KING'S DAUGHTERS ROYALLY ENTERTAINED

One of the most enjoyable events of the season was celebrated by our home circle of King's Daughters last Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Lizzie Harger when the Good Will circle of Detroit joined with them at the noon hour and was given a three-course luncheon served in a most charming manner by the following committee: Mesdames Harger, Schrader, Noble, Balden, Dolph and Savage. Mrs. James N. Lewis, the state president, was in attendance and gave a very interesting and inspiring talk along the line of State Indorsed Work. This was followed by a short spicy program given by Mrs. Mattie Bloom, Mrs. Arabella Tinnam, Mrs. Grace Stanley and Mrs. Lizzie Harger. The Detroit circle members who were feeling well repaid for coming, and especially grateful for the splendid donation of fancy articles, baby clothes, and canned fruit given for their bazaar, and also to N. C. Schrader, P. S. Neal, M. N. Johnson and R. G. Clark for the use of their automobiles to convey the ladies from the car to the Harger home which, by the way, was tastefully decorated with the purple bunting of the order. The home circle is also very thankful to Mr. Schrader for the use of the chairs.

NORTHVILLE BEATS WYANDOTTE

With a crippled team the local boys completely walked away with the Wyandotte lads. The game started with Northville carrying the ball over the goal line in the first few minutes of the play. Northville missed two easy touchdowns in the first half by Greene's fumble. The score at the end of the half was 19-0. Wyandotte's team was strengthened in the last half by the arrival of 2 new men, but the home boys couldn't be stopped, for they continually carried the ball down the field. The blue and white warriors were able to work all kinds of forward passes, long and short and short from which several touchdowns were scored.

The line has been considerably strengthened by the new style of defense that Coach Millard is using and the backfield is becoming very successful in backing any forward passes. Wyandotte was not able to gain first down during the whole game. Wilcox, who played at quarter, showed rare judgment and was able to make good gains himself. Greene proved that he is good anywhere behind the line and Dey has shown that he can carry the ball as well as he can hold down an end job. And Freydl is impossible to stop. Moffat and Taylor Watts and Beckley broke play after play before it started. Litsenberger, Atkinson and Cof were impregnable in the line.

A WORD FROM THE LIBRARY.

The Record is requested to say on behalf of the Board of trustees of the Ladies' Library that all seven-day books must absolutely be returned at the end of one week. The alternative is a double fine for the person holding the book, but this does not do away with the fact that injustice is done to the patron to whom the book is assigned for the next time, as whoever does not get his or her book on the date entered on the list, loses the chance until the expiration of the four months for which the books are kept on the seven-day list, unless there chances to be a vacancy, which is not often the case with a popular book. Also, as above indicated, a patron who neglects to come for a listed book on the date assigned, loses the chance in the same manner, as all the following dates are filled and one could not be changed without changing all, which would be obviously unfair. This appeal and explanation are made because of the fact that there has been much neglect lately in the returning of the books in question.

GARAGE CHANGES OWNERSHIP.

Messrs. Clyde and Clare Cyphers of Wyandotte became owners of the Deal Garage on Saturday, having purchased the interests of Gary Deal. The new owners are experienced men in their line and they will endeavor to serve their patrons in a manner to merit their approval. Everything in the garage line will be given careful attention and the public is invited to "drive in" when in need of auto repairing, storage, tires, vulcanizing, oils or gasoline.

Messrs. Cyphers come to Northville highly recommended and The Record bespeaks for them a liberal patronage.

W. R. C. TO HOLD ANNUAL INSPECTION

The date for annual inspection is next Wednesday, Nov. 12. Mrs. Anna M. Earle of Detroit has been chosen as inspecting officer, and she will inspect the books during the afternoon of that day and the ritual work at the regular meeting in the evening. A pot-luck supper will be served at six o'clock preceding the evening meeting. It is necessary that all members be promptly on hand with their contributions to the supper as soon as 5:30 if possible, in order to have it all ready at six.

All floor members who can possibly do so are urgently requested to attend the practice meeting Monday afternoon in the hall. The officers alone cannot perform the ritual work properly. The floor members have their part as well, and the more of them practicing, the better the work for inspection.

The attendance was unusually good at the last meeting in October. Every member can help to make this a fact for every meeting. Try.

While it is reported that most fraternal societies have fallen off in membership and attendance during and since the war, the Woman's Relief Corps, locally, at least, has been increasing, and has now the largest membership in its history, probably owing to the fact that it has been the only patriotic society in Northville during the history-making days of the past few years, excepting the G. A. R. to which it is auxiliary.

MICHIGAN TO HAVE BIG EXHIBIT

Michigan will have the largest state exhibit of farm products at the first annual International Hay and Grain show at Chicago, from November 29 to December 6. The grain show, which will be held at the same time as the annual livestock show, will be the biggest thing of its kind in the country, all Middle Western states and many Canadian provinces being represented. Michigan has been allotted more show space than any other state, and her educational exhibit will be the feature of the show.

The Michigan Improvement association, the Michigan Potato Growers' association, and the Michigan Agricultural college are co-operating in the preparation of the state exhibit. In addition many of the leading farmers of the state are entering private show samples in competition for the prizes offered on the $100,000 premium list.

"The state exhibit will feature Michigan's seed industries, showing the highly diversified seed production of the state," says Prof. J. F. Cox, farm corps specialist at the Michigan Agricultural college. "The exhibit will pay especial attention to the production of pedigree seed, in which field Michigan is a recognized leader."

NORTHVILLE HAS PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

Northville's little private hospital at the Harry Bovee residence on Main street has been filled to the limit of its capacity for the past two months. This institution though but little known to Northville folk, is doing a splendid work here, in affording our people an opportunity to have operations at home instead of being hurried off to Detroit.

Mrs. Bovee, who is a graduate nurse, is very highly complimented by the patients for her efficiency and kindness in caring for the many unfortunate people who are obliged to undergo surgical treatment.

Dr. Tom Henry is the surgeon in charge of this new Northville institution.

UNDERWENT AN OPERATION.

Miss Carolyn Babbitt was taken to Grace hospital for X-ray examination Sunday, October 26, and as a result of a conference between Doctors Alexander Lambert of New York, R. H. Palmer, Detroit and Tom Henry of this place, it was decided that her only chance for life was in a severe operation. She was operated upon Sunday last for tuberculosis growths and adhesions. At last report she was doing nicely and it is hoped by her many friends that she may recover. As an example of grit and patience she stands unequalled in this community and is certainly deserving of the magnificent care both medical and domestic, that she has received in the crying ordeal.

Fuel Administrator Garfield is again on the job by virtue of an executive order issued by President Wilson Wednesday.

Money In This Bank Grows

What 4% Means

THE NORTHVILLE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF NORTHVILLE pays 4% interest, compounded twice a year. What does 4% compound interest mean? It means that if the interest is allowed to remain on deposit with the principal sum, interest will be paid on interest—that is, $1.00 placed at 4% compound interest, will double itself in a little less than eighteen years through the interest additions. To secure the best results it is necessary to set aside weekly or monthly a fixed sum from your income, and deposit it to your account. The tables here given show what may be accomplished by this method. The interest earnings equal from 20 to 50% of the money deposited during the periods shown. That is, if monthly deposits of $5 are made for twenty years, the total sum would be $1,200. With 4% compound interest, it will amount to $1,833.50; the earnings added equaling $633.50, or 52% of the money actually saved.

"Day's Work for Day's Pay," Is Simple Panacea for Spirit of Labor Unrest

By CHARLES M. SCHWAB

When we get back to the practice of giving an honest day's work for an honest day's pay, all such theoretical questions as the high cost of living will automatically disappear.

The engineers of this country have placed this great country of ours in a pre-eminent position with everything pertaining to manufacture, metallurgy, and kindred arts. We are second to none in the world. We have a great country, which God has endowed with such riches in coal and natural resources as no other country in the world; but rich as these are viewed by you, the engineers in the country, there is one thing greater than these resources, and that is the sturdy character, energy, and integrity of its people, which will make these great resources of influence in the world's development.

Great as these resources and the energy and integrity of our people, there is one problem of our engineering that I term today human engineering that is of far more importance than the creation of machines and methods with which you have been so successful in the past. Of what value is the skillfully devised machinery, the complex process, unless manned and operated by people whose heart and soul is in sympathy with the work which they are doing and who have before them the giving of a complete day's work for a day's pay?

I am not all in favor of artificial methods to reduce the high cost of living. There is but one way to do it and that is by economy and secondly by industry and efficiency, and when we get this throughout our establishments, the high cost of living will by the natural laws of industry adjust itself to its proper place.

We have won the greatest war, and we must not lose advantage of the lesson that we have learned by reason of the war; and that lesson is, broadly, one that the president proclaimed as the lesson of democracy in the ordinary sense of the term, but a democracy that will teach us all that men are men for what they are.

"Hostel" Plan Is Being Urged to Solve Vexing United States Maid Problem

By Miss Mary McDowell, Head Resident of University of Chicago Settlement

"Housekeeping on a business and industrial basis"—this is the slogan of household economists who are striving to solve the "maid problem." The solution, it is the consensus of feminine opinion, is to come from abroad, in the form of the "hostel."

An interesting experiment is being carried on in England by Lady Londonderry, who organized the Women's Legion during the war. She has now undertaken to organize a Legion of Domestic Workers.

Members of the legion will wear the uniform of the order and an official badge. Each will be qualified and trained for a certain position and sent out as a specialist who will work by the day—an eight-hour day or the hour.

There will be a probation period of three months and then work at a minimum salary. As efficiency increases and the worker becomes expert in her profession, her salary will be increased.

For each year of service she will receive a service stripe.

The legionaries will live in hostels and may pay for their own lunches. Accordingly, they will be quite as independent in the kitchen of a private home as in a factory.

The British Y. W. C. A. has instituted a similar experiment in London. A central hotel has been erected as a sort of a club house, and the maids are distinguished by wearing the blue triangle.

Frenchman Must Pay More Attention to Physical Development in War

By Prof. Robert Emmett Monroe

I am going back to France to help the French in the devastated regions, and this is why: The French, with whom I have practically lived for six months, have repeatedly told me that they expect another war. They believe that they will be oppressed again by the same enemy. They feel that they must fit themselves for such an emergency. How? Well, they have said to me, these French soldiers: "You Americans were the better fighters—we were the better soldiers. You were the better fighters because you Americans were more physically fit. And you Americans have taught us Frenchmen that we must pay more attention to physical development."

They are in need of our sympathy. Sometimes I find that our own Americans do not understand them fully until they are taught to realize the depth of their sacrifice. The Frenchman does not flaunt it. In fact, he belittles his troubles and his achievements. He says: "It does one good to make fun of oneself."

Nation Should Rehabilitate 80,000 Men Ruined Annually by Their Work

By COL. FRANK BILLINGS

We removed from civil life an army of millions. We clothed and fed them and amused them. We took care of them when they were ill and when they were disabled through accident or disease we developed new and remarkably successful methods of rehabilitating them physically and mentally. We made life hopeful and kindly even for the blind—if they were soldiers. Why not extend this idea to civil life? Why not recognize the importance of rehabilitating our fallen soldiers of the army of industry?

The success of the methods of rehabilitating disabled soldiers under the supervision of the war department has been so great that I suggest the initiation of a similar move in industry. The great corporations, the heads of great railroads and factories should interest themselves in these things.

LITTLE COATS DEFY MIDWINTER

Against the coming of midwinter, a new lot of coats, for lucky little girls, have come to light in the shops. If they ever get close enough to Jack Frost to speak to him their wearers will be sure to laugh in his face for it will take his bitterest mood to prove him an enemy to their comfort. These coats are most often of thick, soft woolly cloth made double-breasted and having the coziest of collars. Some of them look as if Mary's faithful lamb had been skinned and its pelt converted into a coat without going through the hands of the spinners and weavers. Lovely and cozy describes them and they are, of course, the product of the looms which do miracles with wools. The little coats of thick cloth are plain with inset pockets and sleeves that reach to the knuckles, so that hands thrust into pockets are entirely lost sight of. They are made with turnover collars and narrow belts of the material and they are long enough to reach below the knees. There are some pretty coats of velvet lined with silk. These are sometimes made with blouse and skirt and sometimes straight. Cuffs and very wide muffer collars of fur fabric with deep set-in pockets show them equal to battling with the cold, even though they are not as sturdy looking as the woolly coats. Besides these there are many plush coats made like the woolly ones, usually in dark colors with plush collars that mutate heaver and buttons covered with beaver plush. They are as warm as the woolly coats and as dressy as the velvet ones. Finally, there are fur coats for little folks. These days one cannot even whisper "furs" without saying "money" in a loud tone of voice. So only little rich girls will find themselves wearing coats that are made of pelts that once defended small friends of theirs against the cold. Rabbits, muskrats and squirrels have been sacrificed to make warm coats for the small girls, white bunnies for the tiniest ones and just plain rabbits for girls as big as the little muffs pictured. The small collar looks as if it were sealskin but it is not. Mollie Cottontail furnished the fur and the furrier dyed it. It is not prettier or more comfortable than the other coats, but it requires much more work to make it—and thereby hangs the tale of its long price. Such a coat costs a little more than a hundred dollars.

SOME OF THE SMALLER HATS

Just now millinery shops and their patrons are concerning themselves with hats for midwinter. Turbans and off-the-face hats, small and medium in size, make up a big percentage of the displays, although they are not alone in their glory. There are plenty of large, picturesque models for those who wear them well. But the smaller hats are prominent in every class of millinery; chic tailored hats for the street, semi-dress hats and brilliant models for afternoon wear—all prove successful in the smaller shapes. The Napoleon hat, full of dash and style, seems to be the inspiration of many models. One interpretation of it appears at the top of the group of small and medium hats shown here. This is a brilliant hat of black pail velvet adorned with long stitches of chenille and an occasional velvet blossom set flat against the upturned brim. This is all that can be told of it in the way of description but the picture shows its style and youthfulness—the intangible things that make it fit company for a handsome afternoon frock or at home with a tailored coat.

The small velvet turban at the left made of tuck velvet, will appeal to the matron who insists upon smart millinery with lines and shape suited to her face. A long, sweeping wing at the front consents to rest where it is, in the company of two handsome ornamental pins, with large heads, that are thrust through it. It is a shape that will look well in any of the season's quieter tones of color and will make a fine suit hat. Another interesting hat for a matron is shown at the right of the group. It is of duvetyne with slashed brim. The crown is concealed by short, uncured ostrich feathers.

The place of honor at the center of the group belongs to a hat that goes a step beyond mere prettiness and looks in another direction for its novel charm. It is one of those shaggy affairs that call to mind the headwear of Robinson Crusoe. Pans have made goats' hair—called by another name—a fashionable adornment for millinery and New York has given monkey fur much attention. These, with glycerined and burnt ostrich, burnt goose and other feathers have been used for ornaments like the wreath on the black velvet beret at the center of the picture. A large ivory pin lends its aristocratic air to the ensemble, making a brilliant black and white combination equal to any occasion.

Julia Bottomley

Coats for Day Wear.

Many new coats intended for day wear are on straight tailored lines rather mannish in effect, while wraps for special occasion wear and for evening use are loose and in draped effect.

THE KITCHEN CABINET

"The anxiety of some people to make new friends is so intense that they never have time to have old ones."

HOT SOUPS FOR COOL EVENINGS.

The expert soup-maker will obtain delicious flavors by using leftover meats and vegetables. After cooking the soup should be strained and thickened as usual with a binding of butter and flour cooked together.

Corn Chowder.—Take about four teaspoonfuls of fat salt pork cubes and fry them out; add one sliced onion and cook five minutes, stirring often to keep the onion from burning. Parboil four cupfuls of potato slices in water to cover, drain and add the potatoes to the fat and onion, with two cupfuls of boiling water; cook until the potatoes are soft, add a can of corn, a quart of milk, salt, pepper and buttered crackers. Serve with the buttered crackers on top. This recipe will serve six.

Cream Soup.—Put thin slices of bread as thin as shavings with a small amount of butter in a saucepan and brown; pour over enough boiling water to make the soup needed, add salt to taste and let the mixture boil up; then remove the saucepan and stir in a large cupful of cream, the thicker the better. Be sure to have it well salted or the soup will taste flat.

Cream of Peanut Soup.—Put a cupful of peanut butter into a quart of milk, add salt, cayenne, a tablespoonful of grated onion, a bay leaf, celery salt, and cook ten minutes in a double boiler. Moisten a tablespoonful of cornstarch with cold milk and stir until smooth, add to the soup and cook ten minutes. Strain and serve with cubes of toasted bread.

Quick Egg Soup.—Stir a teaspoonful of beef extract into a quart of boiling water, add a grated onion, celery salt, salt and pepper to taste. Pour boiling hot into a tureen with four tablespoonfuls of boiled rice and two well beaten eggs.

Split Pea Soup.—Pick over, wash and put to soak in plenty of cold water one cupful of split peas. In the morning cook in two quarts of water, add a two-inch cube of salt pork and one sliced onion. Cook and stir often until the peas are soft, rub through a sieve, thicken with two tablespoonfuls of flour and butter, add milk to thin the puree to the desired consistency. Season well and serve very hot.

Ordinarily we find in people the qualities we are mostly looking for or the qualities that our prevailing characteristics call forth. The larger the nature, the less critical and cynical it is the more it is given to looking for the best in others.—Trine

CHEESE DISHES.

Cheese naturally suggests itself as a substitute for meat, since it is rich in the same kind of nutrients which meat supplies; it is also a food which is staple and may be used in a variety of ways.

Stuffed Potatoes With Cheese.—Split hot baked potatoes lengthwise, remove contents without injuring the skin of the potato. Mash the potato; add seasoning and enough hot milk and butter to season well; beat until light, then refill the skin, piling it up lightly; do not smooth the top. Sprinkle with grated cheese and reheat in oven until cheese is melted and a delicate brown.

Rice Baked With Cheese.—Cook a cupful of rice in a large amount of boiling water, at least three quarts, adding a teaspoonful of salt. When tender drain and cover the bottom of a buttered baking dish with a layer of the rice; sprinkle with grated cheese, a dash of cayenne pepper and add milk to half fill the dish; cover with crumbs and bake until the milk is absorbed and crumbs brown.

Pittsburgh Potatoes.—Cook one quart of diced potato cubes with a small minced onion until the potatoes are nearly tender; add a teaspoonful of salt and half a can of minced red peppers and cook until the potatoes are done. Drain and put into a baking dish. Make a sauce of two tablespoonfuls of butter and flour, one teaspoonful of salt and a pint of milk, then add one-half pound of grated cheese. Pour this over the potatoes and bake until a golden brown.

Baked Fish with Piquant Stuffing.—Bass or any firm-fleshed fish of moderate size may be used for baking. If the fish lacks fat insert strips of pork in gashes along each side of the fish.

Baked Eggs With Cheese.—Break four eggs into a buttered baking dish and cook in a hot oven until they begin to turn white around the edge. Cover the eggs with a white sauce and over this a cupful of cheese and bread crumbs well mixed. Season and brown the crumbs in a hot oven.

Egg shells should be carefully scraped out with a teaspoon; someone who has tried it says that the bulk of one egg is saved in the scraping of a dozen shells, and with eggs worth four or five cents apiece, it is worth while.

BIFF!

Stop jolting Liver and Bowels with violent drugs, but take "Cascarets."

"Dynamiting" life out of your system with calomel and other sickening purgatives is all wrong. Salts, Oil, and Cathartic Waters act by flooding the bowels with the digestive juices which are vital to the stomach. Cascarets are different. They act as a tonic to the bowel muscles, which is the only sensible way to relieve a bilious attack, a sour, acid stomach, or constipated bowels. There is no gripping or inconvenience. You naturally return to regularity and cheerfulness. Cascarets cost very little and they work while you sleep.—Adv.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

"DON'T MOVE OR CRY OUT! OBEY ORDERS!"

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer "Warrior" and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beauchamp, Rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beauchamp has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, orphaned of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beauchamp, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beauchamp's lawyer, and they arrange with Pete's help to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beauchamp place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and a girl who says she is Rene Beauchamp. Kirby insults the girl, and Knox attacks him. Believing Kirby dead, Knox explains affairs to the girl, and she agrees to try to escape with him.

"Have you ever visited the mouth of Saunders' creek? You have! How far away is that from here?"

"Not more than half a mile; it enters the river just below the Landing."

"And if I understood you rightly, I urged eagerly, 'you said that these fellows left their keelboat there; that it had been rigged up to run by steam, and had no guard aboard except the engineer; you are sure of this?'"

"That was what the man who talked to me first said—the deputy sheriff. He boasted that they had the only keelboat on the river equipped with an engine and had come up from St. Louis in two hours. You—you think we could use that?"

"It seems to be all that is left us. I intend to make the effort, anyway. You had better show me the road."

I followed her, closely, a mere shadow, as she silently led the way along the edge of the wood and back of the negro quarters. I felt confident of being able safely to approach the unsuspecting engineer and overcome any resistance before he could realize the possibility of attack. I was obliged to rely upon a guess at the time of night, yet surely it could not be long after twelve and there must remain hours of darkness ample sufficient for our purpose. With the boat once securely in our possession the engineer compelled to serve, for I had no skill in that line, we could strike out directly for the opposite shore and creep along in its shadows past the sleeping town at the Landing until we attained the deserted waters above. By then we should practically be beyond immediate pursuit. Even if Carver or the sheriff discovered Kirby, any immediate chase by river would be impossible. Nothing was available for their use except a few rowboats at the Landing; they would know nothing as to whether we had gone up or down stream, while the coming of the early daylight would surely permit us to discover some place of concealment along the desolate Illinois shore. Desperate as the attempt undoubtedly was the situation as I considered it in all its details brought me faith in our success and fresh encouragement to make the effort.

We moved forward slowly. I took the lead myself, bending low and feeling carefully for footing in the very grass. The darkness so shrouded everything, blinding objects into shapeless shadows, that it required several moments before I could clearly determine the exact details. The mouth of the creek, a good-sized stream, was only a few yards away, and the boat, rather a larger craft than I had anticipated seeing, lay just off shore, with stern to the bank, as though prepared for instant departure. It was securely held in position by a rope, probably looped about a convenient stump, and my eyes were finally able to trace the outlines of the wheel by which it was propelled. Except for straggling rushes extending to the edge of the water, the space between was vacant yet sufficiently mantled in darkness to enable one to creep forward unseen.

At first glance I could distinguish no sign of the boatman left in charge, but even as I lay there, breathless and uncertain, he suddenly revealed his presence by lighting a lantern in the stern. The illumination was feeble enough yet sufficient to expose to view the small, unprotected engine aft, and also the fact that all forward of the "little cockpit" in which it stood the entire craft was decked over. The fellow was busily engaged in overhauling the machinery, leaning far forward, his body indistinct, the lantern swinging in one hand, with entire attention devoted to his task. Occasionally, as he lifted his head for some purpose, the dim radiance fell upon his face, revealing the unmistakable countenance of a mulatto, a fellow of medium size, broad of cheek, with unusually full lips and a fringe of whiskers turning gray. Somehow this revelation that he was a negro and not a white man brought with it to me an additional confidence in success. I inclined my head and whispered in the girl's ear:

"You are not to move from here until I call. This is to be my part of the work—handling that lad. I am going now."

"He is colored, is he not—a slave?"

"We can only guess as to that. But he does not look to me like a hard proposition. If I can only reach the boat without being seen the rest will be easy. Now is the proper time, while he is busy tinkering with the engine. You will stay here?"

"Yes, of course; I—I could be of no help."

She suddenly held out her hand, as though impelled to the action by some swift impulse, and the warm pressure of her fingers meant more than words. I could not see the expression on her face, yet knew the slender body was trembling nervously.

"Surely you are not afraid?"

"Oh, no; it is not that—I am all unstrung. You must not think of me at all."

I realized the gravity of my task, and my eyes were watchful of the shrouded figure I was silently approaching. I drew nearer inch by inch, advancing so slowly and snake-like that not even the slightest sound of movement aroused suspicion. Apparently the fellow was engaged in oiling the machinery, for he had placed the lantern on deck and held a long-spouted can in his fingers. His back remained toward me as I drew near the stern, and consequently I no longer had a glimpse of his face. The wooden wheel of the boat, a clumsy-looking apparatus, rested almost directly against the bank, where the water was evidently deep enough to float the vessel, and the single rope holding it in position was drawn taut from the pressure of the current. Waiting until the man was compelled to bend lower over his work, utterly unconscious of my presence, I straightened up and, pistol in hand, stepped upon the wooden beam supporting the wheel. He must have heard this movement; for he lifted his head quickly, yet was even then too late; already I had gained the afterdeck, and my weapon was on a level with his eyes.

"Don't move or cry out!" I commanded sternly. "Obey orders and you will not be hurt."

He shrank away, sinking upon the bench, his face upturned so that the light fell full upon it, for the instant too greatly surprised and frightened to give utterance to a sound. His mouth hung open, and his eyes stared at me.

"Who—who was yer? Whatcha want yer?"

"I am asking questions and you are answering them. Are you armed? All right, then; hand it over. Now put out that light."

He did exactly as I told him, moving as though paralyzed by fear, yet unable to resist.

"You are a negro—a slave?"

"Yas, sah; Ah's Massa Donaldson's boy from St. Louee."

"He is the sheriff?"

"Yas, sah—yas sah. What is Massa Donaldson? Yr ain't done bin sent yere by him, I reckon. Pears like I never see yer afore."

"No; but he's quite safe. What is your name?"

"Sam, sah—just plain Sam."

"Well, Sam, I understand you are an engineer. Now, it happens that I want to use this boat, and you are going to run it for me, do you understand? I am going to sit down here on the edge of this cockpit and hold this loaded pistol just back of your ear. It might go off at any minute, and surely will if you make a false move or attempt to foul the engine. Any trick, and there is going to be a dead nigger overboard. I know enough about engines to tell if you play fair—so don't take any chances, boy."

"Ah—Ah—reckon as how I was goin' fer ter run her all right, sah; she's sum consid'ble contrary at times, sah, but Ah'll surely run her, if thar's eny run in her, sah. Ah ain't carin' bout bein' no corpse."

"I thought not; you'd rather be a free nigger, perhaps? Well, Sam, if you will do this job all right for me tonight I'll put you where the sheriff will never see hide nor hair of you again—no, not yet; wait a moment, there is another passenger."

She came instantly in answer to my low call, and through the gloom, the startled negro watched her descend the bank, a mere moving shadow, yet with the outlines of a woman. I half believe he thought her a ghost, for I could hear him muttering inarticulately to himself. I dared not remove my eyes from the fellow, afraid that his very excess of fear might impel him to some reckless act, but I extended one hand across the side of the boat to her assistance.

"Take my hand, Rene," I said pleasantly, to reassure her, "and come aboard. Yes, everything is all right. I've just promised Sam here a ticket for Canada."

I helped her across into the cockpit and seated her on the bench, but never venturing to remove my eyes from the negro. His actions and whatever I was able to observe of the expression of his face only served to convince me of his trustworthiness, yet I could take no chances.

"She's just a real, live woman, sah?" he managed to ejaculate, half in doubt. "She sure ain't no ghost, sah?"

"By no means, Sam; she is just as real as either you or I. Now listen, boy—you know what will happen to you after this, if Donaldson ever gets hold of you?"

"I spects I does, sah. He'd just nat'ally skin dis nigger alive, Ah reckon."

"Very well, then; it is up to you to get away, and I take it that you understand this river. We are going to head upstream."

"Yas, sir; yer plannin' fer ter go nor. Wal, sah, dars plenty o' watah fer dis yere boat right now, wid de spring floods. Nothin' fer ter be afeard o' bout dat."

"That is good news. Now, Sam, I am going to cut this line, and I want you to steer straight across into the shadows of the Illinois shore. I believe you are going to play square, but for the present I'm going to take no chances with you. I am holding this pistol within a foot of your head, and your life means nothing to me if you try any trick. What is the speed of this boat upstream?"

"'Bout ten mile an hour, sah."

"Well, don't push her too hard at first, and run that engine as noiselessly as possible. Are you ready? Yes—then I'll cut loose."

I severed the line and we began to recede from the shore, cutting diagonally across the decidedly swift current. Once beyond the protection of the point the star-gleam revealed the sturdy rush of the waters, occasionally flecked with bubbles of foam. Sam handled the unwieldy craft with the skill of a practiced boatman, and the laboring engine made far less racket than I had anticipated. Pistol in hand, and vigilant to every motion of the negro, my eyes swept along that vague shore line, catching nowhere a spark of light, nor any evidence that the steady chug of our engine had created alarm. We were alone upon the mysterious bosom of the vast stream, tossed about in the full sweep of the current, yet moving steadily forward, and already safely beyond both sight and sound.

Every moment of progress tended to increase my confidence in Sam's loyalty. The fellow plainly enough realized the situation—that safety for himself depended on keeping beyond the reach of his master. To this end he devoted every instant diligently to coaxing his engine and a skillful guidance of the boat, never once permitting his head to turn far enough to glance at me, although I could occasionally detect his eyes wandering in the direction of the girl.

She had not uttered a word nor changed her posture since first entering the boat, but remained just as I had seated her, one hand grasping the edge of the cockpit, her gaze on the rushing waters ahead. I could realize something of what must be passing through her mind—the mingling of doubt and fear which assailed her in this strange environment. Up until now she had been accorded no opportunity to think, to consider the nature of her position; she had been compelled to act wholly upon impulse and driven blindly to accept my suggestions. And now, in this silence, the reaction had come, and she was already questioning if she had done right.

It was in my heart to speak to her, in effort to strengthen her faith, but I hesitated, scarcely knowing what to say, deeply touched by the pathetic droop of her figure, and in truth uncertain in my own mind as to whether or not we had chosen the wiser course. All I dared do was to silently reach out one hand and rest it gently on those fingers clasping the rail. She did not remove her hand from beneath mine, nor indeed give the slightest evidence that she was even aware of my action.

"Was Ah to turn nor, sah?" asked the negro suddenly.

"Yes, upstream; but keep in as close to the shore as you think safe. There is no settlement along this bank, is there?"

"No, sah; dars jus' one cabin, 'bout a mile upstream, but dar ain't nobody livin' thar now. Whar yer all-a-fer ter go?"

I hesitated an instant before I answered, yet almost as quickly decided that the whole truth would probably serve us best. The man already had one reason to use his best endeavors; now I would bring before him a second.

"Just as far up the river before daylight as possible, Sam. Then I hope to uncover some hiding place where we can live concealed until it is dark again. Do you know any such place?"

"Oh de Illinois shore, sah? De's see: thar's Rassuer creek, 'bout twenty mile up. Ah spects you all knows whar yer a headin' fer?"

"To a certain extent—yes; but we had to decide on this action very quickly, with no chance to plan it out. I am aiming at the mouth of the Illinois."

He glanced about at me, vainly endeavoring to decipher my expression in the gloom.

"De Illinois ribber, boss; whar yer hope fer ter find thar?"

"A certain man I've heard about. Did you ever happen to hear a white man mentioned who lives near there? His name is Amos Shunk."

I could scarcely distinguish his eyes, but I could feel them. I thought for a moment he would not answer.

"Yer'll surely excuse me, sah," he said at last, humbly, his voice with a note of pleading in it. "Ah's feelin' friendly 'nough an' all dat, sah, but still yer mus' member dat Ah's talkin' ter a perfect stranger. If yer wud sure tell me first just whar yer was a-min' at, then maybe Ah'd know a heap mor'n Ah do now."

"I guess you are right, Sam. I'll tell you the whole of it. I am endeavoring to help this young woman to escape those men back yonder. You must know why they were there; no doubt you overheard them talk coming up."

"Yas, sah; Massa Donaldson he was goin' up fer ter serve sum papers fer Massa Kirby, so he cud run off de Beauchamp niggers. But dis yere gal, she ain't no nigger—she's just a white pusson."

"She is a slave under the law," I said gravely, as she made an effort to move, "and the man Kirby claims her."

I could see his mouth fly open, but the surprise of this statement halted his efforts at speech.

"That explains the whole situation," I went on. "Now will you answer me?"

"Bout dis yere Massa Shunk?"

"Yes—you have heard of him before?"

"Ah reckon as how maybe Ah has, sah."

"Do you know where he can be found?"

"Not perzackly, sah. Ah ain't never oget bin thar, but Ah sorter seems fer ter recollect 'sumthin' 'bout whar he might be. Ah reckon maybe Ah cud go thar, if Ah just hed to. Ah reckon if yer all held dat pistol plum 'gainst nah hed, Ah'd mos' likely find dis Amos Shunk. Good Lord, sah!"

and his voice sank to a whisper, "Ah just can't git bol' o' all dis—Ah sure can't, sah—'bout her bein' a nigger."

Rene turned about, lifting her face into the starlight.

"Whether I am white or colored, Sam," she said quietly, "can make little difference to you now. I am a woman and am asking your help. I can trust you, can I not?"

The negro on his knees stared at her, the whites of his eyes conspicuous. Then suddenly he jerked off his old hat.

"Ah spects yer kin, missus," he pledged himself in a tone of conviction which made my heart leap. "Ah's bin a slave-nigger fer forty-five years, but just de same Ah ain't never bin mean ter no woman. Yas, sah, yer don't neither one ob yer eber need ter ask Sam no mor'—he's a goin' 'tho' wid yer all ter de end—he's sure am, ma'am."

Silence descended upon us, and I slipped the pistol back into my pocket. Rene rested her cheek on her hand and gazed straight ahead into the night. Far off to the left a few twinkling lights appeared, barely perceptible, and I touched the negro, pointing them out to him and whispering my question so as not to disturb the motionless girl.

"Is that the Landing over there?"

"Ah certainly spects it must be, sah; dar ain't no other town directly 'round dese parts."

"Then those lights higher up must be on the bluff at Beauchamp?"

"Yas, sah; looks like de whole house was lit up. I reckon things am right lively up thar 'bout now."

He chuckled to himself, smothering a laugh. "It's sure goin' fer ter bother Massa Donaldson fer lose dis nigger, sah, fer Ah's de only one he's got."

The lights slowly faded away in the far distance, finally disappearing altogether as we rounded a sharp bend in the river bank. The engine increased its stroke, giving vent to louder chugging, and I could feel the strain of the planks beneath us as we baffled the current. This new noise may have aroused her, for Rene lifted her head as though suddenly startled and glanced about in my direction.

"We have passed the village?" she asked, rather listlessly.

"Yes; it is already out of sight. From the number of lights burning I imagine our escape has been discovered."

"And what will they do?"—an echo of dismay in her voice.

All fear of any treachery on the part of the negro had completely deserted me, and I slipped down from my perch on the edge of the cockpit to a place on the bench at her side. She made no motion to draw away, but her eyes were upon my face, as though seeking to read the meaning of my sudden action.

"We can talk better here," I explained. "The engine makes so much noise."

"You have not yet explained to me what we were to do. Your plans for tomorrow?"

"Because I scarcely have any," I replied. "This has all occurred so suddenly I have only acted upon impulse. No doubt those back at the Landing will endeavor to pursue us; they may have discovered already our means of escape and procured boats. My principal hope is that they may take it for granted that we have chosen the easier way and gone downstream. If so we shall gain so much more time to get beyond their reach."

"But why have you chosen the northern route? Surely you had a reason?"

"Certainly; it was to deceive them and get out of slave territory as quickly as possible. There are friends in this direction and none in the other. If we should endeavor to flee by way of the Ohio we would be compelled to run a thousand-mile gantlet. There are slaves in Illinois—if has never been declared a free state—but these are held almost exclusively in the more southern counties. North of the river the settlers are largely from New England, and the majority of them hate slavery and are ready to assist any runaway to freedom."

"But you have spoken of a man—Amos Shunk—who is he?"

"You have certainly heard rumors, at least, that there are regular routes of escape from here to Canada?"

"Yes; it has been discussed at the house. I have never clearly understood, but I do know that slaves disappear and are never caught. I was told white men helped them."

"It is accomplished through organized effort—by these men—Black Abolitionists, as they are called—haters of slavery. They are banded together in a secret society for this one purpose and have what they call stations scattered all along at a certain distance apart—a night's travel—from the Mississippi to the Canadian line where the fugitives are hidden and fed. A station keeper, I am told, is only permitted to know a few miles of the route, those he must cover—the system is perfect, and many are engaged in it who are never even suspected."

"And this man—is he one?"

"Yes—a leader; he operates the most dangerous station of all. The escaping slaves come to him first."

She asked no further questions, and after a moment turned away, resting back against the edge of the cockpit with chin cupped in the hollow of her hand. The profile of her face was clearly defined by the starlight reflected by the river, and I found it hard to withdraw my eyes. A movement by the negro attracted my attention.

"There is a small creek about four miles above the Landing, Sam," I said shortly. "Do you think you could find it?"

"On de Missouri side, sah? Ah reckon Ah cud."

Failure to Do That Is the Most Frequent Cause for Investment Being a Failure.

Intelligent Building Plans Mean Much to Its Development and Proper Growth.

Slums are not the product of a city's inevitability. They are the product of its stupidity, of its indifference lack of perception and thought. A great mass of people cannot live together as four families might live at a country crossroads. Their interdependence demands an assumption of responsibility by the people who can do things for the people who cannot.

A real home will be one in which there is a recognition of responsibility by the people who might do things for the people who cannot.

Life has a right to comfort and material competence; it has a right to color and decoration; it has a right to find itself interesting. It cannot proceed by the suppression of everything that is alluring and by failure to suppress what is squalid.

A home fit for ideal citizens will have healthy allure and beauty, cleanliness, convenience and comfort, clean air, clean streets, decent street cars, no slums, plenty of amusements.

Roads and Trees.

The American Forestry association is doing good service in linking the causes of roads and forestation. It has already given advice and aid in setting out shade trees along the highway in scores of cities and towns throughout the country. The trees are intended to be memorials of our soldiers who died in France and to their comrades who have come home bearing victory.

Something more is involved than a sentiment. The best friend of a road, as of the traveler, is a shade tree. Extremes of temperature, such as come on a blazing summer day with a down-pour of cooling rain, heave and crack the unshaded roadbed, opening it to the ultimate ravages of frost and thaw. The shaded road lasts longer and brings a double comfort to the traveler. The war has taught us what this may mean, financially and otherwise. Before 1914 according to Robert Sterling Yard's "Book of National Parks," Americans spent $236,000,000 annually in foreign travel, mainly in Europe. For five years travel has been largely confined to the United States. The country is richer by a billion dollars or more, and richer also in self-knowledge—Exchange.

The Study of a Real Estate.

Real estate is a profession covering many branches of honorable endeavor. Profound study and ethical training are as mandatory as the practical experience gained through office work or personal contact with buyer and seller. I eagerly look forward to an early, concentrated, nationwide movement by those leading realtors who, realizing the potential benefits arising through intelligent instruction by competent educators in our schools and colleges, will see to it that the study of real estate is made a part of their curriculum. The higher we place the plane of our chosen profession the higher will become the personnel of those engaged in it.—Real Estate Bulletin.

ILLEGAL AND UNJUST.

The strike of the miners throughout the country is not only unjust, but it is illegal. An agreement as to wages had been entered into between the United States Fuel administration and the miners, by the terms of which the matter of wages was fixed until next spring, and in calling a strike at this time the officers of the miners' union have repudiated their agreement and have broken faith with the public. Had they waited until next spring and then if they were unable to secure the wages they demanded had called a general strike to enforce their demands, they would have been acting within their rights as an organization. But to go on strike at this season of the year when countless thousands of families have no fuel supply to keep them comfortable during the long winter months is a crime against society.

They are seeking an unfair advantage to call a strike at this particular season of the year, and by so doing they have lost the sympathy of the general public. Doubtless both living and working conditions ought to be improved in many of the mining districts, but such matters ought to have been adjusted without resorting to a general tie-up of the great coal industry when fuel is so very scarce.

The government at Washington and the government of the several states in which mines are located will be justified in adopting drastic means in dealing with this unjust and unfair method of adding to the public burden which is now almost unbearable.

John D. Rockefeller has added $10,000,000 to the endowment of the Rockefeller institute for medical research. There is this to be said of Mr. Rockefeller—that whatever criticism may have been offered of the manner in which he made his money, there can be none at all of the manner in which he is giving it away. The Rockefeller institute, which has previously received some $10,000,000 has added immeasurably to the world's knowledge of medical research. Mr. Rockefeller has also endowed the University of Chicago for some twenty-one or more millions so that in these two instances alone he has given away more than forty millions of dollars to be used for the benefit of mankind.

A WARNING TO AUTO DRIVERSTRAFFIC LAWS MUST BE OBEYED. VILLAGE COUNCIL TO ENFORCE REGULATIONS.

At the meeting of the Village Council Monday evening a resolution was adopted giving warning to all auto drivers that the laws and regulations regarding speeding must be obeyed. For the information of those who may not understand we quote from the Michigan laws relating to motor vehicles, Sec. 21:

Sec. 21. Rate of speed. No person shall operate a motor vehicle upon a public highway at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and use of the highway, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person or the safety of any property; and shall not in any event while upon any highway run at a higher rate of speed than twenty-five miles an hour, and within the corporate limits of all cities and villages the rate of speed shall not be greater than ten miles an hour in the business portion of any such city or village and not greater than fifteen miles an hour in all other portions thereof, subject, however, to the other provisions of this act. Upon approaching an intersecting highway, a bridge, dam, sharp curve or steep descent, and also in traversing such intersecting highways, bridges, dam, curve or descent, a person operating a motor vehicle shall have it under control, and operate it at such speed as is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic then on such highway and the safety of the public.

Business Portion of City. The term "business portion of cities and villages" applies not only to the central business area of a city but to all business districts in a city. People v. Dow, 155-155.

It is also urged by members of the Council that all drivers of motor vehicles, as they approach the public school grounds in this village, must slow down and have their cars under control.

All drivers who wilfully continue to violate these regulations will be prosecuted and their licenses will be revoked.

Mr Crane entertained the men's class of the Presbyterian Sunday school at his home Tuesday evening. A fine lunch was served and the evening was pleasantly passed.

The Northville Woman's club is to be commended for affording the people of this section an opportunity of hearing the eminent American violinist, Mr. Graham Harris, in the city at the Alseum on Friday evening of next week, the 14th. Mr. Harris will be assisted by other artists in a popular and entertaining program. The record should be well patronized.

Mr and Mrs Robert Earl of Hemlock Mich. have returned home after a two week visit with Mrs. Bertha Sonnenberg.

Mrs. Mary Stevens and granddaughter of Wixom and the Misses Ellen and Helen Stevens of Pontiac were Sunday visitors at the J. L. Calkins home.

AT ALSEIUM THEATRE

FRIDAY EVENING, NOV. 14

MR. GRAHAM HARRIS IN VIOLIN RECITAL

ASSISTED BY OTHER DETROIT ARTISTS

Under the auspices of the Northville Woman's Club.

Graham Harris is an American born, American trained violinist who has enjoyed a varied and highly successful career. Early in 1918 Ossip Gabrilowitsch heard him play and immediately engaged him as soloist with the new Detroit Symphony Orchestra for December 1st, 1918, in Detroit.

It is doubtful if America has produced a violinist who has so quickly and firmly established himself in public favor as Mr. Harris.

Mr. Harris' playing is characterized by a broad style and a virility unusual in virtuosi of the Anglo-Saxon races. His tone is full and rich, the technique is clean and brilliant and his interpretation is marked by a profound appreciation of the underlying spirit of the composer. Tremendous enthusiasm has attended every American appearance of Mr. Harris.

NORTHVILLE PLAYS WAYNE FOR CHAMPIONSHIP, NOVEMBER 7TH, AT WAYNE.

Follow the team to Wayne and see the game that decides the championship of the Four-Square League. The boys will not be on their home grounds. They will be playing a heavier team on unfamiliar grounds. Wayne will have a lot of rooters and they will cheer our boys. Do you want them to play under these conditions without any home support?

The team will line up very evenly matched in weight, with the odds in favor of Wayne. Wayne has had the experience in harder fought games. Northville is somewhat handicapped in having a couple of injured men, Chapman and Stilwell but the backfield even without these men is as good as the Wayne backfield.

Chapman and Stilwell will both start the game and will make good gains while they are in. Freydl, Greene and Dey can be depended upon to make gains anywhere. It is impossible to say just what Dey will do in a big game, but Freydl—say did you ever see a tank walk through a brick wall? That's Freydl! Greene can go over the top of anything and Dey seems to pick the holes and slip through for good gains. Wilcox uses good judgment in calling for plays but isn't as good in carrying the ball.

The team is going to fight to the finish. If you want to see a good game and a good team come out and look 'em over.

To Be of Influence.

If you can't swing things your way in life the sensible thing is to swing with things the way they are going. To be sure you can just abruptly cut away, but that leaves you out of touch with things. It may be a relief to your conscience to be beyond the reach of compromise. But you are also beyond the reach of influence. You can not hope to be able to mold character or even contribute anything toward bending it.

"Inventor" of Pork and Beans.

An eccentric Englishman, Daniel Day Good, is accredited with the invention of pork and beans. The first Friday in each July he would assemble a party of friends under an oak in the forest and feast them on bacon and beans. From this festival grew the popularity of the dish.

Strange Animals.

At the foot of Mount Kowang, in North Manchuria, there live strange animals called "farn-nanban-kau." They are larger than ordinary apes and dig spacious caverns on the rocky sides of the hills. During the spring and summer they store up sufficient food for the winter.

DETROIT THEATRES.

Will B. Johnston, author of "Love For Sale," Kitty Gordon's new starring vehicle which comes to the Shubert-Detroit for a week's engagement opening Sunday night, November 9th, is a more ingenious playwright than most of the librettists of modern musical plays. He proved that last season when he wrote "Take It From Me," and seems to have the happy faculty of giving the public what they like. "He is a busy cartoonist on the New York World as well as a writer with a nose for news."

"Love For Sale" is a romantic comedy with music, and the transaction suggested by the title is the heroine's answer to all her suitors. A woman of international fame for both her beauty and her talents, already vainly sought by lovers of high family and higher renown, rich in her own right and as sophisticated as any man, more so than most women, she finally declares that she will abdicate her lofty throne of majestic spinsterhood and surrender her heart of hearts to the one, only and masterful man who will give her the "greatest thrill of her life."

One of the most enjoyable plays produced in New York last spring was "39 East," which will reach Detroit for its first local presentation Sunday night, November 9, at the Garrick theatre.

Rachel Crothers is the author and a host of theatregoers who remember her vastly amusing "Old Lady 51," not to mention her several other stage successes including "A Man's World," "The Three of Us," and "A Little Cast of its seven months' run at the Metropolitan—will be interested to see "39 East," which has been frequently described as the best thing Miss Crothers has yet turned out for the stage. The play will be presented here under the direction of Lee and J. J. Shubert with the New York Journey—still a reigning success in Broadway and Maxine Elliott theatre and without a single change. Such an occasion is rare indeed and calls for genuine congratulations.

MANY HUNTERS NORTH.

More than 225,000 hunters' licenses have been issued through the state game warden's office this fall, and 100,000 more tags have been ordered printed. This is an unprecedented number, and is supposed to be owing partly to the lifting of the 16 year ban on the hunting of fox squirrels and partly to the fact that army training has taught the use of firearms to so many thousands who had never before handled a gun. Also—the number of accidental shootings of human beings is so far much larger than ever before recorded in Michigan, and the deer-hunting results yet to come, at that.

Cleaning Jewelry.
Make a paste of common soda and gasoline. Rub with a soft brush or cloth, after which rinse in warm water and polish.

About 25 young people motored out from Detroit Saturday evening to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Will Melow and gave a Halloween party and later on all went en-masque to the home of Mrs. L. E. Coates where they gave a musical entertainment. Miss Margaret and Bernadine VerDuyn and Mr. Martin Lake were also of the number.

A very pleasant family gathering was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie Kent Sunday to observe the birthday of the latter. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Taylor and daughter Mabel and Mr. Ed. Kocher of Detroit, Mr. and Mrs. L. Woodruff and son Clare, Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Taylor, Perry and Myrtle, Mr. and Mrs. Glen Salow and son, Mrs. Lizzie Coates and Mr. Philip Taylor.

Mrs. Metia Lockwood of Holly will give a talk to the children in the Baptist Church Sunday morning. A special program is being prepared and everyone will be welcome. Parents send your children if you cannot go yourself. Mrs. Lockwood is a very pleasing speaker and her address will be worth hearing being on "Medical Temperance." ABOUT OUR NEIGHBORS

Interesting Items from our exchanges—gathered with pencil, paste pot and scissors.

Plymouth poultry fanciers are arranging for a poultry show to be held there some time in January.

A correspondent of one of our prominent exchanges mentions "an infant baby" but then, of course, that distinguishes it from a grown-up baby.

Farmington is to observe Armistice Day, November 11, by a men's banquet in the town hall, at which the returned U. S. service men will be the guests of honor.

Wayne's Board of Commerce has been reorganized after an apparent sista of some extent and is now going to get busy the betterment of that community.

Springwells township wanted to become a village, but the Wayne county supervisors didn't agree to it, for the reason that Detroit was going to lap over to that point in a very short time anyway, so what was the use?

Wayne county has been presented tentatively by the heirs of the Slocum estate with Slocum Island, a 300-acre one in Detroit river below Trenton, worth a million dollars, as a public park. The conditions are that the park shall be developed and maintained for the use of the public.

The four men arrested in connection with the alleged plot to kidnap Edsel Ford and hold him for a big ransom, are now serving a three months' sentence in the Toledo city workhouse. While the plot was not absolutely proven, none of the men had any visible means of support and they were arrested and sentenced as "suspicious characters."

Milford people are already planning for their next year's fair, and will make a beginning next week with a two-day "bee" when everybody who can and will is to get out and work to put the fair grounds and race track into better condition. The ladies of the village are to participate by serving a pot-luck dinner in the main building, for the other workers.

Two unarmed Belleville citizens attempted to corral a stranger the other day whom they suspected of being one of the Royal Oak bank robbers. The man didn't corral, however, worth a cent, but instead pulled out a gun and compelled his would-be captors to take their own auto and drive him to Toledo, the office he was using being smashed. Incidentally, the stranger who carried a suspicious looking bag, also took a $50 Liberty bond and some money from his two involuntary escorts. About all they had left was their increased suspicion that he really was one of the Royal Oak robbers.

A game refuge of 80 acres in extent has been established just south of Plymouth village, to be under supervision of the state, under provisions of the law to that effect. The tract is timbered land, owned by Detroit and Plymouth men, and will provide sure sanctuary for birds and animals, as the penalties for killing them inside the boundaries at any season is heavy, and will be strictly enforced. These refuges are designed to prevent the extinction of the native game which is now imminent.

Charles Elv who represented the village of Farmington at the telephone hearing in Lansing last week tells us that it is not likely a decision in the application of the Michigan State Telephone company for permission to increase its rates will be reached for some time—a year or more. The Public Utilities commission before whom the application was made, has ordered an inventory to be taken of all the property of the company to determine whether the increase requested is justified. It will take some time to complete this inventory, and in the meantime rates will remain as they now are—Farmington Enterprise.

A delegation representing colored organizations throughout the United States met in Washington and urged an appropriation of $500,000 for the erection of a memorial to the colored soldiers of the Great War.

Elaine Janis began her theatrical career by a protest against cruelty to animals. She and her mother resigned from a theatre where an "animal act" was in progress.

A fund of $1,200 has been raised to fight rats in Palm Beach county, Fla. The rats in that region have multiplied with such rapidity that some farmers fear seventy-five per cent of their potatoes and peanuts have been destroyed.

Peppermint for oil is produced in Michigan and Indiana. The crop of 1919 has the estimate of 300,000 pounds of oil from 10,000 acres and marks another step in the continuous decline from 600,000 pounds from 18,000 acres in 1914. The average yield is about 30 pounds of oil an acre.

ROLLING your own cigarettes with Prince Albert is just about as joyous a sideline as you ever carried around in your grip! For, take it at any angle, you never got such quality, flavor, fragrance and coolness in a man's cigarette in your life as every "P. A. home-made" will present you!

Prince Albert puts new smokenotions under your bonnet! It's so delightful rolled into a cigarette—and, so easy to roll! And, you just take to it like you been doing it since away back! You see, P. A. is crimp cut and a cinch to handle! It stays put—and you don't lose a lot when you start to hug the paper around the tobacco!

You'll like Prince Albert in a jimmy pipe as much as you do in a home-rolled cigarette, too! Bite and parch are cut out by our exclusive patented process. You know P. A. is the tobacco that has led three men to smoke pipes where one was smoked before. Yes sir, Prince Albert blazed the way. And, me-o-my, what a wad of smokesport will ripple your way every time you fill up!

THIRD RED CROSS ROLL CALL

MOBILIZED FOR DISASTER CALLS

Red Cross Machinery of Organization Ready for Any Demand for Service.

50 BASE HOSPITALS READY

Chapters Provide Emergency Relief Committees and Establish Supply Centers to Answer Appeals.

Preparedness for disaster relief on a scale never before possible is being undertaken by the American Red Cross as one of the important features of its new peace program, in support of which a nationwide Third Roll Call will be conducted from Nov. 2 to 11 to obtain 20,000,000 members and $15,000,000.

Plan Survey of Supplies. Since 1900 disasters of peace have cost many thousands of lives and have brought personal injury or property loss to 1,500,000 persons, destroying property valued at $1,000,000,000. During 1917 eighty disasters were reported to the American Red Cross, 62 tornadoes, 5 floods, 4 great fires, two earthquakes, two serious mine disasters, two munition plant explosions and the tragic calamity which befell Halifax.

Under the direction of the Red Cross the entire resources of all communities will be mobilized for instant use when needed. Chapters everywhere will create committees to make surveys, locating emergency food supplies, drugs, hospital supplies, cots, mattresses, blankets, clothing, armor, schools and other buildings for housing refugees and will canvass physicians, nurses, social workers and others prepared to respond instantly to calls for their services in disasters.

National Resources Available. The thirteen divisional organizations will establish disaster relief supply centers and take charge of operations when assistance is needed. In cases of major disasters where the resources of the division in which it occurs are overtaxed, the entire strength of the Red Cross in the country may be mobilized through national headquarters.

Fifty base hospitals organized by the American Red Cross and turned over to the government for use with the military forces will be ready for immediate service.

NURSING CLASSES PLANNED
BY RED CROSS CHAPTERS.

Classes in nursing the ill, conducted by trained nurses and open to every woman the local chapters as a part of the peace program outlined by that organization. The course will include instruction in home sanitation, hygiene, care of the sick, and dietetics. These classes are being introduced into public schools and colleges and are offered to employees of department stores and factories, girl scouts, or anyone who desires to learn to prevent illness as far as possible, and to care for the patient when illness comes.

Charlotte—The Charlotte Community association will entertain members of the Detroit Board of Trade in Charlotte November 13. They will be met at the Grand Trunk railway station by business men with automobiles, and a banquet will be served in the Masonic temple.

EVERY MAN'S HOME.

Every man's home is the best old home
And every man's wife the sweetest,
Every man's child is the best little child.

The best behaved and the neatest,
Every man's baby is better than all
The babies that ever were born—
And just so it's babies and wives and homes.

Why, let 'em blow their horns!
Every man's wife makes the finest preserves.

And every man's wife bakes bread
That beats all the bread that ever was made From Hatteras to Stony Head.

Every man's home is the place to see
The finest housekeeping on earth—
And just so it's bread and preserves and home.

Let 'em keep on with their mirth!
When every man thinks that his own home's best,
And his own wife's sweetest, why then

We'll swing back into the golden dream
Of a heaven on earth again
And isn't it beautiful, fine and sweet,
That faith of a man in his child—
And his wife and his home and his simple life

That he boasts or undervalued!
When every man's home is the sweetest place
On earth for a man to be

When every man's wife is the sweetest wife
In all the world to see
When every man's child is the dearest child

That ever drew breath—ah, then
We shall have better children and women and homes
And a darn sight better men!

—Baltimore Sun

TOO MUCH THRIFT.

She was a very thrifty housewife, and she went to the corner store to buy some soap. It was eight cents a bar.

"Will you sell it three for a quarter?" she asked the clerk.

A queer expression crossed his face. "Well, we don't usually sell it at that price," he replied, "but if you want it at that you may have it," and the thrifty housewife never tumbled until she told it at the supper that night.

A PLEASING VARIETY.

A well known society woman wrote to Paderewski for "a lock of hair." This is the reply she received from his secretary:

"Dear Madam: M. Paderewski directs me to say that it affords him much pleasure to comply with your request. You failed to specify whose hair you desired, so he sends you samples of his cook, his chauffeur, his gardener, and a few strands from the mattress belonging to Mr. Pullman, owner of the coach in which he traveled while in America."

"Learn to labor and to wait," has given place to "Learn to loaf and get it now."—Kalamazoo Gazette.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is catarrh. Catarrh being greatly influenced by constitutional conditions requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Medicine is taken internally and acts thru the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in the curative power of Hall's Catarrh Medicine that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. C. C. Chadwick of Detroit, formerly one of our best known Northville residents for many years, has been appointed by Gov. Sleeper to be County Agent for Wayne county, a position held for many years by the late Sam-

The Halloween "spooks" in Northville seem to have confined their mischief mostly to the soaping of windows. Some of the windows probably needed it, but some didn't.
Those of the Library, for instance, as the board had just incurred the expense of having the windows thoroughly cleaned, as was no doubt the case with many of the buildings around town.

The members of the Northville
Woman's club and their guests enjoyed a most delightful program last Friday afternoon in the Library. The subject of the day "Woman in Music" was carried out in two charming papers, illustrated by piano and violin selections, using some of the most noted works of women composers and reproductions of the voice music of many of the world's most famous prima donnas.

Orion's village council has issued orders forbidding the burning of leaves on the concrete pavement. The best agricultural authorities have sent out advice to people not to burn leaves anywhere, stating that it is almost a criminal waste of fertilizing material to do so. Pile the leaves on your garden ground, and then spread them around next spring to plow under.
They supply almost every element needed by the soil.

One of the latest of the many recent victims of thieves at Redford is Mrs.
Sevmour Brown of this village proprietor of the motion picture theatre there. Stepping into an adjoining room for a very few minutes Saturday Mrs. Brown found on her return to the auditorium of the building that she had been robbed of nearly forty dollars in cash besides the books and papers pertaining to her theatre business, which she had left with the money.

One of the new highway projects for this section is the plan now in for converting the Novi-Northville road to the Base Line, thence five miles east on the Base Line and thence north to the Grand River road into a 16-foot gravel road. This will make traveling around this part of the country easy and pleasant in every direction.
Messrs. E. S. DeGarmo, Cass Gittins and S. L. McCall became Knights Tem-plar at Northville Tuesday night—Milford Times.

At the council meeting Monday night a resolution was submitted and passed for the division of the village of Northville into two voting precincts, precinct No. 1 to consist of the territory within the village limits west of the center of Center street and precinct No. 2 to include all territory east of that line. This division was made necessary and possible by the increase in the number of voters in the village through the enfranchise-ment of women and the many recent additions to our resident population.

The Record is in receipt of a neat booklet issued by the Wayne County Road Commission—its 13th annual report. There is a summary of the work finished and an outline of future activities. A number of fine views of Northville's streets, the machines at work, the pebble-washing plant here, and various pictures of the localities where work has been completed or is in progress. Some of the "before and after" views are very striking arguments on the good roads question. A fine road-map of the county is also a feature of the book.

"People who kick on high rents in Northville ought to be compelled to build a house," is the opinion of Dr.
Tom Henry, who has just finished paying a bill of $1,062 for painting and paper-hanging in his residence on Main street.

People should remember that doctors keep open shop 365 days in the year and 24 hours per day. It is not surprising that they should want a vacation after facing the dark side of life, and hearing nothing but our complaints day in and day out, year after year.

Dr. Fred Henry of Detroit was

We Thank Our Stars That Our Thanksgiving Clothes Are Here In Time and Ready

For good merchandise in the men's and young men's business has been so hard to procure that we don't know what will happen to some stores.
They simply won't be able to hold their usual
Thanksgiving display and that's all there is to it.

Whether we were just naturally born lucky or inherited in our youth, we can't answer—we simply know that our Thanksgiving show this year out-shines our much talked about Thanksgiving show of last year for we have received nearly 96 per cent of the goods we bought and if you'll talk to any ten merchants on (Main) street they'll tell you that to receive even 60 per cent is considered excellent.

You can judge from that just how able we are to serve you.

Our Ship has come in and it's loaded to the gun-wales with the finest, freshest, Thanksgiving Clothes that ever a man had to be thankful for.
