CLASS IN HOME NURSING MEETS NEXT MONDAY

For some months past the matter of instituting a class for the study of home nursing has been discussed by the ladies of Northville. The movement having the endorsement and support of the Wayne County Red Cross. Sufficient progress has been made so that the date for the first meeting can now be announced, and the ladies who are interested are requested to meet at the Red Cross room in the High school building on Monday afternoon, next at two o'clock. It is planned to give a series of ten lessons upon the subject of home nursing, three of which will deal especially with nutrition. The lessons will be of two hours duration and the class will meet once each week, and the fee for the entire course of ten will be $10.00. A representative of the Detroit Chapter Red Cross will be present and it is hoped to make each lesson full of real personal interest to all who attend. All the ladies of Northville are urged to avail themselves of this special training and to lend their aid and encouragement to the formation of the class. Do not wait for a personal invitation but come to the meeting Monday and identify yourself with this work.

In communities where these classes have been formed they are regarded as being of very great value and it is hoped to make especially so to the women of Northville.

At four o'clock the same afternoon, an effort will be made to form a young woman's class composed of High school teachers and girls and other young women of the village who are employed in offices and homes.

THIS OUGHT TO INTEREST NORTHVILLE WOMEN.

Want some ideas for making over that dress or coat?

Miss Helen Arms, clothing specialist from the Michigan Agricultural college will give a demonstration on remodeling clothing in the bookkeeping room, at the Northville High school at 2:30 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, October 20th. Making over clothes is a perplexing problem at the best, and Miss Arms has many helpful ideas to suggest.

The meeting is part of the program of the Home Department of the Wayne County Farm Bureau in arranging for meetings of interest to women. Everyone interested is urged to attend.

AUTO LICENSES AT HALF PRICE.

State auto licenses are now marked down to half-price, a fact which auto owners generally do not seem to understand as many continue to send to the secretary of state the full amount for a year's license, while the law provides that after September 1 the license shall be issued for one-half the full fee. Secretary of State Coleman C. Vaughan, speaking of the reduction, said that a majority of those sending in for licenses remit the full amount, apparently not aware of the provisions of the law.

WILL ENLARGE BUILDING.

A. L. Sheppard who has opened a garage in the building formerly known as the Church Street Garage, will erect an addition to the building and otherwise improve the property. He will build out to the street line, making a new part about 24x27 feet and will fit up the rooms over the present building for housekeeping quarters.

RISNER FOUND GUILTY.

Aaron Mark Risner was found guilty of enticing 14-year-old Marguerite Hager of Plymouth, from her home for the purpose of marrying her, by a jury in Judge Heston's court, Friday evening. The verdict was returned at 6:10 o'clock, after the jury had deliberated two hours. Risner was sentenced Monday by Judge Heston to serve from one to three years in Jackson prison.

BURGLARS VISITED HERE SATURDAY NIGHT

Sometime late Saturday night burglars made a visit to Northville and succeeded in gaining entrance to three places. At M. Brook & Co's they gained entrance by cutting away a window in the rear of the store. They secured about ten dollars in Canadian money, took some candy and chewing gum, and enjoyed a feast of pies and cookies. At the Main Street Garage entrance was gained by removing some broken window lights and a small sum of money was taken. At the Palmer refreshment stand on the Seven Mile road they took some candy and cigarettes and a small sum of money. They left no clue to their identity, but it is believed the works of that boys or at least by those who were seen at the burglary game.

ARE YOU REGISTERED?

Is your name on the registration list of your township? If it is you have nothing to worry about so far as your right to vote at the November election is concerned. If your name is not written in the big book, however, you will do well to attend to the matter now. Township Clerk Ernest Miller will be at his office in the City Hall on Saturday, the 16th and again on Saturday the 23rd, for the purpose of receiving names. The 23rd is the last day upon which you may register before the general election. If you cannot attend to the matter on either of those days you had better give your name to Mr. Miller before the 23rd.

In cities of ten thousand and over a general re-registration is required this year but not in communities the size of Northville. Just see to it that your name is on the book, if you are not sure of the matter.

TOOK PART OF POLICEMAN.

From a copy of the Evergreen Review, published by the Red Cross Institute for the Blind at Baltimore, Md., we learn that Arthur Crane took a prominent part in the recent field day exercises held at the institute. In speaking of those who took prominent parts in the day's festivities, the Review stated "one's attention was attracted by Arthur Crane, the bulky garbled, circus policeman, who vigorously kept back the innumerable crowds." The spectators expressed much interest in the diving trapeze exercises which were given by a number of men. The climax came when three of them, Cole, Crane, and Koehn dropped through the ceiling of the swimming hall, twenty-five feet above the water, into the tank below. Crane was a member of the committee having the arrangement of the affair in charge.

APPLE HARVEST IN FULL SWING.

Apple harvest is now on in full swing in this section and a splendid crop is being gathered. Not only is the fruit of good quality this year, but the yield will be abundant in many orchards the trees being weighted to the ground with their clusters of fruit. Many rumors of big yields are in circulation, but the most amazing one is to the effect that seventy bushels of apples were picked from two trees in an orchard not far from Northville.

The soil and climate through this section seem to be especially adapted to apple culture and this community has acquired an enviable reputation among buyers of choice fruit. Many of our orchardists have sold their crops right on the trees this year and every day now crews of men may be seen driving into the country early to pick apples.

FORESTERS TO MAKE MERRY.

"PYREX" GLASSWARE BAKING DISHES

These new transparent baking utensils are proving great favorites with good cooks because they make baking so much easier—enabling the cook to see the bottom and sides of the cooking food as well as the top. The fact that every dish is so attractive that they can be served direct from the oven to the table is another big point in their favor. Casseroles, covered dishes, open vegetable dishes, bread dishes, pie plates, ramequins, etc., are among our assortment of "Pyrex" ware.

LIFE WAS A MISERY TO HER

Says this Woman Until Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Carrollton, Ky. "I suffered almost two years with female weakness. I could not walk any distance, ride or take any exercise at all without resting. If I swept the floor or did any kind of work it would bring my sickness on. I was weak and languid, had no energy, and life was a misery to me. I was under the care of a good physician for several months and tried other remedies. I had read of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and decided to try it. After taking twelve bottles I found myself much improved and I took six more. I have never had any more trouble in that respect since. I have done all kinds of work and at present am an attendant at a state hospital and am feeling fine. I have recommended your Vegetable Compound to dozens of my friends and shall always recommend it." LILLIAN TRAPP, 824 S. 6th St., Carrollton, Ky.

If you have any symptom about which you would like to know write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for helpful advice given free of charge.

No More Misery After Eating

Just Takes An Eaton

"The first dose of Eaton did me wonders. I take it at meals and am no longer bothered with indigestion," writes Mrs. Ellen Harris. Thousands of people, like this dear lady, gratefully testify about Eaton, which does its wonders, by taking up and carrying out the excess acidity and gases which bring on indigestion, heartburn, bloating, belching and food repeating. Acid stomach also causes about seventy other non-organic ailments. Protect yourself. A big box of Eaton costs but a trifle with your druggist's guarantee.

Styles in New Gowns in Paris

Two gowns—one from Lanvin and one from Worth—show something of the style aims of the coming season. Paris says that, with devious variations to prove the rule, the silhouette shall remain virtually the same as it has been for some time past. It is to the details of formation and construction that the artists in dress are bending the utmost of their talent. There seems to be no end, writes a fashion correspondent, to the new forms, trimmings, the novel shapings of necklines and waistlines, the drapings of skirts, the shaping of bodices, the handling of lace and the general usage of all the fine points which go to make up a finished gown.

While the Parisians are generally considered to be at the lowest ebb of their art when handling the making of suits, still in the one which Worth has designed there is every sign of all that is to be desired. The skirt is long and full enough in its width to make it comfortable for walking purposes. The peplum exhibits a slightly more advanced tendency, which gives it the proper swing above the line of the skirt. The waistline is long, reaching toward the hips, and there it is further augmented by tucks that are interestingly grouped. The full is not too lavishly used and still it serves to accentuate the line and to add to the color combination, which, in this instance, is an antique green velvet cloth with black fur. The sleeves are an interesting feature of this not strictly tailored suit, for they spread open slightly at the wrists and allow the trimming to take its way up the arm until it approaches the elbow.

Ideas of the French. The French people believe, always, that a suit which deviates slightly from the strictly tailored variety is much better style than the one which adheres too closely to all of the masculine characteristics. They insist that it is, in the end, a more attractively feminine thing if it always keeps in mind the fact that it is to be worn by a woman. And surely their suits remain as practical as ours, which must be more closely fitted, more hardy tailored in some ways they may be worn for a greater length of time, for the displays itself in solidly worked bands of bright colorings, and, again, the chemise frock is made of simple, plainly woven and plainly colored silk or satin that has nothing but its line—its artistic and studied line—to recommend it for more than passing attention. A favorite method of embroidering the chemise frock is to carry the stitchings (hand stitchings they must be to be right) from the hem of the gown to the hip line and then to allow the rest of the gown to remain plain and unadorned, with only a string belt to suggest the place where a waistline might be located.

The cape, or some variation of the cape, is still popular among the Parisians. The cuts of these capes are as diversified as the trimmings of the chemise frocks, but always they retain the same line—straight, except for a place at the front where they are fluffed about the figure. A few of the newer capes have soft of blousy tops with skirt section joined to them down about the waist or quite under the hips. These with their collars of fur, or with furry linings, are the most graceful of outer coverings.

Evening Frocks Are Draped. Evening frocks continue to be draped and draped and then draped again. A Parisian designer recognizes no law in these her noblest works of art, but she regards the figure and what is best suited to it. Some of the results are more a reflection than others. A few have imitative works of genius. The silhouette is straight—yes, but every now and then one sees a bow or a puff or a full or a drape jutting out at the side or at the back or at some other unexpected angle.

Many broadsides are seen among the newest evening gowns, and these are draped always at a new angle and in a new way. Generally speaking, it is said that the skirts of evening gowns are longer but here a strange breaking of the rule occurs, for many of them are long at one side and shorter than even at the other, while others are so constructed that the front and back view with each other in unevenness of length. For the broadsides there is no trimming. They are enough in themselves, and as the materials increase in beauty and richness, so do the designs, until the whole effect is something to wonder at. A draped evening gown is made of the heaviest of black satin and is held about the figure in sweeping curves. Then there are two long and flowing trains reaching far below the hem of the gown itself.

Lace Is Decidedly Popular. Lace for evening gowns is quite the thing. A lace evening gown is made with tiers of flounces for the skirt, and with a low backed lace bodice having only suggestions of short and lace sleeves. The lace is black and is made over heavy black satin; then under the fine meshes somewhere about the bodice a folded, draped length of cloth of gold is arranged with subtle deftness. There is a lace train, too, which is attached at the rather high waistline and allowed to swing free of the rest of the frock until it sweeps for a matter of a foot or so upon the floor.

Lace and cloth of gold or cloth of silver is a very sumptuous and popular combination among the Parisians. The draping of lace over this shimmering metal foundation is charming, and nothing has ever been better suited to the purposes of evening wear.

The French hats of the season are again low and tight, hugging the head, so that the least of the coiffure shows. After the general close and clinging lines of the hats have been established they are subject to all sorts of fancies—going up into the air or out into the breeze on either side or down at back, with a long sweep of feathers over the lines of the neck and shoulders.

Chemise Dress Holds Own. The chemise dress, indeed, holds its own in a most remarkable way. Those who are returning from Paris say that nothing else can be seen on the boulevards. Sometimes they are embroidered over every inch of the surface that shows, sometimes they are merely trimmed with inconspicuous though cleverly designed rows of embroidered stitching, sometimes the embroidery

Lace overskirts are used on taffeta dancing frocks.

SEASONABLE, GOOD THINGS.

The Lima bean lends itself to so many good dishes, hot and cold, soups as well as salads that it should be often upon our tables.

Italian Lima Beans.—Cut one-third of a cupful of fat salt pork into dice and fry until brown. Add one large onion sliced thin, remove the pork and bits of onion and add the cooked drained beans to the fat in frying pan. Add six tablespoonfuls of tomato juice or catsup, season to taste with salt and pepper and cook until dry.

Frozen Chocolate Pudding.—Pour one cupful of boiling water over one-half cupful of sugar and six ounces of grated chocolate; stir until thick and smooth, then let cook. Mix lightly three cupfuls of whipped cream flavored with vanilla, turn into a fancy mold, cover securely and pack in ice and salt. Let stand for five hours. Serve with preserved strawberry syrup.

Stewed Beef and Cucumbers.—Take a round of beef weighing two to three pounds, brown it quickly in beef dripping. Remove to a deep kettle and brown two sliced onions and three cucumbers which have been pared and quartered and the seeds removed. Add these to the meat; then to the fat in the pan add sufficient flour to absorb it. Stir until browned; then add half a pint of boiling water. To this add an equal quantity of stewed and strained tomato; pour over the meat, season with salt and pepper, cover and simmer for two and one-half hours. Serve the meat on a platter with the vegetables and the sauce around it, garnishing with triangles of fried bread.

Surprise Peas.—Pare and corn peas and put a little of preserved ginger into the center of each. Season cold-cooked rice with sugar, salt and lemon juice. Make the rice into a paste with the yolks of two eggs well beaten. Cover each pea with rice, dip in crumbs, then in beaten egg, then in crumbs and fry in deep fat.

Poppovers.—Beat two eggs light and mix with a pint of milk. Pour gradually over a pint of flour sifted with a touch of salt and beat well. Fill hot greased cups two-thirds full and bake in a hot oven for thirty or forty minutes according to size. Serve at once.

You have excellent and hearing and vision. Your body and mind. You are young and strong and your mind is as free as ever. What is the reason you are willing about it? If you are not it is because you have not a good idea of the reason you are willing about it. It is a fact. If you are willing about it, it is a fact. If you are willing about it, it is a fact.

IN CHESTNUT TIME.

The cooked chestnut is not nearly so popular as it deserves to be. Any time or labor entailed in its preparation is amply repaid by the result.

Chestnut Custard.—Blanch chestnuts until soft, and mash through a colander a quantity of chestnut pulp. To one cupful of the chestnut pulp add three egg yolks with one beaten white of egg, one cupful of milk and half a teaspoonful of vanilla extract, and sugar to taste. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake slowly. Make a meringue with the remaining whites and two tablespoonfuls of sugar, and bake slowly on returning to the oven. Garnish with preserved cherries.

Imperial Chestnut Pudding.—Take one pint of chestnuts, one pint of almonds, two cupfuls of sugar, the yolks of six eggs, two cupfuls of cream, two cupfuls of boiling water, one pineapple or a can of the same, and one pound of candied fruit. Shell and blanch the chestnuts and cover with boiling water and cook until tender. Drain and press through a colander. Cut the candied fruit into bits, shell and blanch the almonds. Boil the sugar and boiling water for a quarter of an hour, then add the beaten yolks of the eggs, remove from the fire and beat until cool. Now add the fruit, cream, almonds, chestnut flavoring and a cupful of orange juice. Mix well and freeze. Pack for five hours to ripen.

Mashed Chestnuts.—These may be served as a vegetable or as a cake filling. Put boiled, blanched chestnuts through a ricer, season with salt, butter and cream as for mashed potatoes. For puddings add flavoring, sugar and a pinch of salt.

Chestnuts and Ham.—Place alternate layers of thinly sliced cooked ham and mashed chestnuts in a baking dish. Season with minced marjoram and sage, salt and bits of butter to the top layer of chestnut pulp. Bake until brown on top.

WHAT THE TEACHER THOUGHT

Comment That Took a Whole Lot of Cuteness Out of One Small Boy's Dadoy.

"The world is full of fault finders," said Professor Pritchard at a dinner recently, "and one of the most common targets is the modern education system. No more common at a dinner than, 'Well, they are doing something about it.'"

I have a friend like that, but the other day he told me he was through with the world in this way. He used to help his little son with his home studies. One evening, as they were about to begin, he asked the little chap what his teacher said regarding his lessons.

"He says I'm getting stupider every day," replied the lad, and from that time he had to do his home lessons alone.

English Factory Farm. A factory farm in Lincolnshire, England, instituted by Dennis Brothers, with its center at Kirton, possesses a canal running into millions of pounds sterling. Last year £20,000 (roughly $100,000) was distributed among the workmen on a profit-sharing system. By intensive cultivation $80 per acre was realized last year from a considerable number of acres. The farm possesses its own railroads, factories and machine-making shops.

POINTED OUT BRIGHT SIDE

Optimists Brave Effort to Convince Afflicted Man That the Cloud Had Silver Lining.

Mr. Tucker had been suddenly afflicted with a stiff neck. Not only was it a painful stiffness, but it caused him to twist his head around until he seemed to be trying to look behind him over his left shoulder, and his head was rigid in that pose.

"Of all the contorted poses a man was ever subjected to," he said, "this is the limit. They say to look on the bright side of our afflictions, but I'd like to know how I could make use of this stiff neck."

"My dear friend," said the optimist, "think what a golden opportunity this is to sit for your portrait without having to allow the photographer to twist your head around that way and jab those ridiculous things into the back of your neck."

A Wet Hump. Recently at one of the towns on the Canadian border a goat severely bitten a hunchback, and a sharp-eyed customs official perceived that, succeeding the assault, the man's hump was out of place. Upon further examination it was found that the man was perfectly formed, though disfigured, and that his "hump," when detached, was a two-quart receptacle filled with whisky.—Brooklyn Eagle.

GROESBECK PLEASURES FARM LEADERS IN CONFERENCE

REPUBLICAN CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR APPROVES OF PLANS TO AID PRODUCERS AND CONSUMERS.

"The farmers of Michigan have every reason to feel well satisfied with the attitude of Mr. Groesbeck with reference to the wishes of the farmers to have a better representation in state affairs and as to the purposes of farmers' organizations. This opinion was expressed by N. P. Hull, one of the best known representatives of Michigan farming activities and farm organizations.

Following his nomination as the Republican candidate for Governor, Mr. Groesbeck called a conference of farmer representatives for the purpose of learning what could be done to assist in restoring production to the abandoned farms of Michigan and to add to assurance that provision for the welfare of the farmer and the farm should hereafter receive the larger consideration these subjects well deserved. At this conference the matter of production and distribution of farm outputs was discussed at length.

It was stated by the representatives of the agricultural interests that there is too wide a breach between what the farmer gets for his produce, and what the consumer pays for it, and it was their opinion that legislative action could be taken through which this situation, harmful alike to producer and final consumer, could be better handled in Michigan.

The farmer representatives at the conference stated that they had no definite legislative program in mind and would only ask for the adoption of measures that would promise beneficial results to the state as a whole and to all its people.

Cordial approval was given by Mr. Groesbeck to the plea for fair play made by the agricultural leaders, and he gave assurance that if elected governor he would be glad to further confer with the representatives of the Michigan farmer touching matters of policy affecting their interest and to receive suggestions from them regarding means and methods of giving to farm producers a larger share of the value created by their labor.

FAVOR FOR GROESBECK IN COPPER COUNTRY

HE HAS REPRESENTED THE PEOPLE AND UPHOLD ALL PUBLIC INTERESTS.

Sentiment in the copper country of Michigan, although far distant from his Wayne county home, is aggressively favorable for the Republican candidate for governor. Why this special favor for Mr. Groesbeck exists in that section is thus expressed by the Houghton Mining Gazette.

"As attorney general he has been a conspicuously able, forceful and conscientious public servant. His opinions invariably have been upheld by the supreme court, he has co-operated with prosecutors in law enforcement, personally conducting the trial of important cases, and has consistently represented the people in every thing involving the public interest.

Mr. Groesbeck is thoroughly familiar with state deeds, and as governor unquestionably would give the state a businesslike administration.

WHY IT SUCCEEDS

Because It's For One Thing Only, and Northville People Appreciate This

Nothing can be good for everything. Doing one thing well brings success. Doan's Kidney Pills are for one thing only.

For weak or disordered kidneys. Here is Northville evidence to prove their worth. Ask your neighbor.

George F. Goodell, retired blacksmith, 9 Cady street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been a household remedy with me for the past four years. Whenever my back gets to aching or my kidneys don't act regularly, I take a few doses of the pills and they soon have me feeling all right. I have always relied upon Doan's Kidney Pills ever since my first experience with them as they did me so much good. I get Doan's at the Northville Drug Co's, and I don't know of any medicine more worthy of recommendation."

Price, 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Goodell had. Foster-McMaburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

AUTOISTS PAY LARGE AMOUNT.

Michigan's 83 counties will divide $187,424.23 half of the fees collected by the state from automobile owners during the quarter ending September 30, according to a report sent to Auditor-General Fuller by the department of state Thursday.

The apportionment of the counties is determined according to the amount collected from the respective county, to be credited by the county road fund, the remaining 50 per cent goes into the state treasury.

Wayne county, with more than one-third the automobiles in Michigan, will receive $61,080.87, with Kent county second, being allotted $8,524.71; Genesee, $7,567.28; Oakland, $6,896.33; and Saginaw, $5,307.47.

Other counties figuring large as motor centers include Bay, $3,070; Berrien, $4,493; Calhoun, $3,725; Ingham, $4,930; Jackson, $3,097; Kalamazoo, $3,630; Muskegon, $3,136; St. Clair, $2,199 and Washtenaw, $3,888.

CLOVER SEED SELLS FOR LOWER PRICES.

Clover seed can now be purchased at a relatively cheap price, for the first time in the last four years, according to J. F. Cox, head of the farm crops department at the Michigan Agricultural college. The Michigan crop is in good condition, and an excellent yield is reported in most sections of the state.

"If this seed is allowed to follow the usual market channels, much of it will move outside the state," says Professor Cox, "and Michigan farmers who desire to purchase seed next spring, may have difficulty in buying Michigan grown seed."

"Many farmers, who have been forced to seed their for the past few years, recognize the importance of securing good clover crops and are buying seed from neighbors and local seed dealers this fall. This practice is one which the Farm Crops Department at M. A. C. considers an excellent one, provided the clover is well cleaned, since Michigan grown clover seed of good condition and purity is best for planting in Michigan."

TO HOLD CONFERENCE AT LANSING.

A conference is to be held in Lansing of all the Michigan Public Health nurses to discuss health problems in this state as they affect the nursing profession. The conference has been called by Dr. R. N. Olin, State Health Commissioner, for October 29 and 30.

Vote "NO" on the School Amendment Because

Governor Sleeper says:

I am opposed to the proposed constitutional amendment abolishing Parochial Schools.

Our Commonwealth is broad enough to accommodate all shades of religious belief. It is big enough to give abundant room for the operations of all the religious denominations we have. The adoption of this amendment would engender bitterness and suspicion and distrust where now, mutual trust and good feeling to a large extent prevail.

I urge all good citizens to oppose this radical change.

Lieutenant Governor Dickinson says:

I am impressed that the present proposition is not one that will conduce to better moral, friendly and charitable relations between citizens of the state that is so much to be desired.

As an official in the War, I was proud of the patriotism and efficiency shown by those with whom I associated of both the Lutheran and Catholic faith.

As chairman of the Near East Relief of the State, I have also associated with these people and admire their spirit of loyalty and sympathy.

Attorney General Groesbeck, Republican Candidate for Governor says:

The proposed amendment is in conflict with the Federal Constitution and should not be placed upon the ballot. The proposed amendment tends most strongly to foment ill feeling and acrimonious discussion among the people.

I hold that the right of the parent to exercise a reasonable control over the education of his off-spring during the formative period of his character, is one of the most sacred rights preserved for the individual under the Federal Constitution.

Ex-Governor Ferris, Democratic Candidate for Governor says:

The amendment should be overwhelmingly defeated. The recent war taught us that Catholics, Lutherans, Methodists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Christian Scientists and other denominations can all work together. Our Democracy should guarantee this privilege.

I feel that this is a cowardly attack upon thousands of our best citizens.

Regent Frank B. Leland, of the University of Michigan says:

I do not favor this amendment for many reasons. I think it is un-American and in my opinion its incorporation into the basic law of the Commonwealth would be an unwelcome blot upon it.

As a lawyer it is my view that the proposed amendment would not be constitutional even if it were passed, therefore it has no place on the ballot.

Regent James O. Murfin, of the University of Michigan says:

I am against this proposed amendment for a number of reasons. First and foremost it appears to me it is dishonest, it is contrary to sound principles and sound ideas, and is the most decided step backward I have yet to learn a good sound argument for it.

President Frank S. Kedzie, of the Michigan Agricultural College says:

I am not favorable to the anti-parochial amendment for three main reasons:

First: Interferes with religious liberty.

Second: Introduces one more element tending to unrest.

Third: Would lessen education facilities for the younger generation.

President McKenny, of the Michigan State Normal School says:

This amendment if carried would shut out thousands of children because of no public school buildings to accommodate them. Another reason is that there is no more loyal group of men in America than those who come from parochial or private schools. One-fourth of the men in the late world war who fought for America came from parochial and private schools.

The amendment is un-American and we cannot afford to have it carried.

WM. J. BRYAN

SAYS FILIPINO WON THE HONORS

In a signed, copyrighted article written from the Democratic convention hall at San Francisco for the International News Service, William J. Bryan paid the following remarkable tribute to Jose P. Melencio, the young Filipino who is in charge of the Philippine Independence Publicity campaign in the United States.

By WILLIAM J. BRYAN.

The greatest personal victory yet won in this Democratic convention was scored by a young Filipino by the name of Jose P. Melencio. He has charge of the Philippine Publicity Bureau at Washington.

He is only twenty-six years old and received his education in the public schools of the Philippines—under American teachers, as he proudly boasted—and at Georgetown, D. C. He is a remarkably promising young man.

Speaking with grace, using the best language and without a trace of embarrassment, he presented the claim of the Filipinos to independence. The audience was astonished at the strength of his argument, the skill with which he marshaled his facts and the high tone of his speech. He captivated everyone and committee men and visitors paid him the compliment of rising and cheering when he concluded his plea.

When one of the committee asked him some questions he returned to the platform and answered them with as much logic and precision as if he had taken weeks to prepare his answer. It was a remarkable triumph.

As one who began twenty-two years ago to fight for the promise of independence I was proud of this illustration of what the Filipino is capable.

SOME FACTS ABOUT THE PHILIPPINES

The University of Santo Tomas is 25 years older than Harvard.

The Filipino people number 19,350,000, of whom 9,105,272 are Christians and only 9 per cent non Christians.

They have been Christians for 300 years and have a culture and refinement that will compare very favorably with that of other nations.

There are only 6,681 Japanese in the Philippines. There are about 100,000 Japanese in California alone, or 15 times as many as in the entire Philippines.

English is taught exclusively in the Philippine public schools. Two million men and women speak English fluently, and there are 100,000 English-speaking children in the public schools. It is destined to be the national language.

Seventy per cent of the inhabitants of the Philippines over ten years of age, according to a census just completed, are literate. This is a higher percentage of literacy than that of any South American country, higher than that of Spain and higher than that of any of the new republics of Europe. Independence is being guaranteed by the Allies.

The Filipino people are unanimous in their desire for independence. Whenever they are called upon to deposit their votes they have always ratified this aspiration. At every session before adjournment their representatives in the Legislature reiterate their faith in the principles of liberty and the independence of the Filipino people.

The Filipinos declare they have no grudge or grievance against the American people. Their appeal is accompanied by a message of friendship and gratitude for all that America has done for them. They point out that Uncle Sam gave independence to Cuba, and they hope that they, too, will receive that boon without which, they declare, no civilized and patriotic people can enjoy the maximum of happiness and self-respect.

A special delegation of Filipinos, officially representing the Filipino people, attended the Republican and Democratic National conventions, seeking an endorsement of the Filipino desire for independence in the two platforms. Their arguments, briefly stated, were as follows:

First.—That the American Declaration of Independence declares that governments derive their just powers from the consent of the governed;

Second.—That the American Congress, in the Jones law, solemnly promised the Filipinos independence upon the establishment of a stable government, and that their claim that the said stable government is now in existence in the islands has been officially confirmed by America's own representatives there; and Third.—That America went before the world in the recent war as the avowed champion of "self-determination." American soldiers have been told it was one of the things they were fighting and dying for.

New Classification.
Junior, pointing to a fox terrier, little short tail, exclaimed: "Say, laddy, I wish you'd buy me one of these cute little short stem dogs."

Wood Protector.
A coat of Japanese lacquer which, when applied to wood or metal is proof against boiling water, and almost all known agencies.

Northville has some splendid material on its team but the boys need proper coaching both in defensive and offensive playing. Would it not be a good plan for the citizens to raise a fund to pay the expenses of a good coach for a few weeks?

BETTER WATCH-OUT.

Those who are in the habit of helping themselves to apples, vegetables and nuts from trees along the public highways will do well to get themselves into serious trouble. There seems to be a good many people who have the mistaken notion that anything they can get away with is theirs by rights and that they have a perfect right to help themselves to anything they see. But in the eyes of the law this is not the case and if this practice of petty thieving is continued some people will get into trouble.

OAKLAND COUNTY TEACHERS IN SESSION.

D. of Chicago, is to give two lectures during the institute, while President Paul Voelker, of Olivet College, will be the instructor. The institute will be called to order at 9 a. m., by Commissioner A. L. Craft, of Pontiac, followed by an address by Deputy State Superintendent Horace Z. Wilber.

The evening musical program will be contributed by the Stolofsky Concert Company, of Chicago and by Miss Helen Hough, who will also give selections during the morning and afternoon sessions.

THIS LIFE IS WHAT WE MAKE IT.

Let's often talk of noble deeds.
And never of the bad ones
And sing about our happy days,
And not about the sad ones.
We were not made to fret and sigh
And then grief sleeps to wake it.
Bright happiness is standing by—
This life is what we make it.

Let's find the sunny side of men.
Or be believers in it;
A light there is in every soul
That takes the pains to win it.
Oh, there's a slumbering good in all,
And we perchance may wake it.
Our hands contain the magic wand,
This life is what we make it.

Then bring to those whose loving hearts
Shed light and joy about them.
Thanks be for them for countless gems
We need; but known without them
Oh, this should be a happy world
To all who may partake it.
The joy is our own if it is not—
This life is what we make it.

"Mutual Service the Very Cornerstone of the Pan-American Movement."

By DR. L. S. ROWE, New Director Pan-American Union

they are owe him a very real debt of gratitude.

Mutual service is the very cornerstone of the Pan-American movement and this same idea of service permeates and vitalizes the work of the union. Every one connected with the organization is constantly seeking new opportunities for service and usefulness.

This great international institution is the center to which the governments and peoples of the American republics turn for information. Through its agency the fog of distrust, due to lack of acquaintance with one another, is rapidly being dispelled. The essential unity of purpose and unity of ideals of the republics of America are, with each year, becoming more evident. In this unity of purpose and of ideals there is involved an example of a smoothly operating international organization that makes for mutual confidence, good will and above all, for the maintenance of peace.

In carrying forward the work of the union, it will be necessary to have the earnest co-operation, interest and support of the leading men and women of all the republics of this continent, and I earnestly hope that I may be assured of this indispensable requisite for the solution of the many important problems confronting the Pan-American union.

"I Shall Remember America as a Land of Interrupted Conversations."

By LYNN HAROLD ROUGH, Retiring Pres't Northwestern Univ.

"I shall remember America as the land of interrupted conversations," said that brilliant Frenchman, Paul Henri Bergson, after a brief but memorable visit to the United States. A great many things are interrupted in our rushing, energetic, complex, modern world. Perhaps most of all our thoughts are interrupted. We have to think under pressure and we catch most of our thoughts "on the fly." The result is that we have more thoughts than thought, more cleverness than insight. Of course it is a great deal easier to set an idea blazing at some time point of contemplation than to build the solid intellectual furnace where the great fires of the mind can be kept burning.

The boy at a typical American university who said he was too busy to have time to study only represents a part of our problem. You get close to the heart of it in the remark of another student who said that he was too busy to have time to think. The man of comprehensive intellectual powers is not the cleverest fellow with many thoughts. He is the man who thinks things out, who has risen from thoughts to thought.

One of the worst things which can be said about a university is that it is strong in everything except the intellectual life. It requires hard and vigorous training to make a man capable of thought. But the athlete of the mind knows that it is worth more than a mere victory.

Wholesale Grocer Necessary Link in Distribution of Food Products.

By C. B. STUART, Chicago Manufacturer.

The wholesale grocer is a necessary and valuable link in the distribution of grocery products, notwithstanding the stand taken recently by a large soap manufacturer in eliminating the jobber and selling direct to the retail grocer.

The wholesaler brings about a greater distribution of merchandise, thus increasing the volume and lowering the prices to the consumer. To eliminate him from the scheme of things would raise prices.

With the jobber eliminated, the retail grocer would have to buy more heavily and carry larger stocks. This would tie up his capital or restrict his assortments to a very few brands. He would be compelled to pay increased freight charges on goods delivered to him in individual shipments instead of one consignment from the jobber.

In addition, the grocer would be put to the added expense of establishing credit relations with many different firms. He would lose valuable time in interviewing many strange salesmen instead of placing his order with the jobbing salesman as he does now.

We have never viewed the work of the wholesaler as simply a mechanical function in the distribution of merchandise.

The American Woman Is a Creature of Unexampled Variety in Herself.

By W. L. GEORGE, British Author and Feminist

I have come to America chiefly to study its women. "One never knows a woman till he makes love to her. I brought my wife, who naturally objects to my employment of this method in studying the American woman.

The difficulties are great. Moreover, there is no such thing as the American woman in the sense that one may speak of the French woman or the English woman. You have so many types, and almost any American woman one meets is a creature of such unexampled variety in herself. Yet, though love making denied, profound knowledge must be lacking, I hope that if I can adequately describe my reactions from contact less intimate I will be doing something valuable. The impressions of foreigners, if faithfully conveyed, should be interesting and edifying.

The intellectual English woman is as high a product as any in the world. But they are not very common. The average American woman one meets is much more apt to be interested in the things of the mind.

This Season's Tasteful Coats

TAKING the coats of this season together, they are tastefully designed and it is not a hard matter to make a good selection among them. One might almost pick at random and still be reasonably sure of getting a long full, straight-hanging garment, that it is easy to wear becomingly. The point to keep in mind in order to make a successful choice are—the sort of material and the suitability of the coat to these requirements. Having selected these matters the choice is narrowed to a certain character of garment. Then it remains to pick out one that suits the individual taste and it will prove a joy as long as it lasts.

One of the coats pictured here is a very handsome, long, full, straight model. It has a very wide shawl collar and a deep cuff of Hudson seal and for further ornament, large barrel-shaped buttons that are placed at the end of a wide row of cord set in the mid line. A very low waistline is denoted by a row of small buttons.

Another elegant model relies on fine tailoring and embroidery to give it tone for good material is taken for granted in coats. This coat has a deep cape collar gathered about the neck, large coat sleeves provided with cuffs and deep inverted plaits at the sides. Two more plaits at the back form a center panel which is enriched by embroidery and embroidery is placed to the very best advantage on the collar.

Either of these coats is as hand some as a garment as any one could wish and they are altogether different. In making a selection the thing is to suit the coat to the wearer.

Frocks Eloquent of New Styles

THERE are a few important points in the new styles for fall that should not be overlooked. Some of them cannot be—they are everywhere so apparent, like the vogue for embroidery on everything we wear. Embroidery is to be credited with doing a great work for the present season's apparel, making it rich and interesting and proving the most versatile of embellishments.

Besides embroideries of silk, formal afternoon gowns are beginning to show just how much can be done with beads. There is room for endless ingenuity in applying them, which means that individual taste may be exercised in their use. It is possible to convert a plain frock into something distinguished by adding to it the attraction of beads put on in novel ways. The straight-line model shown above becomes a splendid affair by the application of jet beads in dignified straight bands. Over the hips and in a front panel the direction of the bands is changed and they are cleverly managed on the sleeves. Another noteworthy feature in this model appears in the narrow bands of krummer that finish the neck and sleeves.

With such pretentious afternoon gowns formal hats are worn and black velvet is enjoying great favor. Many of them are trimmed with plumage of some sort, and it is nearly always mounted at the side.

A notable dress for afternoon wear, in which satin and georgette are once more united, is more practical than its splendid rival and quite as original. It has a satin underskirt and low sleeveless bodice. The tunic and bodice exploit narrow tucks and rows of stitches in heavy silk—used in a new way. The tunic and bodice open at the front, revealing the underskirt of satin in a long panel, and there is a sash of wide, satin ribbon. This model is very handsome in brown, and the design so attractive that any color might be chosen for it.

GEORGE ONLY

By NELLIE F. BROWN.

(C. 1916 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"And when we came down Sprout's hill," went on Muriel, who, perched on the table, was reciting their adventures to her Aunt Hester, "we met George W. He's really quite pleasant, isn't he? Why don't you like him? You don't, I know" (as her aunt shook her head deprecatingly), "but he stopped and spoke, and so I had to introduce him"—she looked with a blush toward the curly-haired young man beside her—and he wished us great joy and so forth very nicely—didn't he, Will?"

Will nodded and opened his mouth to speak, but Muriel was already open, and she hurried on. "And then just a little further on, we met George Only."

"Why George Only?" queried Will, as Muriel stopped to take a cookie from the pan Miss Hester held.

"Why ever everybody calls him that," replied Muriel, "everybody but Aunt Hester, that is—she doesn't like nicknames."

"Sally Bennett told me that Aunt Hester started it," she said. "She said both of them used to be sweet on her, but I don't really believe that. At least, she doesn't like George W., and, of course, she couldn't have liked George Only."

"Why?" asked Will again. "He's not so awfully homely."

"He's homely enough," retorted Muriel decidedly. "He's a regular graffe and as graceful as a scarecrow. I'm just marrying you for your good looks," she added laughingly.

Meanwhile Hester, gray haired and angular and work worn, but with something still fine and strong in her face, was methodically cutting round after round of cookies, with unnecessary severe thrusts of the cutter. It always made her furious—only, of course she dared not show it—when anybody said "George Only." And her "homely" went back, as always, to the first time she had said it, years ago, when she was young like Muriel.

George Bates, George W., as he was called to distinguish him from his cousin, had come to call upon her, bringing some peaches. He did not like this George very well, but she was young and the peaches were delicious, so she was fairly enjoyable. Her mother was an invalid, deaf and querulous.

"Who, here?" she had called from her bedroom.

"George Bates, mother," he had replied. "George W."

"Which that you?" queried the old lady from her window, later.

"That's George, George Only," said Hester, laughing and blushing a little.

What Hester did not know was that George W. had repeated her phrase to his cousin, Francis, the words said "Oh, George!" had such a slighting sound and well he did not chance any. Why, indeed, his cousin and his cousin's cousin—so he had almost turned a row on him. Well, before long, George W. had had the grace to correct the name, and when he returned one heard "George Only" on every tongue. He never guessed it was the name Hester had given him, but thought it merely a perversion of the original slight.

And now he was alone in the world, as Hester would be when Muriel was married—Muriel, for when Hester had raised George W. and many others, gossip said George W. had conspired himself with Julia Smith, but George Only had never looked at another girl.

Or this George Only was thinking as he came back over the road where he had met Muriel and Will only a short time before. They were up on the hill back of the house now. He could see Muriel's blue gown. He looked a little wistfully at the kitchen door. Alas! the hill was stony, and one needed to watch one's footing. He slipped on a loose cobble and fell heavily, awkwardly, his long legs twisting grotesquely. Men are not supple at fifty-five, though they may be active and strong, as George Only was. When he tried to rise a pain shot through his ankle, and he felt sick and dizzy.

"Hello the house!" he called. "Hello, hello!"

"Who is it? What is it?" cried Miss Hester, rushing to the door.

"It's—It's only George," replied the man, with a wry twist of his mouth.

Miss Hester hurried down the walk. Her cheeks were pink, and she parted her hair furtively, in spite of her anxiety.

A glass of water, a cart to "the children" on the hill, a half-dozen helping hands into the house, a little "first aid," Will off for the doctor, Muriel making a cup of tea at her aunt's order, and Hester herself bending over her unwilling guest. "Why did you say 'only George'?" she asked abruptly.

"Why?" asked George Only in his turn. "You gave me the name, didn't you? Only folks turned it round."

Hester laughed, with a little sob in her throat. "Who told you I said 'only George'? No, don't tell me—I know. It was George W." Her lips shut tight and her eyes snapped.

George Only watched her in amazement. "Hester," he whispered, "did you ever care—really—for me?"

Hester put her toll-worn hand on his. It took a good deal of courage for an "old maid" like her, but she answered bravely:

"I always cared," she said, "for George—Only."

TREES NEEDED ON ROADWAYS

No Reason Why the United States Should Be Behind Europe in Matter of Beautification.

One of the pleasant impressions which our soldiers brought back with them from overseas was of miles of country roadways beautified with magnificent trees. In this country a shade tree by the roadside is so rare as to cause comment. Once in a while during a trip of many miles one will come to a place where some wise man of the past has set out in a row along the side of the road maples or oaks or elms. But an even commoner sight are the stretches where somebody has cut down the trees and left the roadway bare and unsightly. "Not infrequently telegraph or telephone companies have gone hacking their way through a stretch of fine old trees."

It appears that a land owner residing on any country road may cut down trees along the highway for road work and plow the land to the very edge of the road without interference, and that the law has permitted him to set out saplings in the spring and get 25 cents each in reduction of taxes. Public service corporations, it is stated, also have certain rights under the law which seem to work to the disadvantage of private citizens seeking to beautify the highway adjoining their property by planting valuable trees.

The State Forestry association will submit a proposition to its entire membership this fall by letter ballot, with a view to determining whether codification and revision of the state's shade tree laws shall be one of the objectives in the campaign for necessary forestry legislation. The association is appealing for the support of all citizens interested.

This is something which may well command our favorable attention. The movement should provide not only for the protection of such roadside trees as still exist, but should also make provision for the replacing of those already destroyed.—Buffalo Express

BACKYARD ORCHARD AN ASSET

Can Be Depended Upon to Pay Dividends of Pleasure and Health for Many Years.

The orchard behind the village home has always been an asset of great value. We know one once that had cherries, peaches, plums and apples for the entire fruit season—early and late—and it yielded enormous dividends of pleasure and health for a full quarter of a century.

A few fruit trees may be grown with profit in the back yards of cities not too closely built. One exists in many city where ten years ago a white husbandman planted fruit trees in his back yard and for ornament set out Japanese apricots and dwarf quinces in his front yard. From his trees he now has two crops one of surprising beauty during blossom time and another of palatable and beautiful fruit later. There are also berries on his lot in abundance, and a wild goose plum tree that carries prodigious crops.

It may be stated as a fact that no man ever planted fruit trees who did not thereby become a benefactor. There is room for thousands of them in the rear of Omaha homes.—Omaha Bee

Roads of Remembrance.

The trees planted at the technical high school were in honor of former pupils in the service and not for the dead. Women's clubs, highway associations, state forestry associations and the American Forestry association are taking an active interest in the movement. No more beautiful way of paying tribute to the boys who went to war could be devised than the planting of trees, and it is an undertaking to be encouraged. Memory trees, singly or in groups, or along "roads of remembrance" will be known for what they are quite as well as a carved monument and may be far more beautiful.—Indianapolis Star

Vacant Lot Gardens.

According to C. O. Davis of the Milwaukee garden commission, more than 1,000 vacant lots are now under cultivation. One of the benefits of the planting of gardens is that it stops people from using the vacant lots as dumping grounds for their garbage and rubbish. The heaps of refuse often form breeding places for flies and mosquitoes.

Yet greater benefits are realized in the profits derived from the garden produce and the healthful exercise gained in caring for the tracts.

Now for Tree Planting.

Trees for city street planting may be of the same kind for a dozen blocks and must be evenly spaced, says the American Forestry association of Washington, which will send a tree tree planting guide to any one. When trees are planted along a country roadside it is better to have them in groups of a few kinds and informally located.

Well to Remember.

Well-kept back yards pay better dividends than well-kept cemeteries.

PROPER FEEDING RULES FOR CALF

Feed and Management Will Depend Greatly on Time of Year Animal Was Dropped.

GIVE GRAIN AND ROUGHAGES

Standard Ration May Be Made by Using Corn, Oats and Bran of Equal Parts by Weight—Pasture Is Most Essential.

The feed, care and management which the high-class beef calf should receive after it is weaned will depend largely on the time of year it was dropped. A spring calf should be fed differently from one dropped in the fall. It is assumed that in either case, however, the principal part of the calf's feed for the first few months was its mother's milk. In addition to the milk, it should have been fed grain so that at weaning time it would be getting from two to six pounds, depending upon the age of the calf and time of year weaned with a little silage and a liberal amount of hay as well.

If the calf has not been taught to eat grain before it was weaned, it should be taught at once. Begin by feeding it as one does for the calf before weaning. The amount of feed, however, may be increased more rapidly than with the unweaned calf. In a month or six weeks after it is weaned it should be eating from two to three pounds of grain with six pounds of silage and from two to three pounds of other roughages like stover or straw in addition, unless sufficient pasture is available.

A standard grain ration for the calf may be made by using corn, oats and bran, equal parts by weight, or corn, the parts and oats or bran three parts by weight, with one part of linseed meal added to both unless the ration seems too laxative. It is expected that to many cases all these feeds will not be available. It will be necessary then to substitute other feeds. The following substitutions are recommended:

Feed.	Substitutes.
Corn .....	Barley, half mile oats or other feeds high in carbohydrates and fat.
Oats .....	Bran, ground corn, middlings, cottonseed meal, linseed meal, vetch meal, soy bean meal or other feeds high in protein.
Corn silage ..	Sorghum silage, other silages, roots or manure.
Clover hay ..	Alfalfa, lespedeza, peanut vine hay, or grass hay.
Corn stover ..	Oat straw, other straws or hay.

The quantity of grain to feed should be determined at all times by the appetite of the calf. Feed what it will clean-up in a short time and with it had just a little more. A variety of hay should be provided if possible. While the beef calf can use cheap roughages to advantage, good hay, preferably legumes such as clover, alfalfa and lespedeza, are more satisfactory. Well-cured, bright corn stover or oat straw may be used to supply a part of the roughage needed and keep the calf's appetite good and its digestion to proper order. Give as much hay as it will consume, but do not allow any waste. If the calf is on good pasture it will not consume much hay. As it increases in age, it can be fed silage to advantage. Avoid overfeeding with silage, as there is danger of digestive disturbances, especially when getting a liberal supply of milk.

Pasture should be provided at all times. Next to milk it is nature's balanced ration. Sufficient pasture may be obtained from such pasture plants as blue grass, Bermuda, lespedeza, carpet grass, clover, alfalfa and prairie grass. Late fall, winter or early spring pasture may also be obtained by grazing such crops as rye, oats, wheat, soy beans, cowpeas and velvet beans. Use great care in pasturing legumes, such as alfalfa and the clovers, also winter pasture crops. Turn the calf on such crops for only a short time at first, because the calf may bloat from overeating on such feeds. After it becomes used to them it may graze with safety.

Rules of Feeding. There are many things to remember in feeding the calf. They may be called rules of feeding and should be carefully followed.

1. Provide a variety of feeds at all times, if possible. It is easier to supply the proper amounts of the desired nutrients which the calf needs, if several different feeds are used. The ration will also be more palatable.

2. Do not make sudden changes in the feeds used or in the amounts given. If it becomes necessary to change feeds from, say, clover to alfalfa hay, feed part clover and part alfalfa for a few days. Gradually reduce the amount of clover and at the same time increase the alfalfa.

3. Do not overfeed the calf. Feed as much grain as it will clean-up in 30 minutes and wish it had just a little more. Feed left in the trough to be breathed over is worse than wasted. If any remains it should be removed and less given the next time. Digestive disorders occur from feeding too much rather than too little.

4. Do not underfeed the calf. It should make a continuous gain. If it does not grow each day the feed given is about the same as wasted. Digestive disorders occur from feeding too much rather than too little.

5. Do not annoy or disturb the calf unnecessarily. The fattening or growing calf should be kept as quiet as possible. It requires more feed to keep it growing while standing or moving about than while lying down at rest.

6. Do not feed moldy, musty or spoiled feeds. To do so may cause serious digestive disorders. All hay

Farmers Are Urged to Conserve Their Bull Calves Wherever Practicable, Instead of Butchering Them

Should be brought well cured and free from dirt, mud and dirtiness. If ground feeds get wet they are likely to mold. This is especially true of cottonseed meal and ground corn. They should not be fed if in bad condition.

7. Do not waste time in feeding the calf. To waste time in feeding or preparing feeds, especially in winter, the cost of grain and roughage should be fed while except when feeding the calf to eat and possibly also near the end of the fattening or finishing period. Whole grain as a rule is more palatable than ground feeds. For corn may be shelled, broken or chopped up in the feed box rather than ground flunks on snapped corn feed not be removed for this purpose. It rarely pays to shelled corn or cut or chaff hay for the calf. It need not be fed three times a day when twice a day will do as well, although the former may be practiced when fitting the animal for show or sale. Do not go to the expense of buying prepared "stock feeds" or "medicated" feeds.

One home-mixed calf meal, known as the Purdue Mixture, which has given good results, is composed of equal parts by weight of bony meal, linseed meal, red dog flour and dried blood. Each of these constituents can be bought at a reasonable price and mixed at home. Another mixture used with success at the Indiana experiment station consists of eight parts cornmeal, three parts dried blood and one part of meal. Still another mixture that has been recommended is one made up of 44 pounds ground oat flakes, 20 pounds ground flaxseed meal, 10 pounds flour middlings, 22 pounds fine cornmeal, and 3 pounds blood flour.

UNPROFITABLE ANIMALS SOLD

Nebraska Live Stock Owner Disposes of Scrub Bull and Five Cows to Improve Herd.

"I disposed of one scrub bull and five cows that were not profitable." With this explanation a live-stock owner in Dodge county, Nebraska, enrolled in the "Better Sires—Better Stock" movement which provides for purebred sires in all classes of domestic animals kept.

A purebred Holstein bull now heads his herd of 25 grade cattle and the Durac swine on the farm are all purebred. Horses, sheep, goats and poultry complete the kinds of live stock kept. While these are not purebred, they will be improved by breeding to purebred sires only.

The experience of live-stock owners that scrub sires are unprofitable supports the results of numerous official experiments which show the superiority of good purebred sires over all other kinds.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

Silage and alfalfa make cheap beef and milk.

Keep cholera hogs and carcasses away from the stream and insist that your neighbors do the same.

Sunflower silage, when combined with corn, cottonseed meal and alfalfa hay, is an important feed in producing beef.

Too much direct sunlight and heat is a frequent cause of hogs failing to thrive, and is often the cause of hogs dying.

DAIRY FACTS

CALF ON MILK SUBSTITUTES

Feeds Which Have Been Tried Have Given Only Small Degree of Satisfaction.

The need for home-raised calves has led to a search for a "milk substitute." While the feeds which have been tried have given some degree of success, there has not yet been found a complete or satisfactory substitute for milk. It is doubtful if any article or combination of articles that will completely take the place of milk in diet during the first two months of the calf's life can be found. There are a number of so-called milk substitutes on the market. Most of them are sold in the form of calf meals, and with proper care many of them will give good results. It should be clearly understood at the outset that calves raised on calf meals will not be as fat and sleek as those raised on milk. They will be growing and healthy, however, provided they are given proper attention. Calf meals can be bought from local dealers at varying prices, or they may be mixed at home if the proper ingredients can be secured. In many cases the home-mixed calf meals are superior to the ones bought on the market, and as a rule, they are considerably cheaper.

According to the University of Missouri college of agriculture, a calf meal, in order to give success, should be made up of ingredients that are easily digested and that are not too expensive. A few of the most commonly used materials are: Fine cornmeal, four middlings wheat flour (poor grade), ground rice, oat flakes, barley meal, coconut meal, linseed meal, flaxseed meal, cottonseed meal, blood meal, blood meal, and dried skim milk or milk powder. Skim milk powder is not absolutely essential and it is rather expensive, but many of the calf meals that have given the best results have contained considerable amounts of it.

The cost of calf meal is variable. At present, it may be bought, ready mixed, at prices ranging from $4 to $10 a hundred pounds. The average retail price is approximately $5. In large quantities the price may usually be bought at a considerably lower price. There is nothing to indicate that the highest priced meals are superior to some of the more moderately priced ones.

One home-mixed calf meal, known as the Purdue Mixture, which has given good results, is composed of equal parts by weight of bony meal, linseed meal, red dog flour and dried blood. Each of these constituents can be bought at a reasonable price and mixed at home. Another mixture used with success at the Indiana experiment station consists of eight parts cornmeal, three parts dried blood and one part of meal. Still another mixture that has been recommended is one made up of 44 pounds ground oat flakes, 20 pounds ground flaxseed meal, 10 pounds flour middlings, 22 pounds fine cornmeal, and 3 pounds blood flour.

Many other mixtures can be used that will give good results provided: (1) the proper nutrients are present, (2) the feeds are of a nature to promote good physiological condition, and (3) the nutrients are present in an easily digestible form.

FEEDING TO FULL CAPACITY

Adjust Grain Ration of Cow to Milk Production and Give All Roughage She Will Eat.

Economical feeding demands that the cows be fed to full capacity. To do this and to have the best effect on the individual cow requires a thorough knowledge of feeds and of cows.

Under most circumstances the cow should be fed all the roughage that she will eat up clean, adjusting the grain ration to the milk production. Only when the cow tends to become overfat should the quantity of roughage be restricted.

A grain mixture should be fed in the proportion of one pound to each three parts or pound of milk produced daily by the cow, except in case of a cow producing a flow of 40 pounds or more, when the ration can be one pound to each three and a half or four pounds of milk. An even better rule is one pound of grain each day for every pound of butterfat produced during the week by the cow.

PLEASURE HAD SAD ENDING GIVING NATURE FAIR CHANCE

Four in a Tub, With Soiled Clothing, Too Much for the Patience of Mother.

My young brother, Willie, was mischievous and had to be watched carefully. Mother was busy making a birthday gift one afternoon, and I was playing near her, when she said to me: "Where's Willie?"

We said we didn't know, so we were sent to find him. I looked everywhere when I came to the bathroom, there was Willie in the tub which had filled with water, and he had his clothes on. "He is in," he said, and I scrambled in.

We were enjoying ourselves immensely when in came mother, crying: "He did it! He did it! Get him out of there! He is in the tub, and we are all soiled!"

My mother entered "One of the tubs," she ordered. "We got out, but as and go to bed at once!" We were supperless—Excuse.

Cruel Intimation. We had our hair raised three times. "Who did it for you?"

The big room the wing—Remember the man in the white shirt who experienced school boy read about the admonition to "Arise!" He had been taught that when he encountered two letters of the same kind he should pronounce them double, or whatever they might be, instead of "to." So he sternly recited: "Double up, Lucy! The sun is in the sky" and so forth. Why do you not double up, and to your tasks now?"

"That is a very good story," replied the sluggard. "But it does not move me. We are told that nature does most of her repair work at night while we are in bed. It is my intention to be here until she has set us up so that I feel like going to work."—Kansas City Star.
