BUSINESS SUSPENDED INDUSTRY PARALYZED

As a result of the unjust and unwarranted strike by the switchmen employed in the great railway centers of the country, business practically came to a standstill on Monday afternoon; countless thousands of industries shutting down. In Detroit alone it was estimated that one hundred thousand men were thrown out of employment because of the strike. Other cities are similarly affected, though it seemed probable that the strike was breaking in some cities Tuesday.

There has never been a strike that was so unjust and so unfair, and it seems very strange that the government at Washington did not take up the "big stick" and apply it vigorously to the leaders in the movement. Union labor is not in accord or sympathy with the strike, though of course the leaders in the tie-up are members of labor unions. It is believed, however, that the leaders and directing heads are I. W. Ws.

It has come to a pretty state of affairs when 1,200 or 1,500 men in a great city like Detroit can throw thousands of men out of employment and subject the general public to countless inconveniences and hardships and that we have no government machinery to deal with the situation. Surely there ought to be some method whereby business could be kept going as usual while these differences were being adjusted upon a fair and honorable basis.

Northville felt the effects of the strike early Monday when the local supply of gasoline was exhausted, and if the trouble continued long there are other essential supplies that will be difficult to get, if they can be had at all.

People are urged not to hoard supplies or food and it is believed if this policy is generally adopted prices will remain normal.

Just when the strike will end no one seems to be able to determine, but the responsible union labor leaders throughout the country declare it can not last long.

Owing to the necessity of shutting off power by the Detroit Edison company some of Northville's industries were compelled to close down and the Ford plant the Stimpson and the Bell Foundry did not start up Tuesday morning.

The Pere Marquette railway cancelled ten passenger trains on its various divisions Tuesday.

HERBERT C. THAYER

Eminent Commander of Northville Commandery No. 39
Mr. Thayer started his Masonic career late but has been very thorough in his preparation and has been elected Master of Farmington Lodge, High Priest of Union Chapter and now occupies the top place in the Commandery.

STRIKE AT SANITARIUM.

Several members of the State Police, stationed at Plymouth, were called to the Sanitarium farm yesterday forenoon to quell a near-riot. It is said the trouble started when a number of the men went on strike claiming the meals were not up to standard. Those employed there were receiving $6.50 per day and board and lodging.

SOMMER-TESHKA.

Miss Martha Sommer, youngest daughter of Mrs. E. Sommer, and Herman Teshka, were married at the M. E. parsonage on Wednesday afternoon, April 14th, by Rev. H. J. B. Marsh. The attendants were Miss Helen Teshka and Harry Sommer. The bride and groom are both well known in Northville.

William Schenckburg has purchased the Bernhart place on West Randolph street.

D. U. R. MAY INCREASE RATES

Last fall when the D. U. R. attempted to increase its passenger rates on interurban lines Attorney General Alex J. Groesbeck sought to prevent the carrying into effect the decision of the officials of the railway company by injunction proceedings. The case was recently submitted to the supreme court at Lansing and in a decision handed down last Saturday the contentions of the company were upheld. Under the decision the D. U. R. may charge two cents a mile, the court holding:

1—That the Smith Railroad Act of 1919 is constitutional in all particulars.

2—That the Legislature can add in this Act did, abrogate franchise rates and substitute such rates as it considers fair and reasonable.

3—That, under the Act, all electric interurban roads earning less than $8,000 a mile may charge a fare of 2½ cents a mile.

4—That electric interurban roads, earning more than $10,000 a mile, may charge a fare of 2 cents a mile, regardless of franchise agreements.

Under this last part of the decision, the D. U. R., which is claimed by its counsel and by counsel for the state to be earning more than $10,000 a mile may increase fares to 2 cent as attempted to do last August.

The D. U. R. case originated when the company, on Aug. 14, 1919, the day the Smith Act became effective, sought to increase interurban fares on practically all of its lines running out of Detroit to 2 cents a mile.

Pompeo H. Clemens and several other cities on the interurban lines, protested and started local suits to enjoin collection. The attorney-general started suit in the name of the state and obtained an injunction from Judge Howard West in the Michigan court.

Judge West held that the D. U. R. was excluded from the provisions of the Smith Act because its gross passenger earnings a mile were in excess of $8,000.

The Supreme Court's opinion, signed by Justices Brooke, Stone, Moore, Sharpe and Stone, reverses this decision and orders the injunction dissolved.

The court admits that the Smith Act of 1919 Act constituted literally a "regulation" of interstate commerce, but it holds that the act is not a regulation of interstate commerce, but a regulation of local business. It holds that the act is not a regulation of interstate commerce, but a regulation of local business. It holds that the act is not a regulation of interstate commerce, but a regulation of local business.

The Smith Act on its face, the Court observes, would bar the D. U. R. from the benefits of increased fares. If this meaning were accepted however, the Court would be compelled to suppose that "the Legislature willfully and deliberately set out to do a vain thing." The Court "can not bring itself to assent to any such proposition."

The Court prefers to construe the fourth proviso, which appears to bar the D. U. R., as meaning that "the Legislature intended to and did exclude roads earning more than $8,000 a mile from the benefits of the 2½-cent rate, but it did not intend to nullify the future enactment."

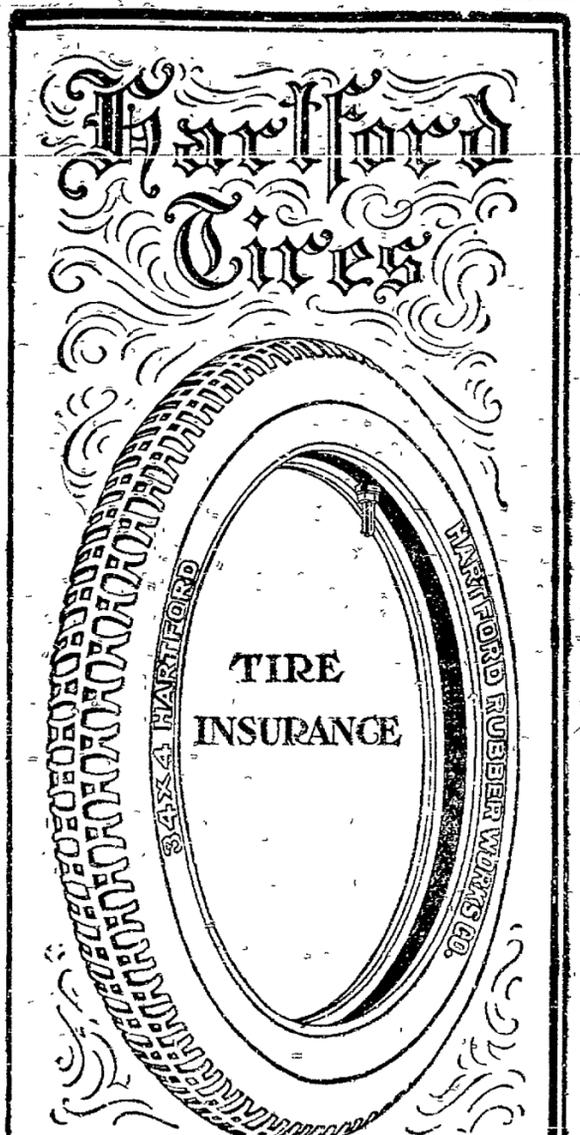

The Michigan State Telephone Co. is permitted to collect from Detroit telephone subscribers, back charges covering the difference between the Keiser, metered service rates and the previous rates from March 1, 1918, to Aug. 1, 1918, under another opinion handed down by the Court upholding the Keiser order.

Wixom Whisperings.

Glady and Hazel Gilleck were Flint visitors Friday night and Saturday. Ellen and Helen Stevens were home from Pontiac, over Sunday. Rev. W. Roberts gave a stereopticon lecture at the Church, Monday evening. Mrs. Blair of Detroit is caring for Mrs. Tiffin, whose health does not improve. The funeral of Edna Martin was held from his late residence here, Saturday last. Burial at Northville. Jesse Wines and wife accompanied by H. P. Gillick and wife, were at Flint Sunday to see the latter's new granddaughter, little Miss Van Leuven. Edward Martin was born in Medina, N. Y., August 11th, 1843, and died April 7th, 1920. At the age of 18 he enlisted in the 11th N. Y. Light Artillery, Co. E, and served three years in the Civil war. He was a Northville resident for several years, and while there was married to Miss Nettie Carmer who survives him. They came to Wixom 25 years ago, he having purchased the blacksmith shop here, and had since engaged in that business until less than a year ago, ill health compelled him to resign. He was also a member of the G. A. R. Milford.

STATE WILL MARK HIGHWAYS.

Michigan's trunk-line highways are to be completely marked in the very near future, according to advice received by Capt. W. S. Gilbreath, manager of the Detroit Automobile club, from Frank F. Rogers, state highway commissioner. The legislature enacted a law empowering the state highway department to take up this work. It was planned last fall to undertake the project, but a decision was reached later to allow the work to go over till spring. Standard markers, a design for which was selected last year, will be used. Each road will be posted according to its trunk line number, so that with the aid of a small map the tourist can follow these numbered routes to any part of the state. Another matter to be given consideration is that of removing all advertising signs from the public highways. The state highway department is given authority to do this under a recently enacted statute. "We are about to mark the trunk lines with our standard markers," Rogers states, "at which time we are authorized to remove all advertising signs within the limits of the highway. I further wish to advise that we intend to enforce this law."

DETROIT THEATERS.

"The Bird of Paradise" which returns to the Shubert Detroit next Sunday night for a week's engagement and is now in its ninth season of unabated success has certainly confounded the critics or rather the prophetic of the critics who first witnessed it. When it was produced in New York in January 1912, those who wrote of it seemed to esteem it lightly, and no one foresaw that a play of such popularity had been produced. Such success as it has was attributed to the skill and personality of Laurette Taylor, then just rising into fame. None of the experts believed that it had enough vitality to survive without the assistance of Miss Taylor's acting, then just rising into fame. None of the unfortunate Hawaiian girl dramas. None of them, that is except its author, Richard Walton Tully, who is assuredly an expert not merely in stage production, but in diagnosis of what will appeal to the esophagus of the average playgoer. "Tea for Three," as presented here earlier this season, will be recalled as one of the most splendid and most delightful comedy treats of the year, consequently the announcement that this play begins a return engagement next Sunday evening at the Garrick Theatre with the original company should cause a stir among theatre-goers. This original company includes Arthur Byron, Laura Hope Crews and Frederick Perry, any one of whom would lend distinction to a cast. While "Tea for Three" was given previously with a superb company still the fact remains that this is the original company and all traditions point to it as the best, an exemplification of the Selwyns reserving the best wine for the finish of the theatrical feast.

LADIES' OXFORDS AND PUMPS.
MCCULLY, The Shoeman

FOR CURLEY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(Copyright, 1919, Western Newspaper Union)

Angela read the article again, then sat gazing with dreamy eyes into the street. The philanthropist whose good deeds were so often published had made another endowment. What a beautiful life must be his, in the generous sharing of riches. His grudging interviews with reporters aroused Angela's interest; who could imagine great kindness of heart in one of such lacerating words? Eccentric the old gentlemen must be, she thought, and impatient of praise.

Then, suddenly moved by a presumptuous thought, Angela's blue eyes widened. "Why not?" she murmured into the dusk, and a mist clouded the blue eyes as she thought of Curley. Curley, at once the joy and anxiety of her life.

It was one of Angela's sudden impulses which had led her three years ago to take upon herself the boy's care. Angela—or Angel, as he promptly called her, had been very young herself at the time. Her visiting days at the orphanage endeared Curley to her more and more. He was such a brave little fellow with black eyes searching for sympathy and riotous dark locks, and the mischievous dimples in his cheeks. Their partings after each visit were so filled with mutual regret, that Angela had gone to the superintendent at last and arranged for Curley's adoption. At home in her tiny apartment, Angela was amazed at herself for her daring; but she had never regretted the act. Curley was a contented comfort, making her evening hours a delight, always; he was her boy, needed her—that was Angela's joy, and as Curley grew he made her life wonderfully useful. No maid could have prepared dainties so good as she learned to keep the little flat in order. Oh! they were very happy together with wreaths in the Christmas time, and the roses in summer.

Angela's first instruction to Curley was to read his newspaper. The boy's eyes straggled through the water stains, omitting orders for a new pair of shoes and in the way of Curley's life. Angela married at last, and with the boy, she was as happy as a fox and simple as a dove. But the music Curley made in his life was very sweet to hear. It was the joy of their pleasant evenings.

Now, after all the promise of his future, Angela now sent the boy away, and Curley was still too young to begin himself yet in these three years of home life, he had been fit removed to the orphanage. So as Angela to the newspaper article, there was to her another impulse and she busy at her feet.

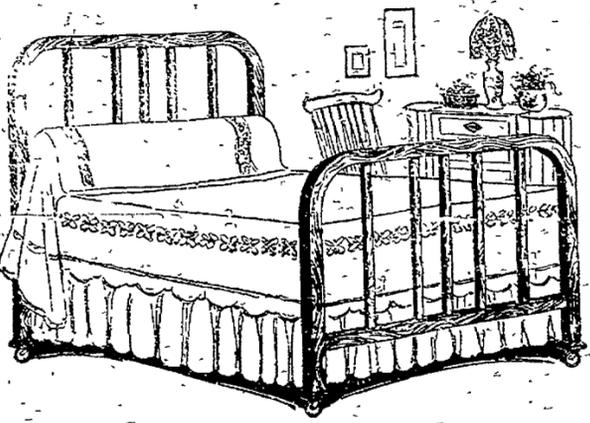

"Why not," she whispered again. Her cheeks were flushed as she hurried along the street and her eyes shone through the mist in his light and they from him a gleam for Curley. Perhaps what he needed in all their life was not money and dear old lady was her to help up the little flat. Perhaps she had moved for a new place was he himself. Angela's heart was full of an idea.

"I shall see you again," she said. "I wish to take up a matter with his secretary." The young man bowed, and immediately held open for her the house door. Seated in an impressive library, with Curley standing between them, the man looked at Angela and smiled. "What can I do for you?" he asked. Earnestly then she told her story.

"Curley would be worthy of any kindness Mr. Rider could give him," she rushed tremulously. But the boy nestled to her side. "I'd rather be near you, Angel," he said. "I can have all the kindness of the world." The pleasant-faced young man arose brusquely. His voice sounded husky too. "I'm not exactly a secretary," he confessed. "In fact, I think I shall need a trusty business secretary myself. Curley might be educated along that line while he is finding out what he is going to do with his music. He could begin by making himself useful here right now. I'll speak to the housekeeper about his room."

"You are sure?" Angela asked breathlessly. "That Mr. Rider will be agreeable?" "I'll snow him well," the young man replied, laughing down into her eager face. "I'm John Rider, you see," he said.

"And so strangely do things happen, that it is now Angela, who assists the philanthropist in extending good work. For as Mrs. James Rider, her opportunities are as large as her loving heart, and Curley's music grows ever beautiful," he says, "in thinking of them."

WILL IGNORE GOVERNMENT'S PRICE. The Michigan Milk Commission, representing milk producers and distributors in the Detroit area at a meeting in the Board of Commerce Tuesday, decided to ignore the federal fair price commission's order to cut the price of milk 2 cents a quart beginning April 15th. Farmers and city creameries were advised to continue to charge the old scale of price during April. Farmers declare that instead of selling their product to city distributors for $2.75 a hundred pounds, as ordered by the federal price today, they will continue to charge $3.05 a hundred. Representatives of the large Detroit creameries say their price to the consumer will continue at 16 cents a quart and 19 cents a pint during April. The Fair Price Commission set the price at 14 cents a quart and 17 cents a pint. Representatives of every creamery in Detroit and about 250 delegates, representing 10,000 Michigan farmers, entered a protest against the decree of the federal price board at a meeting on that body Tuesday night. They told the price body it would be impossible for them to return in business if the order was enforced. Detroit Journal.

UNSPRAYED ORCHARDS SHOW PRODUCTION LOSS. Unsprayed apple trees often fail to bear, and if they do produce a crop it is small in quantity and low in quality," says L. R. Taft, state inspector of orchards, Michigan Agricultural college. "Michigan growers are getting from 35 to 50 bushels per tree from sprayed orchards, and the apples are bringing from $1.50 to $3.50 a bushel. This chance for profits under the present high prices is lost to the man who does not spray his trees." The difference in production is said to be due to the fact that spraying keeps the leaves healthy, enables the tree to form large fruit spurs, and prevents the attack of apple scab and other diseases. Apple scab is most prevalent in wet seasons, according to Mr. Taft, as the spores require water for germination. Serious losses from this disease often occurs even when the trees are sprayed due to the fact that at some time during the season too long a period has been allowed to pass between sprayings.

Over Education a Peril? Have you ever read what Roy M. said of over education? Well he is a "A great danger of our times is the accumulation of knowledge. Power is unattained while the intellect does not expand. There is reason to fear that the human brain may collapse under its own burden, that there may come a moment when its very progress spells its ultimate decadence. It will be like an equation that carries its limits within its own statements."—Los Angeles Times

Same Old, But... At a club this evening was found in the lavatory today was quite cold and there was none of it.—Boston Transcript. Camouflage... Subscriber—Do you know? Central, make this connection as poor as you can. I want my wife to think I am in Tarrytown.—The Telephone Review.

A Losing Proposition

The materials that go into the telephone instruments and switchboards, including steel, platinum, tin and other metals, have increased more than 100 per cent, copper wire 55 per cent, outside wire 45 to 55 per cent, and so on. Telephone poles that cost us $5 43 in 1915 are now $13 05 each, while lead cable has risen from $1 10 to $1 55 a foot, brick from $7.00 to $2.00 per 1,000 cement from 45c to $1.00 per sack, cross-arms from 34c to $1.27 each, clay conduit from 29 cents to 75 cents per foot and tearing from $1.00 to $12.00 per day. Shipments used and carried every day have risen enormously, of course. Corn is 75c a bushel and now is $1.60. At $2.00 a bushel and is now selling for $2.75. Sold five years ago at $11.42 per 100 lbs compared with $7.77 today. The retailer of these products has advanced his selling prices to meet increased costs. The Telephone Company on the other hand, has been unable to do so. Costs have risen rapidly at rates not required by the plan kept pace, so we have come to a point where we cannot meet our obligations. Income is not sufficient.

WE MUST HAVE YOUR SUPPORT IF YOU ARE TO HAVE THE TELEPHONE. MICHIGAN STATE TELEPHONE COMPANY

52¢ How would YOU like a raise like this?

FIRST NATIONAL BANK. Pay to the order of Rev. N.E. Pastor. Only fifty two cents. Each Church Member. 52¢. — and for 34 Years Work.

THAT is the kind of increase in salary the minister has received. His living expenses have risen just as fast and as far as yours. But he is paid on the average just 52 cents more per church member than he was paid 34 years ago.

The Minister Never Fails You

Every officer of the Government with a war message to deliver appealed to the ministers first of all.

But 80% of the ministers receive less income than government economists figure as a minimum for the support of an average family.

When hospitals need money they enlist the support of the ministers—and receive it.

But when sickness visits the minister or the members of his family they must be treated in a charity ward. His pay is less than a day laborer's.

8 out of every 10 ministers receive less than $20 a week—about half the pay of a mechanic.

We Pay Him Half the Wages of a Mechanic

And of these pitifully inadequate salaries, how much do you contribute? Nothing if you are outside the church; an average of less than 3c a day if you are a church member.

All of us share in the benefits of Christian ministers to the community. They marry us; bury us; baptize our children; visit us when we are sick. In their hands is the spiritual training of the youth.

We Are All Profiteers at Their Expense

Part of the Interchurch World program is this—a living wage for every minister of Jesus Christ; an efficient plant, and a chance to do a big man's job.

If you want better preachers, help to pay the preachers better. It is the best investment for your community—and for your children—that you can ever make.

 Backache pains often come from weak kidneys.
 'T would save much needless woe.
 Doan's Kidney Pills are for weak kidneys.
 Many residents of this vicinity endorse them.
 Mrs. Minnie Grant, 130 E. Cony street, Detroit, Mich., says: "I suffered from kidney trouble, my feet and ankles swelled and I had puffy sacs beneath my eyes. My kidneys didn't act right at all and I was down in bed for quite a time. My back often felt as if it would break in two. As Doan's Kidney Pills had been used in the family with good results, I decided to try them. Four boxes of Doan's cured me and I haven't had any trouble in some time."

Impurities in The Blood Directly The Cause of Many Human Ailments
 This time of the year many people suffer from what is termed "SPRING FEVER" which in many cases is due to the stagnant condition of the blood, because of the toxic poisons stored up within the body. You have a tired feeling and wonder why. It is because the various organs of the body are not doing their normal duties.
 Until nature takes hold you should try the refreshing tonic powers of a good alternative and blood purifier. This can be had in taking Supreme Brand Blood and Skin Purifier which is composed of the following ingredients, many of which you know as old-time remedies: Ginger Root, Mandrake Root, Licorice Root, Eroom Corn Seed, Tridicum, Alex. Senna, Salsaparilla Root, Poke Root, Red Clover, Burdock Root, Potassium Iodide, Soda Benzoate and Soda Salicylate.
 The Real Merit of this preparation are its powers of restoring and strengthening the system, cleansing and enriching the blood when it has become impure, such impurities often showing themselves by eruptions, pimples, blotches, etc. It stimulates the nature to expel impurities from the system through the natural channels, thus cleansing the blood and restoring the system to a pure and healthy state as through the blood all the organs and tissues of the body are reached.
 This is an excellent remedy for rheumatism, kidney trouble and a general reconstructor, which should be taken especially by those who have had influenza or hard winter colds. Many people have a poor appetite and feel that tired, worn or feverish condition. In all such ailments this remedy has accomplished a wonderful amount of good.
SUPREME BRAND BLOOD AND SKIN PURIFIER can be secured by calling the Northville Chemical Co. Phone 25-W or purchased from Miller & Son where a stock is kept for the convenience of our customers.

Home Town Helps

REALIZE VALUE OF GARDENS

British Housing Authorities Forbid Erection of Dwellings Without Suitable Breathing Spots.

The new methods of land development in Great Britain now adopted by local authorities mark a clean breakaway from the "jerry building" methods of the past. Instead of crowding from thirty to forty houses per acre in closely packed streets, local authorities, acting under the guidance of the ministry of health, are adopting the standard that in urban areas not more than five houses, and in rural areas not more than eight houses, should be built per acre. As a beneficial result of the adoption of these new standards the large garden is to be henceforth a fundamental feature of every family on its home.

The distance between houses on opposite sides of a street is not less than seventy feet, thereby making a broad park line road. Under the new method the cost per house of garden snoub roads on an estate with twelve houses per acre add with a frontage of twenty-five feet, per house is less than under the old method with twenty houses to the acre and only 15-foot frontages to the houses.

This is the opening out of a new period of English town and village development. Under a clause added to the housing and town planning act in the committee of the house of commons every urban local authority with upwards of twenty thousand population, must between 1923 and 1926 prepare a town planning scheme and under the clause the exercise of town planning care will become general.

CONSIDER THE GARDEN PATH

Matter Worthy of Careful Thought When Improvements Around Home Are Being Planned.

It is the question of paths that comes to the fore when garden improvements are being discussed. There are not many gardens in which the paths could not be improved, either in their substance or their relation to surrounding things. They require a careful consideration as to the best material to be used in the banking of the paths.

Such paths are decidedly popular if they have something more than narrow strips of grass. The latter are ineffective and troublesome. But a wide path with kept neatly both in surface and edge is a delight especially when it runs beside or between broad masses of flowers or well-kept ornamental shrubs. It would be better for the garden maker, however, not to indulge in fancy paths unless he be prepared either to keep the paths in order himself or to pay for the necessary labor.

Good paths of stone or brick are a never-failing delight but bricks are difficult to obtain—more difficult now than at any time in memory.

Birds in Cemeteries. Not long ago it was suggested that with excellent propriety we could make of every cemetery a bird sanctuary or refuge. The proposition appears to have found wide favor through numerous articles in the press, and a few instances are known where the idea has been made a reality.

What could be more fitting than to make of these silent and sacred resting places of our dead, the abodes of creatures that bless and beautify the world of the living.

What could be simpler than to plant and nurture such shrubs and trees as by the berries and fruits they bear would attract to them these uniring servants of man? The decorative value of such planting would obviously be considerable. The songs of birds, the sweetest of nature's music, will take away from these silent cities something of the sadness and gloom that inevitably enshrouds them.

Good Citizenship. To be a good citizen one must not live for himself alone, he must support religion, education and many worthy objects and must in all ways be a good neighbor and a good friend. These obligations at times cost money, and where do we find the best of such people? It is safe to say in most cases, that those who have saved and been thrifty are the ones who are most dependable. They are the best neighbors, the best friends, active in supporting the church, the school lectures and all other good works that enlighten and make for happy and self-reliant people.—Exchange

Protect Insect-Killing Birds. We have come to an era of bird-life conservation. Economic humans and sentimental interests united in common cause, have won in the long contest in which bird life was at stake. It is lamentably true that we have lost forever some dozens of species and that the fate of twice as many more is hanging in the balance, but, says William M. Morrill in Our Dumb Animals, the tide of destruction has been stemmed, the hand of the despoiler stayed, henceforth safety supplants slaughter, preservation takes the place of persecution.

SALTS IF BACKACHE AND KIDNEYS HURT

Stop Eating Meat for a While If Your Bladder Is Troubling You.

When you wake up with backache and dull misery in the kidney region it generally means you have been eating too much meat, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which overworks the kidneys in their effort to filter it from the blood and they become sort of paralyzed and loggy. When your kidneys get sluggish and clog you must relieve them, like you relieve your bowels; removing all the body's urinous waste, else you have backache, sick headache, dizzy spells; your stomach sour, tongue is coated, and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine is cloudy, full of sediment, channels often get sore, water scalds and you are obliged to seek relief two or three times during the night.

Either consult a good reliable physician at once or get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a table-spoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your bowels will then act off. This famous salt is made from the acid of grape and lemon juice, combined with India, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus easing bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is a life saver for regular meat eaters. It is inexpensive, cannot injure and makes a delightful, effective hot-water drink.—Adv.

James Knew. A teacher was instructing a class in English and called on a small boy named Jimmy Brown.

James said: "Write on the board a hard rule that the male if he wants it."

Now called the teacher when Jimmy had finished writing "Oh, you can't get it for that sentence?"

"Yes, but you can't get it for the prompt," said Richard, who rode the male if he wants him to."

Electricity in Next War.

That the use of high explosives in modern warfare has about reached the end of its development is the opinion of a French inventor of one powerful compound of this nature. Neither can poisonous gases, it is indicated, be made much more dangerous than were those contrived in the world war. Flying mechanisms of various types promise much greater menace, and it is probable that any new developments in scientific warfare visible in the next international disagreement will be electrical in their nature. Electricity's use in the last war was relatively small.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

ACQUIRING HOMESTEADS.

Helping people do this is our strong point but as at the present time it takes about three times as much as formerly to obtain a home, we are financially frequently up against it.

Those that need no help do, far as a home is concerned, know that the money they pay in is being used to help some one procure a home, and this is true of the borrower also as his money helps out on the next party, etc.

Every one is making a good thing for himself and helping the other fellow also.

Those who can only save a small amount each week, perhaps may think that doesn't count, but united with what we have coming in it helps the work along.

THE LONELY HEARTH

By EALPH HAMILTON

(Copyright, 1926, Western Newspaper Union)

"The same old Randal Worth, eh?"

"In patience and duty, I hope so."

"Martin Brill" looked curiously about the living room of the old house in which his friend lived all by himself.

It had seen better days, but its age was well concealed by the efforts at care and neatness.

"Of course, it's home, and you love it," spoke Brill, "but you're made for something better in a social way than for a solitary old bachelor, and in a business way for a plodding existence as a store clerk."

"That's all well enough," replied Worth, "but I couldn't break away from the only home I have ever known, and, to preserve it for myself and the others, I don't dare to make any experiments."

"The others!" retorted Brill with asperity. "Do you ever think of your own right and pleasure?"

"I don't count particularly against those I love," said Worth, soberly. "I'm older than Esther, my sister, and Norman, my brother. Then there's his wife and three little children. How I miss them! How I would like to have them back with me! You see, Norman caught the farm craze, and I had to help him out in buying some land way out West. Sister Esther joined the family, but I don't think they have made much of it out of it. It's a cold cheerless spot, and the soil is not much good. Maybe they'll be coming along back soon. Thope so."

"And you are all ready for them, eh?" suggested Brill with a sweep of his hand across the semi-circle of chairs.

"Why yes," assented Worth, with a wary smile. "The first three are for Norman, his wife and Esther. Then that next chair for the eldest boy, the small one for little Walter, and the high chair for Baby Ruth. I'll sit in the middle."

"And that old-fashioned rocker next to it?" queried Brill.

"Why, that was mother's old favorite," explained Randal reverently. "I like to think of her and, flushing slightly, remarks I'll so value and some worthy person to fill it."

Martin Brill smiled secretly. He had heard that Randal had been an occasional escort for pretty Netta Searle whom Randal had known from her childhood. There, too, was the self-sacrificing nature of Randal displayed, for but the money help he bestowed upon his brother and his family, and keeping open for them the old home, he might think of taking to himself a wife.

"Well, I hope your dream comes true," said Brill affectionately. "If your covers do come back, it looks to me as though you and Norman ought to be able jointly to make ends meet nicely. No disguise with a true friend Randal, you want and need Netta Searle in your life. Get her!"

That might be possible, reflected Randal as his friend went his way, but he was in no position to support her as he should do. His brother had not only drawn on his reserves originally, but had been unable to do so until the interest on his mortgage, and Randal had to help him out. Norman's only prospect was to sell his equity in the farm, but that did not seem easy to do. A great deal of love came into the face of Randal one day a week later as he received a letter. It contained wonderful news. Norman had disposed of his interest in his property for $4000. He and his eager brood were coming home tonight. He would pay Randal half of the money; together they would invest in some safe little business, and live together in the dear old home, with their loved ones about them.

Randal had not visited Netta for nearly a fortnight. He was so elated, however, at the good news he had received that he saw light ahead. He did not tell Netta of his unexpected good fortune, but she was so pleased at his coming that he went home confident and happy.

What a week of work was that for Randal! How he tidied up the room and burnished the antique furniture! The semi-circular row of chairs came in for full exertion of his energy and attention. It had existed ever since the day Norman and his family went away. It should not be disturbed now!

One evening Randal came over to the Searle home in a vast state of excitement. Netta was standing at the gate, thinking of him.

"Netta, I want you to come over to the house, if you will. My brother and his family have returned and I want you to see them."

"Oh, how happy you must be to have them under the home roof once more!" exclaimed Netta, and she accompanied Randal gladly. He halted with her just beyond the open window of the lighted living room. Raptly Netta gazed within. Six of the chairs around the fireplace were filled just as Randal had planned, and hoped for two long, lonely years. He drew close to Netta's side.

"There are two vacant chairs," he said. "Netta, will you join me in filling them?"

"Oh, gladly!" replied Netta, and then she flushed and trembled for the love-light in Randal's eyes was unmistakable.

"Not for this evening only, dearly beloved one," he whispered tenderly. "I'll wait."
