FORD INTERESTS TO PRODUCE A NEW CAR

Exit the familiar "river" whose famous motor has chugged along over highways and byways for so these many years without change of design. Enter a new machine bearing the hallmarks of Henry Ford—a machine which now is almost ready to be used as the pattern for millions like it to supplant the present well known motor car.

Enter, also the Ford interests as coal-mine operators through the purchase of a Kentucky coal corporation. These developments in the Ford expansion program became known Friday. As far as announced this program includes ownership of the Detroit Toledo & Ironton railroad and of large timber and iron tracts in the upper peninsula besides the blast furnace and several automobile and tractor factories. With this acquisition of raw material and fuel supplies and a transportation medium comes the announcement of a new type of automobile.

Vibrationless Engine

For a long time Henry Ford has been perfecting a new automobile, different in many ways from the present machine being turned out by the Ford organization, and the machine now is almost ready to receive the final approval of the motor car wizard.

One of the biggest differences between the new automobile and the river is in the motor—in which, it is asserted, Ford has gained to do away with every particle of vibration. The body of the car will be entirely of metal, no wood entering into its construction at any point.

Down on the shore of the River Rouge, in a workshop close to the Ford mansion, in Dearborn, the work of perfecting the new Ford car has gone forward for months and it is said the experiments have reached the point where the introduction of the new model is a matter of only a short time.

The workshop is being run on power generated by the river through turbines motors, and Henry Ford is in close touch with every move that is made in the place.

The new model of automobile was one of the ideals of Henry Ford when he started to obtain control of the entire Ford Motor company stock within the Ford family. As soon as he obtained control, he began work on the new machine free from the fear of injunctions or other embarrassments which might prevent him from putting his plans into execution.

The Ford ideal is a three-fold plan and to bring the plan to fruition the motor magnate has plunged into his recent enormous debts which have given him control of his own lumber, coal, steel blast furnaces and a railroad.

Ford's aim is confined to the closest to him in his enterprises is perfect and scatter to every corner of the world three articles—a tractor, a truck and a touring car, and in recent years he has been tirelessly experimenting to make his ideal a practical fact.

As a part of the plan, Ford is obtaining water power stations in every section of the country, and he plans to scatter assembling plants and parts factories in every locality and let the farmers make their own machines in these outlying plants in the winter months, when work on the farm is slack.

The Ford Motor company takes control of the mine operated by the Banner Ford Coal corporation in Harlan county, Kentucky, by a deal which was closed Friday. The motor company paid $1,500,000 for the mine, $1,000,000 of which was paid in cash and the remainder in notes.

Frank L. Klingensmith, vice-president of the Ford company, said Friday evening that all purchase of the mine would in no way have a tendency to relieve conditions in Detroit. All the coal produced from the mine is bituminous and its total output will only meet one-quarter of the demands of the various Ford plants in Detroit. Mr. Klingensmith announced.

The coal mine purchased by the Ford company produces exceptionally good coal for manufacturing purposes, prominent coal dealers said Friday night.

Mrs. E. A. Kohler entertained her mother, Mrs. H. R. Merrell, and her sister, Mrs. Maude Allen, Mrs. Eva Gathfield, Mrs. Clark Porter, Mrs. Ralph Reylea and son, all of Detroit, last Friday. They attended the O. E. S. meeting with Mrs. Kohler, the same evening.

CHAUTAUQUA OPENS NEXT WEDNESDAY

On Wednesday next Northville's Chautauqua will open a five days' program under a spacious tent to be erected in Chautauqua Park on Cady street. Ray Van Valkenburg is chairman of the ticket committee and all who subscribed for tickets last year are urged to get their tickets as early as possible. This is strictly a community affair and all are cordially invited to attend the splendid lectures and entertainments to be given. In standing back of this enterprise financially a committee of citizens are bringing to Northville a most delightful treat and one that will afford the people of this section five days of high-class entertainment.

The season's tickets for the whole course will cost $3.00 for adults and $1.00 for children under fourteen years of age. To this will be added ten per cent war-tax.

The Chautauqua will open on Thursday afternoon with a popular concert by the Clifford Foote Trio and a lecture by Roland A. Nichols upon the theme "The Man Worth While." The afternoon concerts will open at 2:30 and the evening entertainments will begin at 8:15. The Junior Chautauqua will convene each morning at 9:00 and all the boys and girls of the community are urged to be on hand promptly each day.

ELTING-JOHNSTON.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. George Johnston on Center street was the scene of an attractive wedding Saturday afternoon, at three o'clock, when their daughter, Miss Cecil A. Johnston became the bride of T. Harold Elting of Tekonsha. Mrs. Wallace Ross played Lohengrin's wedding march as the bridal party took their places beneath a bower of palms and ferns. Rev. H. J. B. Marsh performed the ceremony in the presence of a small company of relatives and friends. The bride wore a beautiful gown of white satin and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and gypsophylls. She was attended by her sister, Miss Marion Johnston, who was becomingly dressed in white organdie and carried pink roses and gypsophylls. Ray E. Smith of Plymouth was the groom's attendant.

After the ceremony a two course wedding supper was served. The house was prettily decorated in pink and white and banks of green foliage were used effectively. Later Mr. and Mrs. Elting left for a wedding trip to Little Creek and Morrison Lake.

The bride is a graduate of Northville high school, speaks Normal and the C. of V. and has been a successful teacher in various parts of the state. The groom has a position with the Biscoe Motor Co. at Jackson, and will reside in that city.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. W. Elting and daughter, Rachel of Tekonsha, Mrs. Wm. Bel. of Battle Creek, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tyrell, Mrs. W. Brown of Rochester, Mrs. Leslie Davis of Pontiac and Mrs. C. A. Failing of Ann Arbor.

REMOVING TELEPHONE POLES.

The Michigan State Telephone Co. has a crew of men in Northville removing the poles from Main street through the business section—from Wing to Church street. Poles at the lower end of Main street will be moved over nearer to the sidewalk. This work will entail an expense of about $3,500 and will make a great improvement in the appearance of our main thoroughfare.

The Michigan Telephone company is striving in every way possible to improve the service, both in town and country, and patrons are urged to suggest any means by which improvements in the system and the service might be made.

HELD AN ENJOYABLE MEETING.

Orient Chapter, O. E. S., held a most enjoyable special meeting last Friday afternoon and evening. In the afternoon degrees were conferred by the officers of the local chapter, who were assisted in the work by Mr. and Mrs. Grant Putnam of Williamston, aunt and uncle of Miss Fuller, one of the candidates. At six o'clock an appetizing dinner was served to more than 150 members and the work of the evening was taken up after a delightful social hour. The Wayne Chapter was the special guests of the occasion and the visitors conferred the degrees in the evening presenting the work in a very creditable manner.

Miss Gertrude Brown of Dundee, has been visiting in Northville, this week.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

BOLSHEVIKS FETTER LIBERTY

Theories Leaders of the Movement Lay Down and Put Into Practice, Fly in the Face of All Human Experience.

Article XXIII.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

All the world except the bolshevik rulers of Russia is old-fashioned—behind the times. We still cling to the old superstition that the people should be the sovereigns, that public officials are public servants, that the safest plan of government is that form of government which is nearest to the people. In the United States each citizen has one vote. He has a vote for the men who make the local laws, the city or village ordinances; a vote for the man who enforces the ordinances, the mayor; a vote for the representatives in the state legislature, where the laws are made; for the governor, who enforces the state laws; a vote for the congressmen and senators, who enact the national laws and formulate the national policies; a vote for the president, who carries out the supreme law of the land. While it is true that in the case of the president, we vote for electors who elect the president, there has not been a single case where an elector has voted other than he was instructed by the people. We come together in political parties, present platforms, and every citizen has a chance to register his opinion of men and measures. The citizen has a right to vote at primary elections and register his choice for the party candidates and for the delegates to the conventions which formulate the party platforms.

Bolshevik Argument Unsound

The bolsheviks point out that political parties do not live up to their platforms, that candidates for office default in their promises after they are elected; that representative democracy is frequently not representative of and responsive to the people. We know that there is some truth in this criticism, but we know that it is our fault. We have the power to express our wants, to record our will. We also have the power to punish our betrayers. We can recall from office recalcitrant public servants; we can add to our legislation and take over the power to initiate laws, and compel the reference of legislation back to the people before it can become operative law. Our public officials are only our agents; we hire them, we pay them; we can fire them, we can dismiss them if they fail to obey our instructions. Such is our power. If we do not use the power intelligently and effectively, it is our fault. If we are indifferent to the rights we possess and fail to use them, the fault is with us. Therefore, we do not condemn a system of representative government because some of the individuals who make up the government are unfit and unworthy of the rights they enjoy.

The bolsheviks appear to favor a change in the method of governing the people. The plan they have adopted is based on the theory that the people must not be trusted, but that the officeholders can. Bolshevism is government from the top down, rather than from the bottom up. They seem to go on the theory that power delegated through many hands will lose its corruption just as running water does. This political theory flies in the face of all human experience.

Bolshevik "Joker"

In our numbers we have a figure which for many years has enjoyed a peculiar reputation; it is the "jester" of numbers. It is the number "23." It is known in American slang as "Siddoo." The bolsheviks inserted in the constitution a joker, and oddly enough they gave it the "Siddoo" number, "23." It is found in Article 2 of the constitution:

"Being guided by the interest of the working class as a whole, the Russian Socialist Federal Soviet Republic deprives all individuals and groups of all rights which could be utilized by them to the detriment of the socialist revolution."

Here is the big beware sign in the constitution. What does it mean? What fears must come into the minds of men and women in Russia when they read this paragraph? The constitution deprives every one individually and collectively, of exercising any rights he or they may have which are opposed to bolshevism. Did you ever imagine a more arbitrary, autocratic abuse? The paragraph declares that individuals and groups have rights, and then commands the people not to dare use those rights, if their exercise might be detrimental to the Lenin-Trotsky government. The right to voice thoughts is sentenced to silence. Freedom of opinion is crushed. Who is to determine what rights, if exercised, might be detrimental to a socialist revolution? The meaning is as plain as the command is stern. Fall in line with bolshevism or perish, is the order. If you disagree with our plans and methods, "be seen but not heard."

I wonder what our good friends, the militant soap boxers, who shout about freedom of speech, would think and say if in these days of unrest, the congress of the United States and the president should make such a pronouncement. America, radical and conservative, would rise in protest against any such law. We live, grow and progress as a people because of our freedom of thought, speech and action. Of course, we silence the man who criminally advocates lawlessness, and we do it for the same reason that we arrest the man who spits on the sidewalk. It is to conserve the public welfare, the common good of the great majority who do not believe in violence and disorder. What would happen to our "Red" agitators if they were in Russia today instead of in the United States, and ventured a single disagreement with the bolshevik program, either in policy or methods? This constitutional provision is not a muffler on free speech, it is a gag.

What freedom can there be in a country in which opinion is shackled? How can a nation make progress except by the conflict and friction of opinion? In the United States, experience has taught us that the majority is "generally right, that the way can be trusted. We have put into practice the idea that many heads are better than one. The bolshevik constitution launches the policy that wisdom can only come from a few minds—the fewer, the better. This is the method they adopted to socialize freedom of thought, freedom of speech. It means a compulsion of ideas, but a very limited communism. In fact, limited to the "Holy Seventeen," and the orator-dictator. The people are outside the circumference of this communism. In their zone communism commands obedience and silence. The human race has fought many a fine fight to take the fetters from the minds of men, and no fight was ever made for a more essential liberty. When the mind of man is not free, what freedom can there be? The falling of the bolt, serious as it is, is only a small interference with man's liberty compared with the imprisonment of his mind.

This constitutional clamp muzzle the press. Notwithstanding all the criticism which may be justly made against the press, the fact remains that the newspapers of the world have been a great force for good, a great power in securing freedom. We see the world through the eyes of the newspapers; it is our source of information. We depend upon it for the facts upon which we base our opinions. Notwithstanding the bitter partisan character of the press, few papers know party lines or party prejudice when the public interest is menaced. The press has thrown the searchlight of terrible publicity on the ratholes and driven out the politicians. The freedom of the press is indispensable to free government.

Lenine's Change of Heart

Lenine, before he came into power, was the loudest voice in Russia, crying for free speech. This pen had been most bitter against interference with the freedom of the press. In his pamphlet "Lesson of Revolution," he wrote:

"The printing establishments of the labor press are raided. The bolsheviks are arrested, not infrequently without accusation or on the pretext of charges which are simply calumnies. It may be argued that the prosecution of the bolsheviks is by no means a violation of free speech, since only certain persons on specific charges are thus prosecuted. But such arguments bear the earmarks of premeditated untruth. For why should print offices be raided, newspapers suppressed, for the crimes of individuals, even if these crimes are proven and sustained by law? If it would be altogether different if the government declared criminal the entire bolshevik party, its ideas and views. But everyone knows that the government of free Russia never could, and indeed never attempted to do anything of the kind."

Lenine coming into power, wrote into the constitution a new crime. He declared all opposition to the bolshevik program a crime. On this high moral ground he struck down freedom of thought, freedom of speech, freedom of opinion and freedom of the press.

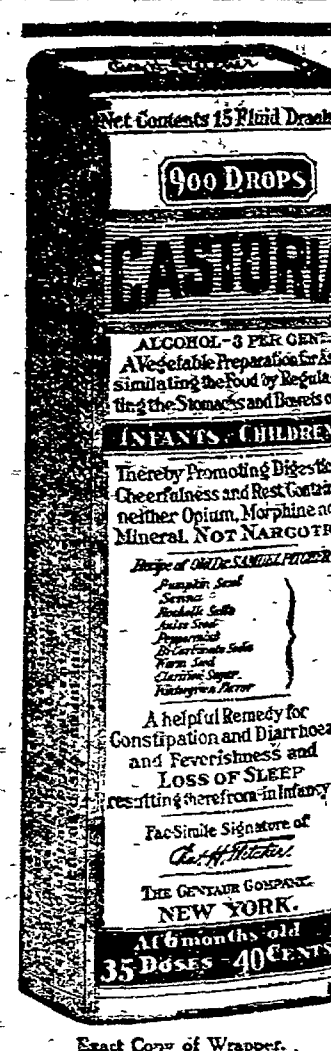

In the language of a great radical, the line will come when the silence of the people of Russia will be more powerful than the voices throttled by the bolshevik gag today. (Copyright 1920, Western Newspaper Union)

Message for Today

By far the greater part of the suffering and crime which exist at this moment in civilized Europe arises simply from people not understanding this truth—not knowing that produce or wealth is eternally connected by the laws of heaven and earth with resource labor; but hoping in some way to cheat or abrogate this everlasting law of life, and to feed where they have not sown, and be warm where they have not woven. I repeat, nearly all our misery and crime result from this one misapprehension—Russia.

French to Pay More for Bread

Joseph J. B. E. Momen, French minister of provisions, announced to the credit committee of the chamber of deputies that the government would advance the price of wheat to millers from 43 to 75 francs a metric hundred weight and of flour to 91 francs, the government ceasing to absorb the difference in price. This will raise the price of a two-pound loaf of bread in Paris from 55 to 90 centimes and in the provinces from 60 centimes to 95 centimes.

Children Cry For Fletcher's CASTORIA

Special Care of Baby.

That Baby should have a bed of its own all are agreed. Yet it is more reasonable for an infant to sleep with grown-ups than to use a man's medicine in an attempt to regulate the delicate organism of that same infant. Either practice is to be shunned. Neither would be tolerated by specialists in children's diseases.

Your Physician will tell you that Baby's medicine must be prepared with even greater care than Baby's food.

A Baby's stomach when in good health is too often disarranged by improper food. Could you for a moment, then, think of giving to your ailing child anything but a medicine especially prepared for Infants and Children? Don't be deceived.

Make a mental note of this:—It is important, Mothers, that you should remember that to function well, the digestive organs of your Baby must receive special care. No Baby is so abnormal that the desired results may be had from the use of medicines primarily prepared for grown-ups.

A very enjoyable day was spent by the Baptist Sunday school at its annual picnic at Walled Lake last Monday. There was bathing, races, base ball and other games and not two hearty meals which seemed to be the best ever. There was a good turn out. The fun was good, the sports were good, the food was good, the trip was good and all the people were very good.

The Ladies' Aid of this church will have a bake sale at Huff's hardware store next Saturday morning.

WILL PLAY WAYNE SUNDAY.

SCHOOLS TO RECEIVE LARGE SUM.

On the basis of 955,000 children of school age in the state, there will be distributed this year from the primary school fund $10 per capita as compared with $7.70 last year. This is the largest primary school fund distribution since 1906, the year the law was upheld by the court. That year it was $12 per capita it is stated by the auditor general, who makes the apportionment.

SHERIFF SEEKS BOAT AS WHISKY PATROL.

Sheriff Irving J. Coffin will ask the board of auditors for an appropriation with which to purchase a motor boat for patrolling the river below Detroit against rum runners.

The sheriff said Tuesday that there are at least 25 places at which liquor is being landed in the down-river districts and despite all his men were able to do ashore liquor still was coming in. Saturday night men were stationed at four points where landing of rum runners were expected, but the liquor was taken ashore at Wyandotte. With a boat the sheriff believes he will be able to patrol the river and prevent much of the smuggling.

A great deal of the liquor brought from Canada is not received by professional bootleggers, according to the sheriff, but is delivered to chauffeurs. Many times his men have seen automobiles in localities under suspicion. He believes these cars are receiving the liquor.—Free Press.

The posting of bills and placards on the telephone and electric light poles in this village should be prohibited by village ordinance. There is no need of making every pole in town an advertising bill board.

AN OVERGROWN BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

Detroit, acting under the provisions of the new state law, is preparing to increase its representation in the Wayne county board of supervisors from 37 to 65 members, so that its voice in determining appropriations may be potent in proportion to its preponderance of population. This move is really unavoidable because of the steps the townships already have taken to increase their representation; and were the city to neglect its rights it might soon find itself subjected to taxation according to the whim of rural supervisors.

However, the increase is going to create a complication forecasted by the difficulties the members of the common council experienced in formulating the necessary charter amendment. In the end, the councilmen decided to recommend that the 23 new members be selected by the mayor, subject to confirmation by the council. Consequently if the amendment is passed, Detroit will have three distinct classes of representatives on the board. There will be 11 ex-officio members, made up of the city treasurer, the city clerk and the nine councilmen; 26 members chosen by the mayor as he pleases, and the new 26 members selected by the mayor but subject to confirmation by the legislative branch.

The non-descriptness is the result of an embarrassment of numbers. The board of supervisors, as a whole, is going to be a very large body when all the readjustments are complete. Including the present quota of country members there will be 96 names on the roll and actually there are likely to be well over a hundred.

Such a body as this is not, a board; it is a convention. It is altogether too large a body to be entrusted with the job of passing on the county estimates. A board of seven or nine would be much better; and the county is faced with the question whether it, and to some extent all the counties of Michigan, have not outgrown the present system of supervising board. Would it not be a good thing if the state were to consider following the example of some other commonwealths by substituting commissions for boards of supervisors at least in the more thickly settled counties.—Detroit Free Press.

GLASGOW WOULD BE GOVERNOR.

L. Glasgow of Nashville has announced himself as a candidate for governor in the republican ticket to the August primaries. Mr. Glasgow has been a successful business man in his home town for many years, during which time he served four years in the state legislature and was a member of the state tax commission for twelve years.

HEAVY LOSS BY FIRE.

Three large barns, four head of horses, tools and a large amount of grain belonging to H. Czenkusch at Walled Lake, were destroyed by fire last Friday evening. The loss was very heavy as the property was insured for only a small amount. The house also caught fire but the blaze was extinguished before any great damage was done.

Mr. Czenkusch declares he is positive that the fire was started by a man he recently discharged, and a warrant has been sworn out for his arrest. The grain was still smoldering Thursday afternoon.

The Secret of a Superlative Tire

The whole question of a super-tire is a matter of principles. For there is nothing exclusive in the industry. No patents, no secret formulas prevent a conscientious maker from building the best.

But cost and competition modify ideals. The Brunswick idea is to pay perfection's price and get it.

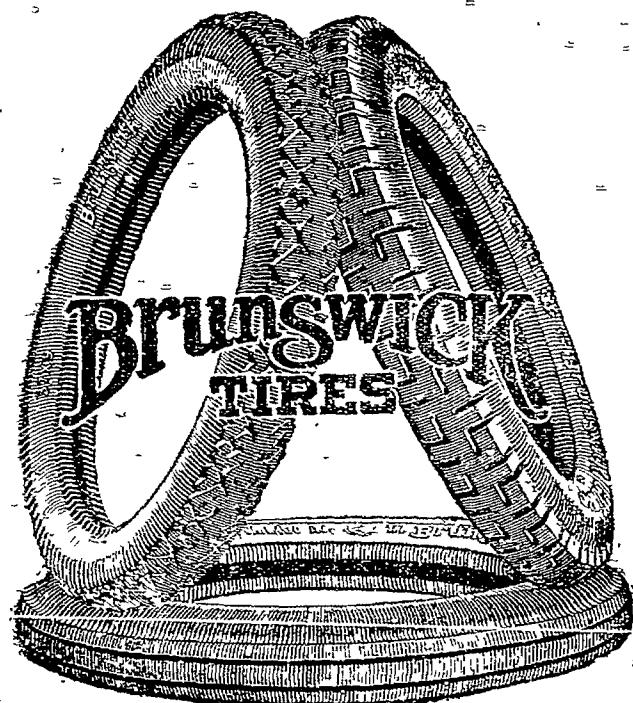

That has been the Brunswick policy since 1845. And it accounts for the growing preference for Brunswick Tires. Motorists expect the utmost from a tire bearing the name of Brunswick—and get it.

You, too, will be convinced by your first Brunswick. That here is an extraordinary tire, and that more money cannot buy a better.

Better tires of their type are impossible—or better tubes. That we guarantee.

POLICE MESSAGES HAVE RIGHT OF WAY

TELEPHONE COMPANY RECOGNIZES EMERGENCY NATURE OF CALLS FOR STATE TROOPERS.

An arrangement has been made by the State Police with the Michigan State Telephone Company whereby messages to or from the State Police stations are given right of way over other traffic. This is necessary because it is important that the State Police receive notification promptly of robberies and other crimes so that they may start in pursuit of the law-breakers without delay. In other cases, a call in sent in where some disorder or act of lawlessness is feared and there have been scores of cases where such a call resulted in bringing the State Police to the scene in time to avert trouble.

Major Roy C. Vandercook, who recently retired from the command of the state troopers, perfected a system for use on the regular patrol routes of the State Police whereby farmers and storekeepers may notify either the nearest State Police station or the trooper on the patrol of the presence of suspicious characters or of other facts which are essential that the troopers know.

The fact that many instances have occurred of criminals using motor cars in committing their depredations in the agricultural districts has made the telephone an important adjunct in helping the state troopers to take preventive measures and to head off escaping law-breakers.

ROTARIANS GIVE PRAISE TO STATE'S CONSTABULARY

YPSILANTI EDITOR TELLS WHY MICHIGAN NEEDS A TRAINED FORCE TO PRESERVE LAW.

In Ypsilanti the Rotarians get out a little paper, called "The Rotary Truth-teller." The other day the Michigan State Police came in for its share of comment in the editorial column of this snappy publication. The general tone of the editorial is so refreshing that it is reprinted here in full. It is only a typical example of the opinion which thinking business men of Michigan have of the State Police. The editorial is as follows:

"The best argument for a State Police is that some people don't want 'em."

"The radical labor unionist, who expects to start the customary rough house this summer is disturbed at the thought of having a hunky fellow with the big stick and the business-like manner standing around in his way. He prefers arson, thuggery and murder. He doesn't believe in the State Police, the National Guard, law, decency, or God."

"What he wants is a comfortable brand of politician-sherrifs and tin-star deputies, sitting around the courthouse swapping stories."

"The honest citizen who is opposed to the State Police idea because he is afraid it may cost something, finds himself with strange bed-fellows."

"The farmer who thinks he is not getting any protection from the State Police needs to yell for more of them instead of holding a prayer meeting with the thugs, bootleggers and W's."

PROMPTNESS STOPS FIRE WHICH THREATENED WOODS

Captain C. E. Wakeman received a call from District Forest and Game Warden Crow the other day and Troopers Cooney and Cole were sent to his assistance. They found a fire raging which had been caused by a passing train, and before it could be extinguished it had burned over twelve acres in East Bay township, Grand Traverse county. This fire would have proven a most expensive one had it not been subdued immediately owing to the fact that there was a strong wind from the southwest which headed the flames directly towards a nice stand of second-growth pine covering more than thirty-five acres. The flames had reached the very edge of this timber when the fire was placed under control. From now on much of the attention of the State Police will be directed to fighting such fires which break out every year.

PRESENCE OF TROOPERS CHECKS TIDE OF CRIME

During the past few months the large white frame house at Hudson, which is used as the headquarters of the State Police detachment located there, has been the scene of much activity. The constabulary was appealed to after a bandit band operating out of Toledo had terrorized the vicinity for some time. Several towns had been raided by these outlaws and after a series of farm robberies at Deerfield, Holloway, Addison and Rockford, Corp. Doty and three troopers were sent to Hudson. They took up their quarters in this roomy white frame house and since that time there has not been a single robbery. Further to safeguard the community 28 citizens of Hudson were recently sworn in as special deputies.

Ravens of Tower of London.

The ravens are an institution in the Tower of London, although there is no record that they are one of its historic features. One of the yeoman warders has charge of the ravens, giving each a particular name, such as "James Crow," "thief," "if it splits the character of the bird."

Talks on Russia--4th Day

"Russia's Red Riddle"—Dr. Joseph Clare's Subject.

DR. JOSEPH CLARE.

It is a fortunate turn of affairs which makes Dr. Joseph Clare available for lectures at this particular time. For six years Dr. Clare was in Petrograd, Russia, and had the best possible opportunity to observe the progress of events in that country. He is one of the few men who are qualified to speak on the great problems growing out of the upheaval and turmoil there, and Community Chautauquas are bringing him from Europe to speak to Community audiences.

Dr. Clare was on the streets of Petrograd in the very heart of the Revolution and his story, "Russia's Red Riddle," is a very thrilling one. He tells of his dealings with the well known Russian leader, Lenin, with Bolshevik prisoners, with Cosacks, in fact there is not an angle of the colossal Russian problem on which Dr. Clare is unable to enlighten.

The interesting speaker appears here on the fourth day of our Community Chautauqua and his lecture, "Russia's Red Riddle," is bound to thrill and hold the attention of every one.

FARMERS' DAY SET FOR EARLY AUGUST.

A big summer meeting of Farmers' Day will be held at the Michigan Agricultural college early in August, according to plans just announced from the agricultural division of the college. The meeting will be a general one, including consideration of farm crops and soils subjects, and is an expansion of the plans for a special Soils Day, announced earlier in the summer.

Speakers of national reputation on both crops and soils matters will address the general meeting of the day. Included among these will be Brother Leo, manager of the farm at Notre Dame University. Brother Leo has a wide reputation as a farm management authority and is a specialist in the improvement of depleted soils.

FOURTH SHOOT-A SUCCESS.

Fourth shoot a success? Just ask anyone who attended. Twelve men shot through the regular program. Some very fine scores were turned in. Merle Murray, winner of the club trophy last year, looks like a real contender for the same honor this season. Merle Murray and George Stanley turned in the only straight runs of the day. A twenty yard handicap event attracted six shooters, and showed well on the score sheets. This event was won by A. Baldeu with an eight per cent score.

Nide shootouts started the membership roll moving, by signing up for the 1920 season. We expect to eventually build up to fifty members. Now is the time to come in. The annual dues are three dollars.

Owing to the fact that the name Plymouth & Northville Gun club was too long, the permanent name for the club in the future will be The United Gun Club. This will be much better than the unwieldy name used up to the present.

Scores for the regular event are:

M. Murray	46
G. Stanley	45
F. Hills	44
M. Powell	44
M. Brigham	42
J. Patterson	40
H. Passage	40
A. Baldeu	36
W. Murray	33
A. Hall	29
C. Merritt	27
W. Hills	23

The handicap event shot at 20 yards resulted in the following score:

A. Baldeu	22 x 25
F. Hills	21 x 25
M. Powell	21 x 25
H. Passage	20 x 25
G. Stanley	18 x 25
J. Patterson	17 x 25

Our next regular shoot will be held August 1, and the big registered shoot will be held September 25. Don't forget the dates.

E. PASSAGE, Sec-Treas.

TO ENFORCE DOG LAW.

The state police has for one of its jobs this summer the task of assisting in the enforcement of the law passed at the last legislature providing for tighter supervision of dogs in order to protect the growing sheep breeding industry of the state. It is estimated by H. B. Halladay, commissioner of the state department of animal industry that the new license fee and requirements have been complied with by the owners of about 200,000 dogs in the state and that there are 100,000 unlicensed dogs at liberty.

Under the plan as worked out the state police are assisting in checking up in all counties where their services are required for and in counties where local sheriffs have failed to enforce the law. In one county in the past two weeks about one hundred unlicensed dogs were located and the license collected or the dog killed. In all two or three instances was it necessary to kill the dog; in those the owner expressed no interest in saving the animal but said he would not have it killed than pay. Along with the check-up on the dogs the state police devote sufficient time to the recent dog owner to explain the law and its provisions. It is hoped will be carried out in all counties where there are complaints. It is to the number of unlicensed dogs.

Shooting the Mines.

The U. S. Mine Sweeping Detachment has just returned from its work in the North Seas. The ever present danger of floating mines was counteracted by the sharp eyesight of the men who were behind the guns. Their job was to pick off the mines as they appeared and explode them by direct hits. The lives of the other men aboard and the safety of the ship depended on their keenness.

A large proportion of the 55,000 mines laid in the North Seas by the U. S. Navy was destroyed in this way. This is just one of the jobs that comes in the career of a U. S. sailor; one of the experiences that gives him a grip on himself and makes him a regular fellow.

Score One for Employer.

A Kansas City man received four very nice presents on his birthday early this week, a silk shirt, a pair of gloves, and a pair of silk hose. The shirt, given him by his wife, was size 15½—he wears 14½; the gloves, selected by his mother, were size 6—he wears 7½; the socks, from his brother, were size 12—he wears 10. His employer, however, who has known him more intimately for several years, sent out a box of soft collars which fit him exactly.

True Lotus and the Lotus of Poetry. Neither the true lotus of ancient Egypt nor the sacred lotus of the Orient must be confused with the plant referred to in Tennyson's poem, which was the jubebe, a prickly shrub bearing fruits resembling a plum or date, and much used as a dessert. Homer describes the wandering Ulysses as arriving at the coast of Libya, where many of his soldiers perished of the jubebe fruits and immediately lost their desire to return to home and friends. —Journal of the New York Botanical Gardens

RIZAL, FILIPINO MARTYR, WROTE REMARKABLE POEM

By FORMER CONGRESSMAN CLYDE H. TAVENNER.

DR. JOSE RIZAL,
The Filipino Patriot.

Every year June 19 is celebrated by Filipinos as the anniversary of the birthday of the Filipino martyr, Dr. Jose Rizal, regarded as the greatest man the Malay race has produced. Rizal, who spoke seven languages and was a cultured and much traveled man (on one occasion he traveled across the United States), earned the enmity of Spanish governors in the Philippines by protesting against the oppression of the Filipino people. As a boy he had witnessed scenes that sent shafts of grief into his poet soul, and he early dedicated his life to the liberation of his "land adored." At the risk of his life, and at the sacrifice of his career, friends and loved ones, he became the spokesman for the stifled grievances of the voiceless multitude, and thus became "the living indictment of Spain's wretched colonial system."

Rizal could have saved his life, as he had been warned by friends not to return to the islands. He could not be dissuaded, but before returning to Manila left a letter with a friend in Hongkong to be opened after his death, in which he wrote: "Gladiolus, I go to expose myself to peril, not as any expression of misdeed (for in this matter I believe myself guiltless of any), but to complete my work and myself offer the example of which I have always preached. A man ought to die for duty and his principles. I hold fast to every ideal which I have advanced as to the condition and future of our country, and shall willingly die for it. I hold duties of conscience above all else. Besides I wish to show those who deny us patriotism that we know how to die for duty and principles."

While Rizal was in Europe working for Philippine reforms, the Spanish governor-general, to indirectly punish Rizal, carried on a relentless persecution of his parents and relatives in the Philippines, driving them into exile. To his parents Rizal left a second letter saying: "Should fate go against you, you will understand that I shall die happy in the thought that my death will end all your troubles. Return to our country and may you be happy in it. Tell the last moment of my life I shall be thinking of you and wishing you all good fortune and happiness."

Rizal had meanwhile determined on having Rizal's life, foolishly thinking that his voice was stifled, agitation for the reforms he championed would not be arrested on a trumped up charge of treason and condemned to death. But no sooner had the firing squad completed its work than the victim of Rizal almost instantaneously became the passionate inspiration of the Filipino race. His unjust execution had simply transferred the indignation of Rizal to the breasts of an entire nation of people. The Filipino national movement dates from the sunny morning of December 30, 1896, when Rizal was led forth from his prison to willingly give as he believed for his country's redemption.

While in the Philippines recently the conviction was ever present in my mind and I could not throw it off, that the real inspiration as well as the poet of Jose Rizal. The memory of Rizal and the desire for independence seem to be synonymous in the mind of the average Filipino. Rizal is the inspiration of all classes, of old and young, of all the people he is not dead for his spirit is everywhere in that beautiful land. His picture adorns the homes of the poorest families, streets, avenues and plazas are named in his honor, while his statue stands in the parks and public squares. In life Rizal was a beautiful character, kind and considerate of all, gladly giving his life for his country, and in memory he has become the national idol. With such a spirit as its national inspiration the Philippines can not help but reach in this way to dreamed of.

While awaiting death in his cell during his last night on earth Rizal wrote a remarkable poem, "My Last Farewell." He secreted the manuscript in an alcohol cooking lamp, where it was found after his execution. It follows:

MY LAST FAREWELL

By DR. JOSE RIZAL.

Farewell, dear fatherland, adieu of the
And here I stand in purity, my last
Farewell, dear fatherland, adieu of the
And here I stand in purity, my last
Farewell, dear fatherland, adieu of the
And here I stand in purity, my last

On the field of battle, amidst the frenzy of
The war, I stand in purity, my last
Farewell, dear fatherland, adieu of the
And here I stand in purity, my last
Farewell, dear fatherland, adieu of the
And here I stand in purity, my last

I stand when I see the dawn break
Through the gloom of night, to herald the
And I stand when I see the dawn break
Through the gloom of night, to herald the

My fatherland, when I see the dawn break
Through the gloom of night, to herald the
And I stand when I see the dawn break
Through the gloom of night, to herald the

Dream of my life, my living and burning
Desire, all hail, cries the soul, that is now to take
All hail, and sweet is for thee to expire!
To die for thy sake that thou may'st aspire.

If over my grave some day thou seest grow
In the grassy soil a humble flower,
Draw it to thy lips and kiss my soul so
While I may feel my brow in the cold tomb below.

The touch of the tenderness, thy breath's
warm flower.
Let the moon bear over me soft and Let the dawn shed over me its radiant flashes.
Let the wind with sad lament over me
sigh.
And if on my cross a bird should be seen,
Let it thrill there its hymn of peace to my ashes.

FILIPINO LEGISLATORS
DEBATE IN ENGLISH.

The English language recently was used for the first time in the debates of the Filipino House of Representatives.

The fact was cable to the United States Insular Affairs Bureau. The principal speakers were Messrs. Benitez, De Guzman and Vrata. These members are graduates from the University of the Philippines.

English is taught exclusively in the public schools of the Philippines, and it is announced, will continue to be if independence is granted. According to an estimate based on the census just completed, seventy per cent of the inhabitants of the Philippines over 10 years of age are literate. This is a higher percentage of literacy than that of any South American country.

It is frequently said that only the politicians in the Philippines want independence, but I do not think such is the case," said Dr. D. M. Gandier, superintendent of the California and Saloon League, who has just returned from the Philippines. "I have met all classes of people from various parts of the islands and all alike seem to me to desire independence. I am inclined to think that they have the ability to govern themselves. We are developing a social and political science in America and they will develop one there; and I very much doubt that they will learn as fast under present conditions as they would under complete independence. Independence in some form is bound to come and I am inclined to think that it had better come soon."

Rev. W. T. Jacques of Detroit will spend his two months' vacation at "The Oaks," the farm home of J. O. Knapp and wife.

The Northville post-office is doing a rushing business. For the year ending June 30th, the total receipts including box rent was $3,906.54.

Northville's newest industry, the American Bell Foundry, has commenced operations. The first cast as a trial, was made Monday, July 22nd, but as was expected, the patterns swelled and shrank enough to make the first bell imperfect. Though notwithstanding a hole in the one side of it its tone was very sweet far exceeding all expectations. The company expects to cast from one to forty bells a day.

SOMETHING DIFFERENT

For Chautauqua—Swiss Entertainers Coming Fourth Day.

RI DOLPH'S SWISS ENTERTAINERS

Switzerland—the land of the Alps—has sent us this lovely company, Rudolph's Swiss Entertainers. They come from that picturesque country dressed in their quaint costumes, and during in English the beautiful voling and warbling songs. In addition, they will sing popular songs which have been added to their repertoire since touring this country and Europe. Their program is replete with variety and novelty, vocal and instrumental, and will be exceedingly interesting and educational. It will not be amiss to mention the fact that good wholesome humor is woven into their entertainment.

On the fourth afternoon of our Chautauqua Rudolph's Swiss Entertainers will appear in a full concert; in the evening they will produce the big lecture by Dr. Joseph Clare.

"WHO SHOT HER?"

Synopsis—Spalding Nelson is occupying the apartments of his great-uncle, Rufus Gaston. The Gastons, leaving on a trip, tell him about mysterious noises and "whispers" that have scared them. He becomes acquainted with Barbara Bradford, who lives in the same big building. He instinctively dislikes and distrusts the superintendent, Wick. The mysteries in his apartment begin with the disappearance of the Gaston pearls from the wall safe. He decides not to call in the police, but to do his own investigating. It is soon evident that someone has access to his rooms. Becoming friendly with Barbara, he learns that her apartments are equally mysterious. She tells him that several years before her sister Claire, who lives with her, had made a run-away marriage with an adventurer, from whom she was soon parted, and the marriage had been annulled. Claire is engaged to be married and someone has stolen documents concerning the affair from the Bradford apartment and is attempting to blackmail the Bradfords. Nelson takes Miss Kelly, the telephone girl, to dinner with the idea of putting her Gorman, a hotel detective, recognizes her as the wife of Lefty Moore, a noted burglar. Nelson tells his story to Gorman and puts the case in his hands. Nelson finds a secret passage, with a panel door in his room. He realizes he loves Barbara. He and Barbara hear a shot in the building.

CHAPTER VII—Continued.

I sprang after her, but she moved so quickly that she was out of the window and safely home before I could stop her. Only waiting to see her off the ledge I turned back and hastily pulling the panel into place I dashed for the front of the house. The screams and the shot I was sure had come from the apartment directly below mine. I was certain that there had been murder done there, and my mind was made up to investigate it at once. If I moved quickly there might be an opportunity to catch the murderer red-handed. I let myself out and dashed down the one flight of stairs. As I arrived there, the ascending elevator stopped, and Mr. Wick burst out, followed by an excited elevator runner. Wick was carrying a revolver in his hand.

"Did you hear anything?" he asked excitedly.

"I heard a woman screaming in this apartment and then a shot."

"I heard it, too. In which apartment was it?"

"Right here," I said, pointing to the door.

"Miss Lutan's," he said. "Let's go in. Here's my package. You open the door. I'll be right behind you with my revolver."

CHAPTER VIII.

Inserting the key Mr. Wick handed me, I turned it sharply and flung the door wide. It revealed a luxuriously furnished apartment, the front rooms of which were extravagantly lit with light.

For a moment the three of us, Mr. Wick, the elevator boy and myself, stood there with our ears alert for any sound from the apartment. While I do not admit to being a coward, the unknown has its terrors for all of us, and I must confess that the knowledge that Mr. Wick had his revolver drawn was indeed comforting. All was silence in the place.

"John," said Wick to the elevator boy, "you stand here right by the door as I suspected, murder had been done here. I was confident that the scene of the tragedy would be the room directly under mine. The screams I had heard—and the shot—had seemed to come from under my very feet.

Although the lights in the front of the hall were burning, the sitting room was in darkness. As I reached the door, my fingers sought the button, and as the flare of light illuminated the room I looked hastily about me. There was no one there, but my one quick glance showed me that the door of the wall safe, located similarly to the one in the apartment above, was standing wide open.

Quickly I sprang to inspect the room corresponding to mine, a room. It will be recalled, opening off the sitting room. Here, too, was darkness, and as I turned on the lights, I stood aghast with horror.

On the floor, close up to the inner wall, lay the contorted body of a beautiful young woman. Her eyes were wide open and staring. One arm was twisted under her, and the other hand was clutching at the front of her bodice, where a blotch of ghastly red indicated the path of the shot that had been fired.

"It's Miss Lutan," said Mr. Wick's voice behind me.

"She's been murdered," I cried; "get the police at once."

As I bent over her to see if there was any evidence of life, I saw imprinted in her tender white throat the marks of her assailant's brutal fingers. "Come," I said, "help me lift her on to this couch, and then telephone at once for a doctor."

Mr. Wick had been all the while standing there, staring at the body as if stupefied by the tragedy, but he obeyed my directions, and with him at her feet and I at her head we laid her down on the couch, where I proceeded to loosen her gown and to try by artificial respiration to restore her blood to circulation.

"Get the doctor at once," I commanded again, "and phone for the police."

"John," called out Mr. Wick "go to the phone and tell Miss Kelly to send for Doctor Hall to come at once."

"Tell her to get the police, too," I insisted.

"And let the burglar escape while we're doing it," objected Mr. Wick. "Come on, let's look through the apartment. He may be hiding somewhere still."

Together, while the boy was phoning, we went from room to room, peering into closets and under beds. There was no one there and no traces of the murderer's presence. Even the servants' quarters were unattended. Only one thing happened that struck me as peculiar. As I started up the hall to search the bedrooms, I looked back and caught Mr. Wick hurriedly closing the wall safe. His action in surreptitiously closing this without saying anything to me made me suddenly suspicious of him. I recalled that Detective Gorman had put Mr. Wick into his circle of suspects along with the burglar's wife. Could it be possible that the superintendent of the building himself was in connivance with the band of criminals who had been harassing the Bradfords and me? I determined to watch his every move.

"There's no one here," I said, as we completed our round of the various rooms. "The murderer has made his escape. Hasn't that boy phoned for the police yet?"

Mr. Wick seemed so averse to carrying out my suggestion about the police that I think he must have sensed the suspicion in my voice.

"I think I had better ask Mr. Kent about it first," he said nervously.

"Who's Mr. Kent?" I demanded.

My thoughts were so taken up with the unexpected tragedy that the name at first meant nothing to me. Suddenly I remembered. It was to the apartment of Mr. Henry Kent that Miss Kelly had phoned last night when she was dining with me. I recalled, too, that Gorman had charged me to find out all I could about him.

"Who's Mr. Kent?" I repeated sharply. "What's he got to do with it?"

"He's the owner of the building," explained Mr. Wick. "He doesn't like the Granddeck to be mentioned in the papers. I'd say any notoriety is bad for its exclusiveness. I don't believe he'd want the police called in. In fact, sir, I'm sure he wouldn't."

"Whether he wants it or not," I said firmly, "it's got to be done. You can't keep murders out of the paper. Either you call the police right away or else I will."

My threat forced him to telephone against his will. I could quite understand his employer's aversion to having a crime in the Granddeck made public. But there was no help for it. There had been a dastardly crime committed, and the police must be informed. Yet it was not to the police that Mr. Wick was telephoning. It evidently was to Mr. Kent's apartment in the building.

"Miss Lutan's been shot by a burglar in her apartment," I heard him say,

"Mr. Nelson and me just discovered her body. What's that, sir?"

Just what Mr. Kent's reply on hearing the shocking news had been I had, of course, no means of knowing, but whatever it was, over the superintendent's face came an expression of incredulity and amazement.

"What do you think," said Mr. Wick, turning to me; "he says for me to call up Headquarters at once."

"Of course," I said; "it is the only thing to do."

Nevertheless, as Mr. Wick waited for the number, he kept shaking his head and muttering under his breath something that sounded like:

"To think of his telling me to call in the police!"

With the doctor summoned and the police sent for, there seemed to be little else for us to do but wait, so Wick and I sat down together in the rear sitting room with the elevator boy still on guard at the door.

"Who was Miss Lutan?" I asked.

"Why, Daisy Lutan, the actress," said Mr. Wick in surprise. "I supposed every one knew her."

"I've heard about her," I hastened to say, "but I had no idea that she lived in the Granddeck. Did she live here alone?"

"She keeps a maid, an old woman that has been with her for years."

"Where's the maid tonight?"

"Out to the movies, I suppose. That's where she goes every night when Miss Lutan isn't playing. When she is, she goes to the theater with her."

"Then Miss Lutan is not playing now?"

"Not for the last month."

"Had there been any one here with her tonight?"

"I'll ask the elevator boy."

"John says she came in alone about fifteen minutes ago," said Mr. Wick when he came back. "She went out when he came back. 'She went out about seven. Her own chauffeur was driving her then, but when she came back she was in a hired taxi. That's something I can't understand."

"How do you suppose the murderer escaped?"

"I was trying every avenue of questioning to see if I could not surprise Wick into some damaging admission. I was beginning to suspect that he knew far more about Miss Lutan's murder than he was telling. I felt somehow that his whole search for the man who had killed Miss Lutan had been entirely perfunctory, a bluff to deceive me. In my growing dislike for the man I felt that it would not be beyond the range of probability for Wick to have been standing guard at the door while a confederate fled the apartment."

"I'm no detective," he answered non-committally. "All I know is that he has gone. He certainly isn't here in the apartment."

It was on the tip of my tongue to suggest that we look in the secret passageway. I felt that the shock it would be to Wick to learn that I knew about this might lead him to open his lips. I felt certain that it was by way of a similar passageway to the one I had discovered in my room that the murderer had escaped. But before I could make up my mind to speak the doctor arrived.

He made a hasty inspection and then said tersely:

"There's nothing here for me to do. This woman has been dead for some time."

"How long?" I asked.

"It is impossible for me to judge—maybe twenty minutes, perhaps an hour. I should say that death was practically instantaneous. She was killed by a bullet penetrating the heart. Who shot her?"

He looked sharply from me to Mr. Wick, as if suspecting that it might have been one of us.

"A burglar got her just a few minutes ago," Mr. Wick explained. "Mr. Nelson and we heard a scream and a shot. We let ourselves in here with my pass key and found her here. It must have been a burglar that she surprised when she entered the apartment."

"It looks like it," assented the physician. "There are marks on her throat where he tried to strangle her screams. Have you notified the police?"

"Yes," said Mr. Wick.

"There's nothing more that I can do, then," said the doctor, making his preparations to depart.

"Would you not wait until the police come?" suggested the superintendent. "They'll be here any minute and probably they'll want a statement from you."

"Very well," said the doctor, "I'll

As we waited the three of us chatted about the crime and about the dead actress. From the conversation I learned that at the height of her meteoric career on Broadway Daisy Lutan had become the wife of the young son of a very rich family. His parents insisted that she had trapped him into matrimony and after long legal wrangling she had been divorced about a year ago. She had received a large sum in settlement, and this with her earnings as an actress enabled her to live in luxury.

"Haven't she a sweetheart now?" I asked.

"Better make it plural," sneered the doctor. "Women of her type always have a lot of men friends."

"No men ever came to see her here. I'm positive of that," said Mr. Wick.

"Of course not," said the doctor sarcastically. "The reputation of the Granddeck apartments must be protected at all costs."

As we talked two detectives in plain clothes arrived. They viewed the body and proceeded to question the doctor.

"How was this woman killed?"

"By a revolver shot right through the heart."

"Who is she?"

"Daisy Lutan, the actress."

"Who did it?"

"It must have been a burglar," interjected Mr. Wick. "My theory is that she came in unexpectedly and found him at work."

"Who found her?"

"These gentlemen," said the doctor, including both Mr. Wick and me with a wave of his hand.

The detectives turned to Mr. Wick first.

"Tell us about it," one of them directed.

"My name is James Wick," he began as if he was reciting a familiar lesson. "I am the superintendent of the Granddeck apartments. I was in the elevator about half an hour ago when I heard a woman screaming and then the sound of the shot. I took out my revolver and ran off at this floor to investigate. At the door I found Mr. Nelson. He told me that he had heard the screams and the shot and thought they came from this apartment. I took out my pass key and we went in."

"Were there any signs of the burglar?" asked the other man.

"No. We looked all through the apartment and found no one."

"Was anything missing?"

"I was a bit hazy with breath to hear if Wick would tell of having found the wall safe open. If he did not I felt it would be conclusive evidence that there was something he was trying to conceal."

"I didn't notice anything missing," he said bluntly. "I wouldn't know, anyhow. I don't know what stuff she had here."

"What would know?"

"Her maid, I think. She's out now. Generally she's home by eleven o'clock."

"Did she keep only the one servant?"

"Only the maid and a chauffeur."

"Then she was all alone in the apartment?"

"Yes. She'd gone out all dressed up about seven in her own car. She came home unexpectedly in a hired taxi not more than half an hour ago."

"Did she come home alone?"

"Sure she came alone. At least the taxi boys told me so. I did not see her come in, myself."

More and more I was convinced that Wick was lying. I was sure he knew far more about affairs than he was admitting. Why did he keep harping on the fact that Miss Lutan had come in unexpectedly? What means had he of knowing what time she was expected home? Furthermore he said he was in the elevator when he heard the screams and the shot. I did not believe it would have been possible for the sounds to have carried that far. The walls were all deadened, and the room where the tragedy had taken place was at the back of the house many feet distant from the elevator.

I wondered if the burglar had not been in the place with Mr. Wick's connivance, while he stood guard outside. As he heard me coming he might have taken refuge in the elevator. And why did he have his revolver so conveniently ready?

The detective who had been questioning Wick turned to me.

"Who are you?"

"Spalding Nelson."

"What do you do? Where do you work?"

"I'm a clerk."

"A clerk living at the Granddeck apartments," he sneered. "You must have a good job."

"I haven't any at present," I replied. "I'm living here in Mr. Gaston's apartment, taking care of it while he and his wife are away."

I could see that my statement that I was only a clerk and was not at present employed had not made a favorable impression on the detective.

"Will you explain what you were doing at the door of this apartment when the superintendent arrived?" he demanded with a growing suspicion in his tone.

"That's easy to explain," I retorted. "I was in my apartment directly over this one. I heard her scream and then the shot. It seemed to come from the floor right below me, so I ran down to investigate."

"Is that right?" he asked, turning to Mr. Wick.

"Yes," said Mr. Wick.

It Is Well to Remember That a Great University Is Much Like a Tree.

By LYNN HAROLD HOUGH, President Northwestern University.

One of the most delightful poems of Joyce Kilmer runs thus:

"I think that I shall never see
A poem lovely as a tree

A tree whose hungry mouth is pressed
Against the earth's sweet flowing breast—

A tree that looks to God all day,
And lifts her leafy arms to pray;

A tree that talks in summer wear
A nest of robins in her hair;

Upon whose bosom snow has lain;
Who intimately lives with rain.

Poems are made by fools like me,
But only God can make a tree."

Long before this high-spirited American poet who so gallantly gave his life in France had sung of the wonder of a tree, men had felt the majesty and the mystery of the kings of the forest. The old Scandinavian mythology had told of the great tree Yggdrasil, the tree of existence and life and knowledge. The ultimate meaning of the universe was sought in the life of a tree. The symbolism of the tree is always tempting. And for our purpose just now it is well to remember that a great university is a tree. It roots deeply in the past. It drinks eagerly the sunshine and the rain of the present. It gathers into its life the full meaning of present knowledge. It offers wonderfully friendly shade. And it bears constant fruit, which it gives with noble freedom to the world. After all there is a sense in which we can all have a share in the making of a tree. This tree of knowledge which is our own university does not grow of itself. We can swing its branches over wider areas. We can increase its productivity and its gifts of fruit to the republic and the lands beyond. What is our share in the making of this tree?

How Electrifying of Railroads Would Conserve Our Natural Resources.

By E. W. RICE, JR., Pres't American Institute Electrical Engineers.

It is estimated that something like 750,000,000 tons of coal were consumed by the railroads in the year 1917. Now we know from the result obtained from the electrical operations of railroads as we already have in this country, that it would be possible to save at least two-thirds of this coal if electric locomotives were substituted for the present steam locomotives. On this basis there would be a saving of over 100,000,000 tons of coal in one year.

It is really terrifying to realize that 25 per cent of the total amount of coal which we are digging from the earth each year is required to operate our railroads, under such inefficient conditions that an average of at least six pounds of coal is required per horse-power hour of work performed.

The same amount of coal burned in a modern central power station would produce an equivalent of three times that amount of power in the motors of an electric locomotive, even including all losses of generation and transmission from the source of power to the locomotive.

When water-power may be utilized all of the coal used for steam locomotives can be saved.

Let the United States Commandeer Her Young Men for Work on the Farms.

By C. COLVERNEUR HOFFMAN.

The United States is now in danger of a real food shortage, which conceivably might develop into a famine. To meet this United States must commandeer her youth to produce food and thus to conserve the resources of her own people.

In other words, pass such legislation in Washington as shall authorize the federal government to conscript the young men (say, all those between the ages of 18 and 30), and distribute them, centrally over the arable land of the entire country, particularly in those great tracts of the middle West and Southeast where the cultivation of essential food stuffs is promoted on the widest and most intensive scale; have them selected solely as to their physical fitness, without regard to class or sex or color, and fix their wages (to be paid by their employers) strictly according to the principles of army pay; make term of service six months, possibly a year, allowing the plan as a whole to operate just so long as the extraordinary condition of present market values continues to confront the public.

With a nation-wide menace, there must be nation-wide measures.

"Easy to Understand Why Pulpit Today Possesses So Little Influence."

By JOHN SPARGO, Socialist, in Christian Century.

Even the moral and spiritual problems of the educated and enlightened man of today are largely beyond the grasp of the minister of the church he attends. The ministerial training, environment, habits of life, and, generally, temperament, unite to produce this result.

The minister does not know from experience—except in very rare cases—anything of the problems which baffle and perplex the man of business, the public official, the professional man. Theological seminaries cannot give this knowledge; it cannot be learned from books or otherwise acquired second-hand. It can only come from personal experience—from life. Men who have not thus known the problems which beset men, their temptations and their perplexities, can give very little help to others.

When we remember these things it is easy to understand why the pulpit of today possesses so little influence.

"She Has Been Murdered," I Cried; "Get the Police at Once."

and keep your eye on the elevator. If anybody tries to sneak past you, you better for us."

"Deed I will, Mr. Wick," said the boy, with chattering teeth. "T'll-holler, all right."

"Go ahead, Mr. Nelson," said the superintendent. "I'm right behind you with the revolver."

THESE CRAZY TIMES.

"Strike and the world strikes with you, work and you work alone; our souls are ablaze with a Bolshevik craze, the wildest that ever was known. Groan and there'll be a chorus, smile and you make no hit; for we've grown long hair and we preach despair and show you a daily fight. Spend and the bang will cheer you, save and you have no friends; for we throw our bucks to birds and darts and borrow from all whells lend. Knock and you'll be a winner, boog and you'll be a frost; for the old same ways of the pre-war days are now from the program lost. Strike and the world strikes with you, work and you work alone, for we'd rather yell and raise blue hell than strive for an honest penny. Rent and you are a leader, toil and you are a nut, 'twas a bitter day when we pulled away from the old-time workday rut. Wait and there'll be a blowup, watch and you'll see a clump, and the fads and crimes of these fancy times will go to the nation's dump.—New York Sun.
