

Women From Girlhood Through Motherhood and Past Middle-Life

Twining, Mich.—"We have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery as a general tonic many times. When we didn't feel right we would use a bottle or two, and would be all right. When I was passing through middle life, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription was my refuge in time of trial. I passed through that most critical time without any trouble. I live on a farm and do all the work a woman has to do without any help and can walk four or five miles and not be any the worse for it. I also took it a few years ago during pregnancy and it helped me wonderfully. I had comparatively no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. Favorite Prescription has done wonders for me. I think it is the only medicine for young women or women who are in delicate condition."—MRS. C. GUILL, Jr., 250 9th St.

"We have also used the Little 'Pill' with good results."—MRS. S. A. DOUGLAS, Boston, 1801 93.

—"When I was a girl going to school I got all run down and weak due to hard studying. About the time I was coming into womanhood I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it built me up in fine shape in just a short space of time. I also took it a few years ago during pregnancy and it helped me wonderfully. I had comparatively no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. Favorite Prescription has done wonders for me. I think it is the only medicine for young women or women who are in delicate condition."—MRS. C. GUILL, Jr., 250 9th St.

FIND SERUM TO KILL FLU GERMS

Paris Physician Meets With Success in Anti-Plague Experiments.

30,000,000 IN WORLD HIT

New York Hospital Isolates Sleeping Sickness Germ—Paris Doctor Says Influenza and Sleeping Sickness Are Twin Diseases.

New York—Three-quarters of the world's population have been affected with Spanish influenza, which is now declared to be the same disease as the sleeping sickness, and a serum has been found to cure both, according to reports. Experiments are being carried on here and in Paris.

Simultaneously with the receipt of word from Paris that a serum had been made by Dr. Charles Folley which would cure both influenza and sleeping sickness, came a report from Bellevue hospital that a preliminary report had been issued from Mount Sinai hospital of the probable isolation of the sleeping sickness germ.

To produce a serum to cure the encephalitis lethargica as the sleeping sickness is known to science, it would be necessary to separate the germ of the disease's serum is made from one disease germ, therefore the discovery in the blood is a matter of the highest importance.

The germ of Spanish influenza is said to have been isolated by a perfect serum is known to have been produced.

Use Flu Germs
Doctor Folley in Paris produced the serum by the use of sleeping sickness germ in that isolating the encephalitis lethargica germ is a matter of the highest importance.

The same serum which he cured many cases of influenza was found equally effective in curing sleeping sickness. This theory of twin diseases is borne out by the fact that this serum is known to have been produced.

At the outbreak of the Spanish influenza in 1918, it was said that Mount Sinai hospital had been isolated by a perfect serum is known to have been produced.

the sleeping sickness germ and that no formal announcement of the germ's discovery had been issued. A preliminary report had stated the doctors at Mount Sinai had succeeded in finding a "globoid body" of infinitesimal proportions which was believed to be the possible germ or cause of the disease.

To Publish Report.
Experiments with the globoid body are now being carried on at Mount Sinai, a complete report of the findings of the researchers there will be issued in due time, it was said.

Dr. Folley, Paris, said there are 25,000,000 cases of the "flu" annually.

"I did not invent this anti-plague serum, and it was only after I had made successful experiments on myself that I used it on others. Since that time I and other physicians have made thousands of cures and I am convinced that the Spanish influenza and the sleeping sickness are the same disease.

"While there is no danger in employing this treatment, there is grave danger from influenza due to the great number of cases, which are constantly increasing every day. Nearly three-quarters of the population of the world has already been more or less affected with it."

SOUNDED ALL RIGHT TO HER

Prisoner's Defense Naturally Had a Lot of Weight With the Fair Prosecutor.

The case looked black against the prisoner, who was charged with holding up a train at the midway station. Presently the magistrate said sternly:

"This lady says you tried to speak to her at the railway station."

"It was a mistake," pleaded the man in the dock. "I was looking for my wife's coming home when I've never seen but you had been described to me as a handsome young lady, with golden hair, wearing feathers, fine complexion, perfect figure, and intelligently dressed."

With a charming blush the prisoner, who had just been interrupted by a flow of eloquence:

"I don't wish to prosecute the gentleman, sir," she said to the magistrate. "Any one might have made the same mistake."

Mean but True.
"That was a nasty thing you could say to me before leaving."

What was it?
"Just as she was leaving the house she turned back on a ledge and said: 'Well, I've got it on your husband anyhow. I don't have to say more.'"

FARMER CANNOT AFFORD TO SOW POOR SEED

Two Dinner Plates and Two Pieces Blotting Paper Make Good Home Tester.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

Red clover seed is selling at approximately 50 cents a bushel. At that price a farmer cannot afford to sow his clover seed anything that is not clover seed. Half a dollar a pound for weed seed, chaff, and dirt is too high a price to pay for the privilege of being careless—particularly as seed testing is comparatively an easy and wholly an inexpensive operation.

There is but one factor in crop production over which the farmer has absolute control. Sunshine and moisture are matters that are wholly beyond his power of influence. Measure-ably, he can control culture, but too much rain or too long a drought at a critical time may place even that beyond his power. But, no matter what happens, the farmer can be sure that he is planting good seed—the kind of seed that, given a fair chance, will produce a full crop. He cannot afford to handicap himself at the outset by planting adulterated or dead seed—the kind of seed that can not make a full crop no matter how favorable conditions may be.

Labeling of Seeds Promised

The sale of seeds, in many states, is regulated by law, the seeds being required to make certain statements as to quality, but the law is not applicable to seeds that go into later states. In order to protect the consumer, the United States department of agriculture in 1917 asked representatives of the seed trade to meet in Washington and consider the consent of most of them to a suggestion that seed men label all farm seeds sold in lots of 10 pounds or more,
the label to show percentage of pure seed, percentage of germination and date of germination test. In some cases the requirement was not lived up to, but the matter has again been called to the attention of seed men and

Labeling of Seeds Promised

All kinds of farm seeds may be subjected to one kind of test or another, but the seeds of the crops in most general use and which it is especially difficult to have tested are the true clovers, such as red, white, and other varieties, such as alfalfa, timothy,
orchard grass and the millets, etc.
These seeds, they state, and the quality of the seed of these crops, except certain and corn is imported and widely available grades are on the market.
Just now a great deal of clover seed is being imported from Italy, and specimens of that seed show that it is poorly adapted to American conditions. The prevalence of foreign-grown seed in the market is probably not generally recognized but it is one of the important elements in making testing necessary.

GETTING PROFITS IN BUILD HEN HOUSE IN SPRING

FEEDING LIVE STOCK

Building Then Will Have Chance to Dry Out During Hot Days—
Avoid Danger of Colds.

Two Tests Conducted on Private Farms in Florida.

Herd of Native Steers Turned on Field of Velvet Beans Gave Better Results Than Those Fed on More Expensive Feeds.

Less gains in weight but greater profits resulted from feeding a herd of cattle in a velvet bean field compared with another herd fed in a similar field for only a short time and then given more costly feed, including sorghum silage and cottonseed meal. These two feeding tests were conducted on private farms in Florida in cooperation with the bureau of animal industry,
United States department of agriculture.

In one case 220 native steers, three-to five years old and averaging 532 pounds per head, were turned into an 80-acre field of velvet beans early in November. After 23 days the animals averaged 580 pounds and the feed was changed to sorghum silage, velvet beans in pod and cottonseed meal. On the fifty-sixth day the weight was 583 pounds. On the eighty-fourth day when the test ended, it was 644 pounds.
The average daily gain per head was approximately three-fourths of a pound. The ration was not the typical fattening ration used heretofore but was one used to secure a comparable degree of finish. Had grain been fed in addition probably a greater gain would have been secured. There was a $2 margin and a profit of $402 per head.

In the second experiment 116 native steers similar to the first herd were pastured on an 85-acre field of velvet beans for 72 days, beginning at about the same time of year. They lost considerable in weight for a part of the second month, but there was a daily average gain for the whole period of a little more than one-fourth pound per steer. The pasture charge in this case was $9 per acre, and the profit $633 per head. The margin was $2 as in the other case.

BOYS AND GIRLS' CALF CLUB

Say Dairy Experts

Why shouldn't a boy and girl

calf club? Or, more immediately, speaking a larger boy and girl calf club—larger boys and girls, that is, not larger club. Or, getting nearer the meat—or the milk—of the thing, why shouldn't the club boy or girl who raises a calf milk that calf when she becomes a cow, watch her development, keep a set of books on her production, and in a small way, learn the essentials of dairy farming, taking the herds as good and getting their introduction and incidentally learning

"the old trick or two."

That is a question, in one form or another, that the experts of the dairy industry are asking. It is a question that farm people and agricultural extension workers should think about. They may be sure to say on the subject after a while.

the daughters of purebred bulls from high-producing families. It goes almost without saying that a purebred bull, when introduced into a herd of scrub cows, will produce daughters that produce more milk and butterfat than their mothers.

DAIRY NOTES

Winter cow comfort means more winter profits.

A cow that ranks with the best of her breed is worth half a dozen average cows.

Good dairy cows are hard to find and high in price. The best way to get them is to raise them.

There may be some roughage the cows like better than silage, but the average dairyman hasn't discovered it.

It is becoming more evident daily that a herd of cows on the farm offers the owner an opportunity to increase his profits, and at the same time maintain the fertility of his soil.

Mr. Carnegie's Advice
"In consultation with a number of bankers," Mr. Carnegie said, "I have found a new venture. The business boomed as it ought to be profitable.
There seemed to be a pull to it."
"Still there was some risk involved,
and I was afraid."

But Mr. Carnegie insisted on it.
"It is a good thing to play in," he said. "Fear is old world stuff. Fear is what keeps untold millions from making fortunes. When Ben Hur Flan-lin thought of starting a newspaper in Philadelphia he, like most people, was alarmed, tried to dissuade him. She pointed out that there were already two newspapers in America."

Nothing Left Ragged little Tom Brown had been committed to juvenile hall, where he was immediately given a bath, clean clothes, had his hair washed and cut short. His old clothes were burned.
As his adenoids intruded seriously with his breathing they were removed.
When he had recovered from the operation the matron noticed that there was an unusually big and disfiguring wart at the end of his thumb.

"Tom," she said, "I'll see that this

A look of absolute disgust spread

Acid-Stomach

Millions of people who worry, are despon-blue and are often melancholy, believe these conditions are due to outside influences over which they have little or no control.

Nearly always, however, they can be traced to an internal source—acid-stomach. Not a little to be wondered at, acid-stomach is increasing with such well defined symptoms as indigestion, belching, heartburn, bloating, etc.
If not checked in time it affects the stomnervous system becomes deranged. Digestion and strength are undermined. The victim of acid-stomach, although he may not know

GETS MONEY FROM RUBBISH

Invention of Englishman Has Proved
Its Practical Value in a Number of Towns

One of the most remarkable machines in the world has just been invented by Mr. William W. L. Boyle.
It converts rubbish into cash, more correctly speaking, it converts what is worth saving from rubbish and pressures it for redistribution. Cans are washed, just as converted into fertilizer this are cleaned, and paper and rags are sorted. Another part of machinery used in this wonderful "rubbish recovery plant" deals with cylinders turning them into molded concrete blocks for building. It has been proved that every hundred tons of waste produce $100 and since a town of 75,000 inhabitants discards about one hundred tons of rubbish, it can easily work off the material revenue that such a plant would produce. "Not a few towns in the United Kingdom have already installed a Boyle rubbish collecting plant. Aberdeen in one day collected $3,000 worth of discarded bottles, a week's waste collection in the city of Sheffield realized $500, while Glasgow estimates that one year's conversion of its rubbish will bring in $20,000.

A Farm For Sale

An Opportunity Seldom Offered

305 Acres Located in Livingston County, Half Mile From Howell

80 rods from Grand River Cement, farm not subject to taxation for pavement. Practically two farms and two sets of buildings adjacent, but has been used as one farm for the last 15 years.

The main buildings on Fair Lawn Farm, are situated on an eminence overlooking the lake which lies between this place and the city, and also overlooking the town and adjoining country. The main house is new having been erected but four years and has all of the city improvements excepting bath tubs. Having a water system, sewer system, gas lights and two toilets. This house contains 12-rooms and a beautiful veranda, 10-feet wide and 72 feet long.

In the growing season, this is surrounded by beautiful alfalfa which makes it a most attractive place.

The main barn is a basement barn, is modern, and contains cow stalls for thirty-two head of cows and box stalls for ten head of cattle. Attached to this is the wing, 32-feet wide and 72-feet long with 24-ft. posts and a hip-roof. It also has six horse stalls and a harness room. In the first story of this are box stalls for 14 head of cows, used for testing purposes. This is of the most modern equipment and type. In the north end of this is the bull stall, 26-feet wide and 10 feet deep and an open yard, 40 feet square. In the second story of this wing are individual calf stalls for thirty head of calves. Here, also, are the grain bins, mixing floor and everything that pertains to a well-regulated dairy barn. The third story in this wing is the hay loft covering the entire length and breadth of the building. Over the main part of the building are drive floors and mows, which are today well-filled with hay. In this barn, and on this farm, have been kept seventy-five head of cattle.

In connection with this, there is a silo, 40 feet high, 14 feet in diameter; also a tank and engine room where the milking machine is kept. Here, too, is a heating system of steam heat with boiler attached which makes the office above a very comfortable place to work or live.

The water supply for this farm is well provided; a wind mill and a never-fail well and a storage capacity of practically five hundred barrels. Here, too, is an ice house, garage and other small buildings which are necessary in the conduct of a large and extensive proposition of this kind.

Farm No. 2—100 rods east of the main barn, consists of a house about 40x30, with additions and woodshed, making eleven rooms, with beautiful maple trees in front and a view across the lake to the fair grounds, factories, and a part of the city of Howell. There are very few more desirable homes than are both of these home just described.

The barn on this farm is 42x60 with silo attached. There is stabling here for ten head of cattle and two horses.

The deed covers, probably, thirty acres of lake, at least 120 rods of lake front and about 160 acres of land under the snow. The rest of this farm is pasture land upon which the big herd of Holstein cattle have been kept.

This farm is handled by us at such an attractive price, that anyone that could handle a farm of this size will certainly be interested. In fact it can be bought at less than cost of the buildings alone, and on most liberal terms. The farm is stocked with a very desirable herd of registered Holstein cattle, and the owner will call stock and equipment, if buyer so desires.

HOBOS NOW SCORNS THE BREAD LINE

Survey Made by Interchurch World Movement Shows That Even the Cheap Lodging House Is Going Out of Business.

The old "bread line" is gone from its accustomed place in the cities. In the slums throughout the country huddled groups of men no longer wait to be fed. Their passing is a symbol of the passing of the hobo.

Everywhere, for lack of guests, the cheap lodging houses are being abandoned. Only a few old, decrepit ones remain in the Salvation Army Industrial Homes. In Kansas City the once renowned dormitories of the "Helping Hand" building are closed. In Lincoln, Neb., in 1915 there were 1,756 non-resident single men who applied for and while in 1918 there were only 138. The hobo's wandering worker who went to the lodging house and the bread line between his seasonal jobs, has been lifted from his old place by the war. A study of the conditions of migrant labor is now being conducted by the Interchurch World Movement that it may be the facts before the Protestant churches of America, whose closer cooperation is its larger purpose. The study shows that the hobo has found a closer succession of jobs, a higher return for his labor. He has become almost a "steep" worker. He no longer needs his old refuge. Beyond the reach of the agencies, he offers the Protestant churches an opportunity to provide new means of influencing his life and maintaining his standard of living and the Interchurch World Movement survey is determining how this can best be achieved.

MINISTERS COST LESS THAN AUTOS

World Survey Figures Reveal How Badly United States Is Paying Its Pastors.

MANY LIVING ON $600 A YEAR

One of the Aims of Present Protestant Cooperation Is to End Disgrace of Underpaid Preacher—Pensions Also to Be Provided.

What are the chances of a young man who intends to be a lawyer of making $1,000 a year? What are the chances of a young man who intends to be a minister of making $1,000 a year?

The answer is exactly one chance in five. The doctor's chance is one in ten. It is ten to one against the minister. The modern minister, however, who formerly ranked with the doctor and lawyer, is a member of the "underpaid professions" has fallen hopelessly behind. He is a 100 to 1 shot.

These figures are part of a mass of facts brought to light by the Interchurch World Movement and whose sources of information are such that many economists and statisticians are studying themselves of the results. This survey puts America's minister at the bottom of the ladder of the nation's income receivers—and with responsibilities which equal those of any captain of industry.

A worker in a silk mill, a laborer in a rubber plant, a paper mill, a worker in a shoe factory—all are getting higher average wages, the survey shows, than does America's minister, city or country. Nor does the city man receive the luxurious salary that many persons, including many country persons, believe he does. Not four ministers in a thousand according to the survey, receive $5,000 a year. In no instance, whatever the denomination, does a majority receive $1,000.

Cotton Pickers Better Off. Are you a Congregationalist? In 2,783 churches the yearly pay to your ministers has been less than $1,000. Are you a Presbyterian? You are then on the less than $1,000 list with 6,415 ministers. In the event that you are a Methodist the charge is that 4,719 pastors are trying to exist on the $20 a week that you pay them. Episcopalians do a little better, yet half of their rectors receive less than the $1,500 a year which government economists regard as the minimum on which a family can be decently maintained.

The initial cost of the cheapest "five-ver" on the market is less than $800, but a very good conscientious pastor. It is shown, can be hired for a year for that sum. Ministers in the South are preaching to fifty or more cotton pickers who individually are paid more for picking cotton than their entire neighborhood pays to the preacher in a year.

One of the aims of the present cooperation of the world's Protestant denominations is to end this disgrace of the underpaid minister. With universities, business houses and municipalities daily taking action to provide for the comfort of their workers, the church is to keep pace with the times, and to arrange not only for adequate pay for its workers, but to provide pensions for those no longer able to work.

It is to move the public to prevent unfavorable comparison of pastors and puddlers. Until then, as for a puddler swapping jobs with a pastor drawing an "ordinary" salary—never! The lowest salary paid to pastors is lower than any wages paid in the entire steel industry.

NEW WORLD PROGRAM DEVISED BY CHURCHES

By S. EARL TAYLOR.

DR. S. EARL TAYLOR, General Secretary Interchurch World Movement

At 11:30 on the 24th he was born and started on a tour to preach in every village in India. He would still have 30,000 more to visit.

We now believe we have found a way to which the leaders of the Protestant churches can surround a common table and have the Christian program of the entire world laid before them. By means of the Interchurch World Movement we can see where the Methodist are and where the Baptists are. We can see the general outline of their forces, their present status in this great world struggle, and they also have some idea of the unoccupied places, and what may be done by all of us to cover these unoccupied parts of the world field which Christ sent us to occupy.

CHURCHES TO AID LONELY SHEEP SHEARERS OF WEST

The bleat of the sheep on the back bone of the continent calls men to the mountains. On high uplands from the Canadian border to Mexico, in lonely and inaccessible places, one of the most romantic examples of the country's migrant worker—the sheep shearer—plies his trade.

Unheard of though he is to thousands of his fellow workers, it was for him that the immigration regulations of three countries—Canada, the United States and Mexico—were modified during the war. This permitted freedom of movement to many hundreds of this strange craft, and the means of employment to thousands in factories and stores.

Yet for all his importance in the ranks of the nation's great Marching Army of the Employed, what sort of life does this man lead? The migrant fruit picker, or wheat harvester, or farmhand, or lumberman often roams inland through cities and the congested spots of civilization. But the sheep shearer, by the nature of his trade, is cut off from such influences.

Through a survey of the nation's migrant labor now being made by the Interchurch World Movement, it is suggested that for men of this class relief may be afforded through churches in outlying districts. For social and other purposes these men, with proper cooperation by church bodies, could make use of many of the facilities without which they are doomed to a life of isolation.

A CLEVER GIRL

By T. B. ALDERSON

(Copyright, 1920, by T. B. Alderson)

When Alston & Co. arranged for an efficient man to steer their business back upon the sea of business the latter, Gregory Hall, started in as a bred-in-the-bone capitalist and developed into an autocrat. Hall was a practical economist. He introduced rules and methods that cut out waste of both time and money.

Cyril Blake, nephew of the rich manufacturer was somewhat nettled at the superior airs of this domineering tyro and the rapidity with which he won business distinction. Hall accepted recognition as to his ability, but did not flatter or flinch as to manner of acquire. A cold, unsympathetic being, he pursued the even tenor of his way, his calculating eye ever on the alert, lived modestly but no had habits apparently and kept exclusively to himself.

Cyril was anxious to win the favor of his uncle. He was one of half a dozen relatives of the manufacturer who had been taken into his service, and he alone had stayed. Just now, after a year at the grand, Cyril was particularly anxious to stand well with the stern old millionaire, for he was in love with Miss Ethel Mason, his stenographer. She was poor and humble, and all that, and unknown in accepted social circles. The manufacturer was a great stickler as to social ethics and Cyril realized that his irascible temper might become inflamed if he learned that his nephew was wooing a young lady outside of the family set.

Nearly every Saturday afternoon Cyril met Ethel at a public park and a stroll or an auto ride resulted. One day they passed Hall. Cyril noted a sly, crafty smile illumine the master's features as he noted his nephew's marriage.

The next week Cyril was called into Mr. Alston's private office. The latter had been silent and disagreeable for several days. He informed Cyril that he wished him to spend a week in another city for the house. Cyril disliked being away from Ethel, but departed on his mission.

During his absence Hall perfected a plot he had formed. Its success in a way depended on the elimination of both Cyril and Ethel from the establishment, for, in a measure, they were a check on his operations. He had already notified Mr. Alston of his nephew's attachment for the pretty stenographer and she had been promptly discharged. Cyril, suspecting the intention, pressed him with a look of indignant dislike and contempt as he made his way to the office of his uncle. The latter was ready to congratulate Cyril on his successful business trip, but his nephew's face was stern and accusing, as he asked:

"I note why Miss Mason has been discharged from your service."

"I guess I had better tell you the truth," responded Mr. Alston. "I found that you were not engaged to her. I don't have to tell you, if you have not sufficient respect for me to marry in your class I am through with you."

You see and go through with me, and I with you," cried Cyril, indignantly. "Miss Mason is worthy of my regard and I love her dearly. If it is a question of giving her up or retaining in your good graces I shall say good-bye."

Cyril had no doubt that he would win a lasting love, but at the end of two days gave up the quest in despair. He decided that Ethel, and left the city. He passed a restless week at his uncle's residence, evidently pestered on a train.

"Dear friend," he said, "I shall soon hear from you, and I shall be in a way that will clear the situation. Trust and believe in me."

Cyril found employment at a new source. Twice he met his uncle on the street and bowed courteously, but the latter refused to recognize him. Then, one day, a glorious sunburst of joy illumined his lonely, longing soul. He met Ethel on the street. There were mutual greetings, such as only loyal, loving hearts can experience.

"I have just come from your uncle," said Ethel. "The day I was discharged from his service I overheard enough between himself and Hall to know that the latter had brought about our trouble. Then I remembered something. For some months he had been handling the new account with Robert Lull, Springfield and several times I noticed discrepancies in that account. Do you know what he was doing? Shipping double consignments to Lull, who was his accomplice, and billing only one. The thought came to me to go to Springfield and seek employment with Lull, which I did. An hour, since I proved to your uncle that Hall had stolen thousands of dollars' worth of goods from him."

"And my uncle?" queried Cyril anxiously.

"Said I was too valuable an employee to lose. Said, too, he would trust only his own kin in his business after this, meaning you. He wishes to see you at once."

"Yes, Ethel will do," were the cheering words of John Alston, after a reconciliation with Cyril. "She has won my admiration and regard, as she has your love, Cyril. I guess we had better allow matters to take their course."

The "course" led directly to an engagement ring, and Cyril Blake's fondest hopes were realized.

TARZAN AND THE JEWELS OF OPAR

EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

AUTHOR OF
"TARZAN OF THE APES"
"SON OF TARZAN"

COPYRIGHT A.C.M. CLURG & CO. 1918

"WHAT DID THEY DO WITH LADY?"

Synopsis.—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave raider, who spares his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke) and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Freccout, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He learns his host is in financial straits and is planning an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of Opar. Spying on Tarzan, Werper sees him load his blacks with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun-Worshippers. A convulsion of Nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety, Werper is seized by priests of the flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be offered up as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion. Believing Tarzan dead his black followers return home with the gold. Achmet Zek, acting on Werper's information, has attacked the Greystoke home, burned it, and carried off Lady Greystoke. Mugambi, Tarzan's lieutenant, is severely wounded but recovers and follows the raiders. Lord Greystoke recovers consciousness, but the accident has destroyed his memory and he is again Tarzan of the Apes. Escaping from the scene of his misfortune he finds himself in the jewel room of Opar. He fills his pouch with the "pretty pebbles"—cut diamonds of great value. He reaches the sacrificial chamber just as the lion halts the sacrifice of Werper by La. He is recognized by La, high priestess, whom he had known in previous years. He slays the lion and releases Werper. The latter seizes the diamonds and plans to steal them.

In single file behind him there followed, one after another, near fifty others, each burdened with two dull yellow ingots lashed upon his back. Werper recognized this party immediately as that which had accompanied Tarzan on his journey to Opar. He glanced at the ape-man; but in the savage, watchful eyes he saw no recognition of Basuli and those other loyal Waziri.

When all had passed Tarzan rose and emerged from concealment. He turned to Werper.

"We will follow and slay them," he said.

"Why?" asked the Belgian.

"They are black," explained Tarzan. "It was a black who killed Kala. They are the enemies of the Mankani."

Werper did not relish the idea of engaging in a battle with Basuli and his three fighting men. And, again, he had welcomed the sight of their returning toward the Greystoke bungalow, as he had begun to have doubts as to his ability to retrace his steps to the Waziri country. Tarzan, he knew, had not the remotest idea of whither they were going. By keeping at a safe distance behind the laden warriors they would have no difficulty in following them home.

He argued with the ape-man, therefore, against the latter's desire to exterminate the blacks, and at last he prevailed upon Tarzan to follow them in peace, saying he was sure they would lead them out of the forest into a rich country, teeming with game.

It was many marches from Opar to the Waziri country; but at last came the hour when Tarzan and the Belgian, following the trail of the warriors, topped the last rise, and saw before them the broad Waziri plain, the winding river and the distant forests to the north and west.

A mile or more ahead of them the line of warriors was creeping like a giant caterpillar through the tall grasses of the plain. Tarzan looked out across the familiar vista with no faintest gleam of recognition in his eyes. He did not look in the direction of his bungalow. Werper, however, did. A puzzled expression entered the Belgian's eyes. He shaded them with his palms and gazed long and earnestly toward the spot where the bungalow had stood. He could not credit the testimony of his eyes—there was no bungalow—no barns—no outhouses. The corals, the haystacks—all were gone. What could it mean? And then slowly there altered into Werper's consciousness an explanation of the havoc that had been wrought in that peaceful valley since last his eyes rested upon it—Achmet Zek had been there!

Basuli and his warriors had noted the devastation the moment they had come in sight of the farm. Now they hastened on toward it talking excitedly, among themselves in animated speculation upon the cause and meaning of the catastrophe.

When at last they crossed the trampled garden and stood before the charred ruins of their master's bungalow, their greatest fears became convictions in the light of the evidence about them.

"The Arabs," Basuli said, as his men clustered about him.

The Waziri gazed about in mute rage for several minutes. Everywhere they encountered only further evidence of the ruthlessness of the cruel enemy (that had come during the Great Dwan's absence and laid waste his property).

"What did they do with Lady?" asked one of the blacks.

They had always called Lady Greystoke thus.

"The women they would have taken with them," said Basuli. "Our women and his."

A giant black raised his spear above his head and gave voice to a savage cry of rage and hate. The others followed his example. Basuli silenced them with a gesture.

"This is no time for useless noises of the mouth," he said. "The Great Dwan has taught us that it is acts by which things are done, not words. Let us save our breath—we shall need it all to follow up the Arabs and slay them. If 'Lady' and our women live the greater need of haste, and warriors cannot travel fast upon empty lungs."

From the shelter of the reeds along the river Werper and Tarzan watched the blacks. They saw them dig a trench with their knives and fingers. They saw them lay their yellow burdens in it and scoop the overturned earth back over the tops of the ingots. Tarzan seemed little interested, after Werper had assured him that that which they buried was not food to eat, but Werper was intensely interested.

The treasure buried, the blacks renewed themselves a short distance up wind from the fetid corpses, where they made camp, that they might rest before setting out in pursuit of the Arabs. It was already dusk. Werper and Tarzan sat devouring some pieces of meat they had brought from their last camp. The Belgian was occupied with his plans for the immediate future. He was positive that the Waziri would pursue Achmet Zek, for he knew enough of savage warfare, and of the characteristics of the Arabs and their degraded followers to guess that they had carried the Waziri women off into slavery. This alone would assure immediate pursuit by so warlike a people as the Waziri.

Werper felt that he should find the means and the opportunity to push on ahead, that he might warn Achmet Zek of the coming of Basuli, and also of the location of the buried treasure. What the Arab would now do with Lady Greystoke, in view of the mental affliction of her husband, Werper neither knew nor cared. It was enough that the golden treasure buried upon the site of the burned bungalow was infinitely more valuable than any ransom that would have occurred even to the avaricious mind of the Arab, and if Werper could persuade the raider to share even a portion of it with him he would be well satisfied.

But by far the most important consideration, to Werper, at least, was the incalculably valuable treasure in the little leathern pouch, at Tarzan's side. If he could but obtain possession of this! He must! He would! His eyes wandered to the object of his greed. They measured Tarzan's giant frame and rested upon the rounded muscles of his arms. It was hopeless. What could he, Werper, hope to accomplish, other than his own death, by an attempt to wrest the gems from their savage owner?

Disconsolate, Werper threw himself upon his side. His head was pillowed on one arm, the other rested across his face in such a way that his eyes were hidden from the ape-man, though one of them was fastened upon him from beneath the shadow of the Belgian's forehead.

Tarzan presently let his own eyes rest upon Werper. The Belgian saw that he was being watched, and lay very still. After a few moments, he stimulated the regular breathing of deep slumber.

Tarzan had been thinking. He had seen the Waziri bury their belongings. Werper had told him that they were hiding them lest someone find them and take them away. This seemed to Tarzan a splendid plan for safeguarding valuables. Since Werper had evinced a desire to possess his glittering pebbles Tarzan, with the suspicions of a savage, had guarded the baubles, of whose worth he was entirely ignorant, as zealously as though they spelled life or death to him.

For a long time the ape-man sat watching his companion. At last, convinced that he slept, Tarzan withdrew his hunting knife and commenced to dig a hole in the ground before him. With the blade, he loosened up the earth, and with his hands he scooped it out until he had excavated a little cavity a few inches in diameter, and five or six inches in depth. Into this he placed the pouch of jewels. Werper almost forgot to breathe after the fashion of a sleeper as he saw what the ape-man was doing—he scarce repressed an ejaculation of satisfaction.

Tarzan became suddenly rigid as his keen ears noted the cessation of the regular inspirations and expirations of his companion. His narrowed eyes bored straight down upon the Belgian. Werper felt that he was lost—he must risk all on his ability to carry on the deception. He sighed, threw both arms outward, and turned over on his back mumbling as though in the throes of a bad dream. A moment later he resumed the regular breathing.

Now he could not watch Tarzan but he was sure that the man sat for a long time looking at him. Then, faintly, Werper heard the other's hands scraping dirt, and later patting it down. He knew then that the jewels were buried.

It was an hour before Werper moved again, then he rolled over facing Tarzan and opened his eyes. The ape-man slept. By reaching out his hand Werper could touch the spot where the pouch was buried.

For a long time he lay watching and listening. He moved about, making more noise than necessary, yet Tarzan did not awaken. He drew the sacrificial knife from his belt and plunged it into the ground. Tarzan did not move. Cautiously the Belgian pushed the blade downward through the loose earth about the pouch. He felt the point touch the soft, tough fabric of the leather. Then he pried down upon the handle. Slowly the little mound of loose earth rose and parted. An instant later a corner of the pouch came into view. Werper pulled it from its hiding place and tucked it in his shirt. Then he refilled the hole and pressed the dirt carefully down as it had been before.

Creed had prompted him to act, the discovery of which by his companion could lead only to the most frightful consequences for Werper. Already he could almost feel those strong, white fangs burying themselves in his neck. He shuddered. Far out across the plain a leopard screamed, and in the dense reeds behind him some great beast moved on padded feet.

Werper feared these prowlers of the night; but infinitely more he feared the just wrath of the human beast sleeping at his side. With utmost caution the Belgian arose. Tarzan did not move. Werper took a few steps toward the plain and the distant forest to the northwest, then he paused and fingered the hilt of the long knife in his belt. He turned and looked down upon the sleeper.

"Why not?" he mused. "Then I should be safe."

He returned and bent above the ape-man. Clutched tightly in his hand was the sacrificial knife of the high priestess of the Flaming God!

CHAPTER VIII.

Achmet Zek Sees the Jewels.

Mugambi, weak and suffering, had dragged his painful way along the trail of the retreating raiders. He could move but slowly, resting often; but savage hatred and an equally savage desire for vengeance kept him to his task. As the days passed his wounds healed and his strength returned, until at last his giant frame had regained all of its former mighty powers. Now he went more rapidly; but the mounted Arabs had covered a great distance while the wounded black had been painfully crawling after them.

They had reached their fortified camp, and there Achmet Zek awaited the return of his lieutenant, Albert Werper. During the long, rough journey Jane Clayton had suffered more in anticipation of her impending fate than from the hardships of the road. She was of sterner stuff than that which bends to spineless terror before danger. Until hope proved futile she would not give it up; nor did she entertain thoughts of self-destruction only as a final escape from dishonor. So long as Tarzan lived there was every reason to expect success. No man nor beast would roam the savage coun-trient could boast the cunning and the powers of her lord and master. Tarzan would come, and she should be rescued and avenged, of that she was certain. That he could find her she had no slightest doubt. No spoor, however faint, could elude the keen vigilance of his senses. To him the trail of the raiders would be as plain as the printed page of an open book to her.

And while she hoped there came through the dark jungle another. Terrified by night and by day came Albert Werper. A dozen times he had escaped the claws and fangs of the giant carnivore only by what seemed a miracle to him. Armed with nothing more than a knife he had brought with him from Opar, he had made his way through as savage a country as yet exists upon the face of the globe.

By night he had slept in trees. By day he had stumbled fearfully on, often taking refuge among the branches when sight or sound of some great cat warned him of danger. But at last he had come within sight of the palace behind which were his fierce companions.

At almost the same time Mugambi came out of the jungle before the walled village. As he stood in the shadow of a great tree, reconnoitering, he saw a man, ragged and disheveled, emerge from the jungle almost at his elbow. Instantly he recognized the newcomer as he who had been a guest of his master before the latter had departed for Opar.

"What Has Happened?" He Asked.

The black was upon the point of halting the Belgian when something stayed him. He saw the white man without confidently across the clearing toward the village gate. No one here thus approached a village in this part of Africa unless he was sure of a friendly welcome. Mugambi waited. His suspicions were aroused.

He heard Werper halloo; he saw the gate opening, and he witnessed the surprised and friendly welcome that was accorded the erstwhile guest of Lord and Lady Greystoke. A light broke upon the understanding of Mugambi. This white man had been a traitor and a spy. It was to him they owed the raid during the absence of the Great Dwan. To his hate for the Arabs Mugambi added a still greater hate for the white spy.

Within the village Werper passed hurriedly toward the silken tent of Achmet-Zek. The Arab arose as his lieutenant entered. His face showed surprise as he viewed the tattered apparel of the Belgian.

"What has happened?" he asked.

Werper narrated all, save the little matter of the pouch of gems which were now tightly strapped about his waist, beneath his clothing. The Arab's eyes narrowed greedily as his henchman described the treasure that the Waziri had buried beside the ruins of the Greystoke bungalow.

"It will be a simple matter now to return and get it," said Achmet Zek. "First we will await the coming of the rash Waziri, and after we have slain them we may take our time to get the treasure—none will disturb it where it lies, for we have left none alive who knows of its existence."

"And the woman?" asked Werper. "I shall sell her in the north," replied the raider. "It is the only way now. She should bring a good price."

The Belgian nodded. He was thinking rapidly. If he could persuade Achmet-Zek to send him in command of the party which took Lady Greystoke north it would give him the opportunity he craved to make his escape from his chief. He would forego a share of the gold if he could but get away unscathed with the jewels.

"Who will go north with the woman?" he asked, "while we are returning for the gold that the Waziri buried by the bungalow of the English man?"

When thieves fall out—

Unlucky Stiff.
I called the farm hand boy to come and eat his breakfast. While he was eating I went out to feed the chickens. After feeding the chickens I went back to the house and as the boy had eaten I started to clear off the table when, to my surprise, I found that instead of eating his regular breakfast he ate the starch I had prepared for the wash.—Chicago Tribune.

CONSIDER THE ALL-DAY DRESS

THESE "all day" dresses have been given us something that is new and increasingly interesting to think about. Just how close a second they will finally run to the suit and to the tailored skirt and separate skirt, is something not to be foretold, especially since the new models show that manufacturers are taking advantage of the liking for smocks in designing them. To the women who spend most of their time in tailor-made clothes they offer the spice of variety—a change from blouse and skirt or tailored coat and skirt. Besides, more of them offer possibilities in remodeling suits that the thrifty are not going to overlook.

Two very new models in all day dresses will not have to ask for the attention of short-skirted women. They are pictured here and hardly need description. In both of them the skirt and smock idea is carried out. It has been managed with wonderful cleverness in the dress of dark blue serge with a glider of jet black and rings about it. In this model a plain skirt is set, only an underbodice that carries the sleeves. A light silk serves for this with underarm pieces and sleeves of the cloth. Two straight pieces of cloth having inverted plaits down the center are fastened to the underbody at the waistline with snap fasteners. Below the waistline they hang free, revealing the skirt at the sides. Synopses of embroidery at the front of smock and skirt exactly suit the tailored dress for which they make a handsome finish.

If one has in mind remodeling an old dress or making a skirt do double duty she cannot do better than to carry out a scheme like that shown in the second dress. This is a short smock, bordered with satin ribbon like the skirt in color and ornamented with satin covered buttons and a small oval broiled pattern. Henna colored jersey cloth with dark blue braids and ribbon is a fine combination for the smock to be worn over a plain blue cloth skirt.

SPEAKING OF TRIFLES

IT USED to be predicted that the entrance of women into business and into all sports along with men would wear them away from the pretty, enticing trifles in apparel that they have always loved. No prediction ever proved more entirely false. The eternal feminine, with wit sharpened by experience in the wider world, has not discarded any of her privileges in dress, but has used a cultivated and discriminating sense of fitness to provide herself with an undreamed of diversity in her clothes. There is not much chance for custom to stale her infinite variety in these days. Given a chance she runs the whole scale—negligees, morning frocks, tailored things, sports clothes, afternoon gowns, evening dress, varied with special costumes for special pursuits.

So far from overlooking lovely accessories of dress that have no excuse for being at all, except that they are beautiful, women supply themselves more bountifully than ever with these. They are trifles, that are not at all trifling, and include the strands of beads, ornamental combs, earrings, and other jewelry, vanity cases, bags (including beaded ones), fans, slippers, girdles and a revival of lace stockings, nits and tulle scarfs. Not to speak of

AUTO CLUB NOTES.

An effort will be made by the Auto club to aid Walled Lake people in getting a road completed around the west side of the lake this summer.

Don't drive your car or truck without a 1929 license unless you want to pay a fine.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The fourth regular meeting of A. M. Harmon Woman's Relief Corps, No. 225, held Wednesday evening proved very enjoyable.

Plans were discussed for the celebration of the 29th anniversary of the Corps, which occurs March 10th.

Our membership now numbers 105 in good standing, and ballot was taken on 5 new names at this week's meeting.

A short program consisting of recitations and music followed by a sweet treat of home-made fudge was in charge of the color bearers.

About 40 members were present including the honorary members from Post No. 318, G. A. R.

WALLED LAKE WARBLERS.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Deyeraux of Salem spent last week at the home of J. A. Deyeraux.

Bert Ellenwood's son was badly injured by a kick from a cow last Friday.

Rev. H. E. Savies officiated at the funeral of J. L. Sibley held in Pontiac Saturday.

Cecil Snervood, who is employed in Pontiac, was a week-end guest of friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Smith have left for California, where they will visit for several months.

Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Tamlyn were summoned to Toledo Saturday by a telegram stating the death of their nephew, Edwin Tamlyn.

ANOTHER BUSINESS CHANGE.

Fred W. Lyke has sold a half interest in his plumbing and heating business to R. G. Lang who has been in his employ for the past few months and the business will be continued under the firm name of Lake & Lang.

Mr. Lang has had many years of experience in his line of work and will make a valuable addition to the firm. The firm solicits the patronage of the public, promising prompt and efficient service.

LOCAL.

James VanAlta was taken to Grace hospital Tuesday and was operated on for appendicitis Wednesday forenoon.

His condition while serious is satisfactory at last report.

All income tax reports must be filed before March 1st. Parties desiring assistance may confer with F. S. Neal, who has rendered this service to many people in this community.

Mrs. Alex Daly is very seriously ill with pneumonia. The care of her husband, who is paralyzed has greatly weakened her and her recovery is doubtful.

The O. E. S. chapter society of the M. T. Church will hold its regular monthly social and business meeting at the home of Mrs. J. Day's Tuesday March 27th at 7:30. All members urged to be present.

The youngest child of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCord is recovering from a very serious attack of pneumonia. For several days his recovery was very doubtful and it is believed his gain is due to serum treatment.

Through the efforts of Wallace Ross, who represented the Northville Chamber of Commerce, the coal situation in this place has been relieved somewhat.

Mr. Ross' many years experience in railroading made him familiar with the "strings" to pull and he is deserving a great deal of credit for the efforts he put forth.

Woman's Right.

Frank and Lucile were playing at keeping house and soon a disagreement arose over money matters. Lucile appeared to her mother to solve the question. "Mother," she asked, "we women should always carry the kitchen." "Yes," she replied.

What Insyde Tyers Do

Insyde Tyres reinforce the tire casing and protect the inner tube. If used in a casing its life will be prolonged from 1,000 to 5,000 miles. They may be put into any casing that is not already ruined and worthless. The casing should protect the Insyde Tyre from direct contact with the road, and if it does that, an Insyde Tyre will prove more than satisfactory in every instance.

"I Want Two Copies"

Said a farmer to me the other day: "I get one now, but if my wife or my daughter or my son happens to meet the mailman I have to fight to get a look at it. Put me down for another subscription for so I can have a copy all to myself." That, said I to myself, is an idea worth passing on. It won't break any farmer these days to buy $2.00 worth of the Great National Farm Weekly—and if it will make peace in his family—say, come on. Line forms on the left!

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

You don't hesitate to buy two postage stamps so you and your wife can both write letters; or two newspapers so you can both read. Two copies a week of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN cost even less. The Governor of one state bought three subscriptions for his farm and two more for his office in the state capitol the other day.

Of course I'm not arguing for two or three or five subscriptions until you have one. But the one is of vital importance to you, as well as to the wife and the boys. Besides giving weekly entertainment for the whole family, a single idea in one of the 52 big issues may save you $1.00. Buy one subscription for only one dollar today!
