in the world."

"I'm so sorry, but it's all right now, isn't it?" sobbed Maud.

Joe wished to see the doctor alone. "What's up Joe?" asked the doctor.

Joe answered in a whisper, "I put poison ivy on my face. I knew they would come in sickness and it worked. They have been coming all day. But fix me up, Doc. I must go back to work."

"IS YER REALLY AWAKE AGIN, HONEY?"

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commanding general sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucaire, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucaire has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law. Although the girls have been brought up as sisters, Kirby induces the judge to make his plantation and negro servants on a pious hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. The two hands contain five aces, and Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucaire, infuriated, arises to attack Kirby, and drops dead. In the confusion Kirby and Carver are enabled to steal away. Knox plans to induce Kirby to give up his stolen fortune.

CHAPTER IV—Continued.

Unarmed, never once dreaming of attack, I advanced alone along the dark, narrow strip of deck, leading toward the ladder which mounted to the wheelhouse. There were no lights, and I was practically compelled to feel my way by keeping one hand upon the rail. I had reached the foot of the ladder, my fingers blindly seeking the iron rungs in the gloom, when a figure, vague, suddenly emerged from some denser shadow and confronted me. Indeed the earliest realization I had of any other presence was a sharp pressure against my breast, and a low voice breathing a menacing threat in my ear.

"I advise you not to move, you young fool. This is a cocked pistol tickling your ribs. Where were you going?"

The black night veiled his face, but language and voice, in spite of its low, guttural, told me the speaker was Kirby. The very coldness of his tone served to send a chill through me.

"To have a word with Throckmorton," I answered, angered at my own fear, and rendered reckless by that burst of passion. "What do you mean by your threat? Haven't you robbed enough men already with cards without resorting to a gun?"

"This is not robbery," and I knew by the sharpness of his reply my words had stung, "and it might be well for you to keep a civil tongue in your head. I overheard what you said to those men in the cabin. So you are going to take care of me, are you? There was a touch of steel in the low voice. "Now listen, you brainless meddler. Joe Kirby knows exactly what he is doing when he plays any game. I had nothing to do with Beaucaire's death, but those stakes are mine. I hold them, and I will kill any man who dares to interfere with me."

"You mean you refuse to return any of this property?"

"Every cent, every nigger, every acre—that's my business. Beaucaire was no child; he knew what he was betting, and he lost."

"That may be true, Kirby. I am not defending his action, but surely this is no reason, now that he is dead, why you should not show some degree of mercy to others totally innocent of any wrong. The man left two daughters, both young girls, who will now be homeless and penniless."

"I Advise You Not to Move, You Young Fool."

He laughed, and the sound of that laugh was more cruel than the accompanying words.

"Two daughters!" he sneered. "According to my information that strains the relationship a trifle, friend Knox—at least the late judge never took the trouble to acknowledge the fact. Permit me to correct your statement. I happen to know more about Beaucaire's private affairs than you do. He leaves one daughter only. I have never met the young lady, but I understand from excellent authority that she possesses independent means through the death some years ago of her mother. I shall therefore not worry about her loss—and, indeed, she need meet with none, for if she only prove equal to all I have heard I may yet be induced to make her a proposition."

"A proposition?"

"To remain on the plantation as its mistress—plainly, an offer of marriage, if you please. Not such a bad idea, is it?"

I stood speechless, held motionless only by the pressing muzzle of his pistol, the cold-blooded villainy of the man striking me dumb. This when had probably been his real purpose from the start. He had followed Beaucaire deliberately with this final end in view—of ruining him, and thus compelling his daughter to yield herself.

"And you actually mean that you propose now to force Judge Beaucaire's daughter to marry you?"

"Well, hardly that, although I shall use whatever means I possess. I intend to win her if I can, fair means, or foul."

I drew a deep breath, comprehending now the full iniquity of his plot and bracing myself to fight it.

"And what about the other girl, Kirby? For there is another girl."

"Yes," rather indifferently, "there is another."

"Of course you know who she is?"

"Certainly—a nigger, a white nigger, the supposed illegitimate daughter of Adelbert Beaucaire, and a slave woman. There is no reason why I should fret about her, is there? She is my property already by law."

He laughed again, the same ugly sneering laugh of triumph. "That was why I was so particular about the wording of that bill of sale—I would rather have her than the whole bunch of field hands."

"You believe then the girl has never been freed—either she, or her mother?"

"Believe? I know. I tell you I never play any game with my eyes shut."

"And you actually intend to—hold her as a slave?"

"Well, I'll look her over first before I decide—she would be worth a pot full of money down the river."

The contemptuous, utterly indifferent manner in which he voiced his villainous purpose, would have crazed any man. To me this utterance was the last straw, breaking down every restraint, and leaving me hot, and furious with anger. I forgot the muzzle of the pistol pressed against my side, and the menacing threat in Kirby's low voice. The face of the man was indistinct, a mere outline, but the swift impulse to strike at it was irresistible, and I let him have the blow—a straight-arm jab to the jaw, my clinched knuckles, crunched against the flesh, and the reeled back, kept from falling only by the support of the deckhouse. There was no report of a weapon, no outcry, yet, before I could strike again, I was suddenly gripped from behind by a pair of arms, which closed about my throat like a vise, throttling me instantly into silent helplessness. I struggled madly to break free, straining with all the art of a wrestler, exerting every ounce of strength, but the grasp which held me was unyielding, robbing me of breath, and defeating every effort to call for help.

Kirby, dazed yet by my sudden blow, grew eager to take a hand in the affray, struck me a cowardly blow in the face, and swung his undischarged pistol to a level with my eyes.

"D—you!" he ejaculated, and for the first time his voice really exhibited temper. "I'd kill you with this; but for the noise. No, by God! there is a safer way than that to settle with you. Have you got the skunk, Carver?"

"You can bet I have, Joe. I can choke the life out of him—shall I?"

"No; let up a bit—just enough so he can answer me first. I want to find out what all this means. Now look here, Knox, what is all this to you? Why are you butting in on my game? Was Beaucaire a friend of yours?"

"I can hardly claim that," I admitted. "We never met until I came aboard this steamer. All I am interested in is justice to others."

"To others? Oh, I suppose you mean those girls—you know them then?"

"I have never even seen them," I said.

"I see; a self-appointed squire of dames; actuated merely by a romantic desire to serve beauty in distress. Extremely interesting, my dear boy. But, see here, Knox," and his tone changed to seriousness. "Let the romance go, and talk sense a minute. You are not going to get very far fighting me alone. You haven't even got the law with you. Even if I cheated Beaucaire, which I do not for a moment admit, there is no proof. The money is mine, and so is the land and the niggers. You can be ugly, of course, but you cannot overturn the facts. Now, you acknowledge that what has occurred is personally nothing to you; Beaucaire was no special friend, and you don't even know the two girls—all right then, drop the whole matter. I hold no grudge on account of your striking me, and am even willing to share up with you to avoid trouble."

"And I refuse?"

"Then, of course, we shall be compelled to shut your mouth for you. Self-preservation is the first law."

I looked about at them both, scarcely able to distinguish clearly even their outlines in the dense gloom. The seriousness of the situation, coupled with my helplessness, and inability to achieve the object proposed, was very evident. It might, under the circumstances, have been the part of wisdom for me to have sought some means of compromise, but I was young, and hot, very blood swept through my veins. The words of Kirby stung me with their breath of insult—his sneering, insolent offer to pay me to remain still.

"You must rank me as one of your own kind," I burst forth. "Now you listen to a plain word from me. If that was intended as an offer, I refuse it. You, and your confederate, have robbed Beaucaire; and propose to get away with the spoils. Perhaps you will, but that end will not be accomplished through my assistance or mine. At first I only felt a slight interest in the affair, but from now on I am going to fight you fellows with every weapon I possess."

Kirby chuckled, apparently greatly amused.

"Quite glad I am sure, for the declaration of war. Fighting has always agreed with me. Might I ask the nature of those weapons?"

"That remains for you to discover," I ejaculated sharply, exasperated by his evident contempt. "Carver, take your dirty hands off me."

In spite of the fact of their threat, the ready pistol pressing against my ribs, the grip of Carver's fingers at my throat, I did not anticipate any actual assault. That either would really dare injure me seemed preposterous. Indeed my impression was, that Kirby felt such indifference toward my attempt to block his plan, that he would permit me to pass without opposition—certainly without the slightest resort to violence. The action of the two was so swift, so concerted, as though at some secret signal, that almost before I realized their purpose, they held me helplessly struggling, and had forced me back against the low rail. Here I endeavored to break away, to shout an alarm, but was already too late. Carver's hands closed remorselessly on my throat, and when I managed to strike out madly with one free fist, the butt of Kirby's pistol descended on my head, so lacerating my scalp the dripping blood blinded my eyes. The blow partially stunned me, and I half fell, clutching at the rail, yet dimly conscious that the two straining men were uplifting my useless body. Carver swearing viciously as he helped to thrust me outward over the wooden bar. The next instant I fell, the sneering cackle of Kirby's laugh of triumph echoing in my ears until drowned in the splash as I struck the black water below.

I came back to the surface dazed and weakened, yet sufficiently conscious to make an intelligent struggle for life. The overhang of the rapidly passing boat still concealed me from the observation of those above on the deck, and the advantage of permitting them to believe that the blow on my head had resulted in drowning, together with the knowledge that I must swiftly get beyond the stroke of that deadly wheel, flashed instantly through my brain. It was like a tonic, reviving every energy. Waiting only to inhale one deep breath of air, I plunged back once more into the depths, and swam strongly under water. The effort proved successful, for when I again ventured to emerge, gasping and exhausted, the little Warrior had swept past, and became merely a shapeless outline, barely visible above the surface of the river.

Slowly treading water, my lips held barely above the surface, I drew in deep draughts of cool night air, my mind becoming more active as hope returned. The blow I had received was a savage one, and pained dully, but the cold water in which I had been immersed had caused the bleeding to cease, and likewise revived all my faculties. The very fact that no effort was made to stop was sufficient proof that Throckmorton, in the wheelhouse remained unconscious of what had occurred on the deck below. My fate might never be discovered, or suspected. I was alone, submerged in the great river, the stars overhead alone piercing the night shadows. A log swept by me, white bursts of spray illuminating its sides, and I grappled it gratefully, my fingers finding grip on the sudden bark. Using this for partial support, and ceasing to battle so desperately against the down-sweep of the current, I managed finally to work my way into an eddy, struggling upward until my feet at last touched bottom at the end of a low, out-crooping point of sand. This proved to be a mere spit, but I waded ashore, water streaming from my clothing, conscious now of such complete exhaustion that I sank instantly outstretched upon the sand, gasping painfully for breath, every muscle and nerve throbbing.

The night was intensely still, black, impenetrable. It seemed as though no human being could inhabit that desolate region. I lifted my head to listen for the slightest sound of life, and strained my eyes to detect the distant glimmer of a light in any direction. Nothing rewarded the effort. Yet surely here on this long-stretch west bank of the Mississippi I could not be far removed from those of my race, for I knew that all along this river shore were cultivated plantations and little frontier towns irregularly served by passing steamboats.

The night air increased in chilliness as the hours approached dawn, and I shivered in my wet clothes, although this only served to arouse me into immediate action. Realizing more than ever as I again attempted to move my weakness and exhaustion, from the struggle, I succeeded in gaining my feet, and stumbled forward along the narrow spit of sand, until I attained a bank of firm earth, up which I crept painfully, emerging at last upon a fairly level spot, softly carpeted with grass, and surrounded by a grove of forest trees. The shadows here were dense, but my feet encountered a depression in the soil, which I soon identified as a rather well-defined path leading inland. Assured that this must point the way to some door, as it was evidently no wild animal trail, I felt my way forward cautiously, eager to attain shelter, and the comfort of a fire.

I came suddenly to a patch of cultivated land, bisected by a small stream; the path I was following leading along its bank. Holding to this for guidance,

I came suddenly to a patch of cultivated land, bisected by a small stream; the path I was following leading along its bank. Holding to this for guidance, late region. I lifted my head to listen for the slightest sound of life, and strained my eyes to detect the distant glimmer of a light in any direction. Nothing rewarded the effort. Yet surely here on this long-stretch west bank of the Mississippi I could not be far removed from those of my race, for I knew that all along this river shore were cultivated plantations and little frontier towns irregularly served by passing steamboats.

The night air increased in chilliness as the hours approached dawn, and I shivered in my wet clothes, although this only served to arouse me into immediate action. Realizing more than ever as I again attempted to move my weakness and exhaustion, from the struggle, I succeeded in gaining my feet, and stumbled forward along the narrow spit of sand, until I attained a bank of firm earth, up which I crept painfully, emerging at last upon a fairly level spot, softly carpeted with grass, and surrounded by a grove of forest trees. The shadows here were dense, but my feet encountered a depression in the soil, which I soon identified as a rather well-defined path leading inland. Assured that this must point the way to some door, as it was evidently no wild animal trail, I felt my way forward cautiously, eager to attain shelter, and the comfort of a fire.
