FORESTERS HOLD ENJOYABLE MEETING.

Court Northville Foresters of America, held a very enjoyable meeting at their hall last Friday evening, at which a number of grand court officers were present. After the initiating of three candidates a banquet was served and an interesting impromptu program was given, short talk being given by the visitors and by a number of local members. The grand court of Michigan was represented by Jas. Robertson, of Detroit, grand chief ranger; W. H. Brown, of Pontiac, grand secretary; F. C. Bertram, of Detroit, G. T. B.; P. J. O'Brien, of Rochester, G. T.; and L. D. Stage, of Northville, G. S. F. The grand court officers complimented the local court upon its growth and activities during the past year and assured the officers of Court Northville of their hearty good-will and co-operation.

SUCCESS OF ENTERTAINMENT COURSE ASSURED.

The first number of the Foresters' entertainment course drew a crowd that completely filled the Alseum theatre last Thursday night, some of the late arrivals finding it difficult to secure a seat. The Demille Male Quartet was the attraction for the opening number and a program was presented that pleased the large audience. The large number of season tickets that had been sold and the many single admission tickets that were sold for the opening number assures the financial success of the course, a fact all will be pleased to learn. It is considerable to be an undertaking to assume the financial responsibility of such a course, and the Foresters are to be congratulated upon the unusual success that has crowned their efforts. The course will prove a fine treat for Northville people and the thanks of the entire community are due the committee having the affairs in charge.

BUY CHRISTMAS SEALS.

The young people at the high school will canvas the people of Northville for the sale of Christmas stamps and that they will be cordially received goes without saying, for the people of this community always do their full share of every worthy undertaking. And the sale of these Christmas seals is most worthy one, the money raised from the sale of 10 cents in this country will be expended largely in every state will help serve to keep their hit against the white plow. We spend a whole lot of money in private hospitals to care for people when they are ill and the amount is to provide funds to help us to keep well.

I use the following words:

"Buy the seals, buy the seals, and pack one letter book more,

the day before you open your wallet to send one."

OBSTINATE PILGRIM DAY.

The Northville Woman's Club observed Pilgrim Day in a very interesting and "non-routine" manner last Friday afternoon. The committee in charge of the day and its arrangements was composed of Mrs. C. L. Blackwell, Mrs. T. B. Hersey and Miss Margaret Yerkes, and a program of more than ordinary interest was given. Mrs. D. L. Auburn presented a paper on "Pilgrim Life," and a pageant was given by a number of the young people from the village schools, under the direction of Miss Marion Mulford, director of music and drawing. The children did their parts well and the parts taken by Misses Margaret Yerkes and Elizabeth Lapham were especially well rendered.

The members gave Miss Mulford and her pupils a rising vote of thanks for their kind assistance.

HELD MEETING AT PRESIDENT'S HOUSE.

The regular monthly meeting of the village council Monday evening was held at the residence of President W. J. Lanning, who has been confined to his home for the past few weeks by illness. After the business of the evening had been concluded, Mrs. Lanning served ice cream and cake and a social hour followed. Mr. Lanning enjoyed the meeting greatly and was especially grateful to his co-workers for their kindness and thoughtfulness in coming to his home. The presence of these old friends served as a splendid tonic and nothing could have done him more good.

Mr. Lanning was able to take a short walk Tuesday and it is sincerely hoped he will be speedily restored to health and strength.

SUPERVISOR LANNING DIED VERY SUDDENLY.

The people of Northville were greatly shocked yesterday forenoon when news became current that Supervisor W. J. Lanning had died while sitting in his chair at his home on North Center street. While people generally knew that he had not been feeling well for some weeks, yet his close friends believed his condition was somewhat improved since his return home from Grace Hospital a week ago last Saturday. Death came peacefully and without warning.

Mr. Lanning was serving the people of this community in a dual capacity, both as supervisor of the township and president of the village and expectations of deep regret were universal among his friends and acquaintances. He was a faithful public official, a true friend and neighbor and his passing is a distinct loss to this community.

Funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock at the house.

HAD LIVED MOST A CENTURY.

James Wilson died at the home of his son, John D. Wilson, on the Bass Line road, Sunday afternoon, at the advanced age of almost 93 years. Funeral services were held from the house on Tuesday afternoon. Rev. H. J. Marsh officiating, and burial took place in River Hill cemetery.

Mr. Wilson was born February 21, 1827, in Glasgow, Scotland. Orphaned at an early age, he was bound out at the age of 12 as cabin boy on an ocean-going bark. When of age he enlisted in the British navy, serving there for several years saw service in the Indian ocean which is given in his record. In 1854 it was his good fortune to be on Japan service when Commodore Perry negotiated the famous treaty opening Japan to the world. During Perry's visit he was sent to Korea and his part in the Korean War. In 1856 he fought in the English-Chinese War, being an active part of the force "At Home" this time, 1857-58.

The British forces made their great stand against British rule here he was sent into the interior on shore duty with British troops.

The first settlements in Australia were by English prisoners who were given their choice of prison or going to Australia. Mr. Wilson served on boats carrying these prisoners from England. His boat "Touching the Island" he and a party visited Hawaii soon after the death of Captain Cook but did not make an extended trip. He was also in service with war vessels sent in quest of Malay, Chinese and other pirates who made Southern and far Eastern waters unsafe for merchant boats in the early days. There were no cozy steamboats those days and the life of a sailor was a hard one. Capes Horn and Hatteras and the Indian Ocean were places especially feared for their violent storms. His was a varied experience and few were the known countries or seaports which he had not visited.

In 1863 he was joined in marriage to Miss Susie McAllister of Quebec, soon after moving to this country. To this union was born eight children, of whom four survive: Susie (Mrs. A. C. Taft), John D., William J., and James W., also four grandchildren. His wife dying in 1883 he was left with the task of caring for his family, which he did faithfully and well. Of fine moral character he always tried to do what was right, tried to use his fellow man as he wanted to be used, asked for no more than he was willing to give.

C. H. Banks left yesterday for the Soldiers' Home at Grand Rapids, where he will spend the winter.

To Feel at Home on This Planet Is the Supreme Felicity of Life.

By JOHN BURROUGHS, in "Accepting the Universe."

The naturalist must see all things in the light of his experiences in this world. He experiences no miracles; he sees the cosmic energy as no respecter of persons; he sees the rains falling alike upon the just and unjust; he sees the vast, impartial, indiscriminating movements of Nature all about him; he learns that the land can not sustain life without the fertilizing rains, yet he beholds the clouds pouring out their bounty into the sea just as freely as upon land; he beholds the inorganic crushing the organic all about him, and yet he knows that the latter is nothing without the former. If God and the universal cosmic forces are one, how surely is God on both sides in all struggles, all causes, all wars, righteous and unrighteous!

I behold the great scheme of evolution unfolding despite all the delays and waste and failures, and the higher forms appearing upon the scene. I see on an immense scale, and as clearly as in a demonstration in a laboratory, that good comes out of evil; that the impartiality of the Nature Providence is best; that we are made strong by what we overcome; that man is man because he is as free to do evil as to do good, that life is as free to develop hostile form as to develop friendly; that power waits upon him who earns it . . . Life would be tasteless and insipid without pain and struggle and disappointment. . . . The stars send their influences, the earth renews itself, the brooding heaven gathers us under its wings, and all is well with us if we have the heroic hearts to see it.

We are embosomed in the Eternal Beneficence whether we desire it or not . . . To feel at home on this planet, and that it is, with all its drawbacks, the best possible world, I look upon as the supreme felicity of life.

Only Self-Control and Attention Give Steadiness to Prevent Fumbling.

By LYNN HAROLD HOUGH, Former Pres't Northwestern Univ.

Freel Daly was captain of the football team of Yale. Later he was coach at Williams. One day he was trying forward passes and instructed the ends to catch them at every possible angle and height. One man fumbled every time just when he seemed most sure of the ball. Daly did not recognize him and called interrogatively: "What is your name?" The reply seriously interrupted play on that afternoon. The man hesitated a moment and then said, "Ketchum is my name".

The man who fumbles is found everywhere. Sometimes he fumbles with his mind. You are sure he has told of an idea but he first misses it. Sometimes he fumbles with his conscience. You think he has a grip on some big moral principle, but at the critical moment it slips through his fingers and he is apt to sometimes be fuddled in his talk. One moment he would say everything in a topsy-turvy. He starts to speak: "You are sure he will say the right thing but he gets confused and trails off into meaningless words. Sometimes he fumbles in action. The tide of strategy has arrived. Something must be done. The team starts up, but just on the edge of doing the thing which everything depends, a doubt comes into his mind and he lets the great moment pass.

Only the practice of these qualities, and of really strong self-control will give that steadiness which prevents a man from fumbling. It is a long, demanding process, but it is tremendously worth all that it costs.

Everything Boosted—and Hair of the Britisher Frequently on End.

By SIR JOHN FOSTER FRASER, English Writer.

Everybody who does anything in America is advertised as the most wonderful doer of that particular thing in the world. In time it is believed. So there is a crying for what is called "publicity." You may mourn that your house has been burned down, but there is sure to be some one who will console you with the remark, "But think of the publicity you will get out of it."

Everything has to be boosted—and the hair of the Britisher is frequently hoisted on end. I remember promising to address a meeting in New York. One of the New York papers announced I was in the United States as the personal representative of King George! I got the telephone busy, and in language that is unprintable demanded of the secretary what he meant by saying a thing like that. His explanation was he had to say something about who I was. "Well, don't say that," I insisted.

"Can we say you will deliver a special message from Lloyd George? We must announce something to draw a big audience." "Certainly not." "Well, well," he continued, "we will just say you have a message from the British to the American people."

Industrial Accident Prevention Hangs on Safeguarding and Education.

By SIDNEY J. WILLIAMS, National Safety Council.

An essential to success in any campaign for industrial accident prevention, whether statewide or in an individual plant, is a proper balance between safeguarding and education. Education will prevent a greater number of accidents; safeguarding will prevent more serious accidents.

Education brings the greatest results for the least money, and is therefore favored by the employer; safeguarding suggests laws, inspections, the "big stick," and has naturally been emphasized by most governmental departments. Education without safeguarding is not sincere; safeguarding without education is narrow. Either one without the other can achieve only limited success.

The pendulum swings back and forth, but each oscillation brings us closer to the golden mean. No safety engineer with the most rudimentary idea of honesty will attempt to conduct an educational campaign until he has at least made a start in correcting physical hazards. Reflecting this attitude, the National Safety Council, which is essentially a co-operative organization of employers, is giving increasing attention to mechanical safeguarding and engineering revision.

CHANGING SUITS

By KITTY PARSONS.

(© 1920, by McCay Newspaper Syndicate.)

It was a scorching hot day in July and the thought of a cool bath in the ocean was the pleasantest thing in the world to Janet. Then she opened her bundle and took out her lovely new bathing suit—or at least, what she thought was her suit.

"Oh—oh!" exclaimed Janet in utter amazement as she gazed at the ugly black garment in her hands. "This is a men's suit!"

"She decided she had packed up the wrong bundle as she left the car, and then hurried out to the pavilion.

There was no one in sight who seemed to be looking for anything and after wandering about aimlessly for a few minutes Janet decided to forego her bath, and sat down on the sand to rest. In a few minutes she noted the approach of a young man.

"It's all my fault," he began at once. "I was in such a hurry to get in the water that I must have taken your suit by mistake—I'm dreadfully sorry!" He handed her the missing suit.

"It wasn't your fault any more than mine," returned Janet. "You should have grabbed your suit away from me."

"I couldn't—I hadn't the courage."

Janet laughed.

"You don't look so very timid," she assured him.

"Well, I really am. Right now I'm dying to ask you something, but I'm simply trembling with fear."

"Try and see what happens—do I look like a dragon?"

"No, but it's such a nervy thing to ask—without any guarantee of respectability or anything. Could you go to dinner with me on faith?"

"To tell you the truth I'm afraid I shouldn't. My mother has always lectured me about speaking to strange young men; from the cradle up; you don't look like a villain, though."

"I'm not, really; and under the circumstances I think any mother would trust her daughter to my tender care. Won't you take pity on me?"

"All right, I will," said Janet, deciding to be reckless for once in her life. And of course it really was all her fault about the suit.

"This is a relief after the hot city," she told him when they were seated at a little table overlooking the water a few minutes later.

They were really having a beautiful time, and Janet was thanking her lucky stars that tomorrow was Sunday and she wouldn't have to stir in that hot office again, when her eye fell on a rather stout boy coming down the stairs.

Anne Forbush—and she had seen them! Janet did not even know the name of the man with whom she ran off with and she couldn't ask him now. "What a frightful situation to be passed around to all the aunts in the family in Anna's loving hand!" Janet wished that she had taken her mother's early advice.

"How delightful!" cried Mrs. Forbush—"how absolutely delightful to meet you here, Ward Franklin! And with Janet, too. I had no idea you two knew each other!"

"We've known Janet for ages," fabricated Franklin, looking straight into her eyes and praying that they would be spared further questions.

Janet felt that she was sinking—never in her life had she been in such a position; it was dreadful!

"I suppose you met at the magazine office where Janet works. Didn't they run your last novel in a serial before it came out in book form?"

"Yes, that was it exactly" put in Janet, feeling that things were steadily getting worse.

"When is your new book coming out?" asked Mrs. Forbush.

"In the fall, I hope. It's so hot in town, though, no one can do much work. Janet and I just came down for a little swim to see if we could get cool."

"How was the water?"

"Fine!" declared Franklin and Janet in the same breath, without looking at each other.

"Well, we're awfully glad we ran into you. Can't you both come down to dinner some night next week—we'd love to have you."

"I think we'd better be going," began Janet hurriedly, picking up her purse and gloves. "It's a long way to my little flat and I don't want to get home late."

Franklin took her home, and when he said good night at her door he thanked her for the pleasantest evening he had had in years.

"Will you go for a ride with me tomorrow afternoon?" he added hopefully.

"It's too soon, isn't it?"

"Not for me—is it for you?"

"I don't know—what time?"

"About five—we can have dinner somewhere in the country. Would your mother like to come?"

"Oh, she'd love it—how sweet of you!"

"Good night, Janet." He held her hand so long that she withdrew it at last.

"I've had the neatest time I've had in years, too," she told him before she finally closed the door.

Then she went to her room and decided to hang up her neglected bathing suit before going to bed. And when she opened the poor battered bundle she took out, for the second time—Franklin's suit. Then she sat down and burst out laughing.

"I'll give it to him tomorrow," she decided, happily.

TO SANTA CLAUS

By James Whitcomb Riley

Most tangible of all the gods that be,
O Santa Claus—our own since infancy!
As first we scampered to thee—now, as then,
Take us as children to thy heart again.

Be wholly good to us, just as of old;
As a pleased father, let thine arms enfold
Us, homed within the haven of thy love,
And all the cheer and wholesomeness thereof.

Thou lone reality, when O, so long
Life's unrealities have wrought us wrong
Ambition hath allure us, fame likewise,
And all that promised honor in men's eyes.

Throughout the world's evasions, wiles and shifts,
Thou only bidest stable as thy gifts:
A grateful king re-ruled from thy lap,
Crowned with a little soldier-cap.

A mighty general—a nation's pride—
Thou givest again a rocking-horse to ride,
And wildly glad he gloweth as the grim
Old jurist with the drum thou givest him:

The sculptor's chisel, at thy mirth's command,
Is as a whistle in his boyish hand;
The painter's model faileth utterly,
And there thou standest, and he painteth thee:

Most like a winter pippin, sound and fine
And tingling-red that ripe old face of thine,
Set in thy frosty beard of cheek and chin
As midst the snows the thaws of spring set in.

Ho! Santa Claus—our own since infancy—
Most tangible of all the gods that be!
As first we scampered to thee—now, as then,
Take us as children to thy heart again.

Court Train Is Given Approval

Style Is Seen in Dressmaking Circles for First Time in Several Years.

SASH PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

Decoration Aids in Carrying Out Very Effective Results in the More Fashionable Informal Evening Frocks.

The long court train has returned. It is seen in the best dressmaking circles for the first time in several years. The resumption of social life by the many women who were engaged in war work set the dressmakers to designing clothes of a more formal character. During the war years the patriotic woman thought only of serving her country and doing so in the most suitable dress that she could find.

Then came the period of wild extravagance that followed the signing of the armistice. In the history of fashions this will go down as a time when clothes were elaborate, with little of beauty or good taste to recommend them. It seemed that everything possible in the way of decoration or elaboration was combined in a single model.

Now, asserts a leading fashion correspondent, we see the reactions. The lines of the best clothes made today are very simple. There is elaboration, it is true, but it is a dignified elaboration. Some models are ready works of art in the beauty of drapery and cleverness of design. Their very simplicity makes them appear as though any one might have made them, whereas they could have been only created by the brain and hand of an artist.

Bride's Dream of White Satin.

Lavish features the long court train heavily embroidered. One, of the most interesting models, is a bride's dress of white satin having a court train richly embroidered in white. This falls from the shoulders in one continuous curve, being attached to the bodice by means of an embroidered band which crosses the front just above the décolletage. Long bishop sleeves of tulle, the lower half embroidered in white, are a feature of this dress. Embroidery also appears across the front of the bodice and on the full, square straight skirt.

A Lavish model, black satin with the embroidered court train falling from the shoulders, is held in place by an embroidered band about four inches wide, which passes over the shoulders and crosses the front. Panels hanging at each side of the dress are of satin, draped in at the bottom to embroidery between the ends of which are of black satin ribbon. The skirts of even, the most dignified frocks, still are short, although several of the best designers are showing skirts a trifle longer than those now actually being worn.

Fash Train Lends Smartness.

A surprising number of the more informal evening frocks have trains. They may be only sash ends, and this, by the way, is a favorite method of evolving a train for a simple evening dress. Very effective are the results achieved through these sash-trains.

Frock of Gray Mouseline Embroidered in White and Gold.

A plain little frock of orchid pink chiffon may be made with the neckline as high as those worn on street frocks and cut in the straight-across shallow line. The waist may be low and blousing, with the skirt short and straight. Then, to make it the last word in smartness, a sash of two tones of pink, one a very bright shade tied about the low waistline and several inches of one of the gayly colored ends trailing on the ground.

A model of this kind is as adaptable as can be, because the sash ends may be shortened, or the sash removed altogether and any sort of a girdle used, so that one has a simple afternoon dress which may be worn anywhere.

Train dresses of this sort are, of course, in direct opposition to the one which is decidedly formal, but it, too, has its practical side, for the band supporting the train is made separate from the dress and just slips over the shoulders.

Train Makes Its Own Laws.

The train, having once got back into the limelight, takes to itself many liberties. It absolutely refuses to abide by any set rules. It may even fall from the front of our dress. A frock created by one of our own American designers has a very uneven hem, the front being extremely short and the skirt falling much longer at the sides and back. There is a sash which ties in a bow directly in the front and the long ends hang to the ankles several inches below the bottom of the skirt. To complete the appearance of the skirt, however, the sash hangs panels also longer than the skirt.

An Interesting Frock of Black Velvet and Black Lace.

Perhaps the most popular place for a train is at one side. The wrapped-around effect, with the draperies drawn toward the shoulder, is in fact much to very prominent in fashions. The model, slightly draped at the waistline in a free and easy manner, wears quite a contrast to the tightly draped prettiness, draped, sponsored by Madeleine. Madeleine's dresses of this sort usually fasten at the left side. This one illustrates, too, the bias for black and white in evening frocks. It is of white velvet, showing a long side panel of black velvet and black tulle. The large flat flowers are of velvet and tulle. The back of the dress is draped in the same manner as the front.

Black Brocade for Evening Wear.

There so many of the skirts which wrap tightly around the figure have fullness let in by means of narrow godets on one side only toward the front. They may be laid in where the skirt laps over, and forms the closing.

Cheerful has resort to black broadcloth for evening dress. She embroiders it in white. One such model has a novel skirt, with one side wrapping over the long train, while the other comes from underneath the train, fitting the figure quite snugly. On the skirt are two kinds of embroidery in leaf design. Long, full sleeves are of white lace. So, also are the sides and back of the bodice, the latter having an applied square of the broadcloth.

Another model which is very lovely is of white brocade and black lace.

It shows the corsage swathed about the bust and cut fairly low in the back.

A length of the black lace outlines the square decolletage at the back. This band, about six inches at the small of the back, widens until it is at least twelve inches over the shoulders, and then it falls at the front in pointed ends. The skirt is short and of the wrapped type, and there is a black lace train attached to the waistline at the side.

Scarf Adds Distinctive Touch.

A most important movement in evening dresses might be termed the scarf-like movement. It appears on many models and may be described in this way: The silhouette of a straight chiseled dress is changed by attaching a scarf to the hem of the skirt or to the belt of the dress. Scarfs starting at the belt line always loop at the bottom of the dress and then up, forming the bodice, swathing the shoulders and falling down one side. These scarfs are of the same material as the dress.

This season's evening dresses are much less décolleté than they have been for some time past. All of the models today show a rather high neck line for evening gowns.

Brocades for Brides.

Brocades of great brilliancy are worn by the great fabric houses especially for brides.

"When we become so absorbed in the world of things and in the accumulation of things that we forget to be considerate, courteous and kind, we are not worth cent to anybody."

EVERYDAY GOOD THINGS.

For those who like codfish there are any number of good dishes from cod-fish balls to chowder and codfish gravy to serve with baked potatoes, any one real treat when nicely prepared and seasoned.

Codfish With Rice and Olives.—Dredge the salt dish and cook at a simmering temperature as usual. Prepare some white sauce and boil some rice. Add some grated cheese to the white sauce, beat the fish thoroughly in it and serve very hot within a wall of hot boiled rice. Dredge the rice with dishes of paprika and garnish with sprigs of parsley.

Potato and Onion Omelet.—Prepare a quart of seasoned mashed potato by adding three tablespoonfuls of bacon fat, a tablespoonful of salt and a half cupful of horseradish to the mashed potato. Add two cupfuls of boiled onions, chopped fine, a little white pepper, beat until light, then spread in a frying pan well-greased with two tablespoonfuls of bacon fat and cook until browned. Fold and turn on a hot platter. Serve garnished with bacon crisp and brown.

Scalloped Salmon.—Make an ordinary white wine, using two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour and one cupful of milk. Take choice canned salmon and add to it some finely shredded raw peppers, let cook gently. Cut up the olives rather coarsely and add to the salmon. Just before serving add English walnuts; cover with buttered bread crumbs and set in the oven until the crumbs are brown. Celery, minced fine, or celery salt may be added to the dish. Garnish with a slice of pepper on top with cole slaw and parsley about the dish.

Rice With Cabbage and Cheese.—Cook one cupful of chopped cabbage in the fat and heat bacon, cover and steam half an hour, using three spoonfuls of bacon. Take off half a cupful of rice, salt, paprika and two cupsfuls of hot broth. Cook until the rice is tender, adding more broth or water if needed. Turn into a serving dish, dot with bits of butter and cover with grated cheese.

WILL SEEK BONDS.

A campaign to obtain a state bonus for World War veterans of Michigan has been started.

Petitions for an initiative measure to be presented to the legislature are being circulated. The compensation fixed in the proposed bill is $15 for each month of service, or fraction thereof, with a maximum compensation of $250. All soldiers, sailors, marines and nurses who entered the service between April 6, 1917, and May 11, 1919, would receive the bonus.

Loans not to exceed $25,000,000 would be authorized, and a World War Veterans' compensation board created to administer the act.

UNION CHAPTER ELECTED OFFICERS.

Union Chapter, R. A. M., held its annual election of officers Wednesday night, the meeting being preceded by a dinner at 6:30 of which 125 members heartily partook. A ladies' orchestra from Plymouth rendered a pleasing program during the serving of the evening meal, the organization being composed of Mesdames Giles and Hillmer and Misses Bakes and Thomas.

As an appreciation of the faithful services rendered by Karl W. Hillmer, as High Priest of the Chapter, the members voted to present their retiring officer with a handsome past high priest's apron.

The following officers were chosen for the ensuing year:

Jas. N. VanDyne, H. P.

Wm. D. McCullough, K.

Joseph Grace, S.

Barton A. Wheeler, treas.

Chas. A. Dolph, Secy.

Dora Ball, C. of H.

Chas. VanValkenburg, P. S.

Daniel F. Murray, R. A. C.

Osmund Yerkes, 3rd V.

Thomas McGee, 2nd V.

Ernest Ash, 1st V.

Dean F. Griswold, Sentinel.

Breaking a Record.
A man down East spoke his will into a phonograph, thus giving it a chance to break big record.

UNION MEETING SUNDAY AFTERNOON.

Rev. Yonan H. Shahbaz of Urulia, Persia, will deliver an address on Persia, entitled: "Back from the War Zone," at 3:00, at the Methodist church. Mr. Shahbaz is a native of Persia, educated in this country, and is a regular ordained minister of the Baptist church.

He has delivered his address at nearly five hundred churches and Masonic lodges in the United States, and has been warmly received. Mr. Shahbaz speaks English perfectly and has a very interesting personality.

AUTO DRIVERS TAKE NOTICE.

The village authorities give notice for the last time that the ordinance relative to auto driving was made to be enforced and the traffic officers are instructed to that effect. "Speeding on the streets of the village or sliding along at 20 to 30 miles an hour and sometimes even with greater rapidity, must cease and at once," say the officers. The traffic officers also call attention to the spot light prohibition section of the ordinance and the muffler cut-out idea.

Three drivers were up before Judge Knapp this week and paid fines for swift driving. Northville drivers, it is claimed, are largely the ones violating the speed ordinance and to those, this notice is particularly directed.

Drivers who do not like the speed regulations, the ban on spot-lights and muffler cut-outs and "noparking" rules, should get the council to repeal that part of the ordinance if they can, but in the meantime Marshal Lyke says his orders from the council are to enforce the law and he is going to do it.

It's a strange thing when one considers that all laws are for the safety and comfort of the people, and that about fifty per cent of the people want to stretch to point one-half, while 25 per cent have a desire to break it entirely. The automobile laws and regulations are for the safety and comfort of the people.

As individuals, the council and police have no more personal interest in them than any other citizen.

WHAT THE PAPER DOESN'T TELL.

My father says the paper he reads up to put up right. He finds a lot of faults to do certain things all night.

He always reads the news column worth while to read. And that doesn't print the kind of stuff the people mean.

He tosses aside and says he's perfectly satisfied with him.

Put him ought to best man holder when the paper doesn't come.

He reads about the weather and his sports like golf and golf.

He reads the social don'ts with a most interested interest.

He reads the inside papers for the woman's fashion column.

He reads about the parties and how there are first and grand.

He reads of information it doesn't concern him in the least.

But you ought to hear him talk when the paper doesn't come.

He always tries to grab it and he reads it plumb clean then.

He doesn't miss an item or a want ad.

He says they don't know what we want, the darn newspaper guys.

I'm going to take a day some time and put it in wise.

Some times it seems as though they must be deaf blind and dumb.

But you ought to hear him talk when the paper doesn't come.

RIOT AS SPEAKER KNOCKS SOVIET

MEYER LONDON, ADDRESSING SOCIALISTS, CAUSES TROUBLE BY SCORING LENINE.

NOT IN ACCORD WITH RUSSIA

New York Socialists Not in Sympathy With Developments in Russia Under Reds.

Chicago—Riot calls were turned in here, when a meeting of 800 Socialists became disorderly, after Meyer London, Socialist congressman from New York, had criticized the Russian Soviet government.

A detachment of police arrived shortly after the disorder was started, and no serious damage was done, although chairs were broken and pictures and decorations torn from the walls.

London had been discussing socialism for an hour before the disorders began. He was loudly applauded and frequently stopped to catch the shouts of praise which came from his audience.

Suddenly, however, he began to criticize the Soviet government, asserting that the principles of Lenin were not necessarily the principles of pure socialism and that the Socialists of New York were out of sympathy with developments in Russia.

"But here in Chicago," he continued, "you are too slow to realize the faults of the Russian government. You go blindly on the belief that anything a Socialist does must be right."

The start of the criticism of Lenin brought a few shouts of disapproval from the audience and before London finished, the audience became beyond control and the riot call was turned in.

Included in the 21 points specified by the Moscow organization, is one requiring methods of violence which the organization in this country objects to preferring to favor the ballot box methods.

SHELL EXPLOSION ROCKS CITY

Cargo of Projectiles Abseze, Residence Section "Bombed"

New York—Hundreds of homes in the Fort Hamilton section of Brooklyn virtually ate under heavy artillery bombardment resulting from intermittent explosions of six-inch and ten-inch shells on a slow lighter which caught fire while moored to the army reservation wharf.

Gathering together, they belonged in a belief that the naval arsenal at Port Lafayette, a small island near Port Hamilton, was ablaze, terrified scores fled their homes for safer zones, driven to frenzied haste by the series of detonations which were heard for miles around.

An official statement from Fort Hamilton said no lives had been lost, and that only four persons had been injured and one hit slightly.

EDUCATIONAL FAIRS DESIRED

G. W. Dickinson of Michigan State Fair, Addresses International Body.

Chicago—Fairs of the United States must become more truly educational in their programs. George W. Dickinson, Detroit secretary manager of the Michigan State Fair, said in his annual address before the International Association of Fairs and Exhibitions.

Mr. Dickinson is president of the organization.

Mr. Dickinson denounced so-called "farm-labor" movement, which he said, still seek to stir up the minorities in both the cities and country. Through the fairs of the country, he declared, a real farm labor movement could be started on a basis of good feeling and fair dealing to all.

AUTO MISHAPS ON INCREASE

Annual Death Rate 141 Per Thousand; Detroit Rate 14.4.

Washington—A total of 3,808 persons were killed in automobile accidents, or died as a result of injuries therefrom during the last year, the census bureau announced in a statement offering suggestions for traffic improvement.

An automobile accident death rate of 14.1 out of every 100,000 of population was reported for 1919, an increase over every year since 1915, when the rate of 8.0, and an increase of 245 in the total number of deaths over 1918.

In Detroit the number of deaths is reported as 135 per hundred thousand, or a percentage of 14.4.

Standard Oil Stock To Workers. Chicago—Twenty-five thousand employees of the Standard Oil Co., of Indiana, may become shareholders in the company, under a co-operative plan announced by W. H. Stewart, chairman of the board of directors. The company proposes to permit each employee to buy shares equal to half his annual salary, the company to pay for half the shares purchased and the employee to have five years in which to pay his half increased efficiency to the account.

Farmington Flashes

Mrs. Albert Brown is visiting Mrs. King at Eaton, Ohio.

Many Farmington people are sojourning in the south this winter. Mrs. Otis Jensen recently completed a quilt containing a total of 6,746 pieces.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Lanning of Northville were recent callers at the home of John Phelps and wife.

Sergal Farmington Masons attended the meeting of the newly organized Croots at Pontiac last week.

Farmington will soon have a new post office building and when the structure is completed new and modern equipment will be installed.

Lester Harger and Clinton Tredway attended the boys' conference at Grand Rapids last week, as representatives of the Farmington High school.

The Chamber of Commerce are behind a movement to pave Division street next summer, making it a 50-foot thoroughfare with cement construction.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Warner entertained a few friends at bridge one night last week in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Stoebe of Grand Rapids, who were their guests for a few days.

If building conditions become more normal, that is, if prices of material come down within reach, there will be a lot of building here next season. A number of subdivisions are being promoted by Detroit firms.

A Masonic school of instruction will be held at the hall of Farmington Lodge this Friday evening.

Northville and Plymouth Lodges will attend besides many other members of the order from surrounding towns.

A complimentary banquet will be tendered Farmington's football team by the citizens on Tuesday evening next.

The Farmington boys made an enviable record this year and the banquet will be given as a means of expressing the appreciation of the general public.

The old Owen House barn, one of the oldest landmarks along Grand River avenue, and which had been occupied as a bowling alley for some years past was completely destroyed by fire on Tuesday evening of last week. Only favorable conditions saved other property as sparks from the burning structure were carried a considerable distance. The Owen House property has been in possession of the Owen family for more than fifty years. For many years it was a favorite stopping place for travelers between Lansing and Detroit in the days of the old stage coaches.

THE UNITED GOLF CLUB MET DEFEAT.

The December 5th shoot of the United Golf Club, held in spite of the cold and high wind, was a blaring cold. The ability to shoot well is not a gift that an accomplishment, and the fact that ladies as well as gentlemen may acquire this ability was proven conclusively at this shoot. In spite of weather conditions Miss E. G. Vogel led the entire field in the fifty target program, by "busting" forty eight of the string.

Nine contestants shot through the fifty target program with very creditable scores. It seemed like old times to see Greene, Baldwin and Schrader on the firing line again. Late arrivals boosted the entries in the practice events to ten. Five hundred targets were thrown in this vent, 389 being broken.

The date for the poultry shoot is December 22d, instead of December 5th, as previously announced. This will bring the shoot on Wednesday just ahead of Christmas. Shooting will start at 10:30 a.m. Eastern time, early arrivals being allowed to shoot a practice event. Thirteen turkeys, thirteen ducks, thirteen chickens, all dressed, and twelve chances to try for each. Twelve events; ten targets each, with prizes to the three high guns on entire program. Entrance fee will be six dollars, including targets. A good assortment of shells will be on sale at grounds, at $1.20 per. Poultry on exhibit at shoot.

The 50 target scores were:

Mrs. L. G. Vogel ----- 48

THE NORTHVILLE ELECTRIC SHOP

SCHOOL NOTES.

Plans have been laid for the organization of a hot lunch club in the Northville schools. All necessary materials and supplies were purchased so that the first noon-day lunch was served on Wednesday about 35 boys and girls enjoyed a hot dish of cream tomato soup and large squares buttered "crackers" for the small sum of 15¢ which represents the actual cost of materials. Some hot dish will be served each day during the noon hour through the cold weather. It is believed this will be a great benefit to the many boys and girls who have to eat a cold lunch for better progress in their studies should be made. The board of education appropriated a sum large enough to start the enterprise such as dishes, tinware, supplies, etc. The following officers have been elected: President, Beulah Merritt; vice-president, George Kahl; secy-treas., Geraldine Young. Mrs. Holcomb is acting as local chairman.

E. A. Chapman and Margaret Murdoch received 100% in the recent Chemistry examination.

On Thursday Prof. Loft of the Michigan State Normal College addressed the Junior and Senior High school girls' program which was in charge of Mr. Heifrich. Consisted of assembly singing, music by the High school chorus and the address. The next assembly program which is in charge of Miss McCull, will be given Monday, December 12. C. C. Yerkes, attorney, will address the assembly at 8:30. Outsiders are cordially invited to attend.

Next week a very thorough campaign will be put on by the High school for the purpose of selling about 10,000 Christmas Seals. Most everyone can afford to take some of these stamps and thus help to save our unfortunate boys and girls from this dreaded disease. It is hoped the public will encourage the campaign by giving liberally from the students. Each stamp sells for 1¢ and can be used in sealing letters, packages, etc. One of our merchants has already ordered 500 to be used in sealing all packages. How many will follow suit?

This is indeed to have a rare treat in the sang the famous lecturer, Prof. W. D. Henderson of the University of Michigan in his well known address. "The Discovery of America" Prof. Henderson comes to the people of Northville through the efforts of the Northville High school. The lecture will be free to everyone and be heard at the different organizations of the village will combine to insure him a large audience Saturday night of January 4, 1922 for an evening of not only entertainment but profit as well.

The student council, proceeding to the meeting of November 28, as follows: Council meeting called to order by President E. A. Chapman with all members present except John Letzberger and Clifford Stillwell; secretary's report read and approved. Mr. Heifrich will report on engraving plates for a high school annual at a later meeting. Mr. Heifrich has arranged for a band concert to be given by Alisard's band of Plymouth at some near future date. Meeting adjourned by motion—break. Marsh secretar.

SEAL SALE GOING ON.

At the Christmas seal sale reaching its climax in Michigan, workers all over the state are ready for the final push that is expected to put the state over in better shape than has ever been done in Michigan Anti-tuberculosis history. The sale will close on Saturday night, although in some communities the committees will work overtime to finish the task. No definite reports have as yet reached the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis association as to the progress of the sale, although some communities have announced that the prospects for a record sale are good.

Dr. R. N. Olin, state commissioner of health, is urging the people of Michigan to support the sale during the closing days especially. "Your organization," he wrote to Miss Elizabeth L. Parker, executive of the Michigan Anti-tuberculosis association, "is accomplishing a splendid work in the state of Michigan. I heartily endorse its activities, and especially do I endorse the Christmas seal sale because of its educational value. I trust that the people of our state may generously respond to the call to promote good health in our community."

Weight of the Hope Diamond. Jean Baptiste Tavernier came into possession of the Hope diamond in 1642, stolen from the sacred golden statue of Rama in the Temple of Rama and Sita, Burnah, India. It weighed 112½ carats and was sold by Tavernier to Louis XIV for half a million dollars and a baronetcy.

MICHIGAN FARMERS WIN SHOW HONORS.

Piling down far more than their share of awards in all small-grain classes, and scoring practically a clean sweep in certain fields, Michigan farmers exhibiting at the Chicago International Hay and Grain show last week brought home the Nine's share of noveys. The show, which is held annually in connection with the famous International Livestock exposition, is the biggest crops exhibit of its kind in the country, competitors from all over the United States and Canada competing for the $10,000 prize money.

SHORT-RURAL-COURSE PLANNED FOR NURSES.

Wayne, Washtenaw, Kent, and Kalamazoo counties, judging from present indications, will soon be approved rural training centers where graduate nurses intending to do public health nursing may obtain two months' field work under supervision, and receive credit for it in the public health nursing course offered by the University of Michigan.

To determine whether these four counties possess rural nursing organizations of such character that credit for field work can be given by the university, a survey will be made by Miss Emily Daniel, field instructor in public health nursing, following suggestions made at a recent conference held in Ann Arbor and attended by Mrs. Barbara H. Bartlett, professor of public health nursing, Miss Harriet Leck, director of the Bureau of child hygiene and public health nursing of the Michigan department of health, Miss Minnie Ahrens, of the Red Cross central division, and Miss Malinda Harvey, state field director of the Red Cross.

Acceptance of the plan, it is said would give student nurses practical experience in public health work before taking up classroom theory and could place Michigan in the van as a training center for nurses. No other state at the present time has so comprehensive a training system. Expenses of the nurses while taking the two months' course in one of the approved counties would probably be borne by the Red Cross which has a fund for educational purposes of this sort.

STATE BOYS JUDGE WELI AT CHICAGO.

Carrying the banner of Michigan in connection with the best junior judging teams from 13 other leading states of the country, three Michigan boys placed second in the stock judging competition at the recent International Livestock Exposition at Chicago. Card-Johnson of Ironwood; Walter Ball of Charlotte, and Rex Stow of Wildwood—winners of high individual honors in the Boys' and Girls' club judging events at the State Fair last fall, made up the winning Michigan team. Carl Johnson stood fourth in the individual work, while Walter Ball ranked ninth from among all of the judges entered.

First honors went to the state of Georgia, the southerners leading Michigan's entries by only a very narrow margin. Iowa was third, Indiana fourth, and Illinois fifth in team ranking.

The class in which the boys competed was known as the "Non-Collegiate" judging event and was open to boys below the college class. Michigan's team represented the Boys' and Girls' clubs of the state, the boys receiving their training under the club leaders of the Extension Staff at the Michigan Agricultural College. W. A. Anderson, as state leader of stock clubs, accompanied the boys to Chicago.

BLouses of Georgette

Among the new blouses are some that have a short décolleté and many that are embroidered with such colored silk as red. Blue is one that combines both these features in the fall styles, and you will notice that sleeves are three-quarter length and that it has a bit of ribbon that ties with bows and ends at the left side. It is made of dark georgette.

He was wounded several times, and to this day carries two bullets in his body.—Plymouth Mail.

FORD'S RALLY TO SUPPLY FUEL

Definite plans for general improvement of the Detroit Toledo & Ironton railroad, acquired by the Henry Ford interests some time ago, were announced Sunday. One of the first steps will be to make the railroad capable of giving Detroit an adequate supply at all times, it was announced.

With proper equipment and improvements the D. T. & I. railroad can be made one of the most valuable lines entering Detroit from the standpoint of quick freight shipments, both in and out of the city. The line crosses all of the great east and west systems running from the east to Chicago, affording splendid connections for all points.

Teaching Future Mothers

The above is an illustration of one phase of the peace time program now being carried on by the Red Cross. It shows a Red Cross nurse in a rural district teaching a class of girls—America's future mothers—how to keep babies healthy.

MICHIGAN WAGES RED CROSS AIDS HEALTH DRIVES RURAL DISTRICTS

Red Cross Nursing Service Is Centering Its Forces for Campaigns.

The Red Cross public health nurse and the Red Cross health centers throughout the state of Michigan, working for city and country people, are throwing increasing light upon the subject of health. Army examinations during the war revealed a bad state of physical deficiency of the people in the state. Industrial, urban and rural districts and it is with a view to giving ample direct information to the public health that the Red Cross has intensified its nursing and health center activities.

It is a fact that the average American of town spends three or four dollars per day for fire and police protection, but only twenty-nine cents per month for the safeguarding of health.

In the face of such figures one no longer need be surprised to learn that the public health campaign was so successful. Individual efforts at promotion, such as the wearing of gauze masks, can help, but little when a community is slow to take up its responsibility to provide complete protection. The nursing service of the state is trying to remedy this situation by emphasizing the importance of plastering up windows to exclude insects.

The Red Cross is not alone in its efforts to improve health in the state, however, but it is making progress in its right direction and it is fitting that we consider that the first Chinese tailor, Yann-fred, in his world tour that nothing we can do to help the Red Cross do prevent another epidemic like winter would be far more effective than any other gift.

MICHIGAN JUNIORS ACTIVE THIS YEAR

The Junior Red Cross committees in Michigan this year is the school year advances with programs of direct benefit to communities and with humanity in their undertakings, notably in the smaller communities.

In connection with the domestic difficulties, times in manual training schools and also in schools not equipped with manual training are making tools for the play-starved youngsters in the war-wrecked area of the old world. All the schools in which the jumbers are organized are in full swing carrying out their generous work.

Michigan now has 1,300 Junior Red Cross committees and school auxiliaries. This is a decided gain over last year and it is being planned to organize in many of those counties which do not have chapters.

Health Campaign in China. A picturesque health campaign has been carried on in Shanghai, China, during the summer by a group of boys aided by the American Junior Red Cross, through the Insular and Foreign Division and the Y. M. C. A. The fight has been conducted chiefly against disease carriers. Open air classes are formed in the municipal markets, school yards and playgrounds. Each child brings his own stool and they sit in a circle around the teacher. The children are given a small bit of paper upon which to draw a simple picture or write a health slogan. They are taught songs in which the main idea of the lessons is embodied and finish by playing a health game. Usually there is a group of 100 to 200 adults standing around listening to the lesson who get more out of it than if it was presented to them directly.

Good health and good sense are two of life's greatest blessings.—Publius Syrus.

1,800 Learn to Swim.

Eighteen hundred men, women and children learned to swim, during the recent "Learn to Swim" week, conducted at Fort Worth, Tex., by the Red Cross. People of every age were given instruction, the youngest a boy of five, the oldest a veteran of seventy. Many young business women took advantage of the course.

 THE UNIVERSAL CAR

The Ford Coupe

More and more this fine enclosed car for two—but if will carry three—is growing in popular demand. Strongly built, the body rests upon that marvelous Ford chassis. It brings to its owner every modern-day convenience; easy riding—while sliding plate glass windows make it breezy and cool in hot weather; dust-proof and water-proof when the windows are closed—it is cosy and comfortable in inclement and wintry weather. Then there is the durability of the car, coupled with the low economy of first cost and the saving of money in operating expense. Behind it, and every other Ford car, is that unsurpassed "Ford After-Service" which is given by the army of Ford dealers scattered all over the country, together with some 15,000 authorized garages, until the Ford owner is always within immediate touch of dependable, reliable service, where the genuine Ford parts, and the genuine Ford methods are applied in the care of this car.

DETROIT THEATRE.

The many thousands of admirers of Theda Bara, world-famous screen star and originator of the movie "Vamp," will turn their attention to the Shubert-Detroit next Sunday night for, on that date, Mrs. Bara, in person, will begin an engagement of one week in the spoken drama and prove to her followers in the neighborhood that she is an artist of the real stage as well as off the screen. Miss Bara's records for this plunge into the spoken drama in "The Blue Flame," written by George V. Hobart and John Willard, from a play of the same title by Letta Vance Nicholson. Mr. A. H. Woods, whose enterprise is responsible for Miss Bara's literary desertion of the screen for the spoken drama, is the producer and he has given his sensational young star a magnificent production.

"The Blue Flame" will reveal Miss Bara in a spunkier role—that of a beautiful young girl with the heart of a vampire. That Miss Bara holding the spoken drama the same high quality of art that marked her many successes in pictures has been admitted everywhere she has played.

"The Charge School," a comedy by Alice Duer Miller and Robert Miller with a wee bit of music by Jerome Kern, after a four months' run at the Ethel Theatre, New York City, will be presented at the Garrick Theatre for one week beginning next Sunday night with matinee, Wednesday and Saturday.

This offering is heralded as a charming and enchanting little play with a vein of sentiment running through dealing tenderly with young love in its various phases and presenting a charming group of young girls.

Mr. Miller, who presents the production, is said to have displayed excellent taste, both in the selection of his cast and in the staging of the piece. The story is familiar to Mr. Miller's readers, having appeared in the Saturday Evening Post. It relates the adventures of a handsome young automobile salesman who inherits a girl's school. Having what he believes to be definitely formed ideas of how the remaining young should be educated, he elects to become principal of the school and to take with him a quartette of his cronies as assistant professors. The new educator's idea of teaching the young women to emphasize their feminine charms plays havoc with the school, with results that are said to prove delightful entertainment. Freshness, novelty, wholesomeness and sane amusement are said to mark the comedy.

FIGHTING HOG CHOLERA.

The biggest problem that the Wayne County Farm Bureau has faced since its organization has been the fight on hog cholera during the past ten weeks. Owing to the failure of owners of sick hogs to make reports, the disease spread all over the down river section before it was known, so more than one hundred head died with a loss of several thousand dollars. Selling of sick hogs, as criminal offense under the state law, was directly responsible for the wide spread of hog cholera, which as usual traced to the feeding of garbage. Criminal prosecution may follow.

A meeting will be held on Friday evening, December 10, of the Trenton Milk Producers' association, which will be addressed by Dr. B. F. Killham, federal specialist in hog cholera, to instruct farmers in fighting this disease.

ONE WOMAN TOLD US

"Five minutes in the morning with my Electric Iron makes wash day so much lighter." This woman realized how often blouses, frocks and even lingerie found their way into the laundry bag ahead of time, just slightly mussed.

Even a hint of untidiness made dainty things unwearable and added to the weekly washing.

Now she uses an Electric Iron! With just a twitch of the switch and a few moments of gentle ironing, crumpled garments become smooth and lovely—altogether wearable!

THE BLUE MOON

A TALE OF THE FLATWOODS

DAVID ANDERSON

COPYRIGHT BY THE BOBBS-MERRILL COMPANY

CHAPTER IX—Continued.

Jumping lightly from rock to rock in the shallow water of the pool the brunt approached the cataract, the third leap landing him upon the flat top of a rock almost within the very wash of the falling water. Pausing an instant to pull his bat-tight and strip up the collar of his coat, he sprang straight into the thin-blade of the falls. His leap must have carried him completely through to the other side. It was the first the Pearl Hunter knew, or even suspected, that there was an open space beyond. So completely did the falling water hide everything back of it that probably the man who had just leaped and the man who watched him were the only two who knew there was anything back of it.

The Pearl Hunter stretched him flat under cover of a clump of spruce growing about an old white oak which had kept his eyes fixed on the waterfall.

Time goes slowly to one who watches and waits. It was probably not more than ten minutes, though it seemed far longer, when "not so much as a flicker of fear in warning, the patient hand forth upon the flat topped rock, the silent figure that sprang light to shore over the two intervening stones.

Pausing on the brink of the pool barely long enough to shake his coat by the lapels and to knock his hat against his hand, he immediately set out along the bluffs toward the village as unconcerned as if he had not just pulled on about the most sensational stunt ever seen by a Flatwoods man.

The Pearl Hunter stepped out of the cover and softly followed; trudged him up the bluffs through the corner of the woods and out to the river road where it angles north through the cut in the cliffs, "stressed at the face near where the path crossed it, till the receding steps were well on their way to the village."

CHAPTER X.

The Candle in the Cranny.
All the way back to Eallen Rock the Pearl Hunter pondered the scene he had gazed on through the chink in the cabin wall; the man's transfixed face, his thoughts with the picture—that above all—the picture. It puzzled him, angered him. That such a man should have her pleasure; his mother—with the darkly beautiful face and wonderful eyes—worn against his breast! It was another reason why he should hang him down.

The Pearl Hunter was as brave as the woods make them but it is no discredit to his manhood to say that his blood ran a little faster as he stepped down off the rock into the water and waded through the falls. Every inch of the way had to be felt out with his fingers before his feet could be trusted to follow.

The roar of the falls had dulled a little when suddenly a sound came out of the dark jag ahead—a sound like a garment rubbing against some rough surface. The Pearl Hunter stepped to one side of the passage and flattened himself against the wall. Out of the dead silence the sound came again. A grin loosened his face. The very sound he had half expected—a horse contentedly munching his hay.

The Pearl Hunter came out from against the wall and inched his way deeper into the blackness of the passage. It abruptly widened until he was no longer able to reach from one wall to the other with his outstretched arms. Though denied the use of his eyes, he knew that the passage had expanded just there and became a cave. He stood in the very entrance of it.

The next step there was no help for it—light! Desperate and dangerous—the first spark and the cave might spring to life. Still, it was better than to stumble over a sleeping man; or walk into a knife. With his revolver balanced his face to the open cave, he reached his left hand along the wall to the farthest stretch of his arm, bringing his body as far as possible from the light and with his fingers fumbled out a spot suitably smooth and dry—for there must be no failure. The match scraped. A tiny flame leaped away from the rock. It lit up the place surprisingly.

The cave was not large—hardly twice the size of an ordinary room. The first swift glance showed him that—except for the horse—it was empty. The stub of a candle caught his eye, stuck by its own yellow to an out-standing stool of shale just beyond the mouth of the passage. He crossed the passage and held the match to the candle. In the better light he studied the place more closely.

The cave could not have been far below the ground. A few oak root had of the ledge and lay listening. It was too risky to look. His ears made out three of them—three tongues, all going at top speed, a sure sign that eyes and ears were not as busy as they might have been. Opposite the cliff where the fugitive lay the steps stopped.

"What's that hole up there?"

It was a gruff and heavy voice that asked, still with the flare of temper that had not yet cooled.

"Wolf den, more'n likely," answered one of the others.

"We was up th' bluff cross-there furinist the hole we could see in," suggested a voice.

The other voices grunted; and the Pearl Hunter heard them hopping back across the stream, heard them clawing their way through the tangled underbrush up the opposite bank. The scarf in which he lay slipped slightly toward the rear. He rolled back as far as possible so as to have the protection afforded by the slightly higher edge; stretched himself on his right side; and waited for them to come into view.

Fortunately the sun hit their side of the gorge and the Pearl Hunter could see them well while, from on the shady side, and back in the darkness of the seat, they could not see him at all. The three of them drew together in consultation. The Pearl Hunter could not make out their words, but the manner in which they had managed to draw up with them indicated only too plainly the general drift of what was being said.

"It's a trial nod all-around, they faced the pocket, and one of them raised his rifle. The bullet struck the roof of the seat just in front of him, showering him with dust and bits of shale. The second fired. The bullet struck the rock just in front of him, showering him with dust and bits of shale.

"It's a close shot to the shore," he said, "I can't see the hatch covered.

It was the third one's turn. There came the hot spit of smoke, the crack of the report. But ever before he saw the one or heard the shot he felt something like a real sting hit his side just under the armpit.

It's side! A thousand flames had got at it. Something warm and sticky ran down under his tattered shirt and made it messy. The flames reached his face and twisted it. The air seemed to force the pocket. He crawled to the front of the seat.

He couldn't take his eyes away from the water clanging along at the foot of the cliff. The flames had scorched him dry. If he could only have one cup of water to moisten his lips so that the breath could get through. He crawled a little nearer the opening, held his fire, out over the ledge.

The ledge seemed to be rocking up and down, the trees were dipping and going around in a queer whirl that made him dizzy. He had never known trees to act like that. The tops of the gorge were bending together. The gorge came together slowly—shut out the far-sight out the sky.

CHAPTER XI.

Only the Hunted Know.

For a long time the Pearl Hunter lay wondering why the gorge didn't fall in. While he lay and wondered, another strange thing happened—the very strongest of all.

The top of the gorge began to open—opened and set in two little patches of sky. He kept his eyes on them—two little spots of blue set between clouds of pink and gold. The gorge top grew wider. He came back to the two patches of sky, stilled oddly—they had transfigured; had become the eyes of the Wild Rose.

The shooting had brought her. Her arm was under his head, and she was saying something. A tang of crimson deepened the pink in her cheeks when his eyes came open. What if he had heard? But she met his eyes with full directness. She lay looking up at her long time; trying to comprehend it all; the wonder of it—all that she was there!

She helped him edge a little nearer the brink of the ledge, raised him, and he drank out of her cupped palm. Whether it was the cup he drank from or the thirst that parched him, he took no thought, but it was the sweetest drink that ever passed his lips. She eased him back upon the ledge, her arm still under his head, a strand of her hair fell upon his face. She tried to shake it off. He put up his hand and covered it.

"Anything to get ready for tonight," he panted under the bite of the powerful anesthetic.

"Tonight?" she repeated blankly.

"Why you can't think."

"I must think. Big things depend on tonight." She said a strange wisher in his eyes. "He'll think I've left the Flatwoods," he muttered on, more to himself than to her. "It's what he's been waiting for. His game!"

"To-night—and—I."

The girl saw the fingers of his right hand clench against his palm—deathless quite unconscious—while the knotted ridges of his great forearm bunched and swelled, but the full meaning of the murthered words happily passed her.

LIVED LONG ON FRUGAL DIET

Englishman Who Died in 1680 Proved

That It Was Possible to Eat

Out Existence Cheaply.

Thomas F. Curby, the champion caterer of Massachusetts, declared that dyspepsia is the result of eating too little, and not too much. His Sunday dinner consisted of thirteen lobsters, six eggs, and one hundred oysters. At the other end of the scale must be placed old Roger Crab, the first vegetarian, who died September 31, 1680, after proving that a man could live on 75 cents a year. Originally a haberdasher in a big way of business at Chesham, England, he lived liver and drinker of strong ale, he "got religion"—also dyspepsia—in middle life, sold his stock, gave the proceeds to the poor, and took to living in a hut on three-farthings a week. Instead of "strong drinks and wines," he says in his autobiography, "I give the old man—he lived two centuries too soon to call it 'Little Mary'"—a cup of water; and instead of roast mutton, rabbit with bread, and pudding made with bran and turnip-leaves chopped together. And on this diet he lived to a ripe old age, surviving repeated attacks of dyspepsia and imprisonment for witchcraft.

She was gone barely more than the minute asked for. When she returned she was carrying in her hands a number of strips bandages of white cloth which she had torn from her self.

She was gone barely more than the minute asked for. When she returned she was carrying in her hands a number of strips bandages of white cloth which she had torn from her self.

True Americans love all three colors: Red, White and Blue.

He drew his face back from the brink

The bullet had cut a deep ragged gash just below the armpit. It had grazed a rib, but seemingly had not broken it. With that encouraging fact established, and the sting of the wound much allayed, the end of the man began reaching forward to the right; the all-important right when a certain suave individual in a frock coat would come to feed a certain horse. He said no word of this to the girl already binding the bandages around the clean-washed wound. She would have scouted the bare suggestion of the things he was planning to do in the dark was sufficiently dense to hide her.

She drew what was left of his tattered shirt and blouse over the bandage at last, laid his wounded arm across his breast and hung it there by a strip of cloth passed up around his neck, and helped him to his feet.

"The other voices grunted; and the Pearl Hunter heard them hopping back across the stream, heard them clawing their way through the tangled underbrush up the opposite bank. The scarf in which he lay slipped slightly toward the rear. The Wild Rose seemed to have taken toll of every bit of sunshine that ever struck the Flatwoods. That was the distinguishing feature of her personality. That and her good, sound sense. Her face was beaming full of both right now—the sunshine and the sense. She was smiling up at him, he knew. He was staring away above her head—but he knew. The smile gradually drew his eyes down out of the tree. He could no more help it than she could help leaning upon her. She had a heartening, kind, laconic smile.

DISCOVERY CAME TOO LATE

Defective Forced to Admit He Was Slow in Perceiving Out Gross Case of Fraud

While they waited for the train two passengers got into conversation. Presently one disclosed the fact that he was defective, and the other was naturally greatly interested.

"I suppose you have an existing time?" he explained.

"Yes, I must say I have had my share of it," owned the student.

"Discovered a great many gullible friends, I suppose?" invited the other, hogging for strange signs to while away the time.

"I should say so," the defective replied. Between you and me, it's just complete case of friend I ever saw was a woman, young and pretty. I would have been ready to swear she was an angel! But she has a temper like a whirlwind, and is as cunning as a serpent."

"How did you discover her true character?"

"I married her."

Objection. "My wife will have trouble."

"Send her over here, then. We have plenty can lead her."

Why isn't the difference of opinion the greatest common divisor?

Much More.

"Old Mr. Grabit holds his own, does he?" "Yes, and as much of anybody else's as he can get."

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

Beware! Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting genuine Aspirin prescribed by physicians for twenty-one years, and proved safe by millions.

Take Aspirin Only as told in the Bayer package for Cold, Headache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Earache, Toothache, Lumbago, and for Pain. Handy Tablets of twelve Bayer Tablets of Aspirin cost few cents. Drugists also sell larger packages. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monacetylchloroester of Salicylic acid.

The Bitter Truth.

Joseph Herzshimer, who enjoys no even greater literary reputation in England than at home, dined recently with a friend at a New York restaurant.

The friend was confirming the prevalent American spirit of interest and said:

"In truth art money should never be an object."

At this point in the conversation Bill, later brought in by his exhorting Bill and Mr. Herzshimer, examining the document, signed and remarked,

"He is true, but in art money should be no object, but it should be no objection, either, in these times."

Youthful Discernment.

The teacher in one of the grades asked her young pupils to write essays on character sketches.

I went out little hand

"My I write about you, Miss Brown?"

"Certainly," said Miss Brown, smiling.

The essay when completed read as follows:

"She is my teacher. She has auburn hair and green eyes. She is thin, and she does not like you if you are not smart. She has nice manners, and pretty clothes and is soft of speech when not mad."

Cause and Effect.

"I saw Jim's wife hanging up lace curtains" and I saw Jim hanging up his watch."

TRACTOR ESSENTIALS

If a farm tractor is to be profitable, the farmer who owns and operates it must provide the following conditions for success.

1. Work of a nature adapted to the use of a tractor.

2. A sufficient number of days of work in a year to reduce the cost of overhead charges per day.

3. Proper lubrication at all times.

4. Skill on the part of the operator to detect trouble at all times.

5. Knowledge of how to inspect the tractor.

6. Ability to make the necessary adjustments.

7. Provision of the proper farm implements to go with the tractor.

WHEN TO SELL HIS POTATO CROP IS FARMER'S GREATEST PROBLEM

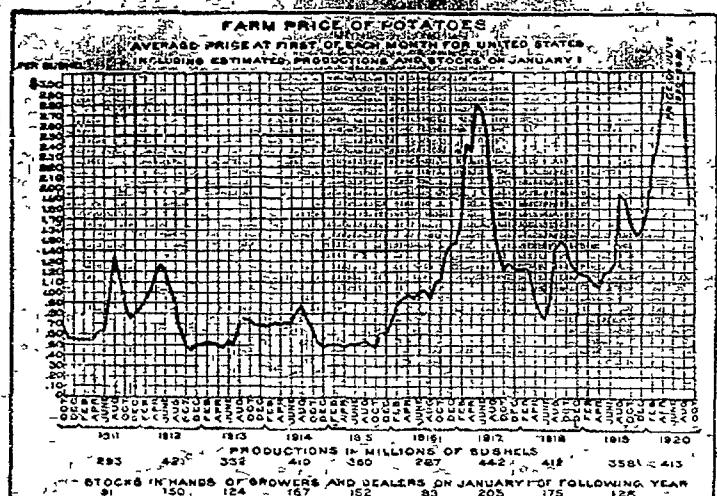

Diagram Showing Range of Farm Prices of Potatoes by Months for Ten Years.

Whether to dispose of his potato crop direct from the fields or to hold it for possible later increase in price is a problem which confronts the farmer every fall. On the one hand is the buyer offering figures based on the quantity and other conditions of the market, the tightness of money and a number of related conditions which may depress the prices. On the other he is confronted with the expense of storing, the shrinkage in volume, possibility of rot and the uncertainty of the number of bushels of potatoes which will be carried over by farmers throughout the United States to be thrown into the market during the winter.

This is one of the large potato crop years, and the way in which the question of time of marketing is settled by the individual farmer means an immense sum of money in the gross returns from one of the nation's leading crops. The wise grower will study every phase of conditions and will utilize the aids which are furnished by the crop and market reports of the United States Department of Agriculture.

It is a problem that has to be decided, because the crop is there. It is a problem that the farmer must decide for himself.

Lowest in October.

Prices naturally are lowest in October, when the crop is just out of the ground. A study recently made by the Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture, covering the last ten years, shows that the average price rises very slightly until the 1st of January, and then more rapidly until the 1st of March, another sharp advance taking place between April planting season and June.

These are only averages, however, and may be varied by many conditions which the farmer has to study largely for himself. The coming about future prices is always difficult at the present time.

A study of the general tendencies of the market, whether up or down, may be based on facts pertaining to the country in which a field is located. The supply may be less than usual in a certain country but if the late crop is low, the size of the total crop will have a tendency to lower prices even in the greater part of the country in which a field is located.

The purpose of this service is to provide well trained and neutral inspectors who will certify the quality and condition of various perishable products.

Market inspection of fruits and vegetables by representatives of the Bureau of Markets of the United States Department of Agriculture is now available in 25 important market centers, and in addition about 100 smaller markets tributary to these have been designated as inspection points.

The purpose of this service is to provide well trained and neutral inspectors who will certify the quality and condition of various perishables upon their arrival in the market. Such services are received in the federal courts of justice evidence of equality and condition at the time of arrival in the market.

The value of the service has been to bring about a settlement of claims against railroads and its basis of arbitration where dissatisfaction arises between shipper and receiver. It protects the shipper who is trading at long distance from unscrupulous dealers, and it also furnishes a protection to honest dealers against the possibility of being considered unscrupulous.

These inspections are made on request and there is a nominal charge of $1.00 for the service.

THE DETROIT NATIONAL POULTRY SHOW.

The Detroit National Poultry show is holding its big annual show in the Light Guard armory, Detroit. The show opened at 8:00 a. m. Tuesday and will close at 10:00 p. m. Saturday. From a display point of view the exposition is the greatest ever held in Michigan, early entries filling the entire available space and only selected specimens being admitted. The Detroit National Poultry show is an amalgamation of the poultry, pigeon, rabbit and cavy (guinea pig) interests and the membership is open to the world. Fanciers in all the above classes are taking a very active interest and the list of cubs and special prizes is the largest ever offered in the state.

GOLF KING SERVICE AND CAN-TATA.

Last Sunday night they, their from the Presbyterian church at Royal Oak accompanied by Pastor J. E. Webber, came to Northville and supplied a delightful evening's entertainment with a singing service and a cantata, in the Presbyterian church in the village. Supper was served the visitors in the church parlor and the service was rendered at the usual evening hour. The first part consisted of a song service and this was followed by a cantata, "The Harvest," which was exceptionally well rendered. The visit and the service proved a mutual interest. The Royal Oak people were glad they came and Northville people greatly enjoyed the service of song.

THE TRUTH ABOUT THE FORD
TOAN.

All during the week's output of news about the Ford Motor company and especially those relating to the loans, it was refreshing to run across a statement which can be accepted as absolutely reliable and without fear in the soundness of the company and its owners. In the first place the $175,000,000 loan was on Nov. 20, 1919, in the second place, the original lending syndicate did not include all the original or new shareholders, but was composed of the Old Colony Trust company, Boston, Bond & Goodman, a reputable bond house, and the Chase Securities corporation, New York, the latter being affiliated with the well known Chase National bank. The original loan was $50,000,000 date of July 16, 1919 and fell due October 16, 1919. On $16,000,000 was paid on principal and the balance renewed for three months. At the next maturity the loan was reduced to $12,500,000 and renewed for another three months, when it was reduced to $35,000,000, which was renewed for a like period and again reduced to $25,000,000, the figure at which the loan now stands. This is an enviable record of payment. A 60 per cent reduction in 16 months. Talk about Ford being "squeezed" and the loan being "called" fails pretty flat in view of the facts—Michigan Manufacturer.
