A SPLENDID LECTURE.

The lecture given by Prof. Herbert Cross of the U. of M., at the High school auditorium last Friday night proved a rare treat and was deserving of a much larger attendance. Mr. Cross came to Northville under the auspices of the Womans' club and the ladies are to be congratulated upon their efforts to bring to Northville some of the talented men who are connected with our great university.

The High school orchestra contributed several numbers to the evening's program and Miss Ruth Green sang two numbers, to the delight of all. Mrs. C. L. Dubuar presided and introduced the speaker of the evening. Views of the ruins wrought by the Germans in France, Belgium and Italy were shown and Prof. Cross gave an intensely interesting description of each. He could scarcely find words to express his contempt for the great destruction brought upon the afflicted countries by the German hordes, who seemed to delight in destroying everything in their path. They seemed to take especial pleasure in destroying historic churches and other sacred shrines and seemed most devilish in their determination.

POLICE FIND ILLEGAL STILL.

Members of the state police searched the premises of Harry Levine at Waterford Tuesday, and discovered a whisky making outfit together with 370 gallons of mash, 125 pounds of sugar and 15 gallons of whisky. The entire outfit was loaded onto a truck and brought to the police barracks in this village. Levine was later arrested by the troopers on the seven-mile road and brought to 11 months and taken before Justice Patterson Wednesday, when the pleaded guilty and was bound over to the circuit court for trial. Bail was fixed at $1,000 with two sureties—Plymouth, Mich.

This outfit has been under the eye of the officers for sometime and the fellow was permitted to operate until such time as he might be caught with the "goods". That time evidently came last week.

KATOR-ELLSWORTH.

A wedding of interest to the people of Northville, took place Wednesday evening, March 3rd, at the home of Rev. W. T. Jaquess D.D. of Detroit, when James W. Kator of Northville, and Miss Alice Ellsworth of Stockbridge, were made husband and wife. Mr. Kator has been a life-long resident of this community and Mrs. Kator is known to a few of our citizens.

They will live in Mr. Kator's home on Main street. The Record joins with their many friends here in wishing them a happy wedded life.

BOYS' NOVI GARAGE.

B. H. Leavenworth has purchased the Novi Garage and has taken possession. He was employed by the D. U. R. and Detroit Edison company of this village for some years and has many friends and acquaintances in this village who will wish him unbounded success in his new venture. Mr. Leavenworth will be pleased to see any of his Northville friends at any time.

The work of putting the finishing touches on the interior of the Ford factory building is progressing nicely and it is expected some of the new machinery will begin to arrive soon.

There were 3,672 deaths reported in Michigan for the month of December, pneumonia being given as the cause of 383, cancer 247, violence 227, scarlet fever 26, measles 32, diphtheria and group 93.

TO CELEBRATE THEIR 18TH ANNIVERSARY

Court Northville, No. 65, Foresters of America, will celebrate its eighteenth anniversary at the Princess Rink in this village on Friday evening, March 26th. Invitations for the big event will soon be issued and a large attendance is expected. A bountiful supper will be served from six to eight o'clock and Montgomery's orchestra has been engaged to furnish music during the evening. These anniversary celebrations of Northville Court are looked forward to with a great deal of interest by the members of the order and by those who are favored with an invitation and the committees in charge of the affair this year promise about the biggest and best gathering yet held. The committees in charge of the celebration are as follows:

Executive—F. Woodmansee, Louis Lanning, Wm. Corrih.
Invitation—Robert Pickell, Roy Van Valkenburg, Wm. Green.
Music—R. M. Pickell, Willard Cole, George Martz.
Decorations—Wm. Corrih, Charles Crass, Louis Lanning, Jud Green, Thurlow Masters, Perry Austin, Ross Dixon, George Dixon.
Supper—Charles LeFeyer, chairman.
Reception—Mr. and Mrs. Willard Cole, Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Stage, Sr., Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lanning, Sr.
Floor—George Martz, Willard Cole, Ross Dixon.

HUSBAND REJECTS CHARGES HE MADE.

Mrs. Rose Bell, who was one of the principals in a divorce suit filed recently in the circuit court here, states that accusations made against her by her husband in his cross bill are untrue. Mr. Bell accused his wife of having improper relations with Wesley McFadden and according to Mrs. Bell's statement he has since admitted that the accusation is false. Mrs. Bell has in her possession a paper said to have been signed by Mr. Bell in which the statement is made that accusation is false. In justice to Mrs. Bell the Times News makes this statement. Ann Arbor Daily Times.

The Record published an item taken from the Ann Arbor paper some week ago regarding the trouble Mr. and Mrs. Bell were having and in justice to the parties concerned in the matter we are glad to give space to the above.

LUMBER YARD MOVED.

During the past few weeks the lumber yard of C. L. Dubuar has been gradually "spiced up" and moved from the location it occupied for many years to a more advantageous one. As the Perc Varquette tract is now being cleared the Ford plant has been engaged in the work and the lands and great pile of lumber have been moved to their new location with neatness and dispatch.

The location for the yards is a slightly one and Mr. Dubuar can look across the tracks and the rushing river Rouge to his former home and yards. When the grounds about the Ford plant have received all their contemplated improvements the outlook will be a most inviting one.

TO VISIT DETROIT.

The members of Northville Commandery, Knights Templar, will leave the village at 1:25 to-day on a special car over the D. U. R. for Detroit, where they will be the guests of Detroit Commandery, No. 1, this afternoon and evening. The visit will be one of more than ordinary interest because of the fact that the celebrated St. Elmo Preceptory of Ontario will confer the full order of Malta. A class of twenty will receive the Order of Red Cross by Detroit Commandery also.

TO FORM HOME NURSING CLASSES.

A movement is on foot to organize classes in home nursing and dietetics in Northville and it is expected a Detroit nurse will visit the village the first of next week for that purpose. This work is being taken up by the Red Cross and it is hoped to be able to form three classes here of twenty members each. The expense will be $1.00 for each member and the benefits to be derived from the course will be limitless. More will be said about this movement in the near future.

Owing to the shortage of coal the supply of gas may be cut off Friday night. The company has several cars of coal on the way, but unless some of it arrives they will be compelled to shut down.

TOO QUICK IN CONDEMNATION

Billy Grimes might have been a little less hasty in "bawling out" the doctor.

"The opponents of strong drink," said a politician at a dinner in New York, "are too ready with their accusations—accusations of drunkenness and what not—against all who don't share their views."

Sometimes I think they are as bad as Billy Grimes.

"Billy's doctor had bought a fine new pair of acetyle lamps for his automobile, and one evening the reservoirs of both lamps got empty, and, of course, the lights went out. The doctor, halting in front of Billy's shack, shouted:

"Hi, Billy, can you let me have some water for my lamps?"

"Billy came forth. 'Water?' he said. 'I guess ye mean oil, don't ye, doc?'"

"No, I don't," said the doctor; "I mean water."

"Billy looked at the doctor, then he shook his head sadly.

"Better go right off home, doc," he said. "Go home and sleep it off. Ain't ye ashamed of yerself—at your age—and all the lives of the community dependin' on ye?"—Washington Star.

Naturally Made Him Peeved.

In a certain Los Angeles county court recently a case for divorce came up, only to be dismissed by agreement of the opposing counsels. It seems that the man instituted the suit, had a row with his first lawyer, and then went to Lou Guernsey. "What are your grounds for bringing this action against your wife?" asked Lou. "Well," said the man, "I came home early the other afternoon and as I stepped into the door I heard my wife talking to an insurance man. I was just in time to hear her say: 'I won't pay another cent. I've been paying this policy on my husband for eight years and I've had no luck yet.'"

The Locality.

"Experts say it takes fully fifteen minutes to shear a sheep by hand."

"Not if it is done in Wall street."

Lots of people would rather say nothing than speak a kind word.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos—or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

IMPERATIVE NEED FOR ACTION

Twelve Months Since the Signing of the Armistice Practically Wasted—Call for Aid From America Must Be Heeded.

Article V.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

The signing of the armistice ended the fighting. The signing of the peace treaty brought peace, but neither of these acts restored devastated Europe. The great job ahead is the work of reconstruction, and when I write the word reconstruction, I have not in mind the mere rebuilding of the gutted areas of France, Belgium, Italy, Poland and Russia. Gigantic and important as this task is, necessary as it is, it is only a small part of the work of real reconstruction. Hundreds of thousands of square miles make up the actual war zone, the ground marched over, the territory under shell fire. Millions of acres of land, that once yielded food in response to the touch of the plow have for the past four years been mired by high explosives.

Belgium was literally looted, pillaged and ravished. Almost the entire state was violated. Nearly one-eighth of France, her industrial section, was crushed. Buildings were destroyed, factories dismantled. Sixty thousand square miles in Poland were laid waste. Italy suffered terribly. The ground is filled with high explosives, undischarged mines and shells. Every day since the work of recovery and restoration began men working in this zone have been blown to pieces. Billions of feet of hatched wire and millions of tons of metal make a ghastly wilderness out of what was once a highly productive area.

Cities and villages are jungles of twisted, broken, torn wood, iron, brick and stone. I have walked through these villages and have stood stupefied by the completeness of the destruction. The streets are uneven and lumpy with brick and stone and plaster and glass shingles of wreckage. Roofless houses with walls gutted and torn, heaps and piles of broken building material, jagged, ragged, planed masses of debris meet the eye. Had I not known of the war and come upon one of these wretched, shapeless masses of material, I should have thought nature had entered into a mad conspiracy, conspiring and concentrating all of the powers of a cyclone, a tornado and an earthquake, and spilled their fury on these mangled, dead villages.

Sights to Wring the Heart.

Picture the refugees returning to these villages—coming back home. What the sight must have meant to them. I have seen them: their faces gray as the gray ruins, standing in the midst of their destroyed homes. I have seen them picking their way over piles of stone and brick through great openings made in the broken walls. I saw in their eyes homesickness, a hurt of heart I never shall forget. Old men and old women and little bare-legged children; now and again a boy with a worn, soiled uniform; some limping on crutches, others wearing an empty sleeve. One thought surged through my mind until it almost sickened me—War. The land of the war zone must be reclaimed. These acres are needed now more than they were before the war. The world's food supply is low. Hundreds of miles of trenches must be filled up. Trees must be planted, the ground must be cleared of shells, cleared of barbed wire; villages, cities must be rebuilt; sewer systems must be installed. The mess must be moved. It is a big job.

One great misfortune is that although 12 months have come and gone since the signing of the armistice, no general comprehensive plan of reconstruction has been started. Here and there small sections of the devastated regions are being partly reconstructed. Temporary provision is being made for the homeless. This is all well and good, but intelligent, economical, efficient and speedy reconstruction demands a general plan and an organization big enough to put it over. The doing of this work requires vision and capacity for doing big things well. If the physical reconstruction is left to Europe it will not be finished in 50 years. Here is a chance for America. We have a faculty of doing things on a big scale and in a short period of time. Europe needs our help. If we are to give it eventually, why not now?

But the clearing up of the wreckage and the rebuilding is a minor problem compared with the other greater, and more important question of reconstruction, the reconstruction of industry, the establishment of normal life. The reclamation of the devastated area is, after all, only a matter of plan, time and money, and notwithstanding the fact that Europe is bankrupt today, the money must and will come. The barbed wire will be rolled up, the mines and shells will be dug from the fields, the villages will be rebuilt; everything that has been destroyed will be replaced. Physical reconstruction is the least of Europe's problems. The great problem is the reconstruction of life. The war devastated and disordered the life of the world. It threw everything into confusion; it left the scheme out of balance.

Only Road to Prosperity.

We live by work. Prosperity means production. Poverty is underproduction. Stripping, economies of all its high-sounding jargon, the simple truth that everyone knows is that the world has only the things it works to produce.

It may not be amiss to state a few facts known by everyone which explain the meaning of production. We live on the earth. It is land and water. In the ground are minerals. The land grows crops. We need the minerals that are in the ground. We need the crops, but minerals in the ground, as well as the fertile soil, bring nothing until man by his work brings the mineral from the ground and makes the soil yield. We must have food, we must have clothing, we must have shelter, and the only way we can get these things is by working. If little work is done we have a shortage. There isn't enough food to go around, there aren't enough clothes, enough coal, and as a result the prices of all these necessities go very up. But this is not so important as the fact that when there is not enough to feed the world some go hungry, others must starve. When there isn't enough coal, some are cold, others freeze. When there aren't enough clothes for everyone, some must be ragged and half-naked. Everything by which we live is the result of work. Stop work, and poverty follows. Work, and plenty results. Work is responsible for everything that goes to make life worth living.

To understand Europe's condition today, one must stop and realize that the war stopped production. The result is a shortage of everything. There isn't enough food, there isn't enough raw material, there isn't enough coal. The whole story is told in the word Poverty.

Only Cure is in Work.

There is a cure; the prescription can be written in a single word. Everyone knows that word, but knowing the word and adopting the word are different matters. Before we can get back to normal life this word must find root in the consciousness of the people. We must realize that the world will continue sick and grow sicker unless this prescription is taken. Further, we must know that if we delay taking this remedy it will be a longer time before we get well. The prescription is work. Every effort should be made to make every man will to work. Every employer must not contribute to unrest and provoke idleness by refusing to negotiate with his men, and into this negotiation he should go with a friendly spirit and a willingness to compromise. The employee who works with the thought in his mind that he is better equipped to fight than labor, because he has a surplus and can eat and be warm, while labor has been living from hand to mouth and will starve, in short-sightedness. He had better get the idea out of his head that you can force men into submission. There was a day when that was true, but that day has passed, never to come again. The man who depends upon his ability to "take a key" in the factory door and go off on a vacation, imposing his will on his workmen, will discover that these men stopped a certain "out" late of Potsdam now of Holmdel, from doing this very thing to the world. He may wake up some morning to learn a new definition of the word "fight."

One thing that people do not realize is that the men who fought the world's fight for freedom are the men who are now complaining that they are not getting a square deal. Who made up the fighting men of the war, the rank and file of the armies that stopped the Prussian Push? Who were the great majority of the volunteers and the conscripted men numbering millions who went to the front for the allies? The teamsters, the shophands, the millworkers, the factory hands, the coal miners. These are the same men who are the center of the labor problem.

Mr. Employer, you are dealing with ex-soldiers. Please don't forget it. They fought for you. You wouldn't have any business today if it hadn't been for them, and when you think of the bond you bought, remember the blood they gave.

(Copyright, 1922, Western Newspaper Union)

Applied Christianity.

The late Archdeacon Madden of Liverpool used to relate how on one occasion he separated two women, one a Roman Catholic and one a Protestant, who were fighting in the street. Afterward he asked the latter, whom he knew, how she, as a professing Christian, could justify her behavior, to which she replied:

"Well, sir, I was only obeying you. I have often heard you say 'Fight the good fight.' That other woman came into my house and she saw a picture of you on the mantelpiece. That's no priest," said she. "Nor no parson, neither! He's only an old quack!" Do you think I could stand that, sir? No! 'Touch not the Lord's anointed!' I says, and I ups with my fists and I hits her!"—London Post.

Smart Kid.

An Irish school inspector was examining a class in geography. He had propounded a question regarding longitude and received a correct answer. "And now," he said to the same boy, "what is latitude?"

The youngster hesitated a moment and then with a merry twinkle in his eye he replied, "Please, sir, we have no latitude. The British government won't allow us any."

OUT O' LUCK

Never mind! Just take Cascarets if Bilious, Constipated.

Everyone must occasionally give to the bowels some regular help or else suffer from constipation, bilious attacks, stomach disorders and sick headache. But do not whip the bowels into activity with harsh cathartics.

What the liver and bowels need is a gentle and natural tonic, one that can constantly be used without harm. The gentlest liver and bowel tonic is "Cascarets." They put the liver to work and cleanse the colon and bowels of all waste, toxins and poisons without griping—they never sicken or inconvenience you like Calomel, Salts, Oil or Purgatives.

Twenty-five million boxes of Cascarets are sold each year. They work while you sleep. Cascarets cost so little too.—Adv.

Has a Good Effect

"Which one of Shakespeare's plays do you regard as his masterpiece?" "Macbeth," replied the man who is slightly venetian.

"Perhaps you are right, but scholars differ."

"Oh, I don't set myself up as a scholar or even a good judge of plays. I merely know that after seeing a performance of Macbeth, my wife says she feels 'tired' and afraid and in need of a protector."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

GREEN'S AUGUST FLOWER.

Constipation invites other troubles which come speedily unless quickly checked and overcome by Green's August Flower which is a gentle laxative, regulates digestion both in stomach and intestines, cleans and sweetens the stomach and alimentary canal, stimulates the liver to secrete the bile and impurities from the blood. It is a sovereign remedy used in many thousands of households all over the civilized world for more than half a century by those who have suffered with indigestion, nervous dyspepsia, sluggish liver, coming up of food, palpitation, constipation and other intestinal troubles. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. Try a bottle, take no substitute.—Adv.

Avoid the Cynic.

If you want to retain a wholesome view of life, if you want to have faith in humanity, if you want to have a healthy peace of mind, keep away from cynics. Should any such be among your acquaintances, give them a word of advice. They may be bright, clever, efficient, people, but they are poisonous. Chicago News.

THE DOCTOR.

Of all lives the life of the physician is the most self-denying. He has no time that he can call his own. His home is his office, and he furnishes him no sweet retreat from irksome care. The night can never assure him an unbroken rest. Sundays are often, whether he will or no, his busiest days.

He has no holidays, and few and fragmentary vacations. Friendship furnishes him fewer solaces than to other men for his friends are generally also his patients. He meets men in their morbid conditions—when they are sick and miserable; when they are old he knows them not. He can hardly make a friendly call without the hazard of having it converted before he is out, into a professional one.

He fights a battle in which no matter how many victories he wins, he is sure to be defeated at last—for he is fighting death. And when the defeat which must come sooner or later does come, he is fortunate if unreasonable friends do not charge the defeat upon his lack of science or of care. But no man renders a more grateful service, no man comes nearer to our hearts, no man is more beloved. Other services may be as great but none is more deeply or tenderly appreciated. He sums money back from death the child, and puts him in his mother's arms; the wife and a mother's arms; the wife and a mother's arms; the wife and a mother's arms.

No fee can ever compensate for such a service. He is to whom it is rendered is a debt to the doctor. The Doctor.

Not long after this there came the greater opportunities in Havana. It was necessary to re-write the election laws to make them fit the habits of the people. Production had to be stimulated, for agriculture was the main source of the island's wealth. Here again measures were followed out, and the order and protection of the island and its people were established.

Wood was the foundation stone of the government of the Philippines. He was the one who organized the government, and he was the one who made it work. He was the one who made the Philippines a better place to live in, and he was the one who made it a more prosperous country.

Telephone Conversation

—if unnecessarily prolonged are unfair—
When several subscribers are on a party line each is entitled to equal service.

It would be neither fair nor practicable to assign certain periods of the day to each user. Each should have access to the line on equal terms. Exact fairness is possible only through the cooperation of the subscribers themselves.

A telephone line should seldom, if ever, be held longer than five minutes on a local call. Prolonged conversations, particularly on party lines, may cause serious delay to others who wish to use the telephone for emergency calls.

ARE YOU INTERESTED IN Washing Machines?

If so we invite you to inspect THE FEDERAL (electric), before placing your order. These machines rob wash-days of their terror and backaches and we believe they are the best on the market for the money. The Federal does not wear or tear your clothes, but does your washing as readily and easily as you could desire.

We shall be glad to explain its merits to you, and to give you a chance to give it a trial.

"ALL NIGHT I SHALL TORTURE HIM."

Synopsis—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave trader, who forces him to join a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke), and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts the Greystokes. He learns his host is in financial straits and is planning an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and follows Tarzan to learn the secret of the vault, chamber of the Sun Worshippers. A convulsion of nature causes the collapse of the vault, imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety Werper is seized by priests of the Flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be offered up as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunger-maddened lion. Believing Tarzan dead his black followers return home with the god. Achmet Zek, acting on Werper's information, has attacked the Greystokes home, burned it, and carried off Lady Greystoke. Mugambi, Tarzan's lieutenant, is severely wounded but recovers and follows the raiders. Lord Greystoke recovers consciousness but the accident has destroyed his memory and he is again Tarzan of the Apes. He finds himself in the jewel room of Opar. He finds his pouch with "pretty pebbles"—cut diamonds of great value. He reaches the sacrificial chamber just as the lion hurls the sacrifice of Werper by La. He is seized by the lion and releases Werper. Tarzan and Werper watch the former's party return and bury the gold. Tarzan has no memory of the place. Werper steals the diamonds and escapes to Achmet Zek's stronghold. Lady Greystoke is there, a prisoner. Werper tells the Arab of the gold, but not of the diamonds. Achmet discovers Werper has the jewels and the Belgian, fearing for his life, escapes with the gems. Tarzan misses Werper but does not discover the theft of the jewels. He resumes the life of a wild man.

For several hours Tarzan followed upon his swaying, leafy couch until once again hunger and thirst suggested an excursion. Stretching lazily he dropped to the ground and moved slowly toward the river. Tarzan had almost reached the point where the trail descended upon the upper river bottom when he saw a family of lions approaching along the path from the direction of the river. The ape-man counted seven—a male and two lionesses, full grown, and four young lions as large and quite as formidable as their parents. Tarzan halted, growling, and the lions paused, the great male in the lead during his fangs and rumbling forth a warning roar. In his hand the ape-man held his heavy spear; but he had no intention of putting his party upon nearest seven lions; yet he stood there growling and roaring and the lions did the same. It was purely an exhibition of jungle bluff. Felt was trying to frighten off the other. Nothing wished to turn back and give way, nor did either at first desire to precipitate an encounter. The lioness lunged up suddenly so as not to be guided by pangs of hunger and thirst for Tarzan he believed the intent of the creature; but a point of claws was at stake and neither side wished to back down. So they stood there facing one another, making all sorts of hideous noises while they darted jungle locomotive black and forth.

There came an interruption which put an end to the deadlock and it came from Tarzan's rear. He and the lions had been making so much noise that neither could hear anything above their concerted bellows; and so it was that Tarzan did not hear the great bulk bearing down from behind until an instant before it was upon him, and then he turned to see Buto the rhinoceros, his little pig eyes blazing, charging madly toward him and already so close that escape seemed impossible; yet so perfectly were mind and muscles co-ordinated in this unspoiled primitive man that almost simultaneously with the sense-perception of the threatened danger he wheeled and buried his spear at Buto's chest. It was a heavy spear shod with iron, and behind it were the giant muscles of the ape-man, while coming to meet it was the enormous weight of Buto and the momentum of his rapid rush. All that happened in the instant that Tarzan turned to meet the charge of the irascible rhinoceros might take long to tell, and yet would have taxed the swiftest lens to record. As his spear left his hand the ape-man was looking down upon the mighty horn-lowered to his nose, so close was Buto to him. The spear entered the rhinoceros' neck at its junction with the left shoulder and passed almost entirely through the beast's body, and as the instant that he launched it, Tarzan leaped straight into the air, alighting upon Buto's back, but escaping the mighty horn.

Then Buto espied the lions and bore madly down upon them while Tarzan of the Apes leaped nimbly into the tangled creepers at one side of the trail. The first lion met Buto's charge and was tossed high over the back of the maddened brute, torn and dying, and then the six remaining lions were upon the rhinoceros, rending and tearing the while they were being gored or trampled. From the safety of his perch Tarzan watched the battle royal with the keenest interest. For a time it seemed that Buto, the rhinoceros, would prove victor in the "gory battle." Already had he accounted for four of the seven lions and badly wounded the three remaining when, in a temporary lull in the encounter, he sank limply to his knees and rolled over upon his side. Tarzan's spear had pierced the great lungs, and Buto, with victory almost in sight, succumbed to internal hemorrhage.

Then Tarzan came down from his sanctuary and as the wounded lions growled, dragged themselves away, the ape-man cut his spear from the body of Buto, hacked off a steak, and vanished into the jungle. The episode was over. It had been all in the day's work—something which you and I might talk about for a lifetime. Tarzan dismissed from his mind the moment that the scene passed from his sight.

Sitting back through the jungle in a wide circle the ape-man came to the river at another point drank and took to the trees again and while he hunted, all oblivious of his past and careless of his future, there came through the dark jungles and the open, park-like places and across the wide meadows, where grazed the countless herds of the mysterious continent a word and the lioness came in search of him. There were fifty bright lions with many bodies and gnarled and crooked legs. They were armed with knives and great bludgeons and at their head—scarcely an animal—was a woman, beautiful beyond compare. It was La of Opar, High Priestess of the Flaming God, and fifty of her loyal priests were following for the purpose of the most fortified temple.

Never before had La passed beyond the crumbling outer walls of Opar, but never before had need been so urgent. The sacred knife was gone. Hunted down through countless acres it had come to her as a heritage and an inheritance of her religious office and legal authority from some long dead predecessor of lost and forgotten Achebe. When that continent, with its mighty cities and its cultivated fields and great commerce and culture and thick swarms of the human race, since, it took with it all but a handful of colonists working the vast gold mines of central Africa. From these and their degraded slaves and a later intermixture of the blood of the anthropoids sprung the gaunt men of Opar; but by some queer freak of fate, aided by natural selection, the old Arctean strain had remained pure and undegraded in the females descended from a single princess of the royal house of Achebe who had been cut off at the time of the great catastrophe. Such was La.

Tarzan Leaped Straight into the Air

Burning with white-hot anger was the high priestess, her heart a seething, molten mass of hatred for Tarzan of the Apes. The zeal of the religious fanatic whose altar has been desecrated was triply enhanced by the rage of a woman scorned. Twice had she thrown her heart at the feet of the godlike ape-man and twice had she been repulsed. Before Tarzan came that first time to Opar, La had never seen a human male other than the grotesque and knotted men of her clan. With one of these she must mate sooner or later that the direct line of high priestesses might not be broken, unless fate should bring other men to Opar.

Among the legends of Opar were tales of godlike men of the olden time, and of black men who had come more recently; but these latter had been enemies who killed and robbed. And, too, these legends always held forth the hope that some day that nameless continent from which their race had sprung would rise once more out of the sea and with slaves at the long sweeps would send her carven, gold-packed galleys forth to succor the long-exiled colonists.

The coming of Tarzan had aroused within La's breast the wild hope that at last the fulfillment of this ancient prophecy was at hand; but more strongly still had it aroused the hot fires of love in a heart that never otherwise would have known the meaning of that all-consuming passion, for such a woodrover creature as La could never have felt love for any of the repulsive priests of Opar. Custom duty and religious zeal might have commanded the union; but there could have been no love on La's part. She had grown to young womanhood a cold and heartless creature, daughter of a thousand other cold, heartless beautiful women who had never known love. And so when love came to her it liberated all the pent passions of a thousand generations, transforming La into a pulsing, throbbing volcano of desire, and with desire thwarted this great force of love and gentleness and sacrifice was transmuted by its own fires into one of hatred and revenge.

It was in a state of mind superinduced by these conditions that La leaped forth her abetting company to retrieve the sacred emblem of her high office and wreak vengeance upon the author of her wrongs. He should be tortured. He should be a slow and frightful death. His punishment should be adequate to the immensity of his crime. He had wrested the sacred knife from La, he had laid sacrilegious hands upon the High Priestess of the Flaming God, he had desecrated the altar and the temple. For these things he should die. But he had scorned the love of La, a woman and for this he should be tortured with great anguish.

The priestess of La and her priests were not without their advantages. Unused to the ways of the jungle, the old woman and her faithful followers, who were very much protected, followed her as she came without faltering. Along the trail of Tarzan and La went three great apes, armed with clubs and to these was added the force of a hundred of the quays. But beyond the senses of the quays, La commanded. She was a high priestess, too, for she looked down with loathing and contempt upon the misshapen creatures and as each came forth she threw her hand to the ground and her faithful followers would obey her. She made them build her a strong protection and shelter each night and keep a great fire burning before it from dusk to dawn. When she went of walking they were forced to follow her upon an improvised litter, and no one dared to question her authority or her right to such services.

For many days they marched, the priestess following the trail easily and going a little distance ahead of the body of the caravan that they might warn the others of impending danger. It was during a noonday halt while all were lying resting after a tiresome march that one of the apes rose suddenly and sniffed the breeze. In a low guttural he cautioned the others to silence and a moment later was swinging quietly up and into the jungle. La and the priests gathered silently together, the hideous little men fanning their knives and bludgeons, and awaited the return of the shaggy anthropoid.

Nor had they long to wait before they saw him emerge from a leafy thicket and approach them. Straight to La he came and in the language of the great apes, which was also the language of decadent Opar, he addressed her.

"The great Tarmangani lies asleep here," he said, pointing in the direction from which he had just come. "Come and we can kill him."

"Do not kill him," commanded La in cold tones. "Bring the great Tarmangani to me alive and unhurt. The vengeance is La's. Go, but make no sound!" and she waved her hands to include all her followers.

Cautiously the weird party crept through the jungle in the wake of the great ape until at last he halted them with a raised hand and pointed upward a little ahead. There they saw the giant form of the ape-man stretched along a low bough and even in sleep one hand grasped a stout limb and one strong, brown leg reached out and overlapped another. At ease lay Tarzan of the Apes, sleeping heavily upon a full stomach and dreaming of Numa, the lion, and Horta, the boar, and other creatures of the jungle. No intimation of danger assailed the dormant faculties of the ape-man—he saw no crouching hairy figures upon the ground beneath him nor the three apes that swung quietly into the tree beside him.

The first intimation of danger that came to Tarzan was the impact of three bodies as the three apes leaped upon him and hurled him to the ground, where he alighted half stunned beneath their combined weight, and was immediately set upon by the fifty hairy men or as many of them as could swarm upon his person. Instantly the ape-man became the center of a whirling, striking, biting maelstrom of horror. He fought nobly, but the odds against him were too great. Slowly they overcame him, though there was scarce one of them did not feel the weight of his mighty fist or the rending of his fangs.

CHAPTER X.

Condemned to Torture and Death, La had followed her company and when she saw them clawing and biting at Tarzan she raised her voice and cautioned them not to kill him. She saw that he was weakening and that soon the greater numbers would prevail over him, nor had she long to wait before the mighty single creature lay helpless and bound at her feet.

"Bring him to the place at which we stopped," she commanded, and they carried Tarzan back to the little clearing and threw him down beneath a tree.

"Build me a shelter," ordered La. "We shall stop here tonight and tomorrow in the face of the Flaming God La will offer up the heart of this defiler of the temple. Where is the sacred knife? Who took it from him?"

But no ape had seen it and each was positive in his assurance that the sacrificial weapon had not been upon Tarzan's person when they captured him. The ape-man looked upon the menacing creatures which surrounded him and snarled his defiance. He looked upon La and snarled. In the face of death he was unfrightened.

"Where is the knife?" La asked him.

"I do not know," replied Tarzan. "The man took it away with him when he slipped away during the night. Of what good was your knife, anyway? You can make another. Did you follow us all this way for nothing more than a knife? Let me go and find him and I will bring it back to you."

La laughed a bitter laugh, for in her heart she knew that Tarzan's suggestion was greater than the parting of the sacred sacrificial knife of Opar, yet as she looked at him long and coldly, she saw that he was not to be trusted. She had to turn away to hide a sob, for she knew that in her determination to make him pay in frightful suffering and inevitable death for doing to spin the web of La.

When the chief of the day the day of Opar was over, she came to La in the center of the clearing, and she took the sacred knife from her and laid it upon the altar of the Flaming God. During the balance of the day the day of Opar was over, she came to La in the center of the clearing, and she took the sacred knife from her and laid it upon the altar of the Flaming God.

At the close of the day Tarzan and the high priestess of the Flaming God returned to the clearing. Tarzan was in the center of the clearing, and she took the sacred knife from her and laid it upon the altar of the Flaming God.

At the close of the day Tarzan and the high priestess of the Flaming God returned to the clearing. Tarzan was in the center of the clearing, and she took the sacred knife from her and laid it upon the altar of the Flaming God.

Tantor to the Rescue

The Sea-Wolf.

Of all the inhabitants of the ocean few are more destructive than the sea-wolf, a kind of dolphin which attains, when full grown, a length of 14 feet and a weight of 3,000 pounds. When a mother walrus perceives a sea-wolf endeavoring to throw its cub on an iceberg, if one is near. Felling in this, it gets the cub on top of its head and swims with it above the water. But this is vain. Diving far below, the fish of prey comes up with tremendous force, striking the frail creature a terrific blow and jolting the cub off its lead into the water. Here it falls an easy victim to the assailant and is soon devoured.

Blame Nightmare on Demon.

In some portions of the continent of Europe, nightmare is believed to be a spectral creature that comes and takes a seat on the breast of the unconscious sleeper, half smothering him and not permitting him to rise. As those who have suffered therefrom say they cannot so much as bend the little finger during those moments of anguish, it is not surprising that the superstitious explained the condition as a malicious demon crushing his victim.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The 25th anniversary of the Organization of Allen M. Harmon Corps, No. 225 occurred on March 10 the regular meeting night of the Order and was celebrated appropriately.

The meeting was in charge of the Past Presidents and assistants with Mrs. Ardella Brooks as presiding officer.

After the business session, a short program was rendered and much enjoyed. Special mention should be made of the musical treat given us by the orchestra led by Gibson Carpenter.

We wish to thank the boys for their kindness.

A Grab Bag caused much merriment and netted the society $6.00.

Light refreshments were served by a special committee who presented the Corps with two dainty birthday cakes lighted by candles and decorated with crossed flags.

About 55 were present, including the guests and everyone reported a pleasant time.
