VILLAGE DAM AND POWER SITE SOLD

On October 28th the village water power and dam was sold at public auction, the offer of the Ford interests in the sum of $2,000 being the highest and only bid. The next step in the proceedings will be to have the sale ratified by the electors of Northville, and that action cannot be taken until sometime in January. The statutes provide that no election can be held within sixty days in any election precinct the boundary lines of which have been changed, and as it has been decided to make two voting precincts in this village it will be necessary to wait until the required sixty days have passed before holding the election. The number of voters in the village at the present time being in excess of the number permitted to use one precinct the action of the council in creating an additional precinct was in strict compliance with the law.

MARRIED AT LAYONIA.

On Wednesday afternoon at three o'clock a very pretty wedding ceremony took place at St. Paul's Lutheran Church at Layonia. The contracting parties were Miss Lina Pankow, daughter of Mrs. Matt Miller, and Edward W. Salow, son of William Salow of Northville. To the strains of the wedding march, played by Miss Clara Strasen, the young couple attended by the Misses Elsie, Rutenbar and Edna Helm, and the Messrs. Lionel, Fendt and Ernest, Rossow, marched up to the altar where Rev. C. Strasen officiated according to the very impressive liturgy of the Lutheran church. About one hundred friends attended the marriage. The bride was gowned in white georgette and carried white roses.

At 6:30 a sumptuous dinner was served to about seventy-five guests at the home of William Salow in Northville. The guests were entertained with music and singing until a late hour. The young people left on a wedding trip for Niagara Falls and later will be at home to their friends at the Salow home in Northville. The bridal couple received many valuable gifts.

WM. A. CARRUTHERS DIED IN DETROIT LAST WEEK.

Wm. A. Carruthers for several years a resident of this place where he was employed by the Pere Marquette, passed away in Detroit last Friday.

Mr. Carruthers was a very successful railroad traffic man and for some years past had held that position with the Detroit Edison company. The funeral which was largely attended was held from the Hamilton C. C. funeral home Monday afternoon, conducted by the Christian Science society. The almost countless number of beautiful bouquets and pieces of flowers which covered the casket and the alcove in which the casket rested, showed something of the esteem in which the deceased was held. More than 100 persons, including relatives, friends and business associates were present at the services.

Mr. Carruthers leaves three children, Esson, Donald and Genevieve.

GRISWOLD ROAD CLOSED.

The bridge over the Pere Marquette tracks on Griswold road was closed Wednesday by Street Commissioner Perry Austin and will remain closed until needed repairs are made. As a consequence Griswold road will also be closed. A big truck broke through the bridge one day last week.

It seems to require a lot of time in unwinding red tape whenever repairs have been needed on the bridge and it will, doubtless, take a week or two to make the necessary repairs now.

COUNTY ROUND-UP TO BE AT PLYMOUTH

Who will be the county champion in poultry, in canning, in gardening, and in the other clubs this year? Who will be the lucky club members to receive a free trip to M. A. C. next summer? How many club members will we see at Plymouth November 29th, at the round-up?

These in short, are a few of the many questions coming to County Club Leader Stewart daily as he visits the schools and clubs in Wayne county.

Over one hundred boys and girls, members of organized clubs are expected to attend the first annual round-up. Exhibits of poultry, rabbits, canned goods, garments, etc., will be shown by the champions of each local club. Judges from the Michigan Agricultural college will be there to judge the exhibits and determine the county champions.

The Wayne County Farm Bureau plans to give as an award to these champions a free trip to M. A. C. next summer.

Club members and parents will come at eleven o'clock and exhibits will be judged at 12:00. Good games will be played in the new gymnasium. At noon, the M. E. Ladies' Aid will serve a splendid dinner for 35c per plate. A good program and a free movie feature the afternoon events.

RECITAL TO-NIGHT.

Mr. Harris proved to be a violinist of musical feeling and fluent technique. His first selection, the first movement from a sonata for violin and piano, was interesting and offered moments of genuine beauty. In a suite for violin and piano Mr. Harris achieved his greatest success in the Romanza and the Scherzo, and was recalled.

The above very complimentary notice appeared in the Buffalo, N. Y. Courier, following the appearance of Mr. Harris in that city. Northville citizens will be given an opportunity to hear this very talented young man in recital at the Alseum theatre tonight, when he will appear under the auspices of the Northville Woman's club. He will be assisted by other Detroit artists and the entertainment gives promise of being of a very high order—a real musical treat—and one that will be worthy the patronage of the public.

Mr. Harris appeared in Grand Rapids a few weeks ago and the press of that city was unstinted in its praise of his work.

OBSERVED ARMISTICE DAY.

Armistice Day, was fittingly observed by the Northville schools, though the first anniversary of the laying down of arms in the great war seemed to have been pretty well forgotten by the most of our citizens. Exercises appropriate for the occasion were conducted in all the grades and the High school pupils assembled in the auditorium, where the following program was given:

Selection—Orchestra
America—School.
Address—"The Downfall of Militarism," Gibson Carpenter.
Address—"The Signing of the Armistice," Helen Millard.
Vocal Solo—Miss Ruth Green.
Song—"Star Spangled Banner," School.
Selection—Orchestra.

MEMBERSHIP IS GROWING.

The membership of the Northville Board of Commerce is growing, several of those who favored the plan to perfect the organization having paid their membership fees during the past week. Many have expressed their desire to assist in every way possible in making the organization a live and aggressive one, and all feel the need of a united effort on the part of all our citizens. It is difficult to accomplish a great deal where all are working independently, but if all will work together a great deal can be done for Northville and the surrounding country.

K. T. ANNUAL INSPECTION.

On Wednesday next will occur the annual inspection of Northville Commandery, Knights Templar, and plans are being perfected for a royal time. The Commandery will be honored upon that occasion by a visit from Right Eminent Sir E. S. Rankin, Grand Commander of Michigan, and Eminent Sir Seth H. Jones of Lansing, Inspector General, and other officers of the Grand Commandery of Michigan.

A sumptuous banquet will be one of the features of the gathering.

Government Ownership and Operation Will Demonstrate Its Infeasibility

By John W. Weeks, Former United States Senator From Massachusetts

The labor question is difficult to adjust fairly to the laborer and to the employer, and no less difficult on the farm than elsewhere. The laborer must remember that in the end he is paying for the excessive cost of his own labor.

The cost of living will be high as long as the cost of production is high, and the cost of production will be high as long as the cost of living is high. They have got to move up and down together.

Some classes, like clerks and professional men, do not get the increase in wages to the same degree that the men in the other walks of life do, and it produces hardships and discontent. Then there are men who refuse to work unless they can get the rate of pay they know some one else is getting.

When the city resident feels that he is paying an exorbitant price for some food product, he must remember that the farmer has frequently serious losses which must be added to the cost of production or there will be no production.

Altogether I find a great number of interesting problems in connection with trying to farm as I am doing it. I have a suspicion that those who have told me that farming along the lines I am pursuing cannot be done profitably may be right, but I am going to give it a good test and learn some things from definite experience which are surmised by most people.

If I find that farming under the conditions I am attempting to carry on is a failure from the financial standpoint, is it not reasonable to suppose that even an enterprise of this kind, undertaken on even such a small scale where the labor is not furnished by the employer personally, is a small illustration of the futility of attempting large enterprises under similar conditions as, for example, in matters of government ownership and operation where all labor and all materials used must be purchased?

If the individual cannot do this profitably on a small scale, how is it possible for the government to do it, knowing as we do that every step the government takes is a little more expensive than that taken by a corporation or individual?

I think that it is dawning upon even those who have been advocating government ownership and operation that it is impossible for it to conduct industrial operations economically. Of course the cost, in many cases, may be passed along to the public and, in all cases, in the end the public pays for the excessive cost, whether the operation is conducted by the farmer, manufacturer, or the government. But if the cost of government production is greater than in the case of a corporation or individual, why should the public be content or willing to accept the general proposition of government ownership and operation?

I am satisfied that, as far as possible, we must get back to the individual who personally conducts his enterprise. The one-man farm will be more popular and more successful than a farm of any other size, or character. People must necessarily, with the reduced number of hours which employees work, live more simply, and, perhaps, that result is desirable.

What Remains for Aviation, Now That the Atlantic Has Been Crossed?

By HENRY WOODHOUSE, Aerial League of America

What does there remain to be done by the airplane now that the Atlantic has been crossed? I should say that the magnificent flights of the American and British aviators have just opened the tremendous possibilities for aerial achievements. Here are a few of the things still to be done:

Cross the Atlantic by direct flights from the United States to England, France and Italy. Carry one thousand pounds of mail in a nonstop direct flight from the United States to England, thereby demonstrating the utilitarian value of transatlantic air lines.

Make a nonstop flight from New York to San Francisco first, then carry a thousand pounds of mail or passengers on subsequent flights. Fly from New York to San Francisco within one day's daylight.

Cross the North pole from Cape Columbia to Cape Chelyuskin, as proposed and planned by Capt. Robert A. Bartlett. Fly to Hawaii. Fly to the Philippines. Fly across the Pacific.

Complete the aerial conquest of the Atlantic by flying it by each of the following routes: (a) By way of the Azores, then to Madeira, then to either Spain or Africa. (b) From South America to Barbados and across to the Canaries. (c) From Cape Orange to Cape Verde and then to the African coast. (d) From Pernambuco to St. Paul islands, then either to Cape Verde or straight to the African coast. (e) By way of Greenland and Iceland to the Faroe islands and from there to England.

Fly to Australia and New Zealand. Fly across Alaska and demonstrate how aerial transportation will help that rich country. Fly from the United States to Brazil and the Argentine and also from the United States to Chile and Peru and other Latin-American countries and show the marvelous possibilities of aerial transportation in South and Central America.

Professional Women Get Their Only Pleasure by Associating With Men

By Miss Estelle Berlina, Physical Expert

Our women do not walk. The rich ones won't, and the poor ones are too tired with work. Dancing is the only exercise. It is a passive exercise. I have had success in getting factory girls out on a hike. But they won't hike in the city in hiking clothes. They are afraid they look ridiculous.

Most women are afraid that, if they become athletic, they will be unpopular with men; and if they wear exercising clothes, they will look mannish and lose the admiration of men.

The trouble with professional women is that most of their pleasure comes from association with men, in dancing and going to the theaters. That makes them vain about their appearance, and then they don't want to wear athletic and easy clothes.

Authentic Styles in Furs

Furs, like coats, have soared in price until the average mortal can only look at the more sumptuous wraps made of it and wonder that there is so much money in the world as they represent. But these extraordinary prices have not decreased the demand. Furriers are unable to obtain skins that they could use for ready purchasers. Possibly the lack of transportation from some source of supply to the fur market is responsible for the shortage of pelts, or it may be that the demand advances much more rapidly than the increase in fur-bearing animals. In this case good furs, high priced as they are, will prove a sensible investment.

Mink, seal and kolinsky are favorites for the longer capes and coats. Mole skin is liked for its softness and suppleness and is dyed into dark brown shades this season, and brown is so much admired that squirrel and fox are dyed also. Cape mantles and capes or cape-like coats insure the simple loose effects that are of all the most graceful and pleasing.

But the two fur garments in greatest demand just now are wide, straight scarfs and coatees. A diamond is a diamond and furs are furs, whether in large or small wraps. These scarfs and coatees strike the note of luxurious wealth and richness—that belongs to furs and gives their wearers more service than garments that can only be worn in midwinter. There is almost no fur that may not be made into a beautiful scarf. For coatees, seal, dyed squirrel, mole, kolinsky, Persian lamb are used, with seal a favorite. Thus fur appears above in both the favorite garments, first in a long scarf with turban to match. These matched sets are to be credited with adding much distinction to this season's furs. The odd turban has a soft band of velvet, with battlement edge turned up about it. Much attention has been given to the linings of scarfs to make them worthy their aristocratic company—and they are often of chiffon, beautifully embroidered with small scattered blossoms.

The coatee, shorter in the front than at the back and full enough to suggest a cape, simply was obliged to have flaring sleeves, with cuffs of skunk fur. This fur has wonderful wearing qualities with which it reinforces the softer seal and makes an ample and most becoming collar.

Muffs are large, many of them flat and so made that they are bags as well as muffs.

Charming Hats for Midwinter

We take a great many things for granted in a world that is rich in wonderful and beautiful fabrics. We hardly stop to think how they are related to the seasons of the year and that it has taken some centuries to perfect them. But they are here, at hand, for the artists in apparel to use in interpreting their ideas to us. Milliners make their choice and hats tell the story of the seasons—and much more, with rich velvets and brocades, warm, soft-looking beavers and plushes, gold and silver tissues, with furs, making up the brilliant and cheerful millinery of midwinter. There is something of splendor in it.

Four charming hats for midwinter, shown in the picture above, are good and sufficient excuse for a little extravagance on the part of the eternal feminine. Every woman knows that her hat is the most important item in her costume, and here are four that have all the excellencies, beauty of fabric, beauty of line, becomingness and fitness for the season. The hat, with graceful brim, at the top of the group is a triumph of the framemaker to start with, and is made of velvet. It has a soft tan crown and a sash of wide satin ribbon ending in bows that follow the season's mandate in keeping to the right.

Just below, at the left of the group, black velvet and gold cloth brocade with black achieve a handsome Napoleon hat, which also has a soft crown. Except for a sash and the of narrow gold ribbon about the crown it is without trimming. This is one of several successful off-the-face hats. Opposite it a large velvet hat is faced with beaver. Its brim is turned up at the front and a handsome ornamental pin fastens it to the crown. With this hat a wide scarf of angora yarn makes a neckpiece to correspond, taking the place of fur.

Siberian squirrel fur—the lightest of the gray squirrel skins—makes the spirited turban at the bottom of the group. A small cascade of fine lace, with a bit of fur along the plaited edge, results in a trimming that cannot be improved upon. All these models are worn well down over the head and not an ear is visible.

FRIENDS

By MARGARET K. SULLIVAN

(Copyright, 1919, McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"A sweet, clear voice rang out above the rattle of dishes, and reached the ears of the tired, dusty driver of the big touring car on the hot road. With a quick, voluntary motion, and a glance in the direction of the cottage from which the sound came, the driver slowed down the car almost to a halt, then the singing ceased and another sound came to his hearing. It was that of a child crying, and the sweet song was changed to a mother's coaxing, comforting monotone, while the rattle of dishes had stopped. Whatever the driver had in mind when he slowed down the car could not be conceived, for with an impatient movement he released the brakes and sent the machine forward at high speed.

A few minutes later a pretty young girl in her early twenties appeared on the porch, carrying in her arms a little child of about two years.

"Now, Janie, a big girl like you should not be crying. Why can't you be good like little brother?"

"Janie good girl, Maudie," protested the little one, and then catching sight of the gleaming car fast disappearing in the distance, she dimpled and giggled, stretching her little dimpled arms toward it.

Suddenly she heard a soft purring sound in the distance. Yes, it was the motor returning. Half curiously she watched it, unconsciously smoothing the pretty gingham dress she wore, until suddenly she realized that it was coming no nearer. "What can be the trouble?" she wondered. For trouble if surely must be, for there was no other house within walking distance of the car but this one. She saw a figure in the distance descend from the car and begin walking slowly toward the house, without even a backward glance toward the car.

"Water or gasoline?" was her thought.

Slowly she went forward and stood framed in the doorway. The least she expected was a surprised glance from the man she stood facing, but to her surprise she was addressed in a tone of studied politeness, and met a look as stony and unrecognizing as the one she felt on her own face.

"Please may I have a bucket of water for my engine?" he inquired.

"Certainly, sir; I'll get it for you," she returned in the same polite, casual tone as his own.

"But—er—I. May I get it for you?" he asked. "It's liable to be heavy."

"Oh, no, thank you. I am perfectly able to carry it."

"Wait just a moment," she said, in a kinder tone. "I'll get you a drink." As she returned with the water, her face flushed from the exertion of pumping, she noticed that the man was staring moodily at the ground, then with a quick motion he stared at her, and from her to the children with a queer expression on his face.

Flinging out his hand impulsively, he said: "Maudie, let us at least be friends; if only for the sake of these children here."

With a surprised look at him, she ignored his hand, and stood as if stunned.

"Maudie, muddie," broke in little Janie, "Janie wanna wide."

At the sound of the little one's voice the light broke on the astonished girl. "Oh, Fred, Fred," she cried, and then dropping into a chair she buried her face in her hands and her shoulders shook convulsively. With one leap over the low railing the young man reached her side.

"Maudie, it's my fault, dear, that you came to this. Let us forget it. I'll always be your friend. Don't dear, don't feel so bad. I—I—"

"Oh," came from the girl, "it's so funny—"

It was now the man's turn to be astonished, for the face turned up to him was wet with tears—of laughter! "Well, what the deuce is up? I—I—What is it, Maudie?" he finished desperately.

"Oh, Fred, I see it all now. Janie, come here, dear. Where is mother?" she asked.

"Mamma?" questioned the child, plainly. "Mamma? She gone way off."

A light of understanding broke over the young man's face, and under his breath he murmured "Maudie," then "Maudie," and found so little difference that he joined in the laughter with a light heart.

But Maudie's face had again clouded, and a tone of restraint crept into her voice as she said: "But, Fred, that don't explain your not writing me for so long. Tell me, please, why it was?"

With his two arms about her, Fred explained his long absence, due to sickness, then his return home, her disappearance, his long hunt for her, and his final conclusion of her faithlessness, which was strengthened by the sight of her with the little ones.

"But, Maudie," he continued, "when I heard your voice today, singing, I just had to see you, if only to make you see that no matter what had happened, I was still an old, true friend; but now, Maudie, now—"

Some hours later Janie's mother and father found a strange car at their door and their two children playing to their hearts' content in the dirt, while from the house came the sound of preparations for the evening meal, and above the rattle of the dishes a clear, sweet, happy voice and a low, vibrant, joyous voice singing contentedly.

Night-Time—How to See It. Radium paint is not the only thing that will illuminate a watch on a dark night. So said Benjamin F. Lockwood, somewhat defiantly, for he has just invented a decidedly complicated device for so doing.

In the first place, you must wear a motorist's glove; then you attach your watch to the back of the cuff; next you adjust the bulb and shade so the watch is illuminated. A battery is tucked in the side of the glove and wires run around until they terminate in two contact points in the thumb and first finger.

In His Children's Eyes. In the recently published "Theodore Roosevelt Letters to His Children" not a little space is given to the quaint sayings of Quentin. Here is one:

"GOOD LORD O' MERCY, WHAT'S DAT?"

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commandant sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer Warrior and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucare, rich planter, and of Joe Kirby (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucare has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand unfairly dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucare, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. Pete's dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Knox sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucare's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Strunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucare place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and a girl who says she is Rene Beaucare. Kirby insults the girl, and Knox attacks him. Believing Kirby dead, Knox explains affairs to the girl, and she agrees to try to escape with him. They fail to find Pete where he had been posted, so Knox seizes the sheriff's keelboat, along with Sam, the slave left in charge, and they begin their voyage up the river.

CHAPTER VIII.

The Dawn of Deeper Interest.

It tested his skill as a boatman to locate the exact spot sought amid that gloom, yet he finally attained to it closely enough so I was able to get ashore, wading nearly thigh deep in water and mud, but only to learn that the boat, which I had provisioned earlier in the evening, had disappeared from its moorings. No trace of it could be found in the darkness, although I devoted several minutes to the search. To my mind this was positive evidence that Pete had returned, accompanied by the two frightened women, and that, finally despairing of my arrival, had departed with them up the river. In all probability we would overhaul the party before morning; certainly before they could attain the mouth of the Illinois. I made my way back to the keelboat with this information, and the laboring engine began to chug even while I was briefly explaining the situation to Rene. She listened almost wearily, asking but few questions, and both of us soon lapsed into silence. A little later she had pillowed her head on her arms and apparently had fallen asleep.

I must have dozed myself as the hours passed, although hardly aware of doing so. It was faint and dim, a promise more than a realization of approaching day, yet already sufficient to afford me view of the shore at our right and to reveal the outlines of a sharp point of land ahead jutting into the stream. The mist rising from off the water in vaporous clouds obscured all else, rendering the scene weird and unfamiliar. It was indeed a desolate view, the nearby land low, and without verdure, in many places overgrown, and the river itself sullen and angry. Only that distant point appeared clearly defined and real, with the slowly brightening sky beyond. I endeavored to arouse myself from stupor, rubbing the sleep from my eyes. Rene had changed her posture, but still slumbered, with face completely concealed in her arms; but Sam was wide awake and turned toward me grinning, at my first movement. Instinctively I liked the fellow—he appeared both intelligent and trustworthy.

"Daylight, is it?" I said, speaking low so as not to awaken the girl. "I must have been asleep."

"Yes, sah; yer's bin a noddin' fer de las' hour. Ah wus 'bout ter stir yer up, sah, fer Ah reckon as how we's mos' dar."

"Most where?" staring about incredulously. "Oh, yes, Rassner creek. Have we made that distance already?"

"Wal, we's bin a goin' at a mighty good gal, sah. She ain't done fooled none on me all dis night," his hand laid lovingly on the engine. "Nebber kicked up no row o' no kind—just chug, chug, chug right 'long. 'Pears like she sorter know'd dis nigger hed ter git away. Anyhow, we bin movin' long now right smart fer 'bout four hours, an' Rassner creek ah just 'round dat pint yonder—Ah's mighty sure ob dat, sah."

He was right, but it was broad daylight when we reached there; the eastern sky a glorious crimson, and the girl sitting up staring at the brilliant coloring as though it pictured to her the opening of a new world. The passage of a few hundred yards revealed the mouth of Rassner creek, a narrow but sluggish stream, so crooked and encroached upon by the woods as to be practically invisible from the center of the river. The water was not deep, yet fortunately proved sufficiently so for our purpose, although we were obliged to both pole and paddle the boat upward against the slow current, and it required an hour of hard labor to place the craft safely beyond the first bend, where it might lie roughly concealed by the intervening fringe of trees. Here we made fast to the bank.

I assisted Rene ashore, and aided her to climb to a higher level, carpeted with grass. The broad river was invisible, but we could look directly down upon the boat, where Sam was already busily rummaging through the lockers in search of something to eat. He came ashore presently, bearing some corn pone and a goodly portion of jerked beef. Deciding it would be better not to attempt a fire, we divided this and made the best meal possible, meanwhile discussing the situation anew, and planning what to do next. The negro, seated at one side alone upon the grass, said little, beyond replying to my questions, yet scarcely once removed his eyes from the girl's face. He seemed unable to grasp the thought that she was actually of his race, a runaway slave, or permit his tongue to utter any words of equality. Indeed I could not prevent my own glance from being constantly attracted in her direction also. Whatever had been her mental strain and anguish, the long hours of the night had in no marked degree diminished her beauty. To me she appeared even younger and more attractive than in the dim glare of the lamplight the evening before; and this in spite of a weariness in her eyes and the lassitude of her manner. She spoke but little, compelling herself to eat, and assuming a cheerfulness I was sure she was far from feeling. It was clearly evident her thoughts were elsewhere, and finally the conviction came to me that, more than all else, she desired to be alone. My eyes traced the outlines of the boat lying in the stream below.

"What is there forward of the cockpit, Sam?" I questioned.

"A cabin, sah; 'tain't so awful big, but Massa Donaldson he nster sleep dar off an' on."

"The young lady could rest there then?"

"Sure she cud. 'Twas all fixed up fine afore we ler' St. Louee. Ah'll show yer de way, missus."

She rose to her feet rather eagerly, and stood with one hand resting against the trunk of a small tree. Her eyes met mine and endeavored a smile.

"I thank you for thinking of that," she said gratefully. "I—I really am tired, and—and it will be rest just to be alone. You—you do not mind if I go?"

"Certainly not. There is nothing for any of us to do but just take things easy until night."

"And then we are to go on up the river?"

"Yes, unless, of course, something should occur during the day to change our plan. Meanwhile Sam and I will take turns on guard, while you can remain undisturbed."

I watched the two as they went down the steep bank together and Sam helped her over the rail into the cockpit. The negro left the door open and returned slowly, clambering up the bank.

"Cuse me, sah," he said clumsily, as he paused before me, rubbing his head, his eyes wandering below. "Did Ah hear right what yer sed las' night, 'bout how dat young woman was a nigger, a runaway from Massa Kirby?"

"Pears like Ah don't just seem fer ter git dat right in my head, sah."

"That is the truth, Sam, although it appears quite as impossible to me as to you. She has the blood of your race in her veins, and is legally a slave."

"An' now she done b'long ter dis yere Massa Kirby?"

"Yes, he won all the Beaucare property, including the slaves, in a poker game, on the river, the night Beaucare died."

"Ah done heard all 'bout dat, sah. An' yer nebber know'd dis yere girl afore er all?"

"No, I never even saw her. I chanced to hear the story and went to the house to warn them, as no one else would. I was too late, and no other course was left but to help her escape. That is the whole of it."

He asked several other questions, but at last appeared satisfied, and after that we discussed the guard duty of the day, both agreeing it would not be safe for us to permit any possible pursuit to pass by us up the river unseen. Sam professed himself as unwearied by the night's work and willing to stand the first watch. I lay down in the tree shade, and must have fallen asleep almost immediately. I do not know what aroused me, but I immediately sat upright, startled, and instantly awake, the first object confronting me being Sam on the crest of the opposite ridge, eagerly beckoning me to join him. The moment he was assured of my coming, and without so much as uttering a word of explanation, he vanished into the shadow of the woods.

I crossed this ravine with reckless haste, clambering up the opposite bank, and sixty feet beyond suddenly came into view of the broad expanse of water. Scarcely had I glimpsed this rolling flood, sparkling under the sun's rays, when my gaze turned upstream, directed by an excited gesture of the negro. Less than a mile away, its rapidly revolving wheel churning the water into foam in ceaseless battle against the current, was a steamboat. A number of moving figures were perceptible on the upper deck. I stared at the apparition, scarcely comprehending the reality of what I beheld.

"Yer bettah stoop down more, sah," Sam urged. "Fer sum o' dem fellars might see yer yet. Ah nebber heerd nuthin' ner saw no smoke till she cum a-puffin' 'round de end o' dat pint. Ah cudn't dare go fer-yer then, sah, fer fear dey'd see me, so Ah jus' natarly lay do'wn yere an' watched her go by."

"Is it a government boat?"

"Ah reckon maybe; leas'twee thar's a heap o' soldiers aboard her—reg'lar, Ah reckons, fer dey's all in uniform. But everybody aboard wasn't soldiers."

"You know the steamer?"

"Yas, sah. Ah's seed her face afore dis down at St. Louee. She nster run down de ribber—she's de John B. Glover. She ain't no great shakes ob a boat, sah."

His eyes, which had been eagerly following the movements of the craft, turned and glanced at me. "Massa Kirby he wus aboard dat steamer, sah."

"Kirby! Are you sure about that, Sam?"

"Course Ah's sure. Didn't Ah see him just as plain as Ah see you right now? He wus forrad by de rail, near de pilot house, a watchin' dis whole shore like a hawk. Dat sure wus Massa Kirby all right, but dar wain't nobody else 'long wid him."

"But what could he be doing there on a troop boat?"

The negro scratched his head, momentarily puzzled by my question.

"Ah sure don't know, sah," he admitted. "Only dat's perackly who it yas. Ah figure it out 'bout dis way, sah; dat nobody kin tell yit which way we went—up de ribber er down de ribber. Long cum de John B. Glover, an' Massa Kirby he just take a chance an' goes aboard. De sheriff he goes der odder way, downstream in a rowboat; an' dat's how dey alms ter sure head us off."

I sat down at the edge of the bluff, convinced that the conclusions of the negro were probably correct. That was undoubtedly about how it had happened. To attempt pursuit upstream with only oars as propelling power would be senseless, but the passage upward of this troop boat, afforded Kirby an opportunity he would not be slow to accept. Getting aboard would present no great difficulty, and his probable acquaintance with the captain would make the rest easy.

The steamer by this time was moving diagonally across the river, head toward the other shore, and was already so far away the men on deck were invisible. It was scarcely probable that Kirby would go far northward, but just what course the man would take when once more ashore was problematical. Where he might choose to seek for us could not be guessed. Yet the mere fact that he was already above us on the river was in itself a matter for grave consideration. Still thus far we remained unlocated, and there was less danger in that direction than downstream. Once we attained the Illinois and made arrangements with Shrank the immediate danger would be over. Then I need go no farther—the end of the adventure might be left to others. I looked up—the steamer was a mere smudge on the distant bosom of the river.

It was late afternoon before Rene finally emerged from the cabin to learn the news, and I spent most of the time on watch, seated at the edge of the bluff, my eyes searching the surface of the river. While Kirby's presence upstream unquestionably increased our peril of capture, this did not cause me as much anxious thought as did the strange disappearance of Erbe Pete and the two women. What had become of them during the night? Surely they could never have outstripped us with only a pair of oars by which to combat the current, and yet we had obtained no glimpse of them anywhere along that stretch of river.

The knowledge that the steamer which had passed us was heavily laden with troops was most encouraging. In itself alone this was abundant proof of the safe delivery of my dispatches, and I was thus relieved to realize that the duty had been performed. There might be wonder and later the necessity of explanation, yet no one would suffer from my absence, and I was within the limits of my fur-rough—the re-enforcements for Forts Armstrong and Crawford were already on their way. So, altogether, I faced the task of eluding Kirby with a lighter heart and renewed confidence. Alone, as I believed him to be, and in that new country on the very verge of civilization, he was hardly an antagonist I needed greatly to fear. Indeed, as man to man, I rather welcomed an encounter.

There is little to record, either of the day or night. The latter shut down dark but rainless, although the sky was heavily overcast by clouds. Sam made no endeavor to speed his engine, keeping most of the way close to the deeper shadow of the shore, and the machinery ran smoothly, its noise indistinguishable at any distance. Day had not broken when we came to the mouth of the Illinois and turned our oar cautiously up that stream, becoming immediately aware that we had entered new waters. The negro, ignorant of what was before us, soon beached the boat on a sand bar, and we decided it would be better for us to remain there until dawn. This was not long in coming, the gray sky of the east slowly lighting up the scene and bringing into view, little by little, our immediate surroundings. Nowhere appeared the slightest evidence of life, either on water or land; all was forlorn and dead, a vista of utter desolation. Sam was standing up, his whole attention concentrated on the view upstream.

"Do steamers ever go up this river?" I asked, surprised at the volume of water.

He glanced around at me as though startled at my voice.

"Yas, sah; putty near any sorter boat kin. Trouble is, sah, we's got started in de wrong place—dar's plenty watah t'other side of dis yere bar."

"Who told you the best way to find Shrank?"

His eyes widened and searched my face, evidently still somewhat suspicious of any white man.

"A nigger down St. Louee way, sah. Dey done cotched him an' brought him back afore he even got ter Beards-town."

"And you believe you can guide us there?"

"Ah sure can, if whut dat nigger sed wus correct, sah. Ah done questioned him mighty partic'lar, an' Ah members ebery sign whut he giv' me."

He grinned broadly. "Ah sorter suspected Ah mought need dat information."

"All right, then; it is certainly light enough now—let's push off."

We had taken the sand lightly and were able to pole the boat into deep water with no great difficulty. The broader river behind us remained veiled in mist, but the gray light was sufficient for our purpose, enabling us to proceed slowly until our craft had rounded the protruding headland, out of sight from below.

"Tain't so awful fur from yere, sah," Sam called to me.

"What—the place where we are to land?"

"Yas, sah. It's de mouth ob a little creek whut yer nebber see till yer right plum at it. Bettah keep yer eyes open 'long dat shore, sah."

The girl, alertly bent forward, was first among us to detect the concealed opening, which was almost completely screened by the overhanging trees, her voice ringing excitedly as she pointed it out. Sam was quick to respond, and almost before I had definitely established the spot, the bow of the boat swerved and we shot in through the leafy screen, the low-hung branches sweeping against our faces and scraping along the sides. It looked a veritable cave, and indeed all I remember nothing in my first hasty glance through the shadows was the outline of a small boat moored to a fallen tree. I scrambled over, found precarious footing, and made fast.

"So this is the place?" I questioned incredulously, staring about at the dark, silent forest, which still remained in the deep night shade. "Why, there's nothing here."

"No, sah; dar certainly don't 'pear fer ter be much," and the negro crept out of the cockpit and joined me, "cep'tin' dat boat. Dar ain't no boat 'round yere, les' folks hes bin a-ridin' in it, Ah reckon."

Sam advanced cautiously and began anxiously to scan the ground, beating back and forth through the underbrush. After watching him a moment my gaze settled on the strange boat, and I crept along the log, curious to examine it more closely. It had the appearance of being newly built, the paint unscratched, and exhibiting few marks of usage. A single pair of oars lay crossed in the bottom, and beside these was an old coat and some ordinary fishing tackle—but nothing to arouse any interest. Without doubt it belonged to Amos Shrank, and had been left here after the return from some excursion either up or down the river. I was still staring at these things and speculating about them when the negro called out from a distance that he had found the path. Rene answered his call, standing up in the boat, and I hastened back to help her ashore.

We had scarcely exchanged words during the entire night, but now she accepted my proffered hand gladly, and with a smile, springing lightly from the deck to the insecure footing of the log.

"I do not intend that you shall leave me behind," she said, glancing about with a shudder. "This is such a horrid place."

"The way before us looks scarcely better," I answered, vainly endeavoring to locate Sam. "Friend Shrank evidently is not eager for callers. Where is that fellow?"

"Somewhere over in that thicket, I think. At least his voice sounded from there. You discovered nothing in the boat?"

"Only a rag and some fishing tackle. Come; we'll have to plunge in somewhere."

She followed closely as I pushed a passage through the obstructing underbrush, finally locating Sam at the edge of a small opening, where the light was sufficiently strong to enable us to distinguish marks of a little-used trail leading along the bottom of a shallow gully bisecting the sidehill. At the crossing of a small stream we noticed the imprint of several feet in the soft mud of the shore. One plainly enough was small and narrow, beyond all question that of a woman, but the others were all men's, one being clad in moccasins. Sam, still ahead, started to clamber across the trunk of a fallen tree, but came to a sudden halt, staring downward at something concealed from our view on the other side.

"Good Lord o' mercy!" he exclaimed excitedly, "what's dat?"

I was close beside him by this time and saw the thing also—the body of a man lying on the ground.

"Wait where you are, Rene!" I exclaimed, waving her back. "There is a man lying here beyond the log. Come, Sam; we will see what he looks like."

GIRLS! DRAW A MOIST CLOTH THROUGH HAIR

Let "Danderine" save your hair and double its beauty.

Oh, girls, such an abundance of thick, heavy, invigorated hair; a perfect mass of wavy, silky hair, gloriously fluffy, bright and so easy to manage. Just moisten a cloth with a little "Danderine" and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; this magically removes all dirt, excess oil and grease, but your hair is not left brittle, dry, stringy or faded, but charmingly soft, with glossy, golden gleams and tender lights. The youthful glints, tints and color are again in your hair. "Danderine" is a tonic-beautifier. Besides doubling the beauty of the hair at once, it checks dandruff and stops falling hair. Get delightful Danderine for a few cents at any drug or toilet counter and use it as a dressing and invigorator as told on bottle.—Adv.

Malay Archipelago. When you leave the east coast of Africa, you strike across the Indian ocean, following the equator, which cuts Sumatra and Borneo in halves. It is in the forests of those great islands that our somewhat less near relatives, the orang-outangs, reside. All of the Malay archipelago (which properly includes the Philippines) might be described as a partly submerged continent, and no great amount of geologic uplift would be required to convert it into a single land mass nearly as big as Australia.

Important to all Women Readers of this Paper

Thousands upon thousands of women have kidney or bladder trouble and never suspect it.

Women's complaints often prove to be nothing else but kidney trouble, or the result of kidney or bladder disease. If the kidneys are not in a healthy condition, they may cause the other organs to become diseased.

You may suffer pain in the back, headache and loss of ambition. Poor health makes you nervous, irritable and may be despondent; it makes any one so.

But hundreds of women claim that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, by restoring health to the kidneys, proved to be just the remedy needed to overcome such conditions.

Many send for a sample bottle to see what Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder medicine, will do for them. By enclosing ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. SPEND FOUR MONEY AT HOME.

Community prosperity is, or is not as we of the community make it.

Much money will be spent around here during the coming Christmas holidays. It is right that it should be so, for every normal person likes to partake of the joys of the festive time.

But where will that money go?

Will the profits remain here, and continue to circulate in our midst, and enrich our local community? Or will they go to foreign houses, and be forever lost to us who have produced them by our energy and our thrift?

The answer is in our own hands.

Our local merchants will be well equipped for supplying our demands. The goods will be on their counters, where we can see them, judge as to their quality, and know what we get. And the name of a local dealer stands as a guarantee for everything he sells.

But if we buy abroad we lose from our midst both the dealer's cost price and his profits. We never see them again.

And our community is the poorer to the extent of the profits on every article not purchased at home.

Which will it be?

A constructive Christmas, or a destructive one?

Prosperity should begin at home.

Unless all signs fail the issue in the presidential campaign next year will be very much the same as was the issue in the gubernatorial campaign in Massachusetts this year—for law and order. And upon that platform all loyal Americans will unite.

The day following election President Wilson sent a message to the Bay State governor congratulating him upon his election, the first instance known where a president has congratulated a successful candidate for governor who represented the opposing party.

But the issue was so clearly defined that men of all parties rallied to the standard of the republican candidate because he stood squarely for the enforcement of the law.

This spirit of lawlessness which just now seems to be sweeping across the country must be checked and the American people, when once aroused, will see to it that the Reds and their sympathizers are beaten at the polls.

Yielding to the mandates of the United States court, the leaders of the coal miners' strike have advised their followers to return to work.

A conference of operators and miners will be called to meet in Washington soon to arrange a new wage scale.

In their attempt to call a general strike throughout the coal regions of the country the miners were not only "blocked" by the courts, but public opinion was strongly against them and they were compelled to bow in submission to the demands of the people.

This course is too big to be run by any one class or set of men.

Detroit the splendid progressive city that it is, is badly in need of a large public auditorium where meetings similar to the gathering of the State Teachers' association which was held there last week, may be accommodated.

There were more than 7,000 present at the meeting of the association and the arrangements made for properly caring for them were very unsatisfactory, due, of course, to not having a suitable building for such purposes.

Every loyal American will applaud the efforts being made by the Department of Justice in founding up the Russian Reds and all other Reds in this country. It is to be hoped these fellows will all be deported and that if any American Reds are caught in the net that they will be locked up.

There is no place in this country for the Red flag. Old Glory is good enough.

In addressing a meeting of business men and citizens in his home city recently Mayor Thompson of Chicago admonished all present to "put up their hammers and to secure horns."

That is pretty good advice to people living in communities a long way from Chicago, Ill. In every community there is too much fault-finding and not enough "pulling together." Why not all pull one way in Northville?

In many sections of Michigan apples and potatoes are rotting for lack of cars to ship them to market. There are some things worse than private ownership of railroads.

Better begin to feed the old rooster pretty well for Thanksgiving turkeys will cost from 45 to 50 cents a pound this year.

If you desire to escape criticism, do nothing, say nothing, be nothing.

TRY A LINE IN THE RECORD.

GIVE THE FARMER A SQUARE DEAL.

It is estimated that the farmers of Michigan have lost during the past three months $7,000,000 by the drop in the price of hogs, according to figures compiled by County Agent Tanner of Barry county, and yet meat prices all over the state have remained the same to the consumer. Mr. Tanner bases his estimate upon the fact that there are approximately 2,300 farmers in his home county who have an average of five pigs for market this fall. Last August these 11,500 hogs, weighing an average of 200 pounds, were marketable at a price about 21 cents a pound. Now the figures that packers are offering are around 12 cents, a drop of nine cents a pound.

With Barry county as a basis for his figuring Mr. Tanner estimates that in the 32 counties of Michigan there are more than 80,000 farmers, each with at least five marketable hogs whose loss since August may be conservatively placed at more than $7,000,000.

If this loss benighted the consumer in the cities and came back to the farmer in reduced prices of farm necessities, he wouldn't be resentful. Mr. Tanner says "but prices for all commodities the farmers use have not been lowered. If the prices of farm produce are to be reduced in all fairness the farmers ought to be able to buy their necessities at a lower figure. Unless this condition is brought about the production of many Michigan farms will be greatly curtailed."

RED CROSS DRIVE.

The result of the Red Cross drive in Northville which was conducted by a number of ladies under the able leadership of Mrs. C. C. Yerkes, was very gratifying and the ladies are very grateful to all who had a heart and a dollar. Up to Tuesday night 250 members had been secured and there will be more names added this week. This is regarded as a very creditable showing for this community, though of course not all who ought to have become members did so.

The following ladies had charge of the membership canvass and all deserve credit for their faithfulness: Mesdames Carl Schantz, E. C. Stark, Chas. A. Dolph, C. A. Ponsford, N. C. Schrader, Chas. Blackburn, E. B. Cavell, Floyd Northrop, Leroy Stewart and Misses Frances Yerkes, Irene Dixon, Helen Rackham and Isabel Walters.

WILL MAKE A BEAUTY SPOT.

The land which will be flooded when the dam at Phoenix is in operation is being cleared of all rubbish and underbrush with the idea of making the pond, or lake, a beauty spot when the work is completed. The trees along the banks of the pond have been cut down and everything that might in any way make the pond unsightly is being removed, even the old dry grass and weeds are being raked up and burned.

By another season the Phoenix pond will be one of the beauty spots of Wayne county owing to the generosity and enterprise of Henry Ford.

Whitbeck, president of the Cleveland Automobile Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, were with him. Of the trip, which lasted three weeks, he says: "We took a three days' canoe trip up the Lobique river (one of the best known Salmon streams in Canada), to Nictan and Bethurst lakes, down the Nipisiquit (a trout stream) to Batworst, N. B., Canada. I killed a big moose at Inlet Pond—a beaver pond near Bethurst lake. The head measured 47 inches—spread—8 inch blades—and 24 points. Usually only the head and hide are brought out, but I brought the whole carcass. Had to make a catamaran of two canoes, and paddle him across two lakes and a lumber team carted him 30 miles to Plaster Rock, from whence he was shipped to New York, where he created a sensation on Broadway. After being skinned and dressed, the meat weighed 775 pounds.

Mr. Hulett says he will serve a moose dinner to the fellows who attend the Automobile show in New York in January. This is the second moose he has killed in New Brunswick.

Criticism and Citizenship

It is the plain, public duty of every citizen to criticize proposed government measures believed to be harmful.

Swift & Company is in a better position perhaps, than others, to understand the meat packing business in all its relations to public and private interests, even though the others may have been giving the subject a great deal of sincere attention.

Swift & Company is convinced that interference with its legitimate business function by governmental agencies, however well intentioned, would be an injury to every man, woman and child who wants meat to eat, as well as to the men who raise the meat and to those who dress and distribute it.

Maximum service that cannot monopolize because of keen competition and lack of control over sources of supply is furnished at a minimum of profit—a fraction of a cent per pound from all sources.

Therefore Swift & Company is taking every legitimate step of citizenship to prevent such interference.

These advertisements are intended to help you, and to help Congress decide what is best to be done. Mistakes are costly and apt to be harmful in these trying times.

Let us send you a Swift "Dollar."

DORT

Quality Goes Clear Through

The Easy-Riding Balance

It is acknowledged that cantilever springs are the easy-riding form of suspension for cars of comparatively short wheelbase.

Yet there is an individuality in Dort's manner of traversing rough roads. It has a difference in its easy swing and freedom from "kick-up" in the tonneau.

There are two contributing factors to this difference. One is in the proper size, weight and hanging of the springs themselves. The other is in the proper distribution of body weight.

The Dort "hangs right." Its balance is at the correct place to obviate disagreeable throw from either the front or rear springs.

The very best test of Dort riding qualities is at your disposal. Ask us to drive you fast over rough roads. Convince yourself by a demonstration, gladly given.

WILL ASK FOR NEW TRIAL.

The record in the case of Robert Garner, former road commissioner of Oakland county, who was found guilty of a serious offense against a 15-year-old girl and is now serving time in Jackson prison, has been completed by Stenographer Walter M. Reasor and was delivered Friday to Garner's attorneys, Frank L. Doty and announced it was Garner's intention to ask a new trial and if this is denied an appeal will be taken immediately to the supreme court, where bail will be asked for the Pontiac man, until a hearing can be had.

SPEEDERS LET GO.

A lot of people in Redford and vicinity are wondering why it is that the Marshal and Deputy Sheriff of Redford do not do something in the line to stop speeders on our thoroughfares, and that can be easily explained. A short time ago our deputy sheriff caught quite a number of speeders and before they could be brought to trial it seems that there were notices sent out from Detroit to let all speeders go without even as much as bringing them to trial, besides giving them back their money which was deposited or their appearance to appear for trial. Hence our deputy sheriff has resigned after doing good work heretofore.—Redford Record.

ONE DEATH RESULTED.

Otis Peterson, Charles Wise and James Eischeid, three of the four Pontiac young men who drank oil of wintergreen under the misapprehension that it was an intoxicant and who narrowly escaped death as a consequence, are reported to be out of danger. No arrangements have been made for the funeral of Calvin McKinnon, their 19-year-old companion, who died as the result of drinking the drug. His father, who lives at Black River, Mich., notified Undertaker O. C. Farmer Friday by telephone that he was leaving for Pontiac to claim the body. Peterson and Wise are making progress toward recovery at the city hospital. The condition of Eischeid was not as serious as the others and he was not taken to the hospital.—Pontiac Press.

REFUSED TO TAKE GERMAN ORDERS.

C. H. Bennett is at the head of a company that makes "air rifles" in Plymouth Mich. For many years the concern's product has been the pride of sturdy American youth. In fact, the spirit of Americanism is rife among the company's employees, from the office boy to the president.

Prior to the late disagreement with Germany the company numbered among its foreign distributors several in the land of the former kaiser. It seemed that the American toy made a hit with the Teuton youngsters. The company's business with them was extensive. But do you suppose that little Otto or Hans may now march proudly in the midst of his playmates with one of these American-made air guns pointed proudly over his right shoulder? It is the language of Mr. Bennett, "Not on your life."

Only a few days ago the air rifle concern received a sizable order from one of its former German secretaries. After he had a letter and tell them to go to blazes," he said. "Tell them also that no more of this company's rifles will be shipped into Germany and that we are thru doing business in that country."—Detroit Times.

FARMERS SCRATCH HEADS OVER INCOME TAX REPORT.

Many Michigan farmers are already pondering over the details of the income tax reports which they must fill out during the next few months, and many of them are finding that the job is going to be a difficult one. The man who does his bookkeeping in his head is finding that the tax report sheets call for much more facts than he has at his command.

"These reports are simple," says C. H. Graves, farm management specialist at the Michigan Agricultural college. "If the farmer has kept an account during the year and taken an annual inventory. If he has no record of his year's business, however, making the report is a difficult process."

"Rulings of the Commissioners of Internal Revenue permit farmers to report on the inventory basis, provided they keep some system of farm accounts that is accredited by the department. This is by far the easier and better method, because each year's business is reported according to actual income and not according to the cash receipts."

Simple and practical farm account books, suitable for this purpose, can be secured from the county agricultural agents in any part of the state.

WIXOM CHURCH NOTES.

The subject for the next Sunday morning sermon will be, "Knowing of Guessing, Which?" Our morning service begins at 11 o'clock. We hear it said that there is hope even at the eleventh hour, but the gospel offers no hope for people who come at eleven-thirty, so try and be on time or you may find the door shut. The man who puts off his salvation until the eleventh hour, is liable to fool around until eleven-thirty and get left. Better set your watch with God's time. The evening service will begin at 7:30. Topic, "The Harvest Is Past."

DETROIT THEATRES.

After a successful run of six months at the Republic theatre, New York and with the same cast and production A. H. Woods announces the production of Chauncy Pollock's widely heralded drama, "Roads of Destiny" at the Garrick for one week starting Sunday night, November 16th, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees, with Florence Reed in the stellar role, "Roads of Destiny," described as "a theme with variations," was suggested by O. Henry's famous short story of the same name. It is not, however, in any sense, a dramatization of the O. Henry story. Mr. Pollock has simply made use of the immortal theme, and written an entirely original and what is said to be a most unusual and effective play.

The Shubert-Detroit theatre announces that "Betty, Be Good," a new musical comedy radiating "pep" and sizzling with ginger will be offered on next Monday, November 17—for a week.

Seldom have musical plays a plot, but "Betty, Be Good" boasts a real one. In fact it is so exuberantly humorous, that the bed-room farces of the past few years, that have been so popular, seem almost dull by comparison. Harry B. Smith, who is responsible for the book and lyrics, and whose ability as a playwright is well known, has written, it is conceded, by far the cleverest piece of work he has done in some time.

SPLENDID COMPLIMENTARY CONCERT.

The third concert in the series of complimentary recital given in Hill Auditorium Sunday afternoons under the auspices of the University School of Music, will take place Sunday, November 16th, at 2:30 o'clock, when a very attractive program will be offered. These programs are given without admission charge and the general public is cordially invited. They are requested to come in ample time to be seated at the hour of beginning as the doors are closed during the performance of numbers. Parents are also requested to refrain from bringing small children. The concert on this occasion will consist largely of audience singing under the leadership of Russell Carter, head of the Public School Music department of the University School of Music, and director of music in the Ann Arbor public schools. Several numbers will also be played by the University of Michigan Band, led by Wilfred Wilson. James Hamilton, of the Voice faculty will also appear in a group of songs. Piano accompaniments will be played for Mr. Carter by Miss Lois Boes, and for Mr. Hamilton, by Blanche Raymond.

Don't Mistake The Cause

Many Northville People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It. Do you have backache? Are you tired and worn-out? Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed? Are the kidney secretions irregular? Are the kidneys contain sediment? Highly colored, contain sediment? Likely your kidneys are at fault. Weak kidneys give warning of distress.

Heed the warning, don't delay—Use a tested kidney remedy. Read this Ann Arbor testimony. P. J. Desmond, 301 W. Summit St., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "Whenever my kidneys get weak, causing my back to ache or be sore, or the kidney secretions pass too freely, or when I am tired or languid I use a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am soon all right again. Doan's have never failed to help me and I keep them in the house all the time and wouldn't be without them. I advise anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills if troubled with their kidneys."

themselves of the special offer made by The Record to send the paper as a trial for two months to new subscribers for 25 cents. If you have those who fail to enjoy its weekly vis-

When such newspapers as the Chicago Tribune advocates the conservation of news print to the extent of advising the advertisers to use smaller space, it behooves the small country publishers to scan their lists very carefully for the fellows who accept the paper for two or three years without paying for it and then refuse it when asked to pay up.

new provisions are liable to make the

A WARNING TO AUTO DRIVERS

TRAFFIC LAWS MUST BE OBEYED.
VILLAGE COUNCIL TO ENFORCE REGULATIONS.

At the meeting of the Village Council Monday evening a resolution was adopted giving warning to all auto drivers that the laws and regulations regarding speeding must be obeyed.
For the information of those who may not understand we quote from the Michigan laws relating to motor vehicles, Sec. 21:

Sec. 21. Rate of speed. No person shall operate a motor vehicle upon a public highway at a rate of speed greater than is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic and use of the highway, or so as to endanger the life or limb of any person or the safety of any property, and shall not in any event while upon any highway run at a higher rate of speed than twenty-five miles an hour, and within the corporate limits of all cities and villages the rate of speed shall not be greater than ten miles an hour in the business portion of any such city or village, and not greater than fifteen miles an hour in all other portions thereof, subject, however, to the other provisions of this act. Upon approaching an intersecting highway, a bridge, dam, sharp curve or steep descent, and also in traversing such intersecting highways, bridges, dam, curve or descent, a person operating a motor vehicle shall have it under control, and operate it at such speed as is reasonable and proper, having regard to the traffic then on such highway and the safety of the public.

Business Portion of City: The term
"business portion of cities and villages" applies not only to the central business area of a city but to all business districts in a city.—People v.
Dow, 155-155.

It is also urged by members of the Council that all drivers of motor vehicles, as they approach the public school grounds in this village, must slow down and have their cars under control.

All drivers who wilfully continue to violate these regulations will be prosecuted and their licenses will be revoked.

THE SHOEMAN

Suffered with Lame Back and Swollen Limbs

Wild Rose, Wis.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and I was so well pleased with it that I like to do all in my power to help other sufferers. I suffered with lame back and swollen limbs. I was so weak and dizzy that I couldn't take care of my baby and family. I suffered and worked till I finally took to my bed, and after spending $90.00 with our home doctor my husband saw Dr. Pierce's remedies advertised. He at once got me a bottle of both 'Favorite Prescription' and 'Golden Medical Discovery.' As my case was of long standing and I was in such bad condition, I used nine bottles of each, and, thank God, I am healthy and happy. I hope that all sufferers will do as I did—give the medicine a trial and be convinced. Anybody wanting to know more about my case, please write to me and send a stamped envelope and I will gladly answer." MRS. AUGUSTA WEGNER, Route 3, Box 24.

A Woman's Trouble

Hillsdale, Mich.—"I am pleased to give a testimonial in regard to the value of Dr. Pierce's medicines. I was sick for about three years, the trouble was brought on through motherhood. I tried several different kinds of medicine but got no relief. Finally I got Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it cured me in six months so I have never had any return of the trouble. I also gave it to my daughter and it worked fine in her case. I have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and Pleasant Pellets, too, and found them splendid as well. I can highly recommend all of Dr. Pierce's medicines; they have always done for me what they were recommended to do." MRS. EMMA GREEN, 33 McClellan Street.

INDIGESTION Caused by Acid-Stomach

Millions of people—in fact about 8 out of 10—suffer more or less from indigestion, acute or chronic. Nearly every case is caused by Acid-Stomach. There are other stomach disorders which also are sure signs of Acid-Stomach—belching, heartburn, bloating after eating, food regurgitating, sour, gassy stomach, and many ailments which, while they do not cause much distress in the stomach itself, are nevertheless trouble to the acid stomach. Among these are nervousness, biliousness, cramps of the liver, rheumatism, impoverished blood, weakness, insomnia, melancholia, and a long train of physical and mental troubles that keep the victims in miserable health year after year. The right thing to do is to attack these ailments at their source—get rid of the acid stomach. A wonderful modern remedy called EATONIC has been found to do this. One of hundreds of thousands of grateful users of EATONIC writes, "I have been troubled with indigestion for about nine years and have spent quite a sum for medicine, but without relief. After using EATONIC for a few days the most distressing pain in my bowels disappeared. EATONIC is just the remedy I needed." We have thousands of letters telling of these marvelous benefits. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Your druggist has EATONIC. Get a big 50c box from him today. He will refund your money if you are not satisfied.

SIMPLE TRAP NEST FOR HENS SHOULD BE USED BY EVERY POULTRYMAN FOR RECORD

The Trap Nest is the Modern Poultry Bookkeeper Which Aids in Egg Recording.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Poultry men have turned topsyturvy the old adage about the bird in the gilded cage, as they use the gilded cage, in the guise of a modern trap nest, as a modern bookkeeper to facilitate keeping records of egg production. These records identify the shirkers from the workers in the flock, as well as protect against the loss of valuable eggs produced in catch-as-catch-can nests.

A trap nest is a laying nest so arranged that after a hen enters it she is confined until released by the attendant. The use of trap nests is essential in breeding poultry for both egg production and exhibition where pedigree records are used in selecting either females or males, and has a place in mass selection for increasing egg production. Trap nests are of value in weeding out poor layers and increasing the average egg yield of the flock, but are not generally used on account of the large amount of labor required to operate them. They merit a place on breeding farms where they can be used in selecting the chaff from the wheat in the line of egg production and superior individuals. Some poultry breeders trap nest their pullets during their first six months of laying and use this as basis in selecting their breeders for egg production.

One Nest for Four Hens.

One trap nest should be provided for each four hens kept in flocks of 50 or more, while more trap nests are necessary in smaller flocks. The hens are marked with numbered bands and a record is kept of their egg production. The nests should be visited at least four times daily and preferably much more often, frequent trips being especially necessary when the hens are laying freely and during hot weather. This trap nest may be attached to the underside of the dropping board with the front facing the pen and arranged so that it can easily be removed, or it may be placed on the walls of the pen. If the nest is placed under the dropping board, the latter will serve as a top for the nest and the rear of the nest may be of wire to allow good ventilation in warm weather. If the nest is placed on the wall, slats or wire should be inserted from the front of the nest to the wall at a sharp angle to prevent the hens from roosting on the nest.

Close as You Enter Doors.

When the hen enters this nest she raises the door with her back which releases the catch or trigger and allows the door to shut. The catch should be set so that its edge just holds the door, which position is regulated by a screw or nail at the lower inside edge of the catch. Washers should be placed on the screw on both sides of the catch or trigger to prevent it from sticking. The guard around the catch keeps the nesting material away from the catch. The length of the catch which supports the door and the triangular notch in the door may be varied slightly for very small or very large hens, if this is found necessary.

In constructing three-compartment trap nests cut four seven-eighths-inch boards for ends and partitions, 12 inches wide by 18½ inches long, as well as three one-half-inch boards 39½ inches long, laid lengthwise, to cover the top, back, and bottom, and two strips 39½ inches long and 1½ inches wide for the front of the nest and for the front extended rail. Cut three pieces of one-half-inch boards 12 inches long and 3 inches high to insert in the nest to hold the nesting material away from the door. The total quantity of material needed will be one seven-eighths-inch board 12 inches wide by 8½ feet long for the ends, partitions, and front of the nest, and two one-half-inch boards 10 inches wide and 10 feet long for the top, back, bottom, and front rail of the nest. If wire is used on top of the nest, an equal number of square feet of one-half-inch lumber can be subtracted from the amount stated. Nail the top, back, and bottom to the ends and partitions, insert the three-inch strips in the nests, and make the guard, nailing it to the left side of the nest. Bore a hole in the catch large enough so that it will move freely when screwed into position on the side, and use a washer on both sides of the catch.

Completing the Nest.

This catch should be made of hard wood so that it will not wear readily around the screw which holds it in place. The catch is made of material one-half inch thick and is 1½ inches wide at the upper end and 1 inch wide at the lower end. Place a screw at the lower edge of the catch to stop it when set so that the catch will just hold the door.

Make the doors of seven-eighths-inch material, 12 inches by 6 inches, and cut a triangular notch in the center 4 inches wide. Put two screw eyes in the top of the door and bore holes in the front of the nests 2 inches below the top (inside measurement), through which a three-sixteenths-inch wire is run to support the doors. Attach a narrow strip to the front of the nests for the hens to jump upon when entering the nests. Place a button or block of wood on the front of each partition to hold the door when the nest is closed. If the nests are to be placed directly below the dropping board, a wire top should be used on the nest except for a 5-inch strip of wood on the front edge of the top to stiffen the nest.

Difficulty of Analysts Giving Accurate Information as to Quality Is Overcome—Good Results With Oats and Barley.

Frequently only a small percentage of freshly harvested winter wheat germinates readily under the conditions ordinarily used in making the germination tests even though it would germinate well under these same conditions a few weeks later. In sections of the country where farmers depend upon wheat from the current crop for the fall sowing the poor germination secured with the fresh grain has made it difficult for seed analysts to give accurate information as to the quality of winter wheat offered for seed in time for this information to be of service.

In a recent investigation by the seed laboratory it has been found that this difficulty can be almost entirely overcome, even with wheat taken from standing plants and never allowed to dry out, by the use of a lower temperature than has been customary for making the germination tests. Thus, of 13 samples of freshly harvested wheat an average of 99 per cent began to germinate in five days at temperatures from 9 to 16 degrees C. (48 to 61 degrees F.), whereas in the same time an average of only 86 per cent germinated at 22 degrees C. (72 degrees F.) which is about the temperature at which germination tests of wheat are frequently made. In the case of one lot 98 per cent were germinating by the end of five days at 12 degrees C. (54 degrees F.) and only 16 per cent at 22 degrees C. (72 degrees F.). About 15 degrees C. (59 degrees F.) is recommended for use in making germination tests of all freshly harvested wheat. Of course at this temperature the rate of growth is slow after germination has begun.

This method of treatment was equally successful with fresh samples of spring wheat and gave good results also with oats and barley.

BARREL BEST FOR POTATOES

Makes Most Satisfactory Package and Should Conform to United States Standard.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The double-headed barrel is the most satisfactory package for new potatoes. The heads should be secured by "headliners." The barrel used should conform to the specifications of the United States standard barrel. Barrels which are loaded on end carry better than those loaded on their sides.

POULTRY NOTES

Send the old hens to market.

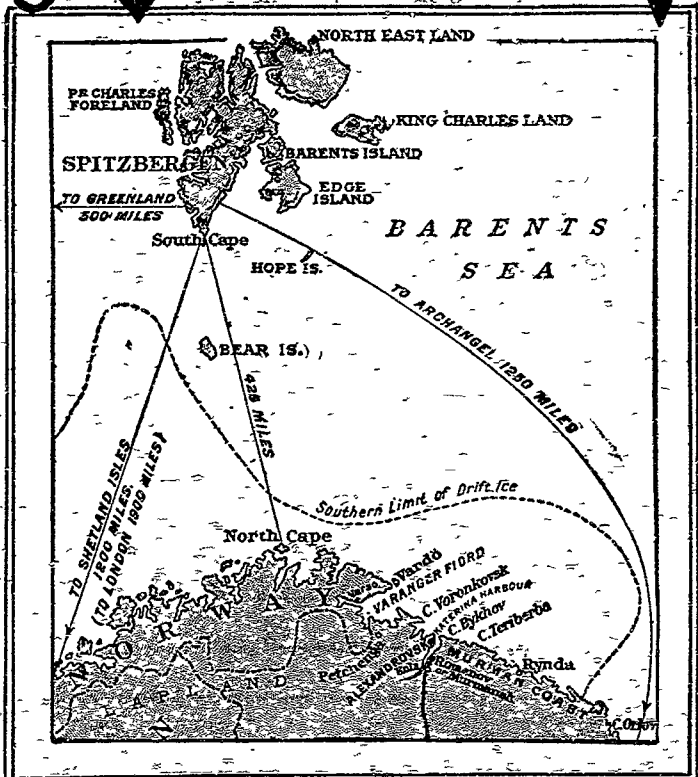

Keep the nests clean; provide one nest for every four hens.

It is usually assumed that hens prefer darkened nests in which to lay.

Dusting is the hen's method of taking a bath and fighting insects pests.

In common parlance an old hen is one which is more than two years old.

SPITZBERGEN

In 1596 two Dutchmen, Barents and Heemskirk, discovered Spitzbergen, and were immediately followed by British explorers. A British seaman—Pole—was the first to find coal in Spitzbergen, in 1604. Two notable British explorers were Fotherby and Baffin, who sailed to Spitzbergen on behalf of the well-known company of London merchants known as the Muscovy company. Carrying with them a royal warrant, they authoritatively and definitely annexed Spitzbergen in 1614 to the British crown in the name of King James for his heirs and successors. So it is certainly British yet by right of succession, whatever the successive heads of the British government have been or will be, since the reign of James VI of Scotland and I of Great Britain, writes Dr. William S. Bruce in Sphère.

In 1914 Britain consented to sit at a conference table, convened by other powers, at Christiansia, to discuss in what way the government of Spitzbergen should be organized, because of its increasing commercial development by enterprising miners and hunters of various nationalities—British and foreign. There had been an earlier conference at which Russia, Norway, and Sweden only had sat, and at which, I understand, Britain had refused to consent to sit, or at all events definitely did not sit and did not recognize it as internationally authoritative. But in 1914—the tercentenary of Fotherby and Baffin's British annexation—the British government, which had the ancient right and title to Spitzbergen as heirs and successors of King James, took up the very generous attitude of insisting, if a British government delegate was to sit, that every power represented there must first acknowledge that Spitzbergen was Terra Nullius, or No Man's Land, thus not forcing British rights forward, but also refusing to admit the right of any other power present to have any right or title whatever. This conference was sitting in Christiansia in July, 1914. Besides Britain, the United States, Germany, Russia, France, Holland, Norway, Sweden, and Denmark sent delegates, but when the war broke out the different delegates returned to their respective countries, and the conference was dissolved without result, and Spitzbergen is, and remains, a Terra Nullius. This is quite definite in spite of other unauthentic statements that have recently appeared in the press.

Who Shall Rule the Island?

What will next happen it is impossible to say, even by one who, like myself, has been very intimately associated with Spitzbergen for almost a quarter of a century. But certain things must happen regarding some of the powers which were represented at the conference in 1914. (1) Germany must not be allowed in future to take any part whatever in the organization of Spitzbergen in spite of her forced bargain with Russia at the Brest-Litovsk treaty. (2) Russia is surely not able to take a fully responsible position now with her disorganized government. (3) The United States has not the same interests, because her citizens have since sold their estates to Norwegians; Holland has only early historical interests, France and Denmark have no special economic interests; and Britain, Norway and Sweden remain the three specially interested parties.

Which of these three countries is able to look justly after the rights of its own subjects, as well as those of the other two nationalities who have interests? Personally, for many strong reasons, I most emphatically emphasize that the British government should be asked by the world powers at the peace conference to exercise its rights not only as heir to the British rights and titles as defined and declared by Fotherby and Baffin in 1614, but also for the protection of subjects of other nations who have some, but not exclusive, rights there. Spitzbergen will soon be recognized

Sun Source of All Power.

Power cannot come from nothing. Even a watch or clock must, sooner or later, have new power put into it. The power is put into the spring when the watch is wound up. We wind it with muscle force obtained from food. Food in turn is produced by power of the sun. So the sun, which really drives the watch, is the source of all power.

Besides minerals there are fur-bearing animals which would provide sport and fur if properly protected by the British government, and not allowed to be massacred and even extensively poisoned by northern hunters. Let these animals be bred and only legally killed with discretion, and there will be a large permanent revenue from them. Valuable foxes and reindeer still exist in considerable numbers in spite of the indiscriminate slaughter that has taken place. There are seals, whales, and porpoises. The walrus can be re-established as well as the polar bear. Fisheries, too, might also be organized, and all these animals could produce a large revenue if properly handled and properly protected by an organized and unselfish government.

Then there are the beauties and wonders of this arctic land of promise, besides these wonderful mineral and animal resources mentioned. Think of the birds, many in their millions, and many of economic value, notably the elder duck, and some very edible birds and eggs—geese, ducks, and others. One may scan acres, even miles, of purple saxifrage, like purple heather. One may wade through luxuriant beds of sulphur buttercups, and find brilliant patches of arctic poppies and other plants, thriving even at great and exposed altitudes. Many brilliantly-colored lichens etch out almost every rock, swampy bits luxuriate with the richest mosses, liverworts, and interesting algae, and pools teem with crustacean and other animal and vegetable life; even the remnants of snow are colored with red, yellow, green, and other colored algae known over centuries.

Spitzbergen, besides mineral, animal and plant resources, has a large series of beautiful harbors and anchorages, so what with these and the Gulf stream there is every possible facility to get there comfortably and safely. Let our shell-shock patients and other wounded heroes thoroughly recover in Spitzbergen in proper sanatoria in the healthiest climate in the world, where you can't get a cold or a fever because there are no germs—a sterile, wonderful, and translucent atmosphere suffuses this land where the sun never sets all the summer and consequently the plants never cease to grow, and where everything is more wonderful and beautiful than in any inhabited part of the world from pole to pole.

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 2c per cord. This machine, which outdoes others, has a heavy, cross cut saw driven by a powerful, especially designed 4-cycle gasoline engine. It's a fast money-maker for those using it, and does more than ten men could do, either cutting down trees, sawing logs, or buzzing branches while you rest. When not sawing, the engine can be used for other work requiring power.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine. For moving on the road, the truck wheels are placed parallel with the skids and the rig hauled straight ahead. The wheels turn on a two-way spindle. You do not have to take them off, but can change direction of wheel travel by merely taking out a pin.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. It cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting all the timber and leaving no stumps sticking up. An automatic friction clutch stops the saw in case of undue resistance. Two men can fall forty to fifty trees a day in ordinary timber. The whole outfit is compact, simple, durable—against a lifetime of hard wear. It sells for a low price and is fully guaranteed for reliable operation in the hands of every one who has trees to cut down and logs to work up.

Full information and low factory price to you can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company, 2724 Wood St., Ottawa, Kansas.

DICKIE KNEW.

A Boston clergyman has two sons, fifteen and six years old, the elder of whom was to be confirmed.

The bishop and several distinguished persons were invited to dinner. The mother of the boys, desiring to show off the younger, asked earnestly: "Dickie, do you know what is going to happen in church today?"

"Yes, I know," he answered. "What?" she asked, with a glance around the table to call attention to the reply.

"The bish is going to put his mitts on brother's bean," Dickie remarked, carelessly.—Boston Traveler.

KIDNEYS WEAKENING? BETTER LOOK OUT!

Kidney and bladder troubles don't disappear of themselves. They grow upon you, slowly but steadily, undermining your health with deadly certainty, until you fall a victim to incurable disease.

Stop your troubles while there is time. Don't wait until little pains become big aches. Don't trifle with disease. To avoid future suffering begin treatment with GOLD MEDAL Haarlem Oil Capsules now. Take three or four every day until you feel that you are entirely free from pain.

This well-known preparation has been one of the national remedies of Holland for centuries. In 1896 the govern-

UTRECHT'S PEACE IN HISTORY

Dutch Town, in Which Kaiser May Dwell, Saw Beginning of His Line's Rise to Power.

Reports say that the ex-kaiser has purchased a house near the historic town of Utrecht, Holland, and that he wishes to end his days there. It was in Utrecht, 206 years ago, that the house of Hohenzollern was first established in a royal rank.

It was in the peace concluded in 1713 that the ex-emperor's ancestor, Frederick of Brandenburg, received acknowledgment from the leading European powers of his title of king of Prussia. This peace put an end to the long war of the Spanish Succession, which many claim was begun over the fear that the ruling houses of France and Spain would become one, and upset the European balance of power. The ex-kaiser is part English, and it was England, with her continental allies of lesser strength, that virtually established the kingdom of Prussia.

The same peace also made the duke of Savoy the king of Italy, but today the king of Italy rules over all of Italy except Savoy, which belongs to France. England has retained practically everything it secured at that peace conference, including Gibraltar and Minorca, secured from Spain, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and the Hudson bay territory from France, as well as valuable trading privileges in Africa and South America, from both France and Spain.

Rather Mixed.

"Jones has a nice job on his hands." "What is it?" "To put his son on his feet."

His Fear.

A gentleman of hitherto seemingly substantial intellect attended a burlesque show, and in the midst of the performance began first to mutter, then chatter, and presently to scream aloud in agonized tones. After he had been removed and a physician had ministered to him the sufferer explained: "I feared I was losing my mind or my eyesight, or both. I sat through fully half of the show, and did not see a trio composed of an impossible Jew adorned with a mangy beard and a spoon-shaped derby, an ostensible Irishman clad in pink neck whiskers and a young gent arrayed in the uniform of a naval officer."—Kansas City Star.

The Probable Period.

"How much longer," growled a guest, "are those old codgers over there in the corner going to continue to yrangle?"

"About an hour, probably," replied the landlord of the Pefunia tavern. "They are discussing the League of Nations, and they've only got just as far as arguing yet. They have to cuss and yell and call names before they get it settled for today and start off madder than wet hens."—Kansas City Star.

NEW YORK BARS BILLBOARDS

Edict Banishes Blemishes on Landscape—To Be Allowed Only Beside Business Buildings.

Unsightly signs and billboards must not deface Father Knickerbocker's fair real estate landscape.

This is the latest edict of the zoning committee. Secretary Swan announced that the law would be enforced forthwith, whoever might be the offenders.

The city's determination to enforce this provision of the zoning resolution has been demonstrated in several instances by the revocation of permits mistakenly issued for the erection of billboards in residence districts and by the institution of suits to bring about the removal of billboards where the owners have not complied with removal orders, said he. "To bring about effective enforcement property owners who have suffered from an invasion should immediately place the matter before the superintendent of buildings on their borough."

Instead of merely regulating the height, size and construction of signs, it frankly recognizes the fact that there is no such thing as a billboard respectable enough to rub elbows with churches, schools and private homes. When hereafter erected the billboard must go where it will cause a minimum harm—alongside business buildings and industrial establishments. Those existing before the law was passed, are allowed to continue. Commercial advertising can in no sense be deemed accessory to any of the uses specifically permitted in residential districts.

WOULD SET OUT NUT TREES

Idea of New York Man for Practical and Beautiful Adornment of the Highways.

A correspondent writing to the editor of a New York paper suggests a thought that has probably occurred to very few persons interested in the adornment of American highways with trees, but that may be the forerunner of a new idea in such decoration, remarks the Christian Science Monitor. His suggestion, in brief, looks to the planting of productive as well as simply ornamental trees, preferably nut trees, because the "common fruit trees, having been cultivated for generations, are more or less spoiled children, requiring continued cultivation if they are to be happy." Such planting, he says, would combine the Greek idea of utility and beauty; yet his own experience, with fruit trees on the border of a private estate suggests a difficulty, for the trees "were ruined by the heedless way in which a miscellaneous public gathered the fruit. Nuts would, perhaps, present less temptation, and there is, of course, hope that the public, once it individually realized that beautifying the common highway was one important function of the trees, would be more careful in its treatment of them. Meantime, the setting out of any trees at all is an important step in the right direction."

Advantage in Owning Home.

Aside from the manifest advantage of owning a house when houses are at a premium, the family which owns its own home strikes roots deeper into the soil than do those who move from one part of the city to another as convenience dictates. Their children go to the same school and the same Sunday school year after year. Teachers and friends have time to grow interested in them and to make plans for their improvement or pleasure. The heads of the family take their duties as citizens seriously, because bad government reacts on them directly in the form of increased taxes which they see and feel. Of course, the rentpayer pays taxes indirectly, but so many other elements complicate the rate of rentals that he hardly thinks of taxation as one of them. The home owner, too, takes a greater interest in local improvements, because he expects to stay in the neighborhood long enough to get the benefit of them. Home owning involves responsibilities, but the man who faces responsibilities is usually a stronger man, a better husband and a better citizen than the man who dodges them.

Beautifying the Back Yard.

Those who have sufficient ground in the rear of their city or country houses in which to plant trees, or who are planning to plant trees in ground on which they plan to build, will do well to consider the usefulness of trees that are to occupy the space before deciding just what they will plant.

Not only are apple trees, cherry and peach trees ornamental in their shape and their foliage, but they vary the year around. They are not only as decorative as the purely flowering shrubs, but they are much more lovely than the average shrub or tree in blossom time.

Why He Was Interested.

"My uncle is very fond of the works of Artemas Ward." "Takes that form of humor, eh?" "He doesn't know it's humor. Takes a serious interest. Thinks it a fine example of simplified spelling."

Old Cannon Ball Found in River. A cannon ball of the type made for big guns of the days before explosive shells was used in warfare was brought up from the bottom of the Mississippi river, below the high dam at St. Paul recently and is to be turned over to the Minnesota Historical Society.

When a United States engineering department dredge hauled up a dipper of rock the cannon ball was found in it. How it got into the river could not be learned; for guns of that type were never put to actual test at the fort and the ammunition always was carefully guarded.

Guns that used that type of ball are now used for decorative purposes only, some of them having been given to the Minnesota Soldiers' home and others placed on the grounds of the state capitol.

ripe olives in a futile effort to find botulism poisoning, which is said to have caused the death of five prominent Detroiters two weeks ago.

While Commissioner Woodworth does not doubt the report of the physicians who claimed that botulism poison in ripe olives caused the deaths of the Sales family, it is his contention that the deadly germ got into one particular can. Other cans of ripe olives prepared by the same firm and containing the same serial number have been thoroughly tested by the state chemists and the state bacteriologist with negative results.

DETROIT SYMPHONY ORCHESTRA AT ANN ARBOR, NOV. 17.

The second concert in the Choral Union Concert series will take place in the Hill Auditorium Monday evening, November 17, at 8 o'clock when the Detroit Symphony Orchestra under the leadership of Ossip Gabrilowitsch will make its Ann Arbor debut. This splendid organization, which consists of nearly one hundred men, which have been assembled from all over the world ranks among the greatest and foremost orchestras of the country. An extremely interesting program has been provided. Mrs. Geo.
B. Rhead of the Piano Faculty of the School of Music will appear as soloist, offering Grieg's A Minor Concerto.

DID NOT BELIEVE IN BANKS.

Frank Kenewich, a Ford employee, living at Highland Park, sold his home a couple of weeks ago, and received for it $3,600 in $50 bills. Being somewhat suspicious of banks he placed the money in a chimney flue, against his wife's advice. Frank knew a whole lot more about it than his wife for he said he wouldn't place it in the chimney, but at the bottom of the flue and the went up, not down the chimney. Monday he pulled the package out only to find that soot had dropped down on it and the money had been burned to crisp. He tried to redeem it at the Federal building, but it was burnt beyond all possibility of redemption so Frank is just out of $3,600.

Successful Treatment of

THOUSANDS OF CASES

Offers Services Free of Charge

The United Doctors is an organization of reputable, licensed physicians. They are all specialists in the treatment of certain diseases. They treat without surgical operations diseases of all internal organs, stomach, intestines, constipation, piles, liver, spleen, heart, nerves, skin, rheumatism, sciatic, gout, tape-worm, leg ulcers and all long standing, deep seated diseases.

Many years experience. The complete record of thousands of cases successfully treated prove that their methods are right. They were among the first to earn the name

"BLOODLESS SURGEONS"

Each staff member has at his command the knowledge and resources of the organization. Many people suffer from diseases that can be alleviated

just because they cannot afford to go to high-priced specialists and hospitals at a long distance from their home. No community has a sufficient number suffering from diseases to support special hospitals for their treatment and cure. Their highly trained specialists go to each community and will advise a proper course of treatment for the sufferers and instruct them how to take care of themselves at home. No matter what you have been told or the experience you had with the other physicians, consult him on this visit. It costs nothing. If your case is incurable he will give you advice as may stay and relieve the disease. Married ladies must come with their husbands and minors with their parents or guardians.

Very few people in this age believe in spooks and ghosts.
Just as goblins of the past have become only something to spook about, poor lighting has passed out of date.
