KNIGHTS TEMPLAR TO HAVE A BUSY MONTH

Northville Commandery is out with a vigorous program for the next few weeks.

Commander Kay is working hard to get everything in shape for the annual inspection which occurs November 19. This occasion will be made especially noteworthy by the presence of R. E. Sir Edmund S. Rankin, of Kalamazoo, Grand Commander of Michigan, who is the inspecting officer this year. E. Sir Seth H. Jones, of Lansing, Inspector General, will accompany him. Grand Commander of Michigan improvements in the ritual work and encourage the members to greater efficiency.

The presence of these Grand officers is a fine compliment to Northville Commandery and the splendid results which this local body has achieved in the last two or three years.

On November 25, another special Conclave will be held and E. Sir Frank M. Lansing of Milford will confer the order of Knighthood upon a Milford candidate. Some special guests will be present at that time also.

The membership will stand at 116 or better by the end of December.

LOCAL RED CROSS DRIVE.

The membership drive of the National Red Cross, which is to be instituted early in November, will be conducted, so far as Northville is concerned, by a house to house canvass. Mrs. C. C. Yeskes will have charge of the work here, and will name committees for the various sections of town, as was done before. The Record is requested to remind its readers that this movement is not at all for the purpose of obtaining funds for local work. The membership fees have always gone to headquarters, and will go there as before, to be applied to national and world work, construed to refer only to one whose All who prefer to do so can pay the fee to the treasurer, E. H. Lapham at the Lapham State bank. The objective point is to keep alive this organization, which has for all time justified its existence by what is done in the recent world crisis, the result of which will demand the efforts of the Red Cross for years to come.

DEATH OF JAMES MASTERS

One more of Northville's Grand Army veterans left the ranks of the local Post Oct. 23 when James Masters passed away at his home in Northside, after a long and painful illness.

Mr. Masters was born in Brogville, Canada, Nov. 12, 1842, and had been a resident of Northville about 10 or 12 years. He enlisted in the U. S. Army with Co. E, 17th Michigan Volunteers, was taken prisoner in May, 1863, and received his honorable discharge at Camp Chase, in June, 1865. He leaves two sons, one daughter and several grandchildren.

Funeral services were held from the late home Saturday, conducted by Rev. H. J. B. Marsh, assisted by Rev. Mr. Ward of Pontiac. Interment was made in Rural Hill. The members of Allen M. Harmon Post, G. A. R., attended the funeral in a body, and performed the ritual burial service of the order at the grave, as a final tribute to a valued Comrade and officer of the Post.

COUNTY EDUCATION SYSTEM.

Dispatches from Detroit state that action by the board of supervisors in adopting a resolution by Supervisor Lodge of the Ways and Means committee insures for Wayne county a department to be known as the Uniform County Educational System, the appointment of an educational director and a system of uniform text books.

The new department will be established in connection with the county school commissioner's office and $3,250 has been provided for maintenance, of which $4,000 will go for the annual salary of the educational director, who will be appointed by the county school commissioner.

To prepare the way for the installation of the uniform text books, a survey will be made of the school system of the county. Office space for the new department will be provided in the county building.

There were 3,206 deaths reported to the Department of State as having occurred in the State of Michigan during the month of September, 1919. This number corresponds to an annual death rate of 121 per 1,000 estimated population. There were 6,647 births reported during the same period.

WIXOM'S FAIR WAS A BIG SUCCESS

The Community Fair held at Wixom Saturday, October 25, was in the main, a pronounced success. The day was dark and lowery with an occasional shower, which, no doubt, deterred many who had laid plans to go, from attending. The attendance was not up to the numbers attending in former years.

The exhibits in the farmer's class, grain, fruit and vegetables, while not large, were of unusual merit, far surpassing anything seen this year at any of the larger fairs.

The schools, as usual, made an excellent display and brought out from visitors and onlookers many favorable comments.

The domestic department, which was made up of women's handiwork in the shape of baked goods, needle work and novelties of various kinds, attracted considerable attention.

The Wixom fair is under the able management of what is termed a federated committee selected from the Farmers' club, the Grange, the school, the church and Sunday school. Each and every organization having a member on the federated committee, is supposed to have an equal influence in the preparation for and the management of the fair. The fair brings all the people together on a common level and nurtures a friendly feeling among all who see fit to take part in the various enterprises in the community. The moral, social and business conditions are improved by the mingling together of the people of the various organizations in the community. Other rural and village communities could be greatly benefited by emulating the example set by the Wixom federated organization.

WHIPPLE—LITSEMBERGER.

The marriage of two of the highly esteemed young people of Northville township and village, Miss Mary Litsenberger and Mr. Elmore Whipple, was quietly solemnized Tuesday, October 21 at high noon, in the Presbyterian Manse, at Plymouth by Rev. Luther Moore Bickner, pastor of the Plymouth Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Whipple, after a trip to Grand Rapids and other Michigan points, will make their home on the Whipple farm southeast of town.

The groom is well and favorably known in this vicinity, where his entire life has been spent, and the bride is a general favorite in Northville, where she has lived since childhood. She has been employed in the Ponsford store and later in the Northville State Savings bank for years, thus acquiring a wide acquaintance, and, by her winning personality, a corresponding circle of friends.

Last spring Miss Litsenberger was elected without opposition to the office of village treasurer, a position she has filled with most satisfactory ability, besides having the honor to be the first woman in Northville to fill an elective office.

The Record joins heartily in the many congratulations and good wishes extended to Mr. and Mrs. Whipple.

WHEN IS A CHAUFFEUR?

As there has been a considerable amount of uncertainty in regard to the automobile licenses on the point as to what constitutes a "chauffeur" or merely a "driver," the secretary of the N. A. C. appealed to the Secretary of State Vaughn to define the difference. The information received shows that the law, while stating that a "chauffeur" is "any person who drives a car for hire, or acts as the employee of the owner thereof" is construed to refer only to one whose principal duty consists in driving a car or truck for his employer regularly, and not to a man employed for various duties, as is the farm hand or other general worker. For such, the ordinary drivers' license is all that is required.

HAVE A TREAT COMING.

Through the efforts of the members of the Northville Woman's club the people of Northville have a treat coming, and one they should all plan to attend. Graham Harris, solo violinist of the Detroit Symphony Orchestra, assisted by other artists, will give a recital here on Friday evening, November 14th.

Mr. Harris is regarded as one of the greatest American violinists and he enjoyed the distinction of being awarded a scholarship at the Boston Conservatory of Music. He will appear here in a popular program, and all are urged to mark well the date.

Money In This Bank Grows

What 4% Means

THE NORTHVILLE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF NORTHVILLE pays 4% interest, compounded twice a year. What does 4% compounded interest mean? It means that if the interest is allowed to remain on deposit with the principal sum, interest will be paid on interest—that is, $1.00 placed at 4% compound interest, will double itself in a little less than eighteen years through the interest additions.

To secure the best results it is necessary to set aside weekly or monthly a fixed sum from your income, and deposit it to your account. The tables here given show what may be accomplished by this method. The interest earnings equal from 20 to 50% of the money deposited during the periods shown. That is, if monthly deposits of $5 are made for twenty years, the total sum would be $1,200. With 4% compound interest, it will amount to $1,833.50; the earnings added equaling $633.50, or 52% of the money actually saved.

"When Labor Shall Have Just Reward and Indolence Alone Shall Want"

By Premier LLOYD GEORGE, Message to Great Britain

Millions of gallant young men have fought for the new world. Hundreds of thousands died to establish it. If we fail to honor the promise given them we dishonor ourselves.

What does the new world mean? What was the old world like? It was a world where toil for myriads of honest workers, men and women, purchased nothing better than squalor, penury, anxiety, wretchedness; a world scarred by slums, disgraced by sweating, where unemployment, through the vicissitudes of industry, brought despair to multitudes of humble homes; a world where, side by side with want, there was waste of the inexhaustible riches of the earth, partly through ignorance and want of forethought, partly through entrenched selfishness.

If we renew the lease of that world, we shall betray the heroic dead. We shall be guilty of the basest perfidy that ever blackened a people's fame. Nay! We shall store up retribution for ourselves and our children.

The old world must and will come to an end. No effort can shore it up much longer. If there be any who feel inclined to maintain it, let them beware lest it fall upon them and overwhelm them and their households in ruin.

It should be the sublime duty of all, without thought of partisanship, to help in the building up of the new world, where labor shall have its just reward and indolence alone shall suffer want.

Since the Armistice All the World Has Been a Bundle of Mutinous Nerves

By President L. H. HOUGH, Northwestern University

Since the armistice the world has been one big union of mutinous nerves.

The first danger is that we may allow this period of world-wide weariness to become a period of world-wide misanthropy. There are difficulties connected with the situation in itself, but the most dangerous thing is not the situation but the way we feel about it.

We are confronted by a state of mind which is a good deal more dangerous than the actual state of the world. If the Christian mind settles down into heavy misanthropy the danger is that it will create the thing it fears.

The second danger is another aspect of the first. It is that we may allow a world-wide nervous reaction to become world-wide ethical reaction. We are all on edge nervously, but we do not like to admit that, except collectively.

During the war fathers and mothers at home and the boys at the front did not realize that all the while their nerves were being held tense—and that after the armistice was signed their nerves went on strike, joined a big union of mutinous nerves.

The nervous reaction had to come. One of the greatest assets of the Christian religion is a sense of humor. If we were to refuse to take our nerves seriously we should perhaps learn what keeps the God Almighty steady, for we read that "even He who sits in the heavens laughs."

New Woman Voter Is All Dressed Up; Is Anyone Getting Ready for Her?

By HARRIET TAYLOR UPTON, Ohio Suffrage Association

The women of the United States are on the eve of political enfranchisement. The national amendment will undoubtedly be ratified by 36 states before the election of 1920. Now that women are ready, the question is, where will they go? They are not partisan. They have no political inheritance. They have considered themselves Republicans or Democrats because their fathers or husbands are, but distinctly not from any love of the party itself. Where will they go?

The new women voters are shocked at the high cost of living. They know what the trouble is. They know that the men at the head of the great trusts are grinding the people. The powerful corporations contribute vast sums to the treasuries of the political parties. Women are saying: "If the political parties as now constituted cannot be divorced from beef and steel without dying, then let them die. Let us get a new party, one that is not afraid."

Again, women are unalterably opposed to war. When women had no power they could only weep, but this is now a day for action, not for tears. The political leaders say that no political party can live which does not accept this so-called League of Nations along with universal training and a standing army and side treaties. Well, let it die!

The new woman voter is all dressed up and nowhere to go. The question is: "Is any one wise enough to prepare a place for her?"

Hohenzollern Must Be Shorn of Power for Harm, but He Cannot Be Tried

By LUIGI LUZZATTI, Former Premier of Italy

Crimes attributed to the former emperor were not contemplated in any penal code.

Nobody can be called to answer and be punished for acts which, when committed, did not constitute a crime contemplated by law.

The society of nations may establish for the future the criminal status of offenses against international morals or disregard of treaties, lay down the procedure for judging the culprit, and provide for the penalty, but Count Hohenzollern's accusers cannot appoint judges, and it is impossible to ask Holland to extradite her guest for political crimes not within the purview of present treaties.

The former emperor must be placed in a condition where he can do no further harm, but the eternal ideals which guarantee public and private law must be saved.

Not Always to the Strong

By OWEN OLIVER

(Copyright)

The rain was coming down in sheets, and the wind took life off my balance as I turned the corner of Alexandra road. Some one ran against me as I righted myself. It was George King. "Where are you going?" he growled. "To Hardy's," I answered gruffly. "Same as you?" There were a dozen Hardy's in Sheerness, but he knew that I meant old Hardy, the pilot.

His cutter had gone down in the afternoon, and they said that the old man would go that evening. He had been sinking for a long time.

We walked to their house in silence. There was bad blood between us on account of Jessie Hardy. Jessie's aunt, who kept house for them, opened the door and let us in. The tears were rolling down her wrinkled old cheeks, and her apron was crumpled with wiping her eyes.

"He's been taking on awful," she told us.

"He'd feel it," I said, "about the cutter."

"The cutter? No, no, lad. We haven't told him of that. It's about Jessie. Lying gossip as nobody else wouldn't take notice of; but you know what he's like when he gets a thing into his head."

"Who's been saying things about Jessie?" I asked, fiercely. The old woman stared at me.

"You don't mean that you ain't heard?" she cried.

"Folks as have anything to say against Jessie aren't likely to say it to me," I told her.

"Nor me," said George.

"You know as she left Russell's shop sudden, a little before he got his berth on the lightship at the Nore, and gave up. They've set it about that he sent her away for taking things!"

"Who says it?" I shouted; and George clenched his fists. He wasn't one for words.

"Sh!" She raised her hand. "You'll wake her. Cried herself to sleep, poor girl. The things he's said to her! Always suspicious, he was, and ready to take anyone's word against his own flesh and blood."

"I suppose," George said, "the old man wouldn't listen to us?"

"Not if you was angels dropped from the sky! There's only one as he'd believe, he says, and that's Russell himself."

We looked at one another and shook our heads. Russell was on duty aboard the lightship.

"If it wasn't for the gale," George muttered, "I'd fetch a line from him; but no boat couldn't do it."

I went home, put on a waterproof, and stole out quietly for fear my mother should ask questions.

As I was untying my boat a man in oilskins passed under the lamp. It was George King. I knew that he was going to his boat.

I hauled the dingy down the slope, fastened the mast in its place and put up the smaller jib and the mainsail with all the reefs in. Then I pulled and pushed the dingy over the shingle.

She gave a lurch and shipped a sea before I got hold of the tiller.

We were certain to be swamped when we got into the full force of the storm. I thought, and I had almost made up my mind to turn back, when I saw King's boat to leeward.

So I decided to go on. King's was a larger boat than mine, with water-tight compartments at the head and stern, and a center-board, and he was a seaman by profession, while I was only an amateur.

The wind lulled for a moment and I got the boat almost dry. Then a gust came and the jib broke loose.

Crash! I caught wildly at some thing—the keel of my overturned boat. Another wave almost tore me off.

Suddenly the boat was whirled away from me. I tried vainly to swim in my heavy clothes, but swallowed the water in great gulps.

I was almost unconscious when a hand seized me and pulled me up. I clung to the gunwale of King's boat, and he hauled me in.

I laid helplessly on the deck bow till he got a bottle of rum from under his seat and gave me a drink.

Then the moon came out and showed the lightship straining at her moorings close by. We found a little shelter under her lee, and hallooed. Some one looked over the side and threw a rope. King caught it, made it fast and climbed by it.

"When he had reached the deck I followed."

"I found Russell below talking to King. He started when he saw me. 'Newman! You're here, too!' He glanced at George. 'You didn't tell me he was with you.'"

"I came on my own," I explained. "My boat went down, and he picked me up. You'll write as it's a lie?"

"In course it's a lie!—Any one but him would have known, without word of mine, the old—Well, well! He's dying."

"She left me because I couldn't afford to pay any one. The business wasn't doing anything, and that's why I come here."

panion, I followed him; but he waved me fiercely back.

"Let me come, too," I begged, "for the love of heaven!" The wind was so fierce that I had to shout in his ear.

"I'll have no one to come between me and her," he declared with a snarl. "You can't do no good, Jack," said Russell. "Yes, yes! I know how it is!"

He put his mouth to my ear. "He'll go down, and you'll have her."

He always liked me. "In course" he turned to George, "you'll tell her as Newman came, too?"

George laughed hoarsely. "In course," he said, "I won't."

He seized the rope and slid down into the boat. Before they could stop me I followed him.

When I was half way down he saw me and took out his knife. He gashed through two of the three strands, but I tumbled on top of him as the rope parted and the boat dashed away with a jerk and a swirl. A big wave broke over the well and almost covered us as we grappled with one another.

"Let go, you fool!" I shouted. "If we go down, what's the use of your letter?"

He let go and rose. "Promise me you'll not see her tonight," he hissed.

I struggled to get free, but he held the knife close to my throat. "Promise!"

"No!" I shouted furiously. He raised the knife and I closed my eyes. Then he let me go.

"Get up," he said. "I give you your life a second time."

"What do you want me to do?" I asked at last.

"Stay away from her tonight. Let her think you've dared what I haven't?"

"Yes."

"It isn't fighting fair."

"We fought fair and I won." I clenched my fists savagely.

"I wouldn't want her if she liked some one else best."

"Mate," he said, "I don't like taking it. I'll think all of myself all my life for taking it; but I'm going to do it, if you let me. You'd be a dead man if it weren't for me."

"I give you the chance," I said. "I fight fair. It's life, mind, and more; and it wipes off what I owe you."

"Aye—Well, rin-in under the breakfast yonder."

It was almost calm underneath, and we ran softly on to the shingle. It was pitch dark on the beach; but the lamp was alight on the wall, some 40 yards away.

A group stood under it. One of them was a woman. My heart gave a jump. "It is Jessie!" I cried under my breath.

You promised, he reminded me sharply.

"I've promised—For God's sake take her away from here."

"I'll take her home," he said. Then he ran up the beach, and I stayed behind in the shadow. Before he was half way to the wall she ran to meet him.

"Jack!" she cried, "is it you?" There was silence for a moment. Then he spoke.

"Jack's down by the boat," he said, "and I'm here."

And she came flying down the shingle into my arms!

MANY USES FOR PATCHOULI

Employed to Impart Distinctive Odor to Indian Shawls—Highly Popular Throughout India.

A few years ago real Indian shawls bore extravagant prices, and purchasers distinguished them by their odor. In fact, they are perfumed with patchouli. The French manufacturers had for some time successfully imitated the Indian fabric, but could not impart the odor. At length they discovered the secret and began to import this plant to perfume articles of their own make. From this origin the perfumers have brought it into use.

The powdered leaves are put into muslin bags to prevent cloth being attacked by moths. The leaf is largely imported by Mogul merchants. It is used in India as an ingredient in tobacco for smoking and for scenting the hair of women, and the essential oil is in common use among the superior classes of natives for imparting the peculiar fragrance of the leaf to clothes.

The Arab merchants buy it chiefly, employing it for stuffing mattresses and pillows, asserting that it is very efficacious in preventing contagion and in prolonging life.

One of the most remarkable of the many cases on record of singular legacies is that of a Louisville husband, who bequeathed his bathrobe to his widow in these words: "Inasmuch as she has deprived me so often of the comfort and convenience of the garment that was bought for my own personal use, by wearing the aforesaid bathrobe at times when I desired and needed it most, I bequeath it to her with all my love, and hope she will ever find it the same tried and faithful servant, ever though Providence should bless her with another husband, who may have a bathrobe to spare!"

Practical Experiment.

"I understand the boys quit playing poker at Crimson Gulch."

For Stout Figure

Accordion Pleating Treatment of Silk and Wool Effective.

Important Feature to Be Avoided is a Waistline Too Pronounced or Extremely Fitted.

Accordion pleating is used more this season than at any time in recent years. This treatment is given to silk and wool materials of all kinds, and unquestionably it is very effective. Unfortunately, accordion pleating is not especially serviceable for an entire skirt, but when front and sides only are pleated, or when, as in the dress shown in the sketch, a long tunic protects the pleating at the back of the skirt, it is very satisfactory.

The dress sketched is a model that may be used for a stout figure. It is of dark brown satin trimmed in gold embroidery and with tunic and sleeves faced with tan-colored satin. The tunic is long at sides and back and the waistline is merely indicated by the loosely draped girdle of self fabric. In developing garments for the stout figure the important thing to be considered is avoidance of a top-pronounced waistline. Extremely fitted effects are never good, and success in designing clothes for the stout figure has been arrived at by a recognition of this fact.

The frock sketched requires merely a fur neckpiece and a smart hat to complete a modish street outfit for the autumn days.

The style range in furs is quite as elastic as in other items of apparel. While large animal and shaped scarfs and clever little coats and dolmans are good, the small neckpieces brought out in the spring have not lost caste. Sable, mink and marten collars of one, two or three skins are decidedly chic and for fall and early winter will be much worn.

WHITE WINTER IS FORECAST

Palm Beach Likely to See Preponderance of Snowy Attire; May Be Summer Fashion.

White has been continually emphasized from the French summer resorts. The vogue for white frocks commenced with the models shown at the races, and has been so much reiterated from the fashionable villes d'eau; at Deauville, at Vichy, and Aix les Bains, that the question is asked if this does not augur a white season for Palm Beach this winter and also perhaps a white season for us next summer.

The French fashion magazines speak of the "Uniforme Blanc," commenting that many of the young girls in their white tulle or white mousselines seemed to be so similarly attired, many of them with the scalloped flounces, that it had almost the effect of a uniform.

White satin combined with the many laces which have returned to fashion is also emphasized. The tremendous opportunities for dainty treatment in the sheer white fabrics combined with lace gives opportunity for the designer which it is quite certain will not be neglected here in America.

Famous Parasol.

It was not until the 18th century that the parasol became distinctly an article of feminine costume. Large and elaborate parasols have from time immemorial been a mark of honor and official dignity in the Orient. In India, in 1877, when the then Prince of Wales made his famous tour, he was compelled, that he might properly impress the natives, to ride upon an elephant and have over his head a parasol with a frame of gold, and with a covering stitched with precious jewels.

ARE THE BUTTONS ON-TIGHT?

Much Time Lost and Misery Is Vexed Because of Carelessness of Manufacturers.

You know the little verse about the battle that was lost, because of a train of circumstances that had rise in the fact that a certain horseshoe nail was loose, and you might revise that little verse quite within the bounds of the possible to tell of other battles that have been lost because of the looseness of buttons or fasteners at critical moments.

Now, really, isn't it a vexation to buy an expensive frock or suit only to have a button come off on the first occasion of wearing it? Perhaps the button is lost, and as there are no others like it in the workrooms of the shop where you bought the suit, you have to get along the best you can with one button missing or get an entirely new set of buttons that perhaps are not half so suitable or attractive. An important fastener on your frock becomes loosened the second time you wear it and the third time it comes off altogether. Then you are not quite sure where the original fastener went and by the time the frock has sagged or pulled down in that particular place and when you do come to put the missing fastener on again you are never able to restore the original trimness of the frock.

In the shops where ready-made suits are sold a great deal of time has to be taken in readjusting buttons and hooks and eyes, and when the clothes have been in stock any length of time it is sometimes necessary to sell them cheaper because of missing buttons and fasteners or to go to the expense of putting on an entirely new set of buttons.

As a result of this a nation-wide campaign has been started on the part of retail men to see that manufacturers spend more time and thought on this really important matter of the loose fastener.

BLACK JET AGAIN POPULAR

Used in All Sorts of Ways on Evening Gowns of Black Charmeuse and Net.

Black jet in paillettes, embroidery, cords and tassels is being profusely used with charming results on evening gowns of black charmeuse and net. Broad bands of black jet are set at intervals on black net tunics.

Overblouses and boleros of jet are usually made over a foundation of black charmeuse, though flesh color chiffon and white georgette crepe are also employed as foundations.

An effective net and charmeuse model which shows the long-bloused bodice so popular at present, is made with a deep U-shaped jumper blouse of net outlined with heavy jet beads.

The underbodice consists of three lines of color. First a fold of flesh-colored chiffon, next to broad band of black satin and then a band of vivid green blue chiffon.

Over the narrow skirt of black charmeuse falls two panels of net, outlined with jet beads. Three bands of jet varying in width trim the panel.

FELT TURBAN IS IN FAVOR

The stiff upstanding ribbon bow at the extreme back of this fashionable little felt turban lends it a jaunty atmosphere.

Small Buckles on Pumps.

A pair of black satin pumps seen recently had small sparkling buckles of bronze shade, in the shape of an eagle with outstretched wings. These are typical of some of the favored shoe buckles.

Autumn Jewelry.

There are several novelties for wear in autumn jewelry. Among these are sweater rings, the new Spanish corbs, bracelets with small cases for photographs and beaded bags in many new designs.

Diamonds of Beads Effective Trim.

"THE WORD OF A SOLDIER AND GENTLEMAN."

Synopsis.—In 1833, Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucaire, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucaire has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a man whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negro, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker-hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucaire, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Kirby lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucaire's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucaire place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and Rene Beaucaire.

"I know," she said distinctly, "I am no longer a free white woman; I am a negro and a slave."

"Oh, you know that? Go you? Then you must also be aware that you are my property. Perhaps it will be well for you to remember this in answering my questions. Now, tell me who informed you of all this?"

"I cannot answer."

"Cannot! You mean you will not. Well, young woman, I'll find means to make you, for I have bandied your kind before. Where is Eloise Beaucaire?"

"Why do you seek to find her? There is no slave blood in her veins."

"To serve the necessary papers, of course."

"He spoke incautiously, urged on by his temper, and I marked how quickly her face brightened at this intelligence."

"To serve papers! They must be served, then, before—before you can take possession? That is what I understood—the sheriff to say. Then I am not really your slave—yet?" her voice deepening with earnestness and understanding.

"Oh, so that is how it is—even if I am a negro I do not belong to you until those papers have been served. If you touch me now you break the law. I may not be free, but I am free from you. I am glad to know that!"

"And do—a little good it is going to do you," he growled. "Sheriff or no sheriff, my beauty, you are going to St. Louis with me tonight; so I advise you to keep a grip on that tongue of yours. Do you think I am going to be felled together by a technical point of law? Possession is the main thing, and I have you where you can't get away. You hear me?"

She had not moved, although her form had straightened and her hand no longer rested on the table. Kirby had stepped close in front of her, his eyes glowing with anger, his evident intention being to thus frighten the girl into compliance with his wishes, but her eyes, defiant and unafraid, looked him squarely in the face.

"I certainly hear," she replied calmly. "Your voice is sufficiently distinct. I am a slave, I suppose, and in your power; but I despise you, hate you—and you are not going to take me to St. Louis tonight."

"What can stop me? The sheriff? Pull! a few dollars will take care of him. The judge is a friend of mine."

"It is not the sheriff—nor the judge; I place reliance on no friend of yours."

He grasped at her arm, but she stepped back quickly enough to avoid contact, and the red lips were pressed together in a thin line of determination. Her hand had suddenly disappeared within the folds of her skirt; but the angry man, apparently blinded by the violence of his passion, his eagerness to crush her spirit, thought only that she counted on outside aid for deliverance.

"You silly little fool," he snapped, his mustache bristling. "Why, what could you do to stop me? I could break your neck with one hand. So you imagine someone is going to save you. Well, who will it be? Those yokels down at the Landing? Haines the lawyer? You have a surprise up your sleeve for me, I suppose! He—! It makes me laugh; but you might as well have your lesson now as any other time. Come here, you wench!"

He caught her arm this time, brutally jerking her toward him, but as instantly staggered backward, grasping at the table, the flash of anger in his eyes changing to a look of startled surprise. A pistol was leveled full in his face, the polished black barrel shining ominously in the light of the overhead lamp.

"Now perhaps you know what I mean," she said. "If you dare to touch me I will kill you like a dog. That is no threat; it is true as God's gospel, and the very tone of her voice carried conviction. 'You may say I am a slave—your slave! That may be so, but you will never possess me—never! Life means nothing to me any more, and I never expect to go out of this house alive; I do not even care to. So I am not afraid of you. Do not drop your arms, you low-lived cur, for you have never been nearer death in all your miserable life than you are now. God knows I want to kill you; it is the one desire of my heart at this moment to rid the earth of such a beast. But I'll give you one chance—just one. Don't you dare call out or answer me. Do what I say. Now step back—back along the table; that's it, a step at a time. Oh, I knew you were a cowardly bully. Go on—yes, clear to that window—don't lower those hands an inch until I say you may. I am a slave—yes, but I am also a Beaucaire. Now reach behind you and pull up the sash—pull it up higher than that."

Her eyes dilated with sudden astonishment and terror. She had caught sight of me, emerging from the black shadow just behind her victim. Kirby also perceived the quick change in the face fronting him, read its expression of fright, and sought to twist his head so as to learn the truth. Yet before he could accomplish this or his lips could give utterance to a sound, my hands closed on his throat, crushing him down to the sill, and throttling him into silence between the vise of my fingers.

CHAPTER VII.

To Save a "Nigger."

It proved to be a short, sharp struggle from the first advantage altogether with me. With all the old-time dislike in my heart, all the hatred aroused by what I had overheard, I closed down on his throat, rejoicing to see the purple of his flesh turn into a sickening black, as he fought desperately for breath and as he lost consciousness and ceased from struggle. I was conscious of a pang in my wounded shoulder, yet it seemed to rob me of no strength but only added to my ferocity. The fellow rested limp in my hands. I believed I had killed him, and the belief was a joy as I tossed his helpless body aside on the floor and stepped through the open window into the room.

In my heart I hoped he was dead, and in a sudden feeling of utter contempt I struck the inert body with my foot. Then, as my eyes lifted, they encountered those of the girl. She had drawn back to the table, started out of all reserve by this sudden apparition, unable to comprehend. The pistol yet remained clasped in her hand, while she stared at me as though a ghost confronted her.

"Who—who are you?" she managed to gasp in a voice which barely reached my ears. "My God! who—who sent you here?"

"It must have been God," I answered, realizing instantly that I needed to make all clear in a word.

My Hands Closed on His Throat, Crushing Him Down to the Sill.

"I came only to help you and was just in time—no doubt God sent me."

"To help me? You came here to help me? But how could that be? I—I never saw you before—who are you?"

I stood straight before her, my eyes meeting her own frankly. I had forgotten the dead body at my feet, the incidents of struggle, the pain of my own wound, comprehending only the supreme importance of compelling her to grasp the truth.

"There is no time now to explain all this, Miss Rene. You must accept the bare facts—will you?"

"Yes—I suppose I must."

"Then listen, for you must know that every moment we waste here in talk only makes escape more difficult. I tell you the simple truth. I am Steven Knox, an officer in the army. It chanced I was a passenger on the boat when Judge Beaucaire lost his life. I witnessed the game of cards this man won, and afterward, when I protested, was attacked and flung overboard into the river by Kirby here and that fellow who is outside guarding the door. They believe me to be dead; but I managed to reach shore and was taken care of by a negro—Free Pete! he calls himself; do you know him?"

"Yes—oh, yes; he was one of the Carlton slaves." Her face brightened slightly in its bewilderment.

"Well, I knew enough of what was bound to occur to feel an interest and tonight he brought me here for the purpose of warning you—you, your mother and Eloise Beaucaire. He has his cart and mule-out ronder; we intended to transport you across the river, and thus start you safely on the way to Canada."

"Then," she said slowly, seeming to catch at his breath, her voice trembling, "then it must be really true what these men say—Della is my mother? I—I am a slave?"

"You did not really know? You were not warned by anyone before their arrival?"

"No, there was no warning. Did anyone in this neighborhood understand?"

"Haines the lawyer did. He furnished me with much of the information I possess. But I am the one puzzled now. If the truth was not known to any of you how does it happen the others are gone?"

"So far as I am aware that is merely an accident. They walked over to the old Carlton place early this evening; and there is sickness in the family, and they hoped to be of help. That is everything I know. They were to return two hours ago, for I was here all alone, except for the negroes in their quarters. I cannot conceive what has occurred—unless they have learned in some way of the trouble here."

"That must be the explanation; they have hidden themselves. And these men told you why they came?"

"The only one I saw at first did. He came in all alone and claimed to be a deputy sheriff. I was terribly frightened at first, and did not at all understand; but I questioned him and the man liked to talk. So he told me all he knew. Perhaps I should have thought he was crazy, only—only some things had occurred of late which led me to half suspect the truth before. I—I wouldn't believe it then, but—I made him repeat everything he had heard. Horrible as it was I—I wanted to know all."

"And you acknowledged to him that you were Rene Beaucaire?"

Her dark eyes flashed up into my face questioningly.

"Why—why, of course. I—I could not deny that, could I?"

"Perhaps not; yet if none of them knew you, and you had claimed to be Eloise, they would never have dared to hold you prisoner."

"I never once thought of that; the only thing which occurred to me was how I could best protect the others. My plan was to send them warning in some way. Still now I am very glad I said I was Rene."

"Glad! Why?"

"Because it seems it is Eloise they must first find to serve their papers on. They dare not take away the slaves until this is done. As for me, I am nothing—nothing but a slave myself; it took no true thought."

To look into her eyes, her face, and answer was a hard task, yet one I saw no way to evade.

"Yes; I am afraid it is true."

"And—and then Della, the house-keeper, is actually my mother?"

"That is the story as it reached me." She held tightly to the table for support, all the fresh color deserting her face, but the lips were firmly set and her head remained as proudly poised as ever above the round throat.

Wherever might be the stain of alien blood in her veins, she was still a Beaucaire. Her eyes, filled with pain as they were, met mine unflinchingly.

"And—and knowing all this, convinced of its truth—that that I am colored," she faltered, doubtfully, "you came here to help me?"

"I did; that can make no difference now."

"No difference! Why do you say that? Are you from the North, an abolitionist?"

"No; at least I have never been called one or so thought myself. I have never believed in slavery, yet I was born in a southern state. In this case I merely look upon you as a woman—as one of my own class. It does not seem as though I could ever consider you in any other way. You must believe this."

"Believe it! Why, you and I are caught in the same net. I am a slave to be sold to the highest bidder, and you—you have killed a man to save me. Even if I was willing to remain and face my fate I could not suffer, for that would mean you must suffer.

And—and you have done this for me."

My eyes dropped to the upturned face of Kirby, on which the rays of light rested. The flesh was no longer black and horrid, yet remained ghastly enough to increase my belief that the man was actually dead—had perished under my hand. He was not a pleasant sight to contemplate, flung as he had been in a shapeless heap, and the sight brought home to me anew the necessity of escape before those others of his party could learn what had occurred.

"From whatever reason the deed was done," I said, steadying my voice, "we must now face the consequences. As you say, it is true we both alike have reason to fear the law if caught. Flight is our only recourse. Will you go with me? Will you trust me?"

"Go—go with you? Where?"

"First across the river into Illinois; there is no possible safety here. In a way your danger is even more serious than mine. I have not been seen— even Kirby had no glimpse of my face—and might never be identified with the death of this man. But you will become a fugitive slave and could be hunted down anywhere this side of Canada."

"Then being with me would add to your danger."

"Whether it will or not counts nothing; I shall never let you go alone."

She pressed the palms of both her hands against her forehead as though in a motion of utter bewilderment.

"Oh, I cannot seem to realize," she exclaimed. "Everything is like a dream to me—impossible in its horror. This situation is so terrible; it has come upon me so suddenly I cannot decide; I cannot even comprehend what my duty is. You urge me to go away with you—alone?"

"I do; there is no other way left. You cannot remain here in the hands of these men; the result of such a step is too terrible to even contemplate. There are no means of determining where the others are—Della and Miss Eloise. Perhaps they have had warning and fled already," I urged desperately.

Her eyes were staring down at Kirby's body.

"Look, he—he is not dead," she sobbed excitedly. "Did you see then— one of his limbs moved, and—and— why, he is beginning to gasp for breath."

"All the more reason why we should decide at once. If the fellow regains consciousness and lives, our danger will be all the greater."

"Yes, he would be merciful," her lips parted, her eyes eloquent of disgust and horror as she suddenly lifted them to my face. "I—I must not forget that I—I belong to him; I am his slave; he—he, that hideous thing there, can do anything he wishes with me—the law says he can." The indignant color mounted into her face. "He can sell me, or use me, or rent me; I am his chattel. Good God! think of it! Why, I am as white as he is, better educated, accustomed to every care, brought up to believe myself rich and happy—and now I belong to him; he owns me, body and soul." She paused suddenly, assailed by a new thought, a fresh consideration. "Is it so, is it the law that these men can take possession of nothing here until after Eloise has been found and their papers served upon her?"

"Yes, I believe it is," I said. "She is the legal heiress of Judge Beaucaire; the estate is hers by inheritance, as I am told there was no will. All this property, including the slaves, would legally remain in her possession until proper steps had been taken by others. Serving of the papers would be necessary. There is no doubt as to that."

She drew a deep breath and stepped toward me, gazing straight into my face.

"I believe in you," she said firmly. "And I trust you. You look like a real man. You tell me you serve in the army—an officer?"

"A lieutenant of infantry."

She held out her hand and my own closed over it, the firm, warm clasp of her fingers sending a strange thrill through my whole body. An instant she looked directly into my eyes, down into the very soul of me, and what I read in the depths of her brown orbs could never find expression in words. I have thought of it often since—that great, dimly lighted room, with the guard at the outer door; the inert, almost lifeless body huddled on the floor beside us, and Rene Beaucaire, her hand clasped in mine.

"Lieutenant Knox," she said softly, yet with a note of confidence in the low voice, "I am going to trust you absolutely; there are reasons why I do so decide which I cannot explain at this time. I have not known you long enough to venture that far. You must accept me just as I am—a runaway slave and a negro, but also a woman. Can you pledge such as I your word of honor—the word of a soldier and a gentleman?"

"I pledge it to you, Rene Beaucaire," I answered soberly.

"And I accept the pledge in all faith. From now on whatever you say I will do."

I had but one immediate purpose in my mind—to escape from the house as quickly as possible, to attain Pete's cart at the edge of the woods, and be several miles up the river, hidden away in some covert before daylight, leaving no trail behind. It would prove decidedly to our advantage if I was not seen or recognized. The very mystery, the bewilderment as to who had so viciously attacked the gambler and then spirited away the girl, would serve to facilitate our escape.

I stooped and removed a pistol from Kirby's pocket, dropping it, together with such ammunition as I could find, into one of my own. The man by this time was breathing heavily, although his eyes remained closed, and he still lay exactly as he had fallen.

"Keep your own weapon," I commanded her. "Hide it away in your dress. Now come with me."

She obeyed, uttering no word of objection, and stepping after me through the open window onto the narrow balcony without. I reached up and drew down the shade, leaving us in comparative darkness. The night was soundless and our eyes, straining to pierce the black void, were unable to detect any movement.

"You see nothing?" I whispered, touching her hand in encouragement. "No evidence of a guard anywhere?"

"No—the others must still be out in front waiting."

"There were only the four of them, then?"

"So I understood. I was told they came up the river in a small keelboat, operated by an engine, and—that they anticipating no resistance. The engineer was left to watch the boat and be ready to depart downstream at any moment."

"Good; that leaves us a clear passage. Now I am going to drop to the ground; it is not far below. Can you make it alone?"

"I have done so many a time."

"We attained the solid earth almost together and in silence."

"New let me guide you," she suggested, as I hesitated. "I know every inch of the way about here. Where is the negro waiting?"

"At the edge of the wood where the wagon road ends, beyond the slave quarters."

"Yes, I know; it will be safer for us to go around the garden."

She flitted forward, sure-footed, confident, and I followed as rapidly as possible through the darkness, barely keeping her dim figure in sight. Our feet stumbled over the ruts of a road, and I seemed to vaguely recognize the spot as familiar. Yes, away off yonder was the distant gleam of the river reflecting the stars. This must be the very place where Pete and I had parted, but—where had the fellow gone!

"Here is where he was directed to wait," I explained hurriedly. "I am sure I am not mistaken in the spot."

"Yet he is not here, and there is no sign of him. You left no other instructions except for him to remain until your return?"

"I think not—oh, yes, I did tell him if you women came without me he was to drive you to once to the boat and leave me to follow the best way I could. Do you suppose it possible the others reached here and he has gone away with them?"

She stood silent and I strove by peering about to discover some marks of guidance, only to learn the uselessness of the effort. Even a slight advance brought no result, and it was with some difficulty I even succeeded in locating her again in the darkness—indeed, only the sound of her voice made me aware of her immediate presence.

"The negro's boat is some distance away, is it not?"

"Four miles, over the worst road I ever traveled." A sudden remembrance swept into my mind, bringing with it inspiration.

"Knox has an inspiration that promises well."

Love's Labor Lost.

A young and enthusiastic golfer at a dinner party started to enumerate to his partner the details of a golf match that he had been playing that day. It was not until dessert was brought in that he suddenly bethought himself that he had been talking all the time; indeed, the young lady at his side had not said a single word during the progress of the meal. "I am afraid I have been boring you with this talk," he said in half apology. "Oh, no—not at all!" was the polite response. "Only, what is golf?"

The DAIRY

INCREASE OF DAIRY EXPORTS

Figures Are of Particular Importance as They Show Trend of Trade Following War.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Dairy products amounting to the equivalent of 100 pounds of milk from every dairy cow in the United States were exported during the year ending June 30, 1919, according to figures just compiled by the United States department of agriculture. The exports include butter, cheese, and condensed milk, but the net exports of those products in terms of whole milk amounted to 2,556,635,746 pounds, or approximately 3 per cent of all the milk produced in the United States.

These figures indicate the possibilities of developing foreign markets for American dairy products. They are of particular importance, as they show the trend of trade immediately following the war. Probably the greatest interest in an industry is that displayed during the time between actual war and actual peace, the specialists say, when business are trying to regain normal trade or acquire an advantage in their special lines. During the fiscal year 1919 the armistice was in operation the greater part of the time, only the first four months—July to November—being in the actual war period.

During the year the exports of butter and condensed milk were increased, and the exports of cheese were decreased when compared with 1918. The total butter exports amounted to 38,739,960 pounds for the year. This is the largest amount of butter exported from the United States in recent years and has been exceeded but three times since 1850. The largest amount on record was for the year 1880, when 39,000,000 pounds were exported. The cheese exports for 1919 were only 18,794,853 pounds, which is a decrease of more than 50 per cent when compared with any year from 1915 to 1918, inclusive. The condensed milk exports for 1919 were 728,740,509 pounds. This is an increase over 1918 of 193,900,477 pounds.

The net exports of these dairy products were:

	Pounds	Equivalent in whole milk (pounds)
Butter	38,739,960	621,773,311
Cheese	18,794,853	163,525,470
Condensed milk	728,740,509	1,771,381,955

Year	Net exports in terms of whole milk
1919	2,556,635,746
1918	1,929,000,000

It is noticeable that the butter exports fell off in May and June each year, as the butter made during those months is used largely for storage.

Dairy Cows Produce for the World.

While the exports of butter for 1919 were practically doubled the imports also were doubled, and amounted to 4,131,469 pounds. The cheese exports were not heavy for any month of the year, the largest amount being for July, 1918, which reached 5,656,901 pounds. The imports were also greatly reduced, being only 2,442,396, the lowest since 1878.

The condensed and evaporated milk showed a continued and material increase throughout the year. The increase was greatest during May, June, and July. In June there were exported 114,835,626 pounds, which was greater than the total for any year prior to 1916. The imports of condensed milk continue, but were reduced from 29,000,000 pounds in 1918 to 20,183,723 pounds in 1919. Fresh milk amounting to 2,591,553 gallons also was imported during the year.

BUSINESS OF THE DAIRY COW

Function of Animal Is Production and Reproduction—Man Must Furnish Fuel Units.

The dairy cow is but a machine whose function is production and reproduction. It is her business to convert farm-grown products into food products, more concentrated and hence more valuable than when given her as raw material. It is man's business to supply food or fuel units for this machine.

HOW IS YOUR ACCOUNT?

We are sending to each of our subscribers whose subscription has expired a statement showing how the account stands according to our records. If any errors have been made we shall be glad to correct them.

At present prices for everything that enters into the production of a newspaper it is impossible to extend long credits on subscriptions. Our paper and labor bills must be paid promptly or we would soon be forced to close "the shop." We trust all our subscribers will renew their subscriptions promptly.

HAD A MERRY TIME.

The Hallows'en party at the school building Wednesday evening proved a very enjoyable occasion. The attendance was good, although the large proportion of the company were not "en-masque." However, a sufficient number of "witches," "ghosts," etc. were in evidence to supplement the Hallows'en atmosphere, furnished by the elaborate and appropriate decorations. The refreshment booths, presided over by various "spooky" individuals, did a thriving business, and the dancing, to the music of Montgomery's orchestra was patronized by many young people besides the students.

TELL YOUR NEIGHBORS.

For the purpose of introducing The Record into many new homes in this section we have decided to make a very special offer during the next few days. We will send the paper to new subscribers for the months of November and December for 25 cents. At the expiration of the two months term the paper will not be forced upon any one, but all special offer subscriptions will be discontinued with the new year.

If your neighbor has been borrowing your paper, just kindly tell him of this special offer and try and induce him to take advantage of this two months' offer.

All subscriptions should be left at this office or they may be ordered by letter by enclosing 25 cents.

Get your order in early so you can get the paper for the two full months.

DETROIT THEATRES.

"Ladies First," a musical comedy in three acts, with Nora Bayes as its star, will be the attraction at the Garrick theatre next week starting Sunday night. Miss Bayes comes with a New York success where it had a run of six months. It is her own play for she is her own manager and her own star. She brings with her the same company that appeared with her in New York in a theatre named after herself.

"Chu Chin Chow" the gorgeous and beautifully staged musical extravaganza of the Orient which ran an entire season in New York at the Century theatre will be presented by F. Ray Constock and Morris Cost at the Shubert-Detroit Opera house on the Campus. The coming of this brilliant pageant of ancient Baghdad staged on a scale of the most important of superlative magnificence will unquestionably rank as one of the most important events of man's theatrical seasons.

TO OBSERVE ARMISTICE DAY.

While the last legislature designated November 11 as Liberty day and required that the anniversary, of the signing of the armistice be observed in the public schools Liberty day is not a legal holiday. The law provides that any school teacher failing to provide an appropriate program for this day may have his or her license revoked.

Governor Sleeper Wednesday issued the following proclamation.

"November 11 will be the first anniversary of the signing of the armistice in the great war and, as much as the Michigan legislature in the season of 1919 passed an act making it the duty of school officers and teachers to have the school under their charge observe said day, with appropriate commemorative exercises, it seems fitting that the day should not be allowed to pass without attention being called to its significance.

"Therefore I Albert A. Sleeper governor of Michigan, do issue this my proclamation and hereby request a proper and appropriate observance, on the part of the people of this state, of November 11.

"I further request that this proclamation be read in all the schools of the state."

"LIFE SAVING IS RED CROSSAIM"

Most Important Work of Peace Is Welfare of People, Says Dr. Farrand.

ORGANIZATION MUST GO ON

Co-ordination of All Movements to Conserve Humanity and Prevent Disease is After-War Task.

"The efficient organization which the American Red Cross built-up to meet the demands of war must not be permitted to slip back into inactivity," said Dr. Livingston Farrand, chairman of the Central Committee of the American Red Cross who is touring the country to place the proposed peace work squarely before the people. His tour was outlined to carry the message into all states as a forerunner of the Third Red Cross Roll Call, to be conducted from Nov. 2 to 11 for 20,000,000 annual memberships and $15,000,000.

"The war has accentuated and sharpened our realization that the greatest contributing factor in disturbing the happiness of mankind is the question of physical well-being, the problem of health and disease," Dr. Farrand said. A large portion of the disease of the world is preventable, and the people naturally are looking to organizations that are able to help and guide; that are built on lines that beget confidence.

"The organization best equipped for this purpose is the American Red Cross. States and municipalities must conduct this campaign and the local Red Cross organizations are operating units. For the last ten years leaders in health work have sought an organization capable of co-ordinating the various local activities into a massed movement which would produce results. That organization is the Red Cross.

Nursing Program Developed. Are we not going to take advantage of this opportunity to better humanity? We have here an organization that represents every national interest; that knows no party and no creed; that has attached to it every type of man, woman and child in the United States and we propose to put this energy behind the great movement to co-ordinate and bring together these varied interests so far as possible.

The biggest activity which the Red Cross has undertaken in this field is the great public nursing program. The entire movement for public health depends upon the adequate development of the public nurse.

GEN. PERSHING GIVES $10,000 TO RED CROSS.

The last act of Gen. Pershing before he left France for the United States was to turn over to the American Red Cross $10,000, about $25,40 francs, about $10,000, to be used by the Red Cross for the care of French orphan children who had been "adopted" by the Red Cross. A chaplain attached to Gen. Pershing's staff visited the Red Cross headquarters and saw the work which was being done for the children. Apparently, he had carried a report to the commander in chief, and the check was the result.

Too Busy for Gratitude. The quality for which we most frequently criticize the Japanese is one in which, with curious inconsistency, we particularly pride ourselves. That is their determination to be independent. If an American has something to teach a Japanese, the Japanese observes him very carefully while he performs the trick. Then, with a polite "Thank you, Goodby" the Japanese leaves the American and thereafter performs the trick for himself—with improvements. He is far too busy to sit at anybody's feet in gratitude. LET'S CARRY ON. Numerous Michigan towns and cities have live, aggressive commercial clubs, organized for the purpose of assisting in the upbuilding and improvement of local conditions. In many instances these organizations have accomplished a great deal for their respective localities, both in a commercial and civic way. They have been the means of stimulating interest in many local projects and in improving conditions generally, with the result that they have become to be looked upon as a very great local need. In many towns new manufacturing projects have been secured through the efforts of the commercial club and in others noticeable and important improvements have been fostered in civic matters. Schools and churches have been helped, new highways have been constructed, streets have been improved and unsightly places have been cleaned up and beautified—and in addition to all these efforts an awakening of the true community spirit has been accomplished, and in these times that is the one thing that ought to be encouraged. The Jack of community interest is becoming more and more noticeable in many communities, especially in the rural sections of our state. Church buildings and grange halls, in which the people used to gather for worship and for intellectual improvement, are now only silent witnesses to former times and better days. Yes, better days, because people were more contented when they used to meet upon a common level in their own communities, and they needed these gatherings to stimulate them for the every day duties of life. Today in many rural communities neighbors scarcely know those who live on adjoining farms because the meeting places of former years have been neglected or abolished. What is true of rural communities is also true of villages and towns located under the shadow of a large city. People are not concerned so much with what takes place in their own community as they are with the lights and shadows of the city and matters which used to entertain and help them, no longer attract their attention. In the city there are so many places of amusement, while in the smaller places these are naturally curtailed. But this spirit ought not to be permitted to go unchallenged, and the smaller cities and towns ought to do something to arouse an interest in local affairs and enterprises. That is the present-day mission of the commercial clubs. They may secure additional factories, a most worthy endeavor, but to be able to arouse a true community spirit among the citizenship which such organization represents is of far greater importance. That was the thought which inspired a number of the citizens of Northville to form a Board of Commerce some months ago, and that must be the spirit which shall inspire the members to "carry on" in their efforts to make the organization one of vital force in the community. Such an organization may not be able to secure additional industries for Northville, but it may be the means of fostering and stimulating those splendid institutions which we already have, and in addition, if concerted efforts are put forth, there may be awakened here a community spirit that will prove of very great value to this whole section. The object of the organization is the "promotion of the commercial, industrial, municipal and community advancement of the village of Northville and surrounding country," and any person of good standing "who is in sympathy with these objects shall be eligible to membership." That is a pretty broad platform, and one to which all citizens of this section ought to be willing to subscribe. It does not matter whether you are actively engaged in business in Northville, or whether you are a farmer or an employee of one of our factories, you ought to be in sympathy with any movement that has for its objects the promotion of the well-being of the whole community, regardless of boundary lines. To make this organization a real live, effective force in this community it is desired to have all who are in sympathy with its objects become members, and to make the slogan "One for all and all for one." Personal matters should be forgotten and the one thought should be what can I do to help my town and the surrounding country. People were generally very much pleased to observe by Sunday's papers that President Wilson has sufficiently recovered from his serious illness to have some "punch" left and all will approve of his attitude regarding the proposed coal miners' strike in these times of high prices and scarcity of coal it will be crime to call a general strike in the coal fields, and the administration will be justified in taking any means necessary to avert such a calamity. The officers of the Miner's union, for they are the ones who are inciting the miners to strike, ought to be taught that a contract made with the government must be kept unbroken.

According to the Bureau of Education, the boy who stays in school until he is eighteen years old has earned by the time he is twenty-five years old $2000 more than the boy of the same age who left school at fourteen; and also he is getting $900 a year more pay. In other words, the additional four years at school are equivalent to an investment of $18,000 at five percent interest. Moreover, the earnings of the boy who stayed in school until he was eighteen will continue to increase rapidly, whereas the salary of the boy who left school at fourteen will never be much larger—Youths Companion. A beautiful day is the smile of the great spirit. No one is a slave whose will is free. Tyrus Maximus. People do not lack strength, they lack will—Tenyson. "Is this hard cider?" asked the prospective purchaser. "Sure," said the rural dispenser. "But how hard is it?" "Well, my hired man, who never wuz right peart before, filled up on the stuff 'other day an' lit out down the big road yellin' 'Glory hallelujah! I'm still livin' in the home of the brave an' the land o' the free!'" "Give me a gallon"—Birmingham Age-Herald.

OAKLAND CUTS STATE'S VALUATION.

Oakland supervisors Monday equalized the valuation of Oakland county at 20% less than the figure fixed by the state board of equalization.

The state figure was set at more than $139,000,000, while the county committee recommended the aggregate be set at $120,995,000.

The increase from $96,000,000, which was reported last June, is divided proportionately among the 25 townships and the city, instead of being largely placed on the city, as had been discussed because of the increased building and business there this year.

BE CAUTIOUS BUT DON'T GET FRIGHTENED

Since so many members of the Sayles family in Detroit were poisoned by eating ripe olives, a good deal of trash has been published concerning the cold pack method of putting up fruit and vegetables. Naturally a good many people who employed that method have become very much alarmed. The following bulletin issued by the Wayne County Farm Bureau should allay this fear to some extent.

"The poison formed by Bacillus Botulinus is destroyed by five minutes' boiling, according to extensive tests carried out in the laboratory of bacteriology and immunity, of Leland Stanford Junior University and reported in the Journal of American Medical Association. All danger of this poisoning from products canned by the cold pack method may be easily averted in this way: You need not feel uneasy about using any of your vegetables or fruits which you have canned this summer by the cold pack process if you take this simple precaution:

No canned products should be used which show any one of the following signs of spoilage:

- Gas bubbles in the jars, the tops of the jars blown, and a squirt of liquid as the top is unscrewed.
- An odor somewhat resembling rancid cheese.
- A mushy or disintegrated appearance of the solid parts of the contents of the jars.

Do not test for spoilage by tasting but discard all products showing these signs.

RED CROSS PLANS AID IN WAYNE TOWNSHIPS

DETROIT PATRIOTIC FUND DRIVE TO GIVE DIRECT BENEFITS TO WHOLE COUNTY.

TO RAISE HEALTH STANDARDS

Nurses to Be Stationed in Each Community to Give General Public Service.

Out of funds to be raised in the drive of the Detroit Patriotic Fund the Red Cross Public Health Nursing Service plans placing a public health nurse in every township in Wayne County to aid the sick and to carry on a campaign of education for the prevention of disease.

Miss I. C. Johanson, formerly community nurse in Grosse Pointe township, has been engaged to carry on the preliminary work and now is engaged in going over the county arranging for the complete county organization.

More than 20 nurses will be needed for the county, Miss Johanson said. "Our work is designed to raise the standard of health of each community. It is part of the great peace health program of the Red Cross. Our nurses visit the homes in each community and show how health measures can be carried out with practically no expense. We lecture in the schools and try to make stronger, healthier children by teaching them simple rules of hygiene. Eventually we hope to have both dental and medical clinics established in each community. We also are subject to call at all times in cases of illness."

Red Cross Roll Call Starts Now.

The Red Cross Nov. 2 is to launch its annual roll call with a campaign in Wayne County.

Wayne County the drive, however, will be limited to the roll call for new members, the county's quota being now in the treasury of the Patriotic Fund from last year's drive. The roll call here will be a part of the Patriotic Fund campaign which will be conducted the week of Nov. 3.

Canvassers for the Patriotic Fund will carry with them pledge cards on which each subscriber will be given the opportunity of directing that $1 of his subscription be set aside for a membership or for the renewal of a membership in the Red Cross.

The first national step in the preparations for the roll call was a call for 1,000,000 volunteer workers. This was followed by invitations to nearly 2,000,000 active chapter workers by the Junior Red Cross and Boy Scout messengers. Organizations for the roll call have been completed throughout the country and the Patriotic Fund organization of workers which will carry on the work here has been completed fully. As in previous years, for every home from which a subscription is obtained there will be given a service flag to be displayed in windows of homes and business houses.

Receipts Given for Subscriptions.

Subscribers to the Patriotic Fund's second annual campaign also will be given receipts for their subscriptions as tangible evidence of their donations. In last year's drive a "Fill the Flag" label button was given by the workers to subscribers.

This year, in addition to the button, there will be given a stub from the pledge card which will give the subscriber's serial number, name and address, the total amount of the subscription and the amount paid the solicitor.

Executives of the Patriotic Fund designed the cards with a serial number to make easier the payments or installments on subscriptions. Payments will be made by number hereafter, instead of by name, although the records will contain both names and numbers.

On the back of the pledge card is printed the names of all the organizations which will participate in the $5,250,000 fund to be raised during the drive.

District charmen and team captains for the campaign have reported that the small army of workers who will carry on the canvass is nearly recruited.

Everybody Given Chance to Contribute

Those in charge of the campaign have outlined a plan which includes having practically every person in Detroit and Wayne county seen during the one week and offered the opportunity of contributing to the humanitarian causes for which the various organizations to be benefited by the drive stand. This intensive work, they have estimated, will take approximately 4,000 active campaigners.

Arrangements have been made for a number of big meetings during the campaign. Rabbi Stephen S. Wise of New York will be the speaker at one of these meetings to be held Nov. 7. Other speakers, nationally known, will be brought here for the other meetings.

STATE DAIRYMEN LOSE MONEY, SPEAKERS SAY

"I have gone into this matter thoroughly and know that there are many Michigan milk producers who haven't been getting enough out of the business to pay their help," said N. P. Hull, of Lansing, president of the Michigan Milk Producers' association at a meeting held at the Michigan Agricultural college the past week.

Professor A. C. Anderson, head of the dairy husbandry department at M. A. C. gave an address on, "Is the Farmer a Profiteer?" Using figures gathered from representative herds in nearby communities. Professor Anderson showed that money was actually being lost on every cow due to the cost of labor and transportation of dairy products.

A measure was introduced to raise the percentage of butter fat used as a standard in the sale of products. Jersey dairymen supported the resolution, but it was lost by the opposing votes of the Holstein breeders.

The officers named for another year were N. P. Hull of Lansing, president, J. C. Near of Flatrock, vice president, R. C. Reed of Howell, secretary and selling agent, and H. W. Norton of Howell treasurer.

"These roads are in a terrible condition," exclaimed Mr. Chuggins.

"You're lucky," remarked Farmer Corntassel. "Most of the automobiles who get this far are so busy looking for a blacksmith shop or a garage that they don't have time for friendly conversation 'bout teh roads."

A Woman's Weakness HOW SAVED FROM SUFFERING

Kalamazoo, Mich.—"I always found Dr. Pierce's medicines to be good. Some time ago I was sick. I was laid up about three months with a very bad case of feminine weakness and I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and I got immediate relief and in about four months I was well as ever. It is a wonderful medicine it saved me lots of suffering and doctor bills, too. I hope my testimony will be the cause of others who are suffering with feminine complaint to try this medicine. It will surely cure them."—Mrs. Julia Hickox, 132 Lincoln Ave.

Weakness and Bad-Blood

Waukesha, Wis.—"I have taken Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and received great benefit from its use. About 18 years ago I was ill with weakness and my blood was in bad condition as well. Doctors' medicine did not seem to give me the relief I thought I should have. I began taking the 'Favorite Prescription' and it cured me in a short space of time. I do certainly recommend it as being good."—Mrs. Minnie Steensloff, 739 Pleasant St.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a non-alcoholic remedy that any ailing woman can safely take because it is prepared from roots and herbs containing tonic properties of the most pronounced character.

RECENT TREND OF CATTLE DEVELOPMENT OUTSIDE OF THE IMMEDIATE WAR AREA

More Guernseys Have Been Imported to United States During Last 33 Years Than Any Other Breed.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) Twenty-nine countries each have more than 2,000,000 cattle. The United States has not the greatest number, as many people suppose, but ranks second to India by more than 100,000,000. During the last 33 years Guernseys led by far all other breeds in numbers of purebred cattle imported into this country, and of the five breeds leading the importations, four were distinctive dairy types.

More than 8,750 Guernsey cattle were imported; Jerseys, ranged second in numbers, with Durhams, including Shorthorns, third, Holsteins fourth, and Ayrshires fifth. The volume of purebred cattle importations has been extremely variable.

Trend of Industry. These are a few of many facts about the dairy industry that are brought out in Circular No. 7, recently published by the United States department of agriculture, which shows, chiefly by graphic charts, the trend of the industry in this country and its relation to the world trend.

The circular reports statistics of cattle in the various countries as far back as 1850, when the earliest dependable information was received. Compared with other decades the world has had more cattle in recent years than before, although it must be remembered, although it must be remembered, the population has increased also.

Owing to the wide variations in the quality of herds in the different countries, the circular says, the charts must not be considered an indication of relative meat or dairy resources.

The circular says the general trend

HOGS ARE HEAVIEST CONSUMERS OF GRAIN

Horses Are Placed Second by Bureau of Crop Estimates.

Mill Feed Is Especially for Cattle and Swine, Which Together Consume 86 Per Cent—Little Forage Eaten by Sheep.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.) The various proportions of the crops that are fed to the different classes of domestic animals on farms in this country have been determined by the bureau of crop estimates with interesting results. Corn, of course, is fed to hogs much more than to any other class of animals—50 per cent to them, or fully one-half of the quantity fed to all animals. Horses eat 24 per cent, cattle 19 per cent and poultry 5 per cent.

Horses are the chief eaters of oats, their share being 68 per cent; that of cattle 13 per cent, of hogs 11 per cent and of poultry 6 per cent. Barley is chiefly eaten by hogs, whose consumption is 60 per cent of the quantity eaten by all animals, while horses eat 18 per cent, cattle 12 per cent, and poultry 11 per cent. Of the small fraction of the wheat crop fed to animals, poultry gets 59 per cent and hogs 29 per cent. Nearly all the hay goes to cattle and horses, 51 and 45 per cent, respectively.

Rye has been fed to animals as well as used for bread, and more than one-half of this feed has gone to hogs, one-quarter to horses, and one-seventh to poultry. Nearly all the silage is eaten by cattle, and a little is consumed by hogs, horses, sheep, and even by poultry. Mill feed is especially for cattle and swine, which together consume 86 per cent of the whole quantity that is fed, in about equal proportions.

The figures of the bureau indicate that hogs are the principal grain eaters, horses a close second, cattle third, poultry fourth, and that sheep consume a mere trace. Cattle are the greatest forage eaters, and they and horses consume the bulk of it, so that little is eaten by sheep and swine, as reactions of the total consumption by animals.

A VAGABOND LOVE

By MILDRED WHITE.

Gloria opened the casement and stepped out into the pillared veranda. Presently, when Aunt Prudence was not looking, she would fly across the lawn, like a bird released from its cage, then she would seek him. Honestly, to herself, she admitted it.

When one could find, by just walking down to the bridge, all the joy of pent-up dreams, why not dare a little, for that compensating pleasure? There was much to endure in her ruled, monotonous life; compensation was deserved.

"He" would be there at the bridge. The girl's eyes softened in anticipation. For a little while he would pretend not to hear her step, or be aware of her presence. Then, suddenly, all eagerness he would turn with his dear welcoming smile.

She could see, in fancy, the graceful disorder of his attire—the velvet jacket, the soft shirt with its collar opened at the throat where he held so caressingly his violin.

Gloria thrilled anew at the thought of the dark eyes bent upon her, as he swayed the bow. "A song of love to you," he would say, while the low music which followed filled her with emotion.

"A vagabond," the villagers called him, "a poor adventurer living by his wits."

They ridiculed and mocked, stung her cruelly. He was her wonderman, whom none save herself could understand. Some day, she meant to run away with him, to be his wife when he should ask her, sharing with him his care-free life. She knew that trying to influence Aunt Prudence or her own father to her view-point, would be unavailing.

How strange, the girl thought, with a sad little smile, that this reckless romance should end her sheltered girlhood. No young man of the neighborhood, however promising, had been allowed to call.

"His daughter must make no unwise attachments," her father decreed. Gloria happened to meet the stranger one morning on the rustic bridge. At her glance of surprise toward the old violin which he carried, the man mentioned her silently, as one accustomed to be obeyed, to a bench on the bridge; she had sat there—in a sort of a dream, while he played.

When she thanked the man for his music, he had laughed carelessly, and bade her "come again if she liked it." And Gloria the prudent, the guarded—went again.

Almost against her will it seemed at first—the music lured and drew her. Later, the visits became an accustomed natural thing. And one day naturally also, it seemed, this roaming musician spoke of his love for her and her heart went out to him in return.

Many hours of unhappiness the girl spent, her cheek pressed against her wet pillow, so useless was it to struggle against this charmed fate, so grievously would it hurt those nearest to her.

The very townspeople mocked at the man's idle irresponsibility, making shift for himself, in an old shack by the water's edge. Crude was his furniture, they said, and he must be poor. There were days together when he failed to come in his worn velvetens to the village for supplies.

"A little cracked," these same people considered him, lying in the marshes at night, making weird sounds on his violin, and this was the man her successful father and conventional aunt, must hear of as—her husband.

"Must!" Gloria whispered passionately. For life without this one man's tenderness—would be to her unbearable.

When she found him again at the bridge, and was folded close in his arms, Gloria sobbed out her story. Some one had hinted about their meetings, her father was sending her away—to visit a cousin in the city, hoping that absence would obliterate her fancy for him.

The "vagabond" comforted her with gentle words and caressing touch. "I will come to you," he said at last, "and you shall marry me."

So Gloria went away. She wondered, troubled, how her lover might send word to her, and where he would ask her to meet him. The cousin, of course, must not know.

It was the suggestion of Aunt Prudence that some desirable man be found to take her niece about and by way of comparison to bring her to a sense of former folly.

So with this new escort Gloria was sent to the theatre. It was to be an evening of music, the young man told her, with "notables" participating. Traynor, with his speaking violin, was alone worth hearing, his imitation of bird calls being wonderful.

His companion was a listless sort of girl—the escort thought. When Traynor came on the stage with his violin, his opinion quickly changed. Breathless, her eyes shining, Gloria leaned forward. At the end of the performance, the obliging and perplexed young man was abruptly dismissed, while no less a person than the celebrity possessively took his place.

Out in the starlight Gloria faced him. "You lived like a tramp out there," she accused, "and you never told me who you were."

IT'S NOT YOUR HEART; IT'S YOUR KIDNEYS

Kidney disease is no respecter of persons. A majority of the ills afflicting people today can be traced back to the kidney trouble.

The kidneys are the most important organs of the body. If the poisons which are swept from the tissues by the blood are not eliminated through the kidneys, disease of one form or another will claim you as a victim.

Kidney disease is usually indicated by weariness, sleeplessness, nervousness, dizziness, backache, stomach trouble, pain in loins and lower abdomen, gall stones, gravel, rheumatism, sciatica and lumbago.

All these derangements are nature's signals that the kidneys need help. You should use GOLD MEDAL Haaren Oil Capsules—immediately. The soothing, healing oil stimulates the kidneys, relieves inflammation and destroys the germs which have caused it.

Go to your druggist today and get a box of GOLD MEDAL Haaren Oil Capsules. In twenty-four hours you should feel health and vigor returning. Save the Babies

INFANT MORTALITY is something frightful. We can hardly realize that of all the children born in civilized countries, twenty-two per cent, or nearly one-quarter, die before they reach one year; thirty-seven per cent, or more than one-third, before they are five, and one-half before they are fifteen!

We do not hesitate to say that a timely use of Castoria would save many of these precious lives. Neither do we hesitate to say that many of these infantile deaths are occasioned by the use of narcotic preparations. Drops, tinctures and soothing syrups sold for children's complaints contain more or less opium or morphine. They are, in considerable quantities, deadly poisons. In any quantity, they stupefy, retard circulation and lead to congestions, sickness, death. There can be no danger in the use of Castoria if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. As it contains no opiates or narcotics of any kind.

MOVE TO REVISE CALENDAR

Advocates of Change Will Bring the Matter to Attention of League of Nations.

One of the first projects to be laid before the League of Nations, when it gets ready for new business, is one to revise the calendar and make it uniform throughout the world. Bureau officials of the United States, Switzerland and Great Britain got into touch with church officials before the war on the subject of calendar revision, and have kept up consideration of the matter since. Church leaders say an agreement has been reached and a uniform report is nearly ready to go to the league.

The calendar has not been revised before because of objections from the churches to dates for the great religious feasts. These objections are said to be removed. A fixed date for Easter, the adding of a thirteenth month, the making of every week begin with a Sunday and having exactly 28 days in each month—these are the main features agreed on. Church people favoring the revision say that if the league itself cannot act, it can designate a calendar congress to do so, to sit at Geneva.

If You Need a Medicine
You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in swelling kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcels Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

COMPANY GOOD THINGS.

For a company luncheon creamed codfish and potato served in baked potato shell is both a dainty and wholesome dish.

Prepare the creamed codfish as usual, bake the potatoes, cut them in half and remove the potato. Mash with butter a little cream and seasoning. Put a tablespoonful of the codfish in the shell. Add some of the potato, brush the top with egg and set into the oven to brown. Garnish with a sprig of parsley.

Lettuce Salad With Cheese Balls.—Make balls of seasoned cream or cottage cheese. Roll some in chopped chives and some in nuts. Dispose in nests of head lettuce and serve with a good bottled dressing.

Another attractive cheese salad may be prepared as follows: Use one of the little revolving ice-cream cones used in serving cream. Rub the inside with olive oil, line the mold with cream cheese, mixed with cream to make it of the right consistency. Fill with chopped, salted celery mixed with a little mayonnaise. Carefully turn out on a lettuce leaf.

Grape Bavarian Cream.—Soak one-third of a package of granulated gelatin in cold water to cover. Dissolve over hot water, then add one pint of grape juice sweetened to taste. Place in ice water and stir. As the mixture thickens, stir into it one and one-half cupfuls of cream, whipped. Decorate the sides and bottom of a mold with split almonds, dipping each into a little of the dissolved gelatin. Carefully turn in the mixture and set away on ice to become firm. When serving garnish with frosted grapes. Wash the grapes then dip in egg white, then in granulated sugar. Arrange on grape foliage with the cream in the center of a large chop plate.

EAST INDIAN CURRIED DISHES.

In spite of its high seasoning, people who have acquired the taste for curry enjoy it at any season. Although curry powder is not expensive when purchased, one may prepare it at home and be sure of its purity.

Take one ounce each of turmeric, coriander seed, white ginger, nutmeg, mace and cayenne. Pound all together in a mortar and sift through a fine sieve; bottle and cork well.

To prepare curry, a rabbit, chicken or other delicately flavored meat is required. For chicken curry cover the chicken with boiling water, adding two large onions and a bouquet of herbs. Summer gently for an hour and a quarter or until the chicken is tender, removing all fat as it rises. Add two tablespoonfuls of flour to the same amount of fat, mix until well bleached and stir into the chicken broth. Add a teaspoonful, or more if partial to the taste, of curry powder. This should be mixed with the flour and fat. Beat the yolks of three eggs, stir into the gravy carefully, add salt together with the juice of half a lemon. Heat but do not boil. Pour over the chicken and arrange around it a border of rice.

East Indian Curry.—Slice one onion and fry in butter. Soak a slice of bread in milk, grate six sweet almonds, add with two well-beaten eggs, one-half cupful of milk, one-half pound of minced meat, one tablespoonful of butter and one tablespoonful of curry. Grease a baking dish with butter, rub with lemon juice, salt, put in the mixture and bake. Serve with boiled rice.

Curry of Mutton.—Fry one large onion chopped fine in two tablespoonfuls of butter. Mix one tablespoonful of curry powder, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of flour and stir into the butter and onion. Add gradually one pint of stock. Cut two pounds of lean mutton into small pieces and brown them in hot fat; add them to the sauce and simmer until tender. Place the meat on a hot dish and arrange a border of rice around the meat.

Curried Eggs.—Cook six eggs until hard, remove the shells and cut in halves. Fry a teaspoonful of onion in a tablespoonful of butter, add one tablespoonful of cornstarch or two of flour, mixed with half a tablespoonful of curry powder. Pour over slowly one and one-half cupfuls of stock, cream or milk; add salt. Simmer till the onions are soft, then add the eggs. Simmer until hot. Serve in a shallow dish or arrange on toast.

Ingredients Required for Home-Made Apple Butter

Apple butter is generally made with cider, but this can be left out if desired. Four quarts of sterilized sweet cider should be boiled down to two quarts. To this add four quarts of apples peeled and cut into small pieces. If the texture of the apples is coarse they should be boiled and put through a strainer before being added to the cider. Boil this mixture until the cider does not separate from the pulp. When two-thirds done add one pound of sugar. One-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, allspice and cloves may be added. Pour into sterilized jars and steam for five minutes.

The New Patriotism Under This Symbol Wayne County Today Pledges Her United Thought and Action

Patriotism has taken on a new meaning in Wayne County. During the war the Detroit district was known from coast to coast for its patriotic work. Our almost incredible achievement in the production of munitions, our quick response to every enlistment appeal, the vast sums of money we raised for Liberty loans and the Patriotic Fund—all these proved the ardent loyalty of our people during the stirring days of war—proved their ability to meet her problems courageously, unitedly.

The world today is confronted by vast new problems—of reconstruction, of bettering industrial relations of quickening production to make up for time lost in the war period. Elsewhere there may be relaxation of spirit and energy, a disposition to secure results otherwise that by constructive thought and co-operative work.

Here however a new spirit has dawned. Yet it is not a new spirit, but our old-time patriotism in a new form. It is civic patriotism, and it now gives assurance that the same courage, the same intelligence, and the same co-operative energy which we devoted to the service of the nation, we are now ready to devote to our own needs.

This community has learned the greatest of social truths. No man liveth unto himself alone. It has learned that one man's problem is every man's problem. It has learned that only through co-operative thought and effort can the city or the town be made a better place to live in.

During the war a group of prominent citizens organized the Detroit Patriotic Fund for the purpose of co-ordinating work on behalf of various benevolent and relief organizations, both local and national. Everyone knows how successful has been this undertaking. Last May, subscriptions for some ten million dollars were secured in an intensive one week campaign. A large part of this money went to support such war organizations as the Red Cross, Y. M. C. A., etc., another part maintained the numerous local philanthropies of Detroit and Wayne County. This year the Patriotic Fund is asking for $5,250,000, mostly for home needs. Nearly 90 organizations are represented in the 6-day campaign starting next Monday, November 3.

THE DETROIT COMMUNITY UNION

The Community Union was organized in late 1917 to secure greater co-operation among the county's welfare agencies and the increased efficiency resulting therefrom. The member organization sends two delegates to sit in the Central Council. The Officers and a Board of Directors conduct the business of the organization. Within the Union various bodies have some function in common. They organize special groups to promote their particular interests. The Central Budget Committee is a group which raises money for the constituent organizations jointly. The Budgets are carefully worked out, the Budget Committee co-operating with the Boards of Control of the various agencies. They are reviewed, approved by the Board of Directors of the Community Union and of the Patriotic Fund. Money for each agency is paid to its treasurer in monthly installments, according to the needs developed through budget analysis. The Community Union does not interfere with the policies and management of the various organizations.

In the campaign conducted in May, 1919, the Community Union was included for the calendar year 1918 only. However, from balances on hand and from the Reserve Fund, the Patriotic Fund was able to carry Community Union organizations for the first six months of 1919. The interval between June and November of this year has been financed through borrowed money. In this year's campaign, therefore, the Community Union is to be financed not only for the year 1920 but for the six months of 1919. Since the first campaign, the number of organizations carried by the Community Union financially has increased from forty-two to fifty-six. This increase together with one or two others expected to join at once and the rise in the cost of food supplies, wages etc., makes it necessary to ask for $1,500,000 for the year.

THE RED CROSS ROLL CALL

The American Red Cross is asking the country, the same week as the Patriotic Fund Campaign for $15,000,000, partly for foreign relief, partly for its own disaster relief, there being an average of eleven disasters each year, partly for its extensive Home Service program.

The Detroit Chapter of the American Red Cross has enough money to meet Wayne County's quota of this $15,000,000 drive. The Red Cross, in addition to this fund, is conducting its annual membership campaign at the same time. Wayne County's quota of members for the greatest of our American charitable societies is 200,000 at $1.00 per member.

THE SALVATION ARMY

The Salvation Army conducted last spring a national peace time drive for the work in America. Detroit's quota was $125,000. At the request of the Patriotic Fund, this campaign was not conducted in Detroit but was postponed in order that one more campaign might be eliminated.

FOREIGN RELIEF

After months of exhaustive investigation abroad and at home, through the National Information Bureau, the Patriotic Fund believes these amounts should be contributed to foreign relief:

Table with 2 columns: Relief Type and Amount. Includes Jewish Relief, Polish Relief, French Relief, etc.

HOW MUCH SHOULD I GIVE?

The Minimum Proportion of One's Income Necessary to Make up the Required $5,250,000. Incomes ranging from: $3,000 to $5,000... 1 1/2 per cent; $5,000 to $10,000... 2 per cent; $10,000 to $20,000... 3 per cent; $20,000 to $40,000... 3 1/2 per cent; $40,000 to $60,000... 4 per cent; $60,000 to $100,000... 5 per cent; $100,000 to $200,000... 5 per cent; $200,000 to $300,000... 7 1/2 per cent; $300,000 and over... 10 per cent. Those earning less than $3,000 should give 2 days' pay. Corporations should give one per cent of their net income. This schedule is not to be looked upon in any sense as an assessment but merely as an aid to the individual in deciding what is his fair proportion.

THE BUILDING FUND

Detroit and adjoining Communities have added thousands upon thousands to their population, and millions to their wealth in the last few years. Our hospitals, character building institutions, charitable and civic agencies are just where they were before the war.

Together with Cleveland, we have the lowest number of hospital beds per 1000 population of any city in America. The average city has six beds for each thousand persons. We have three. Our hospitals are so crowded with emergency, surgical cases that other cases, usually cared for in hospitals, cannot be admitted. Until this condition is corrected the health of the community is jeopardized and a tremendous amount of unnecessary suffering is permitted.

The Y. M. C. A. has postponed a campaign for extension purposes twice in the last five years in order to give the right of way to war and other solicitations.

The Catholic Institutions for relief of the poor and social service to their constituency of young men and young women have postponed their building programs during the period of the war.

Jewish Institutions have postponed their campaigns in order to join in this one campaign for all.
