FRED P. SIMMONS WAS CHOSEN SUPERVISOR

At a meeting of the Northville township board, held on Monday evening, to choose a successor to the late W. J. Lanning, Fred P. Simmons was chosen to fill out the unexpired term of supervisor, the members of the board being unanimous in their decision. Owing to certain matters pertaining to the welfare of the township, it was necessary that some one be appointed supervisor immediately and in selecting Mr. Simmons, The Record believes the township board made a wise choice. Mr. Simmons is president pro tem of the village council, and now acting president, and he will give to his new duties the same painstaking service that has characterized his work as trustee. He is active and aggressive, and his wide acquaintance among the people of the township and county will serve him well in his new position.

MASON'S ELECT OFFICERS.

The annual election of Officers of Northville Lodge, F. & A. M., took place Monday evening. The past year has been one of unusual prosperity for the lodge; 55 members have been raised during the year. H. R. Bogart, the retiring worshipful master, was presented with a handsome past master's apron as an expression for his faithful services in behalf of the order. Chas. A. Doherty, who declined re-election as secretary, has served the lodge in that capacity for the past nine years, during which time 150 members have been added to the membership. He has made an efficient and painstaking officer and has filled the important office—one of the most important in the lodge—with credit to himself and with honor to the fraternity. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

W. M. C. Ray VanValkenburg
S. W. Elmer E. Perrin
J. W. C. Ralph Horton
Treas.—Barton A. Wheeler
Secy.—Frederick Hedge
S. D. Wm. G. Edwards
J. D. George Groth
Stewards—Paul Foss and E. M. Bogart
Marshall—Myron D. Taylor
Chaplain—H. J. B. Marsh.

TO HOLD COMMUNITY MEETINGS.

Members of the Farm Bureau residing in Nauklin and Dearborn townships will meet this Friday evening at 8:30 p.m. to form a local community organization to handle the buying and selling problems of the future.

A meeting of the Supter Farm Bureau was held Tuesday evening of this week, County Agent Gregg will look after the future requests of the members for merchandise, while Milton Carmichael, secretary of the county organization, talked about the importance of studying market problems, particularly in Sumpter township that are certain to feature vegetables and small fruits in the future with the construction of good roads through that section.

The Trenton Milk Local will meet at the West Road school December 30th, for the purpose of signing the new milk contracts; also to consider a cooperative branch of the County Farm Bureau.

The Northville Farm Bureau, which includes all members of the boys' and girls' pig club of that community, will meet at the home of Floyd Northrop on next Tuesday evening, December 21st.

John C. Near and August L. Brunte represented the Wayne County Farm Bureau at the sugar beet conference held at Lansing this week.

Every market gardener selling goods in Detroit will be invited to attend the January meeting of the Detroit Market Growers' association. The speaker of the evening will be Mr. Hale Ternant, head of the Marketing department of the State Farm Bureau.

ERECTED A MODERN HOG HOUSE.

A new and modern hog house has recently been completed at the farm of Brennan, Fitzgerald and Sink and the new structure is a model. It is 20x30 feet in size and is equipped with cement floors, sanitary drinking troughs, tile roof and is flooded with light by numerous windows. There is running water and electric lights in the building and everything about the place suggests cleanliness.

Chris Neilson is manager of the farm and he invites all his former friends to visit the premises and to inspect the new building. The new building is said to be the most modern and best equipped "hog home" in the state.

WILLIAM J. LANNING RESTS IN RURAL HILL

The funeral of Supervisor William J. Lanning, which was held Sunday afternoon, from his late home on North Center street, attracted a great concourse of people. Friends and acquaintances from near and far came to pay their last tribute of respect to one whom they were pleased to call their friend and neighbor. The weather conditions were ideal for such a gathering and at two o'clock the yard about the little home was filled and the audience overflowed into the street and to adjoining yards. Rev. H. J. B. Marsh had charge of funeral service and Ray VanValkenburg sang two familiar hymns. The floral tributes were numerous and beautiful, suggestive of the esteem in which the deceased was held by the public generally and by the organizations of which he was a member. Many members of the Board of Supervisors from the surrounding townships were present, as were also many other prominent men from the city and from various sections of the country. The Masonic bodies of Detroit were represented by Past Grand Master Frank T. Lodge of the Grand Lodge, F. & A. M., Past Potentate Mark Gardner and Potentate Allen of Mason Shrine.

The funeral was in charge of Northville Lodge, F. & A. M., and Northville Commandery Knights Templar, acted as escort to the funeral cortège. There were upwards of 135 Masons in line and they accompanied the remains to Rural Hill cemetery, where the impressive Masonic burial service was read by Worshipful Master H. R. Bogart. The bearers were members of the village council, Trustees F. P. Simmons, F. E. Hills, E. E. Miller, Stewart Montgomery, F. E. Vanatta, and H. R. Bogart. The funeral arrangements were in charge of M. C. Schrader and everything was admirably planned.

Mr. Lanning had the happy faculty of making friends readily and of rendering their confidence and esteem. He was warm-hearted, generous, a good neighbor and a true friend, and many were the words of regret expressed by his old acquaintances as they gathered to attend the funeral. He had his faults, as all have, and he was frank to acknowledge them, but he possessed a warm and kindly heart, and he was never too busy or so much concerned in his own affairs that he could not find time to render willing service to his friends and to those who were in sorrow or distress in his capacity as supervisor he never turned a deaf ear to those who by misfortune or sickness were in need, and he frequently added from his own purse to the sum he was permitted to grant those who came to him for assistance. As supervisor, as township treasurer, and as village president, he rendered faithful and painstaking service to the people of this community, and it will not be an easy task to find some one who can fill his place. His remains were laid to rest on one of the beautiful hillside in Rural Hill cemetery, a sacred spot to which he had given much time and energy to beautify. Judged by the standard "he liveth most who serveth best," Mr. Lanning had lived a long and useful life, and he leaves many old friends who will recall his genial company and his warm-hearted hospitality as long as memory lasts.

William J. Lanning was born in this township May 15th, 1882, his parents, William and Lydia Lanning, being among the early pioneers of this section, and to whom three sons were born. Mr. Lanning grew to young manhood in this community and on September 20, 1878, he was united in marriage to Sarah M. Durt, the beloved wife who survives him, and who feels deeply her great loss. To this union was born two sons, William J., who died four years ago, and Robert L., who is a resident of this village. Mr. Lanning leaves one brother, Robert Lanning.

W. R. C. NOTES.

The next regular meeting of Allen M. Harton W. R. C. will be held on December 22nd, at the usual time and place.

The result of the annual election will be announced later, in conjunction with the officers elect of G. A. R. Post.

Mrs. Orson Polley, who has been dangerously ill for the past few weeks at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Dixon, is slowly recovering.

So Many Women Now in Business That They Should Share in Government.

By VISCOUNTESS RHONDDA, British Business Woman.

It is more than ever necessary nowadays when so many women are breadwinners and wage earners in all professions and in business, when so many are actual leaders in the professions and business, with hundreds of men and women in their employ, that they should have a share in running the country.

Women should be represented on every public and governing body. Their right to sit in the house of commons has been conceded, but parliament is not only made up of the house of commons; it consists also of the house of lords, which has an important voice in the affairs of the empire. Peeresses in their own right are hereditary members of the house of lords, and as such should be able to take their seats side by side with the peers in the upper house.

I do not see how my petition to King George to be allowed to take my seat in the house of lords can be refused. However, no action is expected to be taken upon my application for some time. The foremost constitutional authorities are at a complete loss to decide how King George should treat the petition, as never in the history of these islands has such a delicate problem before confronted the estates of the realm. In all likelihood it will eventually be referred to the committee of privileges.

There are twenty-five peeresses in their own right who could invade the second house, as at present constituted, should I succeed; but there is no concerted action among them to support me. Several of them are entirely unsympathetic to my claims; the remainder are closely watching every move in the fight.

I do not share the opinion of those who look upon the house of lords as a mere figurehead. To me it represents an integral part of our government.

Recent 5,800-Mile Circle-Tour of the National Parks Is Significant.

By STEPHEN T. MATHER, Director National Park Service.

The recent 5,800-mile circle tour of the national parks of the West by a large caravan, traveling on a predetermined schedule without regard to weather conditions, has a large significance. It has demonstrated that these wonderful regions belonging to the people may be visited by motorists from all parts of the country, particularly those carrying camping equipment and living out-of-doors, without fear of finding impassable stretches which would break up their trip as they journey from park to park.

I believe the opening of the National Park-to-Park highway will greatly stimulate automobile travel to the West next summer.

In addition to demonstrating that good roads connect the parks—Rocky Mountain, Yellowstone, Glacier, Mount Rainier, Crater Lake, Yosemite, General Grant, Sequoia, Grand Canyon and Mesa Verde—it has aroused western communities to the need of providing comfortable automobile camps for visitors, not only as a matter of hospitality, but as an investment, for such tourists necessarily spend much money in the towns they visit, and mean new population in that some of them decide to settle.

In certain states through which the highway runs most of the land belongs to the federal government. Such country is usually sparsely settled. In such cases, particularly where the road would be used mainly by motorists en route to the national parks from all parts of the United States, it would seem that the federal government would be under the obligation of repaying the cost of such sections of the inter-park system.

States must do their part in creating state parks to supplement the national park system. It ought to be made possible for a family to start in their little automobile from the Atlantic coast and spend every night in the open on ground set aside for the purpose.

Lack of Kindergarten Classes Is the Greatest Defect in Our Schools.

By BESSIE LOCKE, Secretary Nat'l Kindergarten Ass'n.

"We have just awakened to the fact that the education of the American child has fallen below the standard necessary for the protection of our future," says President-elect Harding.

When we consider that the public school kindergarten is just fifty years old, it seems strange that classes have been provided for only 500,000 children, while 4,000,000 others are being deprived of this educational advantage.

This is the greatest defect in our entire public school system, for the habits formed in the early years of childhood determine in great measure the type of the future citizen, whether he will be an asset or liability to the nation.

In a country which is spending more than $1,000,000,000 a year on its criminal classes, the early moral and ethical training of its children is a matter of supreme importance.

Weakness of Revolutionary Thinker Is Lack of Historical Sense.

By HAROLD LORD VARNEY, Former J. W. W. Propagandist.

The trouble with the revolutionary thinker is that he has no historic sense. In his impetuous, fanatic ardor to realize an ideal he does not attempt to understand the institutions of today. He does not glimpse the agony of the ages which have brought us up to our present system. He blinds his eyes to the awful gulf which lies waiting to swallow us if our delicate artificial system should crumble.

The system which we revolutionists have called capitalism is regnant today because it has shown itself practical, workable and human. It was not invented by any one. It was not blueprinted by theorists. It did not come to us, brain-blown, from the studies of economists.

Instead, it was a growth. What we call capitalism is an accumulation of social institutions which have slowly developed through the ages. Some of them have origins which antedate written history.

Quite Up to Date, Is Old Santa

Of Course He Will Use the Reindeer if There Is Snow Enough, but He Is Busy Practicing With an Airplane

Santa Claus:
"Do You Suppose I'd Better Try
Any of Them New-Fangled Stunts?
Or Had I Just Better Stick to Old
Dancer and Prancer?"

GODNESS sakes alive, what a time good old Santa Claus is having these days! Mrs. Santa Claus was busy packing up dolls, and wonderful teddy bears, and trains of brightly painted cars, and bags of candy, and skates and little carts and picture books, and all the hundred of other things that every youngster in the world is waiting for.

She paused in her work for a moment and looked over her glasses, "So you want to see him. Humm, humm. He does, like much to talk or be interviewed about this time, you know. What do you want to see him about?"

The Man From the Newspaper cleared his throat. "Oh," said he, "I just hurriedly had to ask him how he is going to get around, in case there is not enough snow on the roofs for his sleigh."

"Not behind the Times."

"Well, I see; that's just what he has been doing about himself for the past two weeks. But the thing is all settled. Everything straightened out. He is out there in the back yard now, practicing with his al-

"Airplane," cried the startled Man From the Newspaper.

"Yes, airplane. That's what I said. He is going to try out an airplane this year." Mr. Santa reached over and picked up a neatly bound, dark-haired, rosy-cheeked doll nearly five feet high. "I wonder what I shall do to get that in," she mused aloud.

"But he has always used reindeer, always," ventured the Man From the Newspaper, when he had recovered from the shock.

"Of course he has, silly," replied Mrs. Santa Claus. "But, my dear young man, do you suppose that just because we are up at the North Pole here we are behind the times? Not a bit of it."

"Now they do," replied the white-haired fur-coated old Saint. "You should have been around when I tried it first, though. THEN they NEVER would go right. It has taken me a whole week to get them to go where I want them to."

"You see, it was rather hard at first, and rather bad, too. I sent a sled to Willie Jefferson, and it went flop right down the chimney of the elder Miss Jones, now, well, * * * ha-ha-ha * * * what on earth would the elder Miss Jones do with a new, shiny steel-framed sled?"

"But, I got them to go right after a while. I shall use the parachutes in some cases, but mostly I believe that I shall go right down the chimney as usual, with the pack. It only takes a minute. And, if something SHOULD go wrong with the parachute, you won't * * * well, I'd rather not think what might happen."

"Doesn't look as if a storm was coming either," suggested the Man From the Newspaper, to get the conversation back to the reindeer and sleigh question.

"No Room Except on Top."

"No, it doesn't," admitted Santa Claus. "That's just what started me practicing. You've no idea what a terrible job it is for those poor reindeer to haul a heavy load of toys across a roof when there is no snow. It simply tires them to death. So, if the North Wind gets up to any pranks with me, I'll just use the plane."

"Is it much faster?" asked the Man From the Newspaper.

"Faster? I should say it is," said St. Nicholas. "It's a pretty big, old world, you know, even if some of these scientists do deny it. Maybe they wouldn't be quite so sure if they had to make a trip all over it every Christmas, as I do. I have to be in France and America and England all at the same time almost, you know. Only about five hours difference."

"Why do you ride on the top of the plane?" demanded the Man.

"No room inside, that's why. Just take a look at that plane, young man," said Santa Claus. "The Man walked over.

The plane was just jammed, cramped packed with boxes and bundles and packages. "It's only the first load, alright," explained St. Nicholas.

"I have to make 24 loads in all. Bells, surely. There they are, hung up over there on the wall of the house. My old sleigh bells, of course. One has to be economical, though, these days of high prices and everything."

"Look on the Children."

"I am simply going to tie the bells over the plane and let the wind ring them. Of course, you understand about the reindeer. If it really DOES snow

* * * they're trim as ever. There's

Prancer and Dancer there now, over by the fence eating moss."

"Won't it be a joke on the children, though? No one will dream, when they hear the drone of an airplane motor above the house, that it's me, will they? I can see them all waiting, tucked in their beds, listening for the sound of the reindeer on the roof. And there won't be any reindeer at all, if it doesn't snow. Ha, ha, a good joke."

"But tell me, what am I going to get for * * * ?" The Man From the Newspaper got no further. Santa Claus, and the house, and the airplane and the reindeer vanished like smoke."

"It doesn't pay to be too curious, after all!" Mr. Santa was right. By

James H. Powers, in the Boston Globe

WHO'S WHO?

By RUTH W. BAKER.

© 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

The lobby of the Hotel Rexford is a most inconvenient place for one's bride or an hour to dissolve into tears. At least, so thought Ned Burton. They had so far succeeded in appearing nonchalant, and many years married, but Esther had been seized with stage fright as the awful person of the hotel clerk met her shrinking gaze. "Oh, Ned!" she gasped. "Just a minute! Just a minute! They're all looking at us! Oh, I wish we hadn't. No, I don't. Oh, dear, what will happen to us if your father disowns you?" "Oh, I say, Esther, there's a good girl! Don't cry—not here, anyway. Father's a good old scout. He'll take me back into the office all right."

Their lingering footsteps had at last brought them before the desk, and now the polite clerk was observing them with a sort of detached inquiry. Esther tremulously nudged her husband.

"Oh—oh!—O, yes, the register," exclaimed Ned. "Now—Great Scott!" the pen fell from his nerveless fingers.

"My father?" "Where?" quavered Esther, looking nervously over her shoulder.

"Here, on the register. His name, I mean. Look here, Esther. It's a great chance for us, if he ever sees you well, it's all over but the cheering."

As the door of the elevator closed upon the eloping couple, an elderly gentleman strolled up to the desk. "Have you by any chance—" then his eyes fell upon the open register. "By George, they're here!" His eyes twinkled. " Didn't know the young cub had so much grit. I ran away with the girl I loved. He's pretty much like the old man, after all. Oh, by the way," to the clerk, "did you happen to notice Mrs. Burton?"

"Oh, yes, sir," the obliging clerk hastened to explain. "Not very tall, brown eyes, had a white feather in her hat and—"

"Yes, sir," interrupted Mr. Burton, "much obliged."

Smiling to himself, he turned from the desk, then stopped abruptly. What luck!

With a smile and a bow, he approached the elevator door with anxious eyes. "I recognized you, instantly, my dear, and I—"

"My dear, indeed!" interrupted the very indignant young lady. "Why, you old flirt, if you don't—"

"But, my dear young lady, I am your new father," said the embarrassed Mr. Burton. "I was looking for—"

"Well, you may find some one who is willing to be your daughter, but I should advise you not to insult Indians in a respectable hotel," said the outraged girl swept past him into the elevator, leaving the innocent in speechless with indignation and rage.

Meanwhile Esther, who had been left in the waiting room, had become tired of waiting for Ned to return with his father and a paternal blessing. "I'll just stroll through the lobby," she thought. "It may give me something besides myself to think about. Oh dear, if I could only see Ned's father and tell him, I am sure he would forgive us. Good gracious, there he is now!"

"Bad-headed, fidgety," whispered Esther, "I know that's Ned's father. I am going to speak to him." Yes, I am, defiantly, although no one seemed inclined to oppose her. "Be your pardon," she began tremulously. "But, is this Mr. Burton?"

"Yes, madame, my name is Merton," replied the old gentleman, testily, peering at her over the top of his gold-rimmed spectacles.

"Oh, sir, please forgive us. Truly, it was more my fault than Ned's."

"What—what?" blurted Mr. Merton.

"Oh, I am your daughter, you know. That is, your son—" Esther stopped, for the gentleman was looking at her askance. "Pretty good for a bachelor," he muttered to himself. "She must be crazy. I'd better not excite her." Slapping his knee jovially he exclaimed:

"Why, of course! How stupid of me! My daughter, yes, yes."

"Oh, good! Now let me find Ned. There he is now!"

In alarm Mr. Merton caught her arm. He must speak soothingly to her. "There, there. You must wait until he gets here," he wheedled.

"But he is here. Don't you see? Oh, Ned, Ned!" Esther was still trying to pull away, when Ned, talking angrily to Mr. Burton, drew near.

"I tell you, father, she is not a tyrant. What on earth are you talking about? She is as timid as a mouse!"

He was interrupted by Esther's cry. "There, she is, now. Good heavens, what is that fellow doing with her? Here, you ruffian!"

"Lucky you came along as you did. Keep a sharp eye on her," advised Mr. Merton confidentially. "She's too pretty a little lunatic to—"

"Lunatic!" cried Ned and Esther in unison.

"This isn't the girl I spoke to," roared Mr. Burton. "Who the dickens?"

"I guess you'll have to excuse me," stammered Mr. Merton, backing ponderously into a passageway and finally making a blind rush for the elevator. Peeping through the gratings of the slowly rising car, he saw the young man kiss the fair lunatic, saw the old man kiss them both, and then: "Confound these elevators for going so fast," he muttered, as he vigorously blew his nose.

HOME TOWN HELPS

FOR "THE CITY BEAUTIFUL"

Writer Has Some Things to Say Which Should Appeal to All Lovers of Their Town.

In an interesting article in the Ladies' Home Journal recently Jane Leslie Kift made the following pertinent remarks:

The number of hopelessly shabby little towns is appalling. Almost every town, be it large or small, has a woman's club, and the women of these organizations set the standards, and the rest of the community make a more or less successful effort to live up to them. So it is to the club women of America that I make the appeal that they exert every effort to further "The City Beautiful" movement.

The word "city" is used in its broadest sense and embraces all towns, irrespective of their acres or the number of their inhabitants. Each community has its own problems that must be worked out along individual lines and the thought has been kept in mind when the plan presented on this page was made. While it is definite yet is sufficiently elastic to admit of the necessary changes to make it adaptable to any community.

All clubs such as new century and civic clubs, have a garden committee. This committee should be given the work of managing the campaign for "The City Beautiful," and the remainder of the club should lend it their whole-hearted support. The size of the committee is not of paramount importance, but a committee of twelve makes a good working number. Too many members cause confusion, and too few means that some will be over-worked."

CURB-BILLBOARD NUISANCE

Boston Plans Draastic Restrictions That Shall Apply to All Forms of Outdoor Advertising.

Authority and instructions having been given to the division of highways of the state department of public works by the legislature, the division will give sensible legislation for the purpose of drafting rules to govern the appearance and location of billboards.

Restrictions are wanted and the following regulations are to be submitted at the hearing:

No outdoor advertising shall be permitted on my location within 600 feet of town or city parks, playgrounds, metropolitan parks, parkways, state reservations or public buildings.

No outdoor advertising sign shall exceed an area of ten square feet if within 500 feet of any public highway.

No outdoor advertising sign, wherever located, shall exceed an area of 100 square feet, and all such signs shall be rectangular in form.

No outdoor advertising shall be permitted upon any rock, tree or natural object of beauty.

All heads and backgrounds of outdoor advertising shall be of neutral colors, and the fields, backgrounds and letters thereon shall not be discordant with surroundings, and nothing shall be placed thereon except letters of the alphabet and numerals.

No outdoor advertising shall be allowed within the area between intersecting streets and within a radius of 350 feet from the point where the center lines of the streets intersect.

The structure and the materials of all outdoor advertising signs shall meet the approval of the department of public safety of the commonwealth of Massachusetts as regards all questions of fire hazards. Boston Transcript.

Garden Cities for England.

London is trying to work out its housing crisis by building little garden cities about 20 miles outside its limits. These experiments in wholesale home construction are being carried on by the enterprise of private capital backed up with the generous government subsidy that is being given to all home construction projects.

The profits of the promoting company will be limited to seven per cent of the investment, the proceeds over and above this amount going back into town improvements.

The ideal house so much talked of in England, that resulted from the Daily Mail competition, will be given a practical tryout in this new city. The name of the place when completed will be Welwyn Garden City.

War on Weeds.

Weeds like the poor, will always be with us, to be sure, but that should not necessarily mean that we have to tolerate them in wholesale quantities. The early fall is the time to get after them before they sow their seed for a more abundant crop next year. Much labor can be saved the coming season in flower and vegetable gardens, lawn and orchard by pulling up and burning these pests. They furnish a hiding place for injurious insects. They take the nourishment from the soil and make a yard look neglected. Thrift Magazine.

Amen!

We don't care how much he waves the flag; any man who knows his home town is a darn poor American. Every man is a darn poor American. Every man is a darn poor American.

"The memories dear that come to us at quiet hour,
The dreams we have that do not all come true;
The songs we love, a book in shaded bower,
These priceless gifts are all for me, for you."

SEASONABLE FOODS.

The following is a different way of serving ham, making a dish which is whole meat served in one dish.
Baked Ham With Vegetables. Take a slice of ham cut an inch thick; place in a casserole and around it place two Bermuda onions sliced, three tomatoes sliced on the sautee, one cupful of cooked tomato, one half cupful of water. Cover and bake in a moderate oven one hour.

Spiced Bread-Crumbs Pudding.

Take one cupful of flour and brown sugar, one fourth of a cupful of shortening, one-half cupful of flour, one-half teaspoonful of cinnamon, one-fourth teaspoonful of cloves, two tablespoonsfuls of molasses, one tea-spoonful of soda and three-fourths of a cupful of raisins. Soak the bread crumbs in the sour milk one-half hour. Cream the shortening and sugar together and add the molasses and flour sifted with the spices and soda. Add the raisins, then add to the bread crumbs and milk. Pour into a buttered baking dish and bake in a slow oven 45 minutes. Serve hot or cold. This recipe will serve eight.

Chestnut Salad. Shell one pound of chestnuts, boil until tender, and remove the skins, being careful not to break the nuts. While hot pour over the nuts one-fourth of a cupful of French dressing and set away to marinate for two hours. Add one tea-spoonful of pate de foie gras to one half cupful of mayonnaise. Mix with the chestnuts and serve on lettuce. Serve very cold.

Potato Dumplings. Grate potatoes and drain in a cheese cloth; squeeze out the liquid and let it settle. Drain off carefully and add the starch which has settled to the grated potato. Sow sou; make into balls the size of walnut; cook in boiling water 15 minutes. Serve with hot bacon fat or browned butter poured over them. These may be served with crisp rolls of bacon as a garnish for a luncheon dish.

GOOD THINGS FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

It is so easy to prepare some good conserve from a can or two of left over fruit such as peaches and pineapples, and mix the combination of flavors to make something very attractive to the palate. Of course make of the fresh fruit and be still better. Take three pounds of peaches and small pineapple or the equivalent in canned fruit, one orange, one pint of water. Cook together until well blended. Pare the peaches and cook until soft, if fresh are used. Mash or rub through the cranberry and pineapple, cut in bits, the orange, rind and pulp, discarding seeds, and cook until thickened slightly. Add three-quarters as much sugar as fruit and cook as thick as marmalade. If canned fruit is used the sugar can be lessened.

Hungarian Cauliflower. Cook a cauliflower whole in boiling salted water until tender. Lift out carefully, place in a deep dish, sprinkle with buttered crumbs and pour over a cupful of rich sour cream. Bake in a moderate oven until the crumbs are brown.

Cranberry Punch. Take one pint of cranberries, one and one-half quarts of water, one and one-half cupfuls of sugar, four oranges and two lemons. Cook the cranberries, water and sugar until the berries are soft, strain and cool. When cold add the strained orange and lemon juice and freeze until partly stiff.

Ham Pie. Take five large potatoes, sliced, one pound of ham, uncooked, two medium sized carrots. Place a layer of the sliced potatoes in the bottom of a baking dish, grate one carrot over the potatoes, cover with one-half of the ham, cut in serving-sized pieces; place another layer of the potatoes and grated carrot; cover with the ham. Pour boiling water to half fill the dish. Cover and bake until the potatoes are soft. It will take about one hour in a hot oven. The last fifteen minutes uncover and add more water if needed.

Cheese Cake. Take one cupful of sweet fat, two and one-half cupfuls of flour, two tea-spoonfuls of baking powder, four egg yolks, one-half cupful of sugar, and one-half cupful of rich American cheese, grated. Mix the flour and butter with the baking powder until like fine meal; add the grated cheese; beat the egg yolks into the cottage cheese and add the flour mixture to this, then fold in the whites of the eggs and the sugar. Bake in shallow pan in a moderate oven for muffin pans.

Stock Raising in WESTERN CANADA

is as profitable as grain growing. Successes as wonderful as those from growing wheat, oats, barley and flax have been made in raising Horses, cattle, Sheep and Hogs. Bright sunny climate, nutritious grasses, good water, enormous fodder crops—these spell success to the farmer and stock raiser. And remember, you can buy on easy terms.

Farm Land at $15 to $30 An Acre

land equal to that which through many years has yielded from 20 to 65 bushels of wheat to the acre—grazing land convenient to good grain, at proportionately low prices. These lands have good rural roads, electric and telephone lines, etc., close to live towns and good markets.

If you want to get back to the farm, or to farm on a larger scale than is possible under your present conditions, investigate what Western Canada has to offer you.

At That, It Must Be Admitted He Got Out of Tight Situation Rather Neatly.

Possibly Less "Flip" the Maidens of Today, but She Seemed to Get There.

Grandma disdained the first aids to beauty—powder, rouge, eyebrow pencil and eyelash lotion.

She acknowledged before the world that she had ears. She exposed them to view.

She attended church regularly. She knew nothing of theaters, movies and chewing gum.

She danced the minuet with men she knew. She would have been horrified with the primrose dance, the hula and the shimmy.

She wore high necks and long sleeves both trimmed with lace. She would have considered the sash and shoulder strap of today indecent.

Her skirt was very long and her toes pedged in and out like tiny mice, we are told. She would have been scandalized by the knee-high skirt, the sheer hose and the low shoes of the present mode.

She gave no thought of career, the vote or the great question of the day.

And yet—

She knew what to do when grandfather came along—Judge.

THE LADIES' DAUGHTERS WILL FILL CHRISTMAS BASKETS.

Following their usual custom the local chapter of The Ladies' Daughters will fill a number of Christmas baskets this year, which will be distributed about the community where their contents seem to be most needed. The basket will be distributed next Friday, the 24th and all who desire to contribute anything for this worthy cause, either in food or money, will kindly center with Mrs. George W. Hills or they may leave their contributions at this office. If food or fruit are contributed, kindly leave same at The Record office Friday afternoon, so the committee will know just what they have to distribute. From out of their abundance people are urged to contribute something that will bring cheer and gladness to some home on Christmas day.

DODGE BROTHERS' ORGANIZATION TO CONTINUE.

Ralph L. Richardson, local representative of Dodge Brothers received the following telegram Thursday morning:

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 14, 1926.

Ralph L. Richardson,

Northville, Mich.

"Knowing that each member of our organization will wish a word from us at this time and as an acknowledgment of the messages of sympathy and loyalty received from everyone we wish to say that the founders of the business built on such a rock-bed foundation of honesty, integrity and good will that not even the passing of our dear president, Horace E. Dodge will in the slightest degree effect the continuity or policies of the business. In faithful accord with his express wishes every policy and principle around which the business has grown, will continue to dominate it for all time, and under the express authority of the owners of the business we wish to say there will be no pause nor hesitation. The business will be continued as John and Horace Dodge had planned. The plant goes on."

DODGE BROTHERS'

Mr. and Mrs. Marshall have returned to America after a six months' visit with relatives in England, bringing back with them Mrs. Marshall's sister. They will remain with Mrs. Marshall's sister, Mrs. Albert Fillett, until after the holidays. They were glad to land after having a rough voyage, being seventeen days making the journey owing to bad weather conditions.

"And Santa, Be Sure and Don't Forget—"

Hang Up the Baby's Stocking

Hang up the baby's stocking,
Be sure you don't forget;
The dear little dimpled darling
Has never seen Christmas yet.
But I've told her all about it.
And she opened her big blue eyes,
And I'm sure she understood it—
She looked so sunny and wise.

Dear! what a tiny stocking!
It doesn't take much to hold—
Such little pink toes as baby's
Away from the frost and cold.
But, then, for the baby's Christmas
It will never do at all.
Why, Santa wouldn't be looking
For anything half so small.

I know what will do for the baby—
I've thought of the very best plan—
I'll borrow a stocking of grandma,
The longest that ever I can;
And you'll hang it by mice, dear mother,
Right here in the corner—so;
And write a letter to Santa,
And fasten it on the toe.

Write: "This is the baby's stocking
That hangs in the corner here.
You never have seen her, Santa,
For she only came last year.
But she's just the blessedest baby!
And, now, before you go,
Just cram her stocking with goodies
From the top clean down to the toe."

Unusual Family Record.

A man accomplished a friend at few days ago, saying casually that one of his sisters was buried a hundred years ago. As his own age was sixty-five, the case needed an explanation, which he gave. The sister buried in 1819 was the first of a family of 22 children, and she died in 1819. The man was the youngest member of the family and was born in 1819, 30 years after his sister. —London Chronicle.

D. 1921, at two o'clock p.m. of each of said days, for the purpose of examining and allowing said claims, and that four months from the 30th day of November A. D. 1920, were allowed by said court for creditors to present their claims to us for examination and allowance.

Dated, November 30, 1920.

EDWARD H. LAPHAM,

ERNEST E. MILLER,

Commissioners.

STATE OF MICHIGAN. County of Wayne, ss. At a session of the Probate Court for said county of Wayne, held at the Probate Court Room in the city of Detroit, on the twenty-fourth day of November in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty.

Present—Edward Command, Judge of Probate of the matter of the estate of HELEN WELSH, deceased.

An instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased having been delivered into this court for probate and Ida Batten having filed therewith her petition, praying that administration with the will annexed of said estate be granted her or some other suitable person.

It is ordered that the fifth day of January next at ten o'clock in the forenoon at said court room be appointed for proving said instrument and hearing said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published three successive weeks previous to said time of hearing, in the Northville Record a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Wayne.

(A true copy.)

EDWARD COMMAND,
Judge of Probate
EDMUND K. DOWNEY,
Register.

RING OUT, YE MERRY BELLS!

Ring out, ye merry bells! Welcome bright belles!
Welcome, old holly-crowned Christmas again!
With us as a child at play, keeping his holiday,
Welcome him back from the snow peak and plain.

Up with the holly bough, green from the winter's bough,
Lock up your ledgers and cares for a day;
Out to the forest go, gather the mistletoe;
Old and young, rich and poor, up and away!

Up with the holly boughs, ay, and the laurel now;
In with the yule log and brighten the hearth;
Quick! here he is again, come with his joyous train,
Laughter and music and friendship and mirth.

Up with the holly boughs high in each manor house;
Carol the antlers that hang in the hall;
With the neck of corn with a garwreath adorn,
Rich is the bloom on the cottage walls.

While Shepherds Watched Their Stocks by Night is by Nahum Tate, poet laureate, associated with the Tate and Brady version of the Psalms. He died dead in prison for debt.

The "popular" hymn "Christians Awake" (ring the Happy Morn) was written by John Byron, a Lancashire man who was esteemed a good schoolboy and poet in his day. He was born in Manchester in 1821.

The two eminent sweet singers of the church, John Keble and Reginald Heber, Bishop of Caen, have written Christmas hymns, but they lack those elements of popular song which constitute the Christmas carol. Keble sweetly sings:

Like circles widening round upon a clear blue river,
Orb after orb the wondrous sound is echoed on forever,
Glory to God on high on earth peace.

The lines of the gentle Heber have their lesson in these days of commercial unrest:

If gaily clothed and proudly fed,
In dangerous wealth we dwell;
Ren'd out of thy manager bed
And lower cottage cell.

CHRISTMAS BELLS

The great yule logs are blazing high, The bards with dolly green are dressed, And blithsome mirths and merry tails Are easily laid in all their best. And have we seen the forest maid That bears both fruit between sea and sea?

And for my love and for my faith, Think, as I shall bring a gift to me?

O, ring, O, jingle, gayly ring!

O, merrily, merrily, harp and sing!

Fill every heart with Christmas cheer,

For Christmas comes but once a year.

The yule log blaze with high,

On eakened nests, big bended walls,

To blithe upon the firewood wild,

As down she dances there, the ball

Is done my want, bare while,

And will who riseth to much as I?

I hastest past her underneath,

As the myrral breathes, hanging high

O, ring, O, jingle, gayly ring!

O, merrily, merrily, harp and sing!

O, all is art with Christmas cheer,

For Christmas comes but once a year.

Who hath no care or talk a gift?

As this my love hath brought to me?

For I was but a ruffian lad,

A dunkey, up-horn maid was she,

Her birth, full pure at Christmas snow,

And full her love and for her faith,

Fourth unto four and war I do no

O, ring, O, jingle, gayly ring!

O, merrily, merrily, harp and sing,

For Christmas love and Christmas cheer,

Shall blow our bell over the whole round year.

Improvement in Photography.
The business of making photographic enlargements has been greatly simplified by the construction of a vertical enlarging camera which is suspended overhead and projects its light down upon a sensitized sheet which is placed on a table underneath. The arrangement and manipulation of the paper is much more conveniently done in this position.

USE OF CHRISTMAS STOCKING

Good St. Nicholas, Saint of Fourth Century of Christian Era, Founder of Custom.

SCHRISTMAS stockings have come down to us from the good St. Nicholas, who was a saint of the fourth century of the Christian era and was born December 6, 342, in Lycia, Asia Minor. He was regarded especially as the patron saint of children, young girls and sailors. The Christmas stocking custom arose as follows:

"It seems that St. Nicholas, who was the archbishop of Myra, lived in the same town with an impoverished nobleman who because he had no portions to give his daughter, and understood no means with which to support her, was about to sell them into a life of sin. St. Nicholas, who was accustomed to dispense his purse to fine insights of charity, resolved to rescue the young woman. As he approached their house, wondering how he should approach the moon-shoe door and displayed an open window. In fact St. Nicholas threw a purse of gold in at the window which, falling at the feet of the father of the girl, enabled him to portion his oldest daughter. The second time St. Nicholas visited the house he also was able to throw a purse of gold through an open window, thus providing for the portion of the second daughter. On the third visit the father, watching for his benefactor, cast himself at the feet of the saint and cried:

"Oh, St. Nicholas, servant of God who seek to hide thyself?"

The saint made the father promise not to reveal his benefactions. From this habit of bestowing gifts in secret and under the cloak of night arose the practice of putting out shoes or stockings for the younger members of the family; so that the good saint would be able to fill them without being spied on. At one time it was the custom for young women pupils in convents on the eve of St. Nicholas to hang their new silk stockings on the door of the apartment of the abbess. They would also write notes calling the attention of the good St. Nicholas to their stockings. In the morning when the convent girls who had not gone home for the holidays arose they invariably found their stockings filled with sweetmeats.

In Making Same Articles for Friends
It Is Well To Be Sure of Appreciation.

WOMAN this is recently published magazines how she has a pillow Christ used for the benefit of her many friends. She collected the pieces of old and from them drew out the materials for making an quantity of dainty sofa pillows, all destined for different friends. The core of the materials was clearly that spent for silk cards, for embroidery silk and for filling for the completed pillows. Nearly all the pillows were made from combed pieces cut from contrasting materials on a chosen background and the rest was completed. The very some idea might also be carried into effect for the girl who loves to make dainty soaks. There never was a time when the prevailing styles of fated such a dainty array of colors and a box of assorted colors and kinds would be welcomed by any girl friend. There might be found in the piece bag all sorts of bits of silk and ribbon which could be fashioned into the daintiest of dressy stocks, as well as bits of lawn and percale which would do nicely for stocks for every girl to wear with cotton shirt waists. The gift of a box of stockings might be made valuable if the box itself was a thing of beauty, and this could be brought to pass by the girl who is expert with her needle. Giving the same sort of gift to a large number of people is perfectly proper if the gift is one which is calculated to please everybody. We have heard the story of a nice old lady who always made pin-cushions for all her nieces and mittens for all her nephews every year. It was said that her plan gave great pleasure to one person, the aunt. It's a good idea to save your gifts will be appreciated before you go into the wholesale manufacture of one style of article for many people.

REGRET TO REPORT.

To the Editor:

Northville Record:

Dear Sir: I was somewhat amused at the same time sorry, when I had my attention called to the recent report in The Northville Record of the results of the Union meetings held here by Mr. George N. Baker and his fellow-workers. This was given as copy from the Detroit Journal, so it is doubtful whether anyone in Northville is responsible for sending to the press such an extremely exaggerated report, but whoever wrote it certainly seems to have been either very much over-anxious to make it "sensational" or took very little pains to verify his statements.

I would not trouble you with this protest were it not that such reports only have a tendency to disgust thinking people who know different, and were it not also that such agitations were it not also that such exaggerations do the churches harm, by giving the impression that we wish to make the results appear greater than they cannot believe the splendid self-sacrificing men who worked with us have any feeling regarding it but regret.

A wonderful good work has been done and is being done in the new life that has come to our churches as well as in the numerous converts. Just how many decided for Christ is not known to any of us and perhaps never will be, as several of them have failed so far to unite with the churches. But for anyone to say there were three hundred conversions, including seventy High school students is an exaggeration so palpable that any person at all acquainted with the facts must pronounce it ridiculous. There was no doubt a deep interest at the time among the High school students, but very few of them have so far united with the churches. So far as accessions to the churches are concerned, the Methodist, Presbyterians and Baptists have so far received not more than thirty new members in all. There are a few others who will probably unite with us later.

We all feel much indebted to you Sir Editor, for the fine support The Record gave us during the meetings and trust you will favor us by printing this letter.

Yours sincerely,
H. GRINWOOD
Pastor Baptist Church.

DIRECTORIALS

The newest substantiated fact to go to the public is in Lew Fields' music "I Want a Poor Little Girl" which comes direct from Central Theatre after a run of an entire theatrical year in the top of the popular drama. The local engagement will open Sunday night Decem-ber 19th and continue for four weeks matinee on Saturday night.

Nothing offered in a drama has pro-vided the tone with more reflecting humor and spectacular effect than is presented in "Poor Little Girl." This is principally due to the fact that Lew Fields himself wrote the book and personally conducted the production. The veteran comedian selected scene "back stage" as a basis for his story with a group of the mere merry is drawn true to life with all the laughs that go with it.

Local theatregoers will soon have the opportunity to see the most remarkable dramatic production of the past twenty years when Wagnleitner and Kemper produce "The Bat," the Mary Roberts Rinehart Avery Hopwood mystery play that has for six months played to absolute capacity at the Morocco theatre in New York, at the Garrick theatre beginning next Sunday night.

In each little world of either business or art that is contained within this huge world that we call earth there is developed in the course of time a language that only the inhabitants of such a little world may understand. The doctor, the lawyer and the man of affairs all speak the common tongue of their mother country, but each man has a local vocabulary of slang and expression which refers only to his particular profession or business and which has no meaning to one who does not understand through intimate association the terminology of that little world.

Jackson county farmers are banding together to enforce prosecution of hunters who violate "No Trespassing" signs in search of rabbits.

Eskimos are scattered through Greenland, Canada, Alaska and Siberia to the number of about 32,000, all of whom seem to speak the same stock language using the same stem words and affixes. The chief characteristic of the language is that single words of complex structure are used to express ideas that in English would be conveyed by a whole sentence.

STATE FARM CONGRESS SET FOR*MID-WINTER.

Farmers' week at the Michigan Agricultural college, an annual event which has grown to be the greatest congress of agricultural people held in the state, will be held this year from January 31 to February 4, according to definite announcement made recently from the college.

More than a dozen of the largest agricultural associations in the state held their annual meeting at East Lansing during the week. The executive committee of the Oakland and County farm bureau at a special session held late Saturday afternoon at the close of the general meeting of State Farm Bureau; the Michigan Crop Improvement association, the Potato, men and women delegates appointed Producers association, and the State B. F. Beach, business manager, and Horticultural Society are among the long-list of organizations convening at the college during Farmers' week.

Speakers of international reputation are included in the list of headliners lined up for the general meeting. S. M. Clure, famous journalist and author, A. F. Lever, member of the Farm Loan Board and father of much of the country's most notable agricultural legislation; Gov. W. L. Harding, of Iowa; and President Burton of the University of Michigan, at which time they will name the L. M. are a few of the better known members of the executive board, men who are signed up already.

The Michigan State Crops exhibit treasurer, Pontiac Press.

which proved such a sensation at the recent International Hay and Grain show will feature the exhibits, which are planned to cover every phase of agriculture. Detailed information regarding Farmers' week may be had by writing to A. N. Berridge, Chairman Farmers' week committee, M. A. C., East Lansing.

FERRY FIELD MAY HAVE STADIUM.

Plans for the completion of "U-shaped football stadium at Ferry Field were approved at the monthly meeting of the board of control of athletics, at Ann Arbor Saturday night, and bids will be received late this month.

If bids are received within the $400,000 limit set by the board, work will be started in the spring and the stadium will be completed for the opening of the football season next fall. The stadium, as planned, will seat 44,400 and will be capable of being enlarged by the addition of a second story.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

Schrader Brothers of Plymouth have replaced their old ambulance with a more modern vehicle.

A new cement bridge is to take the place of the iron structure at the foot of the hill at the village limits on the Northville-Plymouth road. Work has already commenced on the same Plymouth Mall.

The hearing on the Salem-South Lyon drain known as the Underhill drain, will be held at the residence of Irving Johnson, in the township of Salem, on December 22nd, at ten o'clock.

The Detroit crime wave seems to be working its way out Grand River avenue. A Clarenceville man was recently held up and robbed of a sum of money while returning home from the city.

The Michigan public utilities commission Friday authorized the Detroit Edison company to issue $5,438,300 in convertible debenture bonds to care for obligations incurred in making expansions to provide for growing Detroit, and at the same time withheld its decision on application of the Detroit United Railway for authorization to issue $50,000 in refunding bonds bearing 4½% interest, at 6%.

WHEN CHRISTMAS WAS YOUNG

To Unders and Mysteries of the Yule tide, It is Necessary to Search Ancient History.

In the bustle of the rush and excitement of Christmas preparations certain questions will flash across the mind, and we find ourselves wondering why it is that we do the very same things at Christmas after Christmas. Why do we hang stockings, light Christmas trees, trim our homes, and have plum pudding? To understand the origin of these customs we must wander far back into the forgotten past ages before Julius Caesar set foot on British soil, or St. Augustine told the story of the Cross to the men of Kent. Hundreds of years ago—long before the year 1—the ancients, as we call the people of those times, all worshipped the sun, the great giver of light and life. In the month of March they built big fires to it, asking it to shine upon the seeds they had planted and warm them into life. In the autumn they held another festival, thanking the sun for the harvest, and again, in the winter time, they held the greatest festival of all to celebrate the coming of the springtime.

In ancient Egypt, in Assyria, in Greece, in Roman soil, and in the northlands these festivals were celebrated year after year, and always about the same time, the winter one being held about New Year's time.

Wherever the Roman eagle was found, this feast was called the Saturnalia and it was marked by universal license and good feeling.

All at once Christianity appeared upon the scene. As the policy of the early church was to reconcile heathen converts to the new faith by adopting some of the heathen customs and festivals, the new religion accepted and retained many, and the result as is easily seen, has been the strange medley of pagan and Christian rites which we use at Christmas time to-day.

After Britain was Christianized by the Romans, the Saxons and northern tribes came, bringing their old northern rites and as Christianity at last reached patches the Christians kept the old pagan rites merely changing their meaning.

For many years no two janis celebrated the same day as the birthday of Christ. They did not know the exact day, and we do not know it; but this date has now become the most important one in the world's history.

The Old Age of Santa Claus.
In Anna Farquhar's "Contestants" in the National Magazine, she says: "Santa Claus totters under his pack, wearing a long, old, face these days. Probably in his youth he had no idea of growing old or departing this life, therefore when his enthusiasm and joyousness began to wane unaccountably, he must have opined that the world was tottering—not his own generous throne of life. Nowadays he creeps down the chimney stealthily as if somehow ashamed of his mission, like a polar burglar, and his eight tiny reindeer make scurry chatter on the lawn; for many of their joy bells have been lost. When Santa lays a finger aside of his nose reflectively, in our time, he exclaims, without a bit of jolly shake below the waist, 'Degenerates! Degenerates!' His few words come to such a pass that people wish to pay me for my presents? Can be shamed? Children are so surprised with joy that they stop to ask how much they cost before accepting them. There is a title Willie West, who said to his mamma, when he first saw a dog, 'I really dog. Who is it got inside? Candy or money? Don't wear a dog, less it's got something in side.'

Games of Heathen Origin

MANY of our most familiar Christmas games have a heathen origin and some of their requirements once played a most important part in the heathen rites and mysteries. Every one knows how, when playing the popular Christmas game of "snap dragon," all other lights in the room are extinguished while we try to snatch raisins from blazing brandy, but probably few are aware that the ancient British Druids were accustomed to worship, in a temple otherwise dark, a flame of burning spirits into which they cast and out of which they plucked certain sacred objects, and that they thus performed some of the most awful solemnities of their religion.

The Christmas Season.

Though Christmas seems to gain rather than lose in popular favor as the years roll by, yet it is worthy of note that the Christmas season has been much curtailed from what it originally was. For several centuries it began with the eve of All Saints' day or "Hallow eve" October 31, and continued until Candlemas day, February 2. In England it is now computed only from Christmas eve to "Twelfth night" January 6, while in our own country it begins on Christmas eve and practically ends on Christmas night. Yet even now it really begins on December 16, marked in the church calendar, "O Sapientia," from the name of an anthem sung during Advent.

SCHOOLNOTES.

Ella Murdock received 100% in a recent chemistry examination. School will close Wednesday, December 22, for the Christmas vacation and will reopen Friday, January 2d.

Don't forget to hear Prof. Henderson at the High school, Monday, January 4th. It is rather early yet but this notice is just a reminder to make your plans accordingly.

The superintendent of schools and several members of the board of education of Bedford were here Monday inspecting the Northville High school. A new school is under construction at that place and the men were getting ideas.

Miss Barley is very busy with basketball. The girls are getting good training along this line after school nights. The boys' basketball team is in charge of Mr. Wina, who is also working faithfully for the coming contests.

The tuberculosis Christmas seal campaign which is being carried on by the students of the Northville High school is being very successfully conducted. The students are being well received by the people of Northville and will have no trouble in disposing of our entire quota.

The next program is in charge of Miss Francis Yerkes and Miss Marion Milford and will be given next Wednesday afternoon. The exercises will be held in the gymnasium after which the various grades will go to their respective rooms for a Christmas tree.

The girls of the High school will purchase presents for the boys. The cost of these presents is limited to from 15 to 25c.

The Hot Lunch Club is proving very attractive to the students who remain at the school during the dinner hour. From 36 to 45 students are served daily. The menu has thus far been provided—consisted of cream tomato soup with buttered crackers, hot chocolate, creamed carrots and creamed peas. One of these dishes is served each day. The most popular dish is soup or hot chocolate.

A very enjoyable and interesting talk was given last Thursday afternoon by Prof. Loft of the Michigan State Normal College to the members of the junior and senior High school and all sections. He developed his subject of "Advertising and Sales, man up" in a splendid manner, leaving an impression on the minds of all that "our every act and doings could count only for the things worth while, 'though strengthening' ourselves for the great 'Game of Life.'

Our Monday morning program of this week which was in charge of Miss McCullough was greatly appreciated.

In addition to assembly, singing, notes by Miss Loretta Lanning and a solo by Alice LaFevere, Kenneth Wilcox, Kenneth VanValkenburgh, Leslie Austin, M. Stanley and L. M. Mott, a very instructive lecture was delivered by C. C. Verdes, attorney of this village.

Mr. Verdes remarked that he was going to talk about a very dry subject but he hoped it would be of interest somewhat by the wet weather.

Though the weather had anything to do with it we are not so sure for his subject, "The Origin of Land Titles" proved to be a real live one and was received in such a way that everyone enjoyed it.

We are always greatly pleased to have a local speaker and that such service is appreciated by the boy without saying.

VOORHIES ANNOUNCES HIS DEPARTURE.

Paul W. Voorhies, prosecutor-elect, who will succeed Matthew H. Bishop January 1, Tuesday announced his staff of associates.

Six of Mr. Bishop's assistants, Robert T. Speed, Allen W. Kent, Eward Nicho's, Gerald W. Groat, Herman Greenberg and Edward Pokorny, are reappointed.

Robert M. Toms, now in private practice, will be chief assistant prosecutor. Other new members of Mr. Voorhies' staff will be Elton B. Nellis, former mayor of Wyandotte, now in private practice in Detroit; Edwin S. Bartlett, of Highland Park; John V. Brennan, professor at the Detroit College of Law; Ralph B. Clark, of Wyandotte; M. McKay Skillman, attorney for an insurance company, and Lester S. Noll and J. Richard Newman, now engaged in private practice.

Greenberg, who conducts examinations before Judge Pliny W. Marsh in recorder's court, will retire to private practice as soon as he can establish an office. Pokorny will serve without pay, as he does now, in the capacity of "friend of the court."

He is appointed by circuit judges to handle alimony and other questions arising from divorce action—Detroit Journal.

Impudent Petitions.

When we are invited to a banquet we take what is set before us; and were one to call upon his host to set aside upon the table or sweet things, he would be deemed absurd. Yet in a word we ask the gods for what they do not give and that although they have given us so many things—from

DECEMBER 5, ST. NICK'S DAY

Children of Holland and France Look for Santa Claus' Visit Early in the Month.

IN THE street order of things children should have hung up their stockings for Santa Claus on Dec. 5, and received in his gifts. For it was the feast of St. Nicholas, also known as Santa Claus. He does nothing whatever to do with Christmas, and his visit then is an Anglo-Saxon tradition, which came from America fifty years ago. As their patron saint, children were taught to look to Nicholas for care and protection. To show the reality of his love for boys and girls, parents related that on his eve he went up and down the earth rewarding the good with presents, as he had in his life secretly thrown purses of gold into the rooms of poor maidens through the window. Children were taught to hang up their stockings, which parents acting as the saint's deputies, filled with sweets, apples, nuts and toys. In England the custom was abolished with the worship of saints at the Reformation, and was re-established in the American guise of Father Christmas in the middle of last century.

But in Holland Santa Claus makes his visit on the night of Dec. 5 instead of stockings the Dutch children place their shoes with straw in them for the donkey on which Nicholas rides in front of the fireplace. In the morning good children find presents there, but the shoes of the naughty contain only a birch. The custom is the same in France. In southern Austria, a young man, regarded as St. Nicholas, an episcopal robes, visits each house and examines the children in their catechism. To those who answer well the saint's attendant angels give fruit and sweets, while devils are admired to terrorize the careless. On going to bed the children place baskets or dishes on the window sill for his future gifts. Carl Schenck Turners furnishes the transition between the origin of Nicholas and modern Santa Claus. Arrived in North America Santa Claus' arrayed is Father Christmas, he visits each home and awards the children as to their worth. For the load there is fruit, and for all a keepsake, as what presents he can. The Christ Child to bring at the door. Daily Chronicle

FOR THEIR CHRISTMAS PARTY

Appropriate Decorations Add to the Zest and Gaiety of the Yuletide Festivities.

SANTA CLAUS is to be seen at the Christmas party—supper—and of course he will be invited, maybe in an automobile, or dressed to be quite orthodox in a Santa suit. His eight reindeer, though it is snow, and therefore the horses should give a strain of gaiety, should be plentifully sprinkled with frost or the table center. Purchase a portrait of Santa Claus, and with a most effective dress, in a coat with sable hood and a fur-trimmed basket in the form of a bow or chariot will answer for his sleigh, and should be set up with presents of all kinds, of which end befitting with a red ribbon to the sleigh.

It is down the trade place, in the center of the room, the reindeer should be mounted on a small base which a woman must be placed or in a picture place, and a doll to be a reindeer, dressed to the hilt by a master.

Appropriate presents to be placed under the children would consist of a supper filled with sweets for each boy and a doll dressed as a girl in white gown spotted with silver stars, holding a tiny wand, would tug at the heart of each little girl.

HIS SUGGESTION
"Well, I have to economize this Christmas, my dear."
"Yes, but how?"
"I've an idea. Let's give your relatives the same kind of cheap gifts we always give my folks."

TIT FOR TAT
The Poet: "May I read you my new Christmas poem?"
The Musician: "Yes, if you'll let me play you my new Christmas carolata."

Five-and-Blattet

RED BLOSSOMS ARE FAVERED

American and Liberty Roses, Carnations and Geraniolles Among Popular Christmas Flowers.

CHRISTMAS eve comes in cold and warm and Christmas morning follows its general prophecy, the city florists will be happy. That will mean that the thousands of boxes of Christmas flowers which must be delivered on Christmas forenoon can go out with only ordinary packing. But should there be freezing weather, every flower must be packed in cotton, which doubles the labor and the time necessary. Even with the mild Christmas, which is the florist's delight, the force in the big retail flower stores works all night the night before Christmas. From midnight until 7 o'clock in the morning all hands are busy packing the boxes which in a few hours are to convey Christmas remembrances. At 7 o'clock the delivery wagons start, and before noon all the fragile blooms have reached the far-flung hands for which they were purchased. Probably 20,000 such boxes are delivered every Christmas morning in New York. One dealer in a fashionable residence district has sent out between 300 and 400 every Christmas morning for many years.

The "mixed box" ranges from $10 to $50 in price. It is a very modest little box for the first price, just half a dozen roses, a dozen carnations, a bit of "Christmas green." In the $50 box there will be probably half a dozen American Beauties, half a dozen long-stemmed liberty roses, a rich, velvety, deep crimson ratiocinette, some violets, some "valer," some magnolias, to sweeten the whole box perhaps some sweet peas and hyacinths, a bit of heliotrope and always some holly and a red satin ribbon to tie the whole.

These expensive boxes are simply trifles, sent to the rich by those who are not sufficiently indebted or on sufficiently intimate terms to send more costly or substantial gifts. The very evanescence of the flowers makes them superlatively luxurious. Fifty dollars for flowers that fade in a day makes the attention more delicate than four or five times that amount put into some more durable trifle.

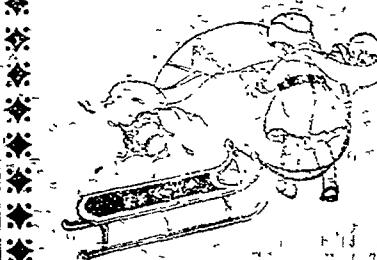

Red is pre-eminently the Christmas color, and red carnations and red roses are the favorite purchases. The red geraniolles also go in great numbers for Christmas decorations in homes of both high and low degree. These geraniolles are real flowers, though some people have a notion they are made of paper. The natural color is yellow, and they grow in the south of France, where great fields of them may be seen dried and dried for the market. It is a great industry there. In France use them largely to the exclusion of fresh flowers for all occasions. They are dried in all colors for the European market, and thousands upon thousands of boxes of the red ones are imported to New York every year for the Christmas trade. They cannot be successfully grown in America, owing to climate differences. A few have been produced in Texas, but the blossoms are not "right."

Trees and Fires
It is doubtful whether any single agency has caused more fits than Christmas trees. These are covered with inflammable ornaments and kept until the branches are a dry as tinder. The practice of decorating a candle and lighting these in order to keep the tree is the main source of danger. There is something so pleasant and satisfactory about Christmas trees that no one feels like giving them up, or opposing their use, but they are a source of loss and danger. Something should be done to eliminate the danger, even though it should reduce the number of trees. Under regulations from the outside, interfere with the practice, it will be well for every person who indulges in the luxury to have a garden hose ready for immediate use in case the tree catches fire. Those who have no means for extinguishing a fire should not leave a tree. From the Kansas City Journal.

About the Mistletoe

COLES, in his "Art of Simplifying," observes, "If one hangs mistletoe about the neck the witches can have no power over him." Some lingering superstition remains, in the present day, and in many houses, a bunch of the mistletoe is suspended from the ceiling, under which the male part of the assembly have the privilege of taking the ladies and saluting them. At the same time they should wish them a happy new year and present them with one of the berries for good luck. In other places people try by lots by the cracking of the leaves and berries in the fire.

An Unsatisfactory Plan
"Why, Johnny," said the call, as the lad wept bitterly, "crying on Christmas morning?"
"Yah—yessir," sobbed Johnny. "We all agreed in our family this year to give each other only what we needed most."
"Well, that isn't such a bad idea. Is it? Nothing to cry about, anyhow, eh?"
"It's 'rur-rotten,'" sobbed Johnny.
"Dad gave me a hickin'."

When Run-Down

FOND DU LAC, WIS.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a very good medicine. When I was a girl going to school I got all run-down and weak due to hard studying. I was coming into womanhood and this medicine built me up in fine shape in just a short space of time. I also took it about seven years ago during expectancy and it helped me wonderfully. I had practically no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. The 'Prescription' has done wonders for me. I think it the only medicine for weak women."—Mrs. CARL GUELL, JR., 290 9th Street.

Good looks in woman do not depend upon age, but upon health. You never see a good-looking woman who is weak, run-down. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best women's tonic there is. It is 50 years old, and its age testifies to its goodness.

New Illuminator for Microscope.

Prof. Alexander Silverman has invented a new Illuminator for the microscope, whose special advantage is that it gives a very strong light upon the object examined, so that opaque and translucent bodies can be as readily studied as transparent ones. The top of the object or the side can be seen with all the variations of its surface. It is particularly valuable in testing samples of metal. Since it shows the presence of blow holes and pits and much detail not hitherto visible. It is likewise useful to textile experts since it shows the threads of a fabric from every angle and is also much appreciated by bacteriologists.

CHAPTER XI—Continued.

"Can you stand more campfire?" she asked.
"Till swim in it, if it will get me up." The girl laughed, moistened the cotton and laid it on the wound. He did not even wince. The sting of it had become to him a necessity, the grateful means to an end that must be accomplished. Without tonight there could be no tomorrow. She saturated more of the cotton, laid it on the gash and bandaged it there, drew the blouse back into place, smoothed the pillow under his head and went to the kitchen.

He heard the rattle of the stove, and knew that she was preparing him something to eat. It moved him, for he knew how pitiful little that kitchen held, and yet she was going to share it with him—the best of it—share it with a smile, and the grace of a princess. He swore to himself that there should be food in that kitchen tomorrow.

She was back in a surprisingly short time, bearing a tray of such food as she had been able to prepare hastily—some truth, crisp toast, a poached egg, and black coffee.

He was sound asleep. She tiptoed back to the kitchen, set the tray on the stove hearth where it would keep warm, re-entered the room, drew a chair up beside the sofa and kept the buzzing flies away from his face while he slept.

"Now" came—and passed. Several times she went to the kitchen to mend the fire and keep the tray warm; many a time she slipped from window to window, and listened at the doors for sound of the hunters that sometimes combed the woods. The shadows turned eastward and still, the man slept. The day had worn away to mid-afternoon when he tossed restlessly, and flung his right arm above his head. The movement seemed to provoke the hurt. He came awake—with the quick intimation of the woodsman knew he had slept long. He started to rise. She sprang up and laid her hand on his shoulder.

"But I wouldn't impress on you like this," he protested.

"Didn't you say a little bit ago that I was the doctor?"

That dry smile that always started in his eyes first, crawled out across his face.

"Then I command you to stay right where you are." She answered to the slow smile, and she hurried out to the kitchen and carried in the tray.

He sat down beside him on the couch, fixed his arm easily in the sling, and sipped the black coffee, and even buttered his toast. The Pearlhunter had never lived in such luxury. It was a dream-like sort of the stories, of the old and enlightened palaces his mother used to tell of years ago in the big winter evenings on the houseboat. He half feared that he might not really be afraid that, after all, it might turn out to be some trick, like it is of the Duke that closed.

She rose, pushed him to the table and helped him back upon the couch.

"Try to sleep," she said, while smoothing the pillow under his head.

The Man Both Dared Most to See.

"and gain every bit of strength you can, if you must go tonight."

Her manner seemed not to invite a reply—rather seemed to forbid one. He closed his eyes and settled himself into the luxurious novelty of the situation—the happy privilege of obeying such a nurse.

She moved the table back by the window, rearranged the work basket and vase of roses, and went to the kitchen with the tray. He opened his eyes the minute she was gone. It was farthest from his thoughts to spend another moment of that wonderful day in sleep. His great regret was that he had already spent so much of it.

that way. Whatever was to happen, it was no time to sleep.

The girl, busy with the dishes, heard the couch creak and pitied him in his restless pain.

"Wild Rose!"

She almost dropped the cup she was wiping. That call was not inspired by pain. No pain in the world could move it from him. She hurried back into the room. He had risen and was standing near a window, looking out at her face that made her half afraid of him, his eyes like a blade half drawn. He had heard a step. How he heard it—only the hunted know.

The girl sprang to his side, her eyes followed the motion of his hand, and her lips turned white. A man was coming up the path—the man both dreaded most to see.

Handsome, jazzy, debonair, smooth-faced except for the aggressive, mischievous slightly shot with gray, the notorious bandit swung along up the walk. The Pearlhunter stood crouched forward. His hand dropped to his hip, closed over the butt of the revolver, then slowly unclosed. He was taking his arm out of the sling when the girl caught him, shook him, dragged him back.

"You wouldn't shoot a man!"

His voice had lost its jaunty assurance.

"No," came the cold, crisp answer down the steady barrel, "but I'd shoot a snake."

There was no chance of misunderstanding her.

"Darn'd if I don't believe you would!"

"You know how to find out."

He knew. He slowly raised his hands. The expression in his eyes might have meant any number of things.

"He caught a glimpse of her—white as the face of the hills, and the blue in her eyes like bright steel touched with flame.

A quick glance at the tiny slit between the curtains behind which she knew the Pearlhunter was standing, a very positive and vigorous shake of her finger that said plainer than words to stay there, and she rose and walked with a firm step to the door. A narrow space opened it, and with her left hand held it so with her right shoulder propped against it in such a way that the right side and arm were concealed.

The girl was on the outside of the door drew back a step, and, with a sweeping bow, a sweeping, even for the Flatwoods, his hat came off and his handsomely turned eastward and still, the man slept.

The girl made no reply. Her face, framed in the narrow opening, changed not a limb.

Knelling so disconcertingly a man as to have his advances met with silence. Some of the lines and wrinkles that did duty for the smile left the bold face.

"It was so very lonesome in the village, with the men all hunting that desirably, that I thought I'd walk out and spend the afternoon with you, and talk over with you some very charming plans I have formed. You have what I believe to be a wonderful voice. While, a very great regret, you have never sung for me, yet, as I have passed back and forth through the woods in my business of looking up timber options, I have sometimes heard you sing. You undoubtedly have a great voice. Now, I am rich, with no one to spend my money on. What better could I do with it than give to the world a great singer? If you will go with me, you shall have the best training the world affords."

He put one foot up on the door-step, his face beaming—if such a face can beam. The Pearlhunter stiffened in his place behind the curtain. The girl never changed a hair's breadth in the narrow opening between the cheek of the door and the jamb. Her cold silence was apparently too much even for the bold man that faced her.

"Aren't you going to invite me in?"

"My father is away this afternoon. I can not invite you in."

It was the first word she had spoken—a word cold and hard enough; but the brazen intruder seemed to take encouragement from it.

"Then permit me to invite myself." He advanced a step, laid his hand to the door, pushed lightly. The narrow slit between cheek and jamb widened not a hair.

The passions of a Prussian noble were behind that face outside. They began to break through its thin veneer of politeness. He put his hat back on, but still kept his hand on the door.

"I might choose to come in."

The girl made no answer; neither did she suffer the door to yield. The last vestige of the smile left the man's face.

"I might demand to come in"—something close kin to a snarl slipped into his voice—"to search this cabin for that notorious desperado, the Red Mask, the murderer of Louie Solo-mon."

The Red Mask is not in this cabin."

The answer came slowly, and there was a peculiar emphasis upon the word "in," doubtless unconscious. To the listener behind the curtains, it was as if she had said: "Not in the cabin just in front of it."

The pressure on the door increased. The Pearlhunter saw the girl brace her body against it. The door began to give a tiny mite at first—an inch, two inches.

"Well, hardly anything." "And you weren't afraid?" "Not with you here."

The half-hesitating statement pleased the man—pleased him immensely.

"And you're not afraid now?"

"Only that they might find you. Why should I be?"

"Then—I must follow him."

He rose from the sofa. Hat off—he had—was tramped to rag in the dust and dirt of the village under the wide reaching limbs of the oak—but he began stitching together the strips and tatters of his blouse.

The girl sprang up and faced him.

"You! Why, you can hardly stand."

"We must find out whether he goes back to the village or down to Fallen Rock. Everything depends on knowing that."

"He made a step toward the door. She got before him.

"I'll go."

"You!"

"Why not? I know the woods, and they're safer for me than you just now."

She was at the door of the kitchen before he could stop her, her bairns the greater, perhaps, because she knew he would stop her. He reached her arm just as she raised the latch.

"No! It's my place!"

"It's your place to stay right here and gain strength for your big plan tonight. Why, it's only a little ten-minute fun—and I know every bush and tree."

"His plan! Everything depended on it—on his being able to carry it through." He could not move till the time came, and that would be when the dark comes. It would ruin everything to be seen so soon. And yet he must know which way the man went. Much depended on whether he fed his horse now or went on to the village and came back after night to feed him. The Pearlhunter hesitated, wavering between a very keen and unapplied chirivry and a very instant expedient.

"If he should catch you?"

She laughed merrily.

"Not even you could catch me in the woods."

She flung open the door. He stretched forth his arm.

"No, no! I can't!"

But she was gone.

"Nothing."

"Well, hardly anything."

"And you weren't afraid?"

"Not with you here."

The half-hesitating statement pleased the man—pleased him immensely.

The SANDMAN STORY

CLEVER MADAM HEN

IMADAM HEN had not been tempted to leave her nest that morning until she had been well with her.

Madam Hen knew she ought to sit on those eggs, for they were nearly ready to hatch; but for one little reason, she felt it would not matter; she would not be gone long.

But, Madam Hen knew not of the dangers that awaited her. For Mr. Fox had left his home that morning with the intention of bringing back for his dinner a nice plump hen and Madam Hen was very plump.

Mr. Fox was hiding right back of a clump of bushes near the moist place where the worms were, and hardly had Madam Hen begun to scratch when, pounce! Mr. Fox had her and into his bag he put her, head first.

But when Mr. Fox came to a stream he had to cross; he sat down to rest and then he heard something about chickens and listened.

Madam Hen had made her nest in Mr. Fox's house at the very back where the old boards had broken away and a hole in the fence made another door to his house, so no one but Mr. Fox knew her secret, and, fearing he must take good care of her, he looked in many times during the day to see that all was well.

Madam Hen knew if once she could get back on the nest, she was saved, and her plan worked out just as she had expected it would.

no one would find it and she knew her egg would spoil. If only she had time to hatch them, she would not feel so badly about going with Mr. Fox. "But I have neglected my duty," she told him. "I should not have left the nest this morning."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," he said. "If you will take me to the nest, I'll let you go. Of course I am to have my pick of two of the chickens when they are hatched."

Madam Hen waited a minute and then she said she would agree to do this if Mr. Fox would take her back to the place he found her, "for my nest is in your hay not far from there," she told him.

Mr. Fox should have known that another would give her own life to save her child, but at his insistence he took her to the place he found her, "for my nest is in your hay not far from there," she told him.

Mr. Fox should have known that when he found her he had Madam Hen out, but he took good care to hold her by one leg while he tied a string to her before he let her go.

"If you make a sound," he told her, "all cuttin' com' hell."

Madam Hen was not thinking of making any noise. She had another plan, and if it worked off would come

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

By C. N. Lurie

Common Errors in English and How to Avoid Them

"WHO," "WHOM," AND "WHICH."

THIS relative pronoun, "who," "whom," and "whose" should be used only in speaking or writing of persons, when reference is made to animals or inanimate objects, the proper usage requires the use of "which" and "of which." (But "whose" may be used instead of "of which" when the use of the latter expression makes the grammar or sentence awkward or harsh.)

Do not say, "Those which say so are mistaken." Say, "Those who say so are mistaken." Do not say, "He has some friends which I know." Say, "He has some friends whom I know."

It is curious to note that Dr. Samuel Johnson, the famous English writer of the eighteenth century, and compiler of the standard dictionary of his time, was guilty of this error. In his novel, "Rasselas," he said: "Frequently every fowl whom nature has taught to dip the wing in water." Instead of "whom" he should have written "which."

FELT TIRED AND WORN OUT ALL THE TIME

Was Extremely Nervous—Could Not Sleep at Night—Appeal Had Also Gone.

SHE TOOK HYPO-COD

"I was working so hard with very little rest I became all rundown, and felt tired and wornout all the time. My nerves were simply gone to pieces, and I didn't want to eat, and I couldn't sleep at night, so after hearing so much about Earle's Hypo-Cod I decided to try it."

"I only had to take a couple of bottles before I was feeling good again. That tired feeling left me and I felt better than I had in years, and it fixed my nerves good too, and eat—I couldn't get enough to eat and now I'm rested fine at night, so my husband being in about the same condition as I was, decided he would try it, and now we both think there is nothing like Hypo-Cod for a general tonic and nerve tonic. We can't say enough for it, for we would like everyone needing a genuine tonic and health builder, to try Hypo-Cod before anything else, for I know they will save time and money, for it certainly doesn't take this tonic long to do the work," declared Mrs. Minnie Smith, 55½ Second Ave., Detroit, Mich.

"It only takes a few days for a good tonic to drive out that tired feeling, to steady the nerves and increase the appetite and make one feel like doing a real day's work" as a rule. Thousands of people have taken Hypo-Cod and say that it is just wonderful the way it quickly does the work and puts you back on your feet feeling fine, it is not a secret patent medicine. The formula appears on each bottle and being made by the nationally known Earle Chemical Co. assures you of quality. Druggists, chemists and experts assure it is the most powerful reconstructive tonic of its kind made. Take home a bottle today, you will be delighted with its pleasant taste and how nicely it does the work.

HIGH HEELS.

QUEEN ELIZABETH's reign started the fashion of high heels for women's shoes. The pair of her shoes which is preserved to the present date must have made her three inches taller when she wore them. The heels were added to increase the height of the wearer so as to make her more stately and impressive.

THE UNITED GUN CLUB TO HOLD SHOOT.

The United Gun Club will hold a poultry shoot at Northville, Mich., on December 22nd, the occasion being the 300th anniversary of the landing of the Pilgrim Fathers at Plymouth, Mass., December 22, 1620.

If the 102 members of this band of refugees from religious oppression had not possessed the ability to defend themselves from their enemies, human or otherwise, who knows but that we might never have possessed the freedom that is now ours. Then, as now, the ability to shoot well was highly prized by all and there were few in those days who were not well acquainted with the use of fire-arms.

It is as important that we keep up this practice, at the present time, as it was then.

The old-time settlers held shooting contests that would put our present contests to shame. Why can't we revive some of the old-time spirit, the love of games of skill, instead of letting ourselves be carried away by the love of pursuit of pleasures that do not satisfy.

The United Gun Club offers a program for the 22nd that will give all a chance to win a prize, and only through their skill can they win. The twelve ten target events make it possible for anyone to win. The contestants will be limited to one first, one second, one third and, of course, one grand prize. You don't have to be a 90% shooter to score a winning.

The trap ground is located at the Deep Springs, rear of P. M. depot.

Program open alike to amateurs and professionals. Shooting starts at 10:30 a. m. Shells for sale on the grounds. Come as early as possible.

Don't forget, Wednesday, the 22nd, All poultry (thirteen turkeys, thirteen ducks, thirteen chickens) will be dressed and on exhibit at the shoot.

E. N. PASSAGE, Sec.

HAD PROFITABLE YEAR.

At the annual meeting of the Hamilton Tire & Rubber Company of Detroit, just held, a cash dividend of 6% was declared on all stock of record at the date of meeting.

Officials of the company state that business for the past year has exceeded all expectations in volume. The company produces the Hamilton "Stronghead" tire, and makes a specialty of tire supply for large stores and industrial concerns operating their own fleets of automobiles—Detroit Free Press.

A. J. Little, who is well known to many of our citizens, is president of this prosperous company.

Ever Met Anyone Like Her?

A man who lives in a West side boarding house describes his landlady.

"She is a kind of parallelogram, that is an oblong, angular figure, which cannot be described and which is equal to anything, and any two meals in her house are together less than a square meal."
