SPRAGUE WAS FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Arthur Sprague, who is charged with murder for having killed his wife at the Root cottage at Walled Lake some weeks ago, is being tried at Pontiac this week. The trial was commenced in the circuit court on Tuesday afternoon. When arraigned soon after being taken to the county jail Sprague pleaded not guilty to the charge made against him.

An attempt was made by the defense to show that Arthur Hood, for whom Mrs. Sprague was housekeeper, had paid her undue attention and estranged her from her husband Hood admitted he had taken Mrs. Sprague driving, presented her with gifts and taken her to Pontiac to consult an attorney about a divorce.

Mrs. Sprague wrote the following letter to Sprague June 10: "I am writing to tell you I am not coming back. You can go your way from now on and I will go mine. There is nothing I want. You can dispose of everything. Do not look for me and don't make a fool of yourself. This is final. My divorce papers were signed today."

After hearing all the testimony the jury found Sprague guilty of murder in the first degree Wednesday afternoon. Sentence will be imposed next Monday.

Mrs. C. A. Sessions of this village has been called as a witness by the prosecution.

PLYMOUTH & NORTHVILLE GUN CLUB.

Only five members turned out for the regular program shoot last Sunday, but the scores will surely attest their shooting ability. Six men shot in the practice events and made a fine showing. The feature of the day was the season's high score and season's high run made by Frank E. Hills. It will take some hard shooting to beat the high mark set for us by his 47 out of 50 and straight run of 41. A little more of this, and we will all be happy. The program was shooting right at them, too, finishing in a 44 score. Len Cummon and his new Ithaca set a new high mark for Len with 19 out of 20. A Long, C. Hamilton and C. Merritt also made a fine showing in the practice events. Next shoot will be July 15, and we want to see a larger crowd on hand.

Scores for the regular program (50 targets at 16 yards) are as follows:

P. F. Hills	47
H. Passage	36
J. Patterson	33
L. Cummon	36
D. Patterson	29

Scores in the practice events were as follows:

A. Long	59
C. Hamilton	57
C. Merritt	50
H. Passage	49
M. Taylor	43
D. Brannon	40

HOSPITAL NOTES.

Mrs. Pettes of South Lyon and Mrs. Buers of Salem are convalescent.

Mrs. Harry Austin was operated upon last Wednesday and at last report her condition was satisfactory. Mr. LaTourette, whose leg was amputated a few weeks ago, has recovered sufficiently to return to his home.

Mrs. William Warner, who has been ill nearly all winter, was brought to the hospital here for an operation about two weeks ago, but has improved under serum treatment to the extent the surgeons believe, an operation will be unnecessary.

EXCURSION TO BOB-LO.

On Monday next the Presbyterian and Methodist Sunday schools of this village will enjoy a picnic excursion to Bob-Lo, the fare for the boat trip being 55 cents for adults and 25 cents for children. Those going to Detroit by the D. U. R. will take the boat for the island at the foot of Bates street at nine o'clock and those who drive to the city by auto will take the boat at the Boulevard at 9:15.

All are cordially invited to join with the two Sunday schools and to enjoy a day's outing at beautiful Bois Blanc island.

TO BE BURIED AT HOWELL.

Victim of a 1,000-foot fall, the body of Lieutenant Patrick H. Logan, of Detroit, known as the Red Devil flyer of the American army and conceded without peer as an acrobatic aviator, will be buried in Howell, Mich., his birth town, Friday morning.

NEW AUTO LAWS HERE AND DETROIT.

The Northville Auto club calls the attention of drivers to some of the features of the new auto laws both in Northville and Detroit.

IN NORTHVILLE.

Drive safely and observe speed limits.
Don't park near hydrants.
Spot lights prohibited.
Don't pass street cars that are loading or unloading passengers.
Don't open muffler cut outs.
Don't race engines.
Glaring headlights prohibited.

IN DETROIT.

Among the principal Detroit changes are those regarding headlights, right-of-way passengers, abolition of right-of-way streets, stopping behind street cars and safety zone parking.

Headlights, the new law provides, must be strong enough to reveal a pedestrian 150 feet away.

Right-of-way at street intersections is given to the vehicle approaching from the right, except in case of car line streets where the traffic following the car lines has the right of way.

Another change provides that automobiles must stop when the driver sees that the street car ahead of him is about to stop. The present provision is the driver must stop only when the car does.

Automobiles and other vehicles will be permitted to stop opposite safety zones long enough to take on or unload passengers or freight under the new measure.

GREATLY APPRECIATE THE GIFT.

The members of the Ladies' Library association are very grateful to the generous and public spirited citizens of Northville who contributed $200 to pay the expense of putting the new roof on the building. Until this splendid gift was announced it was thought necessary to increase the yearly dues to meet the increasing operating expenses, but with the cost of the new roof being taken care of by the citizens of Northville's business men it was decided to let the dues remain as they had been for many years. The following gentlemen contributed $200 each: L. A. Babbitt, A. C. Babbitt, C. R. Benton, H. B. Clark, Dr. Tom Henry, W. G. Lapham, C. A. Tansford, C. C. Yerkes, D. P. Yerkes and W. H. Yerkes.

PLAN ARRANGE FOR SPECIAL CARS.

Residents of Michigan living along the banks of the D. U. R. can make arrangements with the railway officials for special cars to Detroit to be connected with the big steamer, Put-in-Bay of the Ashley & Dutton line, or coming at Put-in-Bay.

The steamer Put-in-Bay leaves Detroit only from the First street wharf at 4 o'clock, Detroit city times. The steamer arrives at Put-in-Bay at noon and at Sandusky at 2 o'clock. It leaves at 6 o'clock at Put-in-Bay at 4 o'clock and arrives back in Detroit at 8 o'clock in the evening.

Free dancing may be enjoyed aboard the steamer and opportunity afforded to obtain food through a cafeteria and two lunch rooms. The steamer has been in daily service since June 19.

STATE MINISTERS GATHER FOR RURAL CONFERENCE.

Ministers from all parts of Michigan representing many different denominations, are gathering at East Lansing this week for the big conference which is being held in connection with the M. A. C. summer school. The conference runs from July 6th until July 16th.

Work of the meeting is being handled under the supervision of Warren H. Wilson, Church and Country Life director, New York City, who is cooperating with the several denominations in the state and with the Agricultural College. More than two dozen special lecturers most of them of national reputation, will address the conference during its meetings.

The acute problems of rural communities are to be considered by the various speakers, an effort being made to get at the heart of conditions affecting rural life in the state. Special lectures on household affairs will be given by members of the Home Economics faculty at the college for women who attend the conference. Many are planning to accompany their husbands for the two weeks' outing on the M. A. C. campus.

C. H. Young, Dr. E. B. Cavell, R. M. Terrill, R. Harris and families, Mrs. Shannon, Miss Margaret Shannon, Miss Milliken and Leonard Young, Jr. of Detroit spent Monday at Bishop Lake near Brighton. The lake is owned by the Chaslen Farms.

Hawaiian Race Is Passing; Endeavor to Rehabilitate Themselves.

By DELEGATE J. KUHIO KALANIANA'OLE, Speech in Congress.

Some of the members of congress perhaps have the impression that Hawaii is foreign territory, not only in its institutions but also its people, somewhat in the same category as Porto Rico and the Philippines. Far from it, gentlemen, Hawaii came into the fold of this country not by conquest but by a treaty of annexation approved and ratified by both this country and the government of Hawaii. By that treaty Hawaii was made a full-fledged territory of the United States.

For 60 years prior to annexation Hawaii had a constitutional form of government, recognized by all the great powers of the world. The system of government then was similar to that of this country. The American influence coupled with the natural love of liberty and justice among the Hawaiians brought about a system that needed very little adjustment in order to become an American territory.

The Hawaiian race is passing. And if conditions continue to exist as they do today, this splendid race of people, my people, will pass from the face of the earth.

This legislation seeks to place the Hawaiian back on the soil so that the valuable and sturdy traits of that race, peculiarly adapted to the islands, shall be preserved to posterity.

Perhaps we have a legal right, certainly we have a moral right, to ask that these lands be set aside. We are not asking that what you are to do be in the nature of a largesse or as a grant, but as a matter of justice—belated justice—and extend at least a helping hand, without cost to the government of the United States, to the Hawaiians in their endeavor to rehabilitate themselves.

It is a subject in comparison with which all others sink into insignificance, for our first and great duty is that of self-preservation. I feel a heavy and special responsibility resting upon me in this matter, but it is one in which you must share; nor shall we be acquitted by man or our Maker of a neglect of duty if we fail to act speedily and effectively in the cause of my people.

Farmers Are Not Being Driven From the Farm; They Are Deserting.

By A. R. MARSH, Editor Economic World.

The migration from the farm to the city is the chief cause of the agricultural crisis which confronts us now. It is true that the drift from the farm to the city has been going on for at least 100 years and that in our own country it was particularly strong between 1880 and 1896.

But the meaning of the present drift is different. During the decade of 1880-1890, for instance, farm machinery developed with great rapidity. The use of the tractor, the combine, the plow, the reaper, the mowing machine, their maximum acceleration. Our farmers found that they could do the same and more work with less hands, and the farmers' sons, as well as the hired farm help, left for the city, where they were absorbed into industry and trade. That was a natural and beneficial process.

What is taking place now is quite different. The tractor is replacing a considerable amount of labor in the earlier stages of crop production. But the effects on general farm production have so far been very moderate and will remain so for some time. No other invention has come into agriculture or is in sight which can be expected to increase the productivity of farm labor in the same manner as the mechanical inventions of former days. Those who leave the farm today do so not because there is not enough work for them but because in their opinion, there is too much. They are not being driven from the farm, they are deserting.

Responsibility of English-Speaking Peoples for World Co-operation.

By SIR OLIVER LODGE, British Scientist.

America and England have one great big job to do together—abolish war and prevent uncivilized nations from ever again plunging the world into chaos. To me the war seems to have been wholly evil. There are few benefits today from it.

But the powers of good may seize some good out of it and build toward a better world. The spirit of co-operation between the nations was one thing that can now be roused to good. The responsibility of working out this co-operation among the nations rests largely with the English-speaking peoples.

Reduction of armaments should be made by agreement. We need a police force to keep mischievous nations within the law.

As in this country there are certain pernicious journalists in England trying to stir up bad blood between America and Great Britain. This, however, is far from the general trend or feeling.

Our two countries have several big problems in common. And they must be worked out together.

To Make a Healthy City More Healthy by Making War on "Overfatness."

By DR. JOHN D. ROBERTSON, Chicago Health Commissioner.

In the opinion of the commissioner of health and his associates the time has come when this department must reach out into a bigger and broader field than ever before, and that is the field of personal hygiene.

There are thousands of men and women in the city of Chicago who are overfat and who are carrying from ten to one hundred pounds more than they should be carrying. The department of health wants to help these people to regulate their diet and their exercise so that their weight may be brought back to what, for them, is normal.

We believe it is our duty to direct the general public along these lines, just as much as it is to look after the undernourished children.

The framers of the Constitution of the United States were imbued with the idea that the chief aim of government was to guarantee to citizens life, liberty, and an opportunity for the pursuit of happiness.

UNIFORM GRADES ARE PROFITABLE

Lead to Mutual Understanding and Confidence Between Farmers and Buyers.

EXPERT ADVICE ON SUBJECT

War-Time Potato Regulations Proved Merits of Standard Grades—Bureau of Markets to Recommend Classifications.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture)

If an expert conclusively demonstrated a method to you whereby you could increase the profits from your business 10, 20 or 50 per cent, would you throw him out of the house? Or would you embrace him as did a group of Michigan potato growers when the bureau of markets, United States department of agriculture, offered suggestions—expert advice—regarding the formation of a potato growers' exchange and the business methods that the exchange should use?

Today the potato growers concerned are very glad they adopted the latter course. For in less than a first-class shape, the farmer loses confidence in the buyer and regards him as dishonest.

To Eliminate Distrust. These are conditions that should not exist, and the bureau of markets has set about in a very practical way to help eliminate them. It maintains that in the marketing of produce there should be a common and uniform basis of understanding. The various kinds of marketing produce should be known by grades and the specifications for any particular grade should be the same everywhere. For example, potatoes of No. 2 grade should be No. 2 potatoes throughout the entire country and not No. 1 grade in certain sections. And if the farmer agrees to ship No. 2 potatoes they should conform to the specifications for that grade. By eliminating the confusion resulting from a particular grade of produce having one meaning to the farmer and another to the buyer, a foundation of mutual understanding is established.

That the use of standard grades is readily appreciated by producers and buyers alike, was evidenced during the war, when the food administration required, licensed dealers to use potato grades recommended by the bureau of markets. The results were so satisfactory that when the regulation was canceled the use of potato grades, to a large extent, was continued voluntarily.

The bureau of markets has recommended grades for potatoes, Bermuda and northern grown onions, strawber-year a time it placed in their pockets more than a quarter of a million dollars over what they would have had otherwise.

There is no dark secret about how this was accomplished. In fact, the achievement can be duplicated by others. Although, to be sure, the success of the Michigan potato growers was due largely to the cooperative feature of the enterprise, an individual may secure a proportionate result by applying the same business principles in marketing his farm products.

The fundamental principle that has animated the bureau of markets in its work is that distribution of farm products requires mutual understanding and confidence between producer and buyer. If a farmer states that he has shipped to market a carload of high-grade produce which upon arrival is found to be of inferior quality naturally, the purchaser questions the farmer's integrity and does not depend upon his word in the future. On the other hand, should a buyer allege that produce was received in bad condition when as a matter of fact, it was in ries and rice. It has established grades for wheat, corn, oats and cotton. In the near future it expects to recommend grades for hay and other produce. It has recently prepared tentative wool grades with a view ultimately to recommending standard grades of that commodity. A complete classification of cattle, calves, hogs, sheep and goats has been adopted by the bureau for use in reporting live stock market prices. A similar classification is in use for reporting wool sale quotations. Consideration is also being given the question of having representative demonstrators United States grain grades to European countries for the purpose of familiarizing dealers there with the standards upon which international transactions with the United States should be based.

Hay Producers Feel Need

In the matter of hay farmers admit that the marketing of this commodity is a hazardous undertaking because of the possibility of loss due to uneven drying, lack of inspection, variations in grades in different markets, differences in the manner in which rules for grading are interpreted and because of sharp practices. In fact many farmers have stated that nine tenths of the losses in the hay business are due to lack of standard grades and a uniform, impartial inspection service. Not only does the use of standard grades result in better understanding and confidence between producers and buyers, but in greater satisfaction because of increased monetary returns. Farmers everywhere are urged to conduct their business of marketing upon the sound business principle advocated by the bureau of markets. The bureau will be glad to advise anyone desiring the various grades it recommends.

WAYS OF PROTECTING ANIMALS FROM FLIES

Covering With Burlap Is One Effective Plan.

Leather Nets or Strips Attached to Horse's Bridle Aids in Keeping Pest Away From Work Stock—Darkened Stable Good.

The importance of taking steps to prevent the breeding of stable flies rather than depending on protection of the stock when the flies are full-grown cannot be emphasized too much. However, where this is not done the farmer is forced to resort to various means of warding off the flies.

Work animals may be protected largely from the pest by means of coverings. One type of covering which has been found to be very effective and inexpensive consists of a blanket made of double thickness of burlap, so arranged as to cover completely the back, sides, and neck of the animal. The legs also are covered sometimes by means of old trousers, slipped over the feet and tied over the back. Leather nets or strips of leather attached to the bridle also aid in keeping the flies from the head. Completely darkened stables offer much protection from the flies, although the resulting lack of ventilation is objectionable. The thorough screening of all windows and doors is much more desirable. When screened barns are used care should be taken to brush the flies from the animals, when they are about to enter, by means of nets over the doorway or with sacks. Little can be done to protect range stock from the flies.

On box farms a freshly plowed trench offers considerable protection to the swine. The sides of these trenches may be smeared with petroleum, which rubs off on the animals and acts as a repellent. The trench may be used also for protecting sheep, but the petroleum in their case is unnecessary.

Apron and Frock

Designs Effectively Carried Out in English Prints.

When White Organdie Fichu Is Used the Ends Are Tucked Under the Band.

Any number of pretty, flowered voile frocks have real aprons of organdie, the strings of which form a sash. Some of these have fichu as well as aprons. Such designs are most effective, observes a fashion writer, when carried out in the fresh, crisp looking English prints of small design. The aprons are not at all like the panel skirts which have, come to be known as apron skirts. They are real aprons, just like a maid's apron, with big strings tying at the back. When a white organdie fichu is used the ends are tucked under the apron band. Sometimes, when the apron is not used, the fichu crosses at the waistline and continues to form a big sash in the back.

A shade of blue chambray known as blue bonnet blue and which is somewhat darker than a French blue, makes very pretty morning dresses for the country. With some white linen and rickrack braid to be used as trimming, very pretty designs may be easily worked out.

A pleasing way of making such a frock is to cut it with a long waist portion hanging loose like a smock and attach to it a straight little skirt. A loose panel gathered with a heading may be placed at either side, the panels, heading and all, edged with the rickrack braid and the frock finished with white linen. These blue chambray dresses are very pretty made with frilled white organdie aprons.

CASSOCK GOWN THAT APPEALS

Above is a stunning cassock gown in orange linen over plaid skirt of cream pongee. The overdress is elaborately embroidered.

Flowers for Decorations. Flowers trim costumes, head dresses and hats.

DAISIES USED AS TRIMMING

The daisy trimmed straw chapeau—a hat finished at the edges with lattice daisies is one of the latest Parisian fashions.

USE TOUCHES OF EMBROIDERY

New Summer Frocks Are Handsomely Embellished With Charming and Modish Decoration.

So many of the new summer frocks show touches of embroidery that I am going to tell you about them, and perhaps you will find something you care about, writes a fashion correspondent. A sheer linen frock which will suit the slender girl has a deep collar, one would almost say a bertha, and the skirt draperies, both soft and graceful, curve in scallops of blue linen, often marked with small blue flowers, which are embroidered in wash silk. Behind this demure frock flares a large bow.

Sheer navy blue linen is another charming frock, which is pierced throughout with dark blue eyelets, for eyelets are now constantly recurring in the mode.

A wonderful evening gown which is very striking and vivid is one of shot green and gold tissue. The delicate sheen of it is enhanced by big palm leaves of embroidery on bodice and skirt and underneath the frills of drapery and the side. The reverse side of the fabric shows a gleam of solid green. It has a lace underskirt, which is of needle lace net. On this frock, too, the floral garniture plays an important part.

The spoils of ancient Egypt have been garnered for the adornment of the twentieth century woman. An evening frock made of peacock velvet has a quaintly plaited skirt that lifts a fringe in front, with an inverted scalloped showing a lining of gold tissue shot with blue. It has a typically Egyptian garb of gold tissue embroidered with the characteristic peacock plumage colorings, gold, tawny bronze and vivid blues and greens find acceptance. A tulle drapery of pale smoky blue floats from the shoulders and veils the wearer's arms.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

White gabardine is much liked. Dancing frocks are still short. There is much use of dyed lace. Coat dresses are of black taffeta. Spanish combs of jade are charming.

One of the popular fancies of the season is the development of reversible capes.

A new evening frock shows a straight transparent tunic trimmed with deep tucks and flower-caught bows.

Many of the gowns are cut in empire style and feature white net covered with beading in contrast with tiny crystals.

Presence of Organdie Hats

At Least One Piece of This Charming Headgear Is Regarded Necessary by All Women.

Organdie hats are just now diverse and beautiful. A few seasons ago they popped into the horizon as a possibility and were given more or less passing and amused attention, but now everybody is doing at least one organdie hat. It is a hat to lead women astray and to lure from their pocketbooks much more money than they had planned to let slip away in that direction. For such hats are apt to be so becoming that in spite of the fact that they are perishable in the extreme, they are irresistible.

In pastel shades and colorings these organdie hats have reached their highest development. The violets and pinks and yellows are fascinating. Often they are trimmed with nothing at all, but are so constructed and shaped that their rolling brims and their softly folded crowns take care of the whole duty of a hat. Then there are some which are trimmed with big splashing bows of the same material. Others are done with fluted bows to chime in with the frocks which the hats are designed to accompany. One of these organdie hats was made of white and was trimmed with a large and sweeping bow of wide black velvet ribbon across the front. One could picture it worn with the whitest of white dresses made also of the crisp white organdie material. Another organdie hat had a band of purple tulle ribbon wound closely about the base of the draped crown of mauve. Another had a basket of fresh and modern roses embroidered on the front of a draped pink organdie crown. They are done in all manners—these transparent hats of summer—and each one is so charming.

To Launder Worn Curtains.

Darn all holes by placing tissue paper underneath, then sew closely on sewing machine. Make a suds hat as can be borne on the hands. Fold the curtain flat, small enough to go through the wringer. Work carefully with the hands, press through wringer. If much soiled use another suds, rinse and starch without unfolding, using wringer for each. Spread sheets on a carpet and pin. Carefully unfold curtains, spread out perfectly true and even, then pull out each scallop; the wet curtain will adhere to the sheet without planing and when dry will hang as true as if stretched on a frame.

Like Silk Ruches.

Silk ruches as well as those of organdie are used to trim the popular summer wrap of silk. There are fetching little taffeta capes that drape about the shoulders and end just below the waistline. These are topped by puffy ruchings of the silk.

Practical House Dress.

A practical house dress that is easily laundered is cut in one piece with elbow-length kimono sleeves and is laced down the front.

LEGENDS OF OLD-BELGIUM

Valley of the Meuse in Belgium.

ASKED to pluck the prettiest flowers of our Belgian folklore, I stand blinded and hesitate. What shall I choose in this bouquet, over rich in its mingling of brilliant colors and tender hues? Shall it be pearls of sacred mistletoe fallen beneath the Druid's knife; hilles grown in the shadow of convents and monasteries; roses reddened with the blood of tournaments and the carnage of battle; or, perchance, pale daisies of the fields sprung up unheeded amid the cow pasture? All equally are precious, writes Louis Lagasse de Lecht in the London Times. "Daughters of a fertile land, scared in the course of ages by storms let loose from the four corners of the earth, are they not the expression, the poetry, the sap of love and hate, the very soul, in a word, of a people fashioned by marital blows and bathed in the sunshine of idealism?"

Every Belgian is thrilled by the past. It is his staff and brand of life. Hence his love of carnivals, joyous entries and processions, the ever recurring delight of most of our villages. Great taste is often displayed in the ordering of these parades. In the building of the triumph—to which Rubens and Jordans did not seem to devote their talent. And it is as if the figures of legend and history which descend through the streets had stepped down from the canvas of old masterpieces to be closer to the carriages of the crowds.

Sometimes the ceremony represents but an episode, a scene of chivalry or of mystery from the middle ages. In Bruges, suddenly awakened from its melancholy miracle of the holy blood, the triumphal escort of a prince consecrated to the conquest of the holy land moves in a rolling stream of glistening steel amid the glamor of rich silks and precious brocades, the clashing of arms and the embrazened peal of trumpets.

Supreme Drama of All Time.

At Furnes, on the last Sunday in July, the procession of "penitents" reenacts the supreme drama of all time. For weeks the city prepares for it. The actors' parts are more coveted than public honors; some are jealously guarded as hereditary rights. Through the dense crowd, pressing ever closer and closer, the revered figures pass in procession. And the Christ appears, weighted down by his cross, a living and staggering Christ, scourged till the blood runs from him. A shiver of religious fervor passes over the faithful. "Mercy!" a penitent cries aloud in pain. Every window is a garden of tapers, candles and lights whose flames flicker in the wind blowing from the sea. Sacred chants mingle with the piping of reeds, the noise of rattles and the winding of horns. The crowd sobs and sways and wrings its hands and falls into prayer as, following the Crucified one, the penitents pass. The men in sackcloth and the women closely veiled do penance, and their naked, torn feet bleed on the stones of the road. Perchance beneath their cloaks of burlap noble ladies, whose flaxen hair and white bodies are the love treasures of this sensual and mystic Flanders, are paying the ransom of a kiss!

Mons, the home of the guardian saint of the British army, is the theater every year of the famous Lumec display which ends the procession of Ste. Waudru. At midday to the tolling of the great bell, otherwise heard only as a war alarm, St. George gives battle to the dragon. After a deadly combat, the dragon, according to rite, crushes down in the dust, shot through the nostrils, and the devil are chastised by the brave followers of the victorious knight. Before entering the lists the fabled "beast" slays the crowd with mighty blows of his tail. The people of Mons believe that a blow from the tail brings good luck. What matter if it hurts! On occasion both municipal officials and clergy take part in the festivities, and frequently our ancient customs put them to uncouth tests. Each year a procession leaves Grammont and goes to the Oudenberg. Fringers are said in public, after which loaves and fishes are distributed to the crowd, and the barginmaster offers the priest a silver loving cup filled with white wine in which tiny minnows are swimming. A very fine, a grave and the career of a little fish ends in the pastoral stomach. And so it goes till every notable and every minnow has faced the same ordeal. At nightfall huge bonfires upon the surrounding hillsides light up the countryside. This said that these customs date back to the worship of Ceres.

"Three Centured Ladies."

The story of the warlike virtues and tragic deaths of the "three centured ladies" is another jewel of Meuse folklore. In 1354 Bouvignes is furiously attacked by the king of France. The town is taken, but the valiant citadel of Grevecoeur still holds out. Assault after assault is repulsed. Alas, the defenders are now a bare hundred, including old men, women and children, then fifty, then ten—at last three young and beautiful women. "The Ladies of Grevecoeur" still hold out desperately. They are about to be taken. Rather than serve at a king's feast, they climb to the topmost ramparts and entwining their arms throw themselves into the Meuse, forevermore the gentle guardian of their womanly honor. Until this day the stream continues to weave its liquid blue shroud over their white bodies.

Doubtless the folklore of Flanders differs from the Walloon traditions and customs. The latter are light and gay, the former rich in color and full of quaint beliefs. The Flemish ceremonies begin by prayer and the solemn warnings of priests who thunder from their pulpits. "Hell, mind ye, opens beneath the feet of blond maidens who trip the merry dance; beware for misfortune will surely visit the stable and weigh upon the head of the brawny yeoman too easily tempted by foaming beer and the smiles of women." But the last words of the priestly warning have scarce died away before the festive board creaks beneath the good things of this earth, and ardent youth feels that it lives. As evening falls on the gay Sundays of August, ribald songs and old-time dances end these village fetes worthy of a Rubens or a Teniers.

WHITTLING OUT OF FASHION

Decline of "Ancient and Honorable Pastime So Marked as to Have Been Noted."

Come to think of it, there is some truth in the statement that whittling is a lazy or tired man's pastime, is going out of existence. A storekeeper says: "I used to see a box out in front of the store for the boys to set on, and the next day they'd be nothing left of the box 'ceptin' a lot of whittled littered like around the sidewalk. But now a box will last just about all summer. No, whittling ain't what it were!" At a railway station the agent remarked that whereas a waiting-room bench had a shorter life in the older days than a two-bit harmonica, the present benches in the men's waiting room over which he had jurisdiction had lasted well on to 18 months. And at post office, blacksmith shop, livery stable and elsewhere the crowd no longer amuses itself with knife and soft wood. Perhaps men are too busy. The storekeeper referred to above has another theory. He says: "They're too cussed lazy today to whittle their jack knives."—Exchange.

Fads And Fancies Of Fashion

THIN FROCKS FILL THE STREETS.

THE shop windows and the streets are furnishing a panorama of efflicting things for midsummer wear, with dresses of sheer cotton fabrics the outstanding item in the display. Women have returned to fine and practical fabrics and are using the simpler methods for decorating them, as tucks, frills, ribbon borders and narrow lingerie lace. For the street, voile is in the lead, either plain or figured, embroidered or printed. Chiffon tatters is its closest rival and is often made up with georgette crepe. Georgette also receives a touch and makes it mid-summerish by supplying satin frocks with sleeves, tunic or other details in their composition that make them look cool.

For dressier frocks organdy and voile are both used and St. Gall swishes with embroidered dots are reappearing at prices that are somewhat lower than they were earlier in the season. Wide tucks are in great favor in voile and on organdy dresses, while frills seem the natural order of things for both styles and organdy. The latter material is much used for collars, cuffs, bands, sashes, flasks and frills on dresses of other materials.

In the picture above there is a happy nursery and break his wooden dress of white organdy at the left and one of China blue voile at the right. The organdy dress, worn by Irene Castle will help to uphold that talented lady's enviable taste in the selection of clothes. Frills of lace make the medallions and other trimming in the skirt and rows of the same lace form the deep cuff. The long sleeves and collar high at the back are late innovations in summer styles. A wide tuck headed by a frill of lace calls attention to the distended hip line and even the crushed giraffe is of organdy with a little frill of lace running along the center of it. The slender type will do well to study this dress. The pretty dress of plain voile at the right has a skirt covered by tucks of narrow, scant flounces and a plain short sleeved bodice, ending in two ruffles at the natural waist line. What makes this simple affair so chic is the ribbon that borders all edges. It is cleverly managed, showing the borders of the flounces fluted with loops and ends on alternating flounces, at both sides, small bows on the sleeves and in the back at the end of the shirring about the waist line. It suits its youthful wearer and is calculated to make her toy author boy leave his heart when she discards him.

THE SUMMER HOSTESS

SUMMER vacations bring visits and return courtesies to the members of nearly every family, with their responsibilities resting on "the lady of the house." In these servientless days the problem of entertaining without being overburdened is going to test the abilities of many a hostess whose strength hardly matches her hospitality and her ambition to make guests have a good time. There are hardly any rules that can be laid down which will insure so desirable a result, but one thing is certain: the thought that a hostess is overtaxed and worried will spoil the visit of any intelligent guest. Therefore in the circumstances it is best to plan things that will keep one's visitors in the open and allow them to amuse themselves as much as possible.

Week-end house parties are about the pleasantest events that our summers record on memories that like to dwell upon them. They are recommended to the mother who wants to entertain for her young people. One can fill two or three days with happy times for youths and maidens, especially if there is a river, lake or the sea within easy reaching distance. Water sports, fishing, beach parties, picnics, an hikes take care of the days. Camp fires, story telling, dancing and traditions are recommended, for evenings. Both the girls and boys are just as happy when they are required to make themselves useful about the house in the morning as when they have no tasks. The hostess, entertaining a house party of young folks, should provide them with a substantial breakfast and if she has no help, let them assist with straightening up the house. A picnic lunch for the middle of the day is the best way of disposing of lunch, and a hearty dinner, rather early in the evening, makes way for three or four hours for pastime afterward.

A wide porch and a graphophone are the best of aids to entertaining. Youthful guests will spend a good bit of letting alone, for like children they are easily amused, for a short time. Costume dances and parties provide a lot of fun and of these the Japanese and Indian parties require little in the way of preparation. Expeditions into the woods for flowers, entire town and city-bred guests and everyone enjoys boating, singing and dancing.

Stripes Supersede Plaids

Just at present there is a decided leaning to striped fabrics as against plaids; but fashion changes are so frequent that no one can say from day to day what the major demand will be. Striped skirts are now active rivals of the big gay plaids that have held the center of the stage for so long, and both hair-line and the wider and more conspicuous stripes are featured. Knife plaiting is also being accorded a great deal of favor, as against the accordion plaiting, because only an expert can replait the accordion plaited models once they are out of shape, and the process is an expensive one.

Take Care of Your Shoes.

By the exercise of a little care, says the Thrift Magazine, the life of leather shoes may be considerably prolonged. It is a well-known fact that if a wet shoe is placed too close to a fire, the interior of the sole is sometimes utterly ruined before the surface of the leather shows appreciable signs of injury. Wet shoes should be dried slowly and shoe trees inserted to prevent their losing shape and becoming uncomfortable. It is economy to keep at least two pairs of shoes, wearing them in rotation. Some shoe manufacturers claim that two pairs of shoes worn alternately will outwear three pairs of shoes worn consecutively.

Home Town Helps

POINT FOR HOME BUILDERS

Value of House is Greatly Enhanced by the Presence of Trees and Shrubbery.

If at all possible, say specialists of the United States department of agriculture, the house should be located near good trees, the shade of which may be used and enjoyed by the family every day during the summer. It takes so long to grow good trees that those already available should be cherished and utilized to the fullest extent.

Another thing that should be carefully considered is outlook. The house should be located so that the windows of the rooms most used look out upon attractive views. The living-room and the kitchen are entitled to first consideration in this matter. The near view should be over an unbroken lawn, and there should be some object of interest beyond. If there is in the general landscape a mountain, a water view, a woodland, a meadow, an extended farm view, or even a handsome tree, use it as an inspiring picture, framed by the window for the family through the years. It may mean the difference between a sordid life and an inspired life for the children who are brought up under its influence. At any rate, it will mean active pleasure of quiet consolation to the wife amid the daily cares of the household. If all these natural objects are lacking, possibly some feature may be created on the place, such as an attractive group of shrubs so placed and arranged as to have something of interest every month in the year.

CLEAN UP UNSIGHTLY SPOTS

Rubbish Piles Are Very Much Out of Place in Any City of High Aspirations.

In the good old days before we got so absorbed in running the universe and contemplating the cost of living we used to pay more attention to such homely matters as cleaning the streets and tidying up the yards, remarks the Kansas City Star. Dr. E. H. Bullock, health director, has called attention to our deficiencies in his appeal for a cleanup.

Of course premises ought to be kept tidy all the time. There is no excuse for accumulating piles of ashes and tin cans, etc., in this war world when things are so tight for food. That being the case, it is better to clean up spots and fall than never to clean up at all.

Most persons who get about town with regards to the general tidiness of yards. The average family takes pride in the appearance of a well kept lawn. But an occasional clacker may disgrace a whole block. One unkept place will nullify the efforts of the entire neighborhood.

Let's not be a black spot on the neighborhood map. Let's clean up!

Must Turn to Home Gardens.

With the winter wheat crop promising a yield of 248 million bushels less than last year and the government warning the public that nearly all of the old wheat now in stock is of inferior grade and of low milling quality, and indications pointing to reduced acreage of spring wheat, the country needs to be aroused quickly to the danger of an inadequate food supply. With new potatoes selling in Florida at $19 to $20 a barrel, or three times what was formerly considered a good price, we must once more turn to the home garden as an aid to the nation's food supply. And the sooner the country understands this situation and its danger the better it will be for us.—Manufacturers' Record.

Loop and Elevated Aerials.

An extensive research on radio transmission and reception with various types of aerials has been in progress at the bureau of standards, Washington, D. C., says the Scientific American. One of the most interesting questions at the present time is as to the relative advantages of the antenna, or usual type of elevated aerial, and the smaller coil aerial or "loop." This question is answered by the studies of the bureau. The small coil aerial has many advantages, but is usually not so powerful a transmitting and receiving device as the antenna type of aerial. It may, however, have so much lower resistance than the antenna that it is equal to it in transmitting and receiving value.

Resourceful Messenger.

A sentry, who was stationed at a certain gate with strict orders to admit no one, was approached by an Irishman. "Halt!" said the sentry. Mickey looked at him in surprise. "Faith, an' what am I to halt for?" he said. "No one is allowed in there," came the reply. "But sure I must go! I've a note for his 'anner the kumel." "Can't help it," said the sentry. "No one is allowed in there without a pass." "But I tell ye I must go in!" said Mickey. "Sure the gineral himself sent me." "Can't help you sent you," said the other; "you can't go in." "Well, then," came Mickey's reply, "give me the gun an' you take the risk an' we'll manage finely!"

When the boy next door told Isabel that the moon was made of green cheese, she asked her grandfather if it were so. "What do you think about it?" he asked. "Well, I'm pretty sure it's not true," she said. "What makes you think so?" "Because God made the moon before he made the cows."—Everybody's Magazine.

WHOLE FAMILY KILLED.

A distressing accident occurred three miles west of Wayne on Monday evening about six o'clock, when three people, father, mother and infant daughter, were killed by a D. U. R. car. The unfortunate victims were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Klein and little daughter of Belleville.

According to witnesses Mr. Klein brought his car to a stop as he neared the tracks and waited for one car to pass. When it shot by he started his machine forward and did not notice the second car approaching until the machine was between the rails. He attempted to back his car up, but before he could put it in reverse the car struck the auto and tore the body from the chassis. The wheels of the automobile became entangled with those of the interurban, forcing the heavy trolley car from the rails and onto the embankment.

The interurban was coming east toward Detroit and was crowded with passengers who had spent the day in the smaller towns along the line. Windows in the car were broken.

Mrs. Klein, when lifted from under the wreck, still was conscious. She was hurried to the Elcise hospital, where she died a few moments after being admitted. Her husband and baby are believed to have been killed instantly.

The gasoline tank caught in the wheels of the trolley and took fire directly following the derailment. Passengers hustled from the car, however, and the fire was extinguished before it had more than scorched the interurban.

OAKLAND MOTOR PLANT IS DAMAGED BY BLAZE.

Fire broke out Saturday in a tunnel connecting units of the Oakland Motor plant at Pontiac and did damage estimated at several thousand dollars but will not prevent the plant from running as usual. Difficulty was experienced in fighting the blaze, the firemen being compelled to don smoke masks in order to go into the tunnel. Stock in the store rooms was damaged and a large number of parts in the enameling room scorched. The cause of the blaze is undetermined.

PLYMOUTH DETACHMENT SEIZES STILL.

Troopers Schrader, Stribner and Birch of the Plymouth detachment of State Police, observed suspicious circumstances in connection with an old farmhouse near that place and a search warrant was sworn out by Trooper Schrader. The troopers had noticed that two foreigners occupied the place and that one of them came and went all hours of the day and night. When they made their raid there was no one at home but they forced an entrance and found a big distilling plant. There were two complete stills and parts for another one. Four hundred gallons of mash were fermenting and there were fifteen gallons of the "moonshine" ready for sale. Hiding in the shrubbery, the troopers waited for the occupants of the place to come home. John Churchill and Nick Trelog were arrested as they drove in and examination brought a confession from them that they had been making moonshine whiskey since last October. When arraigned before Judge Patterson of Plymouth, they pleaded guilty and were bound over to the circuit court with $1,000 bond—State Trooper.

R. C. K. OFFICIAL DIES.

George A. Chapman assistant general claims agent of the Detroit United railway died at his home 220 Seward avenue, Tuesday after an illness of one week.

Mr. Chapman was born in 1872 and was a graduate from the University of Michigan. For a time he was private secretary to the late Congressman Henry Smith of Adrian. He practiced law at Hudson, Mich., for five years and in 1908 became connected with the C. H. & D. railway at Dayton, O., later being connected with the Pere Marquette, with headquarters at Saginaw, Mich. He joined the D. U. R. August 1, 1916, in the claims department.

FIRST ARREST MADE.

Traffic Officer Lyke made his first arrest under Northville's new automobile ordinance Wednesday evening when he gathered in Walter J. Bartell for speeding. He was arraigned before Justice Ambler on Thursday morning and paid a fine of $5.00. Bartell has done a lot of speeding about the streets of Northville and it is not at all surprising that he was the first one to be "picked up."

Others who are inclined to use the streets for a speeding course will do well to take warning.

Major Robert E. Marsh Appoints Men Who Have Earned Their Rank

June 13, Major Roy C. Vandercook, who organized the Michigan State Police, gave up his place of command and was succeeded by Major Robert E. Marsh, formerly captain in charge of the upper peninsula troop. It had originally been intended that this change should take place May 1, but various matters of duty—including the conduct of the Brown murder case at Mt. Clemens—caused the former commander to retain his post longer than he had planned.

June 16, Robert E. Marsh took command of the Michigan State Police and at that time the new disposition and assignment of officers and troops was announced. The force under Major Marsh consists of the headquarters troop at East Lansing and four field troops with headquarters at Negaunee, Grand Rapids, Flint and Traverse City.

Captain F. W. High is in command of the headquarters troop and in charge of the school. Lieutenant William Davey is quartermaster. Connected with the headquarters troop is the Hudson detachment.

Captain A. A. Downing is in charge of Troop 1. Detachments are located at Trout Lake, Rock, Hamletville, Alfred, Iron River, Bessemer, Rockland and Manistique.

Captain Ralph G. Strope is in command of Troop 2 at Grand Rapids, with patrols covering the surrounding section.

Lieutenants Caesar Scavarda and I. H. Marmion are in command of Troop 3, the former having charge of the Flint and Saginaw detachments and the latter the detachments at Plymouth, Rockwood, Rochester and Ionia City.

Captain Wakeman is in command of Troop 4, with Lieutenant John Fagan as second in command. Detachments are located at Gaylord, Pellston and Honor.

The new commander finds himself at the head of a staff of officers who are trained military men as well as being men who have distinguished themselves in the state police service. Some have been in the regular army, others in the National Guard and regular army, and others in the national guard.

The fact that promotions have been made from the ranks and that officers have won their way to the top by their own ability, has done much to increase the spirit and morale of the force, and the new leaders have given as incentive to those below them in rank to seek promotion by the same means. As long as the remuneration of the officers of the state police is lower than what they might expect to earn in civil life, there will be changes in the service from time to time and the men in the ranks can look forward to securing commissions later as they earn them by bravery and ability to do their duty well and intelligently.

Major Robert E. Marsh is a National Guard veteran, having served under Major Vandercook in the old days in the Lansing battery. His service in the state police has brought out qualities of leadership which made him the logical successor to Major Vandercook as well as having the natural preference through seniority. When the first command of the state police was decided to return to newspaper work, Governor Albert E. Sleeper announced the appointment of Captain Marsh to fill the vacancy.

It will be recalled that Captain Marsh suffered a severe wound in the course of duty last year, when he was shot in the neck by a whiskey runner near Crystal Falls. He has almost entirely recovered from this injury.

Below are brief biographies of other officers of the force.

CAPT. CHARLES E. WAKEMAN, now in command of the Traverse City detachment, enlisted in the State Police early in June 1917. He was first a sergeant in the Fourth Troop under Capt. Koch, served during the winter of 1917 at Detroit, was promoted to lieutenant in 1918 and shortly after he was detailed to take the Dundee detachment. He served with the Second Troop at Flint for a time and was later transferred to the Grand Rapids District. After serving as district commander he was promoted to captain, May 1, 1920, and given command of the Fourth Troop and sent to Traverse City to establish the post in that region.

CAPT. ARCHIE A. DOWNING, enlisted in the Michigan State Police as a trooper June 17, 1917. After ten days' training at the post he was sent to the upper peninsula on strike duty. He has been in the upper peninsula ever since, with the exception of the period during which he served in the U. S. army. He returned to the Michigan State Police December 22, 1918. He has figured in many raids on W. W. and radicals, and will be remembered for his record-breaking ride from Bessemer to Iron River, over an untraveled road, covering the distance of 94 miles in 33 hours. He was in charge of a raid at Iron Mountain recently which netted 4,000 gallons of liquor.

CAPT. RALPH G. STROPE was a member of the Michigan National Guard and served under Col. R. C. Vandercook and Capt. Robert E. Marsh in Battery A, Michigan National Guard from May 7, 1914 to May 7, 1917. He was called into federal service July 15, 1917, with the Michigan National Guard. On October 31, 1917, he was commissioned second lieutenant in field artillery and served overseas with the 119th F. A., 32d Division. He saw service on the Alsace-Lorraine front and also the Toul front. He was commissioned first lieutenant, F. A., in August after he returned as an instructor to the United States, commanding Battery D, 35d F. A., from September 3, 1918 to December 13, 1918. He enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 7, 1919, working his way up to the rank of captain. Capt. Strope has been active in stopping the liquor traffic along the southern border, and he is now in charge of the western district, with headquarters at Grand Rapids.

CAPT. F. W. HIGH is a veteran of the command. He is a veterinary surgeon by profession and has taken particular charge of the mounts of the command and of supplies and equipment in connection therewith, and also of stabling and general care of horses. However, Capt. High has also taken a part in the field work of the State Police and has been present when some important raids were made. He was with Capt. Marsh and Lieut. Vandercook the night that Capt. Marsh was shot by a bootlegger near Crystal Falls.

LIEUT. JOHN FAGAN enlisted as a trooper in the Michigan State Police April 19, 1917. The following October found him a corporal and in January he was made a sergeant. He resigned from the force early in 1918 to enter the army and after service overseas, he returned in July 1919. He re-enlisted in the State Police on August 1, 1919 as a corporal and was made a sergeant in October of that year. He was promoted to lieutenant, May 1, 1920, and has served during his entire career with the command in the upper peninsula.

During his service abroad Lieut. Fagan became engaged to a French girl and they were recently married in New York.

LIEUT. CAESAR J. SCAVARDA has won his way up from the ranks by personality, nerve and exceptional ability. He has been stationed in the upper peninsula and is known from one end to the other of that district as being absolutely fearless and as being of the type that always gets his man. His service has been excellent throughout and he has made many excellent arrests and shown good judgment in varying situations.

LIEUT. I. H. MARMION enlisted in the Michigan State Police July 17, 1917, and was entrusted with important guard duty during the war at plants making munitions and supplies for the army. Afterward he spent four months in the Ohio border patrol during the time that whiskey smugglers were most active. He was placed in charge of the investigation bureau at East Lansing May 1, 1919, and has been in charge of plain-clothes work for the department since. Previous to his service with the state police Lieut. Marmion was in the service of the United States government and the state of Mississippi in connection with civil engineering work and surveys.

LIEUT. WILLIAM DAVEY has been attached to the headquarters troop at East Lansing and is familiar with the office work and business management of the force. He is now quartermaster in charge of purchases and supplies.

Several additional officers will be appointed as the need arises. The force is now considerably below maximum strength and will be recruited during the summer. The pay the State Police is $85 per month, recruits, with increases in time to $70 and $75 per state, furnishing uniform and food.

PREFERS INDEPENDENCE TO HIGH POSITION

The Democratic party of the Philippines will join the Nationalists which is now in power, in the for immediate independence. Philippine Senator Teodoro R. only member of the Democratic in the Philippine senate, said in a speech at a luncheon at Manila.

Hon. Sergio Osmeña, noted Filipino leader, who stated he would prefer to be humblest citizen under independence than leader under another country.

mean that all political parties in the Philippines are united for independence.

The luncheon was given for members of both houses of the Philippine legislature by former Senator Gabaldon, recently chosen resident commissioner at Washington.

Sergio Osmeña, speaker of the Philippine house of representatives and head of the dominant Nacionalista party, who was recently termed "the greatest Filipino since Rizal," addressing the gathering, said:

"We urge upon you in your capacity of resident commissioner to the United States to tell Congress and the people of that noble country that we who are gathered here today would prefer to be the lowest and humblest citizens of the Philippines with independence in our hands than the leaders that we now are in our country under the tutelage of another country."

URGE EXAMPLE OF SELF-DETERMINATION

That friends of Irish independence in the American Congress could make a more effective impression on Great Britain by granting Philippine independence than by merely expressing sympathy with Irish aspirations is the suggestion contained in a statement issued by the Philippine Press Bureau at Washington, D. C.

"Twice in a period of nine months," reads the statement, "the United States Senate went on record as being in sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of their own choice."

"Still another way for the friends of Irish independence in the American Congress to make an impressive argument would be to grant the independence that the 10,500,000 inhabitants of the Philippines have repeatedly demanded. America's own representatives in the islands have officially reported they are ready for independence and have recommended that such independence be granted."

"We submit that the granting of Philippine independence would be likely to be accepted by Great Britain as even stronger proof of America's belief in self-determination than the passage of the Irish resolutions, because Great Britain's counselors of state could not then successfully make the point that the American Congress is asking Great Britain to do something the United States itself has been asked to do and has not done."

"The Filipino people have confidence in the word of America and hope that now that the Senate has reiterated its sympathy with the principle of self-determination it will give Great Britain and the other powers of the world a concrete example of consistency and good faith by granting Philippine independence."

YOUNG FILIPINO WON FRENCH WAR CROSS

Gregorio Cailles, a Filipino, recently returned to his Philippine home wearing a French uniform and a Croix de Guerre with palm. Cailles in December, 1916, arrived in France and enlisted as a private. He made an excellent record as a soldier. At one time when all the officers of his company had been killed, he took command and led the men in a charge. He was decorated for this act of bravery by the French Government.

What Would You Do Without Newspaper Advertisements?

What if there were no advertisements in any newspaper?

Lost and found articles might never be restored to their owners. Buying, selling and renting houses would be greatly delayed.

Merchants would be compelled to depend almost entirely upon those who passed by their stores for their trade.

Such a condition would set the hands of the clock of progress back two hundred years. It would limit trade. It would bring delays and annoyances and make purchasing risky and expensive.

This goes to show how important newspaper advertisements have become in our everyday affairs.

Read them fully and faithfully. It may mean many added advantages in your life and dollar in your pocketbook.

THE CLIFFORD FOOTE TRIO OPENS COMMUNITY CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

CLIFFORD FOOTE TRIO

The program given by this excellent organization, the Clifford Foote Trio, consists of songs and stories, rapid water color paintings, and original one-act plays. The company is composed of Clifford Foote, baritone and reader; Anna Ellis, dramatic soprano, and Gerald S. Pell, tenor and water-color artist. One of the many splendid features of their program is the group of Indian songs arranged and costumed by the Indian Princess Neowanna. The costumes used in these numbers are genuine and very elaborate, having been made under the personal supervision of the Princess. Another costumed number will be a group of Spanish songs presented in the dress of the old Castilians. The song, "The Yellow Violet," will also be presented in costume. This company will have special drops and stage settings, which will lend a distinctive atmosphere to the platform on the first day. While specializing in classic programs, this company of artists also presents lighter popular selections from such well known musical productions as "Maytime," "Oh Boy," and "Listen, Lester." Our Chautauqua patrons are assured of a varied, artistic and altogether pleasing entertainment on this day.

Brings "Country Cousin"

Tarkington Play to Chautauqua Patrons.

JEANNETTE KLING

Booth Tarkington, the beloved writer of real American life, and George C. Tyler, the big New York producer, have given Jeannette Kling special permission to present their great play, "The Country Cousin," before Community Chautauqua audiences. Miss Kling is a most human, sympathetic reader—one of the best on the Chautauqua platform today. She gives the entire play herself—playing every character—making each one a living, interesting, realistic personality. "The Country Cousin" is a quaint, lovable American comedy, admirably suited to Miss Kling's talent and is one of the biggest triumphs of her successful career. This versatile dramatic reader and her Tarkington comedy-drama will be one of the features on the second day of our Community Chautauqua.

THE "SNOWBIRD"

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

(Copyright, 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Rhoda Burt was disappointed and hurt. She had waited two hours for Taylor Bridges to call for her, as he had promised, to see him spin by the house in his sleigh and Maud Lester by his side. The smart was deep. She was not envious of the befringed and velveted Maud. She did not care enough for Bridges to experience any heartache, but a realization that she had been set aside because she was poor and humble subdued all other emotions.

Rhoda lived with her aged father, and they eked out a mere subsistence. Life was not very animated for the lonely girl. Taylor Bridges had been quite attentive to her of late, but she looked upon him as a hap-hazard escort of huckle nature.

There was superb skating on the river, and twice within a week she had accompanied Bridges to a spin along its smooth surface. Only two evenings before, he had managed to transfer her to a friend while he sought the company of a gay group of fashionable friends. Rhoda felt somewhat embarrassed among the well-dressed girls, for her own apparel was old, out of style.

There was one reminder of that last evening on the river, however, that caused her a pleasurable sensation. She was sitting alone resting on a fallen tree when Neal Arden approached and asked her company for a glide along the river. He was the son of the richest man in Ardmore, and had been absent at college for two years, and Rhoda fluttered as he alighted to their former school companionship. He was so pleasant and friendly that when he left her she felt as though she had passed through the most inspiring half hour of her life.

But of course, she reasoned, he would probably never think of her again, and had acted from an impulse of courtesy and thoughtfulness.

"Oh, dear!" sighed Rhoda. "I fancy I shall be more contented to stay at home until I can appear like other girls. However, the gentlemanly consideration of Neal Arden made up for the disappointment of the general situation."

There came a big snowstorm, followed by a cold snap. It was about nine o'clock the second evening of the spell. The wind was blowing a hurricane and the air was filled with stinging, blinding snow. When Rhoda, seated reading, was startled by a forlorn neighing sound at the window, and some heavy object grazed the pane.

"Why, it's a horse!" she exclaimed, and went to the door. Then she ran to where her father was lying asleep and awakened him.

"Father, father, get up!" she cried excitedly. "A horse has wandered into our yard with a wagon and a man in its seat has dropped the lines, and looks as if he is frozen!"

Mr. Burt, with a lantern, hurried out. The horse seemed unable to move. The vehicle was a box wagon of a country buckster. Lying half back in its seat was a man, helpless and apparently lifeless. Beside him, all muffled up, apparently also overcome by the cold, was a boy of perhaps six years.

It was no light task to carry the stricken two into the house. Both father and daughter worked for half an hour restoring their involuntary guests to safety and comfort. The horse was led to the barn, and the kindly Samaritans realized that the sufferers had reached them just in time.

A humble peddler, Isaac Holmes overhauled with gratitude when he was able to comprehend all that had been done for him and his dozing little grandson Benny. He remained at the Burt home until they were fully recuperated. The wise old fellow read between the lines as to the poverty of his helpers. He brought from his wagon a great pasteboard box the morning he went away.

"You will not open it until we are gone," he said to Rhoda, and little Benny hugged and kissed her in a transport of gratitude and affection.

Isaac Holmes would have starved himself to save and hoard, but there was soulfulness in his rugged nature. When Rhoda opened the box she stood transfixed with amazement and delight. Isaac had selected his costliest goods to reward her. There was a white chinchilla jacket, a cap trimmed with costly fur, a tipper of ermine, and a muff of the same material. She could see herself in imagination fitted out in this expensive and elegant apparel, even outwitting the dressy and attractive Maud Lester.

Rhoda's eyes sparkled as she tried on the new attire and viewed her reflection in the mirror. Her father was away, and as there came a knock at the street door she was compelled to go thither herself. Neal Arden stood on the threshold. He glanced admiringly at the trim, graceful figure presented. She invited him in, palpitating with varied emotions.

"We have cleared off the snow for a big space on the river," he said, "and there will be prize skating this evening. May I call for you?"

He was very proud to be her escort on the smooth, glassy river. The others called her "The Snowbird." Neal called her "his darling" before the month was out. In white he had wooed her; in white he led her to the altar.

ELEVATOR EXCHANGE READY FOR BUSINESS.

With 43 farmers' cooperative elevators affiliated, the newly organized elevator exchange department of the Michigan State Farm Bureau will begin activities this month. It is expected that by autumn close to 100 elevators will be operating through this exchange, dealing largely in small grains, such as wheat and rye-means, etc. The exchange, also will do purchasing for farmers connected with it. Farmers from every section of the state were in Lansing this week when the organization was effected, many coming to thoroughly familiarize themselves with the project before affiliating.

Management of their exchange will be by a board of control composed of W. E. Phillips of Detroit, L. Whitner Watkins of Manchester, Jacob Lendis of Scottville, M. S. Shisler of Caladonia, Carl Martin of Coldwater and two members to be designated by the state farm bureau.

This exchange will do all business for the farmers using it at cost, and represents the only organization of the type doing business in the country. Representatives of the farm bureau organization in all of the middle west states will gather in Lansing July 27th to consider the advisability of duplicating the Michigan exchange in their states, and other matters of mutual interest.

Perfection's Price In Tire Building

A tire-maker's first problem is to decide how much he can give for the money. This, and every other question in tire building, depends upon policies.

A super-tire, such as The Brunswick, can be made only by a concern which knows well and appreciates that there is nothing exclusive in the tire industry except high standards.

Since 1845 the House of Brunswick has held first place in every line it entered. Brunswick Tires, as more and more motorists come to know them, will certainly be awarded that coveted place held only by the superline.

Motorists who buy one Brunswick usually adopt it for complete equipment. Yet this is not strange, since the first one so completely proves its superiority.

If the name of Brunswick certifies to you, as to most men, an extraordinary tire, at no higher price, would it not be good business to test one or two Brunswick Tires?

Citizens of Little Republic of Andorra
Ask Nothing of the World
Save Tolerant.

While new republics are engaging attention, a very old one continues living its life in northern Spain and seemingly well enough content to remain comfortably hidden in the Pyrenees. Covering perhaps 100 square miles of fertile valley among the mountains, a census of the republic of Andorra would number no more than 5,000 persons, many of whom make matches to buy those matches in Andorra a purchasing agent of the Y. M. C. A. journeyed from Paris during the war, and his account of the adventure in the pages of Travel introduces the little republic to the readers of that periodical. Charles, one learns, gave the Andorrans their liberty something over 1,100 years ago, and there they have remained ever since, too small, and at the same time too inaccessible, presumably to have their liberty taken away from them. The bridge still stands, arching a mountain stream, on which the ancient Andorrans are believed to have signed their treaty with Charlemagne in 816. A "picture-book country," says the seeker for matches, and enumerates "black mountains with real caverns, ruined towers and bridges, peasants in scarlet and green and tam-o'-shanter caps, driving pack mules and herds of sheep along the mountain roads." A contented little republic, apparently where all that the people ask of the outside world is that it buy their matches and other native products, and otherwise leave them alone.

Negro Waiter's Method of Securing
Tips Apt to Be a Trifle Bewildering to the Uninitiated.

In New Orleans there is a negro waiter who is the object of polite attention and skill. There really isn't much for one to do but open one's mouth when John is the server. The other day a man came in who was sized up by the experienced John as probably a "little close," but the service was fully up to the usual high standard. The bill came to 80 cents and the patron handed over a dollar bill.

John proceeded to present the man with his hat as though it were a coronet, at least and was in the middle of his second bow of dismissal when the man asked:

"Where's my change?"
"Change, sah? Dar warn't none, sah," replied my tip—thank you, sah!" John replied with another bow.

"But I hadn't given it to you," the man protested.

"Oh course not, sah," John responded with still another bow and smile. "Ah wouldn't think my permission you to go to all dat trouble, sah," and the customer went slowly out, looking a trifle dazed.

New Portable Furnace.

A recently designed portable furnace that furnace is self contained, requiring no wire or pipe connections, as it is moved about in shop or field. Its fuel is kerosene, which is reduced to a gas, the moment before being ignited, and is burned to give a temperature ranging from 1,500 to 3,000 degrees Fahrenheit. The furnace is held in a storage tank supported under the burner on the stand carrying the burner. The capacity is sufficient for a ten-hour shift, in which the ordinary consumption is not over seven and one-half gallons, and the oil is supplied to the burner by air compressed to 20 to 30 pounds, one charge of air sufficient for the day's work. The remarkable character of the flame permits easy cutting metal in the furnace a long time without damage. The furnace is especially adapted for heating crabs and for hardening tools, but may be used in many other operations.

War Memorial in China.

At its last meeting the Szechwan war memorial committee considered the various suggestions for a war memorial to those of the allied officers who fought and died in the war, and it was unanimously agreed to erect a cenotaph at the junction of the Bund and Avenue Edward VII. The tram lines will have to be diverted to either side of the memorial. Szechwan architects are to be asked to submit designs for the cenotaph, and presumably they will base them upon home models, with due allowance for local conditions and space at command. Provision will of course be made for a roll of honor, as complete as it can possibly be made. The memorial will be paid for by public subscription, with the possible addition of grants from the foreign and French municipal councils.—North China Herald.

His Way.

"Doug Doolittle is our most public-spirited citizen," said the landlord of the tavern at Peewee-cuddy-hump. "No matter what time of night the fire bells ring, he leaps from his bed, pours out of his front door and goes tearing down the street like the Charge of the Light Brigade, struggling into such of his clothes as he don't drop and not stop for. At the scene of devastation he gets in the way of the firemen, whoops and yells like a madman, and otherwise does his duty as he sees it. And if it happens to be a false alarm, he goes homeward picking up his clothes a piece at a time along the way and cussing and growling as if the failure of anything to burn was a personal insult to himself."—Kansas City Star.

EPISODE I

ONCE upon a Time a Stranger came to a City, bringing with him a Large Tin Medal. The Medal was to be pinned on the breast of THE BIGGEST LUNKHEAD to be found in the City.

The Stranger went about the City in search of The Person who deserved the Medal, and finally he found a Man WHO WOULD NOT WORK. This Man told the stranger that THE WORLD OWED HIM A LIVING, and that HE COULD BE HAPPY, and could get through Life a right WITH-OUT DOING ANY WORK.

The Stranger announced that his search for THE BIGGEST LUNK-HEAD was over, and he then pinned the Large Tin Medal on the breast of THE MAN WHO WOULD NOT WORK.

The Great Lunkhead Mystery

Follow the Travels of the Famous Medal Designed to be Worn by the Person Proving the Right to be Known to the World as the Biggest Lunkhead.

EPISODE II

WHEN the Stranger pinned the Medal for being the BIGGEST LUNK-HEAD on the breast of the MAN WHO WOULD NOT WORK, he told him to wear it only while he felt sure he was the BIGGEST LUNKHEAD.

So the MAN WHO WOULD NOT WORK wore the Medal and as he did not work he had time to think. As the Medal made him think he saw Other Men were GETTING HIGHER UP IN THE WORLD BY WORKING. He saw Others were HAPPY because they WORKED. And he saw that if HE wanted to GET ANYWHERE he would have to WORK.

So he got a JOB and he found that work is EASIER THAN LOAFING. So he decided that he did not have any right to hold the BIGGEST LUNK-HEAD Medal—and he went out and pinned it on the breast of THE MAN WHO IS ALWAYS LOOKING FOR A NEW JOB.

OLD MAN WISE SAYS:

A man's job is just as big as he makes it—and no bigger.

No worker can keep even with you if you work faster than he does.

The man who thinks he is down-trodden is the man willing to be stepped on.

Some heads are used to help out the hat makers. Others are used to think with.

If a newsboy became bank president in twenty years, what can you do in the same time?

The wisest talks about the accidents of birth. The doer refuses to get into the accident list.

The fellow who never went out to land a better job has never been sighted coming back with one.

Don't waste money because you have it, and then you will have money when you want to spend it.

The man who lets others do his thinking for him has no right to tell you how this world should be run.

The man who wastes all his spare time is the man who has the most time to tell you that no man has a chance any more.

If the rules of the company annoy you, just figure out that if there were no rules there would be no company for you to work for.

If you are where you were, when you started and the company has grown, then there doesn't seem to be anything wrong with the company.

Musical "Treat" Promised Community Chautauqua Patrons the Third Day

BOSTON STRING QUARTETTE OFFERS SPLENDID PROGRAM

BOSTON STRING QUARTETTE.

An artistic program that includes all that is best in music, is presented by the distinguished musicians of the Boston String Quartette, under the leadership of Aaron Richmond, the great pianist. His striking personality inspires an enthusiasm in his fellow players that colors all their work. The program differs from the average concert offering in the variety of selections presented, which range from delicate melodies such as "Barcarolle" to good old American favorites.

The Boston String Quartette has won its pre-eminent position in the concert field by its ability to present the great masterpieces of music so simply and strikingly that their greatness becomes apparent to those who have never studied music as well as to trained musicians. These artists have been listed as the fourth day feature of our Community Chautauqua program. When they appear on Sunday an appropriate program is artistically presented.

HAYING TOOLS HARVEST

You will need to save all your hay and grain this season and a good way to do this is to provide yourself with good haying and harvesting tools. We have them—Mowers, Rakes, Tedders, Binders, everything you will need, and repairs for same.

We are anxious to be of real service to you during this busy season of the year. Tell us your needs and we will endeavor to supply them.

Will keep open until 7:45 p. m. until after harvest.

"Bigger and Better"

Our Community Chautauqua program for this year is filled to the brim with up-to-date music, lectures and entertainment—all "Bigger and Better" than ever before. For five days the will present features of unequalled excellence. Every day will be a feature day. On the opening night—

ROLAND A. NICHOLS

author, lecturer, student, presents his delightful story-lecture, "The Man Worth While." It makes you think, and at the same time entertains. Mr. Nichols is a great "thought-provoker"—he has a thrilling message for you.

OTHER BIG FEATURES

include the Magical Floyds; Hon. W. L. Nolan, exponent of Americanism; Rudolph's Swiss Entertainers; Jeannette Kling, reader; Clifford Foote Trio, in songs, stories and novelty entertainment; Boston String Quartet, and an elaborate production of that famous opera, "Chimes of Normandy." There are many other worth-while attractions. You cannot afford to miss a single session.

COME EVERY DAY!

You will enjoy every minute of the program—you can spend five delightful and profitable days—and save money.

Holly—A movement has been started for a public park and playground. Two citizens have offered to give $2,000 each to start a public subscription.

S. J. Gaget, deputy sheriff of Wayne county, was arrested and fined $10 on a reckless driving charge filed by Mayor T. E. Schaible Saturday, June 26th.

PONTIAC—Ground was broken and excavation operations commenced Thursday for the new $3,000,000 addition to the Oakland Motor Car company's plant.

SOUTH LYON—The Detroit Creamery Co. is shipping 1,000 gallons of milk to Detroit each day from its station here via a tank truck. This truck is what is known as a "speed wagon," and is equipped with cord tires valued at $1,300, and is capable of making a speed of 30 or more miles an hour with its load.

Paul W. Vothies, a former prominent Plymouth citizen and attorney, and a former chief, assistant prosecuting attorney, has announced his candidacy in the Republican primaries for the office of prosecuting attorney of Wayne county—Plymouth Mail.

Major D. D. Saford, for 17 years a resident of Detroit, died Sunday morning, after an illness of several months. Born in Canton township, near Plymouth, in 1837, Major Saford lived all his life in Michigan. His parents came from Connecticut in 1829, taking up government land, the deed of which was signed by President Jackson. He was one of five brothers and two sisters.

Ann Arbor is planning a curb market this year and will open this month. F. E. Wilson will have charge of the market. It was intended to open earlier and 200 postal cards sent out to the farmer in this vicinity asking them when they would be ready, but as only a few replied it was thought best to open later. The market will be conducted under the direction of the Community federation.

Orson Westfall, a much respected resident of this place, passed away at his home on West Ann Arbor street, last week Thursday morning, June 24th, at the age of eighty-one years and seven months. Mr. Westfall suffered a stroke of paralysis early in the winter and since that time had rapidly failed. The deceased had been a life-long resident of Plymouth and vicinity, having resided on a farm a few miles west of town for many years—Mail.

AGE LIMIT ABOLISHED.

Because of opinion from the attorney general's department, the training requirement fund board has abolished its former rule that no person over 35 should be granted an annuity.

Now all those who seek to receive the benefits have only to comply with the law.

White persons at the last meeting were awarded annuities. The law requires that to be entitled to aid from the fund a person must have taught for at least 30 years, the last five of which were consecutive, and the last 15 of which must have been in Michigan. Provision also is made for fractional annuities for those who have taught for more than 25 years.

American Cigarettes Popular.

For a time most cigarettes were made from the Turkish leaf. Then it was discovered that the "bright" Virginia tobacco, now grown in Virginia, the Carolinas and eastern Tennessee made an agreeable cigarette. Eventually cigarette-making machinery was invented, and today American cigarettes are smoked all over the world.

STATE FAIR COSTS GOING UP; MINN. CHARGES MORE

Ramline, Minn.—With the cost of operating a fair having increased 50 per cent, the Minnesota State Fair has been forced to announce a new schedule of admission, price. General admission to the grounds has been advanced from 50 to 75 cents, but the management is endeavoring to keep prices down for all attractions with in the gate.

Detroit, Mich.—George W. Dickinson, Secretary-Manager of the Michigan State Fair, when told of the advance in the admittance fee of the Minnesota State Fair, said that he had no comment to make as yet. He declared he is doing his best to keep costs down, but he said it is obvious that good management dictates that a fair should pay its own way, and that he meant to increase rather than cut down the quality of the features of the Michigan Fair.

Northville Newslets.

Northville Lodge, F. & A. M., will hold a regular meeting next Monday night.

Cement steps are being constructed at the corner of Main and North Center streets.

Mr. and Mrs. Will Safford and family are nicely located in their new home on South Wing street.

Denbrook Farm has been sold to Detroit parties. Mr. and Mrs. Garvin Denby will reside in the east.

The W. C. T. U. monthly meeting will be held Monday afternoon, July 12th, at 2:30 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Erwin.

Born, June 28, to Mr. and Mrs. Lester Cooper of Plymouth, a son, Mrs. Cooper will be remembered as Margaret Raymond of this place.

Miss Ida Morse has accepted a position as head of the clerical force of the Detroit Edison office at Farmington, and entered upon her new duties this week.

The M. E. Ladies' aid will meet in the church parlors next Tuesday, July 14th at 2:30 p. m. The program will be in charge of the July committee.

A number of young people enjoyed a pot-luck supper at the home of Miss Bertha White on Monday evening, afterwards attending the dance at Walled Lake.

The Northville Independents will play the Myrtle Boosters' club on the local diamond Sunday afternoon. The Independents have a strong line-up and a good game may be expected.

E. C. Hinkley has sold his bowling alleys to J. Chioiak and N. Jonesen of Detroit, who took possession the first of the week. Mr. Hinkley has not decided just what his future plans will be.

Wellington Roberts has been offered and he has accepted the position of professor of civil engineering at the Detroit University. He will take up his new duties with the opening of the University this fall.

The annual school meeting will be held at the High school auditorium next Monday night. Patrons of the school should attend this meeting.

Your presence will encourage the members of the board of education.

The Patternmakers ball team of Detroit, came out Monday afternoon to cross bats with the local Forester team. They returned to the city later a sadder and wiser bunch, having been defeated to the tune of 7 to 9.

The Northville Foresters' ball team will play the Hays Springs Workmen team of Pontiac on the local grounds Saturday afternoon the game to be called at 2:30. These teams are evenly matched and a good game is expected.

Statements as called for by the Commissioner of Banking appear in this issue for Northville's splendid banking institutions. They reveal an increase in resources over the statements published a couple of months ago.

Mrs. Scaton and daughter, Gertrude have moved from their home on High street, into a part of the McKahn residence, occupied by Mrs. R. R. McKahn. Miss Grace Tremper and mother will move into the home vacated by Mrs. Scaton.

The village of Northville has a new Automobile ordinance. Some of the salient features to be observed are as follows:

Noise. Open mufflers and unnecessary racing of engine.

Parking diagonal or right side of curb only, keep away from hydrants.

Orient Chapter, O. E. S., will hold a special meeting on Friday afternoon and evening, July 16th, when the Wayne Chapter will be the special guests. Degrees will be conferred in the afternoon and evening and supper will be served at six o'clock.

The Fourth was spent very quietly by Northville people. Many spent the day quietly about their homes with friends, some visited near-by lakes, some motored to the city, while still others attended the celebration of Wayne where our band furnished music during the day and evening.

S. A. Lovewell, who has not been in good health for the past few weeks, left Wednesday for Battle Creek, where he expects to spend a few weeks at the sanitarium in that city. Many friends in this section will hope for his speedy recovery.

The Woman's Club picnic will be held at the pleasant home of Mrs. Chas. Bloom, Thursday afternoon, July 15th at 2:30 o'clock. Every member is requested to bring dishes enough for their party, sandwiches and one other article of food. Members have the privilege of inviting their families, and one guest.

During the past week The Record received a quantity of white print paper, such as is used in this newspaper, for which we paid the handsome sum of fifteen and a half cents a pound. Only a few years ago this same paper was bought at the rate of $38 a ton. Twelve copies of The Record weigh two pounds, and fifty-two copies weigh a total of eight and a half pounds. Figure this out at 15½ cents a pound and add enough to cover freight and you will at once discover that the white paper used practically costs as much as we receive for a year's subscription.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Sutton entertained a few friends Wednesday evening, in honor of their second wedding anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Simmons are entertaining the former's nieces, the Misses Edith and Jennie Simmons of Arlington Heights, Illinois.

The Forester base ball team played two games at Wixom Saturday and was victorious in both cases. The first with Wixom resulted in a score of 12-8. The second game with Commerce was 15-9.

The Foresters have won every game so far this season. The motor cop will get you now, if you don't look out. Traffic Officer Lyke is now the possessor of a new Henderson motorcycle which was purchased by the village and if any "speeder" thinks he can cover distance faster than our village marshal he has another guess coming. The new machine is always ready for a run and motorists will do well to observe the conditions of Northville's new traffic law.

W. R. C.

Vacation time is here! The Allen M. Harmon Woman's Relief Corps will hold its last regular meeting on Wednesday evening, July 14th, prior to "closing house" for a month.

Corps members are to picnic on the lawn of Mrs. Bruno Freydt July 21st. Meet on the 2:30 Plymouth car, properly equipped with eating utensils, not forgetting the "eats." Pot luck-beverage and desert arranger for.

The House of Whispers

By William Johnston Illustrations by Irwin Myers

A BEAUTIFUL GHOST.

Synopsis—Spalding Nelson is occupying the apartments of his great-uncle, Rufus Gaston. The Gastons, leaving on a trip, tell him about mysterious houses and "whispers" that have scared them. He becomes acquainted with Barbara Bradford, who lives in the same building. He instinctively dislikes and distrusts the superintendent, Wick. The mysteries in his apartments begin with the disappearance of the Gaston pearls from the wall safe. He decides not to call in the police, but to do his own investigating. It is soon evident that someone has access to his rooms. Becoming friendly with Barbara, he learns that her apartments are actually mysterious. She tells him that several years before her sister Claire, who lives with her, had made a run-away marriage with an adventurer, from whom she was soon parted, and the marriage had been annulled. Claire is engaged to be married and someone has stolen documents concerning the affair from the Bradford apartment and is attempting to blackmail the Bradfords. Nelson takes Miss Kelly, the telephone girl, to dinner with the idea of pumping her Gorman, a hotel detective, recognizes her as the wife of Lefty Moore, a noted burglar. Nelson partly confides in the detective and arranges to meet him.

"You're right about that," I replied, "and say, look here. Why can't you meet me somewhere tomorrow afternoon. There are a lot of mysterious things happening in the Granddeck. Maybe you can help me in trying to clear them up."

"It's a date. I'll be in the back room of Jiffy Connor's place over on Third avenue at three o'clock waiting for you."

"I'll be there," I said, as I bade him good night.

"Hold on a minute," he said. "Do you know where Lefty Moore's wife lives now?"

I recalled the number she had told me to give the taxi man and I repeated it to him in an address way over on East Sixty-second street near the river.

"I like to know them sort of things," he explained. "In our business you never know when you'll be needing them."

On my way home after I left him, I congratulated myself on having made James Gorman's acquaintance. In him I had found a man with police and detective experience. The fact that he held a responsible position with a big hotel ought to be sufficient voucher for his honesty. Of course Miss Bradford must be consulted before I met Gorman the next afternoon. I could hardly tell him my own almost unbelievable experiences without bringing in the attempts to blackmail her sister. Surely Miss Bradford would not object to my plan. We were making such poor headway in solving the mystery ourselves that I was certain she would welcome Gorman's advice.

And would it not be a surprise to Barbara Bradford to learn that a criminal—or at least the wife of a criminal—was employed as a telephone girl in the apartment house? I was hoping that she would be at home and in her room when I arrived at the house so that I might signal her and tell her my great news at once.

I let myself into the apartment and without bothering to turn on the lights made my way back toward my own

As the Light Flooded the Room—There Was a Suppressed Scream Followed by a Frightened Gasps.

As I reached the end of the hall my ears detected a scuffling noise that seemed to come from my quarters. I stopped stock-still and listened breathlessly. Unquestionably there was someone in my room.

I crept softly forward. As I crept on in the darkness, making no sound, I found myself devoutly wishing for some weapon. Of course I carried a knife, but I had entered by means of the ledge to leave some message out if it were not she, I was certain that I would discover who was at the bottom of the plots against us.

I gained the door without my presence having been discovered. In the dim half-light that came from the open window I could detect a figure standing on a chair apparently feeling along the wall near the ceiling. I reacted with curiosity that it was from that spot that the whispers I had heard had seemed to come.

Each by inch I edged noiselessly forward, my eyes on the intruder until at last my fingers found the electric light button. As the light flooded the room there was a suppressed scream, followed by a frightened gasp. The figure on the chair turned quickly and faced me. I saw that it was a woman, a badly frightened woman, with her hands clutching at her heart. Almost instantly I recognized her. It was not Barbara Bradford, but her sister, Claire. She was clad in some sort of a dark house gown, thrown over her nightgown. Her slippers, feet were bare of stockings, and her hair hung in a great braid down her back.

As I stared at her she sprang from the chair and made a rush for the open window. I grabbed for her and though she fought desperately I managed to hold her fast and to drag her away from the window. After a moment's futile resistance she suddenly collapsed in my arms, moaning in a tense whisper.

"Let me go, please let me go."

I placed her in a chair, and still keeping a tight hold on one of her arms, studied her, debating what to do. What desperate motive could have driven this girl to the daring journey across the narrow ledge by which she had gained access to my quarters? Was she, I wondered, once more in the power of that evil husband of hers, driven by fear of him to such desperate deeds?

"Let me go," she moaned again.

"Not until you tell me what you were doing in my room," I answered firmly.

"I did not know there was any one here. I thought the apartment was vacant. I thought the Gastons were away."

"But why did you come?"

"I can't tell that," she moaned. "I can't! I can't!"

"You must," I repeated. "I am going to keep you here until you do tell me."

"You must not keep me here," she said. "I don't want my people to know about my having been here. You look like a gentleman. Please let me go."

"Doesn't Barbara—doesn't your sister know you are here?"

At my mention of her sister's name an expression of amazement escaped her.

"Who are you?" she asked excitedly.

"How did you know who I was?"

"I am a friend of your sister," I answered. "She will tell you who I am. You must trust me. I feel I have a right to know what you are doing here. Won't you tell me?"

A strange look came into her eyes and she shook her head.

"You wouldn't understand. I was trying to trace the whispers."

"The whispers?" I cried excitedly.

"You have heard them, too?"

"Often," she said. "I heard them tonight. Mother and Barbara were out to the theater. They seemed to come from near the ceiling in my sister's room. They seemed to vanish in the direction of this room. I thought there was no one here. I decided to creep along the ledge and see if I could trace them."

"And did you succeed?"

She shook her head.

"When I first came in this room I could still hear them. They seemed to be coming from up near the ceiling. I got up on a chair and put my ear to the wall to listen. Then they stopped altogether and then—they came in. May I go now—before my mother comes home?"

"On one condition," I answered.

"That you tell your sister about your having been here."

"I'll tell her if you wish me to," she replied, "and now, please may I go? Could you let me out of your door? See, I brought a key to my apartment with me. I don't think I dare make that trip across the ledge tonight."

As I escorted her to the door, my mind in a whirl over the events of the evening, I suddenly remembered how important it was that I should see her sister for a long talk before I kept my appointment with Gorman.

"Tell your sister," I said to Claire Bradford as she departed, "that it is imperative that she meet me at luncheon tomorrow. I have news of the utmost importance—news that concerns all of us. Tell her to meet me at the Astor at one. She must come."

"I'll tell her," she replied.

CHAPTER VII.

It was the next evening that I made my astounding discovery, when pure chance led me plump into what both Barbara Bradford and I recognized at once as our first real clue to the mysteries surrounding us.

My find came unexpectedly at the end of an exciting day. As may be imagined I slept little in the hours following my unexpected meeting with Claire Bradford in my room, coming as it did right on top of Detective Gorman's revelations as to the identity of the telephone girl. Coupled with these circumstances was the fact that if my hopes were realized, Barbara would be within a very few hours lunching with me for the first time. I just had to see her before I met Gorman. The tale I was to unfold to him was so improbable, so almost unbelievable, that I wanted to go over it with her step by step, in order to be able to convince the detective that it was the absolute truth.

I could not help but realize how preposterous it would sound in the telling. Mr. Gorman could hardly be blamed for believing that my find had been inflated by witnessing too many movie thrillers. Yet I had proof. There were the entries in my great-uncle's diary that I could show. I had the anonymous notes. My story of the strange whispers, if need be, could be confirmed by the old laundress, by Barbara Bradford, yes, and by Claire, too. That is, if the reason Claire had given to account for her presence in my room was the true one. It sounded logical, and yet I did not place the confidence in her that I did in Barbara. But what I relied on most of all to convince Gorman of the truth of my preposterous tale was his own knowledge of who the telephone girl was.

"She Shouldn't Have Gone to Your Room. That's Just Like Her, Though."

Just when I had reached the deduction that the band plotting against us must have a conductor in the building, he had come forward with the knowledge that pointed toward the person most apt to be involved.

I was pondering it all over in my mind as I left the house to meet Barbara. I was out on the street and just turning the corner when I remembered that I had spent most of the money in my pocket the night before retracing my steps. I returned to my apartment and took some bills from their hiding place in the deskcase. As I emerged into the street again, I became aware that across the street was a man whose appearance seemed vaguely familiar. As I once more turned the corner, walking briskly, I glanced back for a second look at him and was surprised to see him coming in my direction.

Then all at once my subconscious mind came to my rescue. I realized when it was that I had seen him before and what made his appearance so familiar. As I left the house ten minutes ago that very same man had been standing across the street. As I had turned back at the corner he had been coming in my direction just as he was now.

He must be following me, trailing me, shadowing me. I determined to test out my theory. At the next corner I turned sharply, glancing quickly back as I did so. He was still following me, though on the other side of the street and perhaps half a block away. I went a few steps out of sight and then stopped as if to look in a shop window. He came hurrying around the corner an instant later, slowing down as soon as he spotted me again, and walked on slowly past me as if not noticing me. I waited until he was some distance beyond and retracing my steps quickly to the avenue again, stopped in the shelter of a building to light a cigar, purposely wasting a number of matches. In hardly ten seconds he was back, covertly watching me from the other side of the street.

There was no question about it. He was trailing me. But who could be having me shadowed? Certainly, he was not in the employ of the Bradfords or of Detective Gorman. Either he must be one of the band of plotters, or—I hated to voice my suspicion, but somehow I thought of my great-uncle Rufus, kept obtruding itself. It would be just like the suspicious old miser, if it was he who had plumped all this devilment, to put me in a position of trust and then to have me watched night and day.

Whoever it was that inspired this pursuit, I determined to lead my shadow a merry chase. Jumping into a taxi I bade the driver take me to a department store. Looking back I saw the shadow hastily entering another cab. Arrived at my destination I thrust fare and tip into the driver's hand and hurrying inside managed to catch an elevator just ascending. One flight up I got out and descended to the main floor by a staircase at the rear, emerging thence on to a side street. A second taxi took me to the Twenty-eighth street subway station, and there, with no sign of my pursuer, I took a train to Times square and went to the Astor to meet Barbara Bradford, arriving on the dot of one. She was there awaiting me and we quickly found a secluded table in one of the less conspicuous rooms.

"I've told Claire everything," she said as soon as we were seated. "I hope you're not angry with me."

"Of course not. You had to tell her. I am sorry to have frightened her."

"She shouldn't have gone to your room. That's just like her, though. She always acts on the spur of the moment. She's awfully worried, too, poor girl."

"We can save her," I said. "Why," she asked quickly, "what have you learned?"

"I was convinced that they must have someone in the house aiding them. I've found out who it is. It's the telephone girl—Nellie Kelly, in the name, she goes by."

"I can't believe it," cried the girl, shocked at my statement. "She's only a girl like myself. I have talked to her lots of times. I'm certain there's nothing wicked or wrong about her."

"I'm afraid there is," I explained. "I took her out to dinner last night, to the White Room. The house detective, while she was off telephoning, practically ordered me out of the place because I was with her. She's notorious. Her husband is Lefty Moore, a well-known burglar. He's in Sing Sing now. Detective Gorman arrested him. He ought to know."

"Oh, the poor girl," exclaimed Miss Bradford, tears welling up to her eyes. "I'm so sorry for her."

"But think of your sister. Think what they are trying to do with Miss Kelly's aid."

"I don't know it. But I do know that nobody could pull off all the things that have been happening in the Granddeck without some one there helping them. We've found someone used to helping criminals—a criminal's wife. Isn't that enough? All we need to do now is to watch her closely and fasten the thing on her."

"How are you going to do that?"

"That's the way I lastisted on your coming here today. I am to meet Detective Gorman at three. I feel that he could aid us, and I think we ought to tell him everything."

"Tell the police?" Her face grew white at the thought. "Wouldn't that mean a scandal—the newspapers and all that sort of thing?"

"I shook my head decisively. "Gorman's not with the police now. He is employed as a hotel detective. But he is just the man we need to help us. He knows all about criminals and how to track them. With his aid we can quickly clear the whole thing up."

"Will you have to tell him everything—about Claire's marriage?"

"We've either got to tell him everything or nothing."

"Oh, how I wish we did not have to tell more people there are who know about things the more likely they are to become public."

"Yet you trusted me with your sister's secret."

"She gave me a quick glance of confidence. "You're different."

"I'm afraid most people would not agree with you. They would regard me as a worthless, discredited young fellow out of a job."

"But it's not your fault."

"The point is, I went on, "that we have reached a place where we need expert advice. Gorman has fortunately turned up to give it. The only way is to tell him everything."

For a moment she debated the matter silently, her pretty forehead puckered in thought.

"Yes," she said at last, "I suppose it is the only way. But won't he want a lot of money for his services?"

"I'll attend to that," I answered. "I'll make my great-uncle reward him handsomely for recovering the Gaston jewels."

"If he does."

"He must. We've got to get them back."

From her hand-bag she produced the anonymous letters she had received and handed them to me.

"Will you want to show the detective these?"

"Yes, I think I had better. The whole tale sounds so preposterous that I need every bit of corroborative evidence we can muster."

For half an hour we lingered over the table, discussing all the aspects of the case. Eventually I think I persuaded Miss Bradford that the evidence pointed most damningly to the telephone girl as one of the conspirators or at least one of their aides. She was eager to know what plan of action Gorman would advise and as we parted we arranged to be at our adjoining windows at ten that evening in order that we might have another chat.

I found Gorman waiting for me at the place he had mentioned.

"I told you that girl was a bad one," was his greeting.

"What do you mean?" I cried. "What have you learned about her?"

"Nothing except that the address she gave you last night was phony. The number she gave is the hospital grounds—he pronounced it 'hore' pital."

"Where does she live, then?"

"She's keeping that under cover. She shook the taxi at Fifty-ninth and Third."

Detective Gorman to the rescue.

EXPLAINING THAT 30 CENTS

Champ Clark Wanted to Know About It, and the Clerk Gave Him the Information.

Champ Clark likes shirts that have a small red stripe. Not long ago he went into the shop of a Washington haberdasher to buy a dress shirt. Selecting one, he gave the clerk a $10 bill, and while waiting for his change wandered around looking at the shirts displayed. But let the former speaker tell us about it, says The Nation's Business.

"I found a fine shirt with small red stripes and I like to wear that kind. During the war you could not get a shirt with red stripes, which would not fade. I said to the clerk:

"What is the price of that shirt?"

"Three dollars."

"Give me that and take it out of the ten."

"When he came back with the change he did not have enough and I called his attention to it.

"You are gouging me. What is that extra thirty cents for?"

"That," replied the clerk, "is the sales tax that you do—tools enacted up there in congress."

No Mystery.

"Why is Mrs. Millyuns so sought after for bridge parties? She is a very bad player."

"Yes, but she always loses money, and she has so much to lose."

He was very black, says the Saturday Evening Post, and in his khaki he looked like coffee and chocolate ice cream. After eating a hearty meal in the American Hotel Cross canteen he sat down with a book near the counter. The kind-hearted worker looked over once or twice in his direction and was surprised to see his tears rolling down his cheeks.

"Why, this will never do," she said kindly. "Is there anything I can do to help you? I'll be glad to, if I can."

He dug his knuckles into his eyes and sobbed.

"I sholy am ashamed to make a body outen myself, ma'am. This yer book done make me so mighty homesick."

She picked up the book he had been reading. It was the canteen cook-book, and it was opened at the section on "How to Fry Chicken."

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

ANALYSIS OF SOVIET RULE

Cold Reasoning Easily Proves Fallacy on Which the Idea is Based—Demagogism Its Foundation—Story.

Article XXI.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

Lenine has frequently observed that representative government is a failure. He has insisted that the democratic form of government is debauched and destroyed by the political machine; that political corruption vices the will of the people. If Lenine is right in this conclusion, then the bolshevik government in Russia offers just from three to five times as much chance for political corruption as our own form of government. If it is dangerous for the American people to entrust their business to an agent whom they directly elect and who is directly responsible to them, how much more dangerous must it be to turn over the public business to 17 men appointed by a central executive committee, the members of which have been appointed by an All-Russian congress, which All-Russian congress is elected by soviets for whom the people did not vote? Applying this plan to our own government, our congress would be elected by the state legislatures and the aldermen of the cities, then this congress so elected would pick an executive committee of 200, and this committee would elect 17 commissioners to whom would be given the supreme power of the state, both legislative and executive power, the right to make laws, and the authority to enforce the laws.

Democracy or Autocracy?

All down through history two theories of government have been at war. One is that the majority shall rule—the other, that the minority shall rule. The people struggling for freedom have battled for the former; the few seeking special privileges have fought for the latter. The first is democratic, the second autocratic. No compromise is possible, there is no middle ground. These two antagonistic ideas have nothing in common; like parallel lines, they can never meet, in their nature they are separate and apart. The government of the late Kaiser of Germany, the government of Nicholas, the autocrat of Russia, were founded on the idea that the minority shall rule. History shows that minority rule has always equaled the majority. The rule of a minority over a majority means slavery for the many. It is human nature. The principle always works the same result. If it is a political meeting and the minority runs it, the result is a machine and a boss. When it is a nation, you have a bureaucracy and a dictator, depriving his power not from the consent of the governed, but from the bayonets of the army. There may be room for honest differences of opinion between honest men on many questions, but there is not any room for difference of opinion among honest free men on the proposition that minority rule is a menace.

In Article III of the bolshevik constitution we find incontrovertible evidence that the government of soviet Russia is built on the tyrant's stone, minority rule. Section 25 reads:

"The All-Russian congress is composed of representatives of city soviets in the ratio of one delegate for every 25,000 voters, and of representatives of the soviets of the provinces in the ratio of one delegate for every 125,000 inhabitants."

Discrimination Against Peasants.

No explanation is given for basing the representation in congress from the cities on the number of voters, while the representation in congress from the provinces is based on the number of inhabitants. The words are not synonymous, a voter is an inhabitant of certain age and possessing certain qualifications. An inhabitant is anyone who lives in the province, regardless of age or qualifications. If the word inhabitant is given the same meaning that the word voter is given, then it is apparent that the constitution unjustly discriminates against the "poor peasant." As they have had no general elections in Russia, it is impossible to give the official construction of these two words. If the word inhabitant means any man, woman or child living in the province, the discrimination against the "poor peasant" is just as obvious, although it does not go to the same length. As an illustration, if we read this important provision of the constitution giving to the word inhabitant the same meaning as we give to the word voter, then we see that the voters of the city have one congressman for every 25,000, while the "poor peasant" have one congressman for every 125,000. If we construe the word voter to mean the qualified legal voter, and the word inhabitant to mean any human being living in the provinces, we learn that the people of the city have one congressman for every 25,000 voters, while the people of the provinces have one congressman for every 62,500 voters. I reach this estimate in the following manner: In the United States, we estimate that there is one voter in every five of the population. This calculation is based upon male suffrage alone, with the voting age fixed at twenty-one years. In Russia both men and women have the suffrage, and the age qualifying one to vote is eighteen years. I, therefore, figure that there would be one voter for every two in population. There is no question about the discrimination against the "poor peasant" and the favoring of the city voter. It is only a question of how much.

Machine Politics.

Lenine may be the idealist, some people say he is, but this section of the constitution proves him to be a practical machine politician in his machine. The provision has been written to meet a situation. It has a purpose. Lenine has frequently written and spoken about the "poor peasants." He can be forgiven for overworking the phrase. The "poor peasants" make up the great bulk of the population of Russia. It is not bad politics, at least it smacks of demagoguery. To speak often and sympathetically of the "suffering poor," particularly when the "poor peasants" make up the majority of one's constituency. Many successful politicians owe their offices to this appeal. In Russia over 80 per cent of the people live on the land—over four-fifths of all the Russians are peasants. Less than one-fifth of the population live in the towns and cities. Measured by his words, Lenine is the friend of the "poor peasants" by the constitution, their enemy.

"As we have seen, the constitution specifically declares that the supreme power of the government is vested in the All-Russian congress. Of course this is true only in theory, for we have read how the All-Russian congress turns the supreme power over to the central executive committee, which in turn surrenders the power to the 17 people's commissars."

The discrimination against the "poor peasant" runs all through the constitution; the bolsheviks are at least consistent. Paragraph "B" of section 53 of the constitution furnishes additional evidence of the conspiracy against the peasants. It reads:

"The provincial soviets are composed of representatives of the city soviets and the rural soviets, one representative for 10,000 inhabitants of the rural districts, and one representative for 2,000 voters in the city."

In the regional congresses it is the same, one representative for 25,000 inhabitants of the country, and one representative for 5,000 voters of the city.

Aim at Disfranchising Peasants.

The governments of the nation, of the regions, of the provinces, are based on the disfranchisement of the "poor peasants." I am wondering if there is any significance in the fact that the people of the city have one representative for a certain number of votes, and the people of the country have one representative for just five times the number. You will note the ratio is always the same; for congressmen it is 25,000 in the city, as against 125,000 in the country; in the regional congress it is 5,000 voters of the city as against 25,000 inhabitants of the country, in the provincial congresses it is one representative for 2,000 voters in the city, one representative for 10,000 inhabitants from the rural districts. Why this five to one? I am wondering how Lenine hit upon the ratio of five to one; is there any connection between this five-to-one discrimination against the "poor peasant" and the ratio of population in Russia between city dwellers and "poor peasants," which is about five to one? It is not difficult to guess the reason for this action. Any American ward politician could furnish the explanation in a minute. All political experience proves that a political machine is best controlled, easiest organized in the cities. Political machines have never been popular in the country districts. The soviet form of government is a political machine. The control of the machine is insured by disfranchising the "poor peasants." The men who designed the bolshevik constitution knew one thing about practical politics, and knew that one thing thoroughly, and that is that cities are accessible to political control, amenable to political influence, ideal for the political machine.

"The soldiers and sailors are generally stationed in cities. This gives them the power of city voters. They are not discriminating against, they are favored. Soldiers and sailors are not free agents in the sense the civilians usually are. Civilians have a freedom of thought and action that the military do not enjoy. The soldier's occupation prevents it. First, he is an employee of the government; second, he is under discipline; third, the people's commissars fix his pay, determine the quantity and quality of his food, arrange for the comforts of the barracks; the votes and the bayonets of the military sustain and support Lenine as truly as the military force held the czar on his throne."

Filipinos Want Independence.

The second Philippine mission seeking independence of the islands at the hands of the United States is now in this country. The delegation includes members of both houses of the Philippine legislature, affiliated with both political parties and representatives of labor and of the financial interests of the islands. The mission, besides appealing to congress, will present the claims of the island people to independence before the national conventions of the Democratic and Republican parties. Pledges of Philippine independence in their platform will be sought.

The KITCHEN CABINET

He spent his health to get his wealth. And then with might and main He turned around and spent his wealth To get his health again.

SOMETHING ABOUT SOUPS.

In a meal where soup begins the dinner and the dishes following are substantial, the soup should be clear, light and hot, but not necessarily nutritious. But in meals where the soup is to form the main dish of the family it should be nutritious in character.

To make stock use bones left from steaks, roasts and poultry, or the liquor in which they have been boiled; keep in the ice chest. They may be added to from day to day. The bones should be cracked so that all the marrow may be dissolved. Cover the bones and any meat with cold water and simmer gently for several hours. Skim and at the end of the third hour add any flavorings such as herbs, any of the onion family, cloves, carrot, turnip, celery tops, bay leaves and a teaspoonful of peppercorns to each four quarts of soup. The delicate flavor of soup is ruined if it is boiled, as the volatile oil and other flavors pass off in the air. The stock is strained at the end of four hours and set away to cool so that the surplus fat can be easily removed. To clarify stock allow one egg white with the shell for each quart of stock. Crush the shell and beat it with a little cold stock, and the egg white until well mixed. Add to the stock just brought to the boiling point and then strain through cheesecloth wrung out of cold water. In summer stock will keep better with no vegetable flavorings added.

Corned beef.—Take a shin of beef and a shin of veal, wipe with damp cloth. Cut all meat from the bones. In a kettle add one teaspoonful of caramel of a teaspoonful of sugar to brown then add half a cupful of chopped onion and the same quantity of water. Cook five minutes, then add the bones which have been well cracked, the meat, and cover with five quarts of cold water. Let simmer and follow the above directions and finish in the same way.

Peas soup.—Take a pound of peas and a pound of beef or mutton. Put them in a large pot with a little salt and water. Cook until the peas are soft, then add a little butter and a little onion. Cook until the soup is thick and creamy.

A puree is a thick soup. For the preparation of this soup a sieve and wooden spoons are necessary as the vegetables if put through the sieve become fine enough to be well blended and does not sink to the bottom of the kettle. The milk is slightly thickened and holds the fine particles of vegetable in suspension.

"In a large part the insubordination of servants arises from the growing sense of unwillingness to be directed and governed by the individual. It is the spirit of the age which rebels against the dictates of the individual but submits freely to the despotism of an organization."

SEASONABLE DISHES

When fresh fruits are plentiful one need not ask what to have for dessert, for there is nothing more acceptable than a dish of fresh berries, or fruit of any kind. They are more wholesome than rich pastry and puddings.

For variety one may like to try:

Strawberry Fluff.—Put one egg white, one cupful of powdered sugar and one cupful of strawberries into a deep bowl. Whip with a Dover egg beater until the mixture is stiff enough to stand up and keep its shape. It will take about twenty minutes' beating. Serve in sherbet cups with a little custard for a sauce.

Scalloped Celery.—Cook two cupfuls of celery in water to cover, until tender. Save one cupful of the stock; add to it one cupful of milk. Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; add two of flour and when well mixed add the milk and stock. Cook until smooth and thick; season well with salt and pepper, then add the cooked celery and one-half cupful of cheese. Line a buttered baking dish with buttered bread crumbs, pour in the celery and sauce and cover with crumbs. The dish may be prepared in layers of celery, cheese and sauce, if preferred.

Nut Timbale.—Melt two tablespoonfuls of butter; add one cupful of soft bread crumbs and three-quarters of a cupful of milk; cook until smooth. Add one cupful of nut meats, one tablespoonful of minced parsley and two eggs, well beaten. Season with salt and pepper. Fill buttered individual molds two-thirds full, set in a pan of hot water and bake 20 minutes, covered with a buttered paper.

Chicken à la Reine.—Melt four tablespoonfuls of butter; add three tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well blended add three cupfuls of milk; stir and cook slowly, then add two cupfuls of diced chicken, one-half cupful of mushrooms, one cupful of asparagus tips, one-fourth cupful of pimientos minced, one teaspoonful of salt, a dash of mustard and paprika. Keep hot over hot water until ready to serve.

Too Expensive. "Throw any old shoes at the bride?" "Not much. If I had any old shoes to throw away I'd get 'em fixed up and wear 'em."

False Claims.

WE hope there is no Mother who thinks she can treat her sick baby without calling in a Physician, or with remedies that she uses for herself.

Most Mothers know that Baby requires remedies especially prepared for babies, yet there are some who think that what is good enough for them is good enough for Baby, and it is to these Mothers we appeal to give nothing to their babies that is not specially prepared for babies or recommended by their Physician.

False claims may kill, but false claims can never restore your child.

For over thirty years Fletcher's Castoria has been aiding in the reduction of the deaths among infants as Mothers have become more and more acquainted with it. Always keep it in the house.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Mothers Must Use Care.

Why do we so often call your attention to imitations of Fletcher's Castoria? Because it is a baby's medicine and imitations are always dangerous, particularly imitations of a remedy for infants.

Your druggist may not keep an imitation but they are to be found on drug-store shelves. Reliable druggists think only of the welfare of their customers. The other kind only of the greater profit to be made on imitations.

Your own judgment tells you that Fletcher's Castoria having for over thirty years at great expense held up its reputation, must jealously guard it. Then, it follows that this company must use the very best of material. Must employ experts in the selection of the herbs. Must retain skilled chemists in its manufacture.

Your same good judgment must tell you that these irresponsible imitators are trading on your credulity and the reputation built up by Mr. Fletcher, during all these years, for his Castoria.

Film Prints.

"Are you striving to leave footprints in the sands of time?" inquired the constituent.

"Footprints in the sands of time mean nothing nowadays," replied Senator Sorghum. "The object at present is to do something that will enable posterity to say, 'That's the fellow,' when they see your face in a moving picture film."

SAY "DIAMOND DYES"

Don't streak or ruin your material in a poor dye. Insist on "Diamond Dyes." Easy directions in package.

"CORN"

Lift Right Off Without Pain

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

ITCH!

A WAR-TIME ILL THAT'S SPREADING HUNT'S SALVE CURES IT!

BRED in the war trenches of Europe, a wave of terrible itching disease, has always prevailed, following wars and the concentration of armies. It was common during the Civil War and following that conflict. There was an epidemic of the Itch after the Spanish-American War. Now history is repeating itself after the great European struggle.

Returned soldiers and those with whom they come in contact will find a recognized remedy for the Itch in Hunt's Salve, commonly known as "Hunt's Itch Cure." Many a veteran of the late '90's will testify to its merits.

If directions are followed, HUNT'S SALVE will prove a never failing cure for all forms of the Itch, and your druggist will tell you so. He sells HUNT'S SALVE under a strict guarantee to refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied user.

A Medford, Oklahoma man, among thousands who praise HUNT'S SALVE, says:

"Some people dislike to call it the Itch, but cancer compels me to admit. I had it badly. Your Hunt's Salve, however, cured me after many other remedies had totally failed. One box completed the cure—the first application afforded wonderful relief. My advice to those who have to scratch, is to use Hunt's Salve."

Hunt's Salve is especially compounded for the treatment of Itch, Eczema, Ringworm, Tetter and other itching skin diseases and is sold on our guarantee by all reliable drug stores, or it will be sent direct by mail if your local druggist cannot supply. Price 50c per box.

COX AND ROOSEVELT NAMED AT FRISCO

After a week's hard battling, during which 44 ballots were taken, the democratic national convention in session at San Francisco, named Governor Cox of Ohio, as candidate for president, and Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York as candidate for vice-president. While the contests over the nomination were spirited and the friends of the "big three" candidates battled for dates, the final result gave general satisfaction among the delegates and also among members of the party throughout the country.

On the final vote, for president, the Michigan delegation stood 18 for Cox and 12 for McAdoo.

The irreconcilable McAdoo delegates were Dr. Emma Bower, Port Huron, H. J. Abbott, postmaster of Ann Arbor, Frank O. Gaffney, postmaster of Cadillac, Charles O. Misner of Grand Haven, W. A. Rabike of Alma, Dr. G. S. Herkimer of Dowagiac, Dr. B. R. Hoyt of Detroit, Judge Albert Widdes of Tawas City, Robert H. Rayburn of Alpena.

The first delegates who went to Cox was Edmund C. Shields of Lansing, who, having voted for his personal friend, Vice-President, Marshall, upon three ballots, went to Cox and remained steady for Cox to the finish.

Dr. August McLean, who was counted as a McAdoo leader in the Michigan contingent, departed from the convention city on the evening before the voting began and Miss Geraldine Sheehan of Detroit, who was Dr. McLean's alternate, voted consistently for Palmer until his withdrawal and then voted for Davis of West Virginia for several ballots.

STATE POLICE ON WATCH.

During the past month members of the State Police have been busily engaged in the vicinity of Howell, Michigan, Fowlerville and Brighton, looking up on auto drivers who were not equipped with drivers' licenses and 1920 plates. As a result of the activities of the State officers, between 20 and 40 auto drivers were arrested and paid fines. Licenses show that a large number of persons have applied for their proper license since the State Police troopers began the work of checking up—State Trooper.

10 CELLS ADDED TO WAYNE JAIL.

Additions to the county jail just completed by the Van Dorn from works of Cleveland provide accommodations for approximately 132 prisoners.

Eight cells have been added on the fourth floor in the women's block, a receiving or riot cell has been placed in the basement, which will accommodate 100 prisoners, and a new "dark cell" has been installed.

Walter Johnson, superintendent of construction, says he has spent the last 30 years in buildings, jails and prisons, commented favorably on the Wayne county jail.

"I have been in hundreds of jails," he said. "Some, but not many, are as old as this one, but I want to say emphatically that I have never seen a jail so well kept. It radiates cleanliness, and the discipline is wonderful."—Detroit News.
