WAS A FINE AFFAIR

The American Legion dancing party given in the high school gymnasium on Friday evening, March 19th, and attended by over 175 couples, was a very successful affair, and much credit must be given the executive committee for the excellent way in which everything was carried out, nothing being omitted which would detract from the pleasure of the dancers.

The gymnasium was tastefully decorated with large American flags, one flag being suspended by its four corners from the center of the ceiling. The spectators were seated on the balcony, thus giving them a view of all the pretty scene. Stone's orchestra of Detroit won hearty applause and provided fine music during the evening.

The grand march was led by Del Kulgour and Miss Amy Deitz, and as the couples passed the orchestra stand, they were given favors in the shape of gay red, white and blue paper hats, which were quickly adjusted on their heads, presenting a very charming picture as they marched.

The buffet luncheon, under the supervision of N. I. Cof, was pronounced excellent by everyone, and consisted of delicious sandwiches, doughnuts, coffee, and a very fine blue-ice cream. The spectators were invited to luncheon first, and after their departure from the dining hall, the dancers filed in. During the intermission, Miss Margaret Schulling, soloist at the Madison theatre, Detroit, gave a vocal number, in costume. She was accompanied by Miss Amy Deitz, also of Detroit, and the feature proved a delightful treat. Much merriment during the evening, was caused by the announcement of a dance for married men only, and shortly after a dance for single men only.

The evening's pleasure was brought to a close at one-thirty, there being a large crowd still on the dancing floor at the conclusion of "Home Sweet Home." For the first party ever given by the American Legion of Northville, it is safe to say that it was a qualified success, and the boys have acquired a neat sum for their treasury after all expenses are paid.

ANDERSON - MILLER

The marriage of Miss Viola Miller, daughter of J. D. Miller, to J. P. Anderson of Lyons, township, took place Saturday evening, March 20th, at the home of the bride's father, with Rev. E. V. Belles of the Presbyterian church performing the ceremony at seven o'clock, in the presence of the immediate family and a few friends. The bride was gown in white organdie and carried a snowed bouquet. She was attended by her sister, Flora Miller, who wore pink voile with a bouquet of pink roses. Howard Begeritz of Wayne was best man.

A delicious four-course dinner was served after the wedding and the young couple left for their newly furnished home on the Baughman farm. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson are well known here, the latter having graduated from the N. H. S. in 1916 and at present is teacher of the Chapman school.

Out-of-town guests were the groom's father, Mr. Anderson of New Brunswick, Misses Edith Miller, Lucile McElenna and Gladys Morrow of Detroit, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Miller of Redford.

The rooms were attractively decorated in pink and white.

ENJOYED A FINE DINNER

The annual dinner given for the men of the Presbyterian church which was held at the church parlors last Thursday night was a fine affair and was well attended. The ladies of the church had charge of the dinner and that is a guarantee of its excellence. The tables decorated with the St. Patrick colors and the dining room was a bower of beauty. The menu served was a beautiful one and the gentlemen did full justice to the good things. The ladies had prepared for them. After all had been served, C. C. Yerkes introduced Rev. J. E. Webster of Royal Oak, a former Northville pastor, who gave an interesting and inspiring address on the subject of church finances and benevolences. At the conclusion of the splendid address, the budget of the church for the coming year was presented by Mr. Yerkes and after a few remarks subscription papers were passed and the gentlemen were given an opportunity to subscribe toward the fund to meet the expenses of the church.

HAS BEEN AWARDED

Bids for the erection of the Sanatorium, which the city of Detroit will build among the hills, west of town, was opened a few days ago and the contract for the erection of the building was awarded to John Finn & Son of Detroit. The amount of the successful bid far exceeds the initial appropriation made by the city, but the councilmen very wisely decided not to make any curtailment of their plans. The members of the Department of Health were authorized to proceed with the construction of an institution to accommodate not less than 300 patients, and to build in such a way that the capacity can be increased as soon as feasible.

A more slightly or delightful spot for an institution of this character could not have been selected anywhere in the state than the beautiful Northville hills and this section will be greatly benefited by the erection of this Sanatorium.

It is believed work will begin as soon as weather conditions will permit.

ENJOYED ST. PATRICK'S

DAY LUNCHEON

The members of the Northville Woman's club held their St. Patrick's day luncheon at the pleasant home of Mrs. F. E. Campbell on Friday afternoon last. There were fifty-four and the four-course luncheon was complete in all its appointments. The decorations, of course, were given in keeping with the occasion and the committee having the dainty spread in charge was composed of Mesdames, Mrs. A. Dolph, S. G. Power and M. B. Brock. After the luncheon a social hour followed in which numerous games and amusements were provided by the committee composed of Mesdames W. H. Catterpole and T. H. Turner. Several of the participants in the program were "attired" most becomingly, but in a manner that would easily have deceived their most intimate friends. The gathering was thoroughly enjoyed and the committee in charge of the meeting were highly complimented upon their efforts.

DIED IN DETROIT.

John A. Johnson, a former well known resident of this place, died at the Hotel Saginaw in Detroit on Thursday, March 25th, aged 62 years. About four years ago he suffered an attack of pneumonia and had been a patient since until death came to his relief.

He is survived by his wife, two daughters and one son. Schrader, one of this village's citizens, died Thursday night and went to the city after the body, which was brought to Northville and prepared for burial. Funeral services were held in Schrader's funeral chapter on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Greenwood officiating.

RECEIVED A FRENCH MEMORIAL

Mrs. Augusta Pilley, mother of James Roche, private company E, 315 Engineers, has received from the French government a memorial which bears this inscription in French: "To the Memory of James Roche of the United States of America who died for Liberty during the great war the homage of France, the president of the Republic—R. Poincare." Private Roche was one of the first of "our boys" to make the supreme sacrifice over in France.

ENJOYED MUSICAL AT YPSL

The Northville, Plymouth and Dearborn Women's clubs were invited by the Wayne Literary club to attend a musical given at the M. E. church at Ypsilanti. By several of the Faculty of the Ypsilanti Normal on Tuesday afternoon. Owing to poor street car facilities there were only about ten ladies from here, who were present. A very enjoyable time was had by all.

Stock Raising in Western Canada is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley and flax have been made in raising horses, cattle, sheep and hogs. Bright, sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre

Land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain farms at proportionately low prices. These lands have every rural convenience: good schools, churches, roads, telephones, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

COMMON ANCESTOR TO BLAME

Unhappy "Apple" is a Legacy Bequeathed to His Posterity by Old Father Adam

We all "have it in" the Adam for shuffling to our faces the gates of the Garden of Eden. But many of us, though we may not know it, bear a particular resemblance to this common ancestor that puts another chip on the shoulder. For it is generally conceded that an "Adam's apple" is no aid to beauty. And besides making of our Paradise a cold, bare world, it is in Adam who inflicted upon us this additional burden. When our common progenitor took the fatal bite that forever doomed the rest of us to existence by the sweat of our brows a piece of the fruit is supposed to have lodged in his throat and stuck there in his children's children unto the nth generation. And that is why the slight protuberance that some people have at the front of the throat is called "Adam's apple." Speaking of ancestry, some of us carry about on our persons unmistakable proof of our ancient lineage.—Chicago Journal.

The Way to Do It
"I wish I knew how to kill time."
"Why don't you join an amateur musical society?"

Men have strength, but women have tact.

His Fervor Dampened.

Down in southern Oklahoma, after the cotton crops are held by, it is the custom of the colored population to hold big camp meetings. At one of these the minister was telling of the great joys of heaven. One of the brethren became very much excited and began shouting "Praise de Lawd, how I does wish I see a June bug, I'd spread my wings and fly away to heaven."

At this one of the sisters sprang up and said: "Why, Brudder Mose, one o' dem woodpeckers would be sho' to git yo' on de way."—New York Evening Post.

No Place to Go.

O'Hara stood surveying the body of his friend, lying in state. Then he began to snore.

"What is there funny about it?" demanded an outraged friend.

"Twas only last week as Clancy was saying to me how there ain't no heaven and no purgatory. An' here he lies now, poor devil, all dressed up and nowhere to go."—The American Legion Weekly.

His Way.

"Did the doctor you went to fix up that swelling all right?"

"Sure, he put it in the bill."

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World-War?

DANGER IN GENERAL UNREST

Practically Universal Feeling of Discontent Will Grow Unless the Causes Which Gave It Birth Are Removed.

Article-VII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

A specter haunts Europe. It is the specter of unrest. When I started out to interview unrest in Europe I did not give my ear to the idle theorist who always knows all about everything but never from direct experience with it, nor did I go to the agitator who preaches unrest in red words. Neither did I seek out the type of fanatical labor leader who is eager for trouble, who is trying to mobilize unrest and marshal it under the banner of Revolution. I passed by the place-hunter, time-serving politician. I was not interested in platitudes and promises.

I sought knowledge of unrest from those who knew it from contact with it, those who were part and parcel of it. I went to the man in the street, the average man. I talked with the weary, dirty coal miner at the mouth of the shaft. He had just come from his day in the darkness deep in the ground. I visited the man who works in the mills. I listened to the rough speech of the teamster. I went to factories and talked with men between the two whistles which mark the time of the men. They munched a black bread, ate cheese or sausage and gulped tea, coffee or the diluted red wine. I spent time with the idle, the idle by choice as well as by use without work through no fault of their own. Only yesterday many, yet most of these men were in khaki, now back in the job in overalls, they were thinking. Their speech was troubled. This content looked out from their eyes. I could not tell. They talked it, but never as unrest, as its protest.

Unrest Must Be Quelled

Their state of mind is the problem. Unrest is a problem. It is a problem. There is little of protest in it. It is not a protest without cause. To get close to the cause of this disease which threatens revolution, one must know and understand what is going on in the minds of the men we are looking to and depending upon to do the world's work. It doesn't take a prophet to understand that if it is not given to the things irritating them and a remedy is not found for the irritation, serious trouble will follow. While war is hell, it has at least the restraint of discipline. A revolution growing out of unrest would mean mob madness, terrorism, brutality, brutal, cruel and merciless. Once started, it would spread like wildfire. The world would be swept from its senses. The fire would run its course until stopped because there was nothing left to burn. With these things in the state in which it would leave the world? In this day, when the nerves of the world are on edge when cold and hunger irritate, one shudders when he thinks of the fate of civilization if unrest is not checked before it explodes in passion and wrath.

Unrest existed before the war. It was an ancient then, it is an oak now. Before the war men were complaining, and justly complaining, about their lot. The difference now is that four years in the trenches have caused them to stop complaining and act. So during taught them much. They learned of the greatness of force.

Back of their present tendency to act is the grown grievance and the war lesson. Before the war they complained; today they demand. It is interesting to examine unrest in the complaint stage, as these men knew it before 1914.

These plain, ordinary average men have always been intensely human. They loved their wives and children, they lived for their homes they felt keenly their responsibility for the happiness of their loved ones. They have but one thing to give. Before the war they gave it unsparring—it was their labor. Their one source of income was the pay envelope. With their wages they had to buy shoes, clothes, food, and provide shelter for the lives they brought into the world, and for the women they had chosen to be the mothers of those children.

"Home" Before All.

"Home, Sweet Home" is the international anthem. It is the heart song of the average man. The club plays no part in his life. From his home he goes to work, and from work he goes home. Shanties and tenements are not homes. These men have always protested against the ugly shacks in which they were compelled to house their loved ones. They bit their lips in jobless days when their children went to bed hungry. Resentment grew in their hearts when they saw how poorly dressed their wives and children were. They muttered curses when their children were forced to go to work. They wanted to give their children a better education than they had had, a better chance in life, and they laughed at laws prohibiting child labor, while conditions compelled children to work or starve. As these men grew older their families grew in size and demand, while their ability to earn decreased. The tragedy registered in their pay envelopes. They were being ground between growing needs and diminishing wages. The grinding not only hurt their bodies, it tortured their brains.

They lived in dread of poverty. It had been their curse, they feared it would be their pallbearer. Poverty had taken its revenge upon them. They were resolving that if they could help it it would not put its lash upon their children. They knew poverty intimately. It wasn't a word, a name, it was a living hateful, cruel companion. It was the devil that recruited the Mares of Scarlet Hall, the flagellants of the slums, and always the army was mobilized from the shanties of the poor. Children who had been robbed of their youth who had never owned a flower, poorly fed and miserably clad, dragged out of bed by alarm clocks, smothering the call to toil when they should have been answering the school bell, children physically unfit for the breadwinner's struggle, children without the moral endurance necessary for the fight, were driven into No Woman's Land, the rotten slum under the world.

Light in Education.

Before the war men were brooding on these things, papers, books, magazines mirroring life, pictured these horrors. They were the subject of public discussion and debate. Men returning from a hard day's work talked these things over with their wives after the children had gone to bed, and many a man left his supper-table to peek through the half-closed door into the room where his kiddies were sleeping, no longer back, only to look into the eyes of a mother and see reflected there the fear she felt.

The invention of the typesetting machine, the cheap manufacture of paper, the growth of public school systems, and public libraries, brought light to the dark minds of the workmen. It is that light they saw and clearly they needed it. They were completely realized their rights. It is the natural ambition of man to go on. He wants to go on, and for some had kept him from children, ignorance is darkness. Men struggle when they try to go forward in the dark. Education is the light in the road. It is light to make haste in making of the lost flag. Education taught them to want things for themselves and their families that their fathers and mothers never thought of wanting. The homes which, until then, had been depressed and fringed with their lack of light and tooth-brushes, argued for light. The desire to straighten the crooked that has been bent in toil, to look as put there by education. One step ahead in the way—It is the path upward to freedom. Many have said the harder they work and the more they earn, the more they are the further they are from the goal. They saw more they saw that poor wages built the poorhouses and filled them, organized the bread lines, introduced the soup house, that of their thoughts, in their experience, the carved a truth, "As long as some men have more than they can possibly use, while others through no fault of their own have less than they at times need something is wrong." When the call to arms came these thoughts were living in the minds of the world. Many not concerned with the problem of the other seven eighths, knowing nothing of what was happening in the minds of the men and women of toil, and caring less, they did not know that these men were uniting and planning to tear down the wall of poverty.

Contradiction in Berlin.

Fats, oils, clothes, milk for babies and other necessities are scarce in Berlin, and so high-priced that the poorer people can hardly afford them at all; yet the shop windows along Unter den Linden are full of beautiful goods.

Housing conditions pinch despite the fact that Berlin and other cities have less population than before the war.

Every candy store window in Berlin has a crowd before it all day long. Adults, as well as children, stand and stare at the displays of sweets.

Movies—most of them immoral—are always crowded. Twelve new moving picture houses are to be erected. The most popular firms are those "on the ragged edge."

Theaters are crowded, and so is the opera, as a rule.

"Old Times" on Rhine Again.

Quite a number of regular "old times" who marched to the Rhine with the American army of occupation in December, 1918, and who have been to the United States and discharged and enlisted again, go to make up the Fifth and Fiftyth Infantry regiments which arrived recently in the vicinity of Coblenz to await possible dispatch in the near future to Upper Silesia to supervise the plebiscite.

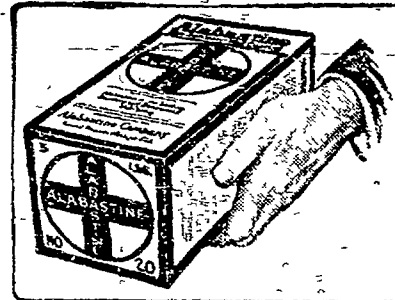

Some of them saw ten and twelve months' service in France and Belgium before the armistice.

Russ Loses 35,000,000.

The Polish professor, A. A. Ossendofsky, chief of the intelligence department of the all-Russian government, estimates that the world war, bolshevism, civil war, starvation and disease has cost Russia a total of 35,000,000 lives. He places the cost of bolshevism at 12,280,000 lives. Professor Ossendofsky says that formerly the Russian population increased at the rate of four persons a minute. Today it is decreasing at the rate of twelve to thirteen a minute.

WHAT HE SHOULD HAVE SAID CITY PEOPLE "EASY MARKS"

Reporter Had Much to Learn About Proper Method of Referring to Different Speakers

Many Believed Aims of Beggar for Whom Lusty Youth Was Engaged in "Barking"

"I'm afraid you want to do for us," said the other city man, "but you will find it a hard job. I have seen the new reporter only."

"Why don't you ask the reporter in surprise?"

"Well, you said to tell him that I had a considerable experience as a political reporter."

"I don't have" retorted the scribe.

"Then why on earth did you make use of such unparaphrased language in this report? You said that Mr. William Black addressed the meeting."

"Well, isn't that right?"

"Right," the other's voice was torn with scorn. "It's all wrong. One would imagine that the meeting was in support of our candidate instead of the opposition."

"What difference does that make? How should I have said it?"

"Why 'Bill Black' next harangued the mob," of course.—Lillian Anders.

"Isn't that parrot somewhat likely to become an out-and-out red?"

"I think not," answered Miss Cayenne. "He'll probably always stay just as he is, a sort of shrimp pink."

Easter Day.

It is a beautiful conception, the day and its significance. Our finite minds are accustomed to conceive of death as the end; we are often prone to stop there and not go beyond the resurrection. The physical world is emblematic of the change that must ever take place before the springing up of new life. So with the life of the spirit. He that loseth his life shall find it. Something of this thought is in the mind of him who is to find the real meaning of Easter. It is the beginning of a new year, not in the formal calendar of days and months, but of the world of nature which is often all the world of reality to us. The season speaks of abundance of life with all its wonderful hopes and possibilities. To the Christian, world Easter is the apotheosis of everything that is beautiful and awe-inspiring. It means the emergence of the spiritual, the message to humanity that the good and true and beautiful can never die. It is the inspiration of the power of the essence of hope to the man of faith.

Oldest Christian Festival.

Easter is the oldest festival of the Christian church. The celebration of it is really continued from the dawn of the Eternal Sabbath break, and the earliest Easter morning shall reveal a new heaven and a new earth. The resurrection is an announcement of the victory which has been won over death. Many victories have been achieved since but none, out of this world, as this; though many have been the sons of it.

Joy Supreme.

And, in the glory of the day, in the gladness of the glad morning, there are no more tears, no more sorrow, no more pain, no more death, no more evil can ever fully assault.

EASTER'S ANNOUNCEMENT.

Next week is a spring festival. It is the Easter festival. It is the day when the world is reborn. It is the day when the world is reborn. It is the day when the world is reborn.

TO HOLD CONFERENCE FOR FOUR DAYS

As the next step in Interchurch World Movement activities, a state-wide system of county conferences will be held April 6, 7, 8, and 9 in all but a very few of the more sparsely settled counties of the state.

Wayne county's conference will be held at the Woodward avenue Baptist church, Detroit, according to word received here by the Rev. H. J. B. Marsh.

These conferences follow the state meeting of pastors at Lansing, where 1,200 ministers of 30 powerful Protestant denominations adopted a new program of Interchurch cooperation. Leaders of the Interchurch World Movement have especially invited to the county conference all Sunday school superintendents, mission society heads and other active workers. But the general public is no less welcome, as the purpose of the meetings, it is stated, is to acquaint everyone with the complete program of the Interchurch World Movement.

"I may explain this movement briefly," says the Rev. Earl R. Smith, its field secretary for the state, "by saying that it seeks a new unity in the work of all Protestant churches. That is a text and an ideal which have been preached for many years. The aim of Christ must be unified by all its greater effectiveness. The Interchurch World Movement proposes to unite and align all denominations for the greater good of the Kingdom."

No denomination will be torn down. All will be built up, and we will work out a plan by which each can see its own work in home and mission fields. Then will help that plan. Economical would not be a program, but it is even more important in teaching the evangelist of the church to marshal themselves in one grand army.

PIG CLUB FOR BOYS ON FARMS

The first one of the club of boys on farm, only a few have been thought of in Northville town. Now the idea is to come together Friday night, and there will be a pig club in the district of Northville. This will be for all boys and their fathers. Boys enter the club and the father will be a pig club member. The club will be a pig club and the father will be a pig club member.

G. O. Stewart, county club leader, of Wayne county Farm Bureau will be present to explain the organization and the plans of the club. Every boy is welcome.

An evangelistic team composed of several leading Methodist clergymen of Detroit will conduct the service at the Methodist church Sunday evening. Every body come.

Auto drivers will do well to heed the warnings that have been given through The Record. The cars of the state are now ready, and will be pleased to show them to the ladies of Northville and vicinity.

"Hearts of Men" is primarily a play of optimism, of faith: it proves conclusively that every cloud has a silver lining, if we but take the trouble to turn it inside out; it interprets with an alternate note of pathos and humor the true philosophy of happiness.

Beginning next Thursday, when we take pleasure in presenting the above picture, we shall offer our patrons Arthur S. Hyman's attractions at no advance in price. We are sure the people of this section will enjoy and appreciate these high-class pictures. Every Thursday night something better.

Wash Day Out of Your Life Forever

It is hard sometimes to believe that the thing you have wanted so long has really come true. Think of it—not another wash board backache, not another parboiled hand, not another sigh over heavy "old things" that "just won't come clean." No steamed face or wet feet and generally looking a fright. Washes the clothes in an hour or so. Everything from lingerie waists to floor mats come out spotless. No lifting, for Blue Bird's big copper oscillating tub with the twin six movement swirls the water through the clothes seventy times a minute. No wearing away clothes with a wash board rub. Blue Bird clothes wear five times as long. All mechanism is enclosed. Blue Bird is easy to clean and looks clean. Arrange for a free demonstration.

An Easter Carol

by Minna Irving

Awake! A shaft of heavenly fire Has touched the cloud and tipped the spire.

The frosty cloud no more is cold, The violet stirs beneath the mold, For this is Easter morning!

Arise! The buds begin to swell, From bush and brake and field and fell.

A clear and joyous anthem floats From scores of little feathered throats, For this is Easter morning!

Behold! The soul of man today Casts off the sepulcher of clay And, crowned with lilies, mounts the skies.

To walk with God in paradise, For this is Easter morning! (Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

SING GLADNESS AND PRAISE

Carols Have a Distinct and Beautiful Meaning When Rendered at the Easter Time.

It seems as if the Easter carols were a particularly appropriate time for the singing of carols. The spring has come, the birds are singing again after the long winter of ice and snow, and we mortals wake to joy again with them. Let us see how the people of ancient times observed Easter. "Carol" the word which we use in speaking of Easter music, means a song of praise, between a hymn and a psalm, a song which was used first to accompany a dance. One of the most beautiful of these old carols, had its origin in the southwest part of France and is called "The Carol of the Flowers." It runs thus:

Come with us, sweet flowers, and worship Christ the Lord adorned.

Let your perfume hover round the Babe adored.

Modest violet, hiding in the grassy shade, Thou canst not how humble He is made.

Lily fair, low bending in the sun's warm light, Thou dost tell that He is pure as thou art white.

As thou, pansy, shinest forth in bright array, So dost thou his majestic display.

As they rose, wide opening, do thy scent impart, So thou, expanding, draws each sin-ful heart.

Easter time seemed especially the best time for the ancient people were moved to compose folk songs, which were not written down as music is.

Written now, but which were sung from generation to generation of people. In this way they were kept alive as surely as if they had been printed, or written on parchment, according to the custom in ancient days. These folk songs depicted scenes in the garden of Gethsemane where the Saviour walked, or of the women who went to the tomb bearing precious spices, of their finding the empty tomb, of the white-robed angel, and of Mary, the virgin mother.

One of the most beautiful of all the songs which have been written of this event is Handel's "I Know That My Redeemer Liveth." This has been sung on Easter for many years, in churches.

ESCAPED AN OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many Such Cases.

Cairo, Ill.—"Sometime ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had a bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would fall on the floor in a faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have never felt better than I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine."

—Mrs. J. R. Matthews, 3311 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Of course there are many serious cases, that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letter, and many others like it, simply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

If you want special advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass.

Tarzan and The Jewels of Opar

By EDGAR RICE BURROUGHS

Author of "TARZAN OF THE APES," "SON OF TARZAN"

Copyright, 1918, A. C. McClurg & Co.

"LADY GREYSTOKE, WHERE ARE YOU?"

Synopsis—Hiding in the jungle after killing his captain in a fit of brooding madness, Lieut. Albert Werper, Belgian officer, is captured by Achmet Zek, Arab slave trader, who spurs his life and proposes to him a scheme to kidnap Jane, wife of Tarzan (Lord Greystoke), and sell her into slavery. Werper accepts. Posing as Jules Frequent, French traveler, Werper is hospitably received by the Greystokes. He learns his host is in financial straits and is planning an expedition to the treasure vaults of Opar to procure gold. Werper informs Achmet Zek of the opportunity to seize Lady Greystoke, and Achmet Zek, to learn the secret of Opar. Spring on Tarzan, Werper sees him load the blacks with gold from the treasure chamber of the Sun. Worshippers. A convulsion of Nature causes the collapse of the vault imprisoning both men. Werper recovers from the shock and leaves Tarzan apparently dead. Seeking a way to safety Werper is seized by priests of the Flaming God, a degenerate race. He is about to be offered up as a sacrifice when the ceremonies are interrupted by the appearance of a hunter—Tarzan. He rescues Werper, and Achmet Zek, who has returned home with the gold. Achmet Zek, acting on Werper's information, has attacked the Greystoke home, burned it, and carried off Lady Greystoke. Musgami, Tarzan's lieutenant, is severely wounded but recovers and follows the raiders. Lord Greystoke recovers his consciousness but the accident has destroyed his memory and he is again Tarzan of the Apes. He finds himself in the jewel room of Opar. He finds his pouch with "pretty pebbles" and diamonds of great value. He recognizes the diamonds as the ones he had seen in the hands of Werper by La. He is recognized by La, high priestess, whom he had known in previous years. He is seized and taken to the high priestess. Tarzan and Werper watch the former's party return and bury the gold. Tarzan has no memory of the place. Werper steals the diamonds and escapes to Achmet Zek's stronghold. Lady Greystoke is there, a prisoner. Werper tells the Arab of the gold but not of the diamonds. Achmet Zek discovers Werper has the jewels, and the Belgian, fearing for his life, escapes with the gems. Tarzan misses Werper but does not discover the theft of the jewels. He resumes the life of a wild man. La and the priests of the Flaming God seek Tarzan and Werper to recover the sacrificial knife, which the latter had carried off. They capture Tarzan. The priests make ready to offer Tarzan as a sacrifice to the Flaming God. La offers his life in exchange for his love. He kills and in the jungle language calls Tarzan, the elephant to his rescue. Tarzan comes but in a insane rage destroys all in his path. La frees Tarzan and he saves her from the elephant.

"Cady, the high priestess," he announced, "would sacrifice you both to the Flaming God, but all of us except Cady would gladly return to Opar with our queen."

"You are many against one," spoke up Tarzan. "Why should you not let your wife go your way with La to Opar, and if Cady interferes, I'll kill her?"

The priests of Opar welcomed this suggestion with loud cries of approval. They rushed forward and seized Cady. They talked in loud menacing tones into his ear. They threatened him with blindness and knife until at last he acquiesced in their demands though sullenly, and then Tarzan stepped close before Cady.

"These," he said, "are the keys to her temple under the protection of her priests and the threat of Tarzan of the Apes that whoever harms her shall die. Tarzan will go with me to Opar before the next rain and if you have a better plan, I will be with you."

Sullenly Cady promised not to harm his queen.

"These," he said, "are the keys to her temple under the protection of her priests and the threat of Tarzan of the Apes that whoever harms her shall die. Tarzan will go with me to Opar before the next rain and if you have a better plan, I will be with you."

"Who knows?" asked the ape-man as he swung quickly into the trees and raced off toward the east.

For a moment La stood looking after him, then her head drooped, a sigh escaped her lips and like an old woman she took up the march toward distant Opar.

Through the trees raced Tarzan of the Apes until the darkness of night had settled upon the jungle, then he lay down and slept, with no thought beyond the morrow and with even La but the shadow of a memory within his consciousness.

But a few marches to the north Lady Greystoke looked forward to the day when her mighty lord and master should discover the crime of Achmet Zek, and be speeding to rescue and avenge, and even as she pictured the coming of John Clayton the object of her thoughts sagged almost naked beside a fallen log, beneath which he was searching with grumpy fingers for a chance beetle or a luscious grub.

Two days elapsed following the theft of the jewels before Tarzan gave them a thought. They as they chanced to enter his mind he conceived a desire to play with them again, and having nothing better to do than satisfy the whim which possessed him, he rose and started across the plain from the forest in which he had spent the preceding day.

Though no mark showed where the gems had been buried, and though the spot resembled the balance of an unbroken stretch several miles in length, where the reeds terminated at the edge of the meadowland, yet the ape-man moved with unerring precision directly to the place where he had hid his treasures.

With his hunting knife he upturned the loose earth, beneath which the pouch should be; but, though he excavated to a greater distance than the depth of the original hole there was no sign of pouch or jewels. Tarzan's brow clouded as he discovered that he had been despoiled. Little or no reasoning was required to convince him of the identity of the guilty party, and with the same celerity that had marked his decision to unearth the jewels he set out upon the trail of the thief.

Though the spoor was two days old, and practically obliterated in many places, Tarzan followed it with comparative ease. The man he followed was two days ahead of him when Tarzan took up the pursuit, and each day he gained upon the ape-man. The latter, however, felt not the slightest doubt as to the outcome. Some day he would overhaul his quarry—he could bide his time in peace until that day dawned. Doggedly, he followed the faint spoor, pausing only to sleep and eat, and at night only to keep and refresh himself.

Occasionally he passed parties of savage warriors, but these he gave a wide berth, for he was hunting with a purpose that was not to be distracted by the minor accidents of the trail.

The parties were of the collecting hordes of the Waziri and their allies, which Cady had scattered his messengers broadcast to summon. They were reaching to a common rendezvous in preparation for an assault upon the stronghold of Achmet Zek, but to Tarzan they were enemies, he remained in conscious memory of his friendship for the black men.

It was night when he halted outside the palisaded village of the Arab raiders. Peeking in the branches of a great tree he gazed down upon the life within the enclosure. To this place had the spoor led him. His quarry must be within, but how was he to find him among so many doors? The Arab, although ignorant of his high powers, realized also his limitations. He knew that he could not successfully cope with a number of men in open battle. He must resort to the stealth and trickery of the wild beast if he were to succeed.

Patience he waited until the streets were deserted by all save the sentries at the gates, then he dropped lightly to the ground, crept to the opposite side of the village and approached the palisade.

At his side hung a long rawhide, a natural and more dependable evolution from the grass rope of his childhood. Loosening this, he spread it across the ground behind him, and with a quick movement of his wrist tossed the coils over one of the sharpened projections of the summit of the palisade.

Drawing the noose taut, he tested the solidity of his hold. Satisfied, the ape-man ran nimbly up the vertical wall, aided by the rope which he clutched in both hands. Once at the top it required but a moment to gather the hanging rope once more into its coils, single it last again at his waist, take a quick glance downward within the palisade, and, assured that no one lurked directly beneath him, drop softly to the ground.

Now he was within the village. Before him stretched a series of tenements and native huts. It was not necessary that he enter each habitation—through a door, a window or an open chimney, his nose told him whether or no his prey lay within. For some time he found one disappointment following upon the heels of another in quick succession. No spoor of the Belgian was discernible. But at last he came to a tent where the smell of the thief was strong. Tarzan listened, his ear close to the canvas at the rear, but no sound came from within.

At last he cut one of the pin ropes, raised the bottom of the canvas, and intruded his head within the interior. All was quiet and dark. Tarzan crawled cautiously within—the scent of the Belgian was strong; but it was not live scent. Even before he had examined the interior minutely Tarzan knew that no one was within it.

In one corner he found a pile of blankets and clothing scattered about, but no pouch of pretty pebbles. At the side where the blankets and clothing lay the ape-man discovered that the tent wall had been loosened at the bottom, and presently he sensed that the Belgian had recently passed out of the tent by this avenue.

Tarzan was not long in following the way that his prey had fled. The spoor led always in the shadow and at the rear of the huts and tents of the village—it was quite evident to Tarzan that the Belgian had gone along, and secretly upon his mission.

At the back of a native hut the spoor led through a small hole recently cut in the brush wall and into the dark interior beyond. Fearlessly Tarzan followed the trail. On hands and knees he crawled through the small aperture. Within the hut his nostrils were assailed by many odors; but clear and distinct among them was one that half aroused a latent memory of the past—it was the faint and delicate odor of a woman. With the cognizance of it there rose in the breast of the ape-man a strange uneasiness—the result of an irresistible force which he was destined to become acquainted with in a moment which drew the male to his mate.

In the same hut was the secret spoor of the Belgian, too, and as both these assailed the nostrils of the ape-man, mingling one with the other, a jealous rage leaped and burned within him; though his memory no longer before the horror of recollection on the image of the She to which he had attached his desire.

Like the tent he had investigated the hut was empty and after sniffing himself that his golden pouch was secured nowhere within, he left as he had entered, by the hole in the rear wall.

Here he took the spoor of the Belgian, followed it across the clearing, over the palisade and out into the dark jungle beyond.

CHAPTER XII.

The Flight of Werper.

After Werper had arranged the diamonds to his belt and sneaked out into the darkness of the village he had sought the wall of his tent he had gone directly to the hut in which Jane Clayton was held captive.

The Belgian, being one of Achmet Zek's private householders, might not go to the village without a permit, and without the permit he could not enter the hut, but he had his right to enter the hut, and he did so.

Within, Werper called in French and in a low whisper, "Lady Greystoke," he called to her. "Where are you?"

"Protect Her," Cried Tarzan.

But there was no response. Hastily the ape-man felt around the interior, growing blindly through the darkness with outstretched hands. There was no one within.

Werper's astonishment surpassed words. He was on the point of stepping without to question the sentry, when his eyes, becoming accustomed to the dark, discovered a blotch of lesser blackness near the base of the rear wall of the hut. Examination revealed the fact that the blotch was an opening cut in the wall. It was large enough to permit the passage of his body, and, assured as he was that Lady Greystoke had passed out through the aperture in an attempt to escape the village, he lost no time in availing himself of the same avenue; but neither did he lose time in a fruitless search for Jane Clayton.

His own life depended upon the change of his eluding or outdistancing Achmet Zek, when that worthy should have discovered that he had escaped. His original plan had contemplated concealment in the escape of Lady Greystoke for good and sufficient reasons. Accompanied by a tried Englishwoman whom he had rescued from a frightful fate, and his identity vouched for by her as that of a Frenchman by the name of Frequent, he had looked forward, and not without reason, to the active assistance of the British from the moment that he came in contact with their first outpost.

But now that Lady Greystoke had disappeared, though he still looked toward the east for hope his chances were lessened, and another, subsidiary design, completely dashed. From the moment that he had first laid eyes upon Jane Clayton he had nursed within his breast a secret passion for the beautiful American wife of the English lord, and when Achmet Zek's discovery of the jewels had necessitated flight, the Belgian had dreamed, in his planning, of a future in which he might converse with Lady Greystoke, that his husband was dead, and by playing upon her gratitude win her for himself.

At that part of the village farthest from the gates Werper discovered that two or three long poles, taken from a nearby pile which had been collected for the construction of huts had been leaned against the top of the palisade, forming a precarious, though not impossible, avenue of escape.

Rightly, he inferred that thus had Lady Greystoke found the means to scale the wall, nor did he lose even a moment in following her lead. Once in the jungle he struck out directly eastward.

A few miles south of him Jane Clayton lay panting among the branches of a tree in which she had taken refuge from a prowling and hungry leopard.

Her escape from the village had been much easier than she had anticipated. The knife which she had used to cut her way through the brush wall of the hut to freedom, she had found sticking in the wall or her person, doubtless left there by accident, when a former tenant had vacated the premises.

For an hour she had followed the old game trail, and the sound, until there fell upon her ears the beating steadily padding of a sickening beast behind her. The beast's breath gave her heart sufficient pause for she was too wise in the ways of the jungle to charge her safety for a moment after discovering that she was being hunted.

Werper's flight, however, was not so easily won. He had been hunted, and he was hunted again. He was hunted by the leopard, and he was hunted by the Arab. It was one of Achmet Zek's householders, one of whom were sent out in all directions through the forest, searching for the fugitive Belgian.

Sick for Five Years and Given Up

Pontiac, Mich.—"A few years ago I was in a very bad state. I had been sick for about five years. I had several good doctors but kept getting worse all the time. Some said I had consumption; some said I had some other thing, and some said I was going to get better."

I had tried several different kinds of medicine but none seemed to give me any relief. One day I saw Dr. Pierce's medicine advertised and I got a bottle of "Golden Medical Discovery" and it began to help me. I felt that I had some other weakness so I got the "Favorite Prescription" and the "Pleasant Pellets" and these medicines cured me completely in just one year when I had doctor for five years before. I feel very grateful to Dr. Pierce for my good health and keep his medicines in my home for immediate use. I cannot thank him enough for the lot of suffering and doctors' bills as well. I have recommended Dr. Pierce's remedies to many people and will gladly reply to any one wanting to know about these medicines and what they did for me. MRS. E. J. BALDWIN, 246 Norton Ave.

STOMACH TROUBLE Can Now Eat Anything

Grand Rapids, Wis.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's medicine and found it very beneficial. I had stomach trouble for about eight years. I had to be very careful what I would eat for I would be down sick. I suffered something terrible about a year ago. I started to take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and the bottles put me in fine condition. I can eat anything and not feel distressed. I had taken many medicines previous to this and had doctors prescribe for me, but nothing seemed to give me any relief until I started taking the 'Discovery.' It gave me great relief. I take pleasure in recommending it." MRS. EMIL OESTRICH, 212 14th Ave., North.
