CELEBRATION WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

In spite of the inclemency of the weather the exercises in connection with the celebration of the ninetyeth anniversary of the First Presbyterian church of this village were carried out as planned with a very few exceptions. The services of Sunday were attended by large congregations and the programs given were both interesting and inspiring. The combined service of the Sunday school and church took place at ten o'clock and the part taken by the pupils of the school was admirably carried out. A welcome exercise was given by a class of little boys and Ruth Catermole, followed by a fitting welcoming address. The morning lesson was read by Superintendent Hotelling and prayer was offered by Rev. Henry S. Jenkinson of Arlington Heights, Ill., a former pastor. When birthday offerings were received, Mr. Scotten very thoughtfully contributed ninety cents as the offering for the ninetyeth birthday of the church. A class of girls sang "May Thy Blessings Rest Upon Us," the Sunday-school choir led the congregation in singing a number of inspiring songs, and Rev. W. T. Jacques, of Detroit, who served the church for a number of years as pastor, gave an address upon the subject "Ninety Years Young," in which he spoke of the wonderful advancement and progress made during the period covering the existence of the Northville church, and pointed out the future possibilities of the church and the community it represented.

For the church service Rev. E. V. Belles led in the responsive reading and read the scripture lesson of the morning. Rev. Jacques offered an earnest prayer, Carl H. Bryan sang "I Come to Thee," and the choir rendered the anthem "Holy, Holy, Holy." Mrs. S. E. Crafsen singing the solo. The choir and congregation joined in singing a number of familiar hymns, and Rev. Jenkinson delivered the sermon, taking for his subject "The race is not to the swift."

At the afternoon session the choir rendered "Golden Harps are Sounding," Miss Lucile Calkins sang a solo, and the choir and congregation sang a number of soul-stirring hymns. The historical address was given by Rev. Wm. S. Jerome, a former pastor, who is now located at White Pigeon, and who was recently honored by being chosen moderator of the Synod of Michigan, his subject being "Our debt to the past, our duty to the future."

For the evening session the choir rendered an anthem "Faith of Our Fathers," and led the congregation in a number of hymns. Mrs. A. E. Stanley and Mr. Carl Bryan sang a duet, "Hark, Hark, My Soul," Mrs. Lida Murphy sang an offertory solo, and Rev. Jerome E. Webber of Royal Oak, delivered the sermon, taking for his subject "America, the Hope of the World."

The fellowship supper on Monday night was one of the most enjoyable affairs of the whole church year, and those who made the plans have reason to congratulate themselves upon its great success. A fine spirit of fellowship was manifest and the social hours which preceded and followed the supper proved of more than ordinary interest. The former pastors of the church who had returned to take part in the anniversary exercises were present with their wives and they were greeted most cordially by the older as well as by the newer members of the congregation. At about six o'clock supper was announced and the feast prepared by the ladies of the church was a tempting one. The tables with their snowy linen and sparkling silver presented an attractive picture and the menu served was all that could have been desired. The men of the church assisted in serving and their efforts were greatly appreciated.

After all had been served Rev. E. V. Belles called the assemblage to order and announced the informal program. Mrs. K. M. Strong rendered a piano solo, and was compelled to respond with a second number. Mrs. A. E. Stanley and Carl H. Bryan sang "Hark, Hark, My Soul," by special request to the delight of all. Rev. Luther M. Bicknell, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Plymouth, brought greetings from the citizens of our neighboring village and he spoke most eloquently of the church and its mission in the community. Rev. H. J. B. Marsh, pastor of the M. E. church in this village, expressed the sentiments of his people in a splendid

SHRINERS ENJOYED VENISON DINNER

The Masonic Temple was thronged with Shriners and their families Monday evening who came in response to invitations sent out by a committee of local Moslem Temple members.

The particular attraction was a venison dinner made possible by the prowess of N. C. Schrader on his recent visit to the northern woods.

Nearly 150 guests sat down to the handsomely decorated tables and satisfied themselves with the numerous good things which were supplied.

The banquet was prepared by Fred A. Fry of Detroit, an expert chef and the man who was camp cook for the Schrader party in the north. Every one was delighted with the well-cooked venison and the abundance of home made apple pies. Individual capacity was the only limit of enjoyment. The service given by members of Lodge and Chapter was pleasing in every particular.

After the dinner the company was given mental stimulant in the way of responses to toasts. The speakers were N. C. Schrader, Fred A. Fry, James A. Huff, Dr. Lewis X. Tipper and Mark A. Gardner. The last named noble is illustrious Potentate of Moslem Temple with its 7,000 members.

Master Elmer Perrin was called upon to give a little welcome verse. Musical numbers were furnished by Montgomery's orchestra and solos by Miss June Fulkins and Mr. C. R. Van Valkenburg.

About 9:00 o'clock the company went over to the Alscium theatre and enjoyed the Mack Sennett film "Yankee Doodle in Berlin."

The Shriners are popular fellows and this social affair will be remembered for a long time to come.

SATURDAY NIGHT'S STORM.

The storm which reached this section late Saturday afternoon did a great deal of damage in various parts of the state, being very general all over Michigan. In many cities a great deal of damage was done, while in Detroit a number of people were killed as a result of the terrific wind. In this section a number of chimneys were blown from houses, some barns were unroofed and in the village windows were broken. The large plate glass in the postoffice gave way with a crash in the midst of the storm, a window was broken in J. A. Huff's basement the front window of the Northville Electric Shop was wrecked and in a number of homes about town windows were demolished by flying limbs from trees.

The high tension wires of the Detroit Edison Co. were blown down in the vicinity of Walled Lake and Northville was in darkness all of Saturday night. The damage to the wires was not repaired until Sunday afternoon.

The cars on the D. U. R. were greatly delayed as a result of the storm.

Fortunately on one was injured.

SUSPECT HAD A RECORD.

One night the first of last week Deputy Sheriff Lum of South Lyon became suspicious of two strangers he discovered loitering about the village in the vicinity of the State Savings Bank and placed them under arrest, placing them in the village jail until the following morning. While changing cars at Plymouth on the way to Pontiac one of the fellows made his escape. The other suspect gave his name as J. F. Francis of Cincinnati, but the fellow who ran away from the officer refused to divulge his name. After the prisoner was placed in the Oakland county jail officers began a search to establish the fellow's record and soon found it a pretty black one. It is alleged he had served time under various aliases and officers believe he is one of the most daring bank robbers in the country and that he has been implicated in many of the robberies that have taken place in Michigan within the past few months. Doubtless the fellows were at South Lyon for the purpose of committing robbery. Both were well supplied with money when arrested.

Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Slater and son, Frank, Jr., of Brooklyn, N. Y., and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Balden of Northville, were Sunday guests of Frank Dunn and family. Mr. Slater, who is general secretary of the Eastern District Branch, Y. M. C. A., of Brooklyn, was here as a delegate to the international convention, held in Detroit last week. The Slater's left for their home Tuesday night—Plymouth Mail.

Prominent Women Testify

Hillsdale, Mich.—"I am giving this testimony regarding the merits of Dr. Pierce's medicines from the actual use of them, and the good they have done me. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for feminine trouble and it cured me in a very short time. I have also taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. The doctor once burnt my tonsils with caustic and they would not heal up; they would bleed, and 'Golden Medical Discovery' cured me when nothing else seemed to do any good. I have also used Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets. I cannot say too much in praise of Dr. Pierce's medicines; they are all good."—Mrs. SARAH CULVER, 72 St. Joseph St.

HEALTH RESTORED

Mr. Knight Was Down With Kidney Complaint; Found Doan's the Remedy Needed.

"Kidney trouble put me in a bad way," says Thomas A. Knight, Retired Insurance Agent, 624 N. Ninth St., East St. Louis, Ill. "It came on with pain across my back and the attacks kept getting worse until I had a spell that laid me up. Morphine was the only relief and I couldn't move without help. The kidney secretions were scanty, painful and filled with sediment. I was unable to leave the house, could not rest, and became utterly exhausted. The only way I could take ease was by bolstering myself up with pillows. For three months I was in that awful condition and the doctor said I had gravel. Doan's Kidney Pills brought me back to good health and I have gained wonderfully in strength and weight."

Holiday Fun With Shadows for Youngsters

By A. NEELY HALL

Every boy likes to give home entertainments, and probably the best time of the year is right now during the holidays when grandmother and grandfather have come to visit, and an appreciative audience is at hand. There are so many things for a boy to do during this vacation; however, that there is little time to prepare an entertainment, so I shall show you how to give a shadow exhibition, as this can be arranged in a short time.

It requires only a few minutes to get the knack of shadow making, and after you have tried out the forms in the accompanying illustrations you will find it easy to devise others.

The shadows must be cast upon a sheet, and the audience must be seated on one side of this, and the operator stand on the other side. It is best to hang the sheet in a doorway so the light by which the shadows are made can be confined to the screen, because the room in which the audience are seated must be dark. By hanging a dark cloth over the upper and lower portions of the doorway the area of the picture screen can be reduced to just the size necessary, and the covered lower portion will conceal the shadow of the boy performer's body (Fig. 1). The light for projecting shadows must be placed about five feet in back of the screen.

Animal Shadows.
Figs. 1 and 2 show a rabbit shadow, and how the hands are held to produce it. Interlock your little fingers, then slide the back of your left hand over onto the back of your right hand. Form the nose and head by doubling back the first finger of the left hand, and the ears by extending the second and third fingers, and extend the thumb and first three fingers of the right hand for the feet. By wiggling the first finger the rabbit can be made to nibble.

The alligator shadow (Fig. 3) is a one-hand shadow made with the aid of two pieces of cardboard notched along their edges to form teeth (Fig. 4). Fig. 3 shows how the teeth are held between the extended fingers, and how the alligator's eye is formed by light passing through an opening between the first and second fingers. With your free hand give the alligator things to eat. His eating will greatly amuse your audience. With modifications, a snake's head can be formed with your arm extended for its body.

Fig. 5 shows a wolf's head, and Fig. 6 a donkey's. Both are formed by placing the palms of the hands together, with thumbs up for ears, the first fingers drawn in for the forehead, and the little fingers dropped for the lower jaw. These shadows are a good example of how different figures are produced by extending or bending the fingers.

Duck or Santa Head.
The duck's head (Fig. 7) is a simple one-hand shadow. By dropping and raising the little finger the duck appears to open and close its bill. It can be made to snap at flies very naturally. Santa Claus' profile (Fig. 8) requires a cardboard hat (Fig. 9). The first finger forms the nose, the second and third fingers the lips, and a piece of cotton held between the third and fourth fingers makes the whiskers.

PRETTY CHRISTMAS GIFTS THAT ANY GIRL CAN MAKE.

By DOROTHY PERKINS.

Most of the material required for the gifts in the illustrations can be picked up at home, which will be appreciated by every girl who has many to remember at Christmas time and small means to procure gifts with. Besides, these gifts are quickly made.

A Fancywork Basket.
You will not make a mistake in providing a handy workbasket like that in Fig. 1, for mother. Its end pockets for needles, thread, scissors and other small articles are constructed outside of the basket, which leaves the entire inside space for work. A grape-basket, or any basket of about its size, may be used.

Figure 2 shows the start of an end pocket. Cut a piece of cardboard of the shape of A (Fig. 3), and hinge it to the basket bottom by means of strip B. With both pockets started, cover the basket with cretonne, running it around the cardboard ends to form sides to the pockets (Fig. 1). Conceal the handle by wrapping a strip of cretonne around it.

A Whisk-Broom Holder.
Either a man or woman will appreciate this convenient article. A stationary box forms its foundation

Such a box usually has the proportions shown in Fig. 2. The first thing to do is to remove one end, and enough of the top, bottom and sides, to make the box square. The dotted line in Fig. 2 shows where to cut. The second step is to remove a side adjoining that just removed, cut away the top to the shape of the finished front, and cut away one corner to form the open bottom of the rack. This cutting is shown by dotted lines in Fig. 3, and Fig. 4 shows the pieces thus prepared. Sew together what remains of the box and cover, then conceal the surfaces with cretonne and fasten a small bow and loop of ribbon through a hole punched through the upper corner of the back, for a hanger.

A Twine Holder.
This unique holder may be used for either crochet-cotton or twine. It requires the head of a small coil (Fig. 2), and a small "cat" basket (Fig. 3). The doll's head must be fastened to the basket in such a way that it can be removed easily for putting a new ball inside of it. It is with bands of ribbon, passing these around the doll's neck and shoulders, and around the basket, and tying the ends in bows. Cut a strip of pretty colored silk of the proportions shown in Fig. 4, run a thread through a hem made in one edge, for a gathering string, and by means of this thread gather the silk about the doll's head to form a ruffle and sleeves. Add a neck ribbon. Figure 1 shows how the twine or crochet cotton is pulled out through one of the sleeve openings.

The KITCHEN CABINET

You poor, despised, humble plant! Why is it some will never grant Your many virtues, tho' they can't Forget your smell? Your uncomplaining, patient mien Has touched my heart with sorrow keen; The tears I've shed o'er you, I ween, Would fill a well!

THE ONION.

The odoriferous bulb is one of our choice flavoed vegetables and a touch of onion in many dishes gives just the appetizing flavor needed. The onion is also wholesome served as a main dish.

Onions With Cheese.
Cook until tender a half dozen even-sized onions. Drain and place a layer in a buttered baking dish, cover with a well-seasoned white sauce and sprinkle generously with a rich strong cheese. Cover with another layer of onions and sauce and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown. The secret of this delicious dish is having the cheese between the layers protected from the heat, but hot enough to melt it.

Cream of Onion Soup.—Heat a quart of milk, add two tablespoonfuls of butter and two of flour cooked together and two cupfuls of cooked onions. Mash and put through a puree strainer. Season with salt, cayenne and sprinkle with minced parsley and a bit of grated cheese.

Onion Sandwich.—Chop a half cupful of Spanish onion, add olive oil, salt, pepper, vinegar and mix to the consistency for spreading. Place on well-buttered slices of bread and serve for lunch Sunday night, after church.

One avoids going abroad among people after eating fresh onions. When it is necessary eat a sprig of parsley which will absorb the odor to a great extent.

Onion Salad.—Slice a Spanish onion quite thin, cover with French dressing, adding a teaspoonful of tomato catsup, salt and cayenne to the oil and vinegar. Sprinkle with minced parsley and serve. One large onion will serve several.

During the "flu" epidemic physicians who were most successful, used a chopped onion poultice on the chest of the patient—a remedy most effective but not especially pleasant to take.

Onion sirup made by baking onions and sugar is one of the best of cough cures.

The fragrance of a thought may rise To nobler life and subtler guise As will as violets by the brook— A thing too rare to set in books, Or cage in song.

—Richard E. Day.

EASY LUNCHEON DISHES.

A dish or luncheon which is not too hearty but sufficiently sustaining will be found in the following:

Curried Salmon.—Chop a small onion fine and fry brown in one tablespoonful of butter. Mix one teaspoonful of curry powder with one tablespoonful of flour and a pinch of salt. Stir into the butter. Add slowly one cupful of hot water, stirring briskly. When the sauce is thick add one cupful of flaked salmon and cook until the whole is thoroughly hot.

Salt Fish Hash.—Use salt mackerel, herring or codfish left from breakfast. Mix with an equal quantity of cold mashed potato and warm in the frying pan with a little butter, adding a bit of grated onion for seasoning. The fish and potato may be made into flat cakes and fried brown in butter, or the hash may be baked in ramekins, filled two-thirds full and an egg broken into each dish. Bake in a hot oven until the egg is set.

Breaded Tongue.—Slice cold cooked tongue very thin; dip the slices in beaten egg, then in bread crumbs and cook in deep fat. Serve with tomato sauce.

Stew of Oysters and Celery.—Dissolve a teaspoonful of beef extract in two cupfuls of boiling water. Add two cupfuls of milk, a tablespoonful of butter, salt, pepper and mace for seasoning. Add a cupful of finely cut celery and simmer until the celery is tender. Add a cupful of oysters, parboiled in their own liquor, and half a cupful of cracker crumbs. Bring to a boil and serve at once.

Baked Sardines.—Skin twelve large sardines; bring to a boil in a little water, reserving the oil which was strained from the fish. Add a cupful of water, a teaspoonful each of Worcestershire, made mustard and vinegar, with salt and pepper to taste. Arrange the fish on a platter which will bear the heat of the oven, and bake. When the sauce is boiling hot add a beaten egg yolk and stir until thick. Pour the sauce over the fish and serve at once.

CARRIES WEALTH IN MOUTH

Bowhead Whale Worth Much Money If Only That Part of Its Anatomy Were Usable.

A full-grown bowhead whale is worth $15,000 merely for the whalebone it carries in its mouth. This is the species that furnishes the bulk of the commercial supply of whalebone, which is now worth $7.50 a pound. It is a denizen of the arctic seas.

The bowhead, like other whalebone whales, has no teeth. Instead, its jaws are furnished with a series of long, tapering slabs of a horny substance fringed with hair. Of these slabs, which are the whalebone of commerce, there are as many as 600.

The biggest of them are 10 to 12 feet long, and they are inserted in the gum of the upper jaw, from which they hang. They serve as a sieve to strain out the whale's food. "Swim ming along, it takes a huge mouthful of squids and other pelagic small fry. Then the huge trap is closed and, the slabs entering and fitting into grooves in the lower jaw, the water is expelled.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., DEC. 5, 1913.

NINETY FRUITFUL YEARS.

How sweet and priceless are memories. If one could exchange the memories of childhood, youth or the more mature years of life for gold or precious jewels they would be poor indeed. The memories which cluster about the ninety years which have passed since the Presbyterian church was established in this village are many and they are highly prized by all who have had a part in the affairs of the society during all the intervening years.

To the men and women who gave their thought and effort toward the establishment of the church in this vineyard of the Lord the people of this present generation owe a great debt of gratitude. They laid one of the foundation stones upon which the splendid citizenship of this community has been reared, they set the worthy example of service and sacrifice which this present government ought to emulate. From their feeble efforts and endeavors has grown the present membership of the society, and the handsome edifice which now houses the congregation is a result of their faith and prayers.

In the congregation Sunday were those who, not so many years ago were members of the infant classes of the Sunday school of the days gone by. They were taught the lessons of the Christ-life, and by precept and example were inspired to follow in the footsteps of Him who "came to seek and to save." The value of this early training upon the character of those who have come under the influence of the church cannot be estimated, and this community has been enriched by their lives. Young men and women have gone out into other fields of activity, bearing with them the lessons they have learned in the "home church" and the communities to which they have gone, have been enriched by the early influences which touched their young lives and which aided in shaping their future course and purpose in the world.

Ninety years of helpful service is a record to be proud of. Ninety years, each year forming a golden link in the chain of sweet memories, during which the lives of girls and boys, women and men have been enriched and blessed. Such is the record of the First Presbyterian church of Northville—a record in which every citizen of this community has reason to take personal pride. May the years to come bear rich fruitage, and may the church by its uplifting influences keep alive the faith and devotion of those early pioneers who so devoutly laid the foundation so many years ago.

MAYNERS INDICTED.

While an indictment by a federal grand jury does not necessarily mean that the accused are guilty, the action of the jury which has been hearing the Newberry election case at Grand Rapids for the past several weeks, caused a good deal of a sensation throughout the state. A total of 131 men were indicted and such warrants were issued for them as the first of the week. These men are charged with conspiracy in connection with the nomination and election of Mr. Newberry to a seat in the United States senate and the outcome of the trial will be watched with great interest. It is fortunate for the people and for the defendants that Judge Charles W. Sessions will preside at the trial of these cases because he is an honorable and fearless judge, and if these accusations have been inspired by partisan politics, Judge Sessions will not be slow in finding the dark object in the woodpile. If, on the contrary, these men have been guilty as charged, they will receive a fair trial and a just sentence.

CHILDREN SHOULD BE WARNED.

Parents will do well to caution their children about riding their wagons and sleds or skating in the streets. Last week Friday there were a number of very close calls because children were riding their sleds on the new pavements. It is impossible for motorists to see in all directions, especially in the winter time when many cars have side curtains, and the children should be advised to exercise great care in crossing the streets.

By a united effort on the part of parents, children and motorists we may be able to prevent any serious accidents in Northville.

It would have been a real inspiration to every resident of this section to have heard the address given by Rev. W. T. Jacques of Detroit at the Presbyterian anniversary services Sunday morning. His word picture of Northville's future was most inspiring as he depicted many hundreds of Detroiters would acquire homes out this way within the next few years. There is but one thing that will prevent this prophecy from becoming an established fact—that is the inability of those who desire to come this way to secure comfortable homes. That is the great problem for Northville people to solve within the next few years. With the proper co-operation on the part of our citizens this condition can be met, and the result can be achieved in such a manner that the project will prove a profitable investment. Other towns are meeting similar conditions by co-operation. Northville must not be behind its neighbors in the movement to provide suitable homes for all who desire to become residents of this section.

DEATH OF MRS. GARFIELD.

Mrs. Mary Lavina Garfield, the beloved wife of T. A. Garfield, died at her home in this village Tuesday after an illness of over a year, during which she had been confined to her bed six months.

Mrs. Mary Lavina Dodge was born in Novi township, March 3rd, 1850, and she spent all of her years in and around this vicinity. Fifty-two years ago next January she was united in marriage to Mr. Garfield and they have traveled life's pathway in a happy, lovable way. Besides her husband she is survived by ten children—Mrs. Ida Cook, Clarence Garfield, Mrs. Flora Maloin, Mrs. E. C. Hilborn, Mrs. R. H. Sackett, Mrs. M. D. Taylor, Grant Garfield, Mrs. G. C. Cameron, Avery Garfield and Truman A. Garfield Jr., 15—grandchildren, 4—great grandchildren, one brother Frank Dodge of Novi, and one sister Mrs. J. C. VanBuren of Clyde, Mich. She was a devoted wife and mother and a considerate and obliging neighbor and many friends and acquaintances in this section were saddened to learn of her demise. Funeral services will be held at the family home this Friday afternoon at two o'clock and burial will take place in Rural Hill cemetery.

"ACHIEVEMENT DAY" FOR CLUB MEMBERS.

In spite of the continued downpour of last Saturday, the first annual "Achievement Day" of Wayne County Boys and Girls clubs was a decided success. Ninety-four club members and their parents visited the Plymouth High school and viewed the splendid exhibits, especially the poultry, canning and garment making.

A banquet was served in the basement of the Methodist church at noon and following this a very good program was given. County Club Leader, G. O. Stewart, acting as toastmaster. Supt. G. A. Smith, of Plymouth High school, gave a short "welcome" to the club members and urged for better education, better modes of living and living for higher ideals. Mrs. J. Forrest Lindsay, local leader of the Sand Hill Poultry club, very ably discussed the "Past, Present and Future" of poultry work in Wayne county. Mrs. Lindsay just recently moved from Sand Hill community and her club members and friends came over with the largest delegation to put their old-time spirit in the meeting.

O. I. Gregg, County Agent, responded to a toast on "Times have changed" emphasizing the importance of giving a boy ownership on the farm and of putting him properly before young people. Miss Rogers, the Home Demonstration agent told of the Winter Work for Girls and what is being planned for club work during the coming months. R. A. Turner, State Club Leader of the Michigan Boys' college spoke on "Achievement" and brought home many good ideas on how we ought to finish up any job we attempt to start. County Championships awarded.

At the close of the program, County Club Leader Stewart announced the winners in the Poultry and Canning projects. Fourteen pens of chickens were exhibited and very close competition resulted. Marion Strong, of the Sand Hill club, won first place; Ruth Pullen, of Belleville second; Dora Wells, Sand Hill, third and Deci Watkins, Dearborn, fourth.

As a reward for her efforts the new county champion in poultry, Marion Strong will receive a free trip to the Michigan Agricultural college next summer. She will attend the summer camp for county champions and all expenses will be paid by the Farm Bureau.

The Michigan State Fair association awarded a large bronze loving cup as second prize and this went to Ruth Pullen of Belleville.

Canning Club Girl Set New Record.

With little or no competition in canning Louise Deveres of near Dearborn, carried away honors as county champion in canning. She canned a total of 267½ quarts of vegetables, fruits, greens, jellies, catsup and mushrooms. This has a total value of $123.18. She will receive a free trip to the summer camp at M. A. C. Evelyn Crowley of near Dearborn received second place in canning, the judges being unable to determine third place on account of lack of reports.

Five reels of movie on health, war, travel and comedy closed the program and all were determined to start anew and make for another bigger and better "Achievement Day."

A Brother's Present

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

(Copyright 1913 by Western Newspaper Union)

HERE was once," said Daddy, "a boy whose name was Worthington, and for short they called him Worthy."

"He had a sister, whom he called Minnie, and it is a story of these two I want to tell you this evening."

Nick and Nancy looked very much pleased. They loved to hear about other children, especially of boys and girls about their own ages.

Worthington was unlike some brothers, but he was like you in that way, Nick. He liked to play with his sister. His sister liked too, to play with him. He never frightened her, but he showed her how to do things, and she was never afraid when she was with him. In the fall he took her for rides in his express cart, and he made a high seat in the cart for her when he took her for slower and more stylish rides.

"He taught her to climb trees and to swim and to do tricks on the tight rope. And she, too, used to play in the snowball fights back in the fall, which he and the other boys would make."

"Well, it was summer, and Worthington was not going to school. He thought and he thought and he thought, and finally he said:

"I wonder if it couldn't be done. I will try anyway." He worked out the whole scheme in his head, and the next day he went to his aunt who owned a garden, and he said:

"Auntie, I have been thinking. More Stylish Rides."

"Yes," she said, "what have you been thinking about, Bobby?" For she had always called him that—ever since he had been a small boy, and she had written a funny little poem for one of his birthdays where she wrote Bobby to make it rhyme with chubby.

"Thank Minnie is old enough to ride a bicycle now. I would like to give her one."

"A bicycle!" exclaimed their aunt. "Why don't you suggest giving her an automobile or a motorboat with a sleeping cabin? How could you ever manage it, Bobby?"

"She hadn't realized that he had thought it all out, and she stopped to hear what he had to say, for he usually had extremely sensible things to say."

"It wouldn't really be so awfully expensive, auntie, and I'd love to do it. I would like to give it to her for Christmas. I couldn't do it by the time I don't believe, and besides she would look at it all winter and think of what she had done to be in the garden. I have a bicycle mother and father gave me and I do wish Minnie could have one."

"You can't buy a bicycle for a girl," she said. "She would break it in a week. I could make one for her. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden."

"I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden."

"I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden."

"I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden. I could make it so that she could ride it in the garden."

Ford THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Sedan, with electric self-starting and lighting system and demountable rims with 3½-inch tires front and rear, is a family car of class and comfort, both in summer and in winter. For touring it is a most comfortable car. The large plate glass windows make it an open car when desired, and in case of rain and all inclement weather, it can be made a most delightful closed car in a few minutes. Rain-proof, dust-proof, fine upholstery, broad, roomy seats. Simple in operation. Anybody can safely drive it. While it has all the distinctive and economical merits of the Ford car in operation and maintenance. Won't you come in and look it over?

THE SKY SEEMS TO BE THE LIMIT.

The price of print paper is still going skyward and all signs point to a further advance. At present market prices of print paper, such as is used in producing The Record, the paper used in fifty-two issues of this newspaper costs about 75 cents in the market. To this must be added freight charges and the expenses of labor necessary to set the type and produce the printed copies. This leaves but little net profit on a yearly subscription if all accounts are paid. It is a fact, however, that without adopting an iron clan rule demanding subscription payments in advance fully 25 per cent of subscriptions must be charged to loss for the reason that many very good people—those who are honest and who intend to pay their obligations—will neglect to pay for their paper, and when a publisher presses them for a settlement of their accounts they have the postmaster mark their paper "refused" and tell the publisher to whistle for his pay. The accounts are small and rather than go to the expense and trouble of forcing collections publishers as a rule pocket their losses and keep on "smiling." The high cost of paper stock of all kinds is having the effect of removing some of those "smiles," however, and in the future publishers will be compelled to adhere strictly to the cash in advance system or their publications will drift upon the rocks.

There never was a time when it cost so much to produce a newspaper as it does today, and friends of The Record will confer a special favor by renewing their subscription accounts promptly.

COMMISSIONER'S NOTICE.

In the matter of the estate of JESSE W. CLARK, deceased. We, the undersigned, having been appointed by the Probate Court for the county of Wayne, state of Michigan, commissioners to receive, examine and adjust all claims and demands of all persons against said deceased, do hereby give notice that we will meet at the Lapham State Savings Bank, Northville, Mich., in said county, on Wednesday, the 14th day of January A. D. 1920, and on Saturday, the 13th day of March A. D. 1920, at 10 o'clock a. m. of each of said days, for the purpose of examining and allowing said claims, and that four months from the 14th day of November A. D. 1919, were allowed by said court for creditors to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, November 14th, 1919.
EDWARD H. LAPHAM,
ERNEST E. MILLER,
Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Wayne, ss.: At a session of the Probate Court for said county of Wayne, held at the Probate Court room in the city of Detroit, on the twenty-sixth day of November in the year one thousand nine hundred and nineteen.

Present Henry S. Hulbert, Judge of Probate.

In the matter of the estate of SUSAN GORTON, deceased.

An instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, having been delivered into this court for probate.

It is ordered, that the seventh day of January next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon at said court room, be appointed for proving said instrument.

And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published three successive weeks, previous to said time of hearing, in the Northville Record, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Wayne.

(A true copy.)
HENRY S. HULBERT,
Judge of Probate.

MICHIGAN CHURCHES TO MEET.

Two training conferences, which will bring together prominent church leaders and delegates representing practically every Protestant denomination in Michigan will be held in December by the Inter-church World Movement of North America. The first meeting will be held in Grand Rapids, December 1, 2 and 3 and the second at Detroit, December 17, 18 and 19.

Plans will be made for promoting church co-operation throughout Michigan. Leaders of national reputation will assist.

The Interchurch Movement plans to provide an organization through which Protestant churches of North America, for a similar movement has been started in Canada—can co-operate to their mutual advantage, always looking forward to the ultimate ideal of the Christianization of the world.

Survivors of religious, social and economical conditions in every city and county in the United States and in every country abroad are being made that will reveal the actual religious needs and their relation to the social and economical situations throughout the world.

TO HOLD EXAMINATIONS.

Examinations to establish a list of eligibles for appointment as special agent of the special intelligence unit of the Bureau of Internal Revenue will be held by the United States Civil Service Commission December 10, 1919 and January 7, 1920. The special intelligence unit is not a part of the administration branch for the enforcement of the prohibition laws, the duty of special agents being to investigate charges of violation of all internal revenue laws. Investigation and report is made by them, of charges of serious infractions by employees of the rules and regulations governing the Internal Revenue Service. Entrance salaries range from $1,500 to $3,000 a year, with opportunity for promotion to $3,600 a year. Allowance is made for traveling expenses.

Applicants must be between the ages of 25 and 45 of the date of the examination. Age limits, however, do not apply to persons entitled to preference because of military or naval service.

The examinations will be held in the following cities: Ann Arbor, Cheboygan, Battle Creek, Detroit, Flint, Jackson, Lansing, Port Huron, and Saginaw.

Information and application blanks can be obtained by addressing the local secretary United States Civil Service Board at the postoffice.

HONOR LIST OF HIGH SCHOOL STUDENTS.

The list of honor students is figured on the basis of the four basic subjects for grades 9-12 and the five major subjects in grades 7-8. To be on the honor list, the student must have a grade of "A" or "B" in all basic subjects. A grade of "C" is allowed for one subject if all the other grades are "A."

The following are the honor students for November:

Doris Coleman 5-A George Henry, 5-A Ina Wolfram 4-A, Ruth Cattermole, 4-A, Grace Franklin 3-A 2-B, Barbara Blackourn, 2-A 2-B Elizabeth VanValkenburg, 2-A 1-B, Starr Northrop 2-A 3-B Edmund Yerkes, 2-A 3-B Alvina Stamann, 2-A 2-B, Harm VanDam 2-A, 2-B Olive Eiden, 2-A 2-B Elizabeth Henry, 2-A 2-B, Jack Blackburn, 2-A 2-B: Helen Millard 2-A 2-B, Mildred Baldwin, 2-A, 2-B, Carlos Hall, 1-A 4-B Geneva Stevens, 1-A 4-B, Beva Schrader, 1-A 4-B, Leola Sonnenberg 1-A 4-B, Geo Wilcox, 1-A 3-B, Kathleen Bovee 5-B, Elizabeth Lapham, 4-B Garnette Baughman, 4-B, Ellen Hartman 4-B, Lorne Willard, 4-B TEAM CLOSES SEASON.

Northville lost the last game to Royal Oak to the tune of 33-7. The weight of the Royal Oak team was the factor that won the game. They were unable to complete a single pass and were stopped when attempts were made around the ends. Royal Oak has a fine team and their playing was very sportsmanlike.

The local boys uncorked a goodly number of passes that were good for gains from 5 to 25 yards. Several passes were muffed by Moffat and Stilwell, but the majority were completed. Freydl played a fine defensive game, blocking holes in the line and knocking down forward passes. Green, Stilwell, Chapman made several good runs: Green especially made a couple of spectacular runs, that put the ball in a position for Chapman to carry it over. Litsenberger playing defensive end, in the last half made half of the team's tackles.

The work of the team as a whole was good, playing most of the time on defensive. Green and Chapman both outplayed their opponents, getting away with some beautiful kicks.

The team won seven out of nine games and defeated some schools for the first time in the history of the school. The scores are as follows:

Farmington 9, Northville 19. Inkster 6; Northville 36. Plymouth 6; Northville 39. Farmington 6; Northville 36. Dearborn 0; Northville 20.

Since the armistice, the United States War Department has given away $100,000,000 worth of medical supplies to the Red Cross in Europe.

The death cell of Edith Cavell will be made a national shrine in her memory. An appropriate bronze inscription will be placed on the prison.

Her clothing, books and personal effects will be preserved in her cell.

To prove that butchers are profiteers a number of Chicago meat cutters went on strike and opened independent markets. They cut all meat prices in two, selling porterhouse at 18 cents a pound, and still one shop made $547 profit in one day.

Prohibition was necessary because so many objected to temperance, thinking that it meant total abstinence.

YOU certainly get yours when you lay your smokecards on the table, call for a tidy red tin or a toppy red bag of Prince Albert and roll a makin's cigarette! You'll want to hire a statistical bureau to keep count of your smokestunts! Why, you never dreamed of the sport that lies awaiting your call in a home rolled cigarette when it's P. A. for the packing!

Talk about flavor! Man, man, you haven't got the listen of half your smokecareer until you know what rolling 'em with P. A. can do for your contentment! And, back of P. A.'s flavor, and rare fragrance—proofs of Prince Albert's quality—stands our exclusive patented process that cuts out bite and parch! With P. A. your smokesong in a makin's cigarette will outlast any phonograph record you ever heard! Prince Albert is a cinch to roll. It's crimp cut and stays put like a regular pal!

Prince Albert upsets any notion you ever had as to how delightful a jimmy pipe can be! It is the tobacco that has made three men smoke pipes where one was smoked before. It has won men all over the nation to the joys of smoking.

WIXOM CHURCH NOTES.

Special services are now in progress with very good interest. We cordially invite all to come and enjoy the meetings—under the leadership of Rev. F. L. Prestidge of Pontiac, who is not only a splendid preacher, but also a splendid singer and leader. Remember he is to have charge of the Sunday services both morning and evening.

Congregations were small last Sunday on account of the wind storm on Saturday, but it did not affect the heavy weights much.

DETROIT THEATRES.

McIntire and Heath, in their brilliant new musical extravaganza, "Hello Alexander" remain for a second week at the Shubert-Detroit where they have been delighting enormous audiences. The wisdom of booking these famous impersonators of the old-time, but widely differing darkey types is quite apparent, and a succession of crowded houses during the remainder of their stay is presaged by the heavy advance sale. The only matinee to be given will be those of Wednesday and Saturday.

One of the best of this season's crop of new plays is scheduled for presentation at the Garrick theatre for one week beginning Sunday night, December 7th, when F. Ray Comstock and Morris Gest will send "The Five Millions" to Detroit. It was this play that was rushed to Broadway early in July and had just gotten started on what promised to develop into a season's run when the actor's strike came along and closed it up along with every other play in New York. Later the run was resumed at another play house, the Maxine Elliott, and when the few available weeks open had been rounded out there, it was moved to still a third theatre, the Comedy, which gave it a total of fourteen weeks in the metropolis. It comes here direct from its Chicago engagement where at the Princess theatre it had come west since "Turn To The Right".

LETTER FROM CALIFORNIA.

Miss Mildred Ely writes as follows to one of her former schoolmates, of her trip west last month:

Riverdale, Calif., Nov. 24, 1919.
"Dear Doris—Now I will write you all about our trip. We got here yesterday noon. You know, of course that we left Detroit at 1:55 Wednesday and arrived in Chicago that night. Had to change stations so took a bus and saw some of the town. When we got to the other depot we had to wait about 20 minutes for our train. Next day we were in Iowa, which is about like Michigan. Met some real nice people going to San Francisco. They had a boy about James age and a girl about the age of Bernice Clark. We crossed the Mississippi river in the night, and also the Missouri. Got in Denver 45 minutes late and just got our train. We saw our first mountain near Denver. That city is very moky. All that day we rode in a country. Saw Castle Rock. It used to be a landmark for the Indians, also saw Elephant Rock and it looks like one too."

"The scenery from Denver to Colorado Springs is beautiful. We could see Pike's Peak from the latter place, and saw it all the rest of that day. We visited Mr. Lockwood's brother in Carson City. Went thru the Royal Gorge, which is wonderful. The Arkansas river runs thru it and there is just enough room for the railroad track to pass between the rocks. The next day we were crossing the desert and it is just sand as far as you can see. Have taken quite a few pictures from the train windows. Feather River Canyon was the next bit of scenery. It is perfectly wonderful. The Feather river flows through it. The train passed through 34 tunnels and would in and out through the mountains which were covered with pine trees. The canyon is 94 miles long and we were in California when we came out of it. At a little town called Orville we got off the train and had our pictures taken in front of a grape fruit tree. We stayed in San Francisco all that night as we were too late to catch the train for Los Angeles so we came down to the city in the day time. We arrived at Colton at 12:15 noon which is seven miles from Riverside, and uncle Leonard came over and met us. "We then went to see our new home. I like it real well only we can't move in until the 10th of Dec. Yesterday I picked an orange, and some roses which are beautiful, much prettier than ours were, and people don't think anything of picking them. For breakfast this morning I had fresh strawberries and peaches. I think I will start to school on Monday. Well, guess I have told you everything so will close. My address is 544 Jurupa Ave., Riverside Calif. Be sure and write."

Remember always to relax when so activity is required of you. When you sit down, rest all over. Do not choose a rocker and waste your energy propelling it to an invisible destination; nor tap your fingers on a chair; nor finger the buckle at your waist or the chain about your throat; nor tie your feet up in bow-knots when they should rest easily on the floor. If you think about it you will be amazed to find how much rest time you have always wasted.

War and After War

For one year the Bell Telephone System, as well as other telephone, telegraph, cable and radio systems, was under control and supervision of the government of the United States. This was a war measure, designed to give the war agencies of the country the fullest use of all facilities of communication.

During this time the normal development and expansion of all telephone systems was necessarily subordinated to governmental needs. Materials and equipment had to be utilized first in the construction and maintenance of lines for war purposes. Ordinary development and expansion waited.

The Bell Telephone System is making headway in its effort to overtake the demand for service which developed during this period of suspension, but some time will yet be required before the expansion of the business can proceed at normal speed.

Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughan is out with a plea to rural automobile drivers of Wayne county to file their applications for their 1920 licenses and tags early. The usual rush after the first of the year means congestion and delay which may be avoided by early action.

CO-OPERATIVE STORES.

The Ford interests are making plans to establish stores to be operated on a co-operative basis for the benefit of employees in Highland Park, Dearborn and wherever they have manufacturing plants. This will mean, if trial proves the scheme successful, the establishment of Ford co-operative stores in many cities, says the Detroit News.

PLAN DEMONSTRATION FARM.

Arrangements are being made by the Wayne County Farm Bureau to operate a demonstration plot at Eloise next season. The directors of this county institution are very much interested in the plan and firmly believe that on such a plot experiments could be conducted without any real expense that would be of great benefit to the farmers. County Agent Gregg will have charge of planning the demonstration and the scope it is to cover.

CALIFORNIA AUTO DRIVERS' SIGNALS, A LAW.

Here is the motor driver's signal system which is now a law in sunny California, and might well be adopted in Michigan. Arm raised—turning to the right; arm straight out—turning to the left; arm lowered—going to slow down or come to a halt. That's all there is to it. And the Californians consider it quite simple and satisfactory. Too, this system being a law, every driver uses it, and consequently every other driver knows what the other driver is going to do—instinctly! There are no long waits filled with apprehension while figuring out what the fellow ahead with a signal system all his own is going to do.

PRIZE ESSAY CONTEST FOR STUDENTS.

A prize essay contest open to the pupils in Michigan schools has been arranged by the Daughters of the American Revolution and the Michigan Federation of Women's clubs.

The subject of the essay must be "The life and service of distinguished men and women of our country," and the contest will be under the management and direction of the superintendents of schools and the presidents of women's clubs throughout the state.

First and second prizes will be awarded to children under 15 years of age.

First and second prizes will be awarded to children over 15 years of age.

FARM BUREAU GROWING.

Lansing probably will be the place of the annual meeting of the Michigan State Farm Bureau, which is increasing its membership at the rate of more than 500 a week, this year. Tentative arrangements are being made to have the meeting in the state capital city during Farmers' week, the first week in February, when thousands of farmers from all over the state are expected to be assembled. Among the speakers expected are Governor Albert E. Sleeper, Governor Frank O. Lowden of Illinois and Dr. Konjoon Butterfield.

BIG FARM GATHERING PLANNED AT M. A. C.

Special new exhibits on agricultural subjects and entertainment of a high order are among the things announced for the annual Farmers' Week at the Michigan Agricultural college, which is to be held this year from February 2 to 6.

Speakers of national reputation, including Dr. E. V. McCollum, of John Hopkins University, H. C. Taylor, Chief of Farm Management, Washington, D. C., Dean Vroman of Ohio State University, and many others will be heard by the assembled agriculturists during the week.

Annual meetings of a large number of Michigan's leading agricultural organizations will be held at East Lansing at the same time. These include the Michigan Crop Improvement association, Michigan Maple Syrup Growers, Michigan School Commissioners, Michigan Horticultural societies, Michigan Muck-Farmers, Michigan Potato Producers' association, and others.

Farmers' housewives, rural workers and others interested in the agriculture of the state are expected to attend the one week gathering in great numbers. Indications are that the attendance record of more than 5,000 for the annual meeting will be broken this year, according to the men at the agricultural college who are in charge of arrangements.

Dr. E. E. Pratt, formerly chief of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, states that Germans recovering from the war more rapidly than any other European country, now threaten to divert our foreign trade to her own gain.

Carol Singing Is Dying Out

THE custom of carol singing out of doors at Christmas time seems to be dying out. This is a great pity, for carols are a branch of folk music, the unconscious art of the peasant mind, a heritage of inestimable worth.

In many English villages there are carols peculiar to themselves, to be jealously guarded and retained for their use.

The Christmas carol dates from the birth of Christianity itself, the angels having sung their carols at the birth of Jesus Christ.

Among the early Christians carols were sacred hymns representing Christ's nativity.

Now the name is given to a variety of popular metrical compositions from the simple record of the birth of our Lord to rude was-sail songs and rhymes of holiday revelry.

Probably no Christmas would seem complete without the well-known and popular hymn, "Hark! the Herald Angels Sing."

The word carol, which originally meant a dance, is thought to have come into our language either from the Norman French carole or from the Celtic carol.

In 1822 Davies Gilbert published "some ancient Christmas carols, with the tunes to which they were formerly sung in the west of England." In his preface he declared himself to be desirous "of preserving them in their actual forms, as specimens of times now passing away, and of religious feelings now superseded by others of a different caste."

Of late years some of the churches—chiefly in the larger cities—have held "Christmas carol services" during the Christmas season.

This is an excellent movement, and might profitably be taken up by churches all over the country. Certainly if the churches can restore this old custom it will add to the enjoyment of the season.

France is exceptionally rich in carols, which are often drinking songs as in many European countries. We find many French carols translated into English, no doubt as a result of the intercourse which existed between twellers on either side of the channel, in the days when English youths often pursued their studies in France.

There is a great deal of discussion as to which is the most popular carol. While it is impossible to name the favorite, there can be little doubt of the universal appeal of "God rest ye, merry gentlemen," whose plaintive melody has touched a chord in the popular mind.

Among modern compositions may be mentioned "The Shepherd is Lost Their Sheep," by Alfred Hollins. Mr. Hollins is blind, but this affliction has not prevented him from becoming one of the finest organists and composers in Britain.

Washington Irving in his famous "Sketch Book" introduces us to most of the old English customs which have come to be so much a part of our Christmas festival. Of his first night at Bracebridge Hall he says:

"I had scarcely got into bed when a strain of music seemed to break forth in the air just below the window. I listened, and found it proceeded from a band, which I concluded to be the valets from some neighboring village. They went around the house playing under the windows. I drew aside the curtains, to hear them more distinctly. The moonbeams fell through the upper part of the casement, partially lighting up the antiquated apartment. The sounds as they receded, became more soft and aerial, and seemed to accord with the quiet and the moonlight. I listened and listened—they became more and more remote, and as they gradually died away, my head sank upon the pillow and I fell asleep."

In P. Squid's "Jests," a book published in 1604, an amusing story is told of a knight who gave a Christmas feast at which he entertained his friends and the tenantry.

The host ordered no man at the table to drink a drop "till he that was master over his wife should sing a carol." A pause ensued and then one poor male, more daring than the others, timidly lifted his lonely voice. The knight then turned to the ladies, who sat at a table apart, and "bade not who was master over her husband" sing a carol. The legend says that the women fell all a-quiver, for there was never a carol such a caterwauling piece of

BACK WAS BROKEN.

During Saturday's storm in Detroit Edward E. Beard, nephew of E. S. Beard of this place, was severely if not fatally injured when the immense chimney of a greenhouse was blown over. The falling chimney crashed through the roof of the office, crushing Mr. Beard under its great weight. His back was broken, it is said.

TUBERCULOSIS HEALTH CRUSADE STARTED.

An intensive educational campaign has been started in Wayne county by the Detroit Tuberculosis society to introduce a modern health crusade movement. It is the start of a county program of educational work, along this line. It is planned to hold mass meetings for the purpose of explaining to the women of the county the desire and object of the society. Talks will be given by Mrs. Clara B. Arthur, president, and Miss Maude Van Sickle, executive secretary of the society. Motion pictures of the movement will be shown.—Wyandotte Suburbanite.

BARNS AND ORCHARDS DAMAGED.

Saturday's storm did a good deal of damage in the vicinity of Novi and Wixom, wrecking barns and windmills and uprooting orchards. On the Marvin Bogart farm, four miles west of Novi, a barn was wrecked, 32 apple trees were uprooted, 206 rods of fence were blown down and many trees in a woodlot were destroyed.

On the Frank Thompson farm, better known as the Gage farm, two barns and a windmill were wrecked.

On the Hockett farm a barn and windmill were blown down and a number of lambs were killed. On the Charles Kiddle farm a windmill was blown down and twelve apple trees were destroyed. Over in the vicinity of Salem a great deal of damage was also done by the storm. On one farm, which was wasted by cyclone a couple of years ago, the house and barns were wrecked and buildings were blown down.

In the vicinity of Wixom and Novi houses and out-buildings were unroofed and fences and orchards were badly damaged.

DEARBORN HAS A VISION.

The government has taken the preliminary steps to make the Rouge river navigable for ocean vessels.

Hearings in connection with the construction of five balanced drawbridges to permit the passage of deep draft vessels began Wednesday before Lieut. Col. E. M. Markham of the U. S. engineering corps, in his office in the Federal building at Detroit.

The government intends to construct bridges of the bascule type with spans of 125 feet.

The bridges that will be replaced with the new balanced drawbridges are the Jefferson avenue bridge, the Detroit, Monroe & Toledo Short Line R. R. bridge the Fort street bridge and the Wabash R. R. and Dix avenue bridges.

This improvement would open the waters of the Rouge for ocean going craft to the quays of the Ford blast furnace and from this point to the Ford Dearborn industries, only two bridges of a temporary construction that can be replaced at the will of the government have the way.

We may yet see the day when our village will be a port for trans-atlantic steamers.

Don't Mistake The Cause

Many Northville People Have Kidney Trouble and Do Not Know It.

Do you have backache? Are you tired and worn out? Feel dizzy, nervous and depressed? Are the kidney secretions irregular? Highly colored? Contain sediment? Likely your kidneys are at fault. Weak kidneys give warning of distress.

Heed the warning, don't delay. Use a tested kidney remedy. Read this Ann Arbor testimony.

P. J. Desmond, 301 W. Summit St., Ann Arbor, Mich., says: "Whenever my kidneys get weak, causing my back to ache or be sore, or the kidney secretions pass too freely, or when I am tired or languid, I use a box or so of Doan's Kidney Pills. I am soon all right again. Doan's have never failed to help me and I keep them in the house all the time and wouldn't be without them. I advise anyone to use Doan's Kidney Pills if troubled with their kidneys."

Camel CIGARETTES

If you want to know what rare and unusual enjoyment Camels provide, smoke them in comparison with any cigarette in the world at any price!

CAMELS are a cigarette revelation any way you consider them! Take quality, or refreshing flavor and fragrance; or, that wonderful mellow-mild-smoothness you never before got in a cigarette smoked! Yet Camels are so full-bodied and so full-of-satisfaction you marvel that so much delight could be put into a cigarette!

Camels export blend of choice Turkish and choice Domestic tobaccos makes them so irresistibly appetizing! And, the blend explains why it is possible for you to smoke Camels liberally without tiring your taste! You will prefer Camels to either kind of tobacco smoked straight!

You'll realize pretty quick, too, that among the many reasons you smoke Camels is their freedom from any unpleasant cigarette aftertaste or unpleasant cigarette odor!

Once you know Camels you won't take much stock in premiums, coupons or gifts! You'll prefer Camel quality!

R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO CO., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Smokers realize that the value is in the cigarettes and do not expect premiums or coupons!

Camels are sold everywhere in scientifically sealed packages of 20 cigarettes, or ten packages (200 cigarettes) in a glassine-paper-covered carton. We strongly recommend this carton for the home or office supply or when you travel.

ally invited.

Congress convened in regular session Tuesday. Judging from past achievements it would be just as well for their country generally if that important body adjourned and its members returned home.

Edwin Henderson, a prominent and well known Detroit attorney, died suddenly at his home Tuesday morning of heart disease. He was born in

HAD AN ENJOYABLE TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Foreman and son,
Wilhe, returned home a few days ago from a delightful auto trip to Freeport and other points in Illinois.
They made the journey over the Michigan-Chicago highway via Benton Harbor and Michigan City and found good roads all the way, with the exception of a couple of short stretches near Jackson. Mr. and Mrs. Foreman have relatives in Freeport and vicinity and they also visited relatives in a number of cities enroute.

The trip was made without any serious mishaps and Mr. Foreman declares he is going again next fall.

The grape growers over in the southwestern part of the state received $80 a ton for their grapes this past season. In the vicinity of Lawton, Mottaw and Paw Paw thousands of acres are devoted to grapes and land values have increased in that section by leaps and bounds. There are many acres of rolling land in this immediate vicinity that could be planted to grapes with profit.

There were 110 adults and 32 children killed in Detroit during the past year by motor accidents. If the traffic regulations of the city had been observed nearly all of these fatalities could have been avoided. True pedestrians are frequently to blame for these accidents, but with traffic so crowded it behooves all drivers of cars to exercise the utmost care.
Street crossings and corners should be approached slowly and as the motorists pass school buildings great care should be taken. Think of 32 homes in the city of Detroit being bereft of the laughter of childhood.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The next regular meeting of the W.
R. C. will be held at Forester's hall on Wednesday, December 10th. A good attendance is desired because the election of officers will occur at that time. Two candidates voted into the Corps at the last meeting will be initiated.

AUCTION SALE.

On Wednesday next George D. Ferguson will have an auction sale on the premises known as the Hiram Holmes farm, one mile west of Northville, on the Base Line road, when he will offer for sale 35 head of high-grade Holstein cattle, the herd including 31 head of milch cows. He will also sell horses, hay, and grain, hogs and farm tools. The sale will begin at 9:30 sharp and a hot lunch will be served at noon. This will be a fine opportunity for dairymen to add to their herds—L. W. Lovewell, auctioneer.

CHRISTMAS CHINA.

Mrs. T. H. Turner will have her cus-

"Just so Long as Capital and Labor Stand and Glare at Each Other"

By VICE PRESIDENT THOMAS R. MARSHALL

Just so long as capital and labor stand and glare at each other we may expect everlasting turmoil and a nation-wide cataclysm. The congress of the United States is a kind of doctor that treats symptoms and does not treat the disease. No legislative remedy that I know of can be found to produce peace and quietude and good order—unless the manufacturers see something more in business than dividends and look upon the employees as brothers in the republic and not as cogs in the machinery or as numbers on a pay roll. It is hopeless from their standpoint; and unless the laboring men have some higher incentive to do their work than the mere wage which comes from the doing of it; if they put in their time finding how little they can do and how much more they can get for the doing of it, it is hopeless from their standpoint.

What the economic life of America needs is not a lawgiver but an evangelist.

The country needs a rebaptism of peace patriotism such as it had of war patriotism.

Just now we need a body of citizens who are content to do a day's work for a day's wage; who are willing to pay a day's wage for a day's work; who believe more in the common good than in the larger good.

Since the world began, business and wealth have had no such opportunity for the angel of the Lord to write their names down beside that of 'Abou Ben Adhem' as they have just now.

The trumpet call of conscience is not only to the meek and lowly, but to the high and mighty; and when dividends and wages are measurably forgotten in the love of service for our Christian country, if there is any hope at all, passion, personal preference, and personal success must all be put in the background and the capitalists and the laborers must realize that the consumer is also entitled to admission into the brotherhood and business must be conducted and work must be done primarily for the love of promoting a contented and a happy people.

Our Military Camps Can Be Made Great Institutions for Citizenship

By SHAILER MATHEWS, Dean of Divinity School, U. of C.

Americans do not want a large standing army, nor do they want their young men trained as military conscripts. They want them trained as citizens. As citizens they must be ready to make their contribution to the industrial and spiritual development of the nation, champion the principles of democracy and defend their country in case need arises.

I believe that the government should make provision for this sort of training in citizenship. Our experience with the military camps shows that they can be made great educational institutions where the distinctions of wealth are obliterated, where men are taught to respect one another because of their real worth, learn the nature of their government and the ideals of America, lay the foundation for an actual productive vocation, and at the same time get that physical training and sense of co-operation which military training can give. I am opposed to militarism, for militarism means a development of a desire for war and an arrogant, commanding class. I favor and urge the adoption by congress of means which shall give every young man an education in citizenship more complete than the schools can give and one calculated to increase both his physical powers and his national loyalty.

Such a training in citizenship is very different from the military system of Germany. It would require only a fraction of the time for strictly military service. It would be essentially an education, rather than warlike preparation. Every year it would send back into the home thousands of young men with an understanding of their country, a sense of respect for others, and a physical development which no institution at the present time seems calculated to give.

What we need is training camps, not to make soldiers, but to make citizens who in time of peace can help develop the life and resources of the nation, and in times of national danger can become defenders of their native land.

Next Census Will Show 60 Per Cent of People Are Classed as Tenants

By W. M. CALDER, U. S. Senator from New York

We of this country are in a fair way of finding ourselves in the condition now said to exist in England, where people, unable to find other shelter, are living in caravans, house boats, tents, and in any kind of structure than can be erected with odds and ends of waste material.

To make the investment in building loans and mortgages more attractive to investors and thus produce some of the funds which may be used to meet the housing needs of our nation, is the object of the proposed amendment to the income-tax law, provided by senate bill 8094, which I have introduced, by which investments in mortgage loans, to the extent of $40,000, are exempted from the provisions of the law.

The main object of this proposed legislation is to enable the workingman to secure a home of his own. The most pessimistic thinker foresees political disaster for Great Britain, Germany, Italy, United States, and, in fact, the whole world except France, where nearly 80 per cent of its population is interested in the land as owners thereof.

In 1890 we were advised that 52 per cent of the people in America lived under the rental system; that in 1910 the percentage had increased to 55, and that probably the census of 1920 will show that fully 60 per cent of the people will be classed as tenants.

The United States, like France, must either develop a home-owning instinct or a government-housing movement like England. This home-owning instinct may be helped forward through governmental aid, through preferential freight rates, through banking legislation, and bills such as I have described, and encouragement of standardization of building materials. These governmental aids at this time will produce increased homes, whose value will more than offset their cost. The best way to help a man is to help him to help himself.

New Orleans' Exports Heavy

By U. S. Department of Agriculture

Lighter Carrying Export Beef Cattle From Jersey City to Steamship Dock in New York Harbor.

During three months period ending September 30, a total of 1,336 hogs and 31 cattle were shipped from New Orleans to Havana, Cuba. The hogs were destined for slaughter, while the cattle consisted of well-bred dairy animals, mostly Holsteins. Prospects indicate that future trade through the port of New Orleans will include shipments to Mediterranean and South American points. In this connection it is worthy of mention that the live-stock exports from New York during the same period consisted of 1,252 cattle to Antwerp, Belgium; 60 horses to London, England; 61 horses to Havre, France; 40 cows and 157 horses to Bermuda; 6 horses and 2 mules to Trinidad; 40 mules to British West Indies.

Registered Cattle and Babies

From a Bulletin of the United States Public Health Service

Horse and cattle breeders owning blooded stock do not fail to have their animals "registered." It adds to their value, and is therefore justly regarded as highly desirable. In sharp contrast is the attitude of many careless parents of children. Here are a few reasons why baby's birth should be registered: To establish identity; to prove nationality; to prove legitimacy; to show when the child has the right to enter school; to show when the child has the right to seek employment under the child labor law; to establish the right of inheritance to property; to establish liability to military duty, as well as exemption therefrom; to establish the right to vote; to qualify to hold title to, and to buy or sell real estate; to establish the right to hold office; to prove the age at which the marriage contract may be entered into; to make possible statistical studies of health conditions.

IN CULLING KEEP ONLY GOOD PULLETS

Every well-developed, early-hatched pullet in good health is a potential egg layer. Just as there is no method of judging the speed of a horse before he has been raced or of determining the butterfly record of a heifer before she has been freshened, so there is no accurate means of telling how many eggs the pullet will lay until she has been given a trial. As a rule, most pullets which start laying before winter will lay at least enough eggs to pay for their feed during their first laying season. All mature, vigorous pullets should be kept. Any weak, undersized, late-hatched, or deformed pullets should be culled out in the fall. Other methods of estimating the future egg production of pullets are inaccurate and their use is not advised.

The real problems in culling a poultry flock are found with hens that have finished one or two laying seasons. The general rule with pullets is to keep practically all and with aged hens to dispose of all, but with old yearling hens and with two-year-old hens of the lighter breeds some should be sold and others kept. To call hens of these ages "every bird must be culled" to determine her value. Nature has marked the poor producer, and the poultry keeper should be able to recognize the marks.

Violin Maker Manufactures Fiddles With Pocketknife

Material of strange description contributes interest to the productions of an eccentric Ohio violin maker whose instruments are noted for their ornate carvings. Extremely simple tools are used by the workman, an old pocket-knife with nicked and rusted blades being one of his favorite implements. In spite of this, the instruments have an excellent appearance and good tonal qualities. Wood taken from the heart of a partly petrified log dug up in an eastern state forms the back of one of the extraordinary violins. Another unusual instrument has a back made from one of the drawers of a bureau brought to this country from England shortly after the historic voyage of the Mayflower.

Kidwelly Is Quaint Old Welsh Town; Place Lives Largely in Days Gone By

Kidwelly is a quaint old town in Wales. It is a dreamy little community set in snugly between broad marshes and Carmarthen bay, and divided by a curving river with an unpronounceable Welsh name. Old Kidwelly lives largely in the past. It has been the scene of battles and sieges. It has a castle whose turrets and round towers still stand bravely, their age kindly hidden by the vines that enfold them.

It pretends to remember well the occasion of the Welsh princess, who stormed the town at the head of her army. It tells the story proudly, a little sadly at the end, for the warrior princess was executed by her enemies.

It is a dusty, unromantic climb to the battlements, but the view from the castle top is worth the trip. The quaint, tumble-down houses at the foot of the walls are a mere skeleton of the old town as it was in its prime. Beyond them are marshy fields rolling away to the next village. Far below is the river once thronged with ships of trade that long ago deserted it for richer ports. Its streets are almost empty, and its old-fashioned residents, primly oblivious to new improvements and styles of architecture, testify loudly to its age.

Mother's Cook Book.

The crimson fires burn there no more. That late autumn lit. And brooding in their ashen cloth. The faded thickets sit.

But when the spring with lit and song. Shall thread the woodland aisle. Each thicket shall arise from grief. With green and cheerful smile.

So in the heart where shadows brood. In seclusion covering. Love comes with beauty and with song. And lights the dusk with spring. —Arthur Leach.

Meats for the Family.

A good way to serve ham, which is not common: Have a slice of ham cut two inches thick from the center of the ham; parboil for five minutes in boiling water; remove the ham and reserve the water. Spread the ham with a tablespoonful of sugar and teaspoonful of vinegar; add two tablespoonfuls of mustard and cover with the water used in parboiling. Bake until brown, basting occasionally.

Stewed Oxtails.

Separate an oxtail at the joints into two-inch pieces, wash carefully, dry on a cloth and roll in flour. Shred a slice of fat salt pork or two slices of bacon. Try out the fat; remove the pieces of browned pork or bacon to a casserole and add the oxtails to the fat. Let them brown on all sides, add them to the casserole, cover with beef broth or a bouillon cube dissolved in water; let simmer an hour. Add four onions (if small leave them whole); a cupful of diced celery. Stir one-fourth of a cupful of flour mixed with cold water until smooth, then add to the hot stock; add more water or stock if needed and let simmer until the meat is very tender. Before serving add two tablespoonfuls of tomato or mushroom catsup. Serve with horseradish.

Chicken With Macaroni.

A cupful of chopped cooked chicken with two cupfuls of macaroni and a cupful of well-seasoned white sauce. Put the mixture into a baking dish in layers and cover with buttered crumbs. Bake until the crumbs are brown.

Hot Application to the Abdomen Is an Old Remedy

One of the old standbys of doctors is the application of heat to the abdomen in the form of hot-water bags, hot plates, hot compresses or even hot flat irons. This produces a certain sense of well-being and is supposed to relax spasm and aid digestion. But the Journal of the American Medical Association points out that all experiments to ascertain how the heat acts fail to prove that it acts at all. It is certain that the heat does not actually penetrate the organs within the abdomen, and it may be that whatever results are obtained are brought about by way of the nervous mechanism connecting the skin and the internal organs.

A SONG OF LOVES

Through branches of their leaves boreft. The sunlight glitters golden; The moss with velvet clothes each cleft. In ruins grim and olden; On falling towers the ivy strong. All signs of wreck efface; The streamlet sings its sweetest song. Across the stony places;

When moonless is the wintry sky. Then brightest is the starlight; Beyond the breakers fierce and high. We see the beacon's far light; The snowdrop rings its silver bell. When snowdrifts shroud the meadows; The winds their sacred secrets tell. Behind the evening shadows.

And so, sweetheart, when thou art old. And sad and worn and weary. When all the world is growing cold. And all the land looks dreary. My heart will follow then the lead. Of star and moss and river. And love thee best in greatest need. Forever and forever.

"Seems to be a mighty populous river up this way, hey, Mapes?" he remarked genially. "Castaways round every bend."

"What do you mean? Have you picked up others?"

"Certainly have. Hit a keelboat twenty miles below."

"A keelboat operated by steam?"

"Couldn't say as to that. Was it, Mapes? The craft had gone down when I got on deck. Had four aboard, but we got 'em all off an' stowed 'em back there in the Texas. You better get along now and shuck those wet clothes."

The captain turned rather sharply away, and I was thrust through an open cabin door by the grasp of the mate before I could really sense the true meaning of this unexpected news. Mapes paused long enough to gruffly indicate a coarse suit of clothes draped over a stool, and was about to retire without further words when I recovered sufficiently from the shock to half him with a question:

"I suppose you saw those people picked up from the keelboat?"

"Sure; helped pull 'em aboard. A queer combination, if you ask me; two nigger wenches, Joe Kirby an' a deputy sheriff from down St. Louis way."

"Two women, you say? Both negroes?"

"Well, that's what Joe said they was, an' I reckon he knew. However, one of 'em looked ez white as anybody I ever saw. The deputy he tol' her same story—sed they was both slaves that Kirby got from an ol' plantation down below; some French name, it was. Seems like the two wenches had run away, an' the deputy had caught 'em, an' was taking 'em back. Kirby cum 'long ter help, ben' as how they belonged ter him."

"You knew Kirby, then?"

"H—I, ov course. Ther ain't many river men who don't. I reckon. What is it to you?"

"Nothing; it sounds like a strange story, that's all. I want to get this wet stuff off, and will be out on deck presently."

I was shivering with the cold, and lost no time shifting into the warm, dry clothing provided, spreading out my own soaked garments, upon the edge of the lower bunk, but careful first to remove my pocket of private papers, which, wrapped securely in oiled silk, were not even damp. Fate had played a strange trick, and I knew not how best to turn it to advantage. One thing only was clear: whatever was to be accomplished I would have to do it alone—nowhere could I turn for help. In the first place Kirby undoubtedly had the law with him, and besides was among friends—those who would naturally believe him and were loyal to the institution of slavery. The very fact that this was a Memphis boat we were on precluded any possibility that the crew would sympathize with a nigger-stealer. Nor could I anticipate any assistance from without. Steamboats were few and far between on these northern waters, and at this time, if the report of war was true, everything afloat would be headed upstream, laden with troops and provisions. That the report was true I had no doubt. The probability of an outbreak was known before I left Fort Armstrong; the crisis had come earlier than expected, that was all.

This, then, was the situation—through an odd intervention of Providence here we were all together on this steamer, which was steadily tion if we met face to face. Still, would he? The daring hope that he might not come to me in a flash might not be possible to so disguise myself as to become unnoticeable? I sprang up to stare at my features in the small mirror hanging over the washstand. The face which confronted me in surprise was almost a strange one even to my eyes. Instead of the smart young soldier, smoothly shaven, with closely trimmed hair, and as her carefully attired, as I had appeared on board the Warrior, the glass reflected a bearded face, the skin visibly roughened and reddened by exposure, the hair ragged and uncombed. Even to my view there remained scarcely a familiar feature—the lack of razor and shears, the exposure to sun and water, the days of sickness and neglect, had all helped to transform the into a totally different appearing person from what I had formerly been; the officer and gentleman had, by the mystery of environment, been changed into the outward semblance of a river roustabout. Nor was this all. The new character was emphasized by the clothes I wore—far too large to fit; also, the texture and color, not to mention the dirt and grease, speaking loudly of a rough life and the vicissitudes of poverty. The metamorphosis was complete, so complete that I laughed aloud, assured by that one glance that the gambler, confident that I was dead, would never by any possibility recognize me in this guise, or while habilitated in such nondescript garments.

But the girl—Rene? And so this was how I had appeared to her. No wonder she questioned me; doubted my first explanation. I had approached her confident that my appearance as a gentleman would awaken her trust; I had felt myself to be a most presentable young man, in whom she must instantly repose faith. Yet this had not been true at all—instead I came to her with the outward bearing of a worthless vagabond, a stubble-bearded outcast. And yet she had trusted me; would trust me again. More: she could never be deceived, or fail to recognize my presence aboard if she had the freedom of the deck. Kirby might be deceived, but not Rene. If I could only plan to meet with her first alone, the peril of her recognition would not be extreme.

But I must also figure upon the other woman. Who could she be? Not Eloise Beaucare surely, for the mate had only mentioned one of the two as being sufficiently white to be noticeable. That one would surely be Rene, and it was scarcely probable that Eloise, with no drop of negro blood in her veins, could appear colored. Perhaps this second woman was Delia, the quadroon mother. But if so how did she chance to fall alone into Kirby's clutches? Was she aboard the keelboat, locked below in the cabin, when it rammed into us? If she had been captured at Shrunks' camp during their murderous raid, what had become of her companion? Where was Eloise Beaucare? The harder I sought to straighten out this mystery the more involved it became.

With every additional glance at the face reflected by the mirror my confidence strengthened in the ability to encounter Kirby and pass unrecognized. Convinced as he undoubtedly was of my death in the black waters of the river he could not possibly imagine my presence aboard the Adventurer, while my personal appearance was so utterly changed as to suggest to his mind no thought of familiarity. The conditions were all in my favor. I was smiling grimly at this conceit, well pleased at the chance thus afforded me, when the stateroom door was suddenly flung open and the hairy face of the mate thrust within.

"I reckon yer better tote them wet duds down-ter the boiler room," he said gruffly, "an' then git sum grub. Likely 'nough yer wouldn't mind eatin' a bit. Be yer a river man?"

"I've never worked on a steamboat, if that is what you mean."

"No; well, I reckoned not, but the captain he thought maybe yer had. I tol' him yer didn't falk like no steamer hand. Howsumever, we're amighty short o' help aboard, an' maybe yer'd like a job ter help pay yer way?"

My fingers involuntarily closed on some loose goldpieces in my pocket, but a sudden thought halted me. Why not? In what better way could I escape discovery? As an employee of the boat I would go about the decks unsuspected and unnoticed. Kirby would never give me a second thought or glance, while the opportunity thus afforded of speaking to Rene and being of service to her would be immeasurably increased. I withdrew my hand, swiftly deciding my course of action.

"I suppose I might as well earn a bit," I admitted, hesitatingly. "Only I had about decided I'd enlist if the war was still going on when we got up there."

"That'll be all right. We'll keep yer busy till then, anyhow. Go on down below now an' eat, an' when yer git through climb up the ladder an' report ter me. What'll I call yer?"

"Steve."

"Steve—hey; sorter handy man, ain't yer?"

"Well, I've done a little of everything in my time. I'm not afraid to work."

During most of the remaining hours of the morning the mate kept me employed below, in company with a number of others of the crew, in sorting over the miscellaneous cargo, which had evidently been very hastily loaded. The work was hard and dirty, and after a few hours of it I must have looked my assumed part to perfection. The overseer gave me a hat which added little to my personal appearance, and by the time we were called to knock off for the noon meal I was thoroughly tired and disgraced, feeling as much a roustabout as I certainly looked.

The meal was served on an unplanned plank, the ends resting on kegs in front of the boilers. I was still busily munching away on the coarse, poorly cooked food when Mapes, prowling about, chanced to spy me among the shadows.

"Hello; is that you, Steve?" he asked gruffly. "Well, when yer git done eatin' I got another job fer yer on deck. Yer hear me?"

I signified that I did, and indeed was even then quite ready to go, my heart throbbing at this opportunity to survey other sections of the boat. I followed him eagerly up the ladder, and ten minutes later was busily employed with scrubbing brush and a bucket of water, in an endeavor to improve the outward appearance of the paint of the upper deck. I was engaged busily scraping at the dingy gait of the pilot house, when a negro, evidently a cook, from his dress, came up from the lower deck, bearing a tray well laden with food in one hand, and disappearing aft. He did not even notice my presence or glance about, but I instantly shrank back out of sight, for I became immediately conscious that someone was closely following him.

This second man proved to be one of the fellows in civilian clothing I had previously noticed at the table below, a tall, sallow individual, attired in a suit of brown jeans, his lean, cracker face ornamented by a grizzled bunch of chin whiskers.

"Yer wait a minute thar, Jim," he called out, "till I unlock that thar door. I ain't ter kind that takes chances with no nigger."

I recognized the peculiar voice instantly, for I had listened to that lazy drawl before while hidden in the darkness beneath the Beaucare veranda—the fellow was Tim, the deputy sheriff from St. Louis. The negro rested his tray on the rail, while the white man fumbled through his pockets for a key, finally locating it and inserting the instrument into the lock of the second cabin from the stern. I heard no words exchanged with anyone within, but the negro pushed the tray forward without entering, sliding it along the deck, while Tim, evidently satisfied that his charges were quite safe, promptly reclosed and locked the door, returning the key to the security of his pocket. After staring a moment over the rail at the shore past which we were gliding he disappeared after the negro down the ladder. Eager as I certainly was to make the poor girl aware of my presence on board, the chance of being seen, and my purpose suspected by others, restrained me. Besides as yet I had no plan of rescue; nothing to suggest.

Even as I hesitated, industriously scrubbing away at the paint, Kirby and the captain appeared suddenly, pausing a moment at the head of the ladder in friendly conversation. Parting at last, with a hearty laugh over some joke exchanged between them, the latter ascended the steps to the pilot house, while the gambler turned aft, still smiling, a cigar between his lips. I managed to observe that he paused in front of the second cabin, as though listening for some sound within, but made no attempt to enter, passing on to the door beyond, which was unlocked. He must have come to the upper deck on some special mission, for he was out of my sight scarcely a moment, returning immediately to the deck below. This occurrence merely served to make clearer in my mind the probable situation—the after cabin was undoubtedly occupied by Kirby, perhaps in company with the deputy; while next to them, securely locked away and helpless to escape, were confined the two slave women. In order to reach them I must operate under the cover of darkness, and my only hope of being free to work, even then, lay in the faith that the gambler might become so involved in a card game below as to forget his caution. So far as Tim was concerned I felt perfectly capable of outwitting him; but Kirby was dangerous.

CHAPTER XI.

The Story of Elsie Clark.

The next two hours dragged dreadfully slow, in spite of my pretense at steady work, and the fact that my thoughts were continuously occupied. A cautious whisper, sounding almost at my very ear, caused me to glance up quickly, startled at the unexpected sound. I could perceive nothing, although I instantly felt convinced that whispering voice had issued from between the narrow slats defending the small stateroom window. No one was in sight along the deck, and the rag I was wielding hung limp in my hand.

"Who was it that spoke?" I ventured, the words barely audible.

"Ah did—the prisoner in the stateroom. Have both those men gone?"

"Yes; I am here alone. You are a woman? You are Rene Beaucare?"

"No, Ah am not her; but Ah know whar Rene Beaucare is."

"You know? Tell me first who you are."

"Elsie Clark. Ah am a mulatto; a free negress. Ah bin helpin' Massa Shrunks, an' cookin' fer him. Yer know whut it was whut happened down thar?"

"I know part of it, at least—that Shrunks has been killed. I was at Shrunks' cabin and found the bodies. Tell me exactly what occurred 'here.'"

"Whut's yer name?"

"Steven Knox—I am a soldier. He must have told you about me."

"No, sah; she never done tol' me nuthin'. Ah didn't much morn see her anyhow, fur 'as thet goes."

"Not see her? Then she is not confined there with you?"

"Viv me? Dar ain't nobody confined yer viv me. Ah just ain't set eyes on nobody since Ah done got on board, cep't de cook. Ah reckon dem white men aim fer tote me soufe, an' sell me fer a slave; dat's whar Ah's locked up yere dis way. But Ah sure does know whar dis yer Rene Beaucare yus."

"Where?"

"Wal, sah, it was 'bout like dis: Long 'bout three o'clock in de mornin' ol' Bill Sikes cum up frum de lower pint, a-drivin' his kivered wagon, an' made Massa Shrunks git up out er bed fer ter git him anoder team o' hosses. Den dey done routed me up fer ter hustle up sum grub."

"Sikes; who was Sikes?"

"He lives down by de lower pike, sah; he's an abolitionist, shuk."

"Oh, I see; he and Shrunks worked together. He helped with the runaway slaves."

"Yes, sah. Ah's bin called up thet way afore. So Ah just nat'ally went ter work cookin', an' purty soon dey all ov 'em cum stragglin' in ter de cabin fer ter eat. Dar was four ov 'em, sah, 'er voice a husky whisper. 'Bill Sikes, totin' a gun in his han', a free nigger whar dey called Pete, an' two wifmin. De bigger one was a quadroon, maybe 'bout forty years ol', an' de odder she wan't much more'n a gal; an' dar wan't nuthin' ov de nigger 'bout her, cep't it might be de hair, an' de eyes—dem was sure black 'nough."

"You learned who they were?"

"Course Ah did. Sikes he splained all 'bout 'em ter Massa Shrunks, an' Ah heerd whut he sed. Ah was a waitin' on 'em. We all ov us helped fer ter put 'em in de wagon, hid unde a lot o' truck, an' den Sikes he done drove 'em out thro' de bluffs. Ah done walked wif de gal, an' she tol' mo' 'bout herself, an' whar she cum frum; an' dat was her name, sah."

"Her name? What name?"

"Rene Beaucare; de quadroon woman, she was her mother."

"I could scarcely believe my surprise, the quick throbbing of my heart threatening to choke me."

"She claimed that name? She actually told you she was Rene Beaucare?"

"She sure did. Why? Wan't ter hear her name?"

"I do not know," I confessed. "Perhaps I shall understand better, if you go on. What happened after they left?"

"Why, we just went back ter bed, an' 'long 'bout daylight, I reckon, sum fellars cum ashore off a steamboat, an' done broke inter de house. We never done leerd 'em till dey rust in de dore. One ob dem he knocked me down, an' den Ah saw Massa Shrunks kill one, afore dey got him. Ah don't know just whut did cum ob de free nigger; Ah reckon maybe he run away. Dar's a fellar on board yer whut killed Massa Shrunks; an' he's de same one whut made me cum 'long wif him. A smooth-faced man, sorter tall like, all dressed up, an' whar no talker's much."

"Kirby—Joe Kirby, a river gambler."

"Dat's de name—Kirby. Wal, he's de one whut was lookin' fer dis yer gal, Rene Beaucare. He wanted her powful bad. Dey hunted all 'round fer ter git her, cressin' an' threatenin', an' a haulin' me round; hot 'twan't no sorter use. So finally dey took me 'long ter a boat in de creek—a keelboat, run by steam. Most de odder men disappeared; Ah never did know whar dey went, but dis yer Kirby done shut me up in de cabin. Ah don't know much whut did happen after dat, till 'bout de time de steamboat done hit us; an' 'bout de next thing Ah was yanked up yere on deck."

"But there was another woman on the keelboat when it was sunk—a prisoner also. Surely you must have seen her," I insisted.

"Ah saw her—yas," eagerly. "But Ah don't know who she was, sah, nor whar she ever cum frum."

"Then she is not there with you?"

"No, sah; Ah's yer—all 'lone. Ah reckon, tho', she sure must be on board sumwhar. All whut Ah does know is, dat de gal called Rene Beaucare sure ain't on board; fer she, an' her mah, am at Beardstown long fore dis; an' a headin' right smart for Canada; while Ah's headin' fer down soufe. Ah's just told yer all dis, Mister White Man 'cause yer a frien' ob de Beaucaires—yer wus, wusn't yer?"

"Yes," I said soberly, "I am; and, if I can find any chance to help you, I am going to do it, Elsie. Don't talk any more—the captain is just coming out of the pilot house."

As greatly as this brief, hastily whispered conversation had served to clear up certain puzzling matters in my mind, the total result of the information thus imparted by Elsie Clark only rendered the situation more complex and puzzling. Evidently the other prisoner had not been confined on the upper deck, but had been more securely hidden away below, where her presence on board would better escape detection. For what purpose? A sinister one, beyond all doubt—the expression of a vague fear in Kirby's heart that, through some accident, her identity might be discovered, and his plans disarranged. I comprehended the part he intended Elsie Beaucare to play in his future, and realized that he cared more to gain possession of her, to get her into his power, than he did to obtain control of the slave. This knowledge helped me to understand the predicament which this revelation put him into, and how desperately he would strive to retain the upper hand.

If, in very truth, she was Judge Beaucare's white daughter and could gain communication with others of her class, bringing to them proof of her identity, there would be real men enough on board the Adventurer to rally to her support. We were already sailing through free territory, and even now he held on to his slaves rather through courtesy than law. Once it was whispered that one of these slaves was white, the daughter of a wealthy planter, stolen by force, the game would be up.

But would she ever proclaim her right to freedom? If she was indeed Eloise Beaucare—and even as I said I was not as yet wholly convinced—she had deliberately assumed to be Rene, doing so for a specific purpose—that object being to afford the other an opportunity for escape. Why, she had not so much as trusted me. From the very beginning she had encouraged me in the belief that she was a negress, never once arousing the faintest suspicion in my mind. Nothing, then, I was convinced, short of death or disgrace, could ever compel her to confess the truth yet Kirby might suspect, might fear, but he had surely never learned who she was from her lips—that she was Eloise Beaucare.

The conviction that this young woman was white, educated, refined, the daughter of good blood—no fleeing negress, cursed with the black strain of an alien race, a nameless slave—brought to me a sudden joy in discovery I made no attempt to conceal. "Eloise Beaucare, Eloise Beaucare"—the name repeated itself on my lips, as though it were a refrain. I knew instantly what it all meant—that some divine, mysterious hand had led from the very hour of my leaving Fort Armstrong, and would continue to lead until the will of God was done. It was not in the stars of Fate that such vicl' lufly should succeed; such sacrifice as hers fell of its reward!

Nevertheless, in spite of this resolve, and the fresh courage which had been awakened within me by the faith that from now on I battled for the love of Eloise Beaucare, no immediate opportunity for service came. I could only wait patiently, and observe.

I was convinced that Kirby what ever might be his ultimate purpose regarding the girl, had no present intention of doing her further injury. He contemplated no immediate attempt at forcible possession, and would be well satisfied if he could only continue to hold her in strict seclusion. The thing he was guarding against now, and while they remained on board, was escape or discovery.

The Flowing Tide.

No one, however great his genius or high his position, is all-important to the world, its work will go on without him. There may be ripples and disturbances in the current for a time when he sinks out of sight, but the tide will soon be flowing on as before. This truth may be painful to personal vanity, but it is comforting to every generous soul that cares more for others than for self.

Territory Taken From Spain.

At the close of the war with Spain the American government obtained possession of Porto Rico, Guam and the Philippines, agreeing to pay Spain $20,000,000 and give Spanish ships special trading privileges in the Philippines for ten years. Neither statehood nor citizenship was promised to any of the islands taken over and they are governed as territorial possessions.

There are ants in Nicaragua that cultivate minute mushrooms for food in their underground homes by forming a compost from leaves of trees.

APPROPRIATE.

"Do you wear an insignia in your wolf-coat?"

"Yes. During the winter the moths laid out a complete 18-hole course on it."

The Locomotive.

The locomotive is content. To shun all moods is important. It works without an argument. Which is extremely fortunate.

Lost.

"I see it is now proposed to have the world 'obey' stricken from the marriage ceremony."

"Yes, in the interests of economy I've always held that insofar as that word was concerned the minister might just as well have saved his breath."

"How do you go about locating a still in these parts?" asked the stranger.

"Be you a revenuer?" asked the ancient mountaineer.

"Oh, no! I'm a newspaper man, spending my vacation up here in the hills."

"Is that so? Well, I never yet heard tell of one of yer paper fellows that didn't have a powerful thirst. You just set aroun' a spell, sonny, an' some of th' boys'll git so' durned sorry for you they'll come right up an' offer to lead you to a still."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Catarrahal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Catarrahal Deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood to the mucous surfaces of the System. Catarrahal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed, it has a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing may be destroyed forever. Many cases of Deafness are caused by Catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE.

Suffer from

Acid-Stomach

Millions of people suffer year after year from ailments affecting practically every part of the body, never dreaming that their ill health can be traced directly to acid-stomach. Here is the reason: poor digestion means poor nourishment of the different organs and tissues of the body. The blood is impoverished—becomes weak, thin, sluggish. All ailments of many kinds spring from such conditions: Billowness, rheumatism, lumbago, sciatica, general weakness, loss of power and energy, headache, insomnia, nervousness, mental depression—even more serious ailments such as catarrh and cancer of the stomach, intestinal ulcers, cirrhosis of the liver, heart trouble—all of these can often be traced directly to acid-stomach.

Keep a sharp lookout for the first symptoms of acid-stomach—indigestion, heartburn, belching, food repeating, that awful painful bloating after eating, and sour, gassy stomach. EATONIC, the wonderful modern remedy for acid-stomach, is guaranteed to bring quick relief from these stomach miseries. Thousands say they never dreamed that anything could bring such speedy relief—and make them feel so much better.

every day. Try EATONIC and you, too, will be just as enthusiastic in its praise. Make your life worth living—no aches or pains—no blues or melancholy—no more of that tired, listless feeling. Be well and strong. Get back your physical and mental punch; your vim, vigor and vitality. You will always be weak and ailing as long as you have acid-stomach. So get rid of it now. Take EATONIC Tablets—they taste good; you eat them like a bit of candy. Your druggist has EATONIC—50 cents for a big box. MARRIED AT NOVI.

The marriage of Miss Margie Putnam, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Putnam of Novi township, to Mr. Floyd R. Lanning of this place was solemnized at high noon on Wednesday at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. H. J. B. Marsh, pastor of the Methodist church of this village, performed the ceremony, which was witnessed only by the members of the immediate families of the contracting parties. Immediately following the ceremony the happy couple left for a brief wedding trip, their objective being Chicago.

Both young people are well and favorably known in Northville and vicinity and are held in high esteem by all who enjoy their acquaintance. Mr. Lanning is a graduate of the class of 1916 of the Northville High school and the bride graduated one year later. The bride possesses many fine qualities and the groom is regarded as one of Northville's most esteemed young men, occupying a responsible position with the Lapham State bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Lanning will reside in Northville in their home on Randolph street, which was recently purchased from Mrs. Helen Gray.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

We have celebrated the ninetieth anniversary of our church's life. We have had a delightful time, renewing old friendships and hearing familiar voices once more. Now we start on the closing decade of our century.

Let us turn our faces to the future resolved to be worthy of those who have gone before and do great things for the Master in this time which is ours.

The combined service at 10:30 next Sunday morning instead of 10. This gives you an extra half-hour to get ready. Take advantage of it and come. The sermon subject will be "The Holy Spirit" continuing our study of the Apostles' Creed.

Evening service at 7:30. The evening topic will be "The City of Ithael."

Prayer meeting Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock.

The Woodworth Magazine Agency, formerly of Grand Rapids, is now located in Northville, where they will be glad to receive your orders for magazines. R. P. Woodworth, manager, at F. R. Woodworth & Brother's store.

CARD OF THANKS.—We wish to thank the L. O. T. M. M. The King's Daughters, M. E. Ladies' aid, neighbors and friends for flowers, and kindness shown in our late bereavement. Truman A. Garfield, Sr., and Family.

FURS WANTED.

I wish to announce to the public that I have started to buy furs again and will be pleased to see all my old friends and also new ones, who may favor me with their patronage. CELEBRATION WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

address, filled with some amusing incidents regarding his early training and experiences in the Christian faith. He spoke with much feeling of the sturdy people of Scotland, who laid the foundation stones for the Presbyterian church of our present day. He expressed the wish that the churches of Northville might continue to labor in harmony and good fellowship for the upbuilding of God's kingdom in this community.

Mr. Belles followed with some fitting remarks in which he expressed his thanks and appreciation to all who had assisted in making the anniversary exercises so successful, and urged his hearers to turn their faces to the future and to labor zealously that the influence of the church might be enlarged and its mission fulfilled. The congregation sang "Blest be the tie" and Rev. Wm. S. Jerome offered the benediction prayer.

The church enters upon the last ten years of its centenary under most favorable circumstances and both pastor and people have reason to rejoice because of the future outlook of the society.

HISTORICAL STATEMENT.

The First Presbyterian Church of Northville, Michigan, was organized November 28, 1829, as the First Church of Plymouth, the name being changed in 1839. It was organized from the Second Presbyterian Church of Farmington, the organization being one of Joseph Yerkes and consisting of eight members.

The first church society meeting was held in 1835, at which a constitution was adopted. In 1842 the first offering was taken for the Board of Missions, and the Woman's Missionary Society was organized in 1873.

The first house of worship was completed in 1836. It was a building 24x30 feet and cost $230. In 1845 a building was erected at a cost of $2,500. This was repaired and re-dedicated in 1872. In 1912 an addition was built on at the rear for Sunday school and social purposes and a year later the auditorium was remodeled and enlarged. This forms the present house of worship.

The membership of the church during the first ten years grew from eight to eighty-four. Twenty years later it was 180. It is now 538. During the ninety years of its history, 1099 persons have belonged to the church.

Rev. Ernie Prince organized the church and was its first minister. Rev. James Dubuair was the first regularly installed pastor. He began his work in May, 1851, and was installed February 1, 1852. Altogether twenty-one ministers have served the church as pastor or supply.

The following ministers have served the church:

Ernie Prince	1850
Anson Bragmar	1851
