IT WAS INDEED A MERRY CHRISTMAS

The glad Christmas season was most fittingly observed in this community. There were many family gatherings and the day just preceding Sunday afforded many an opportunity to remain at the old home nest over the week-end. The weather was delightful, though cold, on Christmas day, and the roads were good both for autoing and for horse drawn vehicles, affording all an opportunity to get about with ease and comfort. Friday was a busy day in the village stores, all being eager to put on the finishing touches to their plans for Christmas.

Friday afternoon, The King's Daughters made their annual distribution of Christmas baskets and a finer or more extensive array of good things never graced the tables of any one than were presented by the people of this community. Every basket was heaped full of good, substantial food, and topped off with candles, nuts and oranges. In fact the big new baskets purchased for the occasion could not hold the contribution and bags and sacks were used to carry the Christmas cheer so generously distributed by the local chapter. The committee having the affair in charge desires through The Record to express their appreciation and sincere thanks to all who contributed in any way to this annual remembrance. The number of contributions was too large to mention them all individually, but for every contribution, large or small, the committee is truly grateful. These good feelings make it possible to bring good cheer to more than twenty homes in this section.

BAKER-PIERSON MARRIAGE.

A very pretty home wedding took place last week Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. Loreal Pierson in Farmington, when their daughter, Tessa M., became the bride of Mr. McDonald of Wixom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. D. Marsh at six o'clock and was attended by the relatives and intimate friends of the families. A reception was given in the evening.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Irene Thompson as bridesmaid.

Miss Ruth McLean as maid of honor.

The groom was attended by Mr.

Vaughn Smith of Wixom as best man.

The bridal chorus from Highlandwood was played by Miss Gertrude Brown of Dundee.

The bride looked lovely in a gown of ivory satin trimmed with crystal beads and pearls.

The bride's gown was of pink georgette and they carried bouquets of pink roses and white carnations.

The ceremony took place in the large music room before an altar of pink roses, white carnations, and valerian, with a background of green palms. The walls were covered with oak tapestry and here and there were covered holders displaying lighted candles. The bride's robe was decorated with a large cluster of bridal roses, with valerian flowers and a corn candle stick. The decorations were designed by Mr. Becker especially for the occasion and credit is given him on their being among the finest ever displayed in Northville.

Mr. McDonald and his bride left for a trip to New York and other eastern points and will be at home to friends after January 1st.

CELEBRATED THEIR GOLDEN WEDDING

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Woodworth of this village celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary on Tuesday of this week. The happy gathering took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. R. Woodworth and was planned as a surprise to the bride and groom. Old friends and relatives began gathering during the forenoon from Salem, Plymouth, South Lyon, Rushton, Detroit, Holly, Whitmore Lake, and Northville and by noon a company of fully thirty had assembled to assist this estimable old couple to make merry. At noon a bountiful dinner was served, the tables being generously laden with an abundance of good things. The afternoon was given over to visiting and in recalling happenings and incidents which took place since Mr. Woodworth and his bride joined hands and hearts in Salem township a half-century ago.

Since their happy wedding day they have lived continuously in this portion of the state, where they have happily acquired a large circle of friends who will rejoice that they have been spared to celebrate the anniversary of the event.

Mr. and Mrs. Woodworth received a number of beautiful gifts as an expression of friendship and good will and no one among the merry company seemed to enjoy the gathering more than they. That they may be spared to celebrate many other happy anniversaries is the sincere wish of all who enjoy their acquaintance.

MCDONALD-WHIPPLE

A pretty Christmas wedding occurred Wednesday evening, December 22nd at the home of Mrs. Charles Whipple when her daughter, Leonia Charlotte became the bride of Mr.

John McDonald of Wixom.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. H. J. D. Marsh at six o'clock and was attended by the relatives and intimate friends of the families. A reception was given in the evening. The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Irene Thompson as bridesmaid. Miss Ruth McLean as maid of honor. The groom was attended by Mr.

Baker played the wedding march and to its sweet strains the young people took their places before the assembled guests. Miss Mildred Prindiville was the bridesmaid and Mr.

Baker was attended by Lloyd Pierson.

A dainty wedding supper followed the ceremony and after a brief time spent in accepting congratulations Mr. and Mrs. Baker took their departure for a wedding trip through the east.

The bride held a responsible position with the National Bank of Commerce in Detroit for four years and the young ladies of the institution tendered her a most delightful lunch on at Hotel Cadillac a few days before her marriage. Mrs. Ralph Lewis of Farmington gave a shower in her honor, entertaining a number of her very lady friends in Farmington. The bride is one of Farmington's fairest daughters and Mr. Baker is to be congratulated upon his good fortune.

Mr. Baker has been engaged in the real estate business in Northville and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Baker of this village. By his own efforts he completed the course at Cleary's Business College of Ypsilanti and soon after receiving his sheepskin entered business for himself, and he has been very successful. He has accumulated quite a nice property and among the rest is a nice home on Walnut street, which is completely furnished and to which he will take his bride. He is straight-forward and honorable in his business dealings and enjoys the confidence and esteem of the people of this community.

The Record extends hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Baker.

and extends to the happy bride a cordial welcome to Northville.

COUNTY BUREAUS TO HOLD CONFERENCE.

A conference will be held at the Detroit Board of Commerce on Saturday, January 8th, of the executive boards of the Farm Bureaus of Monroe, Washtenaw, Oakland, Macomb and Wayne counties. Mr. Hale Tenant of the State Farm Bureau and Mrs. Louise Campbell of the M. A. C. will be in attendance. This conference is to discuss problems in which this group of counties have a mutual and direct interest. The local arrangements are being looked after by Milton Cernichael, secretary-treasurer of the Wayne County Farm Bureau.

A very prosperous New Year to all Farm Bureau members.

IMMENSE CHRISTMAS MAIL

The largest amount of mail ever handled through the local postoffice was received and dispatched this year, and Postmaster Timah and his corps of assistants were compelled to work at a great disadvantage because of lack of room. Packages were piled anywhere and everywhere about the office to make room, but the public was given good service in spite of the handicap. The rural carriers carried big loads nearly every day during the week and rendered a service for which they were very grateful.

We sincerely wish you a Happy New Year—a year full of pleasure, prosperity and happiness.

The passing of the old year marks another milestone in yours and our business growth. We thank our customers for their generous patronage, and may we continue on through the twelve short months of nineteen twenty-one. Again thanks

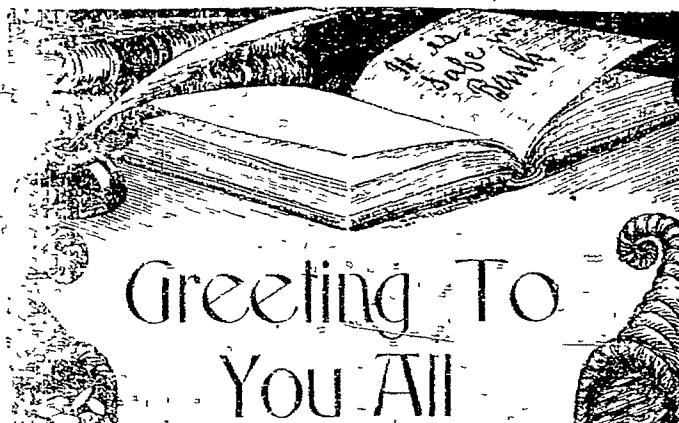

JAMES A. HUFF Hardware
Northville, Michigan.

SEWING FOR THE LITTLE ONES

SEWING that is more of a joy than a task occupies the time of the home seamstress in January and February, for she is engaged with the darning and ever amusing garments for her little ones. The signs of this year's models merit more than usual thanks for they have made most unusual and pretty dresses and rompers, as a guide for those who want to give their children the advantage of the best styles. Besides fashion goods, they have used them in colors pongee, dark taffetas and have combined contrasting colors.

Rompers are among those present in every diminutive wardrobe. Quite often they are as prettily as the little affairs shown above which seem equally well adapted to girls or boys up to the age of four. They are evenly cut in one piece of sturdy cotton goods, or coarse linen, have a plait in the center of the front and back and are flushed about the waist to allow the busts of their wearers

Things That Spell Distinction

CHISTMAS time brought out garnishments innumerable for the dress and for the robes of ladies fair—all these personal necessities that women are never too old or too young to enjoy and appreciate.

Beginning with neckwear, there were many collar and cuff sets, some of them in new styles, but made as they have been of fine nets, sheer fabrics and lace. Among the new things there were cuffs with "bib" collars to match, as shown in the illustration above, in which fine batiste, with tiny tufts, Venice lace and narrow Val lace edging, are combined in a beautiful set. This particular collar has a round neck. It was not more popular than straight collars with narrow vestes and cuffs to match, made of similar materials. Fine net pieces embroidered with flowers in the "lazy-daisy" stitch bordered with narrow, clumsy insertion and finished with an edging of the same lace were among the loveliest and easiest to make.

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

When a small portion of fowl has been left from a roast which has appeared both hot and cold, croquettes are suggested.

Rice and Chicken Croquettes. Remove all the choice bits of meat from the bones and cut them in small pieces.

Any quantity not exceeding a cupful may be used. For more chicken or turkey more rice will be needed. Cover the bones with cold water and heat slowly to the boiling point. After simmering, in, pour add one or two outside stalks of celery, an onion cut in slices, a small portion of carrots also sliced, and let cook half an hour longer. Drain off the liquid. Beat three-fourths of a cupful of rice in the boiling point in a quantity of cold water. After boiling two minutes drain, rinse in cold water and set to cook in three cups of broth. When the rice is tender cool one-fourth of a cupful of flour, half a teaspoonful each of salt and paprika in one-half cupful of butter. Add one cupful of the broth taken from the rice if it is not absorbed and stir until boiling, then stir in the chicken and the rice and any additional seasonings needed. Let stand until cooled a little, then shape in cylinders. Roll in soft bread-crumb broken egg diluted with milk, water and again in bread and fry in deep fat. Serve with a sauce made of the chicken broth and cream or tomato puree half and half.

Roquefort Salad Dressing. Cream two ounces of Roquefort cheese, using a wooden spoon. Gradually beat in four to sixtablespoonfuls of olive oil, two to three tablespoonfuls of vinegar and a semi-half-teaspoonful each of salt and paprika. Cream may be used to replace the oil, plus paprika.

Potato and Ham Croquettes. Peel one cupful of rawed ham, add two eggs, stir in the heat until the egg is just set, pour into hot oil and with match dipper. Roll in fine dry crumbs. In eggs half diluted with a little cold water, then re-cook again in oil, in deep fat.

The high collar and the deep waist robe are cut in one with the bodice. The short sleeves are set in at the very low shoulder-line. A band of lace is given to the blouse trim at the bottom and a band of ribbon which outlines the collar.

A row and a half line of pieces of a small width is given to the skirt in three rows. The skirt is made of a series of narrow panels placed one on top of the other, giving the appearance of a plaid cloth.

The high collar and long sleeves are featured in this model. Four motifs down the front of the bodice are red, white outlined with red lines and outlined through the center with a narrow streak of black.

Panel turned of straight batiste and taffeta are used on a blue and white dress. These motifs are the short sleeves and front, red are set in at the very low shoulder-line.

Prune Cornstarch Pudding. Wash and soak over night one-half pound of prunes. Boil these in the same water until soft, remove the stones and cut the prunes into quarters. Add one cupful of sugar, one and one-third cupfuls of boiling water, and a few drops of oil of lemon; simmer five minutes, then add one-third of a cupful of cornstarch mixed with one-fourth of a cup of cold water and boil twenty minutes; stir in one-half cupful of nutmegs. Serve cold with plain or whipped cream. This may be varied by using other flavoring.

Savory Potatoes. Arrange nine medium sized potatoes in a shallow baking dish, add one-fourth cupful of water, six tablespoonfuls of olive oil, two onions minced, one tablespoonful of powdered sage, one teaspoonful of salt, and a few dashes of pepper. Bake about an hour until the potatoes are soft and brown.

Cheese Balls. Beat the whites of three eggs dry. Mix together one and one-half cupfuls of grated cheese, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of each of salt and paprika and fold in the egg whites. Shape the mixture into balls the size of a hickory nut. Roll them in sifted cracked crumbs and fry in deep fat to a delicate amber shade.

The balls will be done almost as soon as they rise to the top of the fat. Drain on soft paper. Serve with stewed fruit, plain celery or a green vegetable salad. If a dry cheese is used less than the quantity given will be needed.

Panels Are in Great Variety

An infinite variety of changes is rung on the panel. There are long panels hanging below the bottom of the skirt, and those that are short. There are wide ones and others that are nothing more than narrow strips of ribbon. Some are plaited, others are plain. They may hang perfectly loose and straight, or be in a series of loops lying flat against the foundation dress. These, writes a fashion correspondent, are only a few of the simple things one may do with panels.

A fresh surprise in the way of applying them to dresses, is sprang almost every day. When designers set their minds on one particular phase of dress, and it becomes a favorite, with them, there is apparently no limit to which imagination may run. One firm has made a favorite of the panel skirt, although it does not hold entirely to this type, but, like other makers, is extremely versatile. It shows a number of draped skirts in both day and evening dresses, but the panel is paramount. It is introduced even into draped models. For instance, if the draper is across the front, the back is in the form of a straight hanging panel. Or the treatment may be reversed, and the draperies placed at the back and the front formed by two straight panels.

Skirts of Floating Panels. A panel may be a highly ornamental affair, supporting costly fur or embroideries, which are increasingly beautiful. This firm makes skirts entirely of floating panels, a popular way of evolving models from the softer materials, such as chiffons and laces.

Bole after bole of ribbon has been raised upon to serve as panels. A dress has been developed in black crepe de chine, with an elaborate trimming, on the skirt, consisting of little fan-shaped pieces of plaited crepe at even intervals across the front and of blue ribbon panels. These ribbon panels are spaced so as to fall between the rods of plaited triangles, evoking over each hip, where the ribbon is plaited in web effect.

The high collar and the deep waist robe are cut in one with the bodice. The short sleeves are set in at the very low shoulder-line. A band of lace is given to the blouse trim at the bottom and a band of ribbon which outlines the collar.

A row and a half line of pieces of a small width is given to the skirt in three rows. The skirt is made of a series of narrow panels placed one on top of the other, giving the appearance of a plaid cloth.

WITH ASSISTANCE

By RACHEL BAKER

"And so I think it best to terminate our engagement for the time being at least, if by and by, I find we have made a mistake, then we can become engaged again. Until then I see no reason for it. Kindly return my ring."

"Very truly yours,"

"FREDERICK NEWBALL."

Maeve sat staring at these lines until they blurred before her eyes.

"Termination of engagement? I thought that was a woman's privilege. How could he do it? What an embarrassing position to put me in! How can I explain?"

A knock startled her, and a voice confident of welcome called. "It's Betty. Please let me in." And in she came. She had just put her hair up a new way and waited Maeve's approval as she posed before her.

"It's marvelous, Betty! You'll be a sensation at the party tonight."

"You're really like it, then? I wasn't sure," said Betty, seizing the hand glass to look at the back of her hair. "I do wish," adjusting a hairpin, "that you would take more interest in yourself dear. You've slumped ever since your engagement."

"Not really," protested Maeve.

"Yes, really. Why, then you were the most chic of anyone in our set. Your dresses—do you remember that yellow one you wore to the military ball?"

"Frederick didn't like it, I remember."

"No, I can imagine that Frederick didn't. He doesn't like anything that draws attention away from himself. I hate him and I always did, even before you were engaged to him."

"I'm not engaged," said Maeve slowly.

"Not engaged? What's the trouble, dear?" and Betty's arms went swiftly about her friend.

"Why we just decided that we wouldn't be engaged any more," stammered the girl.

"What did you two decide?" questioned Betty sternly.

"I just this afternoon."

"But you haven't seen out of four rooms," objected Betty.

"I know but I've been thinking this over and I thought it best."

"You little wretch! You never thought it up at all. You ought that kind. You're too scared of hurting people's feelings. Frederick did it!"

Maeve read the letter to Betty. Betty gasped at following it up the road.

"I wonder why he insisted on having this. I just like him that he's after you. I told Miss Adams," said Betty, "I'll make him sorry for it, but by the last song, Maeve, I'm definitely going to leave him while I still have a chance."

"I'll see to that myself," said Betty. "Did you want to see me alone?"

"I just you guess what it is?" she began, her hand behind her back and suddenly I cried out in alarm.

"Did you want to see me alone?"

"I just you guess what it is?" she began again. Frederick did not dare reply and Miss Adams easily exclaimed, "Why, it's a diamond ring! See it sparkle!"

"Yes," said Betty, cringing at it in Miss Adams' hands. "Miss McRath returns it with my apologies to Mr. Newball and wishes to terminate her engagement."

With the noise of Betty's little sobs had ceased, Miss Adams handed the ring to Frederick and rose from the banquette.

"You know of course, that I knew nothing of your engagement. I am something of a stranger here and had not heard—" And the man was left alone gazing at a diamond ring a heavy chain.

Meanwhile Betty was busy telephoning to Bob Hastings to come to the party.

"I'll be there. You can count on me," Bob assured her over the phone.

That evening early in the night, a disgruntled man carried his empty schemes and himself up to his room.

Early in the evening, too, Bob improved his opportunity.

"I understand you have broken your engagement," he said, glancing at Maeve's burred fingers.

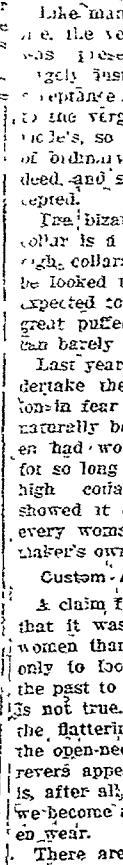

"Yes, we had so little in common that it seemed best to terminate our engagement."

"Then will you marry me, Maeve? I never knew until your engagement was announced that I loved you. His hand touched that little left hand, naked of jewels, and the thrill of that touch inspired him to take her in his arms."

"But do I love you, Bob? You've always been a friend, the best boy friend I ever had, and I missed you so much when you didn't come any more. Is friendship love?" and she gazed wonderingly into his kind eyes.

"It's a near relation if it's the kind I have for you dear."

Tum, tum, te tum, te tum, pealed the organ and Maeve strolled in her bridal satin as she entered the church. "I can't do it. I shall cry or something," her frightened sobs told her. Then through the haze of expectant faces she saw him waiting for her, and in the panic, the uncertainty subsided, for she knew that whatever the future might hold, she would be happy with the man she chose to wed.

The Northville Record.

E. F. BROWN, Publisher

An Independent Newspaper published every Friday morning at Northville, Michigan, and entered at the Northville post-office as Second-Class matter.

NORTHVILLE, MICH., DEC. 31, 1920.

GOODBYE 1920.

The year 1920 which is rapidly drawing to its close has been a very prosperous one for Northville. Our cement streets and highways have been completed, a number of new homes have been erected, the Ford plant has been established and put in operation, giving employment to a goodly number of men, and an air of prosperity has been manifested all through the year. Our local banks have made large increases in their deposits, indicating that our people have been wise in their savings. Labor has been well employed and the products of our farms and gardens have found ready sale at good prices and it can truly be said that the old year has dealt very kindly and generously with Northville.

Just what the New Year has in store for this community no one, of course, can foretell, but everything indicates that it will bring a return to normal and prosperous times. The Sanitarium buildings, some of them at least, will be completed, and the new buildings being erected by the Detroit House of Correction will be rushed to completion as rapidly as possible.

Unless all signs fail there will be a number of new residences erected here and we have the promise of at least one new business block and a new church.

There is a great deal that each individual citizen can do to make the new year measure up to our fondest expectations and by a united effort we should all do our part to promote the prosperity of this community.

If the old year has aroused any differences or misunderstandings, they should now be laid aside and all our hopes, desires and ambitions should be given a new birth with the advent of the New Year.

METHODIST CHURCH NOTES.

Happy New Year to All! Sunday, January 2, 1921, 10 morning worship "The Untold Future and the Trusted Guide" 11:30 Sunday school. Begin the New Year right, send your children to the Sunday school, urge your young people to attend the Young People's Bible class and set them all a good example by attending the C. A. Young People class for adult men and women young people.

The Young People class holds the study of the Gospel of John every Sunday, 6:30 P.M. with League Taught. The Kingdom Course, 7:30 Union services beginning the week of January 1st of the Presbyterian Church. Spoken by Rev. H. Grimwood.

The Christmas exercises last Sunday evening were interesting and profitable for all who attended. They consisted of a portrayal of the scenes connected with the birth of the Christ Child and were done out upon scriptural throughout. The service concluded with a quiet distribution of candy and oranges to all the children present. There was also a splendid "White Gift" offering.

BAPTIST CHURCH NOTES.

Service next Sunday morning at 10:30 Sermon topic. "God with a Basket," an Ave and a Sandless". In the evening, we meet with the other churches in the Union service at the Presbyterian church, it being the first of a series of six evening meetings in observance of the week of prayer.

Monday, January 3rd, the annual meeting of the Ladies' Aid will be held at 2:30 at the church. The ladies will serve a chicken pie supper free to all the members of the church and congregation to whom a hearty invitation is extended. In the evening, after the supper, the church will have its annual meeting for the election of officers for the ensuing year and other necessary business. The entire membership is urged to turn out to this meeting.

The Sunday school gave a good program at the Christmas entertainment, last Friday evening, which was appreciated by all who attended. The attendance was good. The Christmas tree and the gifts to the children and Santa Claus' visit and the fine singing by the choir all contributed to make it a very happy occasion, but the best thing was the wholehearted contribution to the Near East Relief Fund, which amounted to more than sixty dollars.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH NOTES.

The observance of the Christmas festival this year has been very pleasant and gratifying. The White Gift service Sunday morning was impressive as usual, and called forth a hearty response. The money offering amounted to $320 and will be used for needy children in Europe, the Near East and China. The program Tuesday evening with Santa Claus and the beautiful tree and the treat for the children was a great occasion for the little folks, and the older ones seemed to enjoy it as much. The pastor and his wife family were handsomely remembered, and they extend hearty thanks to their friends. And now Christmas is over, and we face the New Year. May we have much of happiness for all, and may we all find abundant opportunity for joyous service.

The subject of the sermon Sunday morning at 10:30 will be, "Old Paths for the New Year." Sunday school at 12:00 in the evening at 7:30 the first union service of the week of prayer will be held in our church. Everybody is cordially invited to this service and to those which follow every evening in the week.

The Woman's Union will hold an all-day study class at the home of Mrs. A. C. Baldwin on Wednesday, January 5th, beginning at ten o'clock, to which all the ladies of the church are cordially invited. Each person is requested to bring a box lunch and coffee will be served.

NOTICE TO BOYS, YOUNG MEN AND DEALERS IN CIGARETTES.

During the past few weeks a number of complaints have been made to the village marshal regarding the smoking of cigarettes by the boys and young men of Northville. The marshal hereby gives notice that in the future all boys or young men under the age prescribed by law who are seen smoking cigarettes in this village will be arrested and when it is ascertained who sold or gave them the smokes, the parties guilty of the act will be arrested.

AMONG NEW BLOUSES.

Long sleeved, high-necked blouses are about to gain distinction by their scarcity, and here is one that has other claims to that honor. It is long sleeved and high necked in a new and original way. The vogue for knife plaiting inspired its turn-over collar and the fussets in the cuffs.

Foresters' Entertainment Course Jan. 12*THE SECOND NUMBER A LECTURE.

The second number of the Foresters' entertainment course will be a lecture given by W. H. Stout, at the Alseum theatre on the evening of January 12th. Mr. Stout is enthusiastically endorsed by many of America's most popular lecturers and entertainers. In speaking of him some months ago Wallace Bruce Ansbury said:

"I want to congratulate the Lyceum and Chautauqua patrons on the decision of W. H. Stout to enter the lecture field. If any one of my wide acquaintance is better fitted and has a bigger message than he has, I fail to call him to mind."

Tickets are now on sale for the remainder of the course, four splendid numbers, at $1.00 and children's tickets for 50 cents. Children's tickets may be obtained from the superintendent of schools. Seats may be reserved without extra charge at the Northville

Novi News.

You may secure copies of the Baptist ladies' cook books from Mrs. S. Huffert.

Responding to the call to aid the little ones of Europe, who are just now so badly in need of food and medical care, the good ladies of the Novi Baptist church will give a Community Supper at the church on Friday evening of this week. There will be no charge for the supper, but an offering will be taken at the tables for the benefit of the little ones. All are cordially invited to attend. Supper will be served at six o'clock and it is desired that the attendance be large and that the offering be in keeping with the generous spirit always manifested by Novi people whenever any special need has been called to their attention.

Rev. H. Grimwood of Northville will deliver an address and there will be special music. All who have not been solicited are asked to bring one of the following four articles: Quart of olives, cake, fruit salad or 24 rolls.

The people of this community were sorry to learn of the accident which came to little James W. Seates of Farmington, when he was badly scalded with the contents of a boiling tea-kettle, which his mother had just put out of her hand. On the side was burned. Dr. Holcomb was called and the little fellow is getting along as well as could be expected. He is the grandson of Mrs. Watt, of this place and all hope for a speedy recovery.

The many friends of John Root will be glad to know that he is improving rapidly from an operation for appendicitis at Harper's Hospital, Detroit, where he was taken two weeks ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Root entertained the following relatives and friends at Christmas dinner: Mr. and Mrs. Willard Root of Cass City; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wedow of Walled Lake and Misses Camilla and Shirley Risner of Northville.

The Hicks family reunion was held Christmas day at the Bert Hicks home. Relatives were present from Pontiac, Farmington, Northville and Novi. Twenty attended the reunion.

Mrs. Wm. Mairs entertained her mother, brothers and sisters at a Christmas dinner.

Mean Brutal

"Your wife does a lot of entertaining doesn't she?" remarked Mrs. Naylor. "Yes," growled Mr. Gash. "If she isn't entertaining company, she's entertaining suspicion."

AMERICAN LEGION IS GROWING.

The American Legion will enter 1921 with practically 10,000 posts, according to the estimates based on the latest figures. During the week ending December 10, fifteen new posts were added, which brought the total to 9,930. Arkansas led with three posts. The Woman's Auxiliary in the same period obtained twenty-seven new units, raising its list to 1,536. Four new units, gained by the New York department, placed that department in the lead for this week. Foreign posts added recently are at Chuquicamata, Chili, and Guatemala City, Guatemala.

BOARD OUGHT TO SEEVE NOW.

Apropos of present-day speed in traveling by airplane, automobile, and motorcycle, a subscriber writes that an Ohio newspaper says that an old scrap-book contains a clipping stating that the Lancaster, Ohio, school board in 1828 refused to permit the use of the schoolhouse for a debate as to whether or not "railroads are practical." The board members are said to have reported:

You are welcome to use the schoolhouse to debate all proper questions in, but such things as railroads and telegraphs are impossible and rank futility. There is nothing in the Word of God about them. If God had designed that his intelligent creatures should travel at the frightful speed of fifteen miles an hour, he would have forecast it.

PLIGHT OF EUROPE'S CHILDREN STAGGERS

3,500,000 Facing Starvation Can Only Be Saved by America's Response to Joint Appeal.

It is utterly impossible for one who has not actually seen the misery of the early autumn in Europe to visualize what the children of the Western and Central portions of the continent face this winter. To say that 3,500,000 children have no alternative to starvation for death from disease even American aid, is startling but independent observers by the score and actual scientific surveys of the economic and crop conditions overseas bring the figure as conservative.

In Poland, for instance, there 1,200,000 youngsters last year subsisted almost entirely on the game free Americans can eat a day that they received conditions as winter closes down, are worse than ever before. The Bolshevik invasion stripped large portions of the country of all grain. Professor E. D. Durand, Food Advisor to the Polish government, after an exhaustive survey has reported that only forty per cent is available of the food necessities necessary to carry the population through the winter.

In the city of Vienna tests conducted in the American Relief Administration food kitchens showed that 52 per cent of the children between the ages of 6 and 14 were "seriously under-nourished." Thirty-three per cent were markedly under-nourished, 11 per cent were slightly subnormal and only 4 per cent approached the state of a normal American child. The American Relief Administration is feeding 300,000 Austrian children every day now, and there is no chance of diminution of need before next harvest.

The spectacle of the medical needs of Europe's children is equally appalling. Estimates reaching the American Red Cross of needs of urgent service in the destitute areas this winter include Old Age Home and 750,000; new Poland, 1,500,000; Czechoslovakia, 200,000; Serbia 150,000 and Rumania, 100,000. In the fiscal year of 1919-20 the Red Cross has reached with the valuable gift of life 1,500,000 children in the affected areas. Tuberculosis is prevalent in a terrible degree. Five children out of seven in the city of Warsaw, for instance, have been found to be tubercular. Tuberculosis is widespread, probably the right hand of hunger-nourishment is also. Universal and chronic left. Its victim leads constantly in one place and another.

The European Relief Council, comprising the American Relief Administration, the American Friends' Service Committee (Quakers), the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Knights of Columbus, the YMCA and the Y.W.C.A., seeks $2,000,000 with which to meet the situation. It has estimated that at least $2,000,000 must be used for food and $10,000,000 for medical service to avert absolute disaster among the three and a half million children. Checks may be sent to your local committee or to Franklin K. Lane, treasurer European Relief Council, 42 Broadway, New York, or to the Child Feeding Fund, Life and Digest, New York City.

Worth Saving.

The features of this girl portray the finest type of Polish youth that now lies engulfed in hunger and disease and all their attendant miseries. Relief already now existing in America has preserved her beauty and freshness, whilst her eyes burn the suffering she has seen. But let us millions in her own and adjacent countries still have no one to look out for America as another winter of horror closes in upon them. To the end that their prayer may not go unanswered, the leading American relief organizations have banded together in joint appeal to behalf of Europe's suffering children. This is the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends' Relief Committee, the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Federal

UNITED GUN CLUB HELD POULTRY SHOOT.

The pre-Christmas shoot of the United Gun Club was enjoyed by all. Twenty shooters, representing five clubs, lined up on the 22nd for the poultry contest, and the club plans on making this an annual event.

E. Hills, president of the club, was the star performer of the day, turning in a 96% score. F. Holmsnagle was second with 113 broken targets, while third place went to the between C. Merritt and H. Passage. Mrs. L. G. Vogel made the longest run of the day, 45 straight breaks, while F. E. Hills with 42, and H. B. Hall and C. Merritt with 40 apiece, were not far behind. Several ties in the last event made as many shoot-offs necessary, two contests going on for two extra events each. Here are some of the outstanding features of the shoot:

Squad—Event 6. Turned in a perfect score. This squad was R. S. Porritt, F. Holmsnagle, E. E. Hartford, J. Parks, and Sam Gay.

In event six, twenty contestants only 11 targets were missed.

Seventy perfect scores were turned in during the day, F. E. Hills turning in nine.

J. C. Rathburn was the only turkey winner without shoot-off.

F. Whitbeck left his gun in Omaha, and then won a chicken in the second event, and a turkey in the third. We couldn't have had the trap-house left if he had had it with him.

C. Merritt says his old "crow gun" was mad. Verily, we believe it.

The Ferndale boys, and the Birmingham boys, turned out in fine style. May we see them often.

E. E. Hartford, as usual, was the busiest man on the grounds. The United Gun club thanks you heartily, Ed., and extends a cordial invitation to you for all time.

F. Holmsnagle and F. E. Hills broke 49 out of the first 50 targets.

Mrs. Vogel and H. Passage broke 48 out of the first 50. C. Tritts broke 47 out of the first 50. F. E. Hills broke 49 out of the last 50.

Scores and trophies for the day are:

WORK AND SAVE—SAYS SCHWAB.

Speaking recently as president of the Pennsylvania Society at the annual dinner held in New York, Charles M. Schwab said: "Nothing could be healthier for American business than the very condition through which we are now passing. It had to come. I only wish it had come sooner. The severer the storm is now, the quicker it will be over and the sooner we can emerge into clear weather and shape our course upon the sea of prosperity."

"Now the true test of success in business is not profits but economy.

Profits may be the result of good fortune, of a fleeting period of inflation, of temporary conditions of any kind, but a business structure which is built simply upon the profit sheet of the moment is built upon the sands. The only business foundations which are sure and steady are erected upon the rock of economy. The supreme virtue of the existing situation is that it is compelling every man in America to examine thoroughly his costs of doing business and his costs of living. The result of all is to force business and to force individuals to start to economize and to save. The great need of the world today is to work hard and save. This applies not alone to the laboring man, but to the man of great means. There is no place in America today for the loafer."

LIVE STOCK MEN TO MEET.

The 30th annual meeting of the Michigan improved live stock and breeders' and feeders' association will be held at the Michigan Agricultural College on January 12th and 13th. A program brimming full of good things has been prepared for the meeting, and it is expected there will be a large attendance.

HOOVER APPEAL TOUCHES HEARTS OF MICHIGAN FOLK

MONEY ALREADY COMING IN FOR CHILDREN'S RELIEF CAMPAIGN
OPENING DEC. 19.

LEFT-OVER WAR FUNDS PLEDGED TO THE INNOCENTS

Organization of Counties for Great Mercy Drive Is Progressing Rapidly.

Detroit, Mich.—That Michigan will respond whole heartedly this Christmas to the appeal of the 3,500,000 children in Europe who face starvation unless America comes to the rescue, is already indicated by telegrams pouring into state headquarters of the Hoover Relief Fund from every county in the state.

To save the lives of these children the people of the United States are asked to give $33,000,000. It is the greatest emergency campaign since the World War. It will begin December 19 and continue to the end of the year, under the general direction of Herbert Hoover, former U. S. food administrator, now president of the European Relief Council.

Couzens Heads Committee.

A state committee has been appointed by Mr. Hoover to conduct the campaign in Michigan. James Couzens, mayor of Detroit, is state chairman, and David A. Brown, Detroit, is general director. The other members of the committee are:

Mrs. Caroline Bartlett Orsine, Kalamazo; James Ingalls, Detroit; Mrs. Marion LeRoy Burton, Ann Arbor; Mrs. C. R. Wilson, Detroit; Sidney T. Miller, Detroit; Meyer S. May, Grand Rapids; Mrs. W. R. Alford, Detroit; Gustavus D. Pope, Detroit; Mrs. G. Edgar Allen, Detroit; E. McDonald Marquette; Ernest A. O'Brien, Detroit; William J. Norton, Detroit; Herman Gessner, Escanaba; J. F. Hartz, John R. Russell and S. S. Kresge, Detroit.

The state is being hastily organized in county units, as for the wartime drives. The response from every quarter has been immediate, and in many instances, if has been voted to turn over balances from war funds to the cause of the destitute children. Herbert Hoover, national chairman of the Council, in his stirring speeches delivered in Detroit, declared: "If America turns these children of Europe into the streets to shift for themselves, hundreds of thousands of them will die and the survivors will fill the jails of Europe and the United States 20 years hence."

These children have priority on all European relief. To save them is a true obligation on every man and woman in the United States after their own children are cared for.

Ten Dollars Will Save a Life.

The campaign has been planned for Christmas holidays because this seems to be the children's season and for each family to open its doors to a little invisible guest will mean that another child is saved to the world. Tea dollars will save a life.

In Poland there are 1,250,000 children dependent upon American bounty; in Austria, 300,000; in Germany, 1,250,000; Czechoslovakia, 100,000; in the Baltic States, 100,000, and an additional 200,000 in other smaller Central European countries.

We can save these children—or let them die—is the slogan the Michigan Committee is using to bring home to bountifully blessed Americans the charge which Christianity and civilization lays upon them.

The Federal Council of the Churches of Christ of America is one of the eight organizations affiliated in the European Relief Council and an urgent appeal to all denominations has been issued to make Sunday, December 19, the initial day of the drive, European Children's Day. Sermons will be preached on the subject, and collections taken in many churches to contribute to the funds.

The most influential clubs of men and women and all civic and welfare organizations have come forward to work in the campaign, and women will play a prominent part in making the collections. Every dollar contributed will go in its entirety to feeding or caring for a child. No expense in the campaign will need to be subtracted from the money raised.

Funds Are Not Wasted.

Fear expressed in some quarters that such help from America is pauperizing the European beneficiaries is proved baseless, since for every dollar given by the United States, the countries helped are giving two in labor, transportation, clerical, etc.

Of the $33,000,000 sought, $23,000,000 are required to give one scant meal a day to these children and $10,000,000 for the medical care made necessary by the ravages of endemic diseases which follow in the wake of famine.

Seventeen thousand asylums, clinics, hospitals and feeding stations depend upon American support. must close and turn these children away in January unless the fathers and mothers of the United States act in the right. For dairies will not hold through the winter until

MAKE OUT GIFT LIST EARLY

Thoughtful Shoppers Start Task Several Weeks Before Rush Begins in Busy Stores

The buyer who really puts the finishing touches to her Christmas gift makes out her list several weeks in advance. It should be a happy one, she has kept her list of the year before, and is able to see what were her gifts the preceding season, and thus avoid the risk of repeating herself. Still more happy is she if she has made mental or written notes from time to time of various articles for which she has had a desire expressed by friends. Such notes taking will greatly lessen her labor.

For it is no light thing to choose Christmas gifts judiciously. The whole secret of their acceptability lies in their appropriateness. Not only must they be appropriate to the person from whom they come and to whom they go, but to the circumstances in which the latter is placed. For an instance, there are few housekeepers who do not welcome an addition of linens to their store. But it is a housekeeper who lives plainly in simple surroundings one finds a superb late-flannel tea cloth or doilies that throw all other possessions into the shade, there is an unsuitability about the gift that robes it of much of its charm—Barney's Bazaar.

ART AND SCIENCE IN TOYS

Playthings for the Kiddies Necessary to the Proper Conduct of Their Society.

WHILE the making of toys is an art that is probably practically as old as the world itself, it has been, only within recent years that science has bothered itself about them. Less than half a century ago they were regarded merely as playthings—amusing diversions for children that were by no means necessary to their well-being. Today, however, science insists that there is a well-defined philosophy underlying the use of toys, that they are the tools with which the little ones, in their trade, the paraphernalia necessary to the proper conduct of their society, that dolls, for example, are more to them than the associates that help to entertain them in that they aid them in the attainment of their mental growth by stimulating the natural enjoyment which must be experienced in their life.

Whether this theory of the scientists is correct or not, the fact remains that children have always had the playthings requisite for their institutions of the domestic life and business affairs of older people; that they have always required their elders to provide them with such inventions, and that, when they could not obtain these toys by any other means, they themselves have sought and found objects that might be made to suit their purposes. Even the ignorant middle Ages did not permit in their pastimes. The toys in which they found diversion may have been more simple, but, as they met the demands of nature, they played their allotted part in the scheme of human development—Public Opinion.

Ancient Christmas Custom.
Many quaint customs are observed at Christmas time in various English country parishes. In that of Cynwyd, in Berkshire, of which the living is a vicarage and the church a beautiful specimen of an old English parochial edifice, all who pay tithes repair, after evening service on Christmas day, to the vicarage, where the vicar is held in duty bound, by a usage centuries old, to regale them with four bushels of malt brewed into ale or beer, two bushels of wheat baked into bread, and half a hundred weight of cheese. Any remains of this feast are distributed among the poor of the parish after morning prayer the next day.

POOR THINGS
Tramp Birds: They might throw us a few crumbs on Christmas morning.

Traditions of Christmas Festival.

In the records of every nation we find traditions of the Christmas festival, traditions which have been handed down from generation to generation in oft-told tales which thrilled the hearts of the listeners with alternate fear and delight. Sir Walter Scott tells us that they who are born upon Christmas or Good Friday will see spirits, and will have the power of commanding them. He also adds that the Spaniards imputed the downcast looks of their monarch Philip II, to the disagreeable visions to which this privilege subjected him.

Bring Smiles of Gladness.
It is not so much the thought of receiving the customary holiday gifts which most pleases the fancy, but rather that pleasure the heart derives from dwelling upon joyful surprises, it may bestow upon others. To bring a smile of gladness upon another's face is, indeed, a boon more precious than a Christmas gift, and the joy of bestowing can never be equaled by the receiving.

To Remove Lead From Gunbarrels
Chemically pure and strong, nitric acid will dissolve the lead in a gunbarrel and will not injure the metal of the barrel unless the acid becomes diluted with a little water. If this happens, it should be washed immediately with water and soap.

"Tweedledum and Tweedledee." We understand that the expression "tweedledum and tweedledee" is used to designate two things between which there is the smallest possible difference, and is applicable to disputes over trifles. It is also applied to nonsensical discussions such as the old legends intimated by the saying, "When a farmer takes a pig to market, is the pig going with the farmer or the farmer going with the pig?" The wise measure is to let the pig go.

A TALE OF THE FLATWOODS

A prod of the six-shooter emphasized the command. The sheriff jumped. There was nothing else to do. He was still fumbling about on the inner margin of the pool behind the hills when the Pearlhunter landed lightly beside him, almost up on him. The passage was dark—dark as the inside of a pistol barrel! It was a very reassuring fact. It meant that there was no candle burning farther ahead in the cave. He was in time, making sure of that very important fact, he thrust the revolver into the holster pocket at his hip, grasped the sheriff by the collar and hurried up the passage.

By the same subtle instinct that had served him the night before, he knew when he reached the point at which the passage widened into the cave. There he loosed the sheriff's collar and struck a match. The sheriff caught his breath and stated: "The horse, the candle in the cranny, the saddle and spurs, the feed—all just as it had been described to him."

"I never knew there was anything like this under Fallen Rock."

"You're probably the third man that ever did know it. Pick your steps across those slivers of stone there and get into that pocket behind the hay. Hurry! We mustn't show much light. He's due any minute."

The one match served. So urgently did the Pearlhunter consider the need of haste that before it was gone, they were crowded well back in the pocket behind the hay.

"The instant you're convinced I'm not the Red Mask, nudge me, and I'll give your revolver back. And I wouldn't tell you that when the time comes to act, we've got some trick."

The two men had stood in the pocket for what must have been half an hour, and the thrill of the Pearlhunter's wound was becoming almost unbearable, when the old man grew deadly quiet. The Red Mask sank low in the cover and pulled the revolver down beside him. A match reaped a spattering flame behind the curve in the crevice, the cave—the horse! The many forms of the two they waited sprang out of the dark.

He came straight to the horses, the one friend absolutely true to him in all the dangerous world, the one friend who still regarded him as a gentleman. The horse snatched up his horse to meet him; rubbed his shoulder with his head. A moment the man gave to the intense horse, then leaped to the corn stage, had three steps up the rock, and turned to the left.

Now was the critical test of if the escapee by glance now. But he was totally unshining. Without raising his eyes as far as the peep he gazed up at his friend or two of the brightest stars and turned to the horse.

"Short reigns now," he thought, and I'll make your tether while you eat."

He sat down from either where the saddle hung a carry comb and brush from another of the numerous crannies of the cave and powdered, with surprising soft and smoothness, the groom's horse. The task completed he laid back the brush and carry comb and lifted the feet of the horse, examined them one by one nail by nail, afterwards running his hands down the horse's limbs and insuring over each joint, finally summing up the inspection by listening with no little care to the animal's breathing. It was the work of a master. The inspection over, he took the saddle down from the wall, threw it on the horse, drew the girths, hung the bridle on the horn, unstrapped his spurs from the back of the saddle and buckled them to his heels.

"I wish I knew," he muttered, half to himself, apparently half to his dumb companion, as he waited for the animal to finish his supper, "whether that Pearlhunter has left. It looks like he had. And yet, that's not like his breed—to eat out. Still, there's always a chance." He seemed to meditate, lifting up his head, with a bitter grimace and a toss of his hand. "Chance!" he growled. "What's life without its chance? Life! Hub! A game of chance—with the cards stacked, and the devil's deal! Rocket, you'll carry double tonight. Yellow curls, eyes like bluebells and ankles—! But high headed, she crime devish high shootin' me this afternoon. But the harder to tame, the better worth tamin'."

The Pearlhunter was writhing back in the pocket, his face like the rock he crouched against; but the sheriff hadn't nudged him.

The Red Mask looked down at the fast disappearing provender before the horse, walked back and forth across the cave a time or two, turned and stood for a moment or two fuming behind the oak root, where it had been tied.

"That sheriff!" He straightened, threw up his head and laughed boisterously. "He couldn't find a lost elephant, let alone a wonderful wee'ee'ie drop of distilled whisky like this."

He blew the dust off, and pushed in the catch. The lid flipped up. On the tiny cushion lay the Blue Moon twinkling in the candle-light, not unlike the princess that waked up in the care of the dragon.

At last came the sheriff's nudge. The Pearlhunter quietly passed his revolver over. There couldn't have been a sound in the act louder than the drawing of a breath, but somehow it must have reached the man by the horse. There came a change over his face so slight as to be almost imperceptible; to be felt rather than seen. Had he so much as glanced toward the pocket back of the horse, the Pearlhunter would have acted on the instant. But he didn't glipse that way. Very leisurely he closed the box, put it in his vest-pocket and lay down to see if the horse had finished his supper.

The Pearlhunter was in the act of pressing against the knee of the sheriff, in sign that the time had come, when, totally without a warning sound, without the slightest preliminary motion, there came a shot from behind the horse that dashed the candle out. The shot was followed by a scuffle of feet.

The Pearlhunter leaped the hay and charged through the dense dark straight at the horse. It wasn't there. From the passage came the clatter of hoofs. She fought as only a woman fights—for a state infinitely higher than life itself. Since time began the earth has staged that struggle. Her dress was torn, her body bruised, her hands gradually driven together, behind her back, a hot wild face near her own. A step cracked the plank at the door. Her assailant whirled at the sound and she sank panting against the wall. It was inside the door; his body crowded forward his lips tight drawn since the fall form of the Pearlhunter.

She harpooned so fast in the next instant that words are too slow to keep up with them. It was man to man, and an even draw. The two shots came so close together that the hills ran through the open door casement but one hit. But the shot from the floor struck a hand—a stout little mitt of an instant fastening, jarred the arm of the other a trifle high. The shot from the other merely slipped a bandage at the top of the Pearlhunter's shoulder. It was a little well on the skin, and the handless, angry eye the right to bullet from the dead and strayed hard at him.

"And it was a case of Warbritton that got me at last!"

"Who speaks the name of Warbritton?" came a hoarse voice from the couch.

The dying bandit started and hid his eyes from the sound.

"What is that? That voice?"

The Pearlhunter caught the foot of the couch and moved it around so the two first sailing men could see each other. No sooner had the gray giant on the couch caught a glimpse of the man on the floor than, with a great cry, he tried to rise. His unused strength only served to bring him part way up on an elbow—and that only won the Pearlhunter's aid.

"Methinks!" he cried—and almost instantly, "Where is she? The woman you destined? And the boy? Tell me! I've still the strength to lift it out of your cursed throat!"

The dying bandit fixed his failing eyes on the couch. Only God knows who gave her grace to the just and to the unjust—how he found strength for further words.

"Warbritton!" he muttered the name huskily, the bloody fresh upon his lips. "She was not destined. It was all a mistake. I let you think it because I hated you—because I loved her—because she loved you and not me. Twenty years she's roved these rivers, pure as the dew at dawn. She slept tonight in a grave four days old at Fallen Rock."

He picked up his hand from where it sagged down upon the floor, carried it at great labor to his bosom, fumbled under the fancy vest, drew forth a picture and laid it against his lips. The Pearlhunter snatched it away. The action brought the picture near the old man. He seized it, held it an instant before his eyes, and with a deep groan laid it against his bosom.

"And the boy?" he cried to the man on the floor. "The boy?"

scold stroking his face with her hand when without the least warning, the door flew open and sharply outlined against the dark background of the night, man with a red mask over his face stalked across the threshold.

He was, of course, quite unaware that the girl already knew his identity. That probably explained why he had put on the mask. It would be impossible to describe the startling transformation it wrought on his sinister face. From out of all its many terrors the night could not have selected a more appalling one to fling into the cabin.

The girl screamed and clung about the old man in the chair. Her scream seemed to rouse him. He glanced up, rubbed his wife's pitiful eyes, and with a wild cry—more that of beast than man—sprang from the chair with a strength that sent the girl reeling. His sleeping senses seemed to wake, to recognize the object for which his ghostly eyes had searched the woods for weary years—a bit of red cloth with a certain face behind it. His giant frame seemed to swell with a strength tremendous. He raised the knife and leaped toward the intruder.

A giant's strength, but with the disordered, unworldliness of a stricken mind. The knife barely grazed where it was meant to kill. Before the gray giant could recover his ponderous strength to strike again, the Red Mask had him by the wrist, and, seemingly unwilling to risk the sound of a shot was raining blows upon his head with the butt of his heavy revolver. It was a horrible thing to see. The girl stood with laced fingers, helpless with horror.

"You must be Doty. But you've changed so since morning."

The girl seemed unable to tell him. She strove for words, but none came. The Pearlhunter drew nearer.

"You've been sick a long time, sir," he said. "Seven years. And you're just getting well again."

The puzzled eyes suddenly widened into a sword's eye and strange turned struck again and again until the vast frame drooped, shrank together, the knife fell from his fingers, his knees gave way and he sank groaning to the floor, writhed, straightened, and lay still.

The revolver was foul with blood and gray hair. The murderer noticed it hastily wiped it away on a corner of the fallen man's coat thrust it back into his pocket and raced the girl.

The spell was broken. She started as it from a nightmare and sprang back of the chair. Like a man pressed for time, he dashed after her. With the chair between them, she managed for a bare moment to keep beyond his hands. He kicked the chair out of the way. She darted toward the kitchen door, probably with the hope of escaping to the woods but he was too close to her. She whirled toward the door of the bedroom. The turn was fast. His hands reached her and drove her back into the corner of the room at the head of the couch.

She fought as only a woman fights—for a state infinitely higher than life itself. Since time began the earth has staged that struggle. Her dress was torn, her body bruised, her hands gradually driven together, behind her back, a hot wild face near her own. A step cracked the plank at the door.

Her assailant whirled at the sound and she sank panting against the wall. It was inside the door; his body crowded forward his lips tight drawn since the fall form of the Pearlhunter.

"This fellow ain't dead yet," he said, when the Pearlhunter had joined him.

The young man stooped over the sprawled robber. He was still breathing.

"He don't deserve it," the sheriff went on, "but it's only common decency to get him up."

He put his arm under the man and raised him, while the Pearlhunter brought a damp cloth from the basin by the couch, and wiped his face. The touch of the cold cloth rattled him.

"Wster!" he groaned, hasty and strained.

The girl had turned and was looking on. She ran to the kitchen and lit a cupful. The Pearlhunter held it to the man's lips. He couldn't swallow, but the touch of the water seemed to revive him. He opened his eyes and stared, like a man trying to make out objects in a very dim light. His eyes caught the glint of the shirt's star, lowered raised, found the Pearlhunter and strained hard at him.

"And it was a case of Warbritton that got me at last!"

"Who speaks the name of Warbritton?" came a hoarse voice from the couch.

MAKING BEST USE OF PAINT

Coloring Must Be Selected According to the Material of Which It Is to Be Used.

Paints and painting cost less than repairs necessitated by decay or disintegration.

There is no such thing as an all-service paint. Paint should be selected according to the material to be painted and the conditions under which it must give service. The wear on a floor is more severe than on a wall, hence the floor calls for a tougher, more elastic paint.

Painting should not be done when the temperature is lower than 50 degrees Fahrenheit, as the paint will not flow well. It is impractical to paint a hot surface. The old painting maxim is: "Spring and fall follow the sun; in summer, follow the shade."

Outside painting should be done in dry weather. Surfaces should not be painted when wet.

Surfaces to be painted should be gotten as smooth and clean as possible. They should be free from grease. If painting new wood, knots and sapwood surfaces should be shellacked first.

If painting over previously painted surfaces, all blisters and loose or peeled spots should be scraped or burned clean. A brushing with a stiff wire brush followed by sandpaper is good practice.

A priming coat usually pays for its cost. A firm base for the final coats is very essential to insure long service. The primer should be thin enough to penetrate the lumber. It should be well brushed in.

Only pure linseed oil or pure turpentine should be used to thin paint.

TOWN AS PART OF COUNTRY

Southern Magazine Has the Right Idea That Communities Must Stand or Fall Together.

The country town is a part of the country. It is one of the encouraging signs of the time that country business men are coming to realize this little fact. It has not been so long ago that every little town thought that its business was to grow into it by just as soon as possible. Some towns and happy town people still think that their chief relations and interests are with the cities rather than the country. The most far-sighted business men have come to know better. They are seeing more and more clearly that the town, the small city, is an integral part of the country, that it prospers only as the country prospers and that it lies in the big center of the country about it. The town never, who opposes co-operative buying or selling by the farmers or his territory, the town editor who would banish the establishment of men from certain areas in his county, the town editor who neglects the back country districts, are becoming more and more out of date. Not until the country and the country town learn that they are like fellow-soldiers and must pull together can either lead the progress it should, and do it are permanent.

Southern Agriculturalist

Judging from reports from druggists who are constantly in direct touch with the public, there is one preparation that has been very successful in overcoming these conditions, the mild and healing influence of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its remarkable record of success.

An examining physician for one of the prominent Life Insurance Companies, in his review on the subject, made the astonishing statement that one reason why many applicants for insurance are rejected is because kidney trouble is so common to the American people, and the large majority of those whose applications are declined do not even suspect that they have the disease. It is on sale at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

VIGILANCE NECESSARY TO KEEP CHICKEN HOUSE FREE OF MITES

For Small Coops a Hand Atomizer Will Suffice for Applying Insecticides

Poultry raisers are all too familiar with the common red or gray mite which infests poultry houses. In general those who are making a specialty of poultry raising have comparatively little trouble with mites, or at least they keep them reduced to a point where they are of little importance. On the other hand, farmers and others who raise poultry as an incident to other operations frequently find their chicken houses overrun by mites.

Using Pure Kerosene. A helpful Remedy for Constipation and Diarrhea and Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP resulting therefrom in Infancy

Pure kerosene and kerosene emulsion in double the strength ordinarily applied to plants will destroy all mites but, but these substances have not body enough to destroy those mites which are in more protected situations and several applications at ten-day intervals are needed to destroy all the mites.

Detecting Presence of Mites. The attack of this blood-sucking mite is of an insidious nature, which does not readily draw attention to its presence, and often the poultryman is not aware of an infestation until he is attracted to it by the irritation produced by mites on his own body through coming in contact with the infested coop. The presence of the pest may readily be determined, however, by the detection of small areas on the boards speckled with black and white, as though dusted with salt and pepper. This is the excrement of the mites, which are hidden in adjacent cracks or rough places. More careful examination will reveal masses of mites in hiding together with their eggs and the silvery skins cast by the young.

USERS SWEAR BY IT

I had the grippe and didn't know what helped me. I tried everything. An aspirin would help but I grew weak. I got to a hospital and my doctor said I was over milk or protein which I took. I couldn't do my house work and slept all day. My doctor was worried so I went to the drug store. I thought I tried everything and was given Hypo-Cod. I had to mix it. I can't do much. Then I got a cold.

I've taken two bottles now and it's wonderful. That's all I can eat anything now and my stomach is in good condition. I am strong again as a whale so I won't work and have a release from house. I don't want to ever go through what I did again. It was my fault. I let myself get weak and bad and then caught the grippe. I give Hypo-Cod to my two daughters too and I wish everybody could see how it helps them. None of us have colds or coughs anymore. We don't need cough syrups in the house. It did everything I told me it would do at the drug store and I'm doing my housework again. It gave me new ambition and stopped me from spitting up blood and coughing. My little girl's are feeling fine, too," declared Mrs. H. Jason, 56 Reopelle St., Detroit, Mich.

If you are suffering from weakness, a general rundown system, or a bad cough, go right down to the drug store and get a bottle of Hypo-Cod. ## LOCAL

The Record has been informed that definite plans have been made for the erection of a Catholic church on the property owned by the local society at the corner of Center and Dunlap streets, and that work on the new structure will be started in the spring.

This is a very suitable corner and a handsome church there will make a valuable addition to Northville.

Northville people were greatly shocked to read in the Detroit papers the notice of the death of Elmer Wilde, the eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Hugo Wilde, who purchased the Couch grocery store and after a short residence here returned to Detroit. Elmer made many friends during his short stay in this community and the tenderest sympathy of many friends will be extended to the grief-stricken parents. He was but 18 years of age. Funeral services were held Monday and interment took place in Grand Lawn cemetery.

TO HAVE NEW YEARS' BALL.

The Northville Foresters will give a New Year's ball at their hall this Friday evening to which all are cordially invited. A pot-luck lunch at 6:30 will be one of the features of the evening and guests are requested to bring something for the feed. There will be good music and a good time—the old year will be given a fond farewell and the new year a cordial welcome.

DEWITT W. PACKARD DIES.

Dewitt W. Packard, a well known farmer of this community, passed away at his home west of town Sunday, December 19, 1920, after a lingering illness. Although Mr. Packard had been in failing health for the past two years, he was able to get around the greater part of the time. He was the only son of Isaac and Rekah Packard and was born in Salem township April 23, 1857. He was united in marriage to Altha Bailey, October 3, 1883. Two sons were born to them, Glad C., who died at the age of nine months, and Don D. He leaves to mourn their loss his wife, his son and wife and one grandson, Cecil, besides other more distant relatives. Mr. Packard had resided for the past twenty-four years on the farm where he passed away.

The funeral services were held from his late home, Wednesday afternoon at two o'clock, Rev. F. M. Field, pastor of the Methodist church of this place, conducting the services. Burial in Riverside cemetery. The bereaved family have the sympathy of many friends in their affliction.—Plain Mail
