SPECIAL ELECTION TO BE HELD TUESDAY

On Tuesday next there will be a special election in this village for the purpose of giving the electors of Northville an opportunity to approve or reject the action taken by the village council in selling to Henry Ford the village water power and site for the sum of two thousand dollars. For this election there will be two voting precincts, the boundary or dividing line between the two being Center street. The voting place for precinct number one will be at the village hall on Main street and for number two at the gas office on South Center street. The polls of said election will open at seven o'clock and remain open until five o'clock in the afternoon.

It is desired that a large vote be polled and that the majority in favor of the proposition be overwhelming and, if possible, unanimous. Mr. Ford has already expended many thousands of dollars for property in Northville and his present plans are carried out, and they will be. He will spend a large amount here next season in improvements and new buildings. He is asking no inducements or favors from the people of Northville, but instead has paid a good price for all the property he has thus far acquired. It would, doubtless please him to have the people all on one accord with reference to the sale of the village property and at this special election the electors will be given an opportunity of demonstrating just how much they are interested in having the Ford interests come to Northville.

Remember that at this election the women of Northville can vote as well as the men, and they are urged to do so.

SURPRISED THE GIRLS.

The 1919-1920 girls at H. W. Murray's candy store, enjoyed a delightful party to Northville last Wednesday evening. The girls had planned a light lunch at the Ambler House, but to their surprise and pleasure on reaching there found Mr. Murray had provided them and as a surprise on the girls had ordered a delicious three-course dinner, which was awaiting their arrival. The table was very attractive in pink and white, and covers were laid for twenty. Needless to say the girls did justice to their dinner, and a happy evening followed. Mr. Murray returned home with the merry party and all declared they had enjoyed a most delightful evening, and Mr. Murray a fine entertainment. —Plymouth Mail.

PLANS GOING FORWARD.

Plans for the annual ball to be given by Great Chapter O. E. S. on the evening of the 20th inst. are going on and rapid exciting points toward success. The invitations will soon be issued and members of the order are urged to send in the names of their friends whom they desire to have invited. No invitations will be sent to members of the chapter, because it is understood all are invited and all are urged to attend. There will be excellent music and a fine buffet lunch. Keep the date in mind.

MANY MASONS GATHER.

That was a representative group of men who sat down to the heavily laden tables at the Masonic Temple Monday evening. Nearly 150 gathered to enjoy the good things to eat, which the stewards had provided and to witness the masonic degree exemplified by the Past Masters of Northville Lodge No. 186. The work was presented in a first-class manner and upheld the fine reputation of the local lodge.

GAVE SECOND ANNUAL DINNER.

Last Saturday night Clay Calkins tendered the maulders employed in the American Bell plant in this village a cooked dinner and smoker at his home west of town. About fifteen men favored the severe cold to partake of the generous hospitality of their host, and they were well repaid for their efforts because the dinner prepared by Mrs. Calkins was all that could have been desired. After dinner "smokes" and a social time were enjoyed.

MRS. N. A. CLAPP DIES.

After a long illness Mrs. N. A. Clapp died at her home in this village early Monday morning. Funeral services were held at her late home on Wednesday afternoon, being conducted by Rev. F. A. Brass. By request of the family the obituary notice will not be published until next week.

AUTO CLUB BANQUET TO BE FEBRUARY 17

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE FOR A BIG TIME IN THE HIGH SCHOOL GYM.

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER ROGERS, WAYNE, OAKLAND AND WASHTENAW ROAD MEN TO BE PRESENT.

Preparations are going merrily along for Northville's big 1920 event—the Auto Club's banquet—to be given, in a measure, in honor of the Wayne county commissioners and department heads, to commemorate the completion of the cement highway through this village and the township of Northville. The date is fixed for Tuesday, February 17th, and State Highway Commissioner Frank Rogers, and possibly a national highway official from Washington will be present.

Mayor Couzens of Detroit will also be here if official duties will permit as will also Chairman Frank Lodge, chairman of the Wayne county board of supervisors. All members of the Auto Club who have renewed their membership for 1920 and new members, will share in the enjoyment without any expense. A banquet ticket will be sent to all 1920 members next week.

Highway Commissioners from all the adjoining counties will be present and, doubtless, new ideas for new roads in this section will be brought out.

The ladies have been engaged to serve the dinner at 6:30 o'clock and the assembly will take place at the Auditorium at 8 o'clock. Members are requested to renew their membership as early as possible so that the committee may know about the number to prepare for.

AMERICAN LEGION ACTIVITIES.

Through the generosity of the K. of P. Lodge No. 200 American Legion Post has secured very comfortable quarters for a small rental. The Post will have the use of the K. P. hall and bill room for the ensuing year. The club room will be open day and night and supplied with daily papers, etc. and a comfortable place for the boys to spend a quiet hour of any time in writing, reading or revising their many resolutions of the past conflict.

The Post meets every Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock for the transaction of business and usually have a fine lunch for our

The local Post expects soon to have a membership of 60 and all are urged to renew their memberships. Plans are being perfected to a number of big events to be given during the next few months, among them being a grand picnic sometime in March.

TO TRAIN MECHANICS.

A plan instituted by the Ford Motor company to give a course in service instruction to all mechanics employed by a authorized Ford dealers is proving a great success. The men are sent to Detroit from the Ford branches, and their instruction is both in theory and practice. Students are paid for their time by the Ford company, a part of which is spent doing actual work in the factory. At present the classes are composed of men from every state and each man receives a month's instruction. During 1919 1,000 men were graduated from the school, and the original expenditure of $150,000 is regarded as a good investment by the officials of the company, as it will help to give standard service to Ford owners.

A BIG COMMANDERY EVENT.

Northville Commandery No. 39, is to receive a visit from the alternate officers of Detroit Commandery No. 1 Tuesday evening February 17th. These officers under the leadership of Sir Lyle G. Younglove, Grand Capt. General, of Grand Commandery of Michigan, will confer the order of the Temple that evening. The plan for the meeting has been held in advance for nearly a year and now that the conditions are right the visit will be made. It will be a star event for the local Commandery which has made such a wonderful growth during the past two years.

W. R. C. NOTES.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

At this season of the year a salad is just as acceptable as at any other time of the year. The following will be found a little out of the ordinary:

Italian Salad.—Cut one carrot and one turnip into slices and let cook in boiling broth or soup until done. When cold add two cold boiled potatoes and one cooked beet, cut in strips. Add a tablespoonful of chopped or scraped onion pulp, and mix. Pour over the following sauce and garnish with water cross.

Lombarda Sauce.—Cook one-fourth cupful of flour in one-fourth cupful of hot butter; add half a teaspoonful of salt, one-fourth teaspoonful of paprika and one cupful of jelly chicken broth; stir until boiling hot. Set over boiling water, and beat in one-fourth of a cupful of butter, beaten to a cream with two egg yolks and the juice of half a lemon. As soon as the egg is cooked, beat in three-fourths of a cupful of thick tomato sauce. When cold and ready to use, add one teaspoonful of parsley, chopped very fine.

Hot Apple Dessert.—Peel, quarter, core and slice five or six apples. Put these in a serving dish suitable for the oven in layers, with cooked raisins and one cupful of sugar. Cover and bake until the apple is tender. Remove the cover and set near a window over the top of the apples. Return the dish to the oven for the browning of the marshmallows. Serve hot, with or without cream.

Fresh Fish Salad.—Take baked or broiled fish white hot. Pour a pint of heavy cream over it, very thin lengthwise, to them add a tablespoonful of capers, a teaspoonful of onion pulp, half a teaspoonful of salt, a tablespoonful of lemon juice and two tablespoonsful of olive oil. Mix them together and the fish with two four to cold cream. Let stand in a cool place until ready to serve. Serve on a bed of lettuce with mayonnaise in a bowl.

ECONOMIES IN THE HOME.—A large number of people are interested in saving money in the home.

HOME TOWN HELPS

MAKES FOR BEAUTIFUL CITY.

That Citizens Take Interest in Horticulture Is Always an Asset to the Community.

When the publisher of a newspaper in any town is interested in horticulture the people are encouraged to make their homes attractive, and the result is a beautiful city, remarks the New York Times. A newspaper of that kind is a valuable asset to any community.

In the Allentown (Pa.) Leader, a report is given of the bulb planting in the city parks, where next spring there will be eleven tulip beds, which have just been planted with thousands of bulbs.

Charles Ziegenfus, a leading business man, has planted more than 6,000 tulip bulbs. Last spring his show of tulips was worth going miles to see and next year the beds will be more gorgeous than ever. Mr. Ziegenfus has planted this season the rarest and most beautiful varieties obtainable.

R. J. Dutz, president of the National bank, has made extensive bulb plantings. So also has Col. Young and Mrs. Koch.

Edward A. Kristman, who has won many prizes with his dahlias, will plant more than 1,000 tubers early next spring.

Flower lovers who motor through Allentown will find the tulip beds a sight worth seeing and in the autumn the dahlia beds of Mr. Kristman will make a wonderful show.

The efforts of George Roth, publisher of the Leader, to take his town a show place are appreciated by the citizens, as shown by their cooperation.

PECAN TREES ALONG ROADS

Georgia Landowners' Association Agrees to Furnish Them, if Proper Care is Guaranteed.

The attention of the department of agriculture officials has been attracted by the offer of the Georgia Landowners' Association to furnish pecan trees for planting on both sides of the main roads in the state. The first shipment of the trees will be made in the late fall and will be distributed in the state in the following order: first to the counties in the southern part of the state, then to the counties in the northern part of the state.

It is hoped that the Georgia Landowners' Association will be successful in its plan to furnish pecan trees for planting on both sides of the main roads in the state. The Georgia Landowners' Association is a non-profit organization, and its plan is to furnish pecan trees to landowners on a cost basis. The trees will be planted in the fall and will be ready for use in the spring.

When Pruning Trees.

Side trees may be pruned any time between the fall of the leaves and early spring before growth begins. Rowel and maple trees are not to be pruned after the last of February.

Do not leave long stubs but cut above a side branch when pruning large limbs. Try to avoid leaving upright forks or crotches which are apt to split apart and injure or even kill the tree later. Long slender branches should be shortened if retained, so as to encourage greater stiffness and resistance to wind, and the weight of wet snow. Of course, the natural characteristics of the tree should be taken into account in pruning and no attempt be made to greatly alter the natural form of the tree. Evergreens are seldom pruned but appear best when permitted to retain their lower branches close to the ground.—B. O. Long, 3099 Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins, Colo.

Resolve to Set Out a Tree

A tree, if properly tended and protected, will live for many years. It will ever outlast some man-made monuments. What can be more inspiring than the thought that a century hence that tree planted yesterday will be noted by the American people visiting this city, bearing its appropriate tablet? If in every city, in this country such a tree were planted now, generations to come, numbering millions upon millions would, observe and appreciate the sentiment. And mean while the tree itself will be a thing of beauty and afford shade and comfort. Let there be more tree planting in the name of America's heroes.

Beautify the Playgrounds.

Money spent in ornamental planting of trees and shrubs about the country school is money well spent. The results of the early training the boys and girls receive in practical and ornamental values of planting of shrubs and trees will be shown in the homes of the children. Later on more of the homes of those who remain in the community will be benefited in being more beautiful places in which to live and the value of the real estate will be materially increased.

DAUGHTER OF AGUINALDO IN U. S. CAPITAL

She Meets Many Wives of American Statesmen and Makes a Hit.

When General Emilio Aguinaldo was leading the Filipino army against the American forces twenty years ago he probably little dreamed that some day a daughter of his would visit the city of Washington and would be given a great reception at the famous Congressional Club! And that the wives of 120 members of the American Congress and two wives of members of the President's cabinet would call upon her to pay their respects!

But all this actually happened when Miss Carmen Aguinaldo, his nineteen-year-old daughter, visited Washington recently. And those wives of the American statesmen expressed themselves as both charmed and surprised at the refined, tactful, college educated young miss who greeted them.

"Miss Aguinaldo was simply delightful," was the expression of one congressman's wife. "She was very modest, yet she acted so natural and thoroughly at home in our capital city.

On another occasion while in Washington Miss Aguinaldo was given a most interesting and profitable talk on the life and work of the Philippine native.

Miss Aguinaldo is a daughter of the University of the Philippines in Manila. While in Washington she was the guest of Mrs. Edith Wilson, the wife of one of the President's cabinet members from the Philippines. The Capitol building and the Congress library appealed particularly to the young Filipina, who the beautiful sights from the Washington monument thrilled her with delight. When she was asked how she liked America, she said and answered:

"It is a wonderful country. I didn't like winter at first, but since I have learned how to skate I am loving the times. All the Americans whom I have met have been very good to me. My friends in Urbana and my classmates in the university are just lovely, but I cannot help feeling homesick at times because I am missing my father. My coming here was indeed a great sacrifice for him, for we are very close. He is so good to me."

Miss Aguinaldo is intensely patriotic. She does not conceal her resentment when she hears or reads of a misrepresentation of the Filipinos. "It is unfortunate," she once exclaimed in a voice full of sadness, "that my country and my people are hardly known, much less understood, by the people of America."

Pohtics is tabooed in any conversation with this Filipino maid. She evades the topic by replying that she is too young to express opinions on things political. "All I can say," she declares, "is that I share with my father in the desire for independence for my native land. There is no question about our being able to govern ourselves."

Filipinos declare Miss Aguinaldo has a "genuine Filipina temperament"—that is, she does not believe in the accidental custom of "dates" between young men and women. She does not see anything wrong in it, she says, but it is such a violent departure from the custom in the Philippines that she cannot adopt it. "You might laugh at me," she said, "but I cannot go out with one single escort unchaperoned. I simply can't. I will go back to my country with the soul of a Filipina."

A newspaper in one of the large American cities that Miss Aguinaldo visited expressed the opinion that she would no doubt be greatly impressed by the sight of street cars and some of the fine residences she would see, but the truth is the young lady was raised in Manila, where she has seen an up-to-date street car system all her life.

Let's suppose you have a certain amount to put into new clothing. Never mind how much—that's your business.

Our business is to produce the coat or suit to meet your approval and appropriation. If we don't happen to have it in stock you are not out one cent.

If the garment we lay out does not cover your idea all you have to do is tell us.

If the amount you have laid out isn't sufficient to cover first water quality—we'll tell you, and no matter what happens we'll remain friends.

If this kind of clothing logic appeals to your buying sense as good sense come in and you'll find that the truest part of this advertisement is That It's True.

If You Need a Medicine
You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, and are soon dropped out of sight, and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—their quality does not fulfill the promises of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have been benefited, to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says: "Take for example Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments; corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents; also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Adv.

The American officers who came to the courts at Cannes to compete for the tennis championship were required on their arrival to report to Colonel Johnson, the organizer. When one competitor came in Colonel Johnson, according to American Lawn Tennis, looked up and said:
"Are you a tennis player?"
The lieutenant looked a little bashful and replied:
"Well, I think I am—at least, I have orders to prove it!"

Admiration and Respect for Qualities of the American Fighting Man.

By GEN. CURIERES DE CASTELNAU, French Army.

I have no hesitancy in asserting that the military forces of the United States of America contributed very largely by their splendid display of valiance, efficiently directed, to the final supreme triumph of right and liberty.

During the war I gained an intimate first-hand knowledge of the American fighting man's qualities. My personal admiration for him is only equalled by my professional respect. I know him as only a commanding general knows his man.

From the moment the American soldier first met the enemy until the very end, he displayed the most remarkable individual courage. His magnificent spirit in battle was invincible. Officers and enlisted men rivaled each other in bravery, courage, energy, tenacity and the spirit of self-sacrifice.

After once seeing the American army in action, we were impressed that, had our confidence in victory needed a stimulant, the presence of our transatlantic comrades would have been sufficient to assure us of the inevitable victory.

Whenever troops show such splendid soldierly qualities as displayed by the Americans as individuals—and as on the individual soldier that the general, in the last analysis, counts for success—all hopes are justifiable, all strategic and tactical plans are feasible and success is inevitable.

FIRST ANNUAL CONVENTION AT MINNEAPOLIS

That a large standing army is un-American and un-American National sentiment, with freedom from military rule, is a principle of the citizen army and of the democratic and republican principles of the United States.

We favor the organization of a national citizen army, and that the administration of the same should be under the complete control of the citizenry.

We recommend that the organization of the national citizen army be such as to provide for the training of the citizenry in military drill.

Walmer Castle

Walmer Castle.

AMONG the numerous historical structures which the British cherish because in them, they feel, is visibly incorporated the prestige of England, not the least picturesque and interesting is Walmer castle, on the coast of Kent, the official home of the lord warden of the Cinque ports.

The lord warden's ship is an older and more picturesque monument than Walmer castle. The office of lord warden is far more ancient than his dwelling. About that office are gathered the earliest activities out of which the British navy grew, writes Martin Conway in Country Life. The present functions of the lord warden may not be of any executive value as contributing to national defense but, as long as there is a lord warden by the name, the small beginnings of the navy in a remote past remain visibly memorialized. Such a memorial is more eloquent than any pile of stone that the ingenuity of man could raise. Nothing more vividly brings the past into the present or enforces on living men the amount of their indebtedness to those from whom they descend than a living monument permanently performed in accordance with an ancient and unbroken tradition.

No one knows when the lord warden's ship was founded or by what means it came into being. No one knows the date of the defense of the Cinque ports, but the small maritime forces of the little ports along it had to be organized. The original five ports were Hastings, Romney, Dover and Sandwich; to these others were added, as well as an inland one, which had to be fortified in the thirteenth century. The jurisdiction extended round the coast from Sandwich in Sussex to the Mersey in Kent.

Importance of the Cinque Ports.
Throughout the Middle Ages down to the time of Henry VII the Cinque ports thus enlarged and organized had to furnish the crown with partly all the ships and men needed for naval purposes. The oldest existing charter dates from Edward I, but it refers to older documents as far back as the time of Edward the Confessor. Duties and corresponding privileges went on accumulating. Such an organization could not exist without a head, but his office was of correspondingly gradual growth. At one time it was an office of great power and importance. It was generally coupled with the governorship of Dover castle. The lord warden was admiral of the ports. He had his court of chancery at Dover. He still retains the duty of appointing the judge of the admiralty court of the Cinque ports as well as the justices of the peace in the same areas; but his most important functions have become decorative, menage and picturesque, not, however, as aforesaid, unimportant.

The maritime activity which led to the discovery of America and the beginnings of a world commerce necessarily made a great change in British naval affairs. Local fleets of ships and sailors were bound to be replaced sooner or later by something in the nature of a national navy. The change is already apparent in the days of Henry VIII, and from that time the importance of the Cinque ports as the nation's naval base declined and with it the power of the lord warden. It is noteworthy that the erection of Walmer castle dates from this period. It was built in the reign of Henry VIII along with other castles round the coast, such as the neighboring Deal and Sandown, and the remote Litchfield on Holy Island in Northumberland. Previously the coast had been protected by a succession of castles, the Great and Little Bulwarks, for instance, within the parish of Walmer. They had embrasures for guns, and were connected by communication.

Built by Henry VIII.
The English castles built by Henry VIII were completed about 1540 and placed under the control of the lord warden. The following description of them is compressed from Elgin: In the center is the keep—a circular tower containing a bomb-proof magazine for ammunition. It is surrounded by bastions with fifty-two port-holes below, commanding the encompassing moat. Tunnels or chimneys were contrived to carry off the smoke of the guns. There were larger embrasures for cannon near the upper part of the bastions. The entrance from the landward side was by a drawbridge and strong machicolated gateway. Within each castle was a well. The bastion walls were 20 feet thick below and 11 feet above. Their architect was probably one Steven von Haschenperg. The garrison of Walmer consisted of a captain lieutenant, two porters, ten gunners and four soldiers.

Less than a century later the roof of Walmer castle as much decayed and threatened by the sea at high tides; moreover, rain drips into the rooms and powder houses, the gate is decreed "with loose stones hanging over," and so forth. It was presumably patched up during the Civil war the castles changed hands more than once. Walmer was besieged by Fairfax's troops in 1648 and held out for a month before surrendering. It was "rich spoiled" with the garrisons but the repairs were only estimated to cost £400. The castles continued to be of military importance throughout the seventeenth century.

Additions by Lord Warden.
The first lord warden to new Walmer castle his residence was the duke of Dorset, appointed in 1705 and again in 1727. About 1730 he made various alterations and additions to the old structure to provide the necessary accommodation for a household, further considerable additions were made by Mr. Pitt, the earl of Liverpool, and Earl Granville. Most from origin chambers belonging to the original military work and since merely adapted to the uses of domestic service, the oldest parts of the existing mansion are the chambers built by the duke of Dorset. Buck's view, dated 1715, shows the general aspect of this building. It is raised over the central mass of the castle and follows the outlines of its walls. There is nothing remarkable about the architecture or the decoration of the rooms. A small central hall, a long passage leading through it, with others branching off as convenience dictated—these are the elements of the plan. The plain stone wall is pierced by oblong sash-windows and the crest of the wall is battlemented.

The duke of Dorset's additions were mainly on the sea front, which remains much as he left it. I believe the drawing room was his—a pleasant, sunny chamber—but Lord Granville added to it. Mr. Pitt built the rooms over the southern rampart. Finally, in 1823, Lord Granville added a story containing thirteen rooms over the gate-house bastion. He also built the tower. The stone employed came from the demolition of Sandown castle. He added to the drawing-room, as an alcove, the little room in which it is asserted that Nelson and Pitt used to confer.

There is nothing stately or impressive about the aspect of the interior, but the irregularity of the plan adds to the effect of domestic comfort and privacy which pervades the house. One can easily understand how successive families have become attached to it. Externally there are several quite impressive points of view, chiefly those which command the massive and precipitous walls rising from the moat. One of the walls, pulled down on the occasion of Queen Victoria's visit to make a new dining-room, was soon afterward rebuilt. Talleyrand when he visited Walmer insisted on sleeping in Pitt's room.

I was laid up about three months with a very bad case of feminine weakness and I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets and I got immediate relief and in about four months I was well as ever. IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS
Eat less meat if kidneys feel like lead or bladder bothers.

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing once in a while, else we have backaches and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here. Take a teaspoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salt is made from the cold of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulates them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

"A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—Adv.

Both the Native-Born and Immigrant Have Their Duties to America.

By SENATOR W. S. KENYON of Iowa

The alien cannot Americanize himself. He can never become assimilated if he is shunted off into a shanty town. He cannot be Americanized with a club. There is more hope in a handshake than in profit-sharing.

There is a growing need for America to Americanize itself; for each individual to stop shifting the blame onto others and depending on some one else to get his house in order. The immigrant has his duty to America and he must be made to discharge it. The native-born has his duty and he must search his own heart to see if there are any roots of the trouble there. If we could only control our greed our avarice, our quick prejudice and passion and pull together for the general welfare of our country, what a nation this would be. America means more than stocks and bonds, and churches and schools and farms and stores. It means a great ideal of justice for all men. A man who cannot be just whether with his employee or with his employer is not a true American.

The ship of state is sailing through pretty troublesome seas, but it is a mighty sturdy old ship. It will weather the storms. It will pull through every crisis. It is a time for aroused conscience and determination of all our people to enthrone justice in their own hearts and then do what they can to assist others. We are engaged now in much talk of helping the world. We can help it by giving to the world a high example of justice and fraternity, and in so doing many of our industrial problems will be solved.

TO TEACH BUSINESS FARMING AT M. A. C.

The development of integration along the business side of farming has been assumed at the Michigan Agricultural College by the appointment this term of a professor of farm economics, whose business it will be to establish courses suited to the demand for training in co-operation and marketing. Dale Tennant, for the last two years a specialist in marketing with the extension division at M. A. C., has received the appointment to the new post and has already taken up his duties. Tennant carries the title, Associate Professor of Farm Economics and will cooperate with the general department of economic at the college.

Through his organization of the highly successful Michigan Potato Growers' Exchange and other co-operative associations, Professor Tennant has become widely known throughout farming circles of the state. He is a graduate of the University of Michigan and a practical farmer, having spent 15 years as a successful fruit grower in Berrien county.

In addition to taking over these courses now given by the economics department which bear upon agriculture directly, Professor Tennant will establish special work on various phases of farm business. Marketing, organization and the formation of co-operative associations will be among the things covered by the new department.

YOUR TIRE TROUBLES ARE OVER WHEN

After you have put an Insyde Tyre in your old or new Tyres. You cannot have a blow-out and 90% of punctures eliminated. Auto Tyres seldom wear out. They puncture, get stone bruises and blow out. You cannot blow a Tyre when once an Insyde tyre is installed and you get 100% wear instead of 30 to 50%. Those who drive them say you can't puncture them.

Have you any Tyre that has blown-out—if not entirely ruined, I will put a thread Koth Patch in which costs only a few cents, install an Armor and if you blow-out again before the Tyre is worn out you will get your money back or a new Armor. You can remove them and use again.

A guarantee comes with each Insyde Armor. They must give satisfaction.

Extract from a letter received from the factory making these Tyres only a few days ago:

Mr. M. A. Porter, Northville, Mich., Dear Sir: It is mighty hard to sit here and try to tell you all about Insyde Tyres in a letter. But if you knew the good work they do and if we could impress upon you that they will double the mileage of a tyre at only a fraction of the cost of a new one, you would boost them to the limit. Don't forget that we are back of you, solid as a rock, and our guarantee means what it says.

Get the best—The price of Insyde Tyres only a little above inferior re-liners.
