TO CELEBRATE THE NINETIETH ANNIVERSARY

The Record is pleased to be able to publish elsewhere, in to-day's paper the full program for the ninetieth anniversary celebration of the First Presbyterian church of this place which will take place next Sunday and the following Monday evening. It is expected that former pastors of the church and many former members will be present to enjoy the unusual event. There will be three services Sunday—forenoon, afternoon and evening and on Monday evening will occur the Fellowship dinner, at which time an interesting program will also be given.

SAFETY FIRST.

According to Electric Railway Service published by the D. U. R., there were over ten thousand accidents in which the company's cars and interurban lines figured during the period from January 1st to October 29th.

In these collisions, which averaged $5 every day, there was momentary loss of opportunity a quarter of a million dollars.

It is estimated that the property damage in these 10,000 accidents averaged $25 in each instance.

These figures, however, do not even approximate the total loss for they cannot show the deaths and personal injuries resulting in loss of earnings, pain, suffering and sorrow, all of which enter into the question but which of course are impossible to estimate in terms of dollars and cents.

The great majority of these accidents could have been prevented by the exercise of care and the observance of the simple rules of safety first.

HIS DEATH DEEPLY MOURNED.

P. J. Taylor, whose death occurred last Thursday at his home at Walled Lake, was born September 7, 1851, in Commerce township. He was married November 1, 1875, to Sara C. Tremper, who survives him. At the time of his death he owned the farm one mile north of Novi corners, and where they spent many years. Two years ago he built the little brick cottage on the bank of the lake, where he died. Besides the widow he is survived by one sister and one brother, several nieces and nephews. His honesty and integrity won for him a host of friends who sincerely mourn his untimely death.

Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon and were largely attended by old friends and neighbors, by whom he was held in high esteem. Burial took place in the Walled Lake cemetery.

OLD RESIDENT DIES.

After a long illness, during which time she became totally blind, Mrs. Susie Robinson Gorton passed away at her home on Rogers street in this village early Sunday morning, aged 85 years. On January 1st, 1856, the deceased was united in marriage to Lancaster Gorton and they resided for many years at Salem, where Mr. Gorton died in November, 1890. Soon after his death Mrs. Gorton moved to Northville. During her long illness she was a patient sufferer and amidst her affliction she was always thinking of the welfare of those about her. Before her sight failed she was constantly administering to others and rendering kindly deeds to all with whom she came in contact.

She is survived by three children—Mrs. W. H. Shannon of Lansing, Tracy Gorton of Detroit and Barton W. Gorton, besides one sister, Mrs. Martha Barber of Ypsilanti.

PARENTS-TEACHERS ORGANIZE.

There were about fifty people present at the High school building on Tuesday evening in response to the call for purpose of organizing a parents-teachers' association and the gathering was an enjoyable one. Superintendent Bowen presided and addresses were made by Revs. Marsh and Belles. Miss Ruth Green rendered some vocal numbers during the evening.

It was decided to form an association and the following officers were chosen:

President—H. J. B. Marsh
Vice-Prest.—Mrs. Floyd Northrop
Sec.-Treas.—Miss McLaughlin.

The members of the executive committee will be announced later. The teachers of the school served cider and doughnuts for refreshments.

COUNTY FARM BUREAU TO HOLD MEETING

The farmers' interests are upheld and aided by the Farm Bureau of each county. It is necessary, however, in order for it to be a success to have a personal interest taken in it by each farmer. To more fully put this before the farmers of Wayne county, the Wayne County Farm Bureau will hold its annual meeting at the Board of Commerce Bldg., (near Post office) in Detroit, Saturday, December 6th.

The meeting will start with luncheon at 12:30 p. m. which will be followed by talks by C. A. Bingham, secretary of the State Farm Bureau, who will explain the purpose of that organization, Dr. Ebea Mumford, State Leader of County Agents; Miss Edna V. Smith, State Leader of Home Demonstration Agents and Mr. R. A. Turner, State Leader of Boys' and then be given, followed by the election officers of the Farm Bureau and County Agents of Wayne county will then be given, followed by the election of officers and directors for the coming year.

Everyone is earnestly invited to attend whether they are members of the Farm Bureau or not and as the women should be as much interested in the work as men, it is just as necessary that they be present. In order to arrange for the luncheon, it will be necessary that O. I. Gregg, Dearborn, Mich., be notified as to the number of plates to be reserved.

ANN ARBOR CONCERT GOES TO HEAR JASCHA HEIFETZ.

Jascha Heifetz who will be heard in Hill Auditorium, Ann Arbor, Wednesday evening, December 4, has shattered all records ever set by an instrument in America. During his first season, in New York alone he gave eighteen concerts which, from point of attendance as well as for sheer miraculous playing, have never been remotely approached by any performer in the city's history. The same has been true in whatever city he appeared; thousands have flocked to hear his matchless playing, crowding the halls to overflowing time after time. His recitals, particularly in the larger cities, are the scenes of wildest excitement and enthusiasm. Only those who have witnessed these occasions in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia can understand the meaning of a "Heifetz demonstration." His playing, so effortless, so inspired, so exquisitely perfect beyond any other, excites a hysteria which seems to transport his audiences to an entirely new world of delight. He has set new standards of violin playing and established new traditions.

ADOPTS NEW PLAN.

County Treasurer Wm. H. Green, Jr., is introducing the method of pre-billing for taxes so as to save the time and energy of Wayne county's residents hitherto expended in journeys to the county building and tedious waiting in line.

Every county taxpayer will receive a bill at his home and can send a check or money order in payment.

The method already has been tried successfully with respect to city taxes, and Mr. Green expects that a similar success will be recorded in his jurisdiction in spite of the greatly added work. When the new tax bills arrived the extra men and regular force started at once getting out the statements.

MR. HINES HONORED.

Edward N. Hines, county road commissioner, was re-elected president of the Detroit Automobile club at the annual meeting of that very strong organization this week. The D. A. C. works in the general interest of the autoists and has done a lot of good for the benefit of car owners.—Detroit Courier

DIED AT ANN ARBOR.

Edward F. Dole, formerly a resident of this place, died at Ann Arbor last Tuesday. He was 69 years of age and is survived by his wife, a son, Henry Dole of Detroit and a daughter, Mrs. R. M. Ree of Ann Arbor.

The meeting of Orient Chapter, O. E. S., last Friday night was largely attended and was an enjoyable affair. A bountiful supper was served at 6:30 and during the evening three candidates were initiated. During the ceremony of initiation Mrs. Frank Cogswell sang two solos to the delight of all. For the December meeting the brothers of the Chapter will furnish the spread.

STOP! LOOK! LISTEN!

When Orchard Heights subdivision was put upon the market skeptics predicted that the lots facing the cement pavement MIGHT sell, but the back lots would not. Listen again please. During the last ten days there has been just eight thousand nine hundred dollars' worth of lots sold and not a dollar's worth of these sales facing the pavement. For the benefit of those interested in Northville's development, I might add that sales in this beautiful residence section have passed the twenty thousand dollar mark.

"IF YOU CAN SWIM, JUMP FOR IT!"

Synopsis.—In 1832 Lieutenant Knox of the regular army is on duty at Fort Armstrong, Rock Island, Ill., in territory threatened by disaffected Indians. The commanding general sends him with dispatches to St. Louis. He takes passage on the steamer "Warrior" and makes the acquaintance of Judge Beaucare, Rich- plander, and of Joe Kirby, (the Devil's Own), notorious gambler. Knox learns Judge Beaucare has a daughter, Eloise, and a granddaughter, Rene, offspring of a son whom the judge has disowned. Rene's mother is a negress, and she and her daughter, never having been freed, are slaves under the law, although the girls have been brought up as sisters. Kirby induces the judge to stake his plantation and negro servants on a poker hand, finally dealt by Joe Carver, Kirby's partner. Kirby accuses the judge of cheating. Beaucare, infuriated, drops dead. Knox tries to induce Kirby to give up his stolen winnings. Kirby and Carver throw Knox overboard. The lieutenant swims ashore and reaches a hut. Knox lies unconscious for ten days. Recovering, he finds he is in a cabin owned by Pete, a "free nigger," who had shot him, mistaking him for an enemy. His dispatches have been forwarded. Recovering from his wound, Kirby sends Pete to bring Haynes, Beaucare's lawyer, and they arrange, with Pete's help, to get the women to the cabin of an abolitionist, Amos Shunk, before Kirby comes. At the Beaucare place Knox overhears a conversation between the sheriff and his deputy, and learns the truth about the situation. He is witness to an interview between Kirby and a girl who says she is Rene Beaucare. Kirby insults the girl, and Knox attacks him. Believing Kirby dead, Knox explains affairs to the girl, and she agrees to try to escape with him. They fall to find Pete where he had been posted, so Knox seizes the sheriff's keelboat, along with Sam, the slave left in charge, and they begin their voyage up the river. Next day a steamer passes and Sam recognizes Kirby on board. At Shunk's place they find Pete, Shunk and Carver murdered the work of Kirby. Kirby then steals their keelboat, leaving only a skiff.

"It is my guess," I said, "that their only thought was to get away before the crime was discovered. Rene would you be afraid to remain here alone for a little while?"

"She glanced about into the gloom of the surrounding woods, her hesitancy answering me.

"It is not a pleasant prospect I admit, but there is no possible danger. Kirby has gone, beyond all question, but I wish to learn if I can the direction he has taken. All this must have happened only a short time ago—while we were at the cabin. The keelboat can scarcely be entirely out of sight yet on either river if we could only find a place to offer us a wide view."

"But could I not go with you?"

"Hardly with me, for I intend to swim the creek and try to reach the point at the mouth of the Illinois; from where I can see up and down the Mississippi. I am going to send Sam back through the woods there and have him climb that ridge. From the top he ought to have a good view up the valley of the Illinois. I suppose you might go with him."

"Ah, sure wish yer wud, missus," broke in the negro pleadingly. "Ah ain't perackly feared fer ter go 'long, but Ah's an ol' man-en! Ah reckon as how a young gal was likely fer ter see morn' Ah wud. 'Pears like Ah's done los' my glasses."

"Yes, Sam, 'I'll go," she said, glancing up into my eyes and holding out her hand. "You wish me to, do you not?"

"I think it will be fully as well. You still retain the pistol?"

She nodded her response, and without delaying my departure longer I lowered myself into the water and swam toward the opposite shore, creeping forth amid a tangle of roots and immediately disappearing in the underbrush. I found a rough passage for the first few rods, being obliged to almost fear a way through the close growth and unable to see a yard in advance. But this ended suddenly at the edge of the sand flat, with the converging waters of the two rivers visible just beyond. My view from here was narrowed, however, by high ridges on both sides, and with a desire not to expose myself to any chance eye, I followed the line of forest until able to climb the slope, and thus attain the crest of the bluff.

From this vantage point the view was extensive, both up and down the big river, as well as across to the opposite bank. Along that entire surface but three objects met my gaze—a small island, green with trees, seemingly anchored just beyond the mouth of the Illinois; a lumbering barge almost opposite me, clearly outlined against the distant shore, and barely moving with the current; and far away below a thin smudge of smoke, arising from behind a headland, as though curling upward from the stack of some steamer. I felt no doubt but what this was the stolen keelboat, speeding toward St. Louis.

This struck me as the most reasonable course to pursue—to work our way quietly up the Illinois by night, keeping close in shore to avoid any passing steamer, until we arrived close to Beardstown. Undoubtedly there were blacks in the town, both slaves and free negroes, with whom Sam could easily establish an acquaintance. By this means we would soon be able to identify that particular preacher into whose care I hoped to confide Rene. Of course the girl might refuse to enter into the game, might decline to assume the role assigned her, however innocent I intended it to be; indeed, I felt convinced she would meet the suggestion with indignation. But why worry about that now? Let this be kept as a last resort. There was no necessity for me to even mention this part of my plan until after our approach to Beardstown; then the necessity of our going forward with it might be so apparent she could not point settled in my own mind I felt ready to rejoin the others.

I must have been absent in the neighborhood of two hours, and they had returned to the bank of the creek some time in advance of me. As I appeared at the edge of the wood Sam halted, offering to row the boat across.

"All right," I replied, confident we were alone. "It will save me another wetting. You saw nothing?"

"No, sah; leastways not much. We cud see up de Illinois morn' tea mile, Ah reckon, but dar wa'n't no boat no-where, 'cepting an ol' scow tied up to de bank."

"I thought so. The keelboat has gone down the Mississippi."

"Yer done saw her, sah?"

"I saw her smoke; she was hidden by a big bend just below. Don't sit there staring at me—come across."

Rene greeted me with a smile as I scrambled up on the slippery log, and asked a number of questions. I answered these as best I could and then explained, so far as I deemed it desirable, the general nature of the plans I had made. "The Illinois route offered the only hope, and we decided to venture it, although Rene pleaded earnestly that she and the negro be permitted to go on alone. To this suggestion, however, I would not consent, and the girl finally yielded her reluctant permission for me to accompany them until she could be safely left in the care of white friends.

I knew her real thought was elsewhere—with those two in Kirby's hands, already well on their way to St. Louis. Try as she would, she was unable to banish from her mind the conception that she was largely to blame for their misfortune, or submerge the idea that it was cowardly in her to seek escape, while leaving them in such peril. I lingered, talking with her for some time after Sam had fallen asleep, yet the only result was the bringing of tears to her eyes and a reluctantly given pledge that she would do whatever I believed to be best and right. She appeared so tired and worn that I left her at last in the little glade where we had found refuge, hoping she might fall asleep. I doubt if she did, although I dozed irregularly, my back against a tree, and it was already growing dusk when she came forth again from her retreat and joined us in a hastily prepared meal.

Sam and I stowed away in the boat, whatever provender remained, and I assisted her to a seat at the stern, wrapping a blanket carefully about her body, for the night air in those dank shadows already began to chill. I took possession of the oars myself, believing the negro would serve best as a lookout in the bow, and thus settled we headed the boat out through the tangle of trees toward the invisible river.

Suddenly we shot out through the screen of concealing boughs into the broader stream beyond. The light here in the open was better, although dim enough still, and revealing little of our surroundings. Sam knelt, peering eagerly forward into the blackness, an occasional growl of his voice doubt if I had taken a dozen strokes, my whole attention centered on my task, when the sudden rocking of the boat told me he had scrambled to his feet. Almost at the same instant my ears distinguished the sharp chugging of an engine straight ahead; then came his shout of alarm, "God Almighty! Dar's de keelboat, sah. Dey's got'er ram us!"

I twisted about in my seat, caught a vague glimpse of the advancing shadow, and leaped to my feet, an oar gripped in my hands. Scarcely was I poised to strike when the speeding prow ripped into us, and I was catapulted into the black water.

CHAPTER X.

The Loss of Rene.

There was the echo of an oath—a harsh, cruel laugh, the crash of planking, a strange, half-human cry of fright from the negro—that was all. The sudden violence of the blow must have hurled me high into the air, for I struck the water clear of both boats, and so far out in the stream that when I came again struggling to the surface I was in the full sweep of the current, against which I had to struggle desperately. In the brief second that intervened between Sam's shout of warning and the crash of the two boats I had seen almost nothing—only that black, menacing bulk, looming up between us and the shore, more like a shadow than a reality. Yet now, fighting to keep my head above water and not to be swept away, I was able to realize instantly what had occurred. I had been mistaken; Kirby had not fled down the river; instead he had craftily waited this chance to attack us at a disadvantage. Convinced that we would decide to make use of the rowboat, which he had left unharmed for that very purpose, and that we would venture forth just so soon as the night became dark enough, he had hidden the stolen craft in some covert along shore to await our coming. Then he sprang on us, as the tiger springs on his prey. He had calculated well, for the blunt prow of the speeding keelboat had struck us squarely, crushing in the sides of our frail craft and flinging me headlong.

What had been the fate of the others I could not for the moment determine. The darkness shadowed everything, the bulk of the keelboat alone appearing in the distance, and that shapelessly outlined. The craft bore no light, and had it not been for a voice speaking I doubt if I could have located even that. The rowboat could not be distinguished—it must have sunk, or else drifted away, a helpless wreck. The first sound my ears caught, echoing across the water, was an oath, and a question: "By—i a good job; do you see that fellow anywhere?"

"Naw," the response a mere growl.

"Ye's a goner, I reckon; never knowed what hit him, jedgin' from the way he upended it."

"Well, then he isn't likely to bother us any more. Suppose he was the white man?"

"Sure he was; it was the nigger who was up ahead. We hit him, an' he dropped in 'tween ther boats, an' went down like a stone. He never yeeped but just once, when I first gripped ther girl. I don't reckon as she was hurt at all; leastways I never aimed fer ter hurt her none."

"Has she said anything?"

"No! a d—d twitter; maybe she's fainted. I donno, but that's ther way females do. What shall I do with ther bird, Kirby?"

"Oh, hold on to her there awhile, long as she's quiet. I'm going to try the steam again, and get outside into the big river. H—man, but this hasn't been such a bad night's work."

The steam began to sizz, settling swiftly into a rhythmic chugging, as the revolving wheel began to churn up the water astern. Confident of being safely hidden by the darkness, I permitted the current to bear me downward, my muscles aching painfully from the struggle, and with no other thought in my mind except to keep well out of sight of the occupants of the boat. To be perceived by them and overtaken in the water meant certain death, while it they continued to believe that I had actually sunk beneath the surface, some future carelessness on their part might yield me an unexpected opportunity to serve Rene. The few words overheard had made sufficiently plain the situation. Poor Sam had already found freedom in death, crushed between the two colliding boats, but the girl had been grasped in time and hauled unharmed aboard the heavier craft. This had been the object of the attack—to gain possession of her. Very evidently I had not been seen closely enough to be recognized by Kirby. In a measure this afforded me a decided advantage, provided we ever encountered each other again—and I meant that we should. The account between us was not closed by this incident; far from it. There was that black water, struggling to keep afloat, while being swept resistlessly out into the river, with no immediate object before me veiled of darkness, I resolved solemnly to myself that this affair should never end until it was ended fight. In that moment of decision I cared not at all for Rene Beaucare's drop of negro blood, nor for the fact that she was a slave in her master's hands. To my mind she was but a woman, a sweet, lovable, girlish woman, in the unrestrained power of a brute, and dependent alone on me for rescue. That was enough; I cared for nothing more.

With silent strokes I waited patiently until the steady chugging of the engine grew faint in the distance, and then finally ceased entirely.

Uncertain which way to turn, and conscious of a strange lassitude, I made no struggle to reach land, but permitted myself to be borne downward in the grip of the water. Suddenly something drifted against my body, a black, ill-defined object, tossing about on the swell of the waves, and instinctively I grasped at it, recognizing instantly the shell of our wrecked boat. It was all awash, a great hole stove in its side well forward, and so filled with water the added weight of my body would have sunk it instantly. Yet the thing remained buoyant enough to float, and I clung to its stern, thankful even for this slight help.

There was no occasion for fear, although I became aware that the sweep of the current was steadily bearing us farther out toward the center of the broad stream, and soon felt convinced that escape from my predicament would be impossible until after day light. The struggle to keep afloat was no longer necessary, and my head sank in relief on the hands gripping at the boat's stern, while we floated silently on through the black mystery.

Suddenly the wrecked boat's bow grated against something immovable; then became fixed, the stern swinging slowly about, until it also caught, and I could feel the full volume of down-pouring water against my body. The blindly floating boat had drifted upon a snag, seemingly the major portion of a tree, now held by some spit of sand. I struggled vainly in an attempt to release the grip which held us, but the force of the current had securely wedged the boat's bow beneath a limb, a bare leafless tangle, making all my efforts useless. I found a submerged branch on which to stand, gripped the boat desperately to prevent being swept away, and waited for the dawn.

It seemed a long while coming, and never did man gaze on a more dismal, ghastly scene than was revealed to me by those first gray gleams dimly showing in the far east. All about stretched utter desolation; wherever my eyes turned the vista was the same—a wide stretch of restless brown water, surging and leaping past, bounded by low-lying shores, forlorn and deserted. How far I had aimlessly drifted downstream during the night was a mere matter of conjecture. I possessed no knowledge of where I was. Each bank of the river appeared about equally bare and desolate, entirely devoid of promise. However, I chose the west shore for my experiment, as the current seemed less strong in that direction, and was about to plunge in, determined to fight a way across, when my eyes suddenly detected a faint wreath of smoke curling up into the pale sky above a headland far to the southward. As I stared at this it became black and distinct, tossed about in the wind. I watched intently, clinging to my support, scarcely trusting my eyesight, while that first whiff deepened into a cloud, advancing slowly toward me. There was no longer doubt of what it was—unquestionably some steamer was passing its course upstream. Even before my ears could detect the far-off chug of the engine the boat itself rounded the sharp point of the headland and came forth into full view, heading out toward the middle of the river in a search for deeper water.

It was an unusually large steamboat for those days, a lower river packet, I guessed, with two funnels painted yellow and a high pilot house surmounted by a huge brazen eagle. At first, approaching me, bow on, I could perceive but little of its dimensions, nor gain clear view of the decks, but when it veered slightly these were revealed, and I had a glimpse of a few figures grouped forward, the great wheel astern splashing the water, and between, a long row of windows reflecting the glare of the early sun. Even as I gazed at this vision a flag crept up the slender staff at the bow and reaching the top rippled out in the crisp breeze. A moment later I deciphered the lettering across the white front of the pilot house—Adventurer of Memphis.

Indifferent at that moment as to where the approaching boat might be bound, or my reception on board; desirous only of immediate escape from my unfortunate predicament, I managed to remove my sodden coat and furiously wave it in the air as a signal. At first there was no response, no evidence that I had even been seen; then slowly, deliberately, the steamer changed its course and came straight up the river, struggling against the full strength of the current. I could see a man step from out the pilot house onto the upper forward deck, lean out over the rail and speak to the others below, pointing toward me across the water. A half-dozen grouped themselves at the bow, ready for action, their figures growing more sharply defined as the struggling craft approached. The man above stood shading his eyes with one hand and gesticulating with the other. Finally the sound of his voice reached me.

"Hey! you out there! If you can swim jump for it. I'm not going to swim into that snag."

I measured the distance between us with my eye and leaped as far out as possible, striking out with lusty strokes. The swift current swung me about like a chip, and swept me downward in spite of every struggle. I was squarely abreast of the boat, already caught in her suction, and being drawn straight in toward her wheel, when the looped end of a flying noose struck my shoulder.

"Keep your head, kid!" roared out a hoarse voice. "Hang on now, an' we'll get yer."

It was such a rush, such a breathless, desperate struggle I can scarcely recall the details. All I really remember is that I gripped the rope and clung; was dragged under again and again; was lunged against the steamer's side, seemingly losing all consciousness, yet dimly realizing that outstretched hands grasped me and lifted me up by main strength to the narrow footway, dropping me there in the pool of water oozing from my clothes. Someone spoke, lifting my head on his arm, in answer to a hail from above.

"Yes, he's all right, sir; just a bit groggy."

"Someone spoke, lifting my head on his arm, in answer to a hail from above.

"Yes, he's all right, sir; just a bit groggy. What'll we do with him?"

"Bring him along up to Haines' cabin and get him the old suit in my room. You might warm him up with a drink first. You tend to it, Mape's."

The liquor I drank out of a bottle burnt like fire, but brought me new strength, so that with Mape's help I got to my feet and stared about at the group of faces surrounding us. They were those of typical river men, two negroes and three whites, ragged, dirty and disreputable. Mape's was so busily bearded that about all I could perceive of his face was the eyes, yet these were intelligent, and I instantly picked him out as being the mate.

"How long yer all bin roostin' on that snag?" he questioned, evidently somewhat amused. "Dern me, stranger, if I ever see ther sorter thing done afore."

"I was caught there last night," I answered, unwilling to say more. "Boat got snagged in the dark and went down."

"Live around yere, I reckon?"

"No; just floating. Came down the Illinois. Where is this steamer bound?"

"H—I alone knows," dryly. "Yeller Banks fust, anyhow; we're loaded with supplies."

"Supplies! For Yeller Banks?" he surmised. "Why, what's going on there? My friend, there aren't ten families within a hundred miles of that place."

Mape's laughed, his mouth opening like a red gash, exhibiting a row of yellow fangs.

"No, I reckon not; but that's a h—o' a lot o' fellers ther whut ain't families but kin eat. Didn't yer know, pardner, that's a right smart way on; ther Illinois militia is called out, an' is a-marchin' now fer Yeller Banks? They're liable fer ter be ther too afore ever this d—n scow makes it, if we have ter stop an' pick eny more blame fools outer the river. Come on, let's go up."

"Wait a minute. This is an Indian war? Black Hawk has broken loose?"

"Sure; raised particular h—l. We heard down at St. Louis he'd killed 'bout a hundred whites, an' burned sum o' 'em—ther ol' devil."

"And where is he now?"

"Dunno; never was up in yer afore. We bin runnin' 'tween St. Louis an' New Orleans, til the government took us. Maybe the captain kin tell yer—survuhar up Rock river, I reckon, wharever that is."

We climbed the steep steps to the upper deck, and were met at the head of the ladder by the captain, evidently desirous of looking me over. He was a solidly built individual, wearing white side whiskers and a bulbous nose, and confronted me not altogether pleasantly.

"All right, are you? Water pretty cold yet, I reckon. Been sticking on that snag long?"

"Several hours; but my boat was wrecked before we lodged there."

The captain laughed and winked aside at the mate.

"Yes, He's All Right, Sir; Just a Bit Groggy."

Suffered from Catarrh

Superior, Wis.—"I had been a great sufferer for about ten years with catarrh of the head, or nasal catarrh. I used Dr. Pierce's medicines for about five months, and the Golden Medical Discovery and Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, and am feeling better than I have in ten years. I used to have severe headaches, but I have never had one of these spells since I took the first bottle of Dr. Pierce's medicine. I can recommend these medicines judging by what they have done for me. I have also written Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, in Buffalo, N. Y., in regard to my case and have always received prompt replies and much valuable information in regard to my condition.—JOHN G. JOHNSON, 1217 Tower Ave.

Became Run-Down

Followed by Rheumatism

Flint, Mich.—"Several years ago I became very poorly and finally had rheumatism so that I could not walk for several months. I suffered with four of our local doctors with very little relief, if any, and used some two or three different patent medicines. I got no better. My friends thought I wasn't going to get well at all. I was clear discouraged and when I read in the paper of someone in my same condition who had been cured by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I didn't believe a word of it but I was giving what little money I had to the doctors any way and thought I might as well give Dr. Pierce a little, so I got $5.00 worth of the Golden Medical Discovery and the little Pleasant Pellets and took them. By that time I was so much better that I kept on and I was so well I hardly knew myself. My friends were surprised. Of course I told them all I did was to take the 'Discovery' and take good care of myself. Now this is all straight truth.—MRS. THEO. PACK, 1261 Steyer Ave.

THE GREATEST GIFT.
(Anna Melville Snow).

Pause we a short day's length, O Lord,
To offer thanks to Thee
For harvests garnered from the fields,
For gains from lake and sea,
For wealth from mines and forests far,
For blessings close at hand,
For warmth of sun and beam of star,
For all at our command.
Gifts that have reached us by Thy grace,
O, Thou, who art our dwelling place!

A greater miracle than gifts
Thy love for us hath wrought.
A larger light has come to us
Who, miserly, have sought
Too commonwealths after Thee,
Asking but bread and gold.
Forgetful of that inward good
By which men's minds unfold
To comprehend Thee, who didst make
Them in Thine image fair,
To seek that image in themselves,
Ensuring and hold it there.

Through doors of sorrow we have come,
By paths of pain and fears,
By ways of sacrifice and stress,
From depths of abject fears,
To find the old truth stands unmoved.
Thou art our Sun and Shield,
Before the might of Thy right arm
The strongest foe must yield.
Thou art our Tabernacle, there
We shelter and we pray;
Thou art the Life of all our life,
Thou, our eternal Way.

Our Feast of Thanks we humbly spread,
Thou art our Honored Guest,
Thyself-in-us, Thyself-our-all
Is of Thy Gifts, the best!

NEW HOUSES NEEDED.

During the past few weeks a number of lots have been sold in Orchard Heights and if nothing unforeseen happens, there will be a good many new homes erected there next season. Surely there is great need in Northville for a lot of new houses in fact the housing question is the biggest proposition before our people today. If houses could be provided many new families would come to Northville to reside. Would it not be a wise plan to form a company for the erection of a number of houses next summer?

YOU MUST WORK.

Whether you handle the pack or pen, a wheelbarrow or a set of books, dig ditches or edit a paper, ring an auction bell or write funny things you must work. Don't be afraid of killing yourself with work. Work gives an appetite for meals gives the appreciation of a holiday. There are young men who do not work, but the world is not proud of them. It does not even know their names, it simply speaks of them as old so and so's boy. The great busy world does not even know that they are here. So find out what you want to do and do it, take off your coat and make a dust in the world. The busier you are the less devilry you will get into the sweeter will be your sleep and the better satisfied will the world be with you.—Inter Lake Tribune

BAPTIST MINISTER PLAN FOR ENLISTMENT.

Pastors of 100 Baptist churches in the Detroit district met at the Woodward Avenue Baptist church Monday to organize for "enlistment week," December 7 to 14. That period will see the Baptist world movement launched to raise $100,000,000 in a five year period to further the work of the denomination.

Dr. William Reid, of Boston, and Dr. Harry Walker Vincent of Toledo, said "enlistment week will be carried through in seven steps, the final one consisting of an endeavor to get a pledge from every member of the Baptist faith to give "an enlarged allegiance to Christ and His church and set apart a just proportion of time, and money to help attain the objectives in the new world movement."

Other steps include, organization of members on the family group plan, to obtain the most from co-operation; group meetings for prayer and conference; distribution of special enlistment week literature, mobilization day, December 7; conservation services at the mid-week prayer meetings; meeting of the women's missionary organizations.—Free Press.

HUNTED BIG "GAME."

Inability to take a trip north in search of big game did not deter Emery Henneberg, 16 of Commerce township, from taking a crack at something bigger than rabbits, according to Deputy Sheriff Harry Colby, who arrested the boy Friday and brought him to jail, placing against him a charge of killing two horses.

According to Colby, the Henneberg boy and a companion had just bought themselves a new gun, and desiring to try it out, proceeded to the farm of Albert W. Prescott in Commerce township. Finding game scarce they decided to try out their new purchase on anything which came along. The first thing happened to be some pigs belonging to Prescott. The boys fired several shots the hogs, but none of the shots did any damage before the animals got out of range. Seeing two horses grazing in a field they set about stalking them. After getting near enough, the Henneberg boy shot twice, scoring two bull's eyes. Both horses died from the wounds.

The Henneberg boy was arraigned before Justice Frednburgh Friday afternoon in Justice Frednburgh's court, and pleaded guilty to the killing of the two animals. He was bound over to the December term of the circuit court, with bail fixed at $100. Bail was furnished with Isaac Ryal as surety.—Pontiac Gazette.

DETROIT THEATRES.

There is hardly a man, woman or child who has ever been to a theatre more than once or twice, who has never seen the two great black-face comedians, McIntyre and Heath. They joined forces in 1874 and have been together ever since, impersonating the Negro for the amusement of actually millions of people over a span of forty-five years, a record the present generation of stage celebrities may well envy.

"Hello, Alexander," is the name of the spectacular musical extravaganza which the Messrs Lee and J. J. Shubert will present at the Detroit opera house for an engagement of two weeks commencing Sunday evening, December 1.

"Parlor, Bedroom and Bath," the A. H. Woods pajama-clad rollick that bids fair to establish a record for contending popularity, is the happy attraction at the Detroit Shubert-Garrick for the week commencing this Sunday evening, November 30. After its run of a solid year in New York and Chicago, where the public hailed it as the biggest laugh festival of the century the play is now making a joy tour of the country.

Method of Faking Violins.
A claim which has been made for X-rays is that by exposing to their light a good modern violin it will acquire the characteristic tone of a genuine Strad, the action of the rays in a few hours aging the wood by some 60 years.

Grease on Wallpaper.
To remove grease spots from wallpaper, sprinkle a piece of blotting paper with carbonate of soda and press it against the wall with a moderately hot iron. The blotting paper will absorb the grease, while the soda preserves the color of the paper.

GUN COTTON BASIS OF SILK

French Inventor, After Long Study, Has Evolved a Truly Wonderful Artificial Product.

According to Count Hilaire, inventor of artificial silk, which is now produced by vast factories in Switzerland, Belgium, France, England and the United States, it has for its basis nothing less than gun cotton. One of the greatest problems he had to solve in perfecting it for everyday use was to render it nonexplosive.

The gun cotton under the chardonnet process is first dissolved in a mixture of alcohol and ether and then spun through fine capillary tubes by means of hydraulic presses.

Other chemical processes give it incombustible and nonexplosive qualities, together with the consistency and the transparency of the finest silk from Japan or China.

It took just 30 years of the 80 which Count Hilaire has completed to perfect his discovery and render it of actual and practical commercial value.

The illustrious chemist and scientist has just been elected to the supreme honor of membership in the French Academy of Sciences for his discovery of how to put one over on the silk-worms. During the war he had been decorated by the French minister of war with the Cross of a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor for discoveries relative to the manufacture of high explosives growing out of his researches made primarily to render artificial silk stockings nonexplosive.

STYLES KEEP WOMEN YOUNG

Desire for Latest and Prettiest Things an Evidence of Wisdom, According to Authority.

"Woman has gained her political and intellectual freedom," said Emil W. Kohn, in an address before the New York Retail Jewelers' convention at Saratoga. "She has declared in public and in private that never again will she be the slave of men. But I venture that she will remain the willing slave of fashion."

The woman who declares she would rather be dead than out of fashion expresses a thought in every woman's mind. As it is a man's privilege to pay the bills, he may at times express displeasure. That man, however, who is permanently and chronically displeased at or indifferent to millady's pretty hat, becoming gown and beautiful jewelry is a brute and should be caged with other wild animals.

"To be contented with the thoughts and things of yesterday is to stand still, and stagnation breeds decay. To be sensitive to new ideas is to be youthful. Woman's desire to possess jewelry that is new and fashionable and beautiful is an evidence of growth, and growth is the law of life."

Safe Light for Miners.

Nowadays the up-to-date miner carries a package of electricity about with him while underground. It is a small storage battery attached to the back of his belt, and is connected by a cord with a lamp fastened to the front of his cap.

The lamp, provided with a reflector, throws quite a flood of light in front of the miner. But its chief advantage is absolute safety.

In olden days miners (who must, of course, have light) carried about with them open-flame lamps. These caused innumerable disastrous accidents through ignition of coal dust or gases. Sir Humphry Davy's invention of a safety lamp whose flame was protected by a wire gauze saved an immense number of lives. It is in common use today, but the electric mine lamp is better and more convenient.

To Photograph a Star.

A discovery may be made photographically by some astronomer this fall or winter in the constellation Gemini, according to Isabel M. Lewis of the United States naval observatory. It will be a star of the fifteenth magnitude in an elliptical orbit and has been difficult to find and identify because in the Milky Way there are countless others that are brighter.

The orbits of all the planets excepting Mercury, are nearly perfect circles, and discovery of a planet exterior to Neptune that moves in a greatly elongated ellipse will strike one more blow at the nebular hypothesis, which assumes, says Miss Lewis, that the planets' almost circular orbits are due to the fact that originally they were thrown off as rings from a contracting solar nebula.

Irregularities in the motion of Neptune indicate that the unseen planet is drawing near to Neptune and during this period of conjunction astronomers hope to determine the mass of the new body.

Reclaiming Waste Places.

Twenty years ago a news story from Washington says land in the Louisiana parish of Tangipahoa was worth 50 cents an acre and human life was worth scarcely anything at all. It was a case of cause and effect.

Then the immigrants came. They were chiefly Italians and Hungarians. They had lived at home on land that was poorer than the Tangipahoa. They practiced intensive cultivation. Today their parish is one of the greatest strawberry farming districts in the United States.

Land that sold for 50 cents is now worth $100 an acre. And the school authorities have practiced intensive cultivation on the human products of that land. Americanization has made life worth more there than it ever was before.—Binghamton News

FARMERS NOT TO BLAME FOR HIGH PRICES.

Demand that "pressure against against food producers in an effort to reduce the price of food to non-producers be stopped before it accelerates the decline of agriculture so as to leave the farms and farmers unable to feed the nation," featured the closing session of the National Grange Friday.

The report adopted by the Grange demands that complaints against high prices be directed where the high prices are caused to the cost of labor, the large profits of food manipulation and distribution and the high cost of equipment and necessities which farmers must purchase.

Industry Sorely Pressed.
"The industry of agriculture as a whole is now facing an economic condition which may result disastrously if not speedily cured," declared the Grange.

Sound public policy demands such legislation as will encourage farm ownership by the working farmer and discourage absentee landlordism, stated the Grange in another resolution.

NEW DAIRY COURSE TO OPEN AT M. A. C.

A special course in Cow Testing and Dairy Barn management, which will run from December 1 to December 12, will be included this year for the first time among the winter courses in agriculture at the Michigan Agricultural college. Inquiries from all over the state indicate that the practical nature of the course is proving popular with Michigan farm boys.

The course is planned primarily to meet the ever increasing demand for men and women who are adequately trained for cow testing work and for those who are engaged in the production of A. B. O. dairy animals. The work of the course will include a special study of animal breeding, feeding, Babcock test, livestock judging, dairy barn management, and advanced registry and cow testing.

Other "Short Courses" will open in the near future at the college are: Experienced Creamerymen's course December 15 to December 20, general Dairy course, January 5 to February 27, Horticultural course, January 5 to February 27; Gardening course, February 9 to February 20; Bee-keeping course, February 16 to February 27, Farm Engineering, March 1 to March 26; First Truck and Tractor course, February 2 to February 28, Second Truck and Tractor course, March 1 to March 27; and Farmers' Week, February 2 to February 6.

POWERS' STATION.

Mr. and Mrs. George Stuckey were Detroit visitors Friday.

Mrs. George Simmons has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. Glenn Allen in Pontiac.

Fourteen ladies of this vicinity were pleasantly entertained by Mrs. Wu Greer Friday afternoon.

Mrs. John Navery was brought to her daughter's home last Wednesday after an operation in Harper hospital several weeks ago.

Mrs. Walter Carr and daughter, Jane, have returned to their home in New York, after a several weeks' visit at the Joseph Graham home.

THEY COULDN'T HELP IT.

Two friends met in the Strand the morning after an airplane raid.

"Any damage done your way?" the first asked.

"Damage! Rather!" answered the other. "Father and mother were blown clean out of the window. The neighbors say it's the first time they've been seen to leave the house together in seventeen years."—New York Globe.

Roughing It.

Robert and his father were stranded one night out in a country district. Their car had broken down and they were obliged to stay all night in a humble little home. Everything was strange to Robert, who was strictly a city child. When he returned home I heard him tell his little neighbor friend: "Say, it was great! We slept on a feather bed and washed in their dishpan on the back porch."

Don't Mistake The Cause

Many Northville People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It. Do you have backache?

Are you tired and worn out? Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed? Are the kidney secretions irregular? Highly colored; contain sediment? Likely your kidneys are at fault. Weak kidneys give warning of distress.

Heed the warning; don't delay—Use a tested kidney remedy. Read this Ann Arbor testimony.

P. J. Desmond, 301 W. Summit St., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "Whenever my kidneys get weak, causing my back to ache or be sore, or the kidney secretions pass too freely, or when I am tired or languid, I use a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am soon all right again. Doan's have never failed to help me and I keep them in the house all the time and wouldn't be without them. I advise anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills if troubled with their kidneys."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Desmond had. Foster-Milburn Co. Mfrs. Buffalo, N. Y.—Advt. 77

FRUIT GROWERS READY FOR CONVENTION.

Hundreds of Michigan fruit growers will attend the annual convention of the Michigan State Horticultural Society to be held in the Hotel Statler, Detroit, December 2, 3 and 4. This will be the most important convention from a grower's standpoint and a very strong program has been arranged.

Freight rates and legislation concerning shipping will be discussed by Mr. F. B. Coombs, secretary of the Michigan Traffic League, and R. G. Phillips, secretary of the International Apple Shippers' association, of Rochester, N. Y. E. J. Kraus of Madison, Wis., formerly with the State Experiment station of Oregon, will discuss the "Relation of Orchard Practices to Fruit-Bud Development," and "When is Pruning Profitable." The society is very fortunate in having as its guest, Ex-Governor Charles S. Deneen, of Illinois, who will discuss the subject of "Collective Bargaining." Ex-Governor Deneen represented the producers in the recent trial of the Chicago Milk Producers association and was largely responsible for the decision which was rendered in their favor. Mr. F. E. Beatty, of Three Rivers, the best advised authority on commercial strawberry growing in the middle west, will handle the subject, "How to Make Strawberry Growing Both Pleasant and Profitable." Mr. Ezra Levi, Muck specialist of the Soils department, M. A. C., will tell of the possibilities of mulching orchards with muck. The subject of spraying will be discussed at length, as well as Michigan's horticultural possibilities, R. H. Pettit, State Entomologist, has some new and interesting facts regarding "Some Pests of Prime Importance to the Producer of Food."

"The New-World Urge" by J. Bradford Penningly, D. D., will interest everyone who is engaged along both horticultural and agricultural lines. Growers are especially urged to be present at the business meeting to be held Wednesday forenoon. Programs have already been mailed and extra copies may be received by making application to the secretary, George M. Low, Bangor, Mich.

Michigan growers are considered one of the finest bunches that can be brought together, and the convention promises to him with enthusiasm and pep. Everybody interested in the fruit industry is urged to attend this convention.

GOVERNMENT AND COLLEGE EXHIBITS.

Again the leading feature of the International Live Stock Exposition during the first week in December, will be an exhibit to portray the results of feeding experiments conducted by several agricultural experiment stations during recent years. The exposition has been of great educational value to the stockmen of America concerning profitable types and breeds of live stock. This year exhibits will be staged that ascertain to prove of great educational value along lines of profitable feeding and management. The exact amount of feed required to make one pound of beef, pork or mutton in different experiments will be shown, and a concise statement of the results will be presented in the form of cards or charts.

At this particular time when feed is high in price it is very necessary, in profitable feeding to study carefully food combinations that will give the greatest gains at the lowest cost and with the highest profits. This exhibit is certain to prove both interesting and instructive to the large number of stockmen who will be in attendance. Model live stock farms will be shown in miniature and model barns and feed racks of various descriptions will be exhibited.

The Department of Agriculture is preparing very attractive exhibits pertaining to feeding and management of live stock, one of the features of which will be "A Flock of Sheep on Every Farm."

THE OTHER SIDE. Wife (looking up from newspaper)—It tells here about a man giving his wife a fifteen thousand dollar fur coat. Nothing like that ever happens to me. Hub (looking up from his)—I was just reading where a man gave his wife a pair of black eyes. Nothing like that ever happened to you, either. —Boston Transcript

CANADA'S LARGEST ENGINEERING PROJECT Hydro-Electric Power Commission Carrying on Wonderful Power Development Work at Niagara Falls—A Second Panama Canal

Operating the largest shovels in the world and reversing the flow of a river, the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario is carrying on an enormous engineering project at Niagara Falls, practically without the use of steam. There are many startling phases to this work, which is the largest engineering feat attempted in the Dominion of Canada, and the biggest engineering job at present being carried on in the North American continent. In order to get water to the new power house which will be erected just above Queenston, the Commission will utilize a quarter of a mile of the Welland River, causing this sluggish stream to backflow and to flow over the Niagara River. The project is a quarter of a mile long when completed. The original survey for the Niagara development was made in 1914, and the construction work began in May, 1917. The commission expects to have the new power plant in working order in 1922. War conditions handicapped the engineers, but this year's operations were begun on a gigantic scale. A top over the right of way will impress the observer with the vast scope of the undertaking which, in its completed state, will cost approximately $27,000,000. Two miles above the brink of Niagara Falls a steam dredge is gnawing away at the channel of the Welland River, removing in general chunks the river bottom and a portion of Hog Island, which guards the entrance to this historic creek. The lone dredge and its attendant tugs are the only pieces of equipment engaged on the entire Niagara development which are not owned by the Hydro-Electric Power Commission. They, with six or seven steam engines, are the only apparatus in use on the development which require steam in their operation. Even the drills employed on the rock deposits of the canal right of way are operated by air, electrically compressed. A mile or two inland a huge clamshell swung from an aerial cableway, drops into the river and then emerges, bringing with it generous bites from the river bottom, which are deposited on the river bank at the foot of the tower from where the operator directs the activities of the clamshell. Deposits of earth and clay along the north bank of the river reveal the effectiveness of the clamshell in this particular portion of the development. A short ride from Niagara Falls over new roadways built by the commission from crushed limestone removed from its right of way, brings one to the canal proper, where the activities of huge electric shovels, electric cranes and gangs of men present a striking picture. The weary householder painfully feeding the furnace, shovel by shovel from the ton or two of coal, his winter supply will marvel at the enormity of the electric shovels which pick up from eight to ten tons of material, lift it 70 feet into the air and deposit it to waiting cars all within the short space of 40 seconds. Trains, hauled by electric locomotives, convey the mud and clay to the dump at St. David's. The boulders and rock from the canal are borne away to the stone crusher on the cliff above Queenston, and converted into material for railroads, railroad loaded and rippers which will have the shores of the canal.

This great work is a striking example of the big vision and initiative of Sir Adam Beck, under whose direction the commission carries on its functions. This work is one which gives the people of Ontario just cause for pride in achievement.

MADE A RECORD.

The John Challis party of deer hunters blew into town Saturday morning, to the surprise of every one. AFTER THANKSGIVING
WE ARE STICKING TO QUALITY FOR DEAR LIFE AND WE DESERVE A PART OF YOUR BUSINESS.....

Whenever good merchandise is scarce and hard to find, as it is this Fall, inferior goods and fictitious claims immediately become as plentiful as the Smiths in the phone book and that's exactly the condition of things that the clothing buyers of Northville are facing to-day.

A good, worthy, all-wool, well tailored Fall suit for a young man or his Dad can still be had, but you WON'T find it in the stores that have drifted with the tide and lowered their qualities to meet a price.

To-day there is one clothing store in Northville that you are absolutely safe in coming to, depending on and buying from—THAT'S GORTON'S.

We have set tight in the boat and kept our quality at full mast. We have refused to accept substitutes for wool—to subtract from our workmanship or to side track our duty to the clothing-buyers of our city and if after considering these facts you don't agree that we are deserving of at least a part of your Fall purchases—Then we can't give you much on your sense of Equity and Fairness.

EASY NOW TO SAW LOGS AND CUT DOWN TREES

Only one man, or even a boy, with the improved Ottawa Engine Log Saw can easily cut twenty-five to forty cords a day, and at a cost of less than 20¢ per cord. This machine, which outdoes all others, has a heavy, cross cut saw driven by a powerful especially designed 4-cycle gasoline engine. It's a fast money-maker for those using it, and does more than ten men could do, either cutting down trees, sawing logs, or buzzing branches while you rest. When not sawing, the engine can be used for other work requiring power.

The entire machine is mounted on truck wheels to make it easy to move to the trees or logs, and from cut to cut on a log without stopping the engine. For moving on the road, the truck wheels are placed parallel with the skids and the rig hauled straight ahead. The wheels turn on a two-way spindle. You do not have to take them off, but can change direction of wheel travel by merely taking out a pin.

The Ottawa can be fitted for sawing down trees. It cuts level with surface of ground, thereby getting all the timber and leaving no stumps sticking up. An automatic friction clutch stops the saw in case of undue resistance. Two men can fall forty to fifty trees a day in ordinary timber. The whole outfit is compact, simple, durable against a lifetime of hard wear. It sells for a low price and is fully guaranteed for reliable operation in the hands of every one who has trees to cut down and logs to work up.

Full information and low factory price to you can be had simply by addressing the Ottawa Mfg. Company, 2724 Wood St. Ottawa, Kansas.

Catarhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarhal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the Blood on the Mucous Surfaces of the System. Catarhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. MORE GOOD THINGS.

On a chilly night a dish of hot soup is one of the most appetizing of all foods with which to start the evening meal. If the dinner to follow is a substantial and filling meal the soup may be light and stimulating with but little nourishment, but if the food which is provided be light a cream soup, bisque or chowder should be the first dish.

Soup a la Clermont.—Take the upper crust of a small French loaf, cut in small pieces, remove the crumbs and put into a bowl with two cupfuls of well seasoned stock. Place in a moderate oven for half an hour. Slice four large onions, fry brown in butter, drain, and boil for twenty minutes in beef stock to cover. Add the onions and the bread to two quarts of hot beef stock; pour into a soup tureen and serve with grated cheese, passed on a separate plate.

Mushroom Soup.—Cut into dice one and one-half cupfuls of fresh mushrooms. Stew until tender in a cupful of beef stock. To this add one quart of stock. Thicken with a tablespoonful of flour rubbed smooth with a tablespoonful of butter. Season with salt and pepper and minced parsley.

Combination Soups.—Put into a soup kettle a hambone, a beefbone and a pod of red pepper and two cupfuls of split peas. Cover with cold water and simmer until the peas are soft. Take out the bones and pepper, season to taste and serve.

Bean Soup.—Put into a soup kettle two cupfuls of baked beans, two cupfuls of canned tomatoes, an onion finely chopped, and six cupfuls of cold water. Simmer until the beans are soft; rub through a sieve, reheat, season and serve.

Turkey Soup.—Cover the bones and trimmings of cold roast turkey with cold water. Add a stalk of celery, chopped fine, a pinch of powdered sweet herbs, simmer for several hours, strain, season to taste and thicken with a tablespoonful each of flour and butter blended with a little of the soup.

BREAKFAST DISHES.

Of all breakfast cakes the griddle cake is the one most favored; the edible varieties are easily distinguished from the dark, soggy, leaden varieties found in eating houses and even in private kitchens. Batter for griddle cakes should be thoroughly beaten, and an egg or two will be found quite an addition to the texture of the cakes. Use a cake turner and never turn a cake but once, as a soggy cake is sure to result. A perfect pancake batter will be smooth elastic and will keep its shape when spread on the griddle.

Buckwheat Griddle Cakes.—For the colder months these cakes are more common than the wheat and are used quite freely. Be sure to get a good brand of buckwheat flour. Make a batter of cold water and buckwheat flour with a softened yeast cake, or if home-made yeast is used, a half-cupful, then set away in a warm place to rise overnight. In the morning, take out a cupful of the batter to use for the next day's cakes. Add water and more buckwheat flour to make a thick batter and set away. To the batter which is to be used for the morning's cakes add sour or sweet milk, salt and a bit of soda; beat and thin to a good batter, then cook as usual. A thin batter makes a more tender cake. This original batter will be good for several weeks if the breakfast batter is never added to that to be used the next day.

Rice Pancakes.—Mix two cupfuls of boiled rice with two cupfuls of milk and let stand in a cool place overnight. In the morning add three cupfuls of sifted flour, one teaspoonful of salt, one tablespoonful of melted butter and one tablespoonful of sugar. Beat until thoroughly mixed with two cupfuls of milk, a tablespoonful of baking powder and three eggs, the stiffly-beaten whites added last.

Perfection Muffins.—Mix together three cupfuls of flour, one cupful of cornmeal, two teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one tablespoonful of sugar and one teaspoonful of salt. Work in two tablespoonfuls of butter or lard; add three beaten eggs and two cupfuls of milk. Beat well and bake in buttered muffin tins.

FLU CAUSED PRESIDENT WILSON'S SICKNESS

Physicians claim that President Wilson is suffering from neurasthenia or nervous exhaustion. This, they claim, is the after effect of an attack of influenza which he had last April, while he was in Paris attending the Peace conference. There are hundreds of thousands of people today who are still suffering some bad effect from last year's attack of influenza.

Doctors are agreed that the Flu is coming back this Fall, and now that cooler weather is here, they are afraid it will break out any time. Even if one recovers from the Flu, the after effects are terrible. The only safe thing to do is to prevent the Flu.

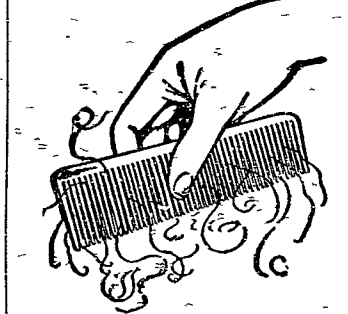

Influenza can be prevented; last year's results prove that. As a preventive for Flu, Turpo has been a pronounced success. Turpo is an effective germicide, combining the old-fashioned remedies of turpentine (which has always been known as the best home germicide), camphor and menthol in a pure mineral base. These ingredients have long been recognized as effective germicides, as well as having really wonderful qualities in relieving colds and congestions. Snuff a little Turpo up the nostrils several times a day, and the Flu germs will have little chance of getting a lodging and breeding place. Many physicians and hospitals use and recommend Turpo.

The fact that there have been cases of "flu" already reported makes it important that you prepare now. Buy a thirty-cent jar of Turpo, while your druggist has a supply on hand, and use as directed. Last year druggists could not supply the demand. Remember that Turpo is a preventive, not a cure for influenza. Take care of yourself.—Adv.

Keep Money From the Heart.—Money in the hand is a good thing. If it isn't allowed to get into the heart, if it is only in the hand it is kept in circulation; if allowed to get into the heart it is hoarded away.

DAIRY FACTS

SCHOOLS TAKE UP DAIRYING

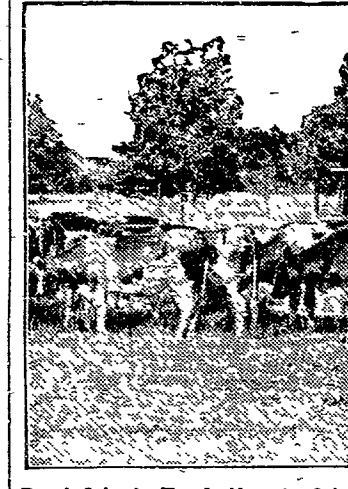

Bulletin Published by Department of Agriculture Has Twelve Lessons on Subject

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)
To add impetus to the teaching of dairying in elementary rural schools Bulletin 763, just published, contains 12 lessons on the subject. With each lesson are given helpful directions for home projects that may be worked out with profit to every community and with real educational value to pupils. Practically all the subject material for class use and instructions for home projects can be found in available bulletins—either free or at small cost. But teachers and pupils are advised to use additional sources of information, such as the printed matter from dairy cattle breeders' associations, books on dairying, and farm and dairy journals.

According to the bulletin teachers of agriculture are agreed that instruction on that subject should follow certain definite lines—if should be seasonal, be local in its interests, meet the needs of the pupils, and be practical. The home-project plan affords the best means of meeting these conditions, especially the practical side, for by it the pupil works out for himself, the principles and theories taught in the classroom.

The term "home project," applied to instruction in elementary and supplementary agriculture, includes as requisites a plan for home work and related instruction in agriculture at the school. It should be a problem new to the pupil; the parent and pupil should agree with the teacher on the plan; some competent person must supervise the home work; detailed records of time, method, cost and income must be honestly kept; and a written report based on the record should be submitted to the teacher.

One of the means by which teachers may learn the dairy interests of the district is a dairy survey. The pupils may assist in obtaining this information. But first-hand knowledge obtained by the teacher will be valuable. This survey should tell the kind of farm (crop or stock), purpose of dairy cows (commercial or home use), breeds of cattle, feeds raised, feeds purchased, milk records kept, how milk is tested, how milk is disposed of, and dairy conveniences. Information should be tabulated as it is collected. In addition the teacher with the pupils' help should prove charts showing the points of a typical dairy cow, samples of dairy records showing how they should be kept, directions showing the food value of milk, and drawings showing a section of the model dairy farm, milk house, etc. The bulletin contains lessons, giving sources of material, on the following subjects: Producing clean milk, care of milk and cream, weighing milk, testing milk, keeping of records and marketing dairy products, profit and loss (good and poor cows), judging and purchasing stock, care in handling of the dairy cow and barn, butter manufacture, food value of milk and its use in the home, making cottage cheese, cooking with milk products, and the use of milk as a supplement to other foods.

GOOD RATION FOR DAIRY COW

Ohio State University Recommends Mixture of Ground Corn, Oats, Bran, Gluten and Meal.

A good dairy ration recommended by the dairy department of the Ohio State university is made of the following grains: Ground corn, one part; oats, one part; bran, one part; gluten, one part; cottonseed meal, half a part; linseed oil meal, three-fourths part. Feed one pound of this mixture to each two to four pounds of milk, depending upon the percentage of butyrfat. This should be fed in connection with silage, clover or alfalfa hay and either sugar beets or

KNEW HE WOULD BE THERE

Innkeeper Evidently Had Implicit Faith in the Punctuality of His Coming Guest.

An old Englishman, James Scott by name, traveled about on business until he was nearly eighty years of age. He became celebrated for his punctuality and methodical habits. Upon one occasion a gentleman stopped at an inn much frequented by Mr. Scott and saw a fine fowl cooking. "That looks very good," said the hungry guest. "You may serve that for my dinner." "You cannot have that, sir," replied the landlord. "That is being cooked for Mr. Scott, the traveler." "I know Mr. Scott very well," said the gentleman. "Is he stopping here?" "Oh, no, sir," answered the landlord. "But six months ago he ordered a fowl to be ready for him at precisely two o'clock today, and we are expecting him every minute."

Quaint and Ancient

While chatting with a group of women there was in the party a young woman of uncertain age. I expressed my admiration for a quaint little locket she was wearing. She smiled and told me she had possessed it since she was a baby, whereupon I thoughtlessly exclaimed: "I just love old things!" When I realized what I had said, there was an embarrassing silence until someone managed to change the subject.—Chicago Tribune.

Clearly Without the Law

Wise Judge Quickly Pointed Out Why Musician Was Manifestly Guilty of Looting.

A man was brought into court recently under the anti-looting law. The judge looked at him for a moment and then asked: "What is your occupation?" "I am a musician, your honor," was the reply. "In that case I'll have to find you guilty of looting." "But, your honor," protested the man, "I'm regularly employed by the church as an organist." "That only confirms my opinion," said the judge. "The law requires every man to work, but your occupation requires you to play."

"I have often thought, Mrs. Welfare-worker, that it would be an admirable idea to get intoxicated, get arrested, and thus be able to write up what happens to these members of the world's unfortunates." "Well?" said the rich lady. "Could you supply the necessary liquor?"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

It takes two to make a quarrel, but it only takes one to say, "I'm sorry."

GOLD-COIN SCALES A RELIC

Missouri Man Has Device That Was in Daily Use in That State Many Years Ago.

A gold-coin scales of the type so useful to merchants in the middle of the nineteenth century is one of the relics kept by Jeff Davis of Boonville. Modern methods of exchange have rendered the scales useless, but it is in as good condition as it was when his grandfather used it at Cole Neck sixty years ago.

At the time B. B. Brereton set up his little store at Cole Neck, just a half mile north of what is now Clifton City, the pioneers were crossing the plains in search of gold. Gold "sweating" was common. Particles of gold dust were removed from the coin so that its value rather than its appearance suffered. The merchant had to be constantly on the lookout for underweight coins when dealing with such a class of trade.

A pair of scales was bought by Mr. Brereton for this purpose. A brass weight was used in balancing the scales to get the exact weight of the coin. But the weight test was not the only one applied. A slot of varying size in each receptacle on the scales. The slots were for the $1, $2.50, $3, $5, $10 and $20 coins. Coins falling to fit exactly in their respective slots were rejected.—Boonville (Mo.) Republican.

Perfects Radio Device.
According to a leading Norwegian newspaper, Engineer Hermod Peterson has patented a device for the production of electrical current for radio telegraphy.

The electricity is received by an accumulator, which releases it at certain intervals. The system is sparkless, and the sounds are clearer than in the older inventions, says the Scientific American. The clearness of sound depends upon the regularity of the current, and with this system the current is released with a mathematical exactness.

The device has further advantages in that it is cheaper, simpler and more durable than those now in use. If the claims for this invention prove well founded, it is thought that it will mark a distinct step in advance of what has so far been accomplished in this line, and hence its possibilities are creating considerable interest in the radio world.

Home-Made Christmas Presents

Pretty Gifts That You Can Make for Your Friends at Slight Expense
By JULIA BOTTOMLEY.

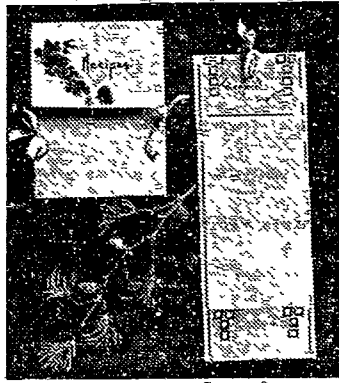

Home-Made Toys

The perennial rag doll that appears this year is made of any ribbed goods—as a ribbed stocking—dusted pink. It is cut out by a pattern, sewed and stuffed with cotton. The face and hair are the result of red, black and white water color. The doll is then dressed up in a big cotton crepe and a blue stocking cap.

A ball made from scraps of velvet is a fine gift for a very little boy. It takes twelve pieces, measuring three inches across at their widest part to make it. They are sewed together, leaving an opening for stuffing with cotton, and the brighter the colors used the better.

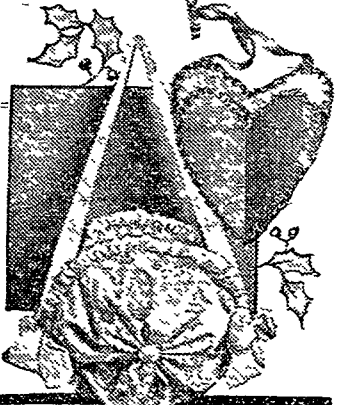

Gifts Made of Paper

Among inexpensive gifts that are at the same time elegant and worth while there are many little convenient articles made of prettily colored, heavy paper. Telephone and laundry lists, small portfolios, envelopes in which to place memoranda, etc., are among them. Two articles made of bright blue mottled paper are shown in the picture. The envelope for recipes is made by folding a straight strip of the paper into a pocket and flap. The sides of the pocket are fastened down with little bows of blue ribbon and the flap is ornamented with a painted spray of flowers in ink. The lettering is done in black.

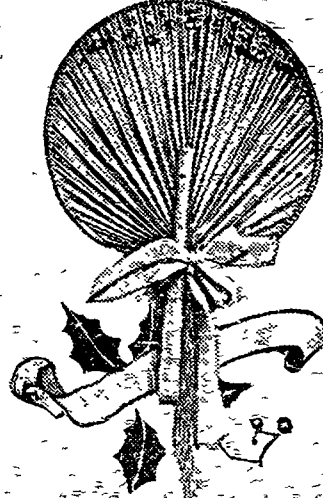

A long strip of the same paper folded over at each end carries one or more sheets of white paper on which a telephone list is to be written. Small white squares outlined with black ornament it and suggest that this is a man's list. It is tied with a bow of blue ribbon at the top.

Little Wall Pockets

Here are two pretty wall pockets to hang beside or on the dressing table, ready to hold whatever their owners choose to put in them. Disks of cardboard covered with gayly printed ribbon make the frivolous and dainty pocket at the left, and it is suspended by plain satin ribbon that ends in small bows at the sides. At the right two heart-shaped pieces of cardboard are covered smoothly with red satin and fastened together. The edges are finished with narrow puffing of ribbon, and the same ribbon serves to suspend the pocket. This smooth and matter-of-fact affair is evidently intended as a gift for a man. Two hearts with but a single pocket are quite meaningful. But one might use a diamond, a spade or even a club to make a similar pocket, and anyone of them will hold a deck of cards, score cards, pencils and such things, or pins, needles and thread for a bachelor.

A Novelty in Fans

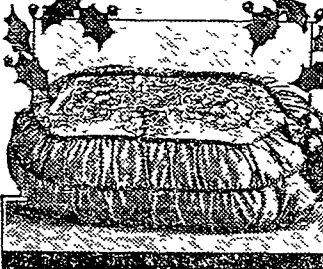

Small palm-leaf fans, all decked out with pretty furbelows are among the novelties that have been brought out for Christmas gifts. These fans are first palleted any desired color and then varnished. Then the edge is bound with ribbon having a picot edge or with gold or silver braid or other fancy binding. A spray of millinery flowers is tied against the handle, on one side of the fan, and the handle wound with ribbon that is tied in a bow below the flowers. Or flowers may be painted on the fan or made with sealing wax, as in the fan pictured here. This sample is bound with silver braid and has a long tassel of silver tinsel besides a ribbon bow on the handle. It is pretty in turquoise blue, rose color, red, etc., with ribbon and flowers in colors that harmonize, and is easy to make at home.

A Fad for Flowers

There is a fad for artificial flowers to be used instead of natural flowers for household decoration just now and every home-loving woman will be sure to enjoy a gift of this kind. Small garden roses, nasturtiums and chrysanthemums are great favorites and these particular flowers are cleverly made. They appear in baskets and vases, as shown above and make a charming Christmas gift.

Pretty Gift Cushions

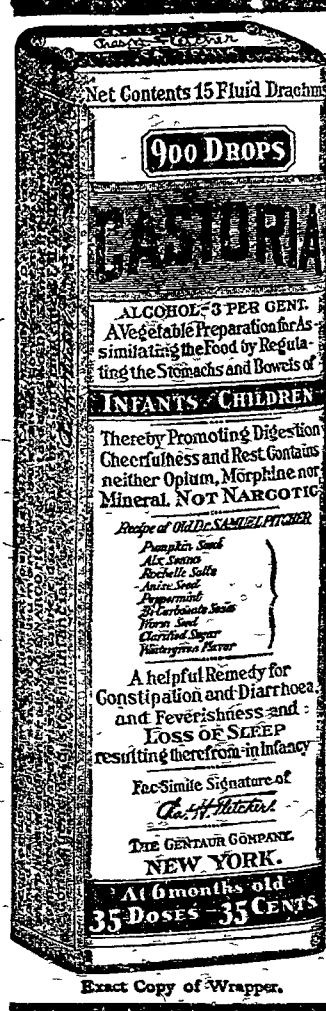

Cushions were never so numerous or so beautiful within the memory of the oldest gift seeker as they are now. They are made for chairs, window seats, lounges, couches and the floor, of all sorts of cheerful materials. Here is a handsome specimen in which brocade and plain satin ribbon are used and embellished with satin-covered cord and a cluster of roses and leaves made of satin ribbon.

Christmas Slippers

At the top is a gay little pair of ribbon slippers for the young girl. In the center there are elderdown bedroom slippers for any member of the family, and just below a pair of satin booties for baby, lined with plush or elderdown and bordered with fur. At the bottom is a pair of handsome bedroom slippers made of ribbon that will delight any woman.

You men and women who can't get feeling right—who have headache, coated tongue, bad taste and foul breath, dizziness, can't sleep, are bilious, nervous and upset, bothered with a sick, gassy, disordered stomach and colds.

Are you keeping your liver and bowels clean with Cascarets, or shocking your insides every few days with Calomel, Salts, Oil and violent pills?

Cascarets work while you sleep; they cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested, fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry out of the system all the constipated waste matter and poison in the bowels. Cascarets never gripe, sicken or cause inconvenience and Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

The Spirit of Unrest

Reaction from the stress of war, the High Cost of Living, and the disturbed conditions in industry throughout the world have combined to lower the morale of workers in many ways.

In the factory, in the mill, the high degree of pep and enthusiasm is lacking and production lags. Even domestic service has caught the contagion, as every housewife knows.

We think the claim none too broad that employees of the Bell System have been less affected by the spirit of unrest than the majority of other workers. Yet its effects have been felt and will continue to be felt until the world begins to swing back to normal.

The telephone management is doing all in its power to remedy conditions and restore service to pre-war standards. It asks the patience and co-operation of the telephone users.

LOOK TO SARDINIA FOR CORK

World Turning to That Island for Production of Material So Much in Demand.

Cork has probably passed olive-oil as the leading export of Sardinia and Commercial Attache A. P. Demus states that recent production has been so stimulated that a large factory at Tempio is quadrupling its capacity. The bark is stripped from the tree once in nine years. At the Tempio factory the dried bark is first thoroughly steamed and flattened out by hydraulic pressure; it then remains in piles about 30 days, when it is taken out covered with blue mold, and is carefully scraped on both sides and cut into widths varying according to the lengths of the cork stoppers, desired. The strips are cut by hand into cubes, a process requiring highly-skilled labor, with much care in picking out defective pieces. The corks have been rounded and tapered by high-speed cutting machines, but a new abrasive process is claimed to reduce the waste of this finishing from 20 to 30 per cent. Before the war the fine dust sold in Germany for unknown use for about $90 a ton. At Terranova the cork is differently utilized, the best being baled in sheets for ship use, while the inferior is coarsely ground and used with a magnesian surface for walls and floor ceilings. The war demand was for cork trench mattresses, which were both light and afforded protection from cold and moisture.

MOTOR CARS ON STAGE LINE

Old Four-in-hand Vehicles on Nevada Roadways Succumb to March of Improvement.

Stage lines in Nevada have abandoned the time-honored four-in-hand of horses in favor of high-powered motor busses. Daily with electric precision these big cars pound along the 100 miles of S. A. Highway, affording a carping passenger and mail in much less time and far greater comfort for the passengers and business men of today than ever the same roads were on a pair of the four-in-hand stage slow and not at all certain of reaching its destination. The cost of transportation by motor compares favorably with operating expenses of the horse stage. The proprietors of the lines are thorough business men and can tell to the penny the gasoline mileage of every car, the oil consumption and just how much service is obtained from tires. San Francisco Bulletin.

Land Reclamation Scheme.

The British board of agriculture has inaugurated a scheme for the reclamation of land on the Lincolnshire shore of the Wash. A bank is being constructed from Wainfleet, a little below Skegness to Ercoston, near Boston (Lincolnshire) commencing at the Wainfleet end and by this means it is hoped to recover about 12,000 acres. The work is in charge of a resident engineer in Wainfleet and will employ a large number of men, who will be selected from demobilized soldiers and sailors and thus obviate the taking of labor from agriculture. It is said that in the middle of the last century a reclamation scheme was started and it was then stated that in only 100 years the area would be reclaimed on the Wash to form a new English county. The enterprise was abandoned by experts, have always maintained its practicability which is now in the process of being tested.

Saw George Eliot's Ghost

The death of Mrs. Katharine Macquoid, the veteran novelist, at the great age of 112 years, severs another of the long remaining links with the Victorian past. A contemporary of George Eliot, Mrs. Macquoid used to tell how she once saw the famous writer in a vision. When George Eliot went to live at Cheston Mrs. Macquoid proposed to go and call on her. But before she could do so a remarkable and tragic thing happened. One night Mrs. Macquoid awoke suddenly and saw the figure of George Eliot standing between the bed and the wall. The apparition was distinct and unmistakable. On the following evening Mrs. Macquoid learned of George Eliot's death.

Things Looking Up in Serbia

There are many evidences of bettering conditions in Belgrade, Serbia. Belgrade university opened a short time ago. The American Red Cross is now erecting barracks to house the students during the summer. In the case of the people there is a marked change for the better in the last few months. Social gatherings are more frequent and a few moving picture theatres are in operation. Shops in the city are gradually re-filling with stocks. Prices are high because from the interior infertile a large grain harvest with a possible surplus for export in South Serbia. These reports have had encouraging effect on life in the capital.

China to Make Cement

The cement requirements of North China will probably soon be supplied by domestic production. One large concern is said to control this industry in North China, and its plant is located at Tangshan, a small town about 100 miles northeast of Tientsin, on the Peking-Hankow railway. It is equipped with modern machinery, and secured a supply of limestone on the site of the works.

TRIED TO WORK RED CROSS.

Charles E. King, claiming to have been a member of Co. B, second Division Engineers, according to the printed cards handed out claiming to be shell-shocked, and while he could hear was unable to talk, tried to work the Chelsea branch of the Red Cross for sufficient money to get him to his home in Flint, where he said he would receive $180 from the United States, but did not succeed. Rev. Dierberger inquired in Ann Arbor about King and got the answer that the same man has worked already other towns. An officer went after the fakir to arrest him but he had taken the electric car west—Ann Arbor Post.
