AUTO CLUB'S BANQUET NEXT TUESDAY NIGHT

STATE HIGHWAY COMMISSIONER ROGERS AND OTHER PROMINENT ROAD MEN COMING.

PREPARATIONS BEING MADE TO TAKE CARE OF ABOUT TWO HUNDRED PEOPLE.

The tables are all set, so to speak, for the Auto Club's annual banquet to take place at six o'clock (Eastern standard time) next Tuesday night at the High School gym.

The M. E. Ladies Aid has prepared an elaborate menu for the occasion and the N. H. S. Alumni handsome new china and silver will be first used for this event.

State Highway Commissioner Frank Rogers will be here to make a talk as will also commissioners from Detroit, Pontiac, Ann Arbor, and Kalamazoo, and officers from the Detroit Auto Club. Preparations to take care of 200 people will be made and the occasion will be a good road boost for this section of Michigan.

Prof. Blanchard, head of the engineering department of the University of Michigan, will also be present and give an address.

The committees in charge are as follows:

Finance—M. N. Johnson, V. J. Lanning, Harry Bucklev, N. C. Schrader, S. A. Loyen, et al.

Invitations—C. R. Benton, Harry Bogart, W. J. Lanning, T. S. Neal.

Program—C. C. Yerkes, L. A. Babbitt, E. H. Lapham, W. W. Thayer.

TWO CAUCUSES NAME SAME TICKET

For President—William J. Lanning
For Trustees—Fred Simmons, H. Ray Bogart, Fred E. Vanatta, Stewart Montgomery.

For Clerk—Thomas E. Murdock

For Assessor—Charles A. Sessions.

The above ticket was placed in nomination at both of the caucuses held in this village Tuesday night. There were no contests at either caucuses and all the nominations were made under suspension of the rules. At the W. J. Lanning's caucuses, held at Forester hall there was a good attendance, a number of women being present. N. C. Schrader was chosen chairman and W. H. Sanford secretary. The ticket given above was then placed in nomination.

The following were named as members of the committee for the ensuing year:

N. C. Schrader, Fred W. Lyke, Dean F. Griswold, Bertha Neal and Marie Sessions.

The People's caucus was held at the village hall and there were but ten "people" present. E. E. Brown was chosen chairman and T. R. Carrington secretary. The ticket named above was placed in nomination in a very short time and the committee composed of George Hotelling, Lee Shipley and E. M. Bogart was named to succeed themselves for the ensuing year.

DEATH OF HOWARD AVEY.

Howard A. Avey, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Avey, died at the Pike hospital in Pontiac Monday afternoon of pneumonia, following an attack of the flu, with which he had been afflicted for two weeks. During his illness everything that loving hands could do was done to stay the ravages of the malady, but the kindly ministrations of parents and friends failed, except to soothe his pathway to the valley of the shadows.

Howard was 17 years of age, and possessed many admirable traits of character, and with a kind and loving disposition he won the love and esteem of a large circle of friends.

Private funeral services were held in this village Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, being conducted by Rev. H. J. B. Marsh. He leaves to mourn his death his father and mother, brother, Dalton, and sister, Alice, who have the sympathy of the community in their bereavement.

MAKING PLANS FOR ANNUAL MEETING

At the meeting of the board of directors of the Northville Chamber of Commerce, held Saturday night, plans for the annual meeting to be held on the second Tuesday in March, were discussed and it was the opinion of those present that the affair ought to be made a community get-together gathering. It was decided to have a "feed" and smoker in connection with the meeting and to secure one or two out-of-town speakers for the event. A committee composed of S. A. Lovewell, E. H. Lapham, T. R. Carrington and E. E. Brown was appointed to perfect the plans for the meeting.

It is expected the gathering will be held in the High school gym and it is hoped to make the gathering one in which every man in this section will take a personal interest. Last summer the organization was perfected amid a good deal of enthusiasm and the preliminary meetings were well attended, but somehow interest in the project soon began to wane and the result has been that the organization has not accomplished what it might have done had all who favored the formation of the Chamber of Commerce been loyal and given the project their cooperation and support. The officers and directors have long realized the feeling of apathy, and it was decided Saturday night that all officers should be declared vacant and at the annual meeting a new set of officers and directors should be chosen. Thus the organization may make a new start and it is hoped, secure the hearty support of the community.

There is a great need in every community for a live aggressive organization among the business men, and such organizations have accomplished a great deal in some of our neighboring towns, and Northville ought not to be behind its neighbors.

When the date for the annual meeting arrives it is hoped that all those who expressed a willingness to become members last summer will be present and give the organization their financial and moral support.

VOTERS WERE ALL OF ONE MIND

At today's special election, called for the purpose of giving the directors of Northville village an opportunity of having their approval to the action of the village council in selling to the village the water power on the Ford the village water power, the voters all seemed to be of one mind as every vote cast was in favor of the proposition.

A storm of roughgust this day, doubtless, kept many from the polls, but in spite of the unfavorable weather conditions there were a total of 150 votes polled. In precinct No. 1 there were 90 and in precinct No. 2 a total of 60 were cast.

When the village council has ratified an action taken at Tuesday's election deeds to the property will be prepared and the transfer will take place.

INVITATIONS HAVE BEEN ISSUED.

Invitations for the annual ball to be given by Orient Chapter O. E. S., on the evening of the 20th inst., were mailed the first of the week and they were very attractive, giving every evidence that the committee in charge of the affair were sparing neither expense or effort to make the gathering the society event of the season.

Music will be furnished by Montgomery's orchestra, assisted by Messrs. McArthur and Rogers of Detroit, and it is a matter of just pride that Northville has an orchestra capable of providing a most delightful dance program.

All who attend may be assured a most enjoyable time.

TO OPEN EXCHANGE HOTEL.

W. J. Cowell has rented the old Exchange Hotel and has a force of men at work repainting and renovating the interior of the building. In the spring the exterior of the building will also be improved with a coat of paint. Mr. Cowell will open for business within a week or so, and he promises the public first-class accommodations. Both Mr. and Mrs. Cowell have had many years experience in the conduct of hotels.

Miss Grace White of Detroit was a visitor at the home of her sister, Mrs. George Martz a few days during the past week.

America's Assets: People, Institutions, as Well as Physical Resources.

By SECRETARY FRANKLIN K. LANE, in New York Times

The basis for confidence in the future of America lies in its past and its present; in its past, because we can see what has been done; in its present, because we know what we have that can be the basis of future development. Our assets are our people, our institutions, our physical resources. That is to say, we have greater resources than the mere continent itself.

The breed of men that we have, their attitude toward life and each other is more important even than the number of our acres and the greatness of our mineral resources and of our industries.

We are in every way a young people, and we look at things with youthful daring and with youthful selfishness, too.

No one has said that we are lacking in self-appreciation. We are emotional, sentimental, romantic, idealistic, and these things go for the making of standards which affect us in everything we do. Our sense of humor and our common sense save us from extremes and keep these up-in-the-air tendencies within the limitations of practicability.

With this kind of a nature, a daring, aggressive, mastering nature, tempered by standards of fair play, plus a good conceit of ourselves and an almost inordinate ambition to excel, individually and collectively, there is not much danger of our becoming stagnant or settling down complacently or cynically into a flat-footed life.

We shall not do things in the twentieth century in the same way we did them in the nineteenth, but we shall have the same purpose—which is to give to every man his chance. We will not permit ourselves as a people to be rounded up into a mass and rolled into a jelly cake, so to say, but as individuals we shall feel a responsibility to meet the challenges which physical and social conditions give.

United States Senate Slave to Heavy Tradition, Custom and Precedent.

By SENATOR DAVIS-ELKINS of West Virginia.

My experience and observations as a member of the United States senate have convinced me that the rules of that body should be changed to conform with our modern methods of doing business efficiently. The senate is hampered in prompt and efficient action quickly responsive to the wishes of the American people by antiquated methods. It is a slave to heavy tradition, custom and precedent.

The senate wastes time, doesn't function efficiently, is almost always behind in registering public sentiment, and is unbusinesslike and entirely out of step with modern methods, all because it has tied itself helplessly with a set of rules which are out of date and because it blindly worships outward, inefficient and impractical customs, precedents and practices.

I think that the senate should come to and wake up, and get itself on a modern business foundation. It needs to be made over so as to function efficiently and promptly respond to the will of the people, whose servant it is. The place to make that beginning is on changed and mass-covered rules.

Fifteen Years May Be Added to the Average American Term of Life.

By DR. W. J. MAYO, American College of Surgeons.

Fifteen years has been added to the average length of human life in the United States of America since the Civil war. In the work of the medical profession has the best hope for the future.

With our present knowledge and under present conditions fifteen years more might be added to the life of man in this country within the next twenty years. It is certain that ten years will be added at the most productive age from the standpoint of industry and will greatly aid in maintaining our position as the most productive nation.

When I was a boy it was difficult for a man of 40 to find a new job, and for a man of 50 it was practically impossible. Today the older men are great assets to the country. In the prolongation of their lives their skill and experience in their particular work counts for much. They are less inflammable; they have family ties and responsibilities; they have something to lose; so that they are less under the influence of the violent agitator.

If, as a nation, we advance the time of production for each person ten years we can well afford to shorten hours of work and improve living conditions. We shall be able to compete with those countries in which long hours and poor living conditions shorten human life and eventually decrease production and increase social unrest.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

ISSUE BEFORE ALL NATIONS

Four Years of Hell Have Left the People in a Nightmare, From Which Only New Morale Can Arouse Them.

Article I.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Four years of pagan hell left Europe stunned and staggering. The world has come through the reddest and blackest night in all the biography of the planet. With the signing of the armistice the people tried to shake off the nightmare and grope back to light. Today, a year after, it is a tragedy of stumbling, paralyzed and crumpled. The present problem of making the world safe for civilization is more serious than was the question of making it safe for democracy four years ago. If there was reason for sacrifice then there is reason for it now. If there was cause for a military morale then there is need of an industrial morale today. Freedom called men to fight and die that autonomy might not rule and run the world. The issue now is not only freedom, it is life—the chance to eat, to be warm, to sleep, and a tired, wounded, worn and weary people face the tomorrow with little faith and much fear.

I went to Europe to see for myself. I was attracted, a free agent I was not a member of a mission—I had no preconceived opinions. I sought facts, the human facts. I looked into the eyes of the people, walked the streets talked with men, women and children rich and poor, humble and powerful, journalists, bankers, lawyers, preachers, actors, government officials, coal miners, teachers, factory hands, labor leaders, and felt the pulse of the life of the street and of the life of the workshop, farmers and peasants, tenants and landlords. I examined official records and personal affidavits. I listened to speeches, heard speeches, interviewed the poets, listened to the conversations of the times and the talk of the cheap restaurants. I knew that few Americans would have the chance to go to Europe to see and hear for themselves that the millions of America would be compelled to depend upon the eyes and ears of others for information concerning a problem of world importance—a problem that is bound to involve us—we are part of it. No country is independent. Nations are interdependent to the extent and for the same reasons individuals are.

Only Hope Is in America

Europe looks to America for salvation, as a dying man looks to God for mercy. We are her only hope. If the United States adopts the policy of leaving Europe alone, on the theory that we have done enough for her, Europe will be plunged into the savagery of revolution. It is faith in America, belief that America will sustain her, help her carry the awful load that is bending and almost breaking the back of weak and crippled Europe, that is keeping her from succumbing. This faith is about the only thing Europe has left.

What is America? It isn't the buildings, and banks, the railroads, the houses and the land, it is the one hundred and ten million people of whom you are one. So Europe's plea is addressed to you. The prayers of her hungry children are petitions to you America's policy—the answer of the United States, will come from the judgment of the people. No man or woman can escape the responsibility. Each of us will contribute to the decision. It isn't a hypothetical case, we are called upon to decide—it is a question involving the life of human beings, men, women and children who are blood of our blood, part of the great world family—the human race. Shall we close down our shops, factories, mills and mines, bolt the doors, stop production at a time millions of human beings are crying to us for help? Can we listen to the thin, bony hands of children knocking at our doors and sit in our comfortable homes leaving them to die on our threshold? No call to arms ever had so much right back of it as our humanity as the call to work has today.

The house of Europe has been on fire. It has been wrecked it is scarred and charred—a ruin. The cupboards are empty, the people demoralized and sick. Winter is attacking them. Hunger has a strangle hold. They are in rags. They must rebuild, and they haven't the materials for the work. They turn to us. Their condition is their plea, our condition, our obligation. If the golden rule ever had any claim on our hearts and heads the time to prove it is now.

Our Comparative Plenty.

In our house things are well. We have been saved the devastation of war. Our acres are ample, our yield has been plentiful. We have an abundance of material. Our man power has only been lightly touched by the war. It is true that we gave nearly seventy thousand lives that the Prussians might not pass; that autocracy might not shackle the world. It was our best blood. Europe gave for four years, and she gave of her youth until her man power was almost exhausted.

We cannot sacrifice Europe without being sacrificed. If Europe falls—America will totter. The storm of unrest that rocks Europe to ruin will shake America. We must work and give—loan, if you please.

The heart of labor is warm. Its sympathy is born of suffering. The gospel of the brotherhood of man is the message that labor has always taught. I am sure that if I could picture the poverty of the children and women and men of Europe—if I could only make people see what I have seen in Europe, our differences would seem trivial by comparison with their sufferings. Men would will to work and find joy in the working. What greater compensation can come to conscience than working to feed the hungry, to clothe the naked, to comfort the lowly?

If the heart of capital is stone and cannot feel the message which comes over the seas, let labor show that its heart is humane and that it will suffer injustice, if need be, a little longer to save flesh and blood, brother and sister workers, on the other side of the ocean. It's a crime against God and man to stop production at this moment—and extravagance in this hour is a greater immorality than prostitution.

I did not stop with the gathering of figures, because I knew that while figures are important they frequently fail to tell the full truth. Official reports and statistics granting that they are accurate are at best only photographic. The photograph records with mathematical exactness the exterior of things. It seldom gets to the heart. The photograph is the still picture—the picture of the motionless fact. Impressions are more like oil paintings. They possess the human touch. They reach the heart within. Back of the dubs of paint on the canvas are the throbs of a heart. The film is only sensitized. Man's brain is sensitive. The photograph reproduces the outline the painting, the substance.

Plain Record of Facts

In reporting to you the things I saw and heard, I want to give you photographs, the figures and facts as I learned them, and the impressions I gathered from the speech and life of Europe. I have tried to keep my eyes free from prejudice so that the losses would be unbiased.

In the June of 1914 Europe had a place in the sunlight of peace. The fields were filled with peasants bending their backs to till. Villagers were happy in the common routine of their simple lives. Factories, mills and shops were filled with men. Wheels hummed, smoke streamed from chimneys, industry was singing. In the cities traffic roared, trains rattled. It was the story of a busy, working world.

Problems there were, of course, the problems normal to the growth and progress of the world. There was some unrest, too, but children scampered to school, patient women sang crooning songs to their babies. Men carrying dinner buckets whistled on their way to work. There were shadows—the unlighted side of the world's street—the slums and the tenements; but men and women were planning and fighting the black ugliness, and everyone had faith in the tomorrow. The world was making headway—it was growing better; its conscience was awakened. We were becoming our brother's keeper. It was a normal, sane, good old world. It was good to be alive.

Then came the day, the day that will never be forgotten—the day that changed the world; the day of four years, at the end of which civilization was almost hunched back.

Replant Your Lost Teeth.

When one's front teeth are knocked out there is no need to leave them on the floor, for they can be reinserted by a good dentist.

Dr. H. M. Savery tells in the Lancer (London), of two cases, in each of which several teeth were dislocated from their sockets. In one case the teeth were placed in salt water while the dentist carefully washed out the sockets. Then they were reinserted, a stitch or two taken in the gums and the jaws were bandaged shut so that the teeth bit on a pad of lint. In the other case the teeth still hung to the gums, so the sockets were cleaned out without detaching the teeth. In both cases the teeth became solidly fixed and the patients could use them for normal biting in a few months after the accident.

Dr. De Witt C. Henry of New York replaced not long ago the teeth of a coal miner that had been knocked out in a collision. The man had picked his teeth from the gutter and ran up to the dentist's office carrying them in his hand.

Our Arts.

Our arts are happy hits. We are like the musician on the lake, whose melody is sweeter than he knows, or like the traveler, surprised by a mountain echo whose trivial word returns to him in romantic thunders.—Emer

HOME TOWN HELPS

GENERAL CLEANUP IN ORDER

Patriotic Advertising Is No Longer an Excuse for the Presence of Unsightly Billboards.

Now that the orgy of war advertising is ended, where does it all leave YOU—as the posters said—and, your future contributions to the maintenance of the advertiser's paradise? You gladly saw patriotism written all over the beautiful buildings and places of the city—even though this writing was a kind of scribbling, so incongruous were the papers and billboards. Beauty was for the moment nothing—nothing unless it, too, served. But now!

Are we to be equally content to see Piffle's Pickles emblazoned where we testified our intention to save food, and thus help win the war? Will not chewing gum and chicle be more than ever an impudence when inflated to the dimensions of our fatherland, the liberty of the world and the sacrifices of our sons?

Some have feared that the riot of outdoor war advertising would debase our taste and make the public still more heedless of the incongruousness and ugliness of the advertising nuisance. We think not. In spite of every thing the war advertising truly expressed us. We looked at it and read it—and liked some of it—because it did. It expressed us best when it was most beautiful. And although, much of it was small in scale, it never was too big to express the great ideas. Day now, will not the autotheatrics of the insignificant seem more than ever cheap and tawdry? If so, the blatant advertisement has lost some of its advertising value. If it could only lose it all if people would not patronize what is offensively advertised, it would disappear—Pollution of the Municipal Art Society of New York.

PLANTS ON CITY LAMP-POSTS

Authorities of Allentown, Pa., Turr Usually Unsightly Objects Into Things of Beauty.

Turning the street lamp posts into things of beauty is the object of the authorities of Allentown, Pa.

In that city every lamp post wears a hanging garden effect from spring until late autumn. The flowers and decorative plant bearing plants are planted in urn shaped globes which encircle the lamp posts some distance below the light.

The city fathers who thought of and adopted the flowing lamp post idea made a thorough job of it.

fying the town by removing all of the overhead telephone and telegraph wires—at least in the principal streets.

But Allentown can boast of use as well as beauty. It is the county seat of a farming section which ranks as one of the leading potato producers of the country.—Popular Science Monthly.

All Should Own Homes.

From the national standpoint, it is most desirable that every citizen should own his home. The proper education of the child needs the sanctity of the home and the future of our country depends upon the average citizen doing his or her duty to train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it.

Building and loan associations should be formed in all cities where they do not already exist, as they are most useful in assisting men to acquire a home through the monthly installment plan.—Exchange.

For Large and Small Cities.

There should be a definite park policy and an appropriation sufficient to open up one new small park or recreation ground each year. Density of population grows in sections, and property values rise accordingly.

A forehanded small park policy will follow the trail of population density with an eagle's eye. The toilers and their usually large brood of children should have these city breathing spots at their doors.—Chicago Journal.

GIRLS! A MASS OF WAVY, GLEAMY BEAUTIFUL HAIR

Let "Danderine" save and glorify your hair

In a few moments you can transform your plain, dull, flat hair. You can have it abundant, soft, glossy and full of life. Just get at any drug or toilet counter a small bottle of "Danderine" for a few cents. Then moisten a soft cloth with the Danderine and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. Instantly, yes, immediately, you have doubled the beauty of your hair. It will be a mass, so soft, lustrous, fluffy and so easy to do up. All dust and excessive oil is removed.

Let Danderine put more life, color, vigor and brightness in your hair. This stimulating tonic will freshen your scalp, check dandruff and falling hair, and help your hair to grow long, thick, strong and beautiful.—Adv.

His Eccentricity.

"Honest," goodness! ejaculated Heloise of the rapid fire restaurant, "Hughie is the queerest guy you ever seen. Actually, he thinks a fellow ought to have a wife along when he goes to a show or films out in the evening, and all that."

"Where—yow-wah—wife?" asked Claudine of the same establishment. "His own wife."

"Gee!"—Kansas City Star.

LESS MEAT IF BACK AND KIDNEYS HURT

Take a Glass of Salts to Flush Kidneys if Bladder Bothers You.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.—Adv.

"Pape's Cold Compound" Instantly Relieves stuffiness and distress

Don't stay stuffed-up! Quit blowing and snuffing! A dose of "Pape's Cold Compound" taken every two hours until three doses are taken usually breaks up a severe cold and ends all gripe misery.

The very first dose opens your clogged-up nostrils and the air passages of the head; stops nose running; relieves the headache, dullness, feverishness, sneezing, soreness and stuffiness.

"Pape's Cold Compound" is the quickest, surest relief known and costs only a few cents at drug stores. It acts without assistance, tastes nice, contains no quinine—Insist upon Pape's!—Adv.

FAE ASSOCIATIONS ELECT NEW OFFICERS.

The adoption of programs calling for progressive work during the coming year marked the annual meetings of state agricultural associations held at East Lansing during Farmers' Week at M. A. C. Reports for 1919 indicated a good year for all the organizations represented, and prospects for the most active period Michigan agricultural interests have ever known were held out for 1920.

Among the officers elected by different associations are the following: Michigan Crop Improvement association—L. Whitner Watkins of Manchester, president; A. B. Cook of Owosso, vice-president; J. W. Nicholson of East Lansing, secretary and treasurer; Garfield Farley of Albion, Fred Cornair of Union City, J. F. Cox of East Lansing, and F. A. Spragg of East Lansing, directors.

The Michigan Veterinary association—Dr. R. H. Wilson of Rochester, president; Dr. B. A. Perry of Hastings, 1st vice-president; Dr. A. Z. Nichols of Hillsdale, 2nd vice-president; Dr. B. J. Killham of Adrian, 3rd vice-president; Dr. H. F. Palmer of Brooklyn, secretary-treasurer.

Michigan Potato Producers' association—Arthur N. Smith of Lake City, president; M. B. McPherson of Lowell, vice-president; H. C. Moore of East Lansing, secretary; Door D. Buell of Cadillac, treasurer.

Michigan Muck Farmers' association—C. E. Downing of Vermontville, president; L. S. Merriman of Decker, vice-president, and Ezra Levin of East Lansing, secretary.

Michigan State Farm Bureau—Roland Morrill of Benton Harbor, president; R. G. Potts of Washington, vice-president; A. J. Rogers of Beulah, A. E. Allen of Adrian, and James Nicol of South Haven executive committee men for two years, and Robert Blumhauer of Marquette, Mrs. Cora Ketcham of Hastings and A. M. Berridge of Greenville on the executive committee for one year.

TO INVESTIGATE FOOD COSTS.

Supervisors William Shattlyworth, Harry M. Bogart and Benjamin Blaylock have been named as a committee by Chairman Frank J. Malcolm to visit other counties and ascertain what rate is being paid for food of prisoners at county jail. The committee is expected to report at a later date.

There has been considerable dissatisfaction over the salary system for the sheriff which the county put into effect January 1, 1919, when the sheriff was allowed 75 cents a day for board of prisoners at the jail and $1 a day when they are on the road wagon. Secretary Murray of the state board of corrections and charities told the board when he was here last week that the county is paying too much for board. He asserted many other counties are working out a cost plan and find it most economical. He spoke of Washtenaw county, where he declared it was costing only a fraction over 11 cents a meal to feed prisoners at the jail. He suggested appointment of a committee to make an investigation.

Supervisor Isaac Bond, who as a member of the building committee visited a number of jails in the east said he found a city in the east where only 24 cents a day was allowed for board of prisoners.—Pontiac Press.

AFTER 7 YEARS—STILL WELL

Now Enjoy Best of Health and Does Her Housework Unaided

"I didn't enjoy one day of good health for more than two years," says Mrs. C. E. Wildes, 748 E. Georgia St., Memphis, Tenn.

"At first I had nothing more than backache. After a while it became a terrible attack of pain left me weak and limp. My arms and limbs ached. My feet felt weighted with tons of lead. I couldn't walk without a cane and had to be carried to bed every night. I couldn't do a bit of work and kept my people busy rubbing my aching limbs. Sometimes my whole body became rigid. My feet were swollen twice their normal size. It almost killed me to pass the kidney secretions. I lost 42 pounds and each day felt I had aged a year. I was so nervous the rustle of a paper made me scream."

"Finally I was advised to use Doan's Kidney Pills and seven boxes made me a well woman. I have enjoyed the best of health for seven years, and have done all my housework without any trouble." Sworn to before me.

TO HIM THEY WERE BUT PRETTY PEBBLES

Synopsis—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave trader, who spares his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke) and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Precourt, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He turns his host as in financial straits and is informed by Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar. Spying on Tarzan, Werper sees him load his blacks with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun Worshippers. A convulsion of nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety Werper is seized by priests of the Flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be sacrificed as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion.

CHAPTER V.

The Arab Raid.

After their first terror had subsided subsequent to the shock of the earthquake, Basuli and his warriors hastened back into the passageway in search of Tarzan and two of their gnomes who were also missing.

They found the way blocked by jammed and distorted rock. For two days they labored to tear a way through to their imprisoned friends; but when, after Herculean efforts, they had unearthed but a few yards of the choked passage, and discovered the tangled remains of one of their fellows they were forced to the conclusion that Tarzan and the second Waziri were dead beneath the debris. As they lay dead beneath the debris, and no long-suffering of it.

They gave up the search. Fearfully they cast a last look at the shattered tomb of their master, shouldered the heavy burden of gold that would at least furnish comfort, if not happiness, to their bereaved and beloved mistress, and made their mournful way back across the desolate valley of Opar, abiding toward through the forests beyond to the distant bungalow.

And as they marched what sorrow was already driving upon them, the joyful happy home.

From the north came Achmet Zek, the Arab slave trader, who had been waiting for the opportunity to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan, and sell her into slavery. Werper accepted. Posing as Jules Precourt, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He turns his host as in financial straits and is informed by Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar.

Spying on Tarzan, Werper sees him load his blacks with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun Worshippers. A convulsion of nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety Werper is seized by priests of the Flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be sacrificed as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion.

The raiders were still a long way off when the warrior's keen eyes discovered them. He issued orders rapidly in conformance with them. The men seized upon their weapons and their shields. "Some ran to call in the workers from the fields and to warn the tenders of the flocks and herds. The majority followed Mugambi back to the bungalow.

The dust of the raiders was still a long distance away. Mugambi could not know positively that it had an enemy; but he had spent a lifetime of his life in savage Africa, and he had seen parties before come thus unbidden. Sometimes they had come in peace and sometimes they had come in war—a peace could never tell. It was well to be prepared.

The Greystoke bungalow was not well adapted for defense. No palisade surrounded it, for situated as it was, in the heart of Lord Greystoke's master and anticipated no possibility of an attack in force by any enemy. Heavy wooden shutters, there were to close the window apertures against hostile arrows and these Mugambi was engaged in lowering when Lady Greystoke appeared upon the veranda.

"Why, Mugambi?" she exclaimed. "What has happened? Why are you lowering the shutters?"

Mugambi pointed out across the plain to where a white-robed force of mounted men was now distinctly visible.

"Arabs," he explained. "They come for no good purpose in the absence of the Great Waziri."

The raiders had halted a hundred yards out upon the plain. Mugambi had hastened down to join his warriors. He advanced a few yards before them and, raising his voice, hailed the strangers. Achmet Zek sat straight in his saddle before his benchmen.

"Arab?" cried Mugambi. "What do you want here?"

"We come in peace," Achmet Zek called back.

"Then turn and go in peace," replied Mugambi. "We do not want you here. There can be no peace between Arab and Waziri."

Achmet Zek drew one side of his horse speaking to his men in a low voice. A moment later, without warning, a ragged volley was poured into the ranks of the Waziri. A couple of the warriors fell, the others were for charging the attackers; but Mugambi was a cautious as well as a brave leader. He knew the futility of charging men armed with muskets. He withdrew his force behind the shelter of the garden. Half a dozen men sent to the bungalow itself with instructions to keep their mistress within doors and to protect her with their lives.

Adopting the tactics of the desert fighters, from which he had sprung, Achmet Zek and his followers at a gallop in a zig-zag line, describing a great circle, rushed closer and closer in to the defenders.

The Waziri, justly famed for their prowess, found no cause to blush for the performance that day. Time and again some worthy horseman threw hands and his head and toppled from his saddle, pierced by a deadly arrow; but the contest was uneven. The Arabs outnumbered the Waziri; then bullets penetrated the shrubbery and found their way to the Arab ranks. Achmet Zek moved forward a half mile above the bungalow and led his marauders within the grounds.

Mugambi saw them coming, and, calling those of his warriors who remained in the bungalow and the last stand in the veranda. Lady Greystoke, too, in hand. She saw a such and had accounted to her steady nerves and cool aim for his outburst, more than a single pony, and then he was in the wake of the charging horde.

Mugambi had his mistress back into the greater safety of the interior and with a rapid force prepared to make a stand against the foe.

On came the Arabs shouting and waving their long spears above their heads. Past the veranda they raced, pouring a deadly fire into the kneeling Waziri who lay on the ground. Arrows from behind the long, oval shields—highly well adapted, perhaps, to stop a hostile arrow, or deflect a spear; but futile, quite, to the leaden missiles of the rifle. Mugambi withdrew his force within the building.

Again and again the Arabs charged, at last forming a stationary circle about the little fortress, and outside the effective range of the defenders' arrows. From their new position they fired at will at the windows. One by one the Waziri fell. Fewer and fewer.

were the arrows that replied to the guns of the raiders, and at last Achmet Zek felt safe in ordering an assault.

First as they ran, the bloodthirsty horde raced for the veranda. A dozen of them fell to the arrows of the defenders; but the majority reached the door. Heavy gun butts fell upon it. The crash of splintered wood mingled with the report of a rifle as Jane Clayton fired through the panels upon the relentless foe.

Upon both sides of the door men fell; but at last the frail barrier gave to the vicious assaults of the maddened attackers; it crumpled inward and a dozen swarthy murderers leaped into the living room. At the far end stood Jane Clayton surrounded by the remnant of her devoted guardians. The floor was covered by the bodies of those who already had given up their lives in her defense. In the forefront of her protectors stood the giant Mugambi. The Arabs raised their rifles to pour in the last volley that would effectually end all resistance; but Achmet Zek roared out a warning order that stayed their tricker fingers.

"Fire not upon the woman!" he cried. "Who harms her, dies. Take the woman alive!"

The Arabs rushed across the room; the Waziri met them with their heavy spears. Swords flashed, long-barreled pistols roared out their sullen death dooms. Mugambi launched his spear at the nearest of the enemy with a force that drove the heavy shaft completely through the Arab's body, then he seized a pistol from another, and grasping it by the barrel brained all who forced their way too near his mistress.

Imitating his example, the few warriors who remained to him fought like demons; but one by one they fell, until only Mugambi remained to defend the life and honor of the ape-man's taste.

From across the room Achmet Zek watched the unequal struggle and urged on his minions. In his hands was a jeweled musket. Slowly he raised it to his shoulder waiting until another move should place Mugambi at his mercy without endangering the lives of the woman or any of his own followers.

At last the moment came, and Achmet Zek pulled the trigger. Without a sound the brave Mugambi sank to the floor at the feet of Jane Clayton.

An instant later she was surrounded and dragged to the bungalow. A giant negro lifted her to the pinnacle of his saddle, and while the raiders searched the bungalow and outhouses for plunder he rode with her beyond the gates and waited the coming of his master.

When the raiders assembled after glutting their fury and their avarice, and rode away with Jane Clayton to ward the north, she saw the smoke and flames rising far into the heavens until the whining of the trail into the thick forests hid the sad view from her eyes.

As the flames ate their way into the living room, reaching out forked tongues to lick up the bodies of the dead, one of that gruesome company whose bloody work had long since been stilled moved again. It was a black man who rolled over upon his side and opened blood-shot suffering eyes. Mugambi, whom the Arabs had left for dead, still lived. The hot flames were almost upon him as he raised himself painfully upon his hands and knees and crawled slowly toward the doorway. After what seemed to him an interminable time, during which the flames had become a veritable fiery furnace at the far side of the room, the great black man managed to reach the veranda, roll down the steps and crawl off into the cool safety of some narrow shrubbery.

All night he lay there, alternately unconscious and painfully sentient; and in the latter state watching with savage hatred the lurid flames, which still rose from burning crib and haycock. A growling lion-roared close at hand; but the giant black was unafraid. There was place for but a single thought in his savage mind—revenge! revenge! revenge!

CHAPTER VI.

The Jewel-Room of Opar. For some time Tarzan lay where he had fallen upon the floor of the treasure chamber beneath the ruined walls of Opar. He lay as one dead; but he was not dead. At length he stirred. Slowly he rose to a sitting posture, listening. No sound reached to the buried depths of his sepulcher. He staggered to his feet and groped his way among the tiers of ingots. What was he? Where was he? His head ached; but otherwise he felt no ill effects from the blow that had felled him. The accident he did not recall, nor did he recall aught of what had led up to it.

He felt his hands grope unfamiliarly over his limbs, his torso, and his head. He felt of the quiver at his back, the knife in his loin cloth. Something struggled for recognition within his brain. Ah! he had it. There was something missing. He crawled about upon the floor, feeling with his hands for the thing that instinct warned him was gone. At last he found it—the heavy war spear that in past years had formed so important a feature of his daily life, almost of his very existence. Tarzan was sure that there was another and more lovely world than that which was confined to the darkness of the four stone walls surrounding him. He continued his search and at last found the doorway leading inward beneath the city and the temple. This he followed, most incautiously. He came to the stone steps leading upward to the higher level. He ascended them and continued onward toward the well, blundering on through the darkness as though he were traversing an open plain under the brilliance of a noonday sun. And suddenly there happened that which had to happen under the circumstances of his rash advance.

He reached the brink of the well, stepped outward into space, lunged forward and shot downward into the faky depths below. Still clutching his spear, he struck the water and sank beneath its surface, plunging to the depths.

The fall had not injured him, and when he rose to the surface he shook the water from his eyes and found that he could see. Tarzan gazed about him. On the level with the surface of the water he saw a large opening in the dank and slimy wall. He swam to it and drew himself out upon the wet floor of a tunnel.

Along this he passed; but now he went warily, for Tarzan of the Apes was learning. The unexpected pit had taught him one in the traversing of dark passages—he needed no second lesson.

For a long distance the passage went straight as an arrow. The foot of it slowly ended in a T. Up this he made his way. It turned back and forth many times, leading, at last, into a small, circular chamber.

Curiosity prompted the ape man to investigate his surroundings. Several metal-bound, copper-studded chests constituted the sole furniture of the round room. Tarzan let his hands run over these. He felt of the copper studs he pulled upon the hinges and at last by chance he raised the cover of one.

An exclamation of delight broke from his lips at sight of the pretty contents. Glimmering and glistening in the subdued light of the chamber lay a great tray full of brilliant stones. Tarzan, reverted to the primitive by his accident, had no conception of the fabulous value of his find. To him they were but pretty pebbles. He plunged his hands in them and let the priceless gems filter through his fingers. He went to others of the chests only to find still further stores of precious stones. Nearly all were cut, and from these he gathered a handful and filled the pouch which dangled at his side—the uncut stones he tossed back into the chests. Unwittingly, the ape man had stumbled upon the forgotten jewel room of Opar.

Tiring at last of this diversion, Tarzan took up his way along the corridor which led upward from the jewel room by a steep incline. The tunnel led him nearer and nearer to the surface, ending finally in a low-ceiled room, lighter than any that he had as yet discovered.

Above him an opening in the ceiling at the upper end of a flight of concrete steps revealed a brilliant sunlit scene. Tarzan viewed the vine-covered columns in mild wonderment. There was a tantalizing suggestion always present in his mind that something was eluding him—that he should know many things which he did not know.

His earnest cogitation was rudely interrupted by a thunderous roar from the opening above him. Following the roar came the cries and screams of men and women. Tarzan grasped his spear more firmly and ascended the steps. A strange sight met his eyes as he emerged from the semidarkness of the cellar to the brilliant light of the temple.

"WHEN KNIGHTS WERE BOLD"
Days of the Tournament and the Joust Must Have Seen Some Pretty "Lively" Scraps

The national sports of Europe were for a long time confined to tournaments and jousts, most of which were participated in by nobility, with the king as a spectator.

The tournaments saw companies of from five to a dozen knights ranged against each other in the field, with judges to see that the regularly set rules be observed. The plan of each tournament was to unhorse the other by a blow with a blunt lance received full from in front. A knight drawn by a side blow was considered the victor in that it showed poor horsemanship on the part of the other.

The joust was entirely different from the tournament, being actually a duel, and usually a fight to death. Knights seeking to fasten themselves to a saddle and thus save themselves from being thrown, were deprived of knightly food. The knight was permitted to wear an outer garment over his armor, thus lending a gay appearance to the confounding forces.

Eventful Day in Yuma.
What must have been the excitement in Yuma, Ariz., when on January 4 rain fell there for the first time in 45 years? Gross men and women, young men and women, boys and girls who had never seen rain gazed in alarm or delight or wonder at an amazing sight, they saw the heavens veiled for the first time and water falling from the gray curtain drawn across their sky of brilliant blue. Probably the little ones were seen barefoot and paddling about in puddles, men and boys throwing off their coats more intimately to feel the delights of a cloud-sent shower bath. A shower took on the proportions of an event; a natural phenomenon reached the heights of a treat.

"That's the way she pronounced it."
"Ahem! Does she appear to have money?"
"Yes, and she doesn't appear to have had it long."

"Ah! In that case get down some of those rugs we got from our factory in New Jersey the other day. I suspect that what we have in our net is a 'gen-u-wine' fish."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

The KITCHEN CABINET

"This community spirit says: I am under obligations of service to my neighbor next door, whoever he is. ### WAYS WITH MEATS.

To pan-broil a steak, be sure to have the steak at least one or one and a half inches thick. Heat the iron frying pan smoking hot and rub it quickly with a piece of lard or butter on a fork, then lay in the steak. Cook for a minute and turn to sear the other side, being careful when turning not to pierce the steak with the fork or the juices will be lost. When both sides are well seared season with pepper, salt and a bit of butter, then cook at a lower temperature until it is right to serve. Serve on a hot platter.

Pot Roast.—Take four pounds of beef from the shoulder. Put half a cupful of good drippings in an iron kettle, and when hot turn in the beef; sear well all over, then let it cook slowly for two hours. After the first hour season with salt and pepper, a piece of celery, carrot, an onion and a piece of bay leaf, if that flavor is liked. If cooked slowly no water will be needed. Pour off some of the fat and make a gravy as for roast beef.

Swiss Steak.—Pound flour with the edge of a sifter into a round steak, using as much flour as the meat will take up. Season well and fry in a little hot fat until well browned on both sides, then add water to cover and set on the back of the range or over the simmering burner to cook for two hours or until tender. Cover closely to keep in all the steam. The gravy is ready to serve with this dish as it is made from the flour in the pan with the liquor. Onions, carrot or celery may be added to the meat while cooking to vary the flavor.

Mock Duck.—Tink steak may be used for this dish. Score the flank in a half dozen slashes. Prepare a stuffing as for chicken. Add sage and egg or any sweet fat. Roll up carefully, tie and place in a kettle and half cover with boiling water. Simmer several hours on the back of the stove and when tender brown in a hot oven. If a fireless cooker is used it may cook over night. Serve with gravy made from the liquor in the kettle.

Fried Ham.—Take a thick slice of ham, parboil it for five minutes. Do not drain, but spread with a teaspoonful of mustard and a tablespoonful of brown sugar and cook until brown. Ham is also most palatable cooked in this way using either instead of water in a fireless cooker. Another way with ham is to place a thick slice in a granite pan and cover with milk. Bake in a moderate oven until the milk is nearly absorbed.

It is a regrettable fact that only by increased production and persistent frugality in the use of food supplies can the food problem be solved and the cost of living reduced.—American Cookery

SEASONABLE DISHES

With the high price of eggs we will have to make some attempt to learn some egg extenders. We have become so proficient in extending meat that surely the same ability may be used with eggs.

A good supper or breakfast dish is made by using a cupful of seasoned boiled rice, added to two or three eggs which have been scalloped with milk. This dish will serve four or five persons.

Bran Brown Bread.—Take one cupful of whole wheat flour, half a cupful of honey, four cupfuls of rye flour, a teaspoonful of soda, four teaspoonfuls of anise seed, two teaspoonfuls of ginger, the yolks of two eggs and one-fourth of a cupful of powdered sugar. Sift the flour with the dry ingredients, mix with the eggs and sugar, put into greased pans and bake in a quick oven.

Puffed Rice Brittle.—Heat one cupful of sugar in a smooth pan until clear and golden brown. Stir into this one-half package or more of puffed rice which has been well heated in the oven to crisp it.

Fondant.—For a foundation for all bon bons and French candies this is the base: Roll together two cupfuls of sugar, two tablespoonfuls of corn syrup and one-half cupful of water to the soft ball stage. Pour out on a buttered platter and when cool enough to handle work with a wooden spoon and knead until smooth. Put away in a buttered bowl to ripen for a day or two. This candy may be mixed with fruit, colored and flavored to taste, molded in balls and dipped in melted chocolate for chocolate cream or mixed with nuts.

Marshmallow Peaches.—Arrange halves of peaches on a dessert dish. Whip cream, sweeten and flavor with almond. Place a spoonful of the cream in the cavity of the peach with a fresh marshmallow on top. Serve with cookies or cake as a dessert.

GREAT SOLDIERS POOR SHOTS

Neither Napoleon Nor Wellington Could Have Qualified as Marks-men, Even in Slow Company

Wellington the "Iron Duke," frequently stayed at Marlborough park the estate in Sussex owned by Prince Master von Derburg. Sir John Stacey named Marlborough park in Wellington's time and Lady Shelley records in her diary a "lovely exhibition by the duke during one of his visits." I accompanied the guns in the afternoon," she writes on September 8, 1819. "The hero of Waterloo was a very wild shot. After wounding a retriever and later on peppering a keeper's gaiters he sprinkled the bare arms of an old woman who chanced to be washing clothes at her cottage window. "My good woman," I said, "this ought to be the proudest moment of your life. You have had the distinction of being shot by the duke of Wellington." Her face was wreathed in smiles as the contrite duke slipped a gold coin into her hand.

Wellington shared his weakness as a poor shot with Napoleon, whose sole bag was a dog the only time he went out game shooting.

MANY USES FOR QUICKSILVER

Semi-Precious Metal, Much in Demand, Is Becoming Scarce—Sometimes Employed as Drug.

Quicksilver is one of the semi-precious metals, and is gradually becoming scarce. The metal is noted for its many uses, besides the familiar one in the thermometer. Its tendency to unite with gold into an amalgam causes its chief use. The mercury is spread over a copper plate over which the gold ore is washed. The gold from its weight comes in contact with the plate and is promptly amalgamated with the quicksilver, from which it is separated by heat.

Quicksilver is also known for its use as a medicine when rubbed to a fine, globular powder, with rose water, under the name of blue mass. Among the chemical compounds of quicksilver is bichloride of mercury, made by heating a mixture of mercuric sulphate and common salt. This is sometimes taken as a poison and results in painful and lengthy suffering and in death. Quicksilver is also very essential to the manufacture of high class mirrors.

T. J. PERKINS DIES.

Many old friends in Northville were shocked when the news of the death of T. J. Perkins became current about town. He had been ill but a couple of days and death came to him unexpectedly. He had been to Bennington on Wednesday to do some trading and soon after his return home complained of not feeling well, but he would not consent to take to his bed until about five o'clock and at 11 30 the messenger came, and the kindly man fell asleep.

Mr. Perkins was born in Courtland, N. Y. In 1883 he was united in marriage to Miss Hettie Yerkes, the ceremony taking place at the old home, from which his funeral was held last Sunday. His remains were placed in the vault at Owosso until weather conditions will permit burial.

Mr. Perkins was engaged in the mercantile business in Northville for a number of years, disposing of his interests here to C. A. Ponsford ten years ago this coming spring. He enjoyed the confidence and esteem of all who knew him and many friends here and extend sincere sympathy to the bereaved family.

She graduated from the Birmingham High School in 1904 and the next year was married to Frank Eno of Milford. She is survived by husband and daughter, Lucile, (Mrs. Norman Clark), and granddaughter, the little baby born last fall. The funeral was held yesterday.

ANOTHER BIG BOOST FOR NORTHVILLE.

At the big township show under the direction of Prof. C. H. Burgess, department of Poultry Husbandry, held at the C. A. C. East Lansing, February 10-12, inclusive, A. E. Fuller of this place won three beautiful medals and the championship ribbons captured by his White Plymouth Rock. This show was to bring out the best birds in Michigan, as no birds were eligible to compete for the championship prizes but those that had taken a first prize at some other show in the state.

Mr. Fuller entered four birds, a cock bird, a hen, a pullet, and a captured state champion cock bird, champion cockerel, hen and second pullet.

The medals given on cockerel were a handsome bronze medal for the best cockerel in the state, Plymouth Rock class, a handsome coin silver medal for the best cockerel in the American class and a beautiful 14K gold medal for the best bird in the show, each medal bearing the seal of the state.

There were 41 cockerels showing against this bird in the American class and 76 birds in competition for the gold medal. Four judges passed decision on the bird and the final Judge, Francis A. Tupper of Royal Oak, gave him his prize. Prof. Wm. Wise of the M. A. C. said that in his 30 years of judging this was the first time he had seen a bird doing such hours of work. Mr. Fuller says, however, that the Northville Fair it was the best show he ever attended.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR.

The Garden farmer will find the Ford Model T One Ton Truck an especially valuable factor in his business because of the flexibility as well as the reliability of the service given by this splendid truck. The Ford Truck with its worm-drive is most economical in operation and maintenance. There is very little, if anything, to get out of order at any time; there is the simplicity in control; there is the convenience in the flexibility of the car, it will turn in a circle of forty-eight feet; it accommodates itself to narrow alleys, and it "stands the gauntlet" of hard work day after day, and month after month, to the great satisfaction of the owner. There is hardly a line of business activity where the Ford One Ton Truck is not really a necessity. Come in and talk it over.
