UNION REVIVALS ARE GROWING IN INTEREST

Last Sunday was a great day for the churches in Northville. The morning services were held at the usual hour and then the Baptist and Methodist Sunday schools marched in a body to the Presbyterian church where a grand rally of all three was held and addressed by Mr. McBrayne and Mr. Rollings. In the afternoon a meeting for men was held in the Alseum theatre, and over one hundred men listened to a talk by Dr. Charles F. Kuhn of Detroit, one of the leading surgeons of the city. In the evening the Methodist church was filled to the doors. Next Friday night will be High school night and the song service will be given by the Juvenile choir. A fine song program is expected and you will need to come early. Next Sunday the Sunday school rally will be held in the Baptist church. In the afternoon a meeting for men will be held in the Alseum theatre, to be addressed by C. E. Knight, with special music by a Detroit vocalist. Mr. Knight is one of the most forceful speakers of the hand and an interesting time may be expected.

A meeting for women will be held at the same hour in the Baptist church to be addressed by Dr. Kuhn with Mrs. Bishop Henderson as the vocalist.

Your reporter frequently hears the remark on the street, "Those men are doing Northville a lot of good." We believe it and earnestly urge the fullest co-operation of all right thinking people. The meeting will soon be past history, so let us make the most of them. Now is the accepted time, now is the day of salvation.

PERKINS-BENNETT.

Miss Thelma Bennett and Peter Perkins of this village surprised their friends last Friday, October 29th, by quietly motoring over to Royal Oak where they were united in marriage at the Presbyterian church by Rev. Jerome B. Webber, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of that place. Their attendants were Miss Marian L. Somerville of Detroit and Mr. Garnet Grant of Hillsdale. After the ceremony, which was witnessed by only the immediate family, they left on a wedding trip to central Ohio, returning to Northville Monday evening. Mr. Perkins is employed as a house operator on the Farmington Enterprise and Mrs. Bennett is assistant to the editor of The Record and both are well known young people. They have many friends in this community who will join the Record in wishing them happiness and success.

Mr. and Mrs. Perkins will reside with the latter's mother, Mrs. Maude Bennett on Pearl street.

FORD PURCHASES PLYMOUTH PROPERTY.

A deal was consummated last Friday, whereby Henry Ford purchased the Wilcox mill property on the north side of the village. The purchase of this property forms another link in the plans of Mr. Ford to build power plants and erect factories along the River Rouge from Northville to Dearborn. Work on the construction of a new dam to take the place of the old one, which went out with the big flood last spring will be commenced at once.

The mill property has been in the possession of the Wilcox family for over forty years, and has become a familiar landmark in the community. For the past seventeen years the mill has been operated by John and George Wilcox—Plymouth Mail.

TO EXTEND WATER MAINS.

A carload of four inch water mains arrived in the village Monday to be used in extending the water works to Orchard Heights. In all about nine hundred feet will be put in and it is hoped to complete the work of installation yet this fall. With water assured, there will, doubtless, be a number of new residences erected in that new subdivision next season. In fact five of them are now ready for occupancy, and one of the number, the one erected by Mr. Eaton, has been occupied for some weeks. C. R. Ely will complete his handsome new home this fall and winter.

The village council is to be commended for their action in extending the water mains in this portion of the village. The gas company should now follow with its mains.

THE REPUBLICANS SWEEP THE COUNTRY

Tuesday was a typical election day, with clouds, sunshine, rain and flurries of snow, but the unfavorable weather condition with prevailed in many sections did not keep the people from the polls. The heaviest vote in the history of the country was cast, from Maine to California. In Northville township, however, not much more than one-half of the voters whose names appear on the poll lists took the trouble to go to the polls and vote. There were 779 ballots cast in both precincts and of this number Harding received 619, Cox 131, Groesbeck 602, Ferris 151. A few voters "scratched", Groesbeck for Ferris, but not as many deserted the republican candidate for governor as they did in previous campaigns when the Big Rapids schoolmaster was a candidate.

In this township the school amendment was carried by a small majority. The women turned out well for the first time and they made no more mistakes in marking or folding their ballots than the men.

News regarding the result of the day's battle was very meagre up to midnight, but by that hour Cox conceded the election of the republican candidate. Wednesday morning's papers gave partial returns from many states and all reports indicated a landslide for the republicans.

In some states the official returns will be required to determine the results on state and congressional tickets. It is believed, however, the next morning will have a good working majority in both branches.

The republicans carried every county in Michigan. Over in Oakland county the republicans made a clean sweep also electing every candidate on their ticket.

All the candidates on the Wayne county republican ticket were elected by a large vote only one of them, having any opposition.

The republican state ticket will have a margin of upwards of 400,000 in Michigan.

Harding polled nearly five votes for every one secured by Cox in Wayne county.

The school amendment was overwhelmingly defeated.

The proposition to bond Wayne county for new bridges was carried by a large majority.

A PRETTY WEDDING.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season occurred Saturday evening October 30th at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bruno Freydl, when their daughter, Miss Stella was united in marriage to Stewart Nelson Taylor of Detroit. Rev. Edward V. Hennes officiated.

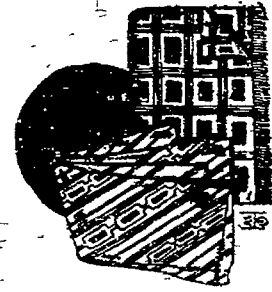

The rooms were artistically arranged for the occasion with a banking of palms and palms. The bridegroom entered to the strains of Schubert's bridal chorus, played by Major Taylor. The bride was charming in a gown of ivory satin with a touch of blue and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and baby's breath. The groom wore the conventional black. They were attended by Miss Irene Marsh as maid of honor, attired in a gown of pink georgette, carrying pink roses, and Frank Freydl, brother of the bride, as best man.

After the wedding a buffet luncheon was served and while the guests were enjoying a social hour, the lights suddenly went out and the bridal pair made a hasty retreat amid a shower of rice and confetti. Numerous and beautiful were the wedding gifts, consisting mostly of silver, cut glass and linen.

The bride is one of Northville's most estimable young ladies and a general favorite among the younger set. She will be greatly missed in the community and a host of good wishes for the future attend her. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Taylor formerly of this place. They will be at home after November 10, at 611 Wright avenue Alma.

The out-of-town guests were: Mr. and Mrs. N. D. Taylor and son, Major, Mrs. Kate Clements, and Mrs. George Henry of Alma; Mr. and Mrs. Felix Freydl, son Arnold and daughter, Dorothy of Plymouth; Mrs. Charles Naatzel of Farmington; Mr. and Mrs. Albert Houppert and son, Albert, and Mrs. Dewey Hesse of Saginaw; Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ferris of Mt. Vernon, Ohio; and Mrs. K. R. Ball and Mrs. Ida Joslin of Detroit.

Mrs. Lizzie Harger returned home Thursday from an auto trip through the east.

CARE NEEDED IN DRESSING DUCKS

Practical Suggestions Given by Specialists of Department of Agriculture.

THREE METHODS DESCRIBED

Fowls Should Be Carefully Prepared or They Will Not Command Top Market Prices—There Is Big Profit in Feathers.

Some duck raisers market their ducks alive but others think more money is made by dressing them at home. The following directions for preparing ducks for market are given by United States Department of Agriculture specialists.

Ducks may be dressed by dry picking, by scalding, or by steaming. Their condition is best judged by the amount of flesh on their backs. The methods used in dry picking poultry are also used with ducks, although the latter are harder to pick. The ducks are generally killed by sticking in the mouth or through the throat with a knife which has a narrow blade about 1/2 inches long, and then running it down on the back of the head with a short club, or the knife may be inserted just back of the eye. To facilitate handling a scalding and picking a look is run into the duck's mouth, coming out through the nostrils. The long tail feathers are left on the duck, the wings are picked to the first joint, and the neck is cut to the first joint. The plucked ducks are then removed with a fork, and the down sometimes is rubbed off with the moistened hand. If left with the hot or shayed with a very sharp knife. Large duck may require a pickers who devote their time to picking dressed ducks. During the picking season and are very profitable in this work.

Steaming and Picking

Ducks may be steamed and picked thus saving the raisers without artificial drying, and ducks so prepared are of considerable value. The wings and tail feathers are pulled and thrown to one side. The down is removed with a fork, and the ducks, which have been stuck and hung up to bleed, are placed on hooks in the top of a steam box or barrel which can be made, straight are steamed until the soft feathers on the breast come off easily.

The length of time to leave them in the box depends on the temperature of the steam, varying from one-half to two minutes. Two sets of pickers usually pluck the ducks, one set, called roughers removing the bulk of the feathers, while the other set of pickers called the finishers, removes the down and some of the stiffer feathers. A good method for removing the down is to sprinkle powdered rosin over the duck's body and dip the bird in hot water, which melts the rosin so that the down and resin can be rubbed off easily with the hand leaving the body clean. When carefully steamed the birds rarely show any signs of scalded flesh. In some cases the ducks are hung in the steam box with the heads outside, thus preventing the head from being steamed; but when the birds are steamed as suggested the heads are not discolored.

After the ducks are picked they are usually washed and put in ice water for an hour or two to cool and plump. Each layer of ducks is packed flat in ice, usually with the keels or breasts down, in barrels, or in boxes holding one dozen each. It costs from 8 to 12 cents apiece to pick ducks, but the sale of the body feathers and down reduces the picking expense materially. As white feathers bring from 55 to 65 cents a pound when cured. Each duck yields about two ounces of marketable feathers. Scalded feathers may also be dried and sold.

Feed Costs

The feed cost of growing Pekin ducks to ten weeks of age, when they weigh from five to six pounds, is estimated at from 13 to 15 cents a pound. Ducks are marketed from April to November, and bring from 20 to 45 cents a pound when sold to commission men at wholesale. The highest prices are paid for ducks marketed early in the spring, decreasing as the season advances and the supply becomes more abundant. The demand for green ducks has been built up in large cities in the East and on the Pacific coast, and there is very little demand for such ducks in small cities and towns. Many farmers market their ducks in the fall as spring ducks at a lower price per bird than is received for green ducks in the spring.

COOPS FOR SHIPPING EXHIBITION POULTRY

Poorly-Constructed Coops Should Be Avoided.

Many Desirable and Promising Fowls Have Been Injured by Use of Improperly Built Boxes—Plans Given in Bulletin.

Under no circumstances should a bird be sent to an exhibit or show in a poorly constructed shipping coop. Many desirable and promising fowls have been rendered unfit for show by shipping them in a coop that was either too small or poorly constructed, says a recent farmers' bulletin on the selection and preparation of fowls for exhibition, issued by the United States Department of Agriculture. Coops for the purpose can either be purchased for a reasonable amount or be constructed at following the plans given in Farmers' Bulletin 1197.

When a slat topped shipping coop is used tack a piece of muslin on the inside of the top so as to keep out the dirt and in winter, to keep out the cold. Do not use a cloth that is so heavy and thick that it will cut off ventilation.

Place a small amount of clean hay, or preferably, clean straw or shavings from dust on the bottom of the coop. A cup of dry corn meal can be fastened securely at one of the corners of the coop and a cup of water in the top and bottom. Feed is important in the coop. If the birds are shipped only a short distance or if they are not to be in the coop for more than a day, when food is provided such grain as wheat or corn is most satisfactory. Water placed in the coop is better if it is changed and to add the plumage. A wooden bucket tied in one of the corners of the coop will furnish the birds with enough to eat and drink.

A bar of card placed behind with the coop will keep the birds from pulling together with a common address, should be looked at from the outside where it can be plainly seen.

The coop should be closed securely, so that it will not come open in transit. Provision however should be made for the coop to be opened readily on arrival at the showman. Under no circumstances should a coop be so tightly fastened that it will have to be broken or cut open to get the birds out. When this is the case the birds are often rendered unfit for exhibition.

MUCH ADVANTAGE IN POOLING WOOL CLIP

Large Number of Buyers Is Easily Attracted.

Big Dealers Are Not Interested in Individual Clips Unless of Considerable Magnitude—Volume Handling Is Best.

The advantage of wool pooling and co-operative selling may well be outlined as pertaining to the growers to sell their wool collectively in a large volume, thus attracting a large number of buyers and making possible the payment of the full value of the wool. The larger buyers are not attracted by individual clips unless they are of considerable magnitude, such as some of those produced by the larger ranchers in the West. Nor is the local buyer able to pay the full price for wools which must be purchased a few fleeces at a time and carried at his personal expense and risk until sufficient volume has been accumulated to permit his shipping to some central market.

Volume handling such as is possible where the wool clip of the community is sold collectively reduces the cost per pound of buying and handling and will permit the purchaser, whether a local wool merchant or some outside buyer, to pay a higher price per pound than is possible where it is necessary to purchase the wool in small lots.

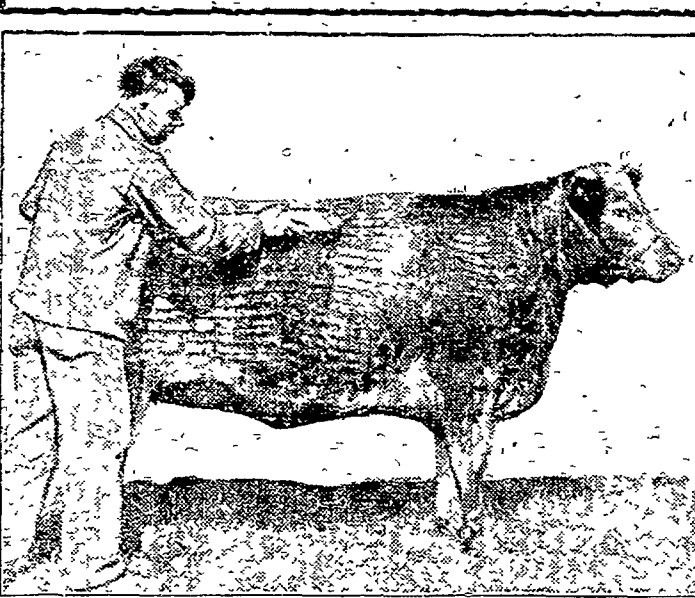

The bureau of markets, United States Department of Agriculture, is constantly giving assistance to co-operative organizations in the way of organization practices and selling methods, and will be glad to extend similar service in the co-operative marketing of wool.

POULTRY NOTES

One-tenth of the meat that the farmer raises for his own use on his place is poultry.

Cockers are culled fairly close as a rule, but on many farms everything that is a female is retained in hopes that a few eggs may be received during the winter months.

PREPARE CALF FOR SHOW OR SALE

Brushing Up the Tips of the Hair to Give the Fluffy, Wavy Appearance.

When a well-fed and properly developed calf is brought into the show or sale ring it should present a pleasing appearance. In order to do this it should be clean, well-groomed, halter-broken and trained. To train a calf, put a halter on it and teach it to lead and to stand squarely on all four feet, with head alert so as to exhibit its best features. It should become accustomed to being handled by strangers, seeing strange sights, and hearing unusual sounds, such as it will see and hear at the show or sale. A good calf is frequently placed below an inferior one because the judge cannot see its head on it to judge its conformation. The trained animal that stands correctly and "poses" so to speak, has the advantage over one that flinches, kicks and pulls on the halter, and stands on its feet in such a position as to give the appearance of a weak, narrow chest, and poorly developed hindquarters.

For a few months before the show the calf should be fed three times a day with a little hay. Some feeders use molasses, clumped feed and water. As a rule, however, more satisfactory results are obtained from a diet of hay and grain. The prohibition of the common feed on the farm. The best feed for a calf will make sufficient gain to have a desirable finish without the necessity of covering or tending the appetite.

Summer Care of Calf

The calf should be kept in a cool barn or shed during the summer months. It should be protected from the sun and rain. The calf should be kept in a clean, dry place. It should be fed with clean water and good feed. It should be exercised daily. It should be protected from flies and other insects. It should be kept in good health.

A few weeks before the show the calf should be bathed to advantage. The bath should be usually made of kerosene and water. It should be used mainly to keep flies from annoying the calf, to give the hair a glossy appearance, and to help clean up the hide. The bathing used for this purpose should be done from the neck to the tail and come down over the sides.

The calf should be groomed or ironed with a brush or comb for several weeks before the show. Brushing long hair on the body with considerable pressure will help work it into place and make it gradually resemble the short hair. The final brushing on a short-haired calf should be in the same direction as the hair, the hand each time following the brush. The hand will follow the oil to the tip of the hair. A wooden comb may be used to advantage in removing the dirt and hair. The final brushing for the long-haired breeds (Shorthorn, Hereford, Galloway) should be opposite to the direction of the hair to make it loose and fluffy. Short-haired animals (Aberdeen Angus, also Red Poll, etc.) are shown with the hair smooth. Animals with long hair are shown with the hair curled.

Caring for Hair

Two weeks before the calf is to be shown, the hair with a mixture of kerosene and soap water. Do not make the hair too wet or it will become matted instead of loose and fluffy. The hair on the center of the back should be parted with a coarse comb along the backbone in one straight line from the neck in front of the shoulder to the tail. Comb the hair on each side at right angles or straight out from the center parting to the extreme edge of the flat portion of the back. Mark the hair with the comb or brush from in front of the shoulders to the tail or extreme back of the round. The lines should be on the outer edge of the flat portion of the back so the end of the hair will curl up even with the level portion of the back and make the back appear wide. The lines should be about 1 1/2 inches apart, distance depending upon the size of the calf, and parallel to the first line. After considerable experience the curling of the hair may be done with the currycomb alone. A round one is best for this purpose. After all the lines are made the hair that was combed back in making the marks should be lightly brushed up with a brush or currycomb. This will leave the hair in distinct wavy lines as desired. The hair on the flanks and defective places should be brushed up to fill them out.

If the hair does not have the desired shine or glossy finish, dampen a cloth with a mixture of equal parts of olive oil and denatured alcohol. Apply this lightly on the hair, following with the hand to give it a proper finish.

Attention to Feet

The feet should be kept clean, free from corns, and in trim. A calf cannot stand or walk properly if the feet are sore or out of shape. If the feet are too long the hoof must first be trimmed by tapping the bottom of the hoof from back to front, thus leveling the hoof. This can be done with a hoof knife or hoof trimmer. The hoof should be smoothed off with a file or rasp and polished with sandpaper or fine sand. The feet of a calf should be kept in the stable, especially if the calf is young and well-bred, and even in the point exercise, may become tender or even sore and disused. The calf in such cases may walk lame, which is a disadvantage. Some calf raisers may be prevented by frequent exercise on the ground when outdoors and properly trimmed hoofs.

Horns Are Admired

On the trained breeds a well-curved set of horns commands the admiration of the judges and the consideration of the buyers. The plain-headed animal of the horned breeds or one with poorly shaped horns will be at a disadvantage in the show ring and a seconded by the individual buyer. The horns have the proper shape. A symmetrical properly curved set of horns can be obtained by the use of either weights or trimmers each of which has its advantages and disadvantages.

Handle Calf Gently

The calf should be taken to the show or sale a day or more before the date set for it to begin. It should be taken on the train or lauded if the distance is more than a few miles. A fat calf not accustomed to walking on the road, seeing strange sights, and hearing strange noises may become greatly worried and fatigued from such a trip. Do not overheat the calf. Lead it quietly to the loading platform if shipped by express or hauled in a wagon and use a specially built crate. If shipped in a crate, plenty of bedding should be provided. Feed the calf a little less just previous to and while on the trip, especially of grain and succulent roughages. When the calf gets to the fair ground or sale pavilion it will then be eager for feed. Do not feed grain as soon as it arrives, but give it plenty of water and some hay until it has rested an hour or more from the trip.

While at the show give the calf plenty of exercise take it for a walk about the grounds in the early morning. Remember that if you are to be successful in the show or sale ring you must pay close attention to your calf. Be kind, attentive and faithful, and you will be more liberally rewarded.

The show ring is the best school you ever attended, provided you take decisions against you as well as for you cheerfully and try to find the reasons for them. There are usually good reasons and they will help you greatly in being more successful at the next show or sale.

LIVE STOCK NOTES

The underfed calf makes the beef-canning business profitable.

It is always preferable to provide a yard or pasture for young bulls.

Feeding of ensilage may commence at any time desired after the silo is filled.

In buying for feeding try to get in the animal what the butcher wants to see in him when buying him for the block.

DAIRY POINTS

KEEPING MARKET MILK COOL

Product Held for Several Hours Without Proper Refrigeration Shows High Bacterial Count.

Generally, the larger numbers of bacteria found in market milk when it reaches the consumer are due more to the multiplication of the bacteria than to the original contamination. This great multiplication occurs because the milk is not properly cooled during storage, transportation and delivery. Just now this fact is of particular importance to the person having milk to sell.

Commercial experience confirms the results of experimental work. Milk which has been held for several hours without proper refrigeration nearly always shows higher counts than fresh milk from the same source. At a earling dairyman, who received in the morning consisted of the previous night's milk and fresh morning's milk which were kept separate. During six summer months from April to September, inclusive, 473 samples of the morning's milk showed an average bacterial count of 500,000 while 375 samples of milk which had been held overnight on the farm had an average bacterial count of 2,000,000 bacteria per cubic centimeter.

DRUGS DETRIMENTAL TO COW

Experiments at Iowa State College Show That Alcohol, Aconite, Etc., Are Harmful.

The use of drugs with the idea of increasing the fat production of test cows has been tried out by Iowa State Agricultural college dairy section. In most cases it was found that drugs decreased rather than increased the fat production.

Such drugs as alcohol, castor oil, salutarin, aconite, ammonium sulphate, urea, vomica and sodium chloride were tried and in all cases they were detrimental to the cows. All cows used were in good normal condition at the start of the tests and various sizes of doses were used.

BEST TEMPERATURE OF MILK

Only Way to Insure Accuracy in Feeding Calves Is Thorough Use of Thermometer.

Milk as it comes from the cow possesses a temperature near 100 degrees Fahrenheit. When feeding young calves it is well to be very particular in regard to this matter. The only way to insure accuracy in determining temperature is through the use of a thermometer. As calves grow older, eight to ten weeks of age, the temperature may be reduced to 90 degrees Fahrenheit. However, it is always desirable to warm the liquid ration slightly, even for calves six months of age.

FEED COW QUITE LIBERALLY

Silage, Mangles, Rutabagas and Other Root Crops—Should Have Abundance of Feed.

The cow should be fed liberally on succulent feeds, as silage, mangles, rutabagas or other root crops. They induce the cow to consume large amounts of feed, which is desirable. Then, too, feeds of this kind are very palatable and easily digested.

CALVES DO WELL ON PASTURE

Most Economical Manner of Caring for Them, but They Must Have Additional Attention.

Calves do very well on pasture and can be cared for in this manner more economically than in any other way. Care must be taken, however, to see that they receive what additional care is necessary. The calves of today are the herds of tomorrow.

BAB'S DUPLICITY

By AGNES G. BROGAN.

(A 1240 Western Newspaper Union)

Tom parked his car among the long line of autos and went down to sit on a bench before the water. An early moon shone over the rippling waves and the summer scene was one of beauty and calm. But there was no calm in Tom Webster's heart, for since that desolate member had settled down into one steady ache of longing, calmness gave place to sorrow and anger by turn. When Tom reached the zenith of his hope in winning the hand and heart of the girl he loved he had reasonably expected the assured joy of betrothal. But "Babs" was not that kind of girl. In fact there was nothing assured about Babs.

The hour that raised Tom to a heaven of delight was certain to be followed by several hours of uncertainty and gloom. Babs did not intend to be unkind; frankly she declared that she did not understand herself. "I'm just the original Mary. Mary quite contrary," she told her lover repentantly.

"Babs was always breaking engagements and glooming charmingly afterward. The months of Tom's betrothal left him quite dizzy. He never knew exactly what Babs would do next, or how she would welcome him, or, indeed, if she would give him welcome at all. So at last, the engagement was broken. This tragedy occurred after overstrained nerves had driven Tommy to remove his love concerning her shortcomings, and the "love" would not be repaired. That was all. Barbara absented herself from the usual haunts as though she had disappeared from the world. Tommy was inconsolable—Tommy was desperate. His pleading notes met with no response.

If he could go far away where every spot would not be eloquent of her presence, poignant with sweet memories past—but the damned old business held him. In his last erratic effusion he had besought Barbara, if she had the slightest remaining feeling for him, if to send some sign—to let him come to her—and the heartless one made no reply.

Tommy went back through the shadow of the public park in his car and swung it carelessly from its corner. The home-ward trip was light and speedy, then—no gods! from the rear of the machine came a startled cry. Tommy turned in his seat and stared. A child sat on the back seat, a girl blinking at him, a golden-eyed fairy sort of child.

"Where?" she demanded. "Is my daddy?"

"Cush!" Tommy exclaimed. "I shut off the engine. How did you get in back there?"

"The little girl whispered. 'I sleep.'"

"Sleep," she explained, "in sleep on back seat. I want my daddy?"

Tenderly Tom lifted the volunteer passenger to a place beside him. She had climbed in, he decided while the car was parked under the trees. Probably she had taken his for her daddy's car and then had taken asleep on the cushions. But now he was in a fix!

Tommy was a diplomat. "I'm going to stop here and buy you a lollipop," he told the child. "Then I'll take you to daddy's wait."

Contentedly Helen-Jean, as she proclaimed herself, waited.

Tommy was just in time. His announcement to the park pavilion brought immediate response. Anxiety had been felt regarding the little girl's disappearance. Would he find enough to bring her back at once to the pavilion—or this after a hurried conference—would it be convenient for him to drive Helen-Jean to 42 Rose terrace? That was her home. Tommy decided to take his charge directly home.

When Tommy carried the little girl up the flower-bordered path to her home her arms clasped his neck and her golden curls rested against his own dark pate. The housemaid who answered Tommy's ring directed him to a rear garden; surely, the friends of the lost one were not unduly alarmed. But there on the rear rose terrace he saw a slim white-clad figure, a girl's figure so gracefully like to another, that Tommy's loving heart hammered painfully; then the figure was coming toward him and no one else was near.

"Babs!" he whispered unbelievably. A demure and humbled Babs reached her arms to the child.

"Helen-Jean, darling!" she coaxed, "come to Aunt Barbara."

But Helen-Jean, darling, evidently inherited her aunt's perverseness.

"Won't," she briefly but emphatically remarked.

"I'm afraid," Babs insisted, "that you will have to."

Then in some joyously bewildering fashion Barbara's arms, covering Helen-Jean's chubby ones, reached Tommy's neck, while with unbelievable rapidity his own arms closed about the slim figure as well as the chubby one.

"You see," Babs was saying, "my brother and his wife moved here from New York only last week. Helen-Jean is my niece. We have had a day alone and ate our lunch in the park to gether."

"Barbara," Tommy reproached, "I have wanted you so. You knew you had only to send for me."

Babs flushed.

"Tom Webster," she said, "I just could not have sent for you if my heart slowly broke in pieces. That's why I slipped Helen-Jean asleep into the back seat of your car."

Don't Go From Bad to Worse!

Are you always weak, miserable and half-sick? Then it's time you found out what is wrong. Kidney weakness causes much suffering from backache, lameness, stiffness and rheumatic pains, and if neglected brings danger of serious troubles—dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease. Don't delay. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. They have helped thousands and should help you. Ask your neighbor!

A Michigan Case

Mrs. Wm. Trudell, St. Iron Mountain, Mich., says: "My back ached, continually and with very distressing troubles. My back was so lame and sore at night I had to lie on my side. Tired feelings and nervousness had me miserable. My kidneys weren't acting properly. Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended and I purchased several boxes. They cured me entirely."

BIG ULCER ALL HEALED

"Here is another letter that makes me happy," says Peterson, of Buffalo. "One that I would rather have than a thousand dollars."

"Money isn't everything in this world. There is many a big-hearted, rich man who would give all he has on earth to be able to produce a remedy with such mighty healing power as Peterson's Ointment, to sell at all drug stores for 50 cents a large box."

Dear Sirs:—
I was an untold sufferer from old running sore and ulcers. I had tried most everything without any relief from pain. A friend told me of your wonderful ointment and the first box took away the pain that had not left me before in years, and after using just nine dollars' worth of the ointment I am cured. The ulcer was 9 inches by 6 inches, is all healed and I can walk. Never, never will I be without Peterson's again.

"You may use this to recommend your ointment if you wish. I cannot say enough to praise it." Yours truly, Mrs. Albert Southcott, Medina, N. Y. Mail orders filled by Peterson Ointment Co., Inc., Buffalo, N. Y.

Poser for Mother

The subject of the Sunday school lesson was the golden rule, so during the next week when little Anna was naughty and her mother had to use her stick real hard and put her in a chair to reflect, she asked Anna what she thought about it. Anna replied: "Mother, do unto others as you want them to do unto you. You don't want me to whip you, do you?"

Beauty Secrets for Women

A woman's fondest hope is to stay young. She often resorts to paints, powders and cosmetics to hide her years. Some women pay large sums to so-called "Beauty Doctors" in the belief that money will buy youth. Others wear girlish dresses, thinking they can fool the world about their age. But no one is deceived. The more you try to hide your age, the more it shows.

There is but one thing that holds old age back, and that is health. Sickness and weakness bring old age early in life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a building-up medicine for women. It makes them healthy and strong when they suffer from women's troubles. It keeps them looking young by keeping them well. It is a woman's tonic for the frail, the delicate and those who are nervous, dizzy and who have backache and dragging pains. Favorite Prescription is altogether vegetable and without a particle of alcohol. It is safe to take. Try it now. In tablet or liquid form at all drug stores, or send 10c for trial package of the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

Distinguished by Being Plain

ALTHOUGH much elaboration is allowed, even to tailored suits, in this season of a profusion of decoration on all kinds of apparel, here are two among the new arrivals that may be classed as plain. By comparison with others that are embroidered, braided, plaided and otherwise ornamented they are plain, and this reserve in the matter of trimmings gives them something of distinction.

For combination with fur the best fabrics are those that have a velvet surface, as duvety, velours or similar weaves, and dress velvet. Velvet promises to make a steady advance in favor as the season ages, but it does not exceed velours or duvety as a beautiful combination when used with fur. The two suits shown in the illustration might be made in velvet, but as pictured they avail themselves of velours and duvety. But there are less expensive cloths made in these same styles and they include unfinished worsteds, chevrot and shaggy weaves. Broadcloth is also available for this.

The suit at the left is in beige-colored velours, the beige a warm, strong tone that looks particularly well with moleskin. A wide sash of the material has rounded ends with emplacements of the fur shaped to fit them and pointed at the top. The straight turnover collar finishes the brief story of fur on this suit. A feature that one sees fairly often in suits of smooth cloth appears in the small panels inserted in the coat over the hips. They are made of the velours, with narrow tucks running across them.

Brown, which is the season's fashionable color, is very handsome in duvety and looks well with beaver or seal fur. In the suit pictured velvet was chosen for the wide shawl collar and bands that border the pockets.

New Coats for Little Missie

IN THIS era of gay colors little Miss America has even a wider choice than her mother or her big sisters when it comes time to select her winter coat. Colors for her range all the way from black and the neutral shades to vivid tones in bright hues. Many shades of rose, blue, tan, pink, through to white, make lovely little coats and they are usually finished with narrow bands of fur on cuffs and collar, or with fur collars. These gay-colored coats are made of velours or duvety and are not intended to stand the wear and tear of every day.

In fur coats, with turbans to match, there are muskrat, rabbit, gray or gray and white muskrat, made of the undyed pelts. These are sturdy and very warm and among them are a few all-white coats, for diminutive ladies, that are made of rabbit or squirrel fur, and only intended for dress-up occasions. Many of the wool furs make practical all-round coats like that shown in the picture, which is too simple to need description. They are provided with mink collars of the material. Minutiae muffs and scarfs of fur supplement these coats in very cold weather and they are made of the same skins as children's coats.

The pretty millinery made to match so many coats has a rival that is most successful in beaver hats. They are shown in several varieties of trim and are usually without other trimming than a band and bow, or band and sash, of handsome ribbon—grass grain and more the favorite choices. These hats are elegant and very durable and one of them, in brown, long-napped beaver, crowns the head of the youthful beauty wearing the plush coat as pictured.

When right you can afford to keep your temper, when wrong you can't afford to lose it.—Gordon Graham.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS.

A vegetable dish which is well liked and may be prepared with either fresh or canned tomatoes is—

Scalloped Tomatoes and Green Pepper.—Take about half the bulk of tomato in soft, fine bread crumbs.

For a cupful of crumbs, melt one-fourth of a cupful of butter in a saucepan, mix the rest of the butter through the bread crumbs. To the butter in the saucepan, add a slice of thinly sliced onion and half a small green pepper shredded fine. Stir and cook until softened then mix through the crumbs. Arrange the tomatoes and prepared crumbs in alternate layers in a baking dish sprinkling each layer of tomatoes with salt and pepper. Have the last layer of crumbs; bake twenty minutes.

Russian Salad Dressing.—Mix together one-fourth of a cupful of olive oil one teaspoonful of vinegar, one-fourth teaspoonful each of mustard and salt, one-half teaspoonful of paprika and one-fourth cupful of chili sauce, then gradually, using the egg beater, add one-half cupful of mayonnaise dressing.

Pat-Roasted Pork Chops.—Choose chops with only a medium amount of fat and somewhat thicker than usual. After broiling the chops on each side in a frying pan, add an onion cut fine and pepper and salt. Cover with fat, and broil for an hour and a half. Add a little flour to thicken the gravy, and serve. The flour if added while the chops are broiling, will be of better flavor.

Pecan Sausages.—Mix together three-fourths of a cupful of hot cooked cornmeal, one-fourth of a cupful of finely crushed pecan meats, half a cupful of each of powdered yellow cornmeal, salt, pepper, and onion, and one-half cupful of brown light and firm lard. Place in a cup well greased and bake two hours. Serve with bananas cut in halves and then in quarters. One may eat in flour and fried on a griddle, or in fat. Serve with a couple of tomatoes or cream sauce.

We just felt our way onward. We tried to drive. There are obstacles in the way and we must meet and conquer them.—Ruth Comstock.

HOW TO PREPARE RICE.

The black man's recipe to dress rice runs: "Wash him well much wash in cold water; the rice flour make him stick. Water boil already fast. Throw him in. Rice can't burn, water shake him too much. Boil quarter of an hour or little more; rub one rice in thumb and finger, if all rub away him quite done. Put rice in collander, hot water run away; pour cupful of cold water on him put back rice in saucepan, keep him covered. Let the fire run all ready. Eat him up!"—Gertrude Morrison, in American Cookery.

Rice may be used as a substitute for vegetables, as a thickening for soups, in addition to bread sponge, a salad, a main dish, a dessert. These are but a few of the many accomplishments of this dainty food.

White rice is obtained in abundance in many of our states and those who have been treated to this wholesome cereal like it very much. It is very similar to the same rice except it is not polished, which leaves the food value (which in the time rice is polished away) that is so important in its growth and health of the young.

Rice With Meat.—Take two cupfuls of boiled rice, one cupful of chopped fresh meat, browned in a tablespoonful of sweet fat; remove the meat, add a small onion finely minced, a teaspoonful of minced parsley or half of a small green pepper cooked in the same fat. Place a layer of the cooked rice in a baking dish, cover with a layer of the meat season well, add some of the onion and pepper. Repeat until the rice and meat are used, cover with one cupful of tomato and bake slowly for an hour.

Baked Rice and Codfish.—Take one and one-half cupfuls of well-washed rice, one cupful of water and four cupfuls of milk. Add the water and the milk gradually to the rice while cooking and cook half an hour. Remove from the stove and add one cupful of rich milk, two well-beaten eggs and three cupfuls of shredded codfish, pepper and salt to taste. Bake in a moderate oven forty-five minutes. Serve with drawn butter sauce.

Baked Rice Pudding.—Take one-quarter of a cupful of well-washed rice, one cupful of milk, sugar and nutmeg or cinnamon to taste, one-half cupful or less of raisins. Bake in a slow oven, stirring occasionally during the first hour of baking, for three hours.

SHOULD ALL BE NEIGHBORLY

Spirit is of Immense Importance to the Upbuilding of Community, Small or Large.

Neighbors have a social value rather overlooked in the turmoil. Though hardly attaining eminence as a moral force they remain a persuasive factor for every neighborhood. They have made a social whole of many a four-walled community that had been merely an accidental aggregation. Common oppression makes humanity kin, including even the inmates of an apartment house. Neighborliness, in short, has begun to mean something.

Neighborliness is at once the simplest and the most powerful organization in our tradition. Neighborhood organizations, if not captured by selfishness with private ends to serve, is the best basis for consumers' organizations in general. That American class called neighbors, the great majority, battered 96 per cent, has suffered much of late through lack of organized effort in its own behalf.

Neighborhood associations will ameliorate the predatory ethics of urban life. When neighbors meet in public school assembly halls for community action in economic study, in politics, in music, in drama in education, in problems, good government and a living are likely to be furthered. Better neighborhood understandings leading to intelligent co-operative effort are one of outstanding needs.—Chicago Daily News.

WAIT FOR TOWN TO GROW

Criticism Made That Too Many Small Communities Are Slow in Making Improvements.

It has been figured up that there are 12,000 small towns in the United States, half of them with populations of 100 or less, says the Thrift magazine. It is these small towns that the big people are ultimately associated with. They sell their produce there, they buy their goods there; in fact, they are a part of the rural community. Some of these small towns will never grow, but a very large percentage of them will remain as they are. It is no disgrace to live in a small town. But the rule is that these people should wait until next year or some other year to improve their schools, their highways, a water system or a sewer system to safeguard the health of the people, or before taking any steps to improve the social and living conditions of the children.

Proper Town Planning.

Small town planning takes into consideration the direction of streets, the location of houses, from a sanitary standpoint. There has been a tendency to make streets run north and south and east and west, but in a plan of the Royal Astronomical Society, Canada, H. L. Seymour indicates that the streets should run north-south and east-west and north-south. Houses correspondingly should have sunshine in all rooms instead of having it cut off from north-south. Streets for more than one-half of the day should be so placed as to have such height as to slide off as little as possible.

Theater and Church.

The problem of how to supply the community with both a church and a theater in money sufficient for only one building has been solved in a small town by building one large auditorium with a stage at one end, the hall and a pulpit at the other. According to a Y. W. C. A. director who visited the town recently. This novel arrangement is constantly meets certain apparent objections and at the same time gives a proper setting for either. The scheme is reversible.

City Planning Worth While.

City planning of the right kind is strictly a business proposition. Its function is to aid in facilitating business by maintaining property values. Its end is a better looking city, a better city for business and a better city for homes.

Furthermore, city planning is not a matter of concern to the few. It will work to the interest of the large and the small property owner, and to the interest of any person who expects to make the place his home.

Indian Cattle in the South.

Some years ago it was discovered that the zebu, or humped cattle of India, are immune to the deadly Texas fever which was poisoning the herds of the south. A few of the Indian cattle were imported and did well, though without gaining any great popularity. Then more were imported, and now there are quite a number of them in Texas and one cattleman values his chief "Brahmin" bull at $30,000.

Electric Wires Kill Trees.

Electric wires which touch trees can easily kill the most beautiful shade tree. This may be due partly to the work of the electric current or to the wearing through the growing surface of the tree by the wire, which deprives the tree of its sustenance.

ON THE FUNNY SIDE

MAKING THE MOST OF IT.

"A humorist died the other day. 'Did he leave an estate?'
"Only one joke, which he bequeathed to his son."
"Not much of an inheritance."
"But he explained in his will that if the joke were expended, and a musical comedy, made the theme of a Chauntiqua lecture and worked over from time to time and sold to the magazines, it would provide his heir with a comfortable income." — Birmingham Age-Herald.

"Spare" in Readiness.

"A little girl" was on a ferryboat with her mother. Evidently being the first time she was on a boat, she looked around and took everything in. Her mother questioned her as to how she liked the boat, upon which she replied: "I think it very nice, and I am glad they carry a 'spare,' pointing to a life buoy."

The Northville Record.

E. E. BROWN, Publisher.

An Independent Newspaper published every Friday morning at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville post-office as Second-Class matter.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., NOV 5, 1926

NO ONE APPEARED.

No one appeared at the meeting of the village council on Monday evening to furnish evidence to substantiate the ugly rumors that have been in circulation during the past few weeks regarding Northville's village marshal. It would seem that it would have been a good time for those who have circulated these stories to have presented their evidence.

The Record holds no brief for Mr. Lyke, but people who have been telling that he was boot-legging either ought to furnish proof or else keep still. It is an easy matter to start a story but it is another matter when called upon to produce the proof.

Well, an Ohio man won anyway.

Now that election is over let us all settle down to business.

The women voters did nobly. We did not see a single powder puff.

Cox will recover at Trail's End. It's a long ways from Dayton to Washington.

The American voters made Mr. Harding a very acceptable birthday present. He was 55 years old on election day.

"It is not a personal victory. It is a reward expression of confidence America has in Warren G. Harding, successful candidate for president."

Cox simply took on too big a load to win the race. He was handicapped to start with but when he took upon himself the added burden of the approval of the Wilson administration he weighted himself down with a whole lot of clap-net stuff that added to his defeat. He was placed in nomination through the efforts of those who were not friendly to President Wilson and no wonder he had received the honor than he deserved to the White House to receive the blessing of the West. Had he been elected the Wilson republic would have been in a very different state.

Our Lizzie is not made of tin, With brains to spare, she's sure to win.

Why Lizzie, What makes you so happy and cheerful these days?

I'll tell you, Blanch, it's a secret, but Tom and I are going to get married and we have each taken out stock in "The Loan" for we do not intend to let any minister pull this: "Stop! You are extravagant" business on us. We'll flash our Loan Books on him before the ceremony, See?

As I was saying, there were many reasons for our joining "The Loan" but the main ones were these:

1st. It pays better. I have heard that dollars increase in "The Loan" nearly as fast as Jack Rabbits up North.

2nd. We will not need our money for some time and it can be used to help some one buy or build a home, and when we get ready to build, there will be plenty paying in to help us out—you see "The Loan" is a sort of "Help-one-another" concern.

3rd. It's the style. We'll, by what you say, I think it is a pretty good thing to belong to.

"Now You Have Said Something." Go to McCully's any Saturday night and the man at the desk will get you started.

THE GREATEST MOTHER IN THE WORLD

You, who live in the country. What if you had a child who was sick or who in school seemed dull and unable to learn? You know, a great many times a child is not really stupid; it may be its eyes need attention and glasses would correct the trouble so the child could see. Or perhaps it has trouble in hearing. May be, the child is a cripple.

That's why the American Red Cross is doing such a splendid work in rural communities through its Public Health program. It is because it feels that if America is to grow strong in all good things, it must be through the strength of its citizens.

The children are the material from which this citizenship is to be made and it is a sacred trust to be handed down that these children be given the fullest chance to develop both mentally and physically.

Wouldn't you like to know what the Public Health program of the American Red Cross does?

It is divided into 4 main parts:

(a) Public Health. This work is carried on by 12 trained nurses in every township in Wayne county, outside Detroit. Not only do these nurses go into the homes and the schools, but there are 4 permanent clinics established now in Wyandotte, Wayne, Redford and Grosse Pointe, and it is definitely decided to have a "traveling clinic" which will go to places not now served. At any of these clinics parents can learn how to take care of their children; and they are urged to come, bringing their families with them. You know the old saying, "An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure." Well, that's the very purpose of these clinics. Treatment of eyes and teeth and many other ills, is given.

Then there's a clinic to take care of and make strong, crippled children. Can you imagine a finer thing than giving health and strength to a child with a badly defective body?

(b) Home-nursing promotes an educational program. Classes are formed in home-nursing and care of the sick and the aim is to reach every woman in the county through these classes.

(c) What is eaten is a big and very important question to every one and especially to children. They must have good food and properly cooked. If they are to grow strong, The American Red Cross provides a nutrition specialist for this. She teaches all about the different foods; and their comparative values in building up body tissue.

Just to show you how important good food is, last year in the county communities in Wayne county 69% of the children were underweight, because of malnutrition. In one rural school of 30 children, the total underweight was 200 pounds or 5.23 lbs. per child.

This is entirely wrong and unnecessary, and it is to correct just such conditions that the work of the nutrition specialist is being done.

(d) Last but not least; children must play. This develops natural instincts; and these in turn beget a sound mind. This need is being filled by a trained recreation leader who now is devoting a day a week in each of the following places: Wayne, Springwells and Ballville. But somehow, the days are not long enough for this very important work, so an evening session is soon to be added.

In addition to the work of recreation the crippled or defective child has prescribed for it, the best sort of corrective exercises by a doctor who is carried on by the recreation leader.

In all, the work the American Red Cross is doing in the rural communities the hearty cooperation of these communities is of the greatest help. The Public Health program is but a part of the great work of the American Red Cross not only in America but in foreign countries as well. During the war, the Red Cross was called "The Greatest Mother in the World" and are not its works proving its full claim?

CHILDREN'S BOOK WEEK.

Library Service the weekly publication of the Detroit Public Library, announces that it is now doing interesting work in the rural communities of the county as a result of the efforts of the children's librarians in our public libraries.
The week of November 15 to 20 is to be observed as Children's Book week by the joint efforts of librarians, booksellers, publishers, the Boy Scouts and all others interested in boys and girls. The purpose of the week is to arouse more widespread interest in letter reading material for our children and also to influence parents in choosing their children's books more carefully, and to awake within us all the thought that—"A man is known by the books he reads."
The Detroit Public Library is planning fine exhibits of gift books for children at both the main and branch libraries and any Northville people who are interested in this movement might call at one of the libraries and look over their display.

PUBLIC OPPOSES GOV'T OPERATION

Canvass of 5,154 Editors Shows
4,466 Communities Against Socialistic Experiment.

OPPOSITION GROWING

Eighty-seven Per Cent in 1920 as Against 83 Per Cent in 1919
Think Public is Opposed to Socialism.

The American public is more intensely opposed to Government operation than it was a year ago, according to the newspaper editors of the country. Out of 5,154 editors replying to a questionnaire sent out by the Press Service Company of New York, 4,466, or 88 per cent, gave it as their judgment that the people of their communities were overwhelmingly against the Government competing in business with its own citizens.

In 1919 the Press Service Company conducted a similar canvass of editors on the government operation of railroads. That questionnaire showed that 53 per cent of the editors considered their communities against Government operation of public utilities.

Apparently, then, if editors estimate public opinion accurately, that opinion in a year, considered by communities, has swung 3 per cent farther away from socialistic experiments.

Eleven Million Circulation.

The combined circulation of the papers whose editors replied is 11,423,817, which means, according to the usual estimated ratio between circulation and readers, a constituency of at least 44,000,000. And this constituency is pretty evenly scattered throughout the country, no considerable section of any state being unrepresented. The estimate of opinion based on this thoroughly diffused 44 per cent of the country's population, therefore, he considered a fair representation of the people as a whole.

Another feature of the result is its evident lack of partisan bias. The major political affiliations of the papers represented are fairly evenly divided, being 1,577 Republican and 1,350 Democratic. There are also 1,455 Independent and 692 miscellaneous, including labor organs, etc.

How little the results are affected by the politics of the papers is shown in an analysis by sections. In the Southern section for instance, where replies came from 65 Republican papers and 399 Democratic, the percentage against Government operation was 83; in the Great Lakes section, with 1,017 Republican, 475 Democratic, 1,000 Independent and 155 Miscellaneous, the opposition was 87 per cent.

Replies from the West, Middle West and Southwest show that it is a mistake to consider those sections vastly more favorable to radical Government experiments than the East. The railroads can get little comfort out of the 89 per cent of thatabundant down—2 per cent above the average—in the Southwest, including Arkansas, Louisiana, Missouri, Texas, Oklahoma and Texas. As Texas, once supposed to be much given to Government regulation, experiments, returned 82 per cent of unfavorable replies. Out of the 24 editors replying from that state only three chose Republican papers. The 82 per cent opposition of the Northwest, including Iowa, Minnesota, Montana, Nebraska, North Dakota, South Dakota and Wyoming, and the 7 per cent vote on the Far West group, including Arizona, California, Idaho, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Colorado, Utah and Washington, are a significant part of the prevailing conservative sentiment on this question ever in the country's radical sections.

Judgment Apparently Unbiased

The questionnaire closes with a request for the editor's personal opinion on certain concrete cases as follows:

"Do you personally believe that the Federal Government should own and operate competitive industries to provide: (a) Fertilizer? (b) Clothing? (c) Automobiles? (d) Farm implements? (e) Foodstuffs?"

Substantially all the editors who gave estimates of their readers' opinions also expressed their own by replying to this last question. Proof of considerable effort to avoid personal bias is found in the fact that in many cases the editor differed from the opinion he credited to his community. The percentage of "nos" ran: (a) 76; (b) 83; (c) 86; (d) 82; (e) 79. While the questions were based on general principles involved in the Government participating in competitive business, the so-called Muscle Shoals Bill now before Congress was used as a concrete example of a Government operation scheme. Under that bill a Government-owned corporation would be given broad powers to operate and develop Government plants and properties. It would produce at Muscle Shoals various fertilizer products and sell them in competition with producers and merchants in the fertilizer business.

The strength of the opposition to Government operation is indicated by the replies from Alabama, where the Muscle Shoals war plant is and where, of course, there is intense interest and local pride in getting his expected peace-time operation under way at the earliest possible date. Fifty editors from that state replied, of whom 38 were opposed to Government operation, 8 in favor and 4 doubtful.

Changing a Name

By OTILLIA F. PFEIFFER

(© 1920 Western Newspaper Union)

He was a man of strange temperament cherishing a hobby purely individual which centered about a name fully as strange and uncommon—Lau Ssaur.

Having acquired a competence, and a social and business position at the age of fifty that was unassailable, Ssaur was actuated by two predominant characteristics—pride and exclusiveness.

Until a few days before the present Ssaur had enjoyed the proud satisfaction that nowhere in the great city, nowhere country wide was there another human being who bore his name. But now, poison had come into the cup of his triumphant assurance, there was fly in the ointment. Lo, and behold! After years of serenity and confidence, a sharer in his fame, his haughtiness, his whimsical love of being different from his fellow beings had appeared—Miss Winifred Ssaur of Weston, an obscure little Iowa town.

The discovery had nettled and then disgruntled him. Somehow, it had been pleasing to him to know that he was the last, the only living descendant of Bruno Ssaur, a noted explorer.

He was seated in his sumptuous library, watching the clock, and there was impatience and the suspense of an unfulfilled purpose in his restless eyes. He stared up as a servant ushered his expected visitor into the room.

"Been waiting for you, Alstyne," hailed the master of the mansion reverently. "Something special and particular. Sit down."

His caller was a young man he had known for several years and greatly liked. Hugh Alstyne had a free and easy manner, as if he did not worry, but intelligence was manifest in his really handsome face.

"I hope it's something to keep me busy for a while," said Alstyne, indulgently resting in the arms of a comfortable rocker. "I've given up commercial reporting and I don't want to go back to the law."

"You are right," nodded Ssaur. "It is some travel, a difficulty to be overcome, and some policy and knowledge of human nature to be exercised. To begin with, you know how to write and I assume my name. But now change I yesterday ten across it as I have no other besides, my son."

"Oh, let it be," remarked Alstyne. "I suppose you had ransacked all alphabets to be sure that you couldn't be classed with the Browns, Smiths and Robinsons?"

"I thought I had," returned Ssaur, perceptibly perturbed. "I have no notion of the remotest branch of the Ssaur family in this country, but there you are."

Ssaur pushed across the table a small publication, a sectional magazine published at up town county seat. It was evidently the production of some ambitious editor who entered solely to neighborhood clientele, and was filled with crudely a potpourri of miscellaneous poetry, sketches and human interests.

His front page was taken up with a poem entitled "Twilight" in rhymed really mediocre. A few lines later under the name of the writer, Winifred Ssaur, was a new and charming literary star to the galaxy of writers. Miss Ssaur he besides well known in educational circles.

"Hum! quite melodious," commented Alstyne. "Some pretty ideas in it with expression. A striking amateur. I am sure of it."

"To be questioned?" announced Ssaur with spirit and definiteness. "at once and emphatically. Can't you see she has broken into writing? How soon will her name be hazarded wide? My name! It is made common and ordinary. I want you to go to Weston where this young lady lives. You must have to be the editor to refuse further contributions; you may have to buy her off. You can draw on me for any amount, but relegate this precious young lady back to obscurity in some way."

"Willing to kill-bidding genius, are you, just to suit a caprice?" suggested Alstyne satirically.

"Don't debate it," replied Ssaur. "Reach the matter delicately, only retire that name. Are you equal to the task?"

"You have employed me in a number of little commissions," said Alstyne, "harder than this one. You are willing to make up to this young lady in money for what she loses in literary enjoyment?"

"That's it, make it a commercial transaction if that is the only way out. I allow you free swing."

Hugh Alstyne was highly successful in his enterprise. He went down to Weston to find Miss Winifred Ssaur an orphan school teacher, lovely and gentle beyond compare. He claimed to be enraptured with her poems made a contract to buy enough to fill a volume to be published under a nom de plume. Some new thoughts had been inspired in his mind by association of the writer "at Twilight." Then he went back to report to his employer.

"Once you suggested starting the art in an independent business career if I would steady down and attend to it," he said.

"That's right," nodded Ssaur. "What has that got to do with this Miss Winifred Ssaur?"

"Just this," replied the wise and love inspired Alstyne, "I shall be glad to obliterate her name by marrying her. Then you will have the field all to yourself."

Two-fisted Profits

Maybe somewhere there's a farmer who needs both hands to post his profit ledger. But he's a rare bird, a very rare bird. And I'll wager this—when you locate him, you'll find he calls his farm his "business." He's right!

The COUNTRY GENTLEMAN

is the business-farmer's weekly. Every issue is full of tried and tested ideas for putting the farm business on a basis of greater efficiency. Systematic farm management will often spell the difference between profitable success and expensive failure.

In next week's issue of this great farm-service weekly are two articles that show how THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN mirrors for you the best methods of all types of business farmers the country over. One is the story of a Pennsylvania farmer, handicapped by the loss of his right arm, who has been able, by a careful management of his business, to build up a small but well-paying orchard. Another tells of a $500,000-acre enterprise in Montana that is turning extraordinary profits for its operators because it is run as scientifically and efficiently as a modern factory. You'll get many a tip on profitable management in the 52 authoritative issues that I can have sent to you for just one dollar.

DETROIT'S NEW TRAFFIC RULES.

Detroit's new traffic rules became effective October 25th and for the benefit of our readers who have occasion to drive in the city we publish a brief review of the new rules.

The two salient changes in the provisions of the old ordinance have to do with lights on motor vehicles and the abolition of right-of-way streets such as Lafayette boulevard, Second boulevard, etc.

Motorists must obey the following new regulations:

When vehicles approach an intersection at the same time, the vehicle on the driver's right has right-of-way. Streets with car lines have right-of-way over streets having no car lines.

When there are car lines on both streets the general rule prevails and the vehicle on the driver's right has right-of-way.

Lights Required.

When a traffic officer is stationed at an intersection he will direct all traffic.

All four-wheeled motor vehicles equipped with pneumatic tires must carry two lighted lamps visible 200 feet ahead.

Whenever street lighting is insufficient to do so, lights must be strong enough to reveal objects 100 feet ahead.

No dazzling lights may be thrown at any time more than 42 inches above the ground, 75 feet ahead of the vehicle.

One spot light is permitted and must be on the left side of the vehicle, so focused that it will not interfere with the vision of other drivers or pedestrians.

The present light at the rear is continued.

Trucks equipped with two or more tires not pneumatic need not carry lights of such strength.

One Light for Horses.

Motorcycles and bicycles shall be equipped with one white head-light and one rear light.

Horse-drawn vehicles shall carry one white light visible 200 feet to the rear which can likewise be seen ahead.

Emphasized points relative to reckless driving are:

Driving while under the influence of liquor or drugs.

Driving through occupied safety zones.

Passing a street car when it has stopped or is about to stop, to discharge passengers. When a street car has started to cross any street, no driver shall attempt to cross the street in front of the car.

Failing to give to those approaching a cut-out warning or notice before making a left-hand turn.

Passing or attempting to pass two other moving vehicles going in the same direction and which are abreast, except when directed by the police.

Driving in or out of an alley over a sidewalk or crosswalk faster than a walk.

DETROIT THEATRES.

The most positive cure for drooping spirits is to give you—let an evening with Florence Moore—the funniest girl in the world. Miss Moore will bring smiles and good cheer to the Garrick Theatre, beginning next Sunday, November 7th. She will be presented by A. H. Woods in a rollicking farce called "Breakfast in Bed." No woman on the American stage has a greater reputation as a comedienne than Miss Moore and in her present play she kept New York in hoisterous laughter for a season. As one of the distinguished reviewers said: "Miss Moore has hit the town on its funniest bone." Miss Moore is naturally cheerful and in "Breakfast in Bed" she scatters sunshine broadcast.

"Buddies," the delightful comedy with music, will be presented by the Selyus for a week's engagement at the Shubert-Detroit, commencing next Sunday evening, November 7th, with the usual Wednesday and Saturday matinees. George V. Hobart, the well known writer of many successful comedies, is the author and he has been assisted in the lyric and music by B. C. Hillman, composer of many popular songs. The story deals with the adventures of a number of American soldiers, who are billeted in a quaint old Brittany village, just after the signing of the armistice and are waiting for orders to return to America. Naturally a pretty love story creeps into the play, and in the telling of the love of "Babe," the shy American soldier, for Julia, the pretty little French maid, Mr. Hobart is in his happiest vein.

Money in His Shoes.

A Pole named Piotr Talia, travelling from America to Danzig, was taken ill recently in the Y. M. C. A. but Waterloo road, London, and removed to the infirmary. He had only two shillings threepence in English money, but hidden in his clothing he had 22 $10 gold pieces and paper money to the value of $900. His shoes were found to be very heavy, and when they were photographed by the X-ray, 12 large coins, presumably $10 gold pieces, were found hidden between the leather and the soles of each boot. ### GETTING READY FOR THE INTERNATIONAL.

Preparations for the World's greatest "Live Stock Exposition at Chicago during the first week of December, are now well under way. Each season this spectacle of animal life is given a new stage setting, involving the labor of hundreds of men for several weeks and an expenditure of many thousand dollars. Part of this is necessitated by essential convenience for man and beast, part goes to furnish the coloring that has given the "Exposition atmospheric brilliancy, intensified as each season rolls around. An enormous sum is required for light effects; a feature of the "International" that has always been abreast and much of the time in advance of such improvement as electrical ingenuity develops. This year a number of scenic novelties have been introduced, arrangement of exhibits has been perfected and a more elaborate setting given the latest addition to this aggregation of spectacles—the Grand and Hay Show, under the auspices of the Chicago Board of Trade.

When the gates are thrown open to the public, November 27th, a month hence, all this elaborate and expensive getting-ready program will insure the most successful International Live Stock Exposition since the inauguration of that enterprise, which has been effective in promoting the welfare and progress of the live stock industry of all sections of North America.

SALE RED CROSS SEALS.

The Christmas Seal Sale that is to be conducted by the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis association from October 1 to December 11 is not to be a "campaign" or a "drive" or a "canvass," or anything else of that nature, the state association announces. It is to be plainly and simply a "sale." In a bulletin to all tuberculosis workers throughout the state, the association advises them to call it a "sale" and to give the overworked terms like "drive" and "campaign" a rest.

"Frankly call it a 'sale,' says the bulletin. "That is what it is and it is good psychology to be straightforward about it. We are not trying to 'work' anyone; we are offering the people of Michigan an honest proposition. So call it a 'sale,' and give 'drive' and 'campaign' a rest. These words have been worked to death. The public is perhaps justly sick of them. They have outworn their usefulness."

In the Christmas Seal Sale, the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis association hopes to sell 30,000,000 seals to the people of the state at one cent each. The funds derived from this sale will be used to combat tuberculosis during 1921. About three-fourths of it will remain in the individual community where the sale is held. A small percentage goes to the state association, and also a small percentage to the national association.

LAPHAM'S CARNERS' WOMAN DIES.

The community lost one of its best friends and neighbors, when Mrs. Jas. Smith passed away, Wednesday at Grace hospital, Detroit, where she was taken just a week ago for a very serious operation. Seven years ago, Mrs. Smith moved here from New Jersey and has since made her home here. She was a good friend and mother, and will be greatly missed in the home and community. She was always ready to lend a helping hand and had a pleasant smile for all. The funeral services were held at Mr. Schrader's chapel Saturday at 2 o'clock and burial was made in Northville cemetery. Her husband, Mr. Smith, and son, Clarence, and Wm. Mathews and wife have the deepest sympathy in the loss of their wife and mother. South Lyon Herald.

SPECIAL FEED NEEDED FOR MARKET CHICKENS.

Profitable disposition of "runts" and birds that are slow to mature is one of the biggest problems facing farmers and poultry men at this time of the year, according to Prof. C. H. Burgess, head of the poultry department at M. A. C. A number of culchens and cokerels are withdrawn from the flock during October and November, and these also must be put into market condition.

"To meet the problems of the poultry men who must fatten fowls for market," says Professor Burgess, "we offer the following ration to be fed in closed rooms or crates:—100 pounds corn meal, 100 pounds middlings; 100 pounds bran; 100 pounds rolled oats (fine ground oats); 100 pounds meat scrap."

"The above amount of feed will fatten 200 fowls in fourteen days. Mix the above named stuff, with buttermilk or sour milk to which there has been added a tablespoonful of molasses. Mix to about a pancake batter consistency. Feed in troughs twice daily. During the first week feed sparingly. During the second week and all the fowls will eat in twenty Proclaiming him in public in the theater, he said to the astonished Spartans: 'I received this young man at your hands full of violence and wanton insolence; I restore him to you in his right mind and fit to serve his country.'—From 'The Golden Sayings of Epictetus.'"

Loaning a Lover

By RALPH HAMILTON

(© 1920, Western Newspaper Union.)

It was to be the event of Madge Lester's life, a long-anticipated, two weeks' sojourn at Orchard Lake, and it was like a drenching with ice cold water when Beatrice Ward came to her home and announced a change in her plans.

"At the last moment I find I cannot accompany the party," said Beatrice. "That must make no difference with you, however, dear. I have seen the Norton girls and their mother had arranged everything admirably. All is provided for, even an escort for you. Of course we planned to have my brother, Walter, as your special cavalier, but he is going with our family to Point Aiden. We have been invited there by my mother's brother, the rich one in the family, and it wouldn't be polite to cross the wishes of a relative with half a million."

The intimation of mercenary interest jarred upon Madge like a discordant note. True or false at soul, Beatrice Ward never allowed anything to ruffle her outwardly. Inexperienced Madge had taken her at surface indications, never surmising that in the depths of that calculating nature lurked ambition and self interest solely.

The lake party was to have originally included Mrs. Norton, who was to act as chaperon, her two daughters, Nellie and Blanche, and Beatrice and Walter Ward, and Alison Deane, the fiancée of Beatrice. Two young men friends of his were to come to the lake to make the occasion interesting for Nellie and Blanche.

"My dear," pursued Beatrice, "I am going to loan you a lover. I have spoken to Alison, and he seems only too glad to be your knight errant. In fact, his willingness is scarcely a compliment to my reputed arts of fascination. Modest little woodland flower that you are, he seems to value you as beyond the average flighty and evanescent girls of our set," at which Madge flushed profusely, for she liked Alison Deane greatly.

Alison Deane won something more than the friendly regard of Madge by his most courteous and delicate attentions, and she marveled why he so constantly sought her company and really seemed to enjoy it after having known the haughty, brilliant Beatrice. One morning, after the arrival of the party at the lake, Madge and Nellie were seated upon a rustic bench near some garden shrubbery when the latter made the remark:

"I suppose you hear pretty often from Beatrice?"

"She wrote me only once, on her arrival at Point Aiden," replied Madge, in a tone that expressed disapprobation.

"Then I have some news for you, rattled on Nellie buoyantly. I received a letter this morning and Beatrice appears to be having the time of her life. She enclosed a newspaper clipping describing a high social function where she was the admired one of all present. It coupled her name with that of Marvin Dury, son of one of the wealthiest men in the city, and just then what Beatrice says about it."

Nellie unfolded the missive in question and began to read: "Of course you have heard of Marvin Dury, and the newspaper sensation has some foundation. It is not often that a one season debutante like myself carries off the palm ahead of all rivals, and Marvin has given me a ring and spends flowers daily, and if it comes to breaking the news to Mr. Deane a little later, do it gently, for he has helped me out in the time very agreeably. That's all over now."

"Oh, Nellie!" suddenly gasped Madge, and stood her companion by hastily placing her hand over the letter. "See, there is Mr. Deane, and he must have heard what you read!"

He was not in evidence the rest of that afternoon. Madge was so shocked at the apparent perfidy of Beatrice, so sorrowful to realize the terrible blow its discovery must be to Deane that she was unhappy all the rest of the day.

She was duly amazed as Deane appeared swinging along jauntily and actually whistling a gay tune. He espied her and came toward her, nothing of the anticipated despair of a grief-racked lover in his face or actions.

"Oh, Mr. Deane," stuttered Madge in a broken tone, "Beatrice—"

"Yes," nodded Deane, and smiled. "Fortunately I overheard what Nellie read. I went to town to telegraph my faithful fiancée that was."

"That was," voiced Madge, aghast. "Exactly. My lady confirms the letter. I am glad to know that I am free," and his tones grew tender, and he clasped her hand. "Don't you understand that the lover she loaned you—as I have learned she did—wants you for keeps; if you will only consent? Long ago I realized that Beatrice had more of ambition than love in her nature, and her latest action has proven that I was right. Think as well as you can of her, trustful, innocent treasure that you are, but find a lasting place in your tender heart for me, if you believe me worthy of it."

And the eyes of Madge suddenly opened to the fact that back of her sympathy and interest, there had been real affection in her heart from the first day that Alison Deane was "loaned" to her as a lover.

SENATOR HARDING PROPOSES WELFARE POST IN CABINET

Tells 12,000 Women He Favors
Department in Defense of Mothers, Childhood and Public Health.

TO ADVANCE SOCIAL JUSTICE.

Emphasizes Need of Safeguarding
Women on American Farms.
Stands for Enforcement of Law

Marion, O.—The creation of a Federal Department of Public Welfare to function in defense of maternity, childhood and public health was proposed by Senator Harding in a speech on social justice to 12,000 women who came to his front porch from all points of the compass.

Such a department, said Senator Harding, must avoid the fearful results of bureaucracy. There can be no more efficient way of advancing a humanitarian program, he said, "than by adapting the machinery of our Federal Government to the purposes we desire to attain." While others may have their eyes fixed upon some particular piece of legislation or more particular policy of social justice which calls for the sympathetic interest of us all, he said, without hesitation, that our primary consideration must be the machinery of administration, and that when the time comes for us to reorganize our administrative government in Washington we must all stand together for the creation of a Department of Public Welfare.

"I pledge myself today," he said, "to support with all that is in me whatever practical policy of social welfare and social justice can be brought forward by the combined wisdom of all Americans. Nothing can concern America, and nothing can concern me as an American, more deeply than the health, the happiness and the enlightenment of every fellow American."

What Avels Paternalism?

"The social justice that I conceive is not paternalism. It would be easy to make it so, and dangerous indeed to the best spirit that Americans can have—the spirit of expressing by the individual free will one's own merits, capacity and worth. We do not want government to suppress that expression of free will, even by benevolence, but we do mean to preserve in America an equal opportunity and a preparation for self-expression therein, even though we use the government to do it."

"I believe that there is no step more practical, no step which will mean more to the growth of America's social welfare; no step which will give more better America's social justice, than one which I propose to you."

Dangers to Be Avoided.

"I have no doubt that there will be some who will find in this proposal cause for calling me an extremist, but when we have a task to do, which has been dictated by our conscience and approved by our wisdom, let us straightway find the way to do it. I do not say this without a word of caution. I recognize certain dangers which are always presented when government undertakes large and detailed tasks."

Tasks of Social Justice.

Senator Harding pointed out the necessity of going forward upon a sure footing and declared:

"When making the proposal for a department of public welfare to America, I am aware that I have made a step in advance of any platform."

"We all know that we face tasks of social justice, which we must undertake with dispatch and efficiency. Who can suggest one of these tasks which can supersede in our hearts, or in the rank which foresight and wisdom will give that of the protection of our maternity?"

"The protection of the motherhood of America can not be accomplished until the state and the nation have enacted and, by their example, have enforced customs, which protect womanhood itself. I know full well that there are women who insist that women shall be treated upon the same basis that men are treated."

Senator Harding discussed the need of adequate protection for women in industry and expressed his belief in the wisdom of an eight-hour day for women workers. He emphasized the need of safeguarding the women on American farms. He proposed putting the Children's Bureau under the suggested Department of Public Welfare, and urged prevention of abuses of child labor.

"I must not fail," Senator Harding went on, "to speak to you today of one of the measures of social justice and social welfare not often catalogued in this manner, but perhaps more important than any we have considered. I refer to the enforcement of law. It will not be my business when elected to decide what laws shall be. It will be legitimate for me to invoke public opinion for their enactment, but such a call to public opinion must be based more upon the duty of the Executive of the nation to give facts to the people than upon his desire to give opinion, theory and propaganda. The enforcement of the law is an Executive responsibility and must be undertaken by the Executive without regard for his personal approval or disapproval of the law, which it has been the people's will to enact."

ANCIENT HISTORY.

The cry of the farmer for government intervention in the price of wheat and cotton with the threats in some localities of non production in case that their demands are not granted, brings to mind a story that was told in early times of two neighboring farmers.

Both of those men were among our pioneers. They had cleared their lands and gotten them in shape to raise crops. We will designate them Mr. K. and Mr. S. They were having a chat one day and Mr. K. is reported as saying, "I can't afford to raise wheat to sell at four shillings and six pence a bushel." The reply of Mr. S. was, "I have got to raise more."

The result of these different policies was that a few years later both men built houses to replace log cabins. The one built by Mr. S. was said to be "the finest farm house in Michigan" at that date. The one erected by Mr. K. was a little one-story affair but little better than his log cabin. Both houses were alive the last time I went along that road, one as spruce and clean as the day it was built, and the other a weather-beaten old shack.

The descendants of Mr. S. are living in our vicinity still. Some of them on our best farms and others in our most modern village homes.

The descendants of Mr. K. have disappeared from our locality. If there are any of them living.

Neither of these men dreamed of asking the government to dictate what price they should get for their crops. Why should they? Why should they do so now?

Why should the government dictate the price of a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton?—which both came by industrious hands out of the earth—any more than it should determine the price of a string of fish that some industrious school boy pulled out of the sea?

Keep the government's "hands off" from our industries and "Produce" more.

The cry of the world for Peace and Cheer?

Are we still stand aloof and play?

The party of a coward in the fray?

We adjusted that we had no selfish thought.

When we proffered aid in the war of the world.

Now shall our hoarding come to naught?

If this shall be true we feel the shame.

That would reflect upon our goal.

That so long have held the world in chains.

And lead the hand of friendship and good will.

And lead the world to more peaceful dreams.

OAKLAND'S BUDGET PASSES MILLION MARK.

For the first time in its history, current expenses of Oakland county for the ensuing year are estimated at more than a million dollars and in the adoption of a report of the committees on ways and means by the board of supervisors Wednesday afternoon, provision was made for the collection by tax in December of $1,034,462.91 for county expense.

This sum is $318,627.35 more than was asked for in October, 1919. Higher salaries of county officers, increased costs of operating the county in all its departments, return to the county system of handling the poor, and greatly increased business in Covert road improvements, are some of the reasons the budget is higher this year than ever before—Pontiac Press.

PROMPT ACTION HALTS EPIDEMIC

Prompt action on the part of Oakland county farmers in checking the further spread of the hog cholera epidemic is the opinion of B. F. Deane, business manager of the Oakland county Farm bureau, and Dr. Newton, of the United States department of animal husbandry, who Friday made an inspection tour of the greater part of the affected area in the county.

Dr. Newton, who is an expert in the application of the latest methods of fighting the disease, and who for the past six years has devoted his entire time to it in this state, is of the opinion that if the farmers of the affected areas, and those surrounding them, will continue to vaccinate at the slightest suspicion of the disease, there will be no further spread—Pontiac Press.

TO PRESENT FARMERS' FREIGHT RATE CLAIMS.

Just as a man needs a lawyer when he goes into court, so does a farmer need a skilled freight rate and claim man when he presents claims against a railroad, according to the state farm bureau, as a statement it has just issued which says that a rate and claim division will be added to the traffic department of the bureau soon. This division will improve upon the present service of the traffic department of auditing freight bills and presenting claims to the railroad for adjustment.

An example of how this division will help is related in an account of a recent occurrence in the western part of the state. A certain shipper ordered a number of cars for the 15th of October. He started to load them the next day, and finished about an hour or two before his fire time expired. He took the bill of lading to the railroad agent who advised him there was an embargo on the Chicago team track, and that he couldn't accept car. The car had there all the next day, and on the following day the shipper again presented the billings to the agent, who accepted it this time. The agent then presented him with a bill for $750 demurrage, on account of the car sitting there an extra day, which was no fault of the shipper. The shipper paid, but he got his money back thru the traffic department which presented his claim to the railroad.

EARLE'S HYPO-COD WORKED MIRACLE, SAYS THIS LADY

Had Cough, Stomach Was Bad, Nervous and All Shot to Pieces.

FOR OVER A YEAR SHE GREW STEADILY WORSE

"About two years ago I had pneumonia which left me in a very weak, but condition," declared this lady, "and I had a lingering cough that clung to me like death."

"I fast about twenty pounds and in spite of the prescriptions given me I continually became worse until I was a shell of my former self. My nerves were all shot to pieces and my stomach was so weak I didn't dare touch any heavy or solid foods. I lingered along for over a year, getting weaker and weaker until that fortunate day when I saw where people here were praising a new medicine called Earle's Hypo-Cod."

"I went down to the drug store and bought five bottles and have taken them all and this wonderful medicine worked a miracle for me. Of all the miracles I ever heard of this was most wonderful. Why—I am feeling as good as I ever did in my life and the old cough is entirely gone. My appetite and digestion came back and my nerves are in good condition—I feel good all over and can't praise Hypo-Cod enough," declared Mrs. E. Choppers, 88 15th St., Detroit, Mich.

Surely after reading the above, if you are in need of a good tonic to build, you will at once give it a trial. Drop in at the drug store tonight, ask the druggist about it. Read formula on bottle, ask your physician about the ingredients. Druggists, chemists and experts assert that it is very powerful, yet very pleasant to taste.

Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold here by all good druggists and the leading druggists in all nearby towns.—Adv.

"Teachings of LaSalle and Marx Therefore Take No Hold on Americans."

By DR. CHARLES W. ELIOT, Harvard University.

The Pilgrim expedition in search of religious liberty was organized as a commercial stock company. Most of the shares were taken by British men of business who invested in it money only, and were properly called the Adventurers; but every man that "went," that is, encountered the hardships and risks of the enterprise, had a share of the stock (value $10) assigned to him without payment of money; and an additional share for his wife and for each child over sixteen years of age. This method of organizing a stock company remains to this day highly suggestive.

Those who "went" were called the Planters. They ultimately bought out all the Adventurers. The company was to feed, clothe and build shelters for all the Planters, and was to be entitled to the proceeds of their labor during four days of every week, the product to go into the company's store. At the end of seven years the whole property of the company was to be divided among the shareholders and the contract of the Planters with the company was to terminate.

It took the Pilgrims only about a year and a half to learn that even specially selected men and women would not work as well for the company as they would for their own families, even when the colony was threatened with serious scarcity of food. A new allotment of land was promptly made and the product of work on that land went directly to the family which provided the labor. It was their private property.

The Pilgrims learned quickly, by their experience, that the doctrine of "no private property" was impracticable, even in a community bound together by religious convictions. To this day, people of American stock believe heartily in private property, individual and family thrift and the transmission of savings to descendants. The teachings of LaSalle and Marx therefore take no hold on Americans.

Organized Campaign in the Senate for Direct Election of Presidents.

By EDWARD G. LOWRY, in Saturday Evening Post.

As soon as the suffrage amendment is ratified and out of the way there will begin in the senate an organized campaign to abolish the electoral college. The opponents of the plan for direct primary states. They represent the same political thought that brought about the direct election of senators. Now they want to take the next step and bring about the direct election of presidents. They seek to make it easy and possible to have independent candidates for the presidential office when the voters of either or both the two great rival parties are dissatisfied with the nominees of the national conventions. They know they will have popular support for their plan. It will be strongly urged in the senate and before the country.

I quote one of the senators who is prepared to take an active part in the campaign to abolish the electoral college: "Everybody knows that nearly all political conventions are manipulated and controlled by powerful influences that have selfish ends in view rather than the benefit of all the people. We have a practical illustration before us at the moment. If a few men are able under existing conditions to control the nominations of two great rival parties, as they have done recently, without consulting the wishes or the wants of the voters, then the only right given to the voter is that of choosing between these two samples which are set before him. This is in reality a denial of the right of suffrage. At least the right of suffrage so given is not absolute."

"If the electoral college were out of the way all that would be necessary would be to announce the name of the independent candidate and to comply in the different states with the method provided by law for putting the one name on the ticket. It would be a very simple procedure, inexpensive and perfectly practicable. Every state in the Union which has an official ballot provides for a method of putting names on the ticket which are not nominated by political parties. Such machinery is already provided for in every state, and applies to every office except those of president and vice president, and the reason it cannot apply to these positions is because the electoral college stands in the way."

"We Find That the Thing That Mankind Is Hungry for Is Illusion."

By W. L. GEORGE, British Novelist.

Why do people read stories? Is there a fundamental story hunger in people, or is the craving for a good yarn an artificially stimulated taste? I do not believe that the question can be answered as simply as that. If we get down to fundamentals we find that the thing that mankind hungers for is illusion. We labor, and we do not like it, and so to console ourselves we invent an illusion about the nobility of labor. We want to be great, to be noticed, to have stirring adventures, and because life is commonplace we invent the illusion of romance—hence the story-telling art.

If I should analyze the old craving of "Tell me a story," I should divide it into three primary illusions. First there is the illusion of the glorious, bright, beautiful world—the roseate world that one may see only with rose-colored spectacles. It is an escape from the world in which plans do not work out smoothly, situations are not pat, ambitions are frustrated.

Second, there is the illusion of the world of adventure, in which things are happening thick and fast, in which men and women are lifted out of their runs into bright new paths of stimulation and achievement. And, as this illusion works out in a story, the commonplace reader sees himself in the person of the brawny and handsome hero, and, of course, gallops gloriously through all the adventures.

The third type of illusion is the illusion of humor. It represents the philosophy of the man with a good deal of digested experience, who, finding that things will not go as he pleases, deliberately builds up for his intellectual life a world of cheerful cynicism—a world of laughter and merry doings, in which the blows of real life are softened by a refusal to take them seriously.

And the kind of illusion that any person seeks in fiction depends, as I see it, upon the kind of treatment he has had from life.

Governor Sleeper has issued a proclamation calling upon the people of Michigan to observe Armistice Day:

"The eleventh day of November next will be the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice in the Great War, and, inasmuch as the Michigan legislature in the session of 1919 passed an act making it the duty of school officers and teachers to have school days observed with appropriate commemorative exercises, it is fitting that the day should not be allowed to pass without attention being called to its significance.

Therefore I, Albert D. Sleeper, governor of the state of Michigan, do hereby issue this proclamation and hereby request a proper and appropriate observance on the part of the people of the state, of Thursday, the eleventh day of November 1920.

Following the proclamation, of President Wilson, I further request that on Sunday November the fourteenth, 1920 memorial services be held for our heroic dead, for the soldiers, sailors and marines who gave up their lives in our cause in the World War, and that on this day flags be displayed at half staff."
