SHRINE BAND, PATROL AND CHANTERS COMING

In the bulletin issued by Moslem Shrine of Detroit for August 10th appeared the following notice relative to the visit of the Patrol to the Northville Fair, Saturday, October 2nd.

Jim Huff, member of Moslem Patrol and Chief Fence Supervisor of the Northville Fair, extends a real invitation to our Patrol, Band and Chanters to come to a big party. Exhibition drill by the Patrol, Concert by the Band and Chanters and a big banquet, all free.

Captain General Baier requests that all members of the Patrol report at 12:30 o'clock p.m. in the Masonic Temple in Arab uniform.

Harry Philip, director of Moslem's Million Dollar band, desires a full attendance for this occasion. Report at 12:30 o'clock.

Archie Jackson, director of the Chanters and Grand President of the Shrine National Chanters Organization of North America, will have not less than sixty chanters with him for this big show. Report at 12:30 p.m. Keep this date open.

STATE COMMISSION WANTS TO BE SHOWY

The Michigan State Public Utilities commission on Wednesday filed a brief with the Interstate Commerce commission asking it "not" to authorize Henry Ford to construct a connecting link between his Detroit Toledo & Ironroad and the Detroit Terminal railroad with the Michigan law regarding issuance of stock had been complied with, according to a Lansing dispatch to the Detroit News.

Mr. Ford's representatives in asking for the commission at Washington for permission to build the connecting link, said it would facilitate coal and other shipments into the state.

State officials point out, according to the dispatch to the News, that it is desired to determine whether the Interstate Commerce commission has full power to act in such cases, or if the state commission retains certain functions under the transportation act.

SOME FISH STORY.

Over at Walled Lake the following fish story is being repeated vigorously among those who enjoy angling for the funny fish. A fellow (no matter who it was) was out fishing a few days ago when he caught a blue-gill and while gathering his fishship into the boat a pile concluded the small fish would make a good meal and in its eagerness to appease its hunger jumped out of the water and landed in the boat. The pike weighed over nine pounds.

If this story does not increase the number of fishermen at this popular resort nothing else will.

TO BUILD AN ADDITION.

J. D. Taylor will soon begin the erection of an addition of sixty feet to the Walled Lake dancing pavilion. The dances being held there this season are attracting so many people more floor space is necessary and to meet the popular demand Mr. Taylor has decided to enlarge the building. The Taylor pavilion has an enviable reputation among those who enjoy dancing and the attendance this season has exceeded that of any previous year.

CASS R. BENTON HONORED.

Cass R. Benton, who is chairman of the State Tax Commission, has been appointed by Governor Sleeper as chairman of the delegation chosen to represent Michigan at the annual meeting of the national association of assessing officers, to be held in Salt Lake City, Utah, the first week in September. There will be fourteen members of the Michigan delegation, and it is expected that every state will be represented at the convention.

WAS A FINANCIAL SUCCESS THIS YEAR

The largest crowd ever assembled under a Chautauqua tent in Northville greeted the Chimes of Normandy company at the closing program Sunday night. Every available seat was occupied and a great many were compelled to stand throughout the performance. The delightful story of "The Chimes of Normandy" was told in a most interesting and entertaining manner in three acts, and every member of the caste did remarkably well.

Taken as a whole the program presented during the five days were very much enjoyed, though, of course, some were better than others. The attendance for the week was unusually large—much larger than in former years—and as a result the local committee had a surplus of approximately $100. For six years the members of the committee were compelled to "dig down" to make up a fund to pay their contract, and it is a happy relief this year to know that the chautauqua was self-supporting.

At Sunday night's performance it was announced that seventeen signers has been secured who were willing to become responsible for the financial success of the chautauqua for another year and when volunteers were called for the number was readily increased to thirty, and when the last name was secured a vast audience cheered heartily. Northville people have really become chautauqua fans and many are pleased to know that another five-day treat next year.

MORE STILLS RAISED.

Three or four Bert Post and Thomas Wither late pure food and drug inspectors and Vergil Newman, deputy sheriff, raided the home of Frank Davis on the corner of Seven-Mile and McKinney road, and found three complete stills, two of which were in operation. The officers were assisted in their raid by Trooper Alford. They confiscated 25 gallons of raisin whiskey and destroyed 350 gallons of mash. Davis was taken to Detroit and arraigned in the federal court.

A few days ago Trooper Leon Shuch secured a search warrant for John Churchill and Nick Felegos, place one mile off the Seven-Mile road on the Elm road. Trooper Shuch took with him Troopers Scribner and Burch and Deputy Sheriff Brynager. They found no one at home when they arrived but forced an entrance and discovered two complete stills and about half an acre of land on which 20 gallons of pure alcohol was being made. The officers took the alcohol and the stills and the men were taken to the county jail. State Trooper.

DANCED AT WALLED LAKE.

The picnic and dance given by the Pastime Dancing club of this village, at the Taylor pavilion at Walled Lake Tuesday evening was attended by about sixty couples and the affair was a most delightful one. Supper was partaken of by the merry company about seven o'clock and dancing followed, excellent music being furnished by Montgomery's orchestra of this village. The dancers were shown every courtesy by Messrs. Taylor and their very able assistants and all were made to feel the "come again" atmosphere which is so noticeable about the Taylor resort. It was midnight when the last number was concluded and the dancers motored back to Northville.

INSPECTED FOREST HILL CAMP.

Dr. Tom Henry made an unofficial inspection of Camp Forest Hill last week and is loud in his praise of Capt. Kraemer and the nurses. "I saw the splendid sanitation of the camp," "Imagine a camp of 100 boys and girls and not even a scrap of paper visible on the ground. I wish every family in Northville could visit this camp. No doubt the cleanliness of our village would increase 100%," said the doctor.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Fenn and baby of Detroit, visited Ralph Willis and wife, Thursday.

BIG CROPS ASSURED IN WESTERN CANADA

Need of Farm Labor Urgently
Required for Harvest.

Rains of the past week which have been general throughout all portions of Western Canada, covering MANITOBA, SASKATCHEWAN, and ALBERTA, have placed beyond all manner of doubt the certainty of vast grain crops throughout the entire district.

Reports from all points indicate marvelous and rapid growth. The conditions of a week or so back, which were decidedly less promising, and led many to think that there might be a partial failure, have disappeared altogether and now there is a wave of optimism circulating throughout the entire country.

In 1915 there were enormous yields reported from all parts, and it would appear now as if in many places the yields of 1915 would be equaled if not beaten.

What might appear to be a drawback, is the apparent shortage of farm help. The Province of Manitoba through its Employment Bureau in Winnipeg, is asking for 10,000 harvest hands and over, offering from $5 to $6 per day. The Province of Saskatchewan is asking for 15,000 extra hands to take care of the immense harvest that is certain to be reaped in that Province. In Alberta the crop area is somewhat less, the labor conditions somewhat better, and is making a request for 5,000 extra farm hands.

Interviewing the officials of the different Governments, they are inclined to the opinion that as the crops in Kansas, Nebraska, South Dakota, Illinois and other Central States are harvested there will be a movement northward that will materially help to take care of the labor situation. With the low railroad rates that may be secured on application to the Employment Offices at Winnipeg and at boundary points, or which may be secured through the Canadian Government Offices at Chicago, Ill.; Detroit, Mich.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Kansas City, Mo.; Omaha, Neb.; Des Moines, Ia.; Watertown, S. D.; St. Paul, Minn., and Grand Forks, N. D., will give to those seeking employment the opportunity to reach the harvest fields at a low cost—Advertisement.

Something Worth While.

"This machine will save labor." "Aw, why don't some of you smart guys invent a substitute for work?"

Once More Lace Triumphs

WHEN it comes to making a choice between a dress of black lace and one of white lace one may expect to be undecided, and fortunate is she who boasts of a wardrobe that includes both. Nothing is quite so satisfying all the year round and anywhere as black lace and nothing is lovelier unless it be white lace. Black chivalry is having a great vogue. We cannot call it a revival because this lace is never out-of-date but its beauties and virtues are newly discovered and widely appreciated. There are many lovely laces, of the filmy varieties, that make up the white lace frocks that have graced midsummer; like those in black lace, they have scored a new triumph.

The two lace frocks, shown in the illustration given here, reveal a happy accord between material and design among other advantages that they possess. One of these advantages is simplicity in the design and another is economy for neither requires the cutting up of fine lace, and no one wants to be guilty of that. The all black dress is made of charity lace, and short-sleeved surplice bodice. Narrow velvet ribbon in two rows puts a little emphasis on the waistline and terminates in a handsome bow at the front. It happens that in this particular case a flesh-colored underbodice is worn while the underpetticoat is of soft black satin, but usually a black lace gown is worn over a black satin slip.

Accessories are important with these frocks of chic refinement and one notices that the slippers worn with it are of black satin and the stockings of black silk. Also that the hat with flaring brim is made of black lace, but brilliant hats in colors look equally well and they may be suited, as the dress is, to any season.

The other alluring frock is all white and is made over a short underslip of white satin. The lowest flounce makes a very long underskirt and a second flounce above it discreetly veils the ankles. Over these a long tunic makes more than a glimpse of them impossible. A girle of silver tissue, a white lace hat and slippers of silver cloth or of white silk according to the occasion add support the superb role which this gown is equal to playing.

New and Enhancing Blouses

OF ALL the garments with which women both clothe and adorn themselves, the blouse and smocks of today may lay claim to being the most enhancing to her good looks. The late summer has brought in some new ones brief as to sleeves and long as to peplum. All-over embroideries in metal and colored silk threads are placed over backgrounds in fashionable colors, as maize, jade, pale green, orchid or old blue, and materials are supple and more or less sheer with fine crepe de chine, georgette and marquisette the favorites. Nearly all of them are made in the kimono style, with round necks, and in many of them the neck at the front is split a few inches and laced with a little silk cord or has a bit of lace inserted, forming a narrow vestee. The embroidery employs heavy silk thread in novel and light designs.

Bearing these summery blouses company are others with longer sleeves which cover the elbows, at least. What they gain in length of sleeve they lose in length of peplum, as may be gathered from two of these new arrivals shown in the illustration. It is plain that these are blouses for wear at a later date as well as in the last month of summer. They are made of georgette in dark colors and cut like their forerunners in the kimono style. The blouse at the left has a short plain peplum finished with hemstitching and a little two-color bead embroidery. The clever blouse at the right hangs in straight lines at the back and front, but is caught to the figure at the sides with a girde that slips through slashes in the georgette. This one reveals the slit at the front or the neck. A very narrow binding of the material finishes the edges and heads set on it outline the neck opening. A handsome lattice design in beads across the front seems to call for two conventional flowers, and they blossom in silk knots in two places against it. They are in a light color. As for color schemes they may be chosen to suit individual taste.

Julia Bottomley

Cretonne Dress Trimming.

Cretonne is being featured as an attractive dress trimming. It appears as collar and cuffs on frocks of both silk and cotton fabric, a modish little street dress of navy taffeta recently seen, having collar, cuffs and vest of bright flowered cretonne, and cotton crepe dresses are similarly trimmed with good effect. Cotton crepe has played a big part in the development of children's frocks for several seasons, and for this summer many dresses for women are made of it.

Accordion Plaids.

A new handbag reflects the vogue for accordion plaids. It is of taffeta, pouch shaped, of medium size, with a tunic of finely platted silk flaring from the silver mounting.

Some More Truths.

WOULD you use a steam shovel to move a pebble? Certainly not. Implements are built according to the work they have to do.

Would you use a grown-up's remedy for your baby's ills? Certainly not. Remedies are prepared according to the work THEY have to do.

All this is preliminary to reminding you that Fletcher's Castoria was sought out, found and prepared solely as a remedy for Infants and Children. And let this be a warning against Substitutes, Counterfeits and the Just-as-good stuff that may be all right for you in all your strength, but dangerous for the little babe.

All the mother-love that lies within your heart cries out to you: Be true to Baby. And being true to Baby you will keep in the house remedies specially prepared for babies as you would a baby's food, hairbrush, toothbrush or sponge.

Children Cry For

Fletcher's CASTORIA

Are You Prepared?

A doctor in the house all the time would be a good idea. Yet you can't afford to keep a doctor in the family to keep baby well or prevent sickness. But you can do almost the same thing by having at hand a bottle of Fletcher's Castoria, because it is a wonderful remedy for indigestion, colic, feverishness, fretfulness and all the other disorders that result from common ailments that babies have.

Fletcher's Castoria is perfectly safe to use. It is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. Children cry for Fletcher's Castoria, and mothers recommend it because they have found it a comfort to children and a mother's friend.

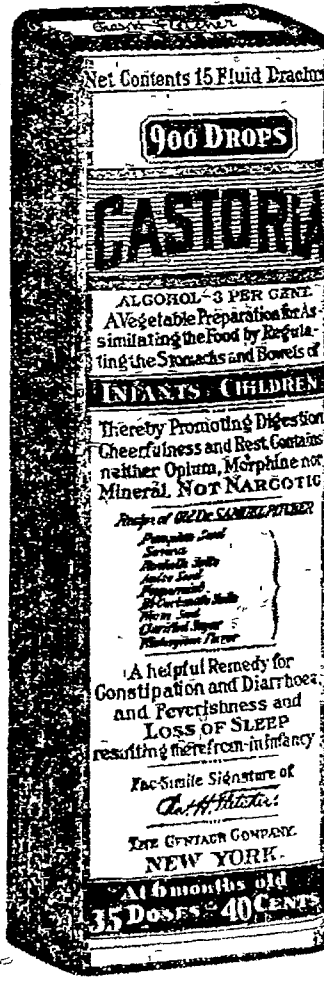

If you love your baby, you know how sweet it is to be able to help baby when trouble comes. You cannot always call upon a doctor. But doctors have nothing but good to say of Fletcher's Castoria, because they know that it can only do good—that it can't do any harm—and they wouldn't want you to use for baby a remedy that you would use for yourself.

MOTHERS SHOULD READ THE BOOKLET THAT IS AROUND EVERY BOTTLE OF FLETCHER'S CASTORIA.

No matter what mother said father always chose to argue with her. If he were going to town and told him about the proposed trip he would be in. "But, my dear, I'm sure you should not go."

One day he had carried through his argument of his usual kind when his ten-year old daughter looked up from the book she was reading. "Mother," she giggled, "father is your god, isn't he?"

At her speech he smiled, but did not laugh. "I guess I am," he agreed. "She certainly knows me around."

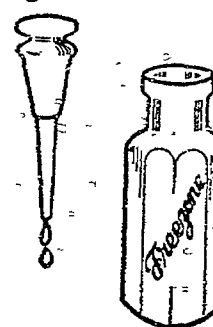

"Oh, that wasn't the reason I said that," ten-year old demurred. "I said it because you are always butting in on her so much."

"CORN"

Lift Right Off Without Pain

Doesn't hurt a bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers. Truly! Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the calluses, without soreness or irritation.

After Ten Years— Eaton's Proves the Best

"I say, 'God bless Eaton's,'" writes Mrs. Lydia M. Hogan. "I can truthfully say, after suffering with stomach trouble for ten long years, that I have never had anything do me so much good as this one box of Eaton's."

We point these grateful words from this dear lady, so that sufferers everywhere may have hope and a little faith—just enough to give Eaton's a trial. Why folks, last year over half a million people used Eaton's and found relief.

This is the secret. Eaton's simply takes up the excess acids, poisons and gases, and carries them right out of the body. Of course, when the cause is removed, the sufferer gets well. Stomach trouble causes about seven per cent of all diseases, so, if you are suffering any kind of misery, not feeling well, go right to your druggist today and obtain a big box of Eaton's; eat it—a true. Use it and find quick, sure relief.

Make this test—you will see, and then, if you are not satisfied, your druggist will hand your money back. He does not want one penny unless Eaton's pleases you. Adv.

Try One Brunswick Then Decide

The best way to know for yourself the superiority of the Brunswick Tire is to buy one and compare it.

That is, if the very name of Brunswick isn't sufficient proof to you, as it is to most men, that here is an extraordinary tire.

Thousands of men who have known the name of Brunswick for years, realize that a Brunswick Tire has to be the best—for a mediocre product could never bear this historic name.

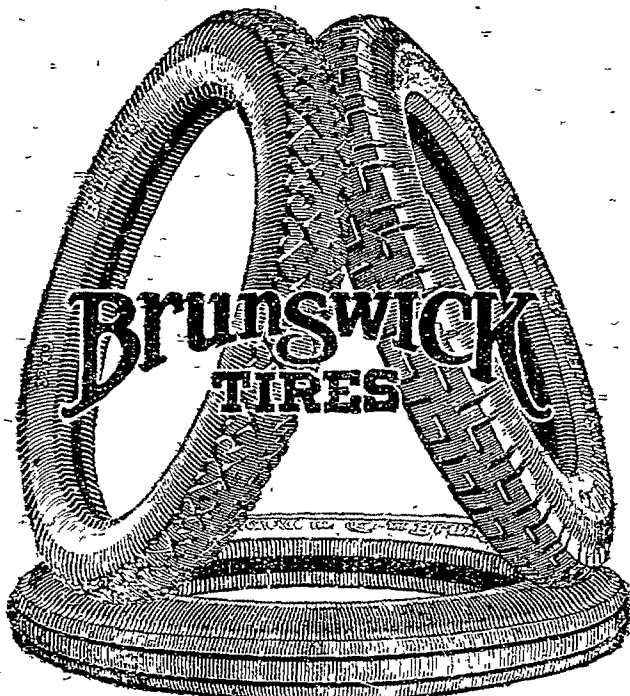

Long before the Overland Trail became famous, the House of Brunswick was established. It was one of the chief users of rubber for fifty years before automobiles came into use.

No concern with such a history could afford to offer anything but the best. For reputations are built slowly, but can be quickly destroyed.

This is a practical guarantee that Brunswick Tires offer more than the usual, yet at no added cost.

Get your first one now. You'll not be satisfied until you have ALL Brunswicks.

AUTO THIEVES MULCT BUYERS

THOUSANDS OF STOLEN CARS
SOLD TO UNSUSPECTING
BARGAIN HUNTERS.

IF FOUND, PURCHASER IS LOSER

Before Buying From Strangers Make Sure They Are Rightful Owners of Car They Are Trying to Sell.

At the present time a great many automobile thieves are operating in the State of Michigan. In 1919 the City of Detroit alone lost 3,482 automobiles, the value of which was $2,165,327.00. The Detroit Police Department recovered 2,709 stolen automobiles the value of which was $2,697,689.00. From these figures it will be seen that 773 cars of a value of $467,683.00 were never recovered. For the first six months of 1920 Detroit has lost 1,593 automobiles of which 1,278 have been recovered, leaving 315 cars still unrecovered. This is only for the City of Detroit. Complete statistics of stolen cars for the whole State of Michigan cannot be accurately compiled. The conclusion follows however, that a vast amount of valuable property is being stolen each day through automobile thefts.

Bargains Are Apt to Be Boomerangs

The people themselves are largely to blame for this state of affairs. A great many unsuspecting persons purchase an automobile cheaply from whatever person offers it for sale. No investigation whatever is made as to whether the vendor is legally the owner. The purchaser, in a great many cases never requests to see the registration card, which is issued by the Secretary of State. The only question involved when a great many people purchase a car is the price. If it is a bargain the deal is closed.

It is a simple matter for thieves to change the various manufacturer's numbers on a car in such a way as to give any one not making a very thorough inspection. In actual cases are cited showing how automobile thieves operate, it may be of some help in showing the reader how easily he may be deceived in purchasing a stolen car.

One Farmer Sells Stolen Cars

About the 15th of May 1920, a Deputy Sheriff in a certain County notified that a farmer, apparently of good reputation, was in possession of a new car every few days. The farmer was posing as a Used Car Dealer and stated that he had purchased the cars in Detroit "on the market." Investigation disclosed that the cars were stolen and following this lead forty stolen cars were recovered.

Automobile thieves in this particular instance operate as follows:

One of the organization stole the car from the streets of Detroit, ran it to a secret garage and changed the motor and serial numbers in such a way that the change could not be easily detected. The car was then transferred to the certain County and a really disposed of because it is offered for sale at a very attractive price, and no one in this County has any reason, of course, to believe in the possession of it was not the legal owner.

The authorities upon discovering that the car was stolen simply took a session of "and after it had been identified by its original owner, was returned to him. One farmer who had purchased a stolen car, when asked whether he missed it when the authorities took it away from him, stated, "that he did not miss it half as much as the old horse he so to purchase it." This particular farmer had sold a good horse to purchase a stolen car. As a result of his foolish investment he lost both.

Make Sure Seller Owns The Car.

If you desire to purchase a car go to some authorized dealer and pay the market price rather than take a chance of purchasing from a "fly by night dealer." Buy from some one who you know will be in business tomorrow and the day after. Do not think you are getting "a good thing" because some one is offering you a practically new car "dirt cheap." Since thousands of cars are being stolen it stands to reason that some one must purchase these cars. Thieves steal to sell; they do not steal automobiles to use themselves, the chance of detection is too great.

At any rate if you cannot resist the temptation to purchase a new car from an unknown person, cheaply, at least take all the reasonable precautions in protecting yourself from purchasing a stolen car. Inspect the serial and engine numbers yourself. Always secure the registration card as issued by the Secretary of State. Demand a Bill of Sale properly made out; establish the identity of the vendor, so that you could locate him in case you desire. If you are in doubt, call some police officer or sheriff and have him look at it.

The Detroit Automobile Club has issued a warning as set out in various posters distributed over the State. This is for your protection and is not to serve any selfish purpose whatever. The people at large should know what is going on within the borders of Michigan, and the figures set out at the beginning of this article show what a great traffic is going on in stolen automobiles. Think twice before you purchase a car whose owner you know nothing about.

OHIO IS AHEAD AGAIN.

For some reason the people of the state of Ohio seem to be more fortunate in securing honors, for their favorite sons in national political conventions than those from any other state. It may be truly said that Ohio has furnished more presidential tickets than any other two states in the country. Beginning in the early days there was William Henry Harrison (Old Tippecanoe), Rutherford B. Hayes, James A. Garfield, Benjamin Harrison, William McKinley and William Howard Taft. Now Ohio is pretty sure to furnish the next president, both the great party candidates being from that state.

The people of Ohio are peculiar in some ways. They are very self-centered and are ready to urge the superior merits of the people and the institutions of their state to a ridiculous degree. It has been my privilege to travel over the state up and down and crosswise. The "dyed-in-the-wool" Ohioan has a peculiar way of pronouncing the name of his state, but invariably calls it Ohnah. The children are taught that earth has never furnished another spot where the honors of birth and lineage are as great as in "our own Ohnah."

The story has been told of an illustrious incident when Rutherford B. Hayes was president, he had a weakness for appointing to high positions "men of rather inferior ability." He appointed to Great Britain, as ambassador, a man from Cleveland, Ohio. The Englishmen prepared to make his acquaintance and show him some things remarkably fine; in other words entertain him in real fashion. The first day they showed around London the Queen's Palace and many other things which were of remarkable interest to the natives of that country.

After they had made the rounds of London and vicinity, they asked the American representative, "What do you think of London?" He said, "Well, it's pretty fine, but not as fine as E. 11th Avenue in Cleveland, Ohnah." Of course the Englishmen were a few feet dumfounded, but as they planned to show the American how they carried out the program. They drove around the Grand Boulevard and showed the American the many things of remarkable beauty that wonderful city. After making the rounds they asked what he thought of Paris. He said, "It is pretty fine, but not as fine as Euclid Avenue in Cleveland, Ohnah."

Of course the Englishmen were disgusted but as they had planned for a banquet on the return trip across the English channel, they carried it out with the instructions to the waiters who were to serve at the table to keep the fellow's goblet full, while they did. When the party reached London the American was dead drunk. During to match the ignorance, impudence, arrogance and obduracy of the American and his lack of himself a little amusement, the entertainers went to an underground establishment and borrowed a basket and put the American in it. They carried him to a tombstone and placed him among the monuments and headstones. They placed a bright light by a reflector which carried the light directly in the American's face and then had him placed to watch results. In a short time he awoke from his stupor, groined and soon arose in his collar, and began to survey the surroundings. He interpreted the situation and exclaimed "Resurrection morn." First an up "Hip, hip, hurrah" Ohnah ahead again!"

PROTESTS PRIMARY ACT.

A Lansing dispatch of Tuesday stated that the constitutionality of the state law requiring candidates to submit statements of party allegiance before their names be placed on the primary ballot is to be judicially determined by the state supreme court.

On petition of William A. Harrington of Gaylord, Democratic candidate for judge of the Thirty-fourth judicial district, the court today issued an order requiring Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughan to show why Harrington's name should not be placed upon the ballot, although he has filed no statement of party faith, and refuses to do so. The order is returnable August 7th.

Gave Notice of More.

Two weeks ago Harrington notified Vaughan that he contemplated such an action if the secretary of state decided to act on his petitions without the party fealty pledge. His position is in accord with an opinion handed down by Attorney General Groesbeck, that the law was in conflict with the constitution. However, Secretary

Vaughan decided he could not ignore the provisions of the law on an opinion alone, maintaining that its status would have to be judicially determined before he could act.

Harrington's petition attacks the law as "stultifying" and as "bartering one's birthright" and believes that the office he is seeking is a judicial one and should be removed as far as possible from "partisan political entanglements."

Cites Five Grounds.

He cites these five grounds for his claim the law is unconstitutional:

It abridges the right of electors in selecting their candidates.

It imposes a qualification requirement on candidates in violation of the basic law.

It confines the electors of any party to selection of the few candidates who may be willing to stultify themselves and barter away their birthright.

It operates as an undue restriction and limitation upon the liberty and freedom of political activities of electors and candidates.

It violates Section I, Article II, and Section 2, Article XVII, of the Constitution.

Eight of the candidates whose primary petitions were filed Saturday neglected to submit party fealty pledges, but most of these are expected by Secretary Vaughan.

The act was passed by the 1919 legislature to prevent a recurrence of an unusual situation in Michigan politics when Henry Ford was a candidate in both the Democratic and Republican primary elections for United States senator in 1918.

YPSILANTI—The Normal College enrollment Saturday totaled 1,595 students. This does not include 26 students taking the extension course in Bay City nor the 74 students studying in Detroit under Prof. C. M. Elliott, director of the department for the instruction of abnormal children.

"You, Too, Can Have Beautiful Hair"

LONG, silken, vigorous hair is the birthright of every woman. Woily, poor health, strenuous living, neglect, etc., soon cause hair to weaken and fall out. The scalp must be kept free from infection, the hair roots must be nourished. Discriminating men and women make it a practice to use regularly to keep the scalp healthy and promote the growth of the hair. They find this splendid preparation very helpful in treating dandruff, falling hair, and other scalp diseases. Washing the hair with Rawleigh's Liquid Shampoo or Shampoo Jelly avoids the dangers of ordinary soaps which in time weaken and destroy the hair roots. Proper use of Rawleigh's Shampoo and Hair Tonic will aid wonderfully in preserving and beautifying the hair.

Rawleigh's Hair Tonic

Depend upon me to supply you with Rawleigh's Hair Tonic and Shampoo, as well as other Toilet Preparations and Good Health Products. Hold your orders for me. I expect to be around your way soon. For quick parcel, post or express service, write or phone

HOSPITAL NOTES.

Charles Buers was operated on Saturday and was able to return home yesterday to further recuperate.

Floyd Leavenworth underwent an operation last Sunday and at last report his conditions was satisfactory. At Stillson is busy applying a new outside coat of paint to the building which adds greatly to the appearance of the institution.

The 15-year-old son of S. J. Hassett of Detroit, while trying to start a Ford which had a balky streak last Sunday, received a kick which fractured his right arm near the wrist. After the doctor had reduced the fracture he proceeded home a little sore but satisfied.

John Newman, who has been ill all winter, has taken a turn for the better and his physician, who has tried every remedy and every means to pull him thru, believes he has secured a serum which will do the trick. Mr. Newman has suffered severely having had five abscesses each of which required an operation.

Allen Harver and John Thompson of Plymouth were severely cut and bruised when, owing to too rapid a pace and some fresh gravel, their machine ran into the bridge near the gristmill. Both miraculously escaped internal injuries, but Harver had a cut on his neck which completely exposed the jugular vein and required 42 stitches to patch him up.

Mrs. Margaret Selman of Ann Arbor has been engaged as matron of the Hospital here. Mrs. Selman has had seven years' experience in running a private hospital and comes with the highest recommendations from such eminent surgeons as Dr. George and Dr. Vaughn of Ann Arbor. The staff consider themselves fortunate in securing a matron of such experience.

Miss Carlson of Plymouth and Mrs. Fred Hicks of Northville have returned to their homes.

Mrs. Ed Vealey of Plymouth underwent a severe operation July 16th, but is progressing favorably at last report. New street signs marking the "Hospital zone" have been completed, and it is to be hoped will be observed by all, especially by automobilists. The street noises are trying to well people, but how much more so to patients weakened by the ravages of disease. Who knows? It may be us next time.

Miss Gladys Herrick, who has been ill so long from nervous prostration, is very much improved and is able to drive her automobile again.

Miss Helen Wilson of Salem, Edward Schmidt and Grant Wilcox of Northville were operated upon for removal of tonsils and adenoids Sunday, July 25. All are doing splendidly.

PROGRAM ANNOUNCED FOR BIG FAIRM MEET.

Speakers of local and national reputation will address the farmers who gather at East Lansing on Saturday, August 7, for the summer Farmers' Day at M. A. C. The program will be given at the big general meeting on the college campus, at 1:30 in the afternoon, fast time.

The schedule of speakers has been announced as follows: L. Whitney Watkins, Manchester, Chairman; Address of welcome, President F. S. Kedzie, M. A. C.; "Organized Crop Production," J. D. Park, Professor of Farm Crops, Ohio State University; "Building up Depleted Soils," Brother Leo, Manager Notre Dame University farm; "Present Day Crops Conditions," Prof. J. F. Cox, farm crops department, M. A. C.; "Review of Recent Soils Tests," Dr. M. M. McCool, soils department, M. A. C.; "Developments in Michigan Agriculture," Roland Morrill, president State Farm Bureau; "The Purpose of the Experiment Station," Dean R. S. Shaw, M. A. C.

The morning will be given over to inspection of the college and the farm, followed by a picnic basket lunch at noon.

Beef men of the state are planning a conference at the college on Farmers' Day, and will make their headquarters at the animal husbandry offices. Interesting cost of production figures and other timely beef information will be available at that time, with the college men prepared to give help on any problems beef growers may bring in. Other branches of the agricultural division will also be ready to consult with farmers.

"How I Cleared the Mill of Rats," by J. Tucker, 2-1.

"As night watchman believe I have seen more rats than any man. Dogs wouldn't dare go near them. Got 41 pigs of RAT-SNAP, inside of 6 weeks cleared them all out. Killed them by the score every night. Guess the rest were scared away. I'll never be without RAT-SNAP." Three sizes, 25c, 50c, $1.00. Sold and guaranteed by JAMES A. HUFF, NORTHVILLE.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Items taken from The Record files of 1895, for the week corresponding to this week.

N. Nevison has started a bakery at Milford.

Granulated sugar 5c. Extra C. sugar 4 1/2c at L. W. Hutton's.

The 1895 city directory is just finished and will be ready for delivery next week.

Wanted—Good girl for laundry work. Wages $2.50 per week. Inquire at this office.

Mrs. A. O. Colburn of Gladwin, has rented F. D. Adams store, and will utilize it for bazaar goods.

The council should order the telephone company to slick up its poles in the village with a few coats of paint.

Bacon Bros. of Pontiac have contracted with the Duphar Mfg. Co. for the wood work on 200 of their bean pickers.

Mrs. Lottie Shattock has sold her interest in the millinery business to Mrs. G. A. Tinnham, who will carry on the business.

Mrs. Chas. Wright and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Wright of Hancock, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Sands, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Woodman of Ann Arbor, biked over from that city Saturday, on a tandem, visiting here until Sunday.

Dr. A. E. Lloyd of Wixom called on Dr. Attridge Monday afternoon. The two doctors were fellow students at the Detroit College of Medicine.

F. R. Beal, president and manager of the Globe Furniture Works, The Columbia Refrigerator Works, and the American Bell Foundry, was given a hearty ovation on his return from Detroit, Tuesday evening, by the business men and hundreds of Northville citizens who had assembled at the depot for the purpose of giving a token of their esteem and appreciation towards one who has done so much towards making Northville the banner village of the state. The lawn and residence of Mr. Beal was tastefully decorated for the occasion, and as the procession stopped at the home, a loud cheer was given. After some nice music by the band, Rev. Seth Reed presented to Mr. Beal a beautiful ebony cane, ornamented with a handsome hand carved solid gold head on which was engraved "F. R. Beal—presented by the Northville Business Men, August 6, 1895." After Rev. Reed's speech Mr. Beal responded, and then Village President Hutton introduced Rev. Jacques, and he made one of his old-time talks. The crowd then formed in line while the band struck up, a lively air, and marched by the porch, giving President Beal a hearty handshake and pleasant good-night. The occasion will be long remembered by all present.

We Now Sell Essex, the Dominant Light Car

The Moderate Priced Light Weight Car of Costly Car Qualities—It Holds the World's Marks for 50-Hour Endurance and 24-Hour Road Tests

It is with great pride that we announce our selection to sell Essex. We know that in Essex we offer the supreme car value of motordom. And what merchant is not proud when he deals in the finest product of its kind.

You have seen the great performance of Essex. You have heard owners, your neighbors, praise it. Doubtless you have had an Essex ride. You recognize it, then, as the dominant car. You know how it combines perfectly the beauty, power, speed and endurance of the finest cars with the moderate price and economical operation of light cars.

And you know how many were disappointed last year because they couldn't get an Essex. Maybe you, too, failed. The same conditions obtain this year. Demand for this matchless car far exceeds production. But our arrangements are such that if you place your order with us immediately we pledge you delivery when you want it.

Essex Fills Needs Of All Motorists

Essex' history has been a continuous record of brilliant performances. You recall the astonishing approval that followed its first appearance. Its appeal was dynamic. Everywhere critical motorists instantly recognized its fine qualities. Owners of costly cars and of light cars alike became Essex enthusiasts after one ride. Dealers rushed to get Essex franchises. It was the sensation of the motor world.

Then Essex quickly revealed qualities far beyond any claims made for it, even by enthusiastic first owners. Its astonishing power time and again defeated much heavier, costlier cars in road and hill climbing contests. Its surprising speed won over many specially built racing cars.

And, vastly more important to you, it proved endurance and reliability never before expected of any but far higher priced cars.

You know how a stock Essex chassis set the world's official 50-hour endurance mark of 3,037 miles on the Cincinnati Speedway. In 94 hours, 22 minutes it went 5,689 miles, averaging over a mile a minute, yet showed no wear.

Think What These World Marks Mean

You know how another stock car made the world's 24-hour road record, 1,061 miles, over Iowa dirt roads. Not one adjustment was necessary.

Think what this reliability and endurance mean to you. Remember, stock cars were used. So it means the same power, speed and staunchness in your Essex. It means every day, dependable transportation. You know no worries over motor troubles and you are free from the expense, usually found so high by fight car owners, of repairs and adjustments.

And Essex Also is Leader in Design

Do not forget that Essex also is supreme in beauty.

Hudson builds the Essex. The same men who designed the world famous Hudson Super-Six also planned Essex. That is the basis of Essex' mechanical superiority and explains its leadership in style.

And remember that with all these fine car qualities Essex also excels other light cars in acceleration, easy driving, nimbleness and flexibility.

It is moderate in price. It has the light car advantage of gasoline, oil and fire economy and it has the costly car dependability and sturdiness. Repair costs are practically nil.

Is it any wonder we are proud that we now sell Essex?

Renew your friendship with this dominant car today.

He found her kneeling on a white bear skin before the hearth, the firelight gleaming over the rosy satin of her gown, making her hair dusky with shadows, and her eyes a dance with flames. And cascading from her lap, strewn about the floor, everywhere were letters, squares of paper, ribbons, envelopes.

With a quick movement she tossed the one she was reading into the fireplace before she waved a welcome to him.

"Gracious, Billy, how early you are."

"Yes, but I thought we could talk before the dance. You look—say, Priscilla, he challenged, "you look like a valuable and tonight I'm in the mood to say—may I be your—"

"Are you? Well, don't say it!" interposed Priscilla hastily. "It's not my mood at all. I'm cleaning house—I'm burning love letters."

"Let me help," he picked up an envelope. "Oh, I say, Priscilla! This is mine! Let's not burn this!"

All right, you can have it," she teased.

Billy stared suspiciously at a blue-ribboned packet he had started to toss to the flames.

"Aha, so we don't burn all the letters? That looks—"

She snatched them from him, shame-faced but dimpling. "That looks, does it? Well, it's nothing at all, but I don't want to burn them somehow."

"Somehow?—Bumphy!"

"Well, I've had them longer than any of the others."

She sat back on her heels and watched the leaping fire. Then she laughed softly.

"You don't know him, Billy. Shall I tell you—?"

"Yellow curls and blue eyes, I suppose—an Apollo!"

"No, but I called him 'Sir Galahad,'" she confessed.

"I don't like because of Sir Galahad that you treat the rest of us so," he said.

"Oh—well, I sometimes wonder myself," he girl admitted, "but more like a—"

"said Billy, "what was there about Sir Galahad that made him so different from the rest of us?"

"If—Priscilla smiled with dreamy remembrance at the blue-ribboned package—he could wiggle his ear."

"The donkey!" sputtered Billy.

Priscilla started indignantly—"why?"

"Then he springs, laughing to her feet and, clutching her cloak—"

"it was during the first dance that I—"

"said suddenly."

"Well, I suppose I could practice?"

"Practice what?"

"Sir Galahad's parlor trick."

"Billy Martin! Don't you dare or I'll—"

"Have you seen the diplomat yet?"

Priscilla whispered to Billy, ear as a couple happened to launch in a quarrel. "The best-looking thing, and has been everywhere and—"

But the couple had drifted apart and Priscilla, forgetful of the diplomat, turned impulsively to Billy.

"Billy, I've just had an idea."

"No."

"Yes, I have—" she paused until they vanished some intricate "sp."

"Billy, I think—I don't believe you'll be in love with me."

"Well, I've told you—"

"But I think it would be best—Billy, by don't you fall in love with me?"

"I thought just as well," fumed Billy.

"Gee! I've begun to think," she said seriously. "It isn't fair to dwell on when I'm perfectly sure—"

"You're all right, Priscilla," he patted her approvingly and in big frolic fashion. "But, Priscilla, before you marry a man for his ears consult me."

"Poor boy! Sir Galahad rangles Billy, who is that black-haired, distinguished looking man? Billy, who is he?"

"He? Oh, he's that diplomat."

"Billy, introduce him to me! Next dance? Will you, please?"

"Sure, what's the rush?" questioned the faithful.

But the orchestra leader began waving his arms frantically—"Men on one side of room—girls on other!"

Laughing, the couples complied. These dances were highly informal.

"Men advance or run to choose—" boomed the deep voice again, and the music commenced a new theme of whimsy allurements.

"Dash—slide—a stampede descended upon the expectant line of girls and—"

"Priscilla, please—"

"Miss Bartelle, may I?"

"Just this one—"

As usual, an unfair percentage of swallow-tails clustered urgently in front of Priscilla. There was a witchery about the girl and they adored her.

She caught sight of the black-haired diplomat in the background—and then she dimpled.

"I wonder," she confided whimsically—"can any of you wiggle your ears?"

There was a moment of startled silence, then a mad quiver of facial contortions.

"By George, what—"

"Oh, I say—"

"Have a—"

"Sure," grinned the diplomat, and proved it as he offered his arm.

"Priscilla, you imp," he said, fiercely. "I wasn't sure it was only you—"

"Sir Galahad!" she exclaimed, "those ears!" and then grew unaccountably shy as he led her away.

Cleaning the Oil Stove
To clean the sides of either oil lamp or stove turn them fairly low, so that only the charred part is visible. Then take a small piece of sandpaper and rub over the top of the stove carefully, on both sides, if possible. After this "operation" the flame will burn evenly without smoking even if you well for the small amount of time expended in cleaning the sides.

In the amount of business, this is the leading Berkshire herd in the world, their sales last year reaching $300,000 with a prospect this year of $500,000.

Census reports indicate that the population of the agricultural sections of the state has decreased materially during the past ten years. People have left the farms, to accept jobs in the cities and villages of the state and if this condition continues for a few more census-taking periods the people of the thickly populated centers may go hungry. To produce farms must be inhabited and properly managed.

Those who are interested in what one of our local factories are doing, and who enjoy examining handsome furniture will do well to visit Schrader Brothers' store and inspect the pieces of over-stuffed furniture on display, the product of the Globe Furniture Co. ## INFERTILE EGGS ARE PREFERRED

Use 'Candling Machine' of Some Kind and Then Be Careful to Sell Fresh Article.

STOREKEEPER IS CARELESS

Prices He Pays Are Not Necessarily Market Quotations and He Is Not Particular as to Quality—Premium on Carelessness.

The general farms in this country, each one of which ordinarily has a small poultry flock, produce the bulk of the egg supply for the cities. The surplus eggs above the number used by the family are usually marketed in one of two ways—they are either sold to hucksters who go from farm to farm collecting them as they are taken to some small town or cross-roads store and traded for groceries and merchandise.

To attract trade to his store, rather than to deal in eggs as a business, is the reason the average country storekeeper buys eggs. For generations custom has decreed that the farmer, but his grocer where he sells his eggs and butter, so the merchant, in order to sell goods, buys eggs to keep his old trade and obtain new. The prices he pays vary with circumstances and are not necessarily market quotations, for his profits are made on the dry goods and groceries he sells rather than on the eggs he buys.

Evil of System Obvious.

The evil results of this system are obvious. The storekeeper, for fear of offending his customers, is not apt to make any embarrassing inquiries as to the quality of the eggs which he takes in trade, and as a result he receives many which are partly incubated and altogether unfit for food.

For fresh, stale and partly stale he pays the same price so his collection at the end of a day's buying is a varied one. On top of this he usually gives the eggs while they are in his possession.

Egg handler Using Crude Candling and Sun to Determine Freshness of Eggs He Buys.

Not only the most serious attention and care, because egg buying is only a side line with him, as a result he must sell "case count" at a price comparatively low for the better value the circumstances in buying a pig in a pen.

This practice has put a premium on careless egg handling. The farmer's wife who gathers and markets her eggs promptly receives no more for them than the woman who brings for sale those she finds in a "case count." The result has been to discourage the production of infertile eggs and prompt and careful marketing.

"Case Count" Is Bad Method.

Egg hucksters gather up large numbers of eggs throughout the country and sell them in the city. Some of these egg peddlers use a candling outfit and buy and sell in the same manner as does the country storekeeper, "case count," with the same attendant evils.

The United States department of agriculture and the state colleges for years have condemned this indiscriminate method of marketing eggs. Where it is practiced the farmer receives less than he should for his good products and the city consumer pays more than is necessary for those he buys. The charges for handling those which are unfit are included in the price asked for the good ones. To get away from this the department of agriculture advocates the production of infertile eggs, careful handling, candling before selling, and the demanding of quality prices for quality products instead of selling them as ungraded.

RANK FEEDERS HARD ON SOIL

Large Amounts of Plant Food Needed by Crops of Character of Sudan or Millet.

Any crop of the character of sudan or millet is hard on soils in the sense that a rank feeder, makes a very luxuriant growth and naturally uses up large amounts of plant food without leaving anything as an offset.

WAR ON CATERPILLAR HELPED BY MOISTURE

Measures Suggested for Control of Alfalfa Pest.

Renovation During Month of August Is Urged to Disturb Pupae and Put Land in Good Condition for Future Crops.

Following are a few measures suggested by the United States department of agriculture for the control of the alfalfa caterpillar:

Keep the ranch in the best possible cultural condition. Irrigate it often and thoroughly, either immediately before cutting or as soon after cutting as the crop of hay can be removed from the ground.

Renovate every winter, and during the month of August, or even oftener, if possible, by the use of a good type of alfalfa renovator, thus disturbing any pupae that may be present and putting the land and alfalfa in condition for good growth of succeeding crops.

Cut alfalfa close to the ground and clean, especially along the ditch banks, borders, and turning rows, as well as in the main part of the field. Cut the alfalfa earlier than is the general rule. The proper time is when it is just coming in bloom or is one-tenth in bloom. Watch for caterpillars in the early spring crop, and if many are observed and are about grown, cut the hay a few days before it is in bloom, and thus save the next and future crops.

A minimum amount of damage occurs in fields that are systematically pastured all or a part of the time.

Excessive moisture is conducive to a diseased condition of the larvae, and this one fact is of the greatest importance in control. When worms begin to appear in numbers, if possible supply this moisture by irrigation and thus assist nature to destroy the worms.

Additional information is contained in Farmers' Bulletin 1094, which may be had upon request of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C.

FARMER MUST KNOW MARKETS

Producer Should Be Familiar With Practices and Conditions to Protect Himself.

The first step in the solution of present marketing problems is in the collection and dissemination of specific and definite information to the interested public. The producer must know trade practices and market conditions in order to be able to protect himself and to secure full value for his products. Regulatory laws, of course, are necessary, but if the farmer or seller does not know the provisions of the law they will not be able to take advantage of the protection the law affords him. This is a fact which the farmer should know. He should also know the conditions of trade practices and conditions of the market.

FARMS ADAPTED TO TURKEYS

Where Grain and Live Stock Are Principal Products Fowls Prove Quite Profitable.

I think on which live stock and grain are the principal products are well adapted to turkey raising, and at present on such farms more turkeys are raised than on general farms where they should be an important part of the miscellaneous output. While turkeys may be profitably raised in confinement, the expense is considerable, their development slow, their quality only medium at best, and the labor in caring for them is an item of no small consequence.

RAISE POULTRY AS BUSINESS

Two Hundred Hens Will Not Prove Sufficient as Means of Support for the Family.

Don't imagine that you are in the commercial chicken business as a means of support for the family with 200 hens in a back yard. As a source of a monthly reward for time and labor six to seven hundred would be nearer the mark.

POULTRY NOTES

Head lice do not bother goslings as a rule.

Many cases of bowel trouble are caused by feeding one kind of grain.

Cockerels should be separated from the pullets just as soon as it is possible to distinguish the sex.

Little ducklings will not do well on chick feed, but must have a damp mash that is bulky and nourishing.

Eggs from stolen nests or any not picked up daily from the nests should be candled if they are to be marketed.

Squabs are higher in price than pigeons for the same reason that chickens are more expensive than old fowls.

Examine the chick food carefully and make sure that it is clean and sweet, with no suspicion of mold or mustiness.

COSTLINESS OF HUMAN NEGLIGENCE IN CARE OF TUBERCULOUS BROOD SOW

Healthy Pigs Kept Under Sanitary Conditions Are Better Able to Withstand Diseases.

They were only pigs, but the manner in which they were handled illustrates the costliness of human carelessness. The story of how they lost their lives is worth the telling because the United States department of agriculture believes that similar carelessness constantly endangers human lives.

The story begins with a Florida farmer who recently sent a load of hogs to market. Upon post-mortem examination by a government inspector at the slaughter house where, federal meat inspection is maintained, a large proportion of the swine were found badly affected with tuberculosis. To locate the source of infection responsible for the condition, the federal bureau of animal industry, which among its other duties aids states in eradicating tuberculosis—began an investigation.

Found Source of Disease. Tests of the Florida farmer's live stock showed no tuberculosis among the cattle, but four of his brood sows reacted when tested, showing that probably they were diseased. Determined to find the source of this disease, the history of the hogs was investigated. The trail led to New Orleans where it was learned that two of the sows had come from Iowa, one from Illinois and one from Maine. The federal inspector in charge communicated with the Iowa breeder from whom two of the sows had been secured and who was a veterinarian. He was asked to apply the tuberculin test to his brood of hogs. There was a large number of "reactors" in the pens, all of which, on post-mortem examination were found to be tuberculous. On the same farm there was a herd of cattle that had passed a tuberculin test several years before, but had since been on a "bow circuit" where they were associated with untested stock.

Upon applying a retest to find the source of infection several of the cattle reacted. When slaughtered they, too, disclosed lesions of tuberculosis. Here is how the spindly had spread to the diseased brood sows, on the Florida farm. As pigs they had been fed on the raw milk from the infected herd of cattle in Iowa.

Evidence Summed Up. Summing up the evidence, Dr. J. G. Fish, federal inspector, states: "The point I wish to make is this: That the milk or by products that produce tuberculosis in pigs would produce the same disease in babies using the same milk."

The trail of infection is now being followed to Illinois and Maine to locate and, if possible, stamp out the disease at the other sources. In the case mentioned the tuberculous stock remained in Iowa. There is no way of telling what state might be endangered the next time. The United States department of agriculture advises the greatest care in purchasing breeding stock and it states that even when before any animals are brought into direct contact with a healthy herd they should be kept in quarantine until known to be free from infectious disease.

FOOD PRICES DEPEND LARGELY ON SUPPLY

Lowest Prices Reached After Heavy Shipments Begin.

Careful Study of Market Conditions Should Enable Fairly Good Judgment to Be Made of Outcome, Experts Say.

The main reason for either selling or buying foodstuffs in large quantities will do well to take into account the market conditions as they exist in such lines during a season. The national market and conditions in marketing have been a factor in the United States department of agriculture's estimate of food prices for the coming year.

It starts high with wheat, movement even in the interior stock, because the demand has the sharp edge of novelty and appetite. The price gradually declines and per se becomes harder to sell as the supply increases. Lowest prices are reached after the heaviest shipments begin and a glut may occur, especially if any sections are shipping at once and there is much poor stock. Then, and a decreasing supply, prices advance sometimes, recovering much of the early decline, but usually not reaching the opening prices because demand is far less keen at the end of a long season. If the last of the shipments are "meager," as experts frequently say, many perishable crops, the season may close at or near bottom prices.

The common or natural market developments do not always take place as might be expected. Quite frequently superior quality of the main crop or absence of general competition will bring higher prices in mid season. Unexpected shortage may cause the reserve stock in storage to sell at high prices at the close of the season, especially the less perishable crops like potatoes, onions, apples, cabbage, etc. Careful study of crop shortage, supply and shipment should enable a fairly good judgment to be made of the outcome. However, quickly perishable short season crops like strawberries or melons are very irregular, so it is difficult to form a reliable market judgment of them.

BETTER Sires AS AN ASSET

High-Grade Steers Dress Out Higher Percentage of Beef Than Is True of Scrubs.

In a recent circular, "Better Sires for Virginia," the following statement appears: The question which the farmer is asking is not "Can I afford to use a prebred bull?" but "Can I afford not to use one?" The point raised is directed principally at the replacement of inferior beef sires with good purebreds. High-grade steers, the circular explains, dress out a higher percentage of beef and a larger part of it is in the region of the expensive cuts than is true of scrub steers.

The raising of sheep for wool alone is no longer profitable. There must be a market for the meat as well.

Every grade and scrub sire that is discontinued for breeding purposes increases the demand and price of purebred sires.

The outlook for horses of the heavy draft type is bright. The demand in Europe at the present time is said to be enormous.

Rape may be the cause of sores on the ears or bodies of pigs. These may be avoided largely by not turning in the animals when the rape plants are wet.

Joy, walketh close in the footsteps of sorrow. We find not the thorn till the rose we have pressed; But let it be grief or joy on the morrow. God's way is the way—that is always the best. —Helen Manville.

SEASONABLE FOODS.

This is the season of the year when mushrooms may be found in abundance. This delicious fungus may be served as a main dish or as a flavor to various combinations.

Cream of Mushroom Soup.—Chop one-fourth of a pound of mushrooms and cook them in a quart of chicken stock twenty minutes, then rub them through a sieve. Reheat and bind with one-fourth of a cupful each of butter and flour cooked together until smooth, then add a slice of onion and cook with the stock, seasoning with salt and pepper. Remove the onion and add one cupful of cream and two tablespoonfuls of orange juice just before serving.

Eggs—Waldorf Style.—Arrange poached eggs on circular pieces of toast and surround with brown mushroom sauce, placing a small broiled mushroom cap on each egg.

Brown Mushroom Sauce.—Melt three tablespoonfuls of butter, add a few drops of onion juice and cook until slightly browned. Add three and one-half tablespoonfuls of flour and continue browning. Pour on gradually one cupful of cream. Clean one-half pound of mushrooms and cut the caps in slices; sauté in butter five minutes. Break the stems in pieces, cover with cold water and cook slowly until the liquor is reduced to one-third cupful. Dissolve one teaspoonful of beef extract in the mushroom liquor. Add to the sauce and season with salt and paprika. Just before serving add the mushroom caps.

Fruit Punch.—Purée a tablespoonful of good tea, pour two quarts of boiling water. Have ready the juice and peelings of three lemons and one orange in a pitcher. When the tea has steeped five minutes strain into the pitcher. Add a cupful of sugar and cool. Serve with plenty of ice.

SEASONABLE DISHES.

This is the season when liquid refreshment prepared from various fruit juices, is most acceptable. Let us try to prepare a party in the day, then, when cool placed on ice and served with ice if made fresh, for the heat of the day.

Vegetable Soup.—Cut into dice two carrots, a quarter of a small cabbage, half a turnip, half of onion, a potato and three stalks of celery. Fry all the vegetables in butter, add six cupfuls of water or stock and salt and pepper to season. Simmer for half an hour and serve with hot or cold cream.

Apple Soup.—Cook eight apples in a little water as possible until soft. Add sugar to taste and press through a sieve. Flavor with lemon juice and lemon rind, broken with a tablespoonful of cornstarch, rubbed smooth with a little cold water. When cool add two cupfuls of cider.

Ginger Ale Salad.—Soften one-quarter of a package of gelatin in one-quarter of a cupful of cold water and let stand to dissolve in a dish of hot water; add a grating of lemon rind and one and three-quarters cupfuls of ginger ale. Turn into molds to set and chill. Serve very cold on heart leaves of lettuce, with mayonnaise dressing, to which three tablespoonfuls of more of cocktail sauce has been added.

Creamed Sweetbreads.—Parboil sweetbreads in a little acidulated water, drain and cut in small pieces. Make a cream sauce of half chicken broth and half cream thickened with flour and butter cooked together. Add the sweetbreads. A few cooked mushrooms and bits of chicken may be added if at hand, as they improve the dish in flavor.

Hamburg Sponge.—Soak a tablespoonful of gelatin in two tablespoonfuls of water, then add the juice of an orange. Beat the yolks of three eggs with half a cupful of sugar until very light, then add the dissolved gelatin and a little of the grated rind of the orange. Beat until it thickens then add the whites of the eggs beaten stiff. Mold and chill. Serve with strawberries crocheted with sugar, or strawberry jam.

Wood Sold by the Pound. Circassian walnut, a popular wood for furniture, is sold by the pound or ton. As early as 118 B. C. it was introduced into Italy from Persia. The logs are so heavy that they will not float. Only the heart of the wood is used, and it is the crooked, irregular logs that possess the best figured wood.

DAIRY

SKIM MILK RATION FAVORED

Greatest Gain in Weight Made When Calf Is Fed Large Quantities in Daily Ration.

How much skim milk should be fed to calves daily?

Results obtained thus far at the dairy division experiment farm, Beltsville, Md., indicate that calves will make the greatest gains in weight when fed comparatively large quantities of skim milk daily (one-fifth of their body weight, or all they will drink), but that the most economical gains are made on smaller quantities.

In an experiment to determine the effect of feeding various quantities of skim milk, 16 calves were divided into groups of four calves each. These groups were balanced as nearly as possible with reference to breed and body weight at birth. One group was given a daily ration of one-seventh of the body weight, the quantity being regulated by body weights taken every ten days. Two other groups were fed at the rate of one-sixth and one-fifth of their body weights; and the fourth group was given all the milk the calves would drink, twice a day.

Each calf received its mother's milk until it was ten days old. The change to skim milk was then made gradually, and at the age of fifteen days the calf was on an entire skim milk ration. The experiment ran for 70 days. Weights obtained for three consecutive days, at the end of the 70-day period, were taken as the final weights. The average results from each group are given in tabular form:

Rate of feeding.	Daily gain, lbs.	Milk per day, lbs.	Milk per pound gain, lbs.
Group 1 (one-seventh of body weight).....	1.06	13.52	12.8
Group 2 (one-sixth of body weight).....	1.69	16.99	16.6
Group 3 (one-fifth of body weight).....	2.06	20.96	17.0
Group 4 (all they would drink).....	4.43	24.27	25.6

The groups were well balanced as regards weight and thirst of the calves. The gains increased with the quantity of skim milk fed, the calves which received all they would drink making gains at least 50 per cent larger than those receiving milk at the rate of one-seventh of their body weight. To do this they drank about 80 per cent more milk. As a consequence the skim milk required for one pound of gain was greater with the heavily fed calves.

No bad results from heavy feeding were noticed, although all of the calves Heavy Skim Milk Rations, It Has Been Found, Are Beneficial for Calves.

In group 4, with one exception, drank, at times, more than 40 pounds of skim milk a day. This leads us to believe that overfeeding is not in itself a common cause of scours.

TO PREVENT TAINTED BUTTER

Churn Must Be Kept Sweet and Clean at All Times—Small Brush Quite Convenient.

If proper care is not exercised in keeping the churn sweet and clean the butter will be tainted, no matter how well the milk and cream have been cared for before churning begins. A small brush is a convenient article to use about the churn, as it is somewhat difficult to clean the corners and joints with a cloth and it is these that hold particles of milk and cream and make breeding places for microbes.

BULL OF GREAT IMPORTANCE

Because of Extensive Influence on Herd Animal Should Be Best Breeder Can Purchase.

A cow is the dam of but one calf in the herd, but a bull is the sire of all the calves. Because of his extensive influence on the herd, the herd bull should be just as good as the new breeder can possibly afford to buy. In fact, the price of the herd bull should be of far less consideration than the price of the cow. The buyer should not be satisfied with a cheap bull, but when he pays a good price he should buy a good bull.

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

As I pondered over it I decided that my chance meeting with Barbara Bradford in the park had upset the plans of a blackmailing band, and that they were avenging themselves on me for my unwitting part. I was certain that Wick and Lefty Moore's wife were in connivance with them, and that, the gang possibly included Claire Bradford's ex-husband. Wick had a passport that enabled him to enter the Luton apartment. Undoubtedly he could also enter mine as well. But Wick could have nothing to do with the planting of the revolver in my room. I was positive about that. He had not been out of my sight for a single moment from the time that we had discovered the body. The only way that it seemed possible to involve him in that was on the theory of a prearranged plot to make me appear the murderer. Was it possible that Claire Bradford had participated in this? I knew she had been in my room after the murder. It must have been she who put the revolver there.

One of the detectives who had arrested me appeared at my cell door. "Come along," he commanded gruffly. As I came out I was again shackled and led to the patrol wagon that was waiting. I had supposed that I was being taken to court to be arraigned, but such was not the case. I found myself at police headquarters, where both my photograph and my fingerprints were taken. I refrained from giving any information about myself, beyond giving my name and age, being careful to have my name recorded as John S. Nelson. Out in my home town everybody for years had known me by my middle name "Spaulding," and I was hopeful that they might fail to identify me if they read anything about me.

When everything that might serve to identify me had been recorded, I was taken into a large room where perhaps half a hundred men were assembled most of them wearing masks. I looked about with curiosity. I had read of this ceremony. I was being "lined up" before the members of the city's detective force to see if any of them could identify me and to give them an opportunity to familiarize themselves with my features in case I should ever be necessary to arrest me again.

"Never saw him before," I heard one of them say. "Guess he must be a western crook."

"He's an amateur," said another. "That job up at the Granddock was done by a professional."

Many slighting comments were made, too, on my personal appearance. I learned for the first time that I had a "bad ear," and that my eyes were shifty. The only emotion these comments aroused in me was a feeling of pity not for myself but for all poor unfortunates who fall out of the law. Even though a man is presumed to be innocent until he has been convicted I had observed that since the first moment of my arrest everybody had taken it for granted that I must be guilty and had treated me with little respect or consideration.

From headquarters I was taken to the police court and without further delay brought before a magistrate. "John S. Nelson, arrested for the murder of Daisy Lutan," said the detective.

"Have you counsel?" asked the magistrate.

"No," I replied.

"I will assign Mr. Myers as the prisoner's counsel," he announced.

A young chap, evidently just out of law school, stepped forward, and drew me a little to one side.

"Plead 'Not guilty,'" he directed "and be careful to say nothing more."

"Of course," I replied. "I'm not guilty. I had nothing to do with it."

I could see by his face that he did not believe me and as I turned again to the court I made up my mind that even if the court had assigned him as my counsel I would tell him nothing.

"How do you plead?" asked the court.

"Not guilty," I replied.

"Remanded without bail for further examination until Thursday morning," snapped the court, and I was led back into an ante-room. Mr. Myers and the detective accompanying me. The latter there surrendered me to some official, presumably a prison keeper.

"Looks pretty bad for you," said Myers, as we were left alone for consultation.

"I suppose it does look that way," I laughed.

"No chance to make it self-defense," he went on, plainly amazed at my manner. "No jury ever stand for a burglar shooting in self-defense."

"No," I admitted. "I suppose they wouldn't. Fortunately I'm no outlaw."

"If we could make out it was a lovers' quarrel," he suggested.

"If I had ever known Miss Lutan," I admitted, "that might not make a bad defense."

"Look here," he replied indignantly. "You're a fellow who are up against it. You seem to realize They've got the goods on you, and it'll be the chair for yours if you're not careful. You've got no chance proving an alibi."

"Why not? I never saw Miss Lutan until I saw her body in her room."

"I never was in her room until I went in there with Mr. Wick after we had heard the shot. What's more, I never owned a revolver in my life and never saw the one the detectives found until they pulled it out of my dresser drawer."

Incredulously he listened. I could see that he did not believe a word I was saying.

"You don't look like a dope band, either," he observed scathingly.

"Look here," I retorted, "it is bad enough to have the police take it for granted that I am a criminal and a murderer, but when the counsel the court assigns me starts out on the same course, we quit right now. I'll get a lawyer of my own when I need one."

"I'll come around this afternoon and see you again," he said coolly. "A few hours in the Tombs will make you see things differently."

A few minutes later I found myself ensconced in a cell again, still confident of my speedy release, but somewhat puzzled as to what would be my best method of procedure. I was unacquainted with any lawyers, in fact, with any one in the whole city with whom I could consult. My immediate hope lay in my friend, Detective Gorman. There was nothing for me to do but to wait until I heard from him.

Fortunately I had had the forethought when the detectives were arresting me to take from its hiding place in the bookcase my little hoard of money. This enabled me to send out of the prison and have a luncheon brought in. Making myself as comfortable as possible, I sat down to wait for Gorman, occupying my mind meanwhile with thinking of Barbara Bradford.

The thing uppermost in my mind was how to prevent her from being in any way involved. She must never know that only by her testimony would I be able to prove an alibi. Should she ever realize this I knew that her sense of justice would make her come forward and tell the truth, even though it meant the loss of her own reputation and the acquittal of all her acquaintances. She must not be permitted to talk.

She must not even try to see me while I was in prison.

The one way—the only way—I saw in which I could escape from the law, fully without humiliating her, was through the speedy conviction of one of the band of criminals who I was positively were responsible for Miss Lutan's murder as well as for all our troubles. I was relying on Gorman to do this.

A keeper's voice interrupted my chain of thought.

"You're wanted down in the counsel room," he said. "There's a visitor for you."

"A visitor?" I cried excitedly. "Who is it?" I thought of course it must be Gorman come to my rescue.

"It's your sister," he announced.

"My sister? A thrill shot through me at his announcement. I knew of course it could not be my sister. Both of them were mere children far away in the West. It must be Barbara.

I stood there astounded. It was not Barbara. It was her sister Claire.

Unconsciously she had resorted to this ruse to make sure of seeing me while at the same time concealing her own identity.

Overjoyed at her coming, delighted to know that I had read her heart aright and that my confidence in her trust in me was justified, I hastened with the keeper to meet her.

Delighted as I was at her coming, I was formulating in my mind how best to make it clear to her that she must leave at once and that no matter what happened she must keep her lips closed about the events of last night. Under no circumstances would I permit her to sacrifice herself to save me.

In the counsel room a veiled figure awaited me. I sprang forward eagerly toward her. The woman standing there put up one hand in a repelling gesture and then lunged back her

I stood there astounded. It was not Barbara. It was her sister Claire.

CHAPTER X

For a full minute, Claire Bradford and I stood there observing each other. Even before a word was spoken I think we both sensed out mutual distrust. As I studied her, I was trying to conjecture what could have been the motive so compelling that she had dared to come even within prison walls to see me. Had Barbara sent her? I doubted it. I was sure that more than likely her visit was to plead with me to keep silent about her part in the tragedy. It was certain she was going to ask me to pledge my word to tell no one of her second visit to the Gaston apartment.

Yet as I studied her weak, beautiful face, so like Barbara's and yet so different, with its sensuous mouth and roving, brilliant eyes, I still was wondering how it was possible for a girl of her refinement and social position to have become enmeshed with such common criminals as the two employees of the Granddock, Wick and the telephone girl.

"To what am I indebted for the honor of this visit?" I asked at length, adding with some sarcasm, "From my sister?"

"Never for a second had I imagined that other than a selfish motive could have brought her thither, and the conversation that followed was all the more surprising to me on that account.

"I had to say I was your sister," she answered quickly. "I wanted to be sure of seeing you and I did not wish anyone to recognize me. You know, I believe who I am?"

"You are Barbara's sister," I replied.

"That's why I came," she cried. "For Barbara's sake. I have come to plead with you for her."

"To plead—with me—for her?" I echoed in astonishment.

"Yes," she cried passionately. "She's young. She's little more than a child. She did not realize what she was doing. You must not let anyone know you even knew her. You must never, never tell."

"Never tell what?" I answered non-committally.

She answered with a convulsive sob. "I thought for a little that she was going to break down completely. Her manner and the manner of her face attracted the attention of the keeper who was in the room with us, and he started forward as if expecting her to fall in a faint. Resolutely she pulled herself together and went on in calmer tones."

"Oh, I know all about it. I know that she is completely fascinated by you. I know that she has been meeting you in the park. I know that she has touched with you at the Astor." She hesitated and then continued. "I know that she has even visited you in your room at night. Oh please, please I beg of you, if there is a spark of method in you, do not take advantage of a silly girl's weakness. Please help me protect my little sister's name. Promise you will, won't you?"

"Why should I?" I replied carelessly, repressing my desire to leap at once to Barbara's defense and explain how pure and honorable her conduct had been and how lofty the motive that had governed her actions. Tempted though I was to defend her, I realized that this might be an opportunity to learn something of Claire Bradford's associates, and I determined to make the most of it. How else could she know of all my meetings with Barbara unless she was in league with the persons who had been having me shadowed? How the knowledge that Barbara had been in my apartment could have come to her was a mystery beyond me. I would have sworn that that was a secret sacred to our two selves.

"Listen to me," she commanded, speaking in low tones. "Barbara is my baby sister, innocent of the ways of the world. I must save her from herself, and her heedlessness. Never, never, if I can help it, shall she suffer the agony and shame and disgrace that I have known. Years ago I, just as she is now, became infatuated with a man far below me in the social scale. He, too, was a criminal."

I smiled indignantly at the "he too," but she paid no attention.

"I ran away from school and married him and learned too late that he had a wife and child already. All my life, ever since that terrible thing has followed me. It's like a specter ever rising to confront me. Even if I have to kill you, I am going to save my little sister from following in my steps."

"Where is Gaston Maurice now?" I asked.

"Have you seen him recently?" She gasped and shuddered, looking at me incredulously.

"You," she breathed excitedly, "who are you? How do you know his name?"

"Never mind how I know it," I replied. "What I want to know is where he is now? When did you see him last?"

"Not six years—six since long before my father's death—had made his marriage was annulled."

"Nor heard from him," I persisted. "No, nor heard from him," she hesitated, "unless—"

"Unless what?" I insisted, as she stopped abruptly.

"I can't tell you," she said firmly. "I don't know. They must have come from him, from someone that knew—the letters."

"What letters? Tell me about them."

"I can't tell what I don't know. I haven't the least idea where Gaston Maurice is. I had hoped he was dead in the war. Yet he can't be. I have had anonymous letters, threatening me. They must have come from him or from someone whom he told of our marriage? How else could they know?"

Her distress was so real and her manner so convincing that I decided that she must be telling the truth.

"Well," said I, "if you cannot tell me where to find Gaston Maurice there is one thing that you can tell me."

"What is that?"

"Why did you visit my apartment last night? Why did you put that revolver in my dresser?"

"Revolver?" she queried in a puzzled tone. "What revolver?"

"The revolver with which Miss Lutan was killed."

She eyed me in shocked surprise.

"Why do you say this to me? I never saw the revolver."

"You cannot deny that you were in my apartment last night."

"But the revolver," she protested. "What do you mean by that? I know nothing of any revolver."

"Last night, a few minutes after Miss Lutan was murdered," I said solemnly, "some man or woman entered my room and placed a revolver with one chamber discharged in the dresser in my bedroom. It was evidently placed there for the purpose of throwing suspicion on me, of making me out the murderer. The detectives found it there and arrested me. If you did not enter my apartment to place the revolver, why then were you there?"

"I knew nothing about the murder," she answered irreverently, until this morning—until I read about it in the papers."

"What about Wick?" I asked at her. "Didn't Wick tell you?"

"Wick," she repeated in a puzzled way. "Oh, Mr. Wick, the superintendent? No, I have not seen him for several days."

"Did you do nothing yesterday at his direction?"

"How absurd! Of course not."

"Why, then, did you go into my room?"

She looked at me with a frightened face, and her manner became more confused.

"I really believe you are trying to trip me up in your crime," she ejaculated. "It's absurd for you to try to question me this way."

"Lies," interrupted the keeper, "you'll have to be going now. That's up."

"Promise me," she begged hastily in an undertone as she departed, "whatever you think about me, you'll keep my sister out of it."

"I'll promise nothing unless you confess everything," I repeated, determined. "If I could, I'd drag her secret from her, even though I as well as she, was eager to shield Barbara's name."

Claire Bradford's attitude, I must confess, puzzled me greatly. Her denial that she had seen the revolver, or that she had been working in conjunction with Wick seemed to ring true, and I was also inclined to believe her statement that she knew nothing of her former husband's present whereabouts. While I was pondering over her statements, my cell door opened and Gorman was let in.

"Well, young fellow," he said, "this sleuthing business didn't turn out exactly the way we expected it to, did it?"

"You don't think I'm guilty, do you?"

I waited in agony for his answer. If he failed me, there was no one, absolutely no one, to whom I could turn.

PROBLEMS FACING STRICKEN WORLD

Shall Chaos or Reconstruction in Europe Follow the Great World War?

CLASH OF FACT AND THEORY

Socialistic Idea of Conditions in World Where All Men Are on an Equality Takes No Thought, Overlooks Basic Fact in Nature.

Article XXV.

By FRANK COMERFORD.

On November 10, 1917, the bolshevik government was born. On Dec. 10, 1917, the bolshevik government abolished private ownership of land, declaring all real estate the property of the state. On February 10, 1918 they issued a decree declaring all state loans, internal and foreign, null and void, confiscating all maritime enterprises and all private banks to the state, and nationalizing foreign trade. The constitution established the communism of land in the following words:

"For the purpose of attaining the socialization of land, all private property in land is abolished and the entire land is declared to be national property, and is to be apportioned among agriculturists without any compensation to the former owners, in the measure of each one's ability to till it."

The peasants of Russia seized the land. They willingly followed this command of the new order, but they did not take the land as community property. They are not communists. Their experience with communal land owning had never satisfied them. Under the old regime the peasants were allotted land by the communal Mir. The Mir held title to the land and divided it by lot. The tenant of a farm on the land was under the Mir system. The average length of the lease was about thirteen years. Then came a new distribution of the Mir land, a new drawing. The peasant was compelled to move to the new strip of land allotted to him from the drawing. This plan took from the peasant all inducement to put his best into the land. He had no motive for improving the land. It was not his. At the next drawing it would probably go to another, and he in turn be shifted on a piece of land which had been neglected and allowed to deteriorate. I experience lived the peasant with one thought on his mind, to own his own land, to have a permanent home, something to work on and work for. So at the outbreak of the program to socialize the land we find the bolshevik government attempting a communistic program completely antagonistic to the wishes of the peasants.

Led to General Disorder.

Between the villages in Russia are the great landed estates, the proprietors' land. These lands were the best lands in the country and were well cared for. When the order to socialize the land was given the peasants turned to the proprietors' lands. The villages fought with each other for the possession and division of these proprietors' estates. This was the beginning of general disorder, small civil wars.

The bolshevik government attempted to force its program abolishing all private ownership of land. The first step was the abolition of land, the plan of land communization by giving the land to the people, that private title to land was abolished and declared that every man should have all the land he could actually work, and not an acre more. They argued that if a man had more land than he could work, one of two things would happen; either he would allow the land to remain idle, which would be a waste, or he would hire someone to work it for him. They said the hired man would be either a farm laborer or a tenant; whichever relation he bore to the owner of the land, he would be compelled to turn over part of his labor to the landowner. In one case it would be called rent, while, if he receives wages, the wages would represent something less than the value of the hired man's crop. This would be the profit taken by the landowner. They called this exploiting the worker. Instead of this condition they reasoned that the farm hand should work this land and keep the full product for the state. In the plan of distribution the state, the owner of everything, promised an equal distribution. The bolsheviks argued that their plan would make a better citizen out of the hired man and give him an inducement to work. He was not to work for himself, but for the good of all. It was a fine bit of idealism, but entirely contrary to human nature. It had to be worked out by human beings. Two things happened. One class of peasants worked the land only enough to produce what they and their families needed. They reasoned, "Why should we work after our needs are supplied?" This natural attitude of mind reduced production. The theory which promised increased production in practice decreased production.

Refused to Share With State.

Another class of peasants went onto the land and worked hard and produced much but they refused to give up the product of their labor to the state. They reasoned that the result of their labor belonged to themselves. Both classes were individualists. Neither group were communists in practice, particularly when the operation of communism came home to them.

For a time those peasants who had a surplus sold their product to the government. For if they received questionable paper money with a doubtful value. Then began the hoarding of farm products. The peasants demanded manufactured things which they needed, in exchange for their farm products. The government did not have the manufactured articles the peasants needed and wanted. The proletariat of the cities was hungry. It was up to the bolshevik government to feed them, or fail. Raiding parties were sent out. The "Red" army was used. The peasants stood together to protect their property. The socialization of land failed. Production on the farms fell. General poverty resulted. The problem of the bolshevik government to provide food for the cities still remained. With the failure of communism of the land, the government set to work to cultivate the great proprietary estates on a co-operative plan. Graft, inefficiency of administration, and the unwillingness of the peasants to work, caused this plan to fail.

Kerzhensky in the "Izvestia" of the provincial executive committees of January 22, 1919 gives a picture of the situation: "The facts describing the village soviet of the Uralskoye present a shocking picture, which is no doubt typical of all other corners of our provincial soviet life. The chairman of this village soviet, Rekhalev, and his nearest co-workers, have done all in their power to antagonize the population against the soviet rule. Rekhalev, himself, has often been found in an intoxicated condition, and he has frequently assaulted the local inhabitants. The beating up of visitors to the soviet office was an ordinary occurrence. In the village of Blerevovka the peasants have been threatened, not only with fists, but have been assaulted with sticks, robbed of their footwear and cast into damp cellars, on bare earthen floors. The members of the executive committee, Glakhov, Morev, Makhor, and others, have gone even further. They have organized 'requisition parties' which were nothing else but organized pillaging, in the course of which they have used wire-wrapped sticks of the requisitioners. The abundant testimony, verified by the soviet commission, portrays a very striking picture of violence. When these members of the executive committee arrived at the township of Sudomogor they commenced to assault the population and to rob them of foodstuffs and of their household belongings, such as quilts, clothing, harness, etc. No account for the requisitioned goods were given and no money paid. They even resorted to others on the spot one of the breadstuffs which they had requisitioned. This is the testimony of a well known local bolshevik leader.

Reports Flogging of Peasants.

The bolsheviks lately reported in the "Izvestia" of January 17, 1919, that "in the Voronezh county of the province of Voronezh they are flogging the peasants by the authority of the local soviet committee."

The "Izvestia," Krasnoyarsk, remarks in the "Severnaya Kommuna" of May 10, 1919: "The soviet workers are taking from the peasants chickens, goose, bread, and butter without paying for it in some houses holds of these poverty stricken folk they are confiscating even the pillows and the smocks, and everything they can lay their hands on. The peasants naturally feel very bitterly against the soviet rule."

The peasants' through meetings of the province of Krasnoyarsk forwarded a resolution to Lenin published in the "Izvestia," in which they say: "The members of the soviets are ruling us; they are violating our will and are tormenting us as if we were dumb cattle."

The peasants are hiding their rules, holding them for a day when they hope that the blight of communism will pass and safe democratic government will restore Russia, bring order out of chaos, establish freedom. Their safety-deposit boxes are empty bottles into which the peasants stuff the paper rubles and then bury the bottles. They look for a day when a stable government will redeem these paper promises called money, which today are of little value. It shows their lack of trust in the government and its banking system. It also points to the interest they have in the passing of the bolshevik government, and the hope they hold for the coming of a new state.

Many of the peasants who seized land are conscious of the dishonesty of the title and of the insecurity of their possession. They want good, honest title to their land. Several hundred million rubles were sent to the government treasury of Omsk by peasants asking that they be given honest title to their land.

Allies to Drive Turks Into Asia.

Internationalization of Constantinople and the straits of Dardanelles has been decided upon along the lines laid down by Premier Lloyd George of Great Britain in a recent speech, according to the Paris Matin. It seems certain, the newspaper says, that the seat of the Turkish government will be transferred to Asia Minor, and be located either at Bursa or Konia. Details of the form of international control which will be established over Constantinople have not as yet become known.

I Stood There Astounded. It Was Not Barbara; It Was Her Sister Claire.

Unconsciously she had resorted to this ruse to make sure of seeing me while at the same time concealing her own identity.

Overjoyed at her coming, delighted to know that I had read her heart aright and that my confidence in her trust in me was justified, I hastened with the keeper to meet her.

Delighted as I was at her coming, I was formulating in my mind how best to make it clear to her that she must leave at once and that no matter what happened she must keep her lips closed about the events of last night. Under no circumstances would I permit her to sacrifice herself to save me.

In the counsel room a veiled figure awaited me. I sprang forward eagerly toward her. The woman standing there put up one hand in a repelling gesture and then lunged back her

BE WISE

And place your orders for your winter supply of COAL NOW. The fuel situation is not promising to say the least, but we are bending every effort to secure enough to meet the needs of this community.

It is to your advantage to have your orders in early and we can thus fill your bins from the cars and that will help later in the season. One thing is very certain, and that is that coal will not be cheaper, but everything points to an advancing market.

Mine Sweeper No. 38.

This little boat was one of the fleet of 59 which cleared the North Sea of 55,000 mines.

The fleet has just returned to this country and was given a big reception in New York City.

These boats would sometimes be out for as long as twenty-five days in the stormy seas for which the North Sea is noted. The work was declared impossible by other navies, but the United States went ahead and completed this work before the scheduled time.

The U. S. Navy once again did the impossible.
