TWO SOLDIER BOYS BURIED AT OLD HOME

Last Thursday night there arrived over the Pere Marquette railway the bodies of August William Herber and James Roche, which had been sent home from France by the United States government. The bodies were accompanied from New York by a soldier stationed at New York City, whose sad duty it has been for some time to perform a similar service for soldier-boys whose remains have been shipped to various parts of the country. The bodies were taken to Schrader Brothers' funeral parlors and services were held on New Year's day and on Sunday, the services in honor of Private Herber being held on Saturday and those for Private Roche were held Sunday afternoon. Members of the American Legion acted as escort and accompanied the remains of their comrades to Rural Hill cemetery, where interment took place. The caskets bearing the remains of these young men were draped with American flags and numerous floral tributes were contributed by relatives and friends and by the societies of Northville.

August William Herber was born in Wichita, Kansas, March 1st, 1895. He went to France in his country's service from Detroit as a member of Co. G, 125th Infantry, and was killed in action on August 28th, 1918, at the age of 23 years. He is survived by his mother, step-father and four sisters, who have the sympathy of this community in their great sorrow. They were notified of his death soon after the fatality came to him and have watched and waited patiently for his return home. August was deeply attached to his family, yet willing to make the supreme sacrifice.

James Roche was born in Northville, January 17th, 1895, and met his death in an accident on October 18th, 1918. His whole life was spent in this community and when his country entered the great war he felt the impelling call to offer himself in the great cause of humanity and enlisted as a member of Co. E, 16th Engineers.

He was a good soldier and the news of his death brought great sorrow to members of his family and to the community he represented. Rev. E. V. Helles conducted the funeral services.

FORD PLANT CLOSED DOWN.

When the Ford plant in this village closed down the day before Christmas the employees were informed that operations would begin again on Monday, January 3rd. Something happened, however, to make a change of plans necessary and those employed in the local plant were notified last week that operations would not begin until February 1st. The Ford plant at Highland Park served a similar notice upon all its employees and for the first time in many years the wheels in this great institution are standing still.

Checks representing seven millions of dollars in bonuses are to be paid to the seventy thousand employees of the Ford industries are now being distributed and anumber of the employees in the Northville plant will receive a portion of this handsome sum.

The fact that the company is behind on all its orders has caused a good deal of speculation regarding the purpose of closing down everything for a month.

The Ford Motor company has issued a statement that they will make 1,250,000 cars in 1921. The past year was a record breaker for the plant, 1,027,977 cars and trucks being turned out up to December 24, when the plant closed down for inventory.

SCHOOL NOTES.

Oh, look! Oh, look!
Northville, vs. Farmington
Friday, the 14th.

Say, folks, lets all go to see that game. Northville has a fast team this year. There are five old regular who have gained a "rep." Litsenberger is back at forward and is full of pep and fast—just come and see him shoot them in. Moffat is at right forward and it is hard to tell which forward can shoot the most baskets. Chapman, center, can out-jump them all. German, guard, never lets an opponent get a basket on him. Stillwell plays running guard and it is hard to tell where he is on the floor for he is all over at once. So let's go, everybody and help them by talking it up "Y-e-a Team. Y-e-a Team. Team, Fight 'em. Fight 'em. Fight 'em."

New Year's was a regular spring day and the weather thus far this week has been very mild for January.

LEVI F. EATON DIED SUDDENLY IN DETROIT

Northville people were greatly shocked to learn of the death of Levi F. Eaton, which occurred from an attack of heart disease at the home of W. F. Tufts, Leicester court, Saturday afternoon. A few weeks ago, Mr. and Mrs. Eaton closed their home here and took apartments in the city for the winter, a custom they have followed for a number of years. During their residence here Mr. and Mrs. Eaton had many warm friends, who sincerely mourn his sudden and unexpected death and who extend to his beloved wife and son their sincere sympathy. Besides his widow Mr. Eaton is survived by one son, Levi M. Eaton, and a brother, Harry Eaton of Deland, Florida. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the North Woodward Baptist church, and Palestine Lodge, F. & A. M., conducted the burial services in Woodlawn cemetery.

The Free Press of Tuesday morning said: "Mr. Eaton was born 69 yrs. ago in Windsor, Vt. He removed to Detroit in 1891 and became superintendent for the Winn-Hammond company. Later he became president and general manager of the Peninsular Engraving company, which he organized with John S. Van Alstyne. He also assisted in organizing the Cargill-Peninsular company, Woodward avenue and Erskine street, and the Detroit Rotary Grayure company, in which Frederick Curtis was a partner. The latter company turned out the first rotogravure work done in Detroit.

From May, 1918, to May, 1920, he was employed by the Detroit News. Then he organized the American Photo Gravure company. Mr. Eaton is believed to have originated the use of half-ton cuts with modern printing presses.

SEMI-MONTHLY SHOOT HELD SUNDAY.

The champion of the United Gun club, F. E. Hills, again demonstrated his ability as a "sure enough" target hunter, by winning high average at the regular semi-monthly club shoot, with a score of 45x50. Harry Passage carried away the money in second place with 43 breaks to his credit. J. Hall and L. Cammon tied for first place in the special 18-yard handicap event.

A stiff, cold, wind rendered conditions rather difficult, however, eleven devotees of the sport were in attendance. The following scores were made:

F. Hills	45x50
M. Powell	39x50
H. Passage	43x50
H. Hills	35x50
H. Hall	39x50
L. Cammon	38x50
Special 18-yard handicap
J. Hall	22x25
F. Hills	21x25
L. Cammon	22x50
T. Passage	19x25
M. Powell	19x25

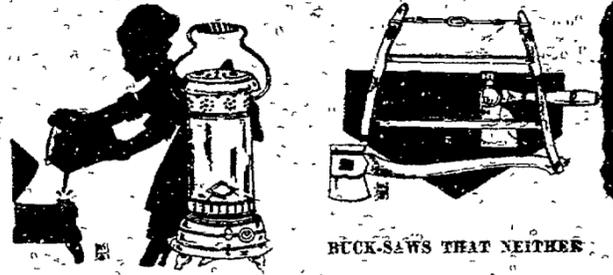

DEEP SPRINGS SOLD.

Newton Annis of Detroit, who has conducted the Deep Springs Water Co. for some years past, has sold his interests to the Silver Springs company who will continue the business. It is reported that the new owners of the Deep Springs will greatly improve the property and will convert the grounds about the building into a park for the accommodation of the public who may desire to drive out from the city and enjoy a picnic in an inviting spot where pure and sparkling water may be obtained in abundance.

After Mr. Annis acquired the Deep Springs property he did a lot of advertising and as a result of his efforts Northville became to be well known in all parts of the city. He has been an enthusiastic booster for Northville and our citizens regret to have him relinquish his holdings here. We are truly grateful for what he has done to put this section "on the map."

FULLER-LENZ.

Howard William Fuller of Detroit, and Miss Margaret Lenz of Redford, were married in Detroit Saturday evening, January 1st, 1921, by Rev. H. A. Quitmeyer. Their attendants were Claire Tower of Detroit, and Miss Martha Wagner of Redford. The happy couple will make their home in Redford. The groom is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Fuller of this village, and a host of good wishes are extended to Mr. Fuller and his bride for a happy wedded life.

WORLD NOT YET NORMAL IN 1920

European Nations, Especially, Are Beset With Troubles During Period of Readjustment.

PRINCIPAL EVENTS REVIEWED

Signature of Senate to Ratify Peace Treaty Leaves United States Technically at War—Presidential Election Holds Interest.

By DONALD F. BIGGS.

The world throughout the year 1920 was passing through the troublesome period of readjustment and reaction which began with the close of the World War. Of all the great powers that had been involved in the conflict, the United States alone remained technically in a state of war with Germany through the failure of the senate to ratify the peace treaty. For all practical purposes, however, the United States was at peace and conditions in this country were more nearly normal than in most of the nations of Europe which had accepted the settlements agreed upon by the peace conference at Paris.

Although the great war had ended, the world was not at peace in 1920. Territorial disputes and jealousies growing out of the war resulted in a large number of minor conflicts. The Irish problem remained unsettled and the situation in the Eastern Isles grew more serious as the year progressed. In the United States, despite minor radical activities and the uncertainties accompanying the readjustment of business and industrial conditions, there was continued prosperity and optimism.

INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

The World War was formally ended January 10 when Germany and fourteen of the powers allied against her in the war exchanged ratifications of the Treaty of Versailles at Paris. The United States, however, was not among the nations participating in this ceremony, as the treaty had not been ratified by the senate.

The League of Nations came into being at Paris January 10 when executive council held its first meeting with representatives from Brazil, England, Italy, France, Greece and Spain participating.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

With continual strife amounting virtually to civil war in Ireland, with sporadic revolutionary outbreaks in Germany, with counter-revolutionary movements developing at intervals in Russia, with civil war in China and with political upheavals in France, Italy, Greece and other countries, the unrest and changing conditions abroad out of the World War were reflected in the disturbed internal conditions of many countries of the old world in 1920.

One of the unexpected political developments of the early days of the year was the failure of Premier Clemenceau to obtain election as president of France upon the expiration of the term of President Poincaré. Poincaré himself was elected on January 17 and the following day, Clemenceau's cabinet resigned. Alexandre Millerand formed a new cabinet at the request of President Poincaré.

DOMESTIC

The year 1920 being a presidential election year, politics held the attention of the people of the United States during the greater part of the year. Senator Warren G. Harding of Ohio was nominated for President by the Republicans at Chicago June 12. The Democratic national convention at San Francisco nominated Governor James M. Cox of Ohio on July 5 on the forty-fourth ballot.

In the election on November 2, the Republican national ticket was elected by an overwhelming majority, receiving 414 electoral votes while the Democratic candidates received 117. The Republicans also won an overwhelming majority in congress.

By winning their long fight for equal suffrage, the women of the country gained the right to vote for all offices in the November election.

LABOR AND INDUSTRIAL

Industrial unrest which manifested itself during the period of reaction immediately following the war, became even more marked during the year 1920. Radical activities were involved in some of the labor disputes in this country, but this was true to a much larger extent in the labor troubles that beset most of the countries of Europe during the greater part of the year.

The first month of the year was marked in the United States by the abandonment of the steel workers' strike which had been begun on September 22.

Railroad traffic was tied up in France, February 27, by a general strike of rail workers. The premier called all the strikers into the city, and two days later the strike was settled by a compromise.

French foreign office surprised the other powers by giving recognition to General Wrangel's de facto government in South Russia.

The Turkish peace treaty was signed on August 10 by all nations concerned except Serbia and the Hedjaz. Soviet Russia continued its effort to make peace with its neighbors by signing a treaty with Latvia and agreeing to armistice terms with Finland.

On October 12 the Poles signed an armistice and preliminary peace treaty with Russia to become effective October 18.

The cessation of hostilities on the Polish front enabled the Bolsheviks to strengthen their other fronts. Directed by Trotsky, the war minister, the Bolsheviks launched a violent offensive on October 31 against the South Russian armies commanded by General Wrangel. They succeeded in smashing General Wrangel's forces and drove on through Crimea.

The Bolshevik forces captured Sebastopol November 14. General Wrangel and the remnants of his army were on board American, French and British warships which steamed out of the harbor as the Bolsheviks entered the city.

An agreement on the Adriatic question was reached November 10 at a conference between the Yugo-Slavs and the Italians and a treaty embodying the agreement was signed at Rapallo two days later.

The Assembly of the League of Nations opened its first session at Geneva November 15. Paul-Hymans of Belgium being elected president.

On November 29 President Wilson accepted an invitation extended by the Council of the League of Nations to act as mediator between Armenia and Turkey.

Two days later the Russian Bolsheviks took Erivan and announced the establishment of a soviet Armenian republic. On December 3 Armenia and the Turkish Nationalists signed a treaty of peace.

Several attempts to secure action on amendments to the covenant of the League of Nations were voted down by the league assembly. Because of this action the Argentine delegates to the assembly withdrew on December 3. On December 1 Austria was admitted to the league, the first of the allies of Germany to be granted membership.

King Alexander of Greece died on October 25 as a result of a bite by a pet monkey, and it was announced that the throne would be offered to Prince Paul, third son of former King Constantine.

Peace in China seemed to be finally assured by a proclamation issued by the government November 1, declaring that there had been a reunion of North and South China and calling for the election of a new parliament.

Pierce rioting between Unionists and Sinn Feiners broke out in North Belfast, Ireland, November 7. Serious disorders were reported also at Londonderry, where five policemen were shot and many shops burned or wrecked. The Irish home rule bill passed the house of commons on its third reading November 11. At Dublin on November 21, following the murder of 14 British officers, a force of troops raided a football game and fired upon the crowd, killing and wounding a large number of persons.

A political upheaval came in Greece with the defeat in the general election on November 14 of the party headed by Premier Venizelos. Premier Venizelos resigned on November 17 and George Ithalis, former premier and leader among the followers of ex-King Constantine formed a new cabinet.

On December 4 the Greek people, in a plebiscite voted for the return of King Constantine. On December 29 Constantine returned to Athens in triumph.

The Irish situation neared a crisis during the closing weeks of the year. Wholesale arrests were made by the British authorities during the last weeks of November, among those taken being Arthur Griffith, former president of the Irish republic and many other Irish leaders. On November 23 Irish plotters set fire to several large warehouses on the Liverpool water front and killed two men. Martial law was proclaimed in south Ireland on December 10 and two days later a large part of the business district of Cork was burned in reprisal. It was claimed, for Sten Fela raids.

The United States Supreme court on January 5 upheld the constitutionality of wartime prohibition and the Volstead enforcement act. On January 18 nationwide prohibition, under the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution, went into effect.

On January 10 the New York assembly, with but two dissenting voices voted to exclude the five Socialist members of that body, pending trial on charges that the platform of their party is revolutionary.

The anti-radical campaign resulted in the indictment of 38 leaders of the Communist Labor party in Chicago on January 21.

The railroads of the country were returned to private operation on March 1 under the terms of the Cummins-Esch railroad reorganization act.

Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan was convicted in the federal court at Grand Rapids on March 20 on charges involving the use of excessive campaign funds. He and 16 defendants were given prison sentences, but remained at liberty pending an appeal to the higher courts.

The trial of the five Socialist members of the New York assembly ended with their expulsion from the legislature April 1.

where he immediately entered upon a hunger strike. Riots and vandalism continued to assume more serious proportions at many points.

In the constitutional election held in Mexico September 5 General Alvaro Obregón was elected president.

President Deschanel of France resigned September 21 because of ill health and on the 23rd Premier Alexandre Millerand was elected to succeed him. Georges Leygues, minister of marine under Clemenceau, became premier.

Further disturbances were reported in Italy during October. On the 13th leaders of the Socialist party and the General Confederation of Labor ordered demonstrations in every town in Italy in an effort to force the Italian government to recognize soviet Russia, and on the following day many persons were killed and wounded in the course of a two-hour strike called as a protest against the arrest of political offenders opposing the allied policy toward Russia. The government began a drive on the 17th to round up all advocates of violence in the country.

After a hunger strike of 74 days, which had drawn the attention of the world, Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, died in Brixton prison, London, October 25. Great pressure had been brought to bear to secure Mayor MacSwiney's release, but the government stood firm in its stand against the hunger strikers.

King Alexander of Greece died on October 25 as a result of a bite by a pet monkey, and it was announced that the throne would be offered to Prince Paul, third son of former King Constantine.

Peace in China seemed to be finally assured by a proclamation issued by the government November 1, declaring that there had been a reunion of North and South China and calling for the election of a new parliament.

The trial of the five Socialist members of the New York assembly ended with their expulsion from the legislature April 1.

Several suits had been instituted during the early months of the year attacking the constitutionality of the eighteenth amendment to the Constitution.

that tribunal decided that the amendment and the Volstead enforcement act were constitutional.

Big increases in rates were granted the railroads of the country by the interstate commerce commission July 31 to enable the roads to meet increased wages. Passenger rates were increased 20 per cent, with a Pullman surcharge of 50 per cent for the railroads. Freight rates were increased from 20 to 40 per cent in different sections of the country.

The trial of the Communist Labor party leaders in Chicago, in progress for several months, ended August 2 with the conviction of 20, who were given life sentences.

The five Socialist assemblymen expelled from the New York legislature in the spring, having been re-elected, were again unseated when the legislature met in special session September 21.

Sharp drops in the prices of cotton, wheat and other farm products brought appeals for assistance from the farmers of the country during the latter part of the year. Night riders appeared in southern states in an effort to force the growers to hold their cotton for a higher price and a movement was started to secure the holding of wheat from the market.

NATIONAL LEGISLATION

The continued fight over the ratification of the treaty of Versailles, resulting in rejection of the treaty for the second time, occupied the attention of the United States senate during the early months of 1920 and monopolized the attention of the public, so far as congressional action was concerned. The Cummins-Esch bill, under which the railroads of the country operated after their return to private control, and the army reorganization bill were the principal pieces of legislation enacted before the first regular session of the Sixty-sixth congress ended June 5.

On January 10, the aged, by a vote of 333 to 6, for the second time refused to seat Victor Berger, Socialist, who had been re-elected to congress from a Milwaukee district after he had been once barred by the house because of his alleged disloyalty during the war.

The Water Power Development bill, which had long been pending in congress, was passed by the senate January 15. A similar bill had been adopted by the house in July, 1919.

Another long congressional fight for the adoption of the Oil Land Leasing bill, was ended when the conference report was adopted by the house on February 10 and the senate two days later.

The senate then turned its attention to the peace treaty. The original Lodge reservations were again adopted, with some amendments. The treaty, with the reservations, came to a vote on March 19, and for the second time failed to secure the requisite two-thirds majority, the vote being 49 to 35. The following day the rejected treaty was sent back to the president.

With no prospect of the early adoption of the treaty, resolutions declaring the war at an end were introduced in both the house and the senate. Both houses adopted the Knox senate resolution. President Wilson vetoed this resolution, however, on May 27.

A few days earlier, on May 24, President Wilson asked the senate for authority to accept the mandate for Armenia that had been offered by the supreme council. On June 1 the senate "respectfully declined" to give the President the authority requested.

On June 3, the house voted, 343 to 3, the repeal of all war laws except the Lever act and the enemy trading act, the measure already having passed the senate, but President Wilson withheld his signature from the act and it died, with several other important measures, with the adjournment of congress. On the day before adjournment, President Wilson vetoed the budget bill which had been passed by both houses.

Congress reconvened on December 8 for the short session. President Wilson in his message, which was read the following day recommended that the Philippines be given their independence.

LABOR AND INDUSTRIAL

Industrial unrest which manifested itself during the period of reaction immediately following the war, became even more marked during the year 1920. Radical activities were involved in some of the labor disputes in this country, but this was true to a much larger extent in the labor troubles that beset most of the countries of Europe during the greater part of the year.

The first month of the year was marked in the United States by the abandonment of the steel workers' strike which had been begun on September 22.

Railroad traffic was tied up in France, February 27, by a general strike of rail workers. The premier called all the strikers into the city, and two days later the strike was settled by a compromise.

Peace was declared between the bituminous coal operators and miners March 31, when they signed a two-year agreement based on an award made by the coal commission named by President Wilson.

An "outlaw" strike of railroad switchmen began in Chicago April 15, and spread rapidly to other parts of the country. Federal officers arrested 39 leaders of the strike in Chicago April 15, on charges of interfering with the mails and violation of the Lever act. On April 19 the normal railroad service was restored, but it would not have been so had it not been for the intervention of the federal government.

five thousand men going on strike because of dissatisfaction with the wage awards made by the coal commission.

The first of a long series of strikes involving Bolshevik activities took place in Italy March 25, when workmen and peasants in Naples and the provinces of Novara, Alexandria, Brescia and Treviso, attempted to establish soviets. Troops restored order and the strike ended within two days.

On May 1 there were riots in Paris, and railway workers struck for nationalization of the railroads. French dock workers and coal miners joined the strike on May 5. The French government took vigorous steps to end the strike, moving to dissolve the General Federation of Labor and characterizing the strike leaders as Bolsheviks. The strikes were called off by the General Federation of Labor on May 21.

The Railway Labor board announced its decision on wage increases on July 20, awarding increases of from 20 to 27 per cent to nearly 2,000,000 employees, the total increase amounting to about $600,000,000 a year, about half the raise that employees had asked. The award was accepted by the railroad unions.

During the latter part of July coal miners again struck in Illinois, Indiana and Kansas, but on July 31 they were ordered back to work, after an appeal had been made by President Wilson.

Serious riots occurred at Denver August 5 in connection with a street car strike, many being killed and injured. Federal troops were ordered to Denver to stop the disorders.

The Railway Labor board made another award August 10, granting an increase amounting to $30,000,000 a year to 75,000 railway express workers.

On August 30 President Wilson approved the majority report of the anthracite wage commission, awarding wage increases of from 17 to 20 per cent. On September 1, anthracite operators and miners signed a two-year contract based on the award, but thousands of men remained on what they termed "vacation" in protest against the award.

Industrial conditions grew more serious in Italy during the late summer and fall. An obstructionist campaign was started by 500,000 workmen on August 22. On August 31, 10 Lombardy metal-working plants were seized by employees and workmen's councils took charge of the plants. On September 11 the workmen's council voted for co-operative management and profit-sharing by the workmen. At the same time the workmen took over 290 chemical works and several textile mills. Premier Giolitti intervened, and on September 19 the employers agreed to his terms of settlement, granting increases of pay retroactive to July 15. The workmen accepted the settlement and ordered the factories returned to the owners.

An industrial crisis was precipitated in England on October 19 by a strike of 3,000,000 coal miners. On the 25th an agreement was reached for an increase in wages, in consideration of a pledge on the part of the miners to help increase production. The strike was called off November 3.

A severe business depression was felt throughout the United States during the closing weeks of the year. The trend toward lower wages was marked by the announcement of the textile mills of New England in December of a reduction in wages amounting to 2 1/2 per cent.

SPORTS

The revival of interest in sporting events of all kinds which was apparent in 1919, following almost a complete suspension of athletic activities during the war, was even more marked in 1920.

The first of five races between Sir Thomas Lipton's Shamrock IV, challenger for the America's cup, and the defender, Resolute, was held off New York July 25. The Shamrock won the first and second races, but the Resolute took the next three, winning the cup on July 27.

Charles Evans, Jr. of Chicago, won the western amateur golf championship July 17, and Jack Hutchinson won the western open golf championship August 5. Edward Ray of England won the American open golf championship August 13. Charles Evans, Jr. won the national amateur golf championship, September 11.

The United States, for the seventh consecutive time, made the biggest score in the Olympic games at Antwerp, Belgium, with 212 points. Finland was second with 105 and Sweden third with 93.

Jack Dempsey retained the heavy weight championship of the world by knocking out Bill Meke in the third round at Benton Harbor, Mich., September 6. Georges Carpentier of France, knocked out Battling Levinsky, October 12, and became light heavy weight champion of the world.

A sensation was caused in the baseball world just before the close of the season by the exposure of a conspiracy by which the world's series of 1919 was "thrown" by the Chicago American league team to the Cincinnati National league team. Seven members of the Chicago team, including several stars, and one former member were accused of accepting bribes, and they later were indicted by a Chicago grand jury. Cleveland won the American league pennant on October 2 and met the Brooklyn club, National league pennant winner, in the world series on October 5. Cleveland won the series by taking the seventh game from Brooklyn, October 12.

A baseball war was threatened by a conflict between clubs of the American league over a player for a season's duration. The war was declared October 12.

board of control was established with Judge Kenesaw S. Landis of Chicago as chairman with an annual salary of $42,500 a year.

Roscoe Saries won the 250-mile automobile race at Los Angeles November 25. In this race Gaston Chevrolet was killed in a collision.

DISASTERS

The world was comparatively free from disasters causing great loss of life during 1920. Tornadoes in Italy and Mexico, caused the greatest destruction.

Several thousand people were reported killed by a violent earth shock in central Mexico January 23, the damage being particularly heavy in the western part of Vera Cruz.

More than 100 persons were killed, many were injured and heavy property damage was caused by tornadoes which swept Georgia, Alabama, Indiana, Ohio and Illinois, March 23.

Three hundred persons were killed by an explosion of a munitions dump at Rottenstein, East Prussia, April 11. Another tornado caused heavy damage in Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi, April 20. More than 150 persons were killed and property valued at $2,000,000 was destroyed.

Fifty-nine persons were killed by a tornado in Cherokee county, Okla., May 2.

Great floods were reported in Japan August 19, with the loss of life.

A severe earthquake, the district north of Florence, Italy, on September 7, destroyed 100 towns and killed about 400 persons.

Disastrous earthquakes occurred in Chile and Central America, December 8, and later in the month.

"I Believe That Every Girl Should Be Trained to Do Something."

By MISS MABEL BOARDMAN, District of Columbia Commissioner.

Do I think a young woman should enter public service provided she has the inclination? That depends upon circumstances; family conditions most always playing a large part in a woman's decision. Her first duty lies at home, and nothing can ever change that.

On the other hand, I believe that every girl—rich or poor—should be trained to do something, either by which she could make a living or by which she could benefit humanity. There is no excuse for an absolutely selfish existence. Every woman, with the possible exception of the young mother with a growing family, should find some opportunity for public service work. I believe in beginning early to educate for citizenship. The children should be made to realize that citizenship means service. I also believe that in the schools girls should be given some special business instruction and, in fact, all possible equipment that will help to fit them for their particular niche in life. What the "particular niche" may be is a hard question to answer. You can't lay down any law because it all depends on the woman herself—the circumstances of her environment, her training, talent and, most important of all, her inclination.

As to the rewards and disappointments of a career of public service, women are young yet in their new field of opportunity. But I believe they are going to be less material than men; that when they go into public service they have bigger objectives and will therefore have bigger rewards. Of course, they will have the same disappointments that men have, added to the sacrifices women have to make when they enter public life that men do not.

As a matter of fact, I believe women are better fitted for municipal positions than they are for national, that their breadth of human sympathy and understanding of civic problems enable them to do a much bigger municipal work. In the Red Cross, for instance, the national work is such a huge undertaking that unless we had given women something to interest them in a local way we never could have moved them.

What the Women of America Are Doing Today to Help Keep Down Unrest.

By REPRESENTATIVE JOHN MAC CRATE of New York.

We have listened to men discuss the burden resting upon officials who administer the financial affairs of the city, state and nation, and we have wondered what these government experts would do were they limited to incomes as are the women of our homes.

Governmental officials are continually exceeding the amount allotted to their departments and congress, too frequently without condemnation, appropriates more. Did the average housewife of America spend what comes to her from the family with the open-handed carelessness of some departmental heads the unjust which we see about us would be multiplied a thousandfold. It is utterly impossible to calculate what the women of America are doing today toward keeping down riot and revolution.

If our efficiency experts in the field of government could make a little go a long way and could adjust expenditures to income as well as do the women of our households, this nation would soon see its indebtedness reduced.

Adequate Punishment for Motorist Who Kills and Then Speeds Away.

By LAMBERT WALTERS, Laredo, Texas.

No punishment could be too severe for an automobilist who kills a person and then deliberately drives away in the hope of escaping. The laws of Texas make this a felony, but there should be a punishment to fit the crime. What is needed is a drastic law, fixing a punishment as severe as can be fixed under the Constitution, for speeders who crash into a pedestrian or another car, kill one or more persons and then speed away.

The law should be so severe that the first person caught after it went into effect would form an example that would deter motorists in the future from taking any chances and, when they do have an accident, from shirking responsibility by running away.

Traffic accidents are largely due to pedestrians. But the accident that happens out on the open road is, with very few exceptions, the fault of the motorist. I hope to see the Texas law in this respect strengthened, and I think every state in the Union would be doing a general good to humanity by passing laws against this practice as drastic as they can be made under the Constitution.

Parcel Post System and the Salary of the Fourth Class Postmaster.

By W. H. BROPHY, National League of Postmasters.

One of the crying needs of the service is a classified civil service status for third and fourth class postmasters. The parcel post system has placed a burden on the postmasters of this class that is all out of proportion to their compensation. Since the parcel post system was established it has grown to gigantic proportions, and in the smaller towns, where a large percentage of buying is done from mail order houses, it forms the bulk of the mail handled.

The present compensation of the fourth-class postmaster is fixed on conditions that existed a half century ago. His pay is based on a percentage of the cancellation of stamps in the outgoing mail. Incoming mail from three to eight times greater than the outgoing mail, and a postmaster gets nothing for handling it. That means that he has three to eight times more work to do free than his paid work.

An adequate wage scale, based on the hours of service required and amount of work performed, is what the National League of Postmasters stands for, and congress will be asked to grant such scale at the next session.

BOX COAT DESERVES PLACE OF HONOR

WHEN in doubt choose a box coat. It might be taken as a safe guide to the purchase of a suit in the late winter. For there is hardly a season within the memory of fashion reporters, which has not offered the box coat among its showings of coat suits, therefore the story of the season's suits may very well begin and end with this particular and always chic style. But the box coat, as for the woman whose carriage is correct, for the upright figure and especially for slenderness.

In the suit pictured, which might be of duvetyn, velours or other suitings in a solid color, the facing box coat model buttons straight up the front in the most approved of fashions. It has pockets and collar of Australian opossum fur, very becoming and cozy looking, and plain coat sleeves finished at the wrist with two cloth covered buttons and button holes.

Except for narrow braid in rows, by which the skirt acknowledges an acquaintance with coming spring styles, there is nothing to say of it that is not told by the picture. In company with this dependably stylish suit, there is an equally efficient coat, as practical and as smart. It is long and double-breasted, has full sleeves and deep turned-back cuffs with fur border. The belt with sash ends of cloth is given character by handsome silk tassels which match up in smart style the deep cape with three bands of fur for ornament. This cap is the pride and glory of a coat which it elevates into the class of the best models and worn with it is a smart satin hat with ornaments at the front and of ostrich, flue.

Niceties of the Toilet

THE woman who gives thought to her coiffure, her hat and her dress accessories is about sure of success in the matter of her toilette, whether it is made for the everyday occupations of life or for high occasions. More than half the battle is won for street dress when the coiffure and hat are all that they should be, and it is the niceties of the costume that give it a flavor which cannot be overlooked. Old father Christmas brought in a huge pack of purely personal gifts for dainty women this year, which is worth while reviewing in order to become acquainted with the mode in accessories. Leaving out jewels of all kinds there are left gloves, hose, fans, belts, neckwear, handkerchiefs, hand bags, veils, umbrellas, scarfs and many other things that give the costume character.

Among fans, those of curled or uncurled ostrich with dark shell sticks, hold the lead as the favorites of fashion. From two to seven plumes, in a variety of colors, are used for making one of these rich belongings and they may be had in jade, orchid, sapphire, turquoise, orange, flesh color, black and red or ordered in any other colors. Another lovely accessory of ostrich feathers to be worn with evening frocks, appears in bracelets for bare arms, made of ribbon and dyes. They are made to be worn on the arm just above the elbow.

Next to handkerchiefs, gloves and neckwear rank in importance, simply because they are so universal. Neckwear is a story by itself, but one of the new items in it appears in the round collar and vestee pictured above. This is made of fine net, Venice lace insertion and Val edging as shown by the photograph and is a simple matter for the home needle worker to handle. It is to be made by hand.

In gloves, washable varieties for street wear and ever-increasing favor, white doeskin fastening with pearl buttons standing at the peak of daintiness. They are rivaled by gray cloth gloves of a suede-like texture, woven with lining in a contrasting tint and fastened with strap and slide. Gauntlet and slip-on styles are in great demand. A very handsome pair of French glace kid is shown in the picture with Van Dyck points and back stitching in black. White gloves are often finished with tan or beige instead of black and divide honors with gray gloves in popularity.

(A 1920 Western Newspaper Union.)

"The only reason a room is good, as every wanderer knows, is just because of the homes, the homes, the homes, to which it goes."

SEASONABLE GOOD THINGS

This is the season when young and old turn to the candy recipes. Try putting into the hot fudge, just as it is taken out, as much crisp cornflakes as the mixture will take.

With a few nuts this makes a most palatable and good candy, one which may be given the children without worry.

Brown Sugar Fudge.—To two cups of brown sugar add three-fourths of a cup of cream, or one-fourth of a cup of condensed milk and half a cup of hot water; stir until the sugar is dissolved; cover and cook three minutes; add one tablespoonful of butter and one-fourth of a cup of cocoa or two squares of chocolate, and let cook, scraping from the sides to avoid grains forming. When the soft ball stage has been reached, beat in the cornflakes, which have been well crisped in a hot oven. If for children, the nuts are better omitted. Maple flavoring or maple sugar may be used in place of the brown sugar if desired.

Chocolate Fudge.—Take two cups of granulated sugar, one-half cup of milk, one-third of a cup of karo syrup, two tablespoonfuls of butter and two squares of chocolate. Put all together into a granite saucepan and cook to the soft ball stage. Let cool until ready to stir, add vanilla and nuts, if used; stir until creamy; pour into the buttered pans and mark off in squares before it becomes too hard.

Drop Cakes.—Take one cupful each of sour cream and brown sugar, two cupfuls of flour, one egg, well beaten one-half cupful of dates, chopped, one teaspoonful each of soda and cinnamon and salt, one-half teaspoonful of cloves. Drop by spoonfuls on buttered sheets.

Cream of Chestnut Soup.—Shell, blanch and cook one pint of chestnuts until tender, then press through a sieve. To two cupfuls of the chestnut pulp and salt, pepper, one cupful each of cream and milk, two tablespoonfuls each of butter and flour cooked together. Add the ingredients and stir until smooth. Serve hot.

Pralines.—Take a pound of brown sugar and one cupful of boiling water. Dissolve the sugar in the water and boil four minutes, put in a pound of shelled hazel nuts and boil until the syrup is thick. Remove from the fire and stir until they are well covered. Now return the nuts to a slow fire and stir until the sugar is melted, then remove and stir again. Turn out on an oiled plate or parchment paper.

If you've found a task worth doing, do it now. In delay there's danger brewing, do it now. Don't say he's a by and byer. And a slacker's path me tryer. If there's a chance to do it, do it now.

HOW TO USE MARSHMALLOWS

A meringue which has a half dozen marshmallows added to the top just as it goes to the oven has an indefinable flavor that exceeds the palate.

The appearance and flavor of many an otherwise common dish is enhanced by the addition of a few marshmallows.

An apple pie made of thickened, sweetened and spiced apple sauce put into a baked shell and served with a covering of marshmallows, browned as a meringue, is delicious.

Cream pie is greatly improved by the addition of a few marshmallows added just before spreading the meringue.

Corn starch pudding, chocolate pudding, are both improved by the addition of a handful of marshmallows. Chocolate pie is especially good covered with marshmallows. Instead of a meringue.

Fudge, cream candy and boiled icing stay creamy and moist much longer if marshmallows are added to them. Drop them into the hot mixture and beat as usual; if the marshmallows are fresh they will melt at once.

Plain cookies, vanilla wafers or crackers are transformed into toothsome little cakes by topping them with a marshmallow and setting into the oven to melt and brown a little.

Hot chocolate or cocoa are both improved by one or two marshmallows dropped into the cup just as it is served.

Gingerbread or sponge cake, cut in two while hot and filled with marshmallows, put together and placed in the oven until they melt, makes a most delectable dessert.

Dates and prunes stuffed with chopped nuts and minced marshmallows make a good confection.

Mixed in the salad dressing with whipped cream, a fruit salad is greatly improved. If mixed with the fresh fruit and allowed to stand several hours the marshmallows are softened and the flavor is better.

DRIVEWAY AND WALK IN ONE

Effective Combination Shown Here Is the Idea of Wideswaks Los Angeles Man.

Once a Los Angeles man bought a new colonial house with a small garage at the rear. There was neither a driveway leading to the garage nor steps leading to the house entrance. The house was so new that only the lawn in front had been finished.

It was up to the owner to finish the job. But labor and building materials were costly, the owner was not a rich man, and he had already spent several thousand dollars on the venture.

So he developed an entirely new scheme. He built his driveway and sidewalk together, putting a flight of short steps, two and one-half feet wide, between the driveway strips, making the whole a solid piece of cement work. At each side he built a retaining wall to hold the lawns in place.

At the top of the steps a narrow walkway branches off, leading to the front porch of the house.

The general scheme is decidedly effective, and the owner says he saved considerable money in labor and material by building in combination rather than by putting in a separate driveway and walkway. Pictures of this driveway with steps in place of the usual grass strip is shown above. Popular Science Monthly.

BENEFIT IN TOWN PLANNING

Unreasonable to Think That, Without Guidance, Events Will Shape Themselves to Best Advantage.

Town planning, city planning and country planning as well as the planning of national highways, waterways, and so on, have made it more and more evident during the last few years that, though the earth can be depended upon to turn right upon its axis, things upon the earth cannot profitably be left just to grow like topsy. There is a vast difference between a river running wild and one laden with shipping and furnishing valuable water power; between a road determined as to course by a lowpath, following the direction of least resistance, and one that serves to the utmost the interests of those who use it; between national park areas where certain selfish interests have encroached and those in which playground and beauty have been faithfully maintained; between a community where every private interest has fought for power and place, and one where residents, merchants, manufacturers and public have received just consideration in view of the interests of all. It is even as the difference between the seeds planted by the farmer according to the fundamentals of good gardening and those which grow as they may in the thicket by the fence. Flower Boxes Instead of Trees

The shores of New England, all the way from southern Connecticut, which is almost suburban to New York city, to the farthest reaches of the rocky Maine coast, abound in villages whose natural beauty, especially very near the water, is marred by their paucity of foliage, for trees do not thrive close to the ocean. Of late years there has grown up, particularly in the communities which have a summer influx of visitors, a determination to beautify the barren treeless spots by a typically English device of the flower box. Hundreds of summer cottages, properties which would, by reason of their lack of shade trees, look bare and commonplace, achieve a sort of real distinction by having porch rails and window sills present to the eye of the beholder a luxuriant growth of trailing plants in red boxes, studded perhaps with multi-colored nasturtiums. THE GREAT GIFT.

It seemed somewhat strange that just at the season when all were thinking of the happy reunions and family gatherings held on the anniversary of the birth of the Christ Child, and while our hearts were still warmed by the gifts we received and the gifts we made to others, that there should arrive from overseas the remains of two of Northville's boys who made the great white gift for their country...

lected superintendent of the Sunday school, with Valborg Neilson as clerk and Mary Daly, treasurer. The Ladies' aid re-elected Mrs. Flora Larkins president, Mrs. Levi Eaton, treasurer and Mrs. Robert Thompson, clerk. During the year twenty-one new members were added to the membership of the church. The church has no debts whatever. Nearly seven hundred dollars were given to missions and other benevolences and there has been a very gratifying increase in the financial income for current expenses. Considerable improvements to the property are contemplated next spring.

BURGERS VISITED PARMENTER HOME.

Some time Saturday night before midnight burglars entered the residence of W. A. Parmenter while the family was away and made a pretty big clean-up. They took $110 in currency, three $100 Liberty bonds and two checks and made their get-away without leaving any clue. The burglary was not discovered until after midnight when members of the family returned home.

NEED A LARGER HALL.

Judging from the manner in which the Foresters' hall was crowded last Friday night at the New Year's party and pot-luck supper given by Court Northville, the organization will have to provide a larger hall to accommodate all who desire to attend its numerous social gatherings. After the supper, which was served at tables loaded with good things, an old-time dance was enjoyed until the arrival of the new year and for some time afterwards, because some of the Foresters, once having started could not stop until they had danced with every lady present. When the new year dawned, a bell tolled twelve and this was the signal for uproarious hilarity among the guests. The gathering was just a great, big family affair and every one present had a good time.

W. R. C. NOTES—INSTALLATION NOTICE.

The joint installation of the officers elect of Allen M. Harmon Post and W. R. C. will be held at the usual meeting place, Wednesday, January 12th, at 2:30 p.m.

In addition to the invitations issued, each member has been recorded the privilege of inviting "one" guest. This will give those interested an opportunity of viewing a branch of our work. A banquet will be served, and members' contributions for the installation ceremony.

RAY RICHARDSON RESIGNS HIS POSITION AT CONDENSERY.

The news became current about town the first of the week that Ray Richardson had resigned his position with the Northville Condensing Co. owing to ill health and would take a needed rest before entering other business enterprises which he has in mind. With the retirement of Mr. Richardson there will be no change in the policy of the company and it is expected that Harley Warner or Farmington will take his place. Mr. Richardson has felt the need of getting out of the daily grind of the business for some time, but has continued until some one could be secured to relieve him.

THE RICHARDSON INTEREST IN THE PLANT WILL REMAIN JUST AS IT HAS SINCE THE INDUSTRY WAS TAKEN OVER BY MESSRS. T. G. RICHARDSON AND F. M. WARNER EIGHTEEN YEARS AGO.

The business for the first year under the new management was between thirty-five and forty thousand, while for the year just closed the output of the condensery amounted to about $365,000. Mr. T. G. Richardson will continue to give the business the same attention he has devoted to its affairs all these years and thus its future success will be assured and our dairymen will continue to have a good market for the products of their herds, and be assured that the same liberal policy that has always won their patronage and confidence during past years will be continued. The product of the local plant has steadily grown in popularity until it has reached a point where it is impossible to supply all the demands of those who would like to avail themselves of the "R & W." brand of milk and milk products. The condensery has been a splendid industry for Northville and The Record is pleased to announce that there will be no changes in its business policy.

RAY RICHARDSON'S MANY FRIENDS IN THIS SECTION WILL JOIN THE RECORD IN HOPING FOR A SPEEDY RECOVERY AND THAT HE WILL BE ABLE TO INTEREST HIMSELF IN SOME ENTERPRISE THAT WILL NOT PROVE QUITE SO ARDUOUS AND CONFINING.

SPECIAL TAX NOTICE.

Many of those who have been exempt from taxation heretofore, have a small tax to pay this year, to which they should give their attention. The extra three per cent will not be added until after the 14th inst.

At the regular meeting of the village council, held Monday evening, the following resolutions on the death of William J. Lanning were unanimously adopted.

WHEREAS, It has pleased God to call from life's duties and activities our esteemed co-worker and fellow-citizen, William J. Lanning, Be it Resolved, That in the death of Mr. Lanning, we feel that this village has lost a faithful and efficient official, one who was ever ready and willing to assist every cause having for its object the welfare and advancement of the whole community.

RESOLVED, That we commend his labors in behalf of this village as worthy of emulation and as members of this council we mourn his passing with a feeling of personal bereavement. He was public spirited, aggressive, careful and painstaking in the discharge of his duties; he was a valued friend and co-worker; he possessed a kindly heart and a spirit of companionship which greatly endeared him to all who enjoyed his acquaintance.

As a public official he gave himself unreservedly to the task of rendering faithful service, and in all his business relations he was honorable and upright, fair and just.

RESOLVED, further, That a copy of these resolutions be sent to the devoted and beloved wife of the deceased, to whom we extend our sincere sympathy in her great sorrow, and that a copy be transcribed upon the official proceedings of this meeting, and that they be published apart from the regular minutes of the council.

PARENT-TEACHERS' MEETING.

Do not forget that the next meeting of the Teachers' and Parents' association will be held on Tuesday evening, January 11th. In order to arouse a little excitement, a debate has been arranged on the subject: "Resolved that a Vocational Education is of more benefit to society than a Cultural Educational." Mr. Fred Cochran will lead the affirmative while Mr. Charles A. Dolph will defend the negative. Thirty minutes will be allowed each leader to present his case. After this, the meeting will be open for discussion. Take either side and argue for your conviction.

STRANGE ANIMAL

By MURIEL GOODWIN.

(In 1920, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Down the country road, as fast as the little fat legs could carry him, the yellow curls blowing in the breeze, the blue eyes saucer-size with mysterious knowledge, bounded little Tony. When he was within a few yards of a pretty rose-covered cottage, a tall, blue-gowned woman appeared at the door.

"Why are you running this hot day?" she asked.

"Tony stopped panting for breath. "Where's Dick?" he asked at last. "Dick was his little cousin next door."

"I should think you ought to know," answered the woman. "I am going to have (company this afternoon, and I don't want you two to get into mischief," she added as she disappeared within.

"Just then an overcast boy came around the corner. Tony rushed to him, his forehead on his lips. Then the two youngsters slipped down the road together talking in low tones.

"I tell you what," whispered Tony. "If you could only get that tall hat, everything'd be great."

"But it might get hurt," ventured Dick.

"Pooh!" was Tony's scornful reply. "You can put it right back after."

"Oh, all right," nodded Dick, after some more urging. "But I don't want to lose my supper tonight. I saw Susie making raspberry tarts this morning."

"Rumph," grunted Tony, contemptuously. "You're meant for a girl. I wish we won't lose our supper if we're careful—million see can eat more breakfast in the morning."

"Well, I'll get that hat," interrupted Dick, as he turned in at the gate.

An hour later a tall, blue-gowned woman was serving lemonade to the members of the Ladies' Aid on her rose-covered piazza.

"It was the strange creature," the demure lady was saying.

"Oh, tell us about it," smiled the fat lady with the pompadour.

"Well," continued the first speaker. "Hope told it in her new book. You see, she's been interested in some newology, and she's been reading all about it. This was a new animal discovered in India. It was very interesting, with a high flat back and a very long tail, and almost no perceptible head."

"Merces" cried the postmistress's fifth wife in the homeliest dress. "What's that in the road?"

All eyes turned toward the road, and the strange animal was forgotten.

"Why, Mrs. Dolan," exclaimed the hostess. "It looks like a bundle someone has dropped. And did that animal really have no head?" she asked, turning to the demure lady.

"Hope read three or four pages before she found that the head was contained under a..."

"Heavens!" shrieked Mrs. Dolan. "That thing just jumped!"

The demure lady has veered at the second interruption. Everyone looked toward the road; there was surely a small dark object in the middle of the road, but was too far away to be seen distinctly. In a moment it gave a slight jump.

"What did I tell you?" gasped Mrs. Dolan.

A few more gasps came from the group. The hostess rose and said she would investigate. Several started to join her—but being more timid than brave, settled back in their chairs as the tall, blue-gowned woman started toward the road.

"Mrs. Dolan still gazed at the road. Her eyes grew big with wonder. "Do you suppose it had a high, flat back and no perceptible..."

"Once again the demure lady was the center of attention.

"Why, perhaps—" began one shrill voice.

"It has a high, flat back—" ventured another.

By this time the ladies were so excited they rose as one person to go down toward the road. Their hostess had almost reached the jumping object. She reached it! It jerked sideways—Mrs. Dolan caught her breath! Now the tall lady stooped and reached out her hand.

"How does she dare to touch it?" whispered one of the group.

Then the tall lady grasped the object, picked it up and held it aloft.

Mrs. Dolan sank to the ground; the rest of the group hurried to the road. There they saw the tall lady with a knowing look on her face holding a tall silk hat in her hand and looking down at a huge load.

"Well, of all—" squealed a member of the Ladies' Aid.

Behind the grape arbor in the next yard crouched Tony and Dick.

"And those raspberry tarts will be all gone by tomorrow," signed Dick.

"You were meant for a girl," said Tony in a voice of contempt.

The Reason.

"Why did you hit Cholly over the head without provocation?"

"Because when I said I was lucky at poker somebody told me to rap on wood quick, and there was no thing else handy."

Logical Surmise.

"What kind of history," Henry prodding for his answer?"

"Talking by his knowledge over it, I should say it was profane history."

Mr. Austin was born at Howell, Mich., and Mrs. Austin at Salem, Mich. Their many friends join in wishing that they may tread this happy pathway of life well up to the five score years.

DETROIT THEATRE.

Theatre-goers will be afforded a spirited evening of dramatic entertainment when Marguerita Silva appears at the Garrick theatre next Sunday evening, in H. H. Frazee's production of "The Songbird," a new comedy with music, written by Frederic and Fanny Hatton, who have lent gaiety and delight to tired folk through many charming comedies they have provided for public amusement. One of the unforgettable Hatton plays was "The Great Lover," the plot of which found evolution behind the footlights. And now comes "The Songbird," which being provided for one who has reached the zenith of fame as a prima donna, a great art which she shares in equal proportion to acting ability, there are hints of a stage love story which will be made all the more delightful for theatre-goers by being played by an artist who can thrill us with real thrills of Aeolian delight.

Out-of-town theatre-goers who make a practice of seeing only the best attractions presented in Detroit, will be interested in the announcement that the Shubert-Detroit will offer for one week beginning next Sunday night the Messrs. Shubert's magnificent $100,000 revival of "Florodora."

An attraction of this magnitude and importance is of rare occurrence in the annals of Detroit theatrical history and the cities obtaining this attraction, this year are singularly fortunate as but 20 weeks have been allowed to its tour of the country, ten of them being taken by Chicago.

"Florodora" comes to Detroit en route to the western city and almost directly following its phenomenal run at the Century theatre in New York City.

Objectionable Film.

PLAIDS AND PLAITS

Designs of plaid skirts have revealed in the combination of plaids and plaits this season and varied the pleasing pastime by exercising their ingenuity on stripes and plaits. Every sort of plait is employed to beguile in interesting and sometimes surprising fashions out of familiar plaids and stripes and if the separate skirt needed anything to further its cause it could not ask better help than the present vogue for plaits.

One of these attractive skirts shown here, employs knife plaits at the front and back, leaving a plain panel at each side, with kindness storebought, for those women who adore slender lines.

Birds and Beasts.

Curiously enough many birds, instead of fearing traps, develop a fondness for them, probably because they find them a source of ample food which can be secured without doing it to themselves. While this trait is generally something of a nuisance to the trapper, it often is of great assistance. It is believed that birds, having learned to recognize traps, will be apt to go to them for food in the course of their migrations and when caught, will furnish material for ornithologists' reports.

Day by Day.

Every day is a little life and our whole life is but a day repeated. Those, therefore, that live less a day are dangerously prodigal; those that dare mispend it, desperate.—Bibb's Ball.

Detroit's New Sanitarium Being Erected in The Northville Hills Will Accomplish Much.

The Detroit News of Sunday contained the following article by its special correspondent, Ruth I. Downer, regarding the new sanitarium being built in the hills west of this village.

Detroit's tuberculosis death rate will soon be lowered. By isolating a fraction and 300 cases is merely a fraction of the number of cases of tuberculosis in this city, the health department is making its first big stride forward in combating its most deadly enemy, the white plague, according to Dr. Henry F. Vaughan, commissioner of health.

The fight will begin next July 1st, when it is expected that the new Detroit Tuberculosis Sanitarium, now in course of construction at Northville will be opened. The patients to be treated will be those who cannot afford a physician and whose home accommodations do not permit the isolation required in the treatment of such cases. They will be given care that will equal the treatment of prosperous out-patients, because theirs will be institutional care with experts in attendance to treat them at all times.

The new sanitarium is located near Northville and occupies a portion of the 800-acre site purchased by the city nearly two years ago. Plans for the hospital were started September 15, 1918, and were completed last February.

The location was selected by Dr. Francis Duffield and Dr. James W. Inches, who was at that time commissioner of health. The building of the sanitarium started April 15, 1920. The institution will consist of eight distinct units, located on the brow of a miniature range of hills which form an amphitheater and afford excellent views of the surrounding country.

A single room for each patient will be the rule. "Porches will be so constructed that they will not shade the rooms at any time of the day. No treatment facilities will interfere with the lighting of the room. The architects have aimed in their plans to give each room a southern exposure. They succeeded in planning the buildings so that there are more rooms with southern exposure than any institution of its kind in the country.

When completed, the cost will total $2,000,000. The layout of the building, the accurate details in the work of construction, the scenery and the layout of the roads all reflect the anxiety of William H. Maybury, of the health board, who has been on the grounds each day since construction work started.

Dr. Albert H. Garvin will be the superintendent of the sanitarium. Dr. Garvin was chosen for this office after a country-wide search had been made by the health board to obtain the services of a man suited to the needs of the tuberculosis situation in this city. Dr. Garvin came here from Raybrook hospital, New York. He held the rank of major in the medical corps of the United States army during the war and was chief of the tuberculosis bureau for the American Red Cross in France.

It was Dr. Garvin who conceived the idea of constructing the new institution of which he is the head, so that each patient could benefit by isolation. He combined the single-room and porch idea which is an adaptation of the Scapée-Fenstein plan, with the French design which he adopted after his knowledge of French institutions.

"This sanitarium is an innovation in public health work," said Dr. Garvin. "No other city in the country may boast a public sanitarium as modern as this one.

Climate conditions could be no more perfect for the treatment of tuberculosis than those at Northville. Mild and enervating climate was never selected for the cure of the disease. It is the rigorous and stimulating climate of this state and the ideal location selected for the hospital that will make the Michigan death rate so low that it will be the envy of the rest of the country.

By providing with city patients the curative results of treatment in this state, the health department hopes to sufficiently dent the problem so that those who are able to pay for treatment will not consider a change of climate a necessary factor in the cure of the disease.

Each patient will be treated, according to the nature of his case. He will be sent from the hospital only after he has been pronounced cured or physically able to care for himself if his condition is found to have reached the incurable stage."

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME Aiding Poland

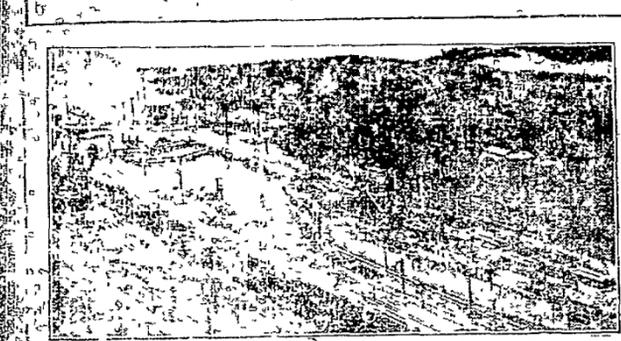

But for the work of American Red Cross agents in all regions of Poland during the last twelve months, hundreds of thousands of people in that tragic country today would be under the sod, victims of hunger, disease and exposure. The job in Poland is one of tremendous proportions and cannot be abandoned for many months to come. Here is a typical scene: A Red Cross worker "at the throttle" of a soup kitchen where hundreds of undernourished women and children are fed daily.

U.S. NAVY The Happy Life.

Not worried very much about the high cost of living, are they? And why should they be? Jack gets the same amount of meat, sugar or potatoes at present day prices as when they cost only one-third as much. Add the Canteens on board and you can't buy cigars, tooth powder, shaving soap, and all his other needs at cost, plus only ten per cent profit. This profit goes into an athletic and entertainment fund, furnishing him with movie films, athletic equipment, and other play time necessities, for nothing. It's a hard life, that's the reason the fellows in the picture look so worried.

THE U.S. NAVY Passing Through the Canal.

The U. S. S. Wyoming and the U. S. S. New Mexico are shown here passing through the Panama Canal locks of the Panama Canal. The entire channel along the side of the locks are called "mules" in deference to the fact that the vessels are— they have just hauled the battleship down the locks. The locks are operated by machinery you might figure out how many men it would take to do the job. The Wyoming at the left is now about to the lower level, and as soon as the water in the upper level is set out to the correct level the New Mexico will no longer need it. This picture was taken from a U. S. Navy flying boat, during the recent trip of the Enterprise to the West Coast. They were royally received at all of the ports along the trip.

THE AMERICAN RED CROSS IN PEACE TIME Disease Prevention

Health Service: The American Red Cross has begun a national effort in co-operation with established organizations to amount of preventable disease and physical defects found. Education is its most powerful weapon. This picture shows a typical health service being rendered and mothers instructed.

An Appeal to the American People

THREE and one-half million children in Eastern and Central Europe have no alternative to disaster between now and next harvest except American aid. For months, these most helpless sufferers in the track of war have been admitted to American feeding-stations only if tragically undernourished, and have received American medical aid only if desperately threatened by death from disease.

One 5 cent hot American meal today has saved a thousand lives. Winter is closing down. The money of many nations is valueless outside their own boundaries. Economic and crop conditions make famine, with its terrible train of diseases, a certain visitor until next harvest. Inevitably the helpless children will suffer most. No child can grow to health and sanity on the pitiful makeshifts for food with which millions of European adults must content themselves this winter. It is obvious that the remedy can come only from outside.

America saved 6,000,000 European children winter before last. Normal recuperation of the need nearly in half last year, but unusual conditions have resulted in scant shrinkage of child desertion during the twelvemonth just past. The response of America must now decide whether 3,500,000 of these charges, in acute distress, shall begin to be turned away in January from more than 17,000 asylums, hospitals, clinics and feeding stations dependent on American support. There would be no tragedy in history so sweeping or so destructive of those who can deserve no evil.

The undersigned organizations, working among every race and creed, many engaged also in other forms of relief, agree unanimously that the plight of these helpless children should have complete priority in overseas charity until the situation is met. This is an issue without politics and without religious lines. There can be no danger of pauperization, for the $23,000,000 for child food, and the $10,000,000 for medical service that we seek, will relieve only the critical cases. The medical supplies, of course, must be an unqualified gift, but for every American dollar used in child-feeding, the governments and communities aided furnish two dollars in the form of transportation, rent, labor, clerical help, cash contributions and such food supplies as are locally obtainable.

America has not failed in the past in great heartedness. She has never had a more poignant call than this. Contributions should be turned over to the local committees which are now being formed for this national collection, or sent to Franklin K. Lane, Treasurer, Guaranty Trust Co., New York City.

It's an Uphill Pull for Polish Boys

Bare feet and tattered clothes, little to eat and less to wear, such is the fate of thousands of children in central and eastern Europe. These boys in Poland are only a sample of the 3,700,000 destitute youngsters that the European Relief Council plans to help through the cold days of the coming winter. To that end eight great organizations in America have merged to form the Council, the chairman of which is Herbert Hoover. Under his leadership the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A. are pledged to cooperate jointly to raise $23,000,000 to help the European children over the hill.

Heart-Breaking Smiles

There are thousands of kinds of smiles, but it would be mighty hard to picture even in the mind's eye smiles more poignantly tragic than those here seen. Two years of life have held little save misery for these Vienna youngsters, yet, even though the result is painful, they smile. They are victims of famine; the offspring of year-starvation, and that countless others in stricken Europe may not have to share their fate, eight American relief organizations, under the name of the European Relief Council, are making a joint appeal for the conscience of America to complete relief work which this winter faces its crisis. These agencies are the American Relief Administration, the American Red Cross, the American Friends Service Committee (Quakers), the Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, the Knights of Columbus, the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

Help Wanted.

Big opportunity of advancement for any trapper or collector of furs who has been selling or shipping their furs anywhere else. This is not as much money as I paid for furs last season, but why should a good capable trapper be idle? Just a little money as good as a lot of credit when it comes to paying the bills. We certainly will be with old age if we live to ever see the prices paid again for furs that were paid last season. Come on, get busy, and help me fill an order for 5,000 rats, 10,000 skunk, 100 mink, 100 coon, while I have a good price to offer my profit is nothing compared to what it was last season, although I am glad to have the following prices to offer you:

RATS—$1.00, 75c, 50c, 25c.
SKUNK—$2.00, $2.00, $1.00, 50c.
MINK—$8.00, $6.00, $4.00, $2.00.
COON—$3.00, $3.50, $2.50, $1.50.
HIDES, 6cts per lb. Horse Hides, $2.50.

Forget the past, and start the New Year with a little pep, you will live just as long and die just as happy. Help get the world back on its foundation.

BACK BAD TODAY?

Backache is usually kidney-ache and makes you dull, nervous and tired. Use Doan's Kidney Pills for weak kidneys—the remedy recommended by your friends and neighbors. Ask your neighbor!

James W. Kator, retired farmer, Main street, Northville, says: "I have always had the best of satisfaction through the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. They always relieved me when suffering from attacks of kidney trouble. Now and then, I overexert myself and it usually brings on trouble with my back. My back would ache considerably, just over my kidneys, and my kidneys wouldn't act regularly, either. I always go to the Northville Drug Co. at these times and get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills. I use them for awhile and the troubles become corrected. I recommend Doan's at every opportunity."

Price 60c at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Kator had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

MANY OAKLAND COUNTY WOMEN REACHED.

One department of the work of the Oakland county farm bureau deserving of particular attention, say members is that of the home agent, and has been conducted since February 1, 1920, and has been conducted since that time by Miss Eva Carrett, of Niles, Mich., former home agent of Cass county, and a teacher of some economics of wide experience.

During the 11 months the department has been in operation, Miss Carrett has taken into the hive of some 6,000 farm women many of the latest ideas of home management and operation, has taught them to design and remodel their own clothing, to make the burdens of farm house work much lighter, to make their poultry flocks more productive, and to construct for themselves at insignificant cost, fireless cookers, dress forms, and other much needed conveniences.

The matters most carefully studied by the community groups organized under Miss Carrett's leadership are food, clothing, home management and conveniences, canning, and culling of poultry flocks.

During the year she superintended the organization of nine different study groups in the county, gave 18 demonstrations of the various branches of this work and attended about 100 meetings of these groups, at which she was able to get into close contact with over 6,000 women. To do this work that has meant so much to the farm woman, she has traveled in her motor car an approximate total of 10,000 miles.

Work Costs Little
All of this work has been accomplished at but a very small cost to the Oakland county farm bureau, expenses of about $450. The remainder of the expense of the department is represented by Miss Carrett's salary, which is paid by the federal, state and county governments. Pontiac Press.

Seamen's Watches.

In the time division of the 24 hours of the day into watches on board ships at sea there are five watches of four hours each and two of two hours, every watch having its distinctive name. Beginning at noon, the afternoon watch is from 12 m to 4 p. m.; first dog watch, 4 p. m. to 6 p. m.; second dog watch, 6 p. m. to 8 p. m.; night watch, 8 p. m. to 12 midnight; middle watch, 12 midnight to 1 a. m.; forenoon watch, 1 a. m. to noon.

TWENTY-FIVE YEARS AGO

Items taken from The Record files of 1896, for the week corresponding to this week.

E. H. Priest was the guest of Detroit relatives, Sunday.

Mrs. L. L. Brooks and Mrs. H. Yerkes visited in Detroit this week.

F. R. Beal left last evening for Chicago on business for the Globe company.

Rev. and Mrs. Seth Reed were Northville visitors this week on their way home from Washington to their new home in Flint.

Miss Carolyn Babbitt, who has been spending the holiday vacation at home has returned to her studies at Mrs. Noble's, Detroit school.

Nelt Francisco of Wayne took a boarder last week for a short time. The boarder took Nelt's gold watch for a long time—also a dozen silver dollars.

Marshall Macomber lodged eighteen "Hobos" at the corporation lodging house last month and so far this month has cared for five. A good wood pile would be a proper thing to provide as a breakfast appetizer for them.

A well known farmer living not far from the village said to The Record Monday as he paid his subscription for another year: "The Record doesn't cost me anything. Why? I get my money back every week by reading the advertisements and then taking advantage of the special prices offered."

FARM WAGES CLIMB 196 P. C. IN 10 YEARS.

Wages paid farm workers in Michigan during 1920 were the highest in the state's history, being 130% more than 10 years ago, or 86% more than five years ago, according to Verne H. Church, agricultural statistician of the Co-Operative Crop Reporting Service. Mr. Church's report says:

The farm hand who receives $28 a month and-board in 1910, received $29.40 in 1916, $34 in 1917, $37.50 in 1918, $42 in 1919 and $58 in 1920. The farm hand who boarded himself received $43 in 1910, $39.60 in 1916, $47 in 1917, $52.50 in 1918, $60 in 1919 and $76 in 1920.

Day labor shows a slightly larger gain during the same period. For ordinary labor, with board the average price in 1920 was 170% higher than in 1910, 105% higher than in 1916, and 18% higher than in 1919. For harvest labor the increases were 150%, 97% and 17%, respectively, for the same years.

The market movement of population from the rural districts to the cities has been responsible for the great scarcity of farm labor. In some communities not a single day laborer was available last summer.

NEW FARM ACCOUNTING BOOK READY AT M. A. C.

A revised and enlarged farm account book, which offers a record of facilities for keeping a business record of all operations on the farm, is ready for distribution at the Michigan Agricultural college. The book, which is a revision of what is known as Farmer's Account Book No. 1, has been edited by H. M. Enot, Farm Management Demonstrator at M. A. C.

Further announcements were made to the effect that the account book would not be ready for distribution until late in January, but delivery from the printer began last week—about a month ahead of schedule.

Farmers can get the books at cost, forty-five cents each, by writing to H. M. Enot, M. A. C., East Lansing, and requesting revised account book number one. A request that payment for the books be made by money order or check, rather than by stamps, has been made by the college authorities, who have found themselves buried under an avalanche of surplus postage on similar occasions in the past.

SHERIFF COFFIN APPOINTS WOMEN DEPUTIES.

Five women were sworn in Friday last as deputy sheriffs to serve under Sheriff Coffin during the term beginning Saturday. In making known his intention of placing women on his staff, the sheriff said they would not be sent out on "strong arm" errands, but held in reserve for cases involving their own sex or for investigation for which such women deputies would be particularly adaptable.

The women deputies are Miss Marian Rose, Mrs. Mary Lents, Mrs. Dora Deross, Mrs. Elizabeth Litchfield and Mrs. Mamie McGreebie.

CAN WAYNE COUNTY SELL ABSTRACTS?

The right of Wayne county to sell abstracts was argued before the state supreme court Wednesday by Paul W. Voorhies, prosecutor.

The circuit court recently held the county has a right to establish an abstract department, but cannot sell abstracts.

Voorhies has been busy on an appeal for several weeks.

LAW-MAKERS TO DISCUSS STATE CONSTABULARY

MICHIGAN, ILLINOIS AND OHIO WILL CONSIDER ENTIRE QUESTION.

Other States Likely To Increase Pay of Their State Police Forces.

The State Police system will be a live legislative topic in at least three states at the present legislative session. These are Michigan, Illinois and Ohio. In other states the constabulary will be considered also but in a different way.

Michigan, which has had a State Police since the need for such a force became imperative during the war, has before it the question of increasing the numbers of the troopers, and giving them broader duties. There has been a strong and growing sentiment in favor of such a measure, as a means towards better and more economical administration of state affairs.

This program of more centralized administration has been discussed in the State Journal of Lansing, and in other newspapers of the state. Undoubtedly this plan will find form in a bill to be presented to the Legislature whereby duties and powers now scattered among a number of commissions and bureaus will be centered under the control of the State Police. It is argued that this plan will save the state a very large sum of money annually, and also give more efficiency.

Inasmuch as this plan would abolish a large number of appointive positions in the state government, it is to be expected that there will be strenuous opposition but most of the legislators are going to Lansing with the idea of economy strongly in their minds. It has been demonstrated by the citizens who have given study to the taxation problems of the state that the abolition of the State Police and the continuance of the other organizations would cost the state more money and give less in the way of results.

Sentiment is Favorable.

During the past two months there has been a widespread expression of sentiment throughout the state with regard to the State Police. Four of the more important agricultural associations, the Michigan State Grange, Association of Farmers Clubs, Michigan State Horticultural Society and the directors of the State Farm Bureau, have passed resolutions favoring the continuance of the State Police and the widening of their duties. In each case there was full discussion before these resolutions were passed.

In a great many cities of the state similar resolutions have been passed by chambers of commerce and other commercial and civic bodies. Such resolutions have been approved in Lansing, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Flint, Pontiac, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Benton Harbor, Ionia, Saginaw, Bay City, Marquette and other cities. While these resolutions have varied in character, they have been of the same nature, all recognizing the need of a State Police.

Among the state wide organizations which have expressed themselves in a similar manner are the Anti Saloon League, the Association of mutual automobile insurance companies and the bankers of the southwestern part of the state.

Opposition to the State Police, which seemed for a time to be very well organized and strong, has been less apparent recently. In three counties where resolutions adverse to the State Police were adopted by the boards of supervisors, these resolutions have since been rescinded.

In Other States.

In Illinois and Ohio, where there is no State Police force at present, the Legislatures will be asked to provide for such a force. In Illinois the chambers of commerce of the state, with three exceptions, have asked for such action and the bankers also have passed resolutions asking for a State Police. In Ohio the movement for the force is state-wide and depends largely upon the agricultural interests which have found that good roads opened highways for criminals as well as for law-abiding citizens.

In Pennsylvania, where the constabulary has been a success for many years, an increase of pay is asked for the officers and men of the force. In New York it is probable that similar action will be asked. California and Massachusetts, which have adopted the State Police system in part, will consider expanding their forces.

WYANDOTTE RAID UNCOVERS ARSENAL

A regular arsenal was discovered recently by Lieut. McCure and a detachment of State Police when a house in Wyandotte was raided and five Italians were arrested. Four sawed-off shotguns, seven other automatic guns, a number of revolvers all loaded and ready for action were seized, as well as three hundred rounds of ammunition. A Cadillac car was found in the garage underneath the house and a shotgun was also found in it. The Italians who were arrested on suspicion ranged in age from 20 to 28 years. It was thought that they may have been implicated with the gang that robbed a bank at Monroe recently.

MARRIED IN PONTIAC.

Mr. Dewey Lyke of East Lyon, and Miss Mabel Deabler of this village, daughter of John Dressler, were united in marriage Thursday, December 16, 1920, at Pontiac by Rev. H. G. Pearce, pastor of the First M. E. church. They will make their home this winter on the Kirk farm in East Lyon, while Mr. and Mrs. Kirk are in Florida. Their friends extend congratulations and best wishes.—South Lyon Herald.

OAKLAND SHERIFF APPOINTS NEW STAFF.

Sheriff-elect Butler has fulfilled his pre-election promise of a house-cleaning at the county jail by the appointment of an entirely new force for the jail staff. The under-sheriff is to be Frank Schram, for several years a member of Pontiac police force. Arthur Putnam of Pontiac and Leonard Schnell of Royal Oak will be day deputies. Clarence Carson of Birmingham will be book-keeper and Thomas Hanton of Pontiac will be night deputy.

STATE MUCK FARMERS TO HOLD BIG MEETING.

Special conferences on vital everyday problems of the grower are to feature the third annual meeting of the Michigan Muck Farmers' association, which will be held at East Lansing on February 1 and 2 in connection with Farmers' Week at the Michigan Agricultural college.

The Muck Farmers' association is one of more than a dozen state agricultural associations which will gather during Farmers' Week, bringing thousands of farmers together for the big annual conference to be held this year from January 31 to February 4.

SHOULD CONTINUE ADVERTISING.

In a recent issue of the Chamber Bulletin, a publication put out each month by the New York Chamber of Commerce, the secretary of the organization urged manufacturers and dealers to continue their policy of advertising.

"We have come to a period critical in the growth and even existence of many business houses," he says. "Decisions made today will be determining factors in the success or failure of the years to come."

"The greatest and most successful concerns have always been the most consistent advertisers. Mindful of lessons of the past, they safeguard the present and anticipate the future."

THIEVES AT NEW HUDSON.

When the manager of the Co Opera five store at New Hudson opened it for business last Thursday morning, he was greeted by a wave of confusion. Boxes and goods were flung over floors and counters and it was very evident that the store had been gynamited by burglars during the night. About $500 worth of merchandise was missing, including sweaters, shoes, hosiery, jewelry, cigars, cigarettes, all the ribbon in the store and a goodly supply of meat. The plunder was apparently carried away in a truck or big car, but beyond that no clue was left as to the perpetrators.

They gained entrance to the building by forcing a rear door which let them into the cellar, and another door was forced to the floor above.—Milford Times.

DAISY EMPLOYEES MAKE MERRY.

One of the most pleasant open meetings of the Daisy Employees association was held last week Thursday evening, when a delicious chicken-pie supper was served to about two hundred and fifty members of the association and their families in the dining room of the Methodist church between the hours of five and eight. At eight o'clock a fine musical and literary program was presented in the High school auditorium, ending with a comic sketch, presented by members of the Northville L. O. T. M. Later in the evening the company party went to the Penniman-Allen auditorium, where dancing was indulged in. The Daisy orchestra furnished the music. All who attended spent a very enjoyable evening. There were about 450 in all in attendance.—Plymouth Mail.

WAYNE COUNTY FARM BUREAU.

The Wayne county delegates to the annual meeting of the State Farm Bureau at Lansing will be John C. Near, Flat Rock; A. F. Klager, Romulus; Stephen Pearl, Belleville.

On this coming Saturday, January 8th, a conference will be held in Detroit of the executive boards of the Farm Bureaus of Wayne county, Monroe, Washtenaw, Oakland and Macomb counties. Future policies and development of projects along lines of mutual interest will be considered. Hale C. Tennant, of the Marketing department of the State Farm bureau and Mrs. Louise Campbell, state leader of home demonstration work, will be in attendance. Milton Carmichael, secretary of the Wayne County Farm bureau, is making the local arrangements.

The East Nankin Farmers' club met on Tuesday evening of this week at the home of R. J. Lathers.

Northville Newslets

Have you secured your 1921 auto license? Redford has a police force consisting of two officers. The village schools opened Monday after the holiday vacation.

The 'Between Ourselves' club was pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Charles Dolph, Monday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Ray Baker returned to Northville on Tuesday after having enjoyed a delightful wedding trip in the east.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred E. Simmons will leave Saturday of this week for Orlando, Florida, where they will spend a few weeks with friends.

Don Baker left the first of the week for Huntington, W. Va., where he has accepted a position as manager of the Packard service station.

Prices are regulated largely by supply and demand. The demands of the profiteers made to conform with the consumer's supply of money.

The Royal Arch degree was conferred upon twelve members by Union Chapter, R. A. M., of this village Wednesday night. A pretty good start for the new year.

H. P. Seeley of Detroit visited Northville friends Monday. He reported that his father, C. S. Seeley, was just recovering from a severe attack of pneumonia. He was able to sit up for the first time Monday.

The annual meeting of the Michigan Berkshire Broccard association will be held at the M. A. G. at East Lansing, on Wednesday, January 12th.

Orient Chapter, O. F. S., will hold a very enjoyable meeting this evening. Supper will be served at six o'clock for which a charge of 85 cents will be made.

Subscribers living away from Northville frequently write and ask us to send them a calendar, but we are unable to grant their request.

Conrad Langfield and Don Ball have arrived at their destination, but encountered some difficulties in Louisiana and New Mexico, owing to wash-outs. They are now at Phoenix, Arizona, and are enjoying themselves greatly.

Harry Sanford, a prominent Mason of Detroit, and who was well known to many Northville people, died in Harper hospital Sunday, following an operation. His remains were taken to his boyhood home in Tecumseh for burial Wednesday afternoon.

Miss Minnie Toomey had a house party over the week end, having as her guests Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Flora Peterson of Northville, Miss Julia Webster of Pontiac, and Mr. Win McDermond of Farmington.

Hubley J. Kistell left for Boston Sunday noon to take the U. S. S. Baltimore for a cruise to South America and possibly to South Africa. He expects to be gone about four months. Thirty young men from Detroit and about twenty from various parts of the state were selected by the Navy Department to make this trip.

C. H. Young is confined to his home by illness. He went to Detroit last Friday to consult a specialist and was advised to return home and to go to bed and remain there for three weeks. It will be some task to keep him in bed for that length of time. Mr. Young has been afflicted with heart attacks for some time past and it is hoped that a few weeks of complete rest will restore him to health again.

The statement that has been published in some papers that carriers and others having sleighs with a tread narrower than 56 inches would be obliged to get their runways changed to comply with a new law that goes into effect January 1st, is incorrect. The law makes an exception in favor of those who now own such vehicles, but all new ones must comply with the law.

Mrs. M. Spadafore and children, who have been visiting relatives in Northville since the fire that drove them out of their home, returned to Holly Tuesday. TOOK EARLE'S HYPO-COD AND GOES BACK TO WORK

"About two years ago I had a spell of sickness. In fact I was in a wreck and was washed up some and it seemed I could never get strong again. I fell off from 185 pounds to 140, and for a year wasn't able to work more than half-time, and really I didn't feel like working at all, for I had no appetite, never wanted to eat and of course I became very weak, nervous, and rundown. I couldn't rest at night and I tell you I was just about past going. I saw Hypo-Cod advertised so I went down to the drug store and asked one of the clerks what he thought about this food, and he recommended it very highly to me, so I bought one bottle and in one week I had improved so much the clerk didn't hardly know me and I tell you I didn't feel like the same man. I started to work in just a few days after I began taking Hypo-Cod and have been at it steady since, and I am feeling fine. I am gaining right along and I am eating good, always hungry, and I sleep like a log at night. I can't say anything too good for this food and I am glad to recommend it to anyone," declared Mr. J. D. Stone, 115 Michigan Ave., Detroit, Mich.

Many a man hangers along for years in a weak, thin and rundown condition with cold and cough, and working only half time and complaining most of the time about being tired and unable to rest well at night. They need the restorative built-up food their disease resisting vitality strengthened is throwing off their ill.

Druggists, chemists and experts assert that Earle's Hypo-Cod is a most powerful, reconstructive tonic. Thousands have taken it and it remained. Just read the formula on a bottle at your druggist's. Make home a bottle and give it a trial. It is very pleasant tasting.

Earle's Hypo-Cod is sold by all good druggists.—Adv.

The Red Man was going fast, but he raised his face and muttered hoarsely: "The boy stands before you."
Since the old man snatched the picture the Pearlhunter and the girl had been staring at each other. Events were happening, developments unfolding, too fast for comprehension. The old man was staring at them both, from one to the other, as if unable to grasp a revelation that had been twenty years coming. He stretched up his hands at last to the young man, pulled his face down to him, gazed on it as at something of which he had long dreamed but never hoped to see, turned back to the man on the floor.

"Martin Redmond, I'll requite the deed you've done, the one good deed of your evil life. The little girl I've raised as my own, the child of the good woman you cruelly killed, the child you deserted, your daughter stands before you."
The girl recoiled in horror. The unnatural father's strange, his glazing eyes toward the daughter, his thought had outraged. He cry muttered, up-out of his chest and brought with it a rush of breath and blood, he stifled, his face tightened, he felt heavy against the arms of the sheriff—dead.

The girl turned away from the gruesome sight, stole a half faltering glance at the bewildered face of the Pearlhunter, threw herself down by the side of the couch and bowed her face upon the old man's bosom.

"Unsay it, Daddy! Oh, Daddy, unsay it!"
He softly stroked her hair with his great, gaunt hand.
"It's the truth, Dotty, and can't be unsaid. But you owe him no respect—a parent only, never a father. He deserted you, and killed your mother—in ways unrepeatable killed her—a woman of the high blood of the Lawps." He fumbled the picture up off his breast, held it before his face a moment, laid it back. "God!" he groaned. "The ruin he wrought! Twenty years I searched for her—be upon the name in reverence, and you, my son!"

His hand found its way back into the Pearlhunter's; his eyes strained hard toward the face bending over him.

They seemed hungry to know many things the twenty years of wandering; the death of the woman of the picture, how the young man came to be just there; of his wounded arm. But with the steady coming of a soldier who knew the end was near, he put them by, and dropped his eyes to the girl's hair.

"Your grandfather, Dotty, old God-fey Davy, lost your mother off when she married Martin Redmond. He died in poverty and want and sent for me at last." The girl was saying softly. He stopped, put his hand about her head, but she said the word—and—of making her last hours less terrible. "She died without—coming—you. You were three years old when I gave up the search, left everything in the hands of my good friend, Judge Eskridge, and came up here to lose myself in these vast woods along the Wabash, a present from General Jackson."

His eyes closed wearily. He lay so still, and the pallor on his face was so ghastly that the Pearlhunter bent anxiously over him. But the heavy lids presently unclosed; the voice, queer and hoarse from long disuse, and noticeably growing weaker, faltered on.

"Seven years! It seems only this morning he shot me! And yet, it couldn't be, or Dotty wouldn't be the wonderful woman she has become, nor you, my son, the man you are—the man I was when I led Jackson's rangers. Hesper Dawn Red—" the quivering voice hesitated. "No, no, let that name perish with his who disgraced it." The judge knows Hesper Dawn; David Wolf, Werbrinton. Both of the high blood of the Dawns; your mother's both named Hesper Dawn, distant cousins; both the same name, and both of the same high blood. Neither need you be ashamed, my son, of your name of Werbrinton. It has been more or less of the tongues of men since the brave days of Saxon-Barold. Share your estate with Dotty. It is in the will that you do so, and there's ample for you both. The judge will know."

The Pearlhunter was on the point of mentioning the letter—the death of the girl's grandfather, his relenting his will. But the faltering voice left him no opening.

"My son, you are a man grown, but you will not deny your father the heart hunger of twenty bitter years." His voice was fast falling; his eyes strained hard to find the Pearlhunter's face, though he was bending low over him. The young man read the meaning, the twenty years of longing, in the straining eyes. He knelt down and laid his face against the old man's cheek. An arm stole about his neck and held him close.

A long time the old man lay still, his right arm around the girl kneeling at one side of the couch, his left arm around the man at the other. So still, so motionless he lay that the deep silence became burdened with a heavy fear. The sheriff, at the foot of the couch bent forward. The Pearlhunter, turned his face looked and bowed his head. The girl raised her eyes, gazed intently at the placid features, threw herself across the motionless body and wept aloud.

The graceful muskian, the intrepid soldier—was dead.

CHAPTER XV.

The Song of a Thrush.
Twentieth of June, and the world at high tide; the woods full of cradles, and each cradle housing a lusty baby; the weak gone back to earth, the fit that survive beginning to test wing and claw. Streams and woodland pools grow languid with millions mating. Each leaf has reached its maximum of lung expansion. The trees breathe deep. The forest has settled down seriously to the business of fulfilling its promises. Cocoon and chrysalis have opened and hung forth their glittering mysteries. Burnished bodies and gauzy wings glance and glitter through yellow sunshine and soft shade, like flakes of star-dust sitting down out of the sky.

But if the woods have many cradles, they also have many graves. There was a new one this placid June evening at Fallen Rock—a new one beside the one that was almost new. There were orchids upon them both. A man and a maid had together hunted the woods for them. Only such as they could have found so many. Only to her favorites does nature show the way to her treasures.

The stanch old Boss and hard-faced Bull Masterson were back at their yate and clam rakes. Billy's grandmother was staying at the cabin of the three gables a few days for company.

The Pearlhunter came from the village in the still evening. Along the dim, slim path through the woods he came, against the face of the sunset.

"The Boy—Stands Before You"

The swing and spring of a master-of-men was in his stride, for he carried in his pocket a telegram addressed to a man with a name, at last, to David Wolf Werbrinton. The telegram told of two fortunes awaiting down the river, of houses and lands, and advising that Judge Eskridge was on his way.

Near the turn of the path he stopped and stood listening. The song of a thrush was charming the silence. Only the quiver carried a certain delicious, elusive witchery that no bird throat ever knew. He stole along the path, stopped and stood with bared head.

Upon the flat rock at the pool stood the Wild Rose, the tears running down her face, her lips and throat alive with the magic of song. A lady cardinal perched upon her shoulder. A king cardinal dickered and twitched his crest on an overhanging twig that almost brushed her hair. A pair of shy thrushes, fluttered and fitted in reach of her hand. Other birds walked up and down near-by branches, or darted down for a hurried peck at the crumbs she had scattered over the rock.

The tears drowned the blue; the song ceased. The birds fluttered away one by one. The girl bowed her head and stood with clasped hands, gazing down at the quiet water.

The man's step roused her. She turned, and her hands unclasped as if to reach toward him—but instantly clasped themselves again. He turned from the path, stepped out on the rock and came to her side. A moment her eyes met his, and then went back to the placid water, and she stood crying softly.

She turned back to him after a time, a poor little half-drowned smile struggled out and brought a suggestion of the dumplings back.
"I had to tell them!" she said.
"It was wonderful!" he answered very sorry, as if his voice might disturb the spell of the music before the echoes had finished carrying it to the rest of the woods.

The leaves hung motionless, as if waiting for the song to start again. The tinkle of the rime where the water was waked up at the lower edge of the pool came out of the silence.

"The telegram came," he went on after a long time. "It says—he hesitated, as if pondering, the next words before giving them speech, as if half-dreading to give them speech—"Oh, Judge Eskridge is coming for you."

"The words strangely carried, the girl's thoughts back to a mother driven forth to die in loneliness and poverty; to a grave on a hill overlooking the river, where the hand of a friend had laid her; to a great, silent house; to a stern old man reclining in his last hours—

"I shan't go back with him," she said. "Some day I'll go back to the grave on the hill, but not now."
The man stood weighing the words in his slow way.

"I shan't either." He paused a moment, went on. "I'm going to tear down the old cabin at Fallen Rock, build a new one, and build a house. Why should I leave the Flatwoods? All that I care for in the world is here—my father, my mother, and you."
The last word came hard for him. The girl lifted a hurried, shy half-glance to his face, dropped her eyes, again to the quiet water.

"The Blue Moon," he went on, "is—somehow—well, it oughtn't to pass from hand to hand for just—money! Mother spent her life for it. I owe money. There came a pause. "I'll never need that five thousand dollars and maybe Lotta Solomon's widow does. I've arranged with the sheriff to send her the draft and I've kept the pearl."
The girl softly clasped her hands together, and looked up at him with beaming eyes.

"And maybe I'll get to see it, after all!"
"I think maybe you will!"
He reached into the pocket of his blouse, drew out the small velvet box, raised the lid, lifted the girl's hand, and laid the Blue Moon in her palm. The sunset, the green of the leaves, the glory of a silver-edged cloud floating across the sky—the wonderful gem caught them all and they laughing them up into her face.

"Wild Rose!" Her eyes left the pearl and rose to his face. What she saw there brought a little catch to her breath. And there was a note in his voice that had never been there before. "I reckon there's nobody left but just you, and me. And both big in the world, equals to me but you. The pearl is your birthday present."

"It's your birthday, too," she stammered, her face lowered and turned away. "And I have no present."
"The most wonderful man ever received it—Wild Rose!"

He held out his unwounded arm. His heart had leaped to his eyes. His voice held the note that makes all voices music! The girl lifted her face—ill to the dawn of day; her eyes glaucous with the light of star or sun; the light it is ever a man, but once to see. Her hands came toward him, found their way about his neck.

The sunset stole softly through the bushes, and touched their heads, and bound the two together—the gold and the brown—with a shaft of living bronze. A little breeze came by, lifted a strand of her hair, laid it across his face and slipped away to tell the trees.

[THE END.]

HAS MANY IMPORTED TREES

No Other Country in the World Said to Possess Such a Variety as Does England.

The Portuguese boast of their forest at Besaco, where there are over two hundred kinds of imported trees in full and gigantic growth. But there is no other country in the whole world where so many varieties of imported trees flourish as in the British Isles, and Kew has specimens of nearly all of them. Not only original, or rather, natural varieties are to be seen at Kew, but others which owe their being to the cunning of man. The latter are graft-hybrids of extraordinary interest.

In the year 1828 a French gardener grafted a purple-flowered cypress on a laborum stock. A branch developed, which produced flowers intermediate between the stock and the scion. You can see a specimen of this hybrid among the laborums. It bears not only the hybrid flowers but also flowers and leaves characteristic of both its parent. The Laborum Adami is its name. In another case a union between the common thorn and the medlar has produced a similar strange result. Three separate types of branch, flower, and fruit are to be seen on the same bush.—Montreal Herald.

The first-year of peace has seen a growth of $200,000,000 in exports from the United States to Asia.

WILLIAM H. STOUT, LECTURER, COMING

On Wednesday evening next, the 12th, William H. Stout, lecturer, will appear as the second attraction of the Foresters' entertainment course. In speaking of Mr. Stout, a few years ago, William A. College, president of the International Lyceum association of Chicago, said:

"Few men in public life have the experience and broad scholarship of W. H. Stout of Indianapolis, and I consider the Lyceum fortunate in winning him to the platform. No man is more capable of interesting and inspiring his hearers. His lectures are rich in the experience of men and things and backed by a thorough grasp of clean virile English."

D. U. R. ORDERS SALARY REDUCTIONS

Wages of all D. U. R. employees, except motormen and conductors, have been cut approximately 20%. This reduction was announced Tuesday at D. U. R. offices while motormen and conductors were preparing for mass meeting at which votes were expected to be taken on the question of accepting a 20% cut.

Those affected by the reduction, which dates from January 1, include all barn men, track employees, office workers, department heads and company officers. The cut will vary in accordance with the class of work, and in case of office workers, with the individual. In some cases non-platform employees will suffer a slash of more than 20% cut.

The first general effect of the decrease will be felt January 15, the first pay day for all employees except officials, who will feel the reduction at the end of the month. The number of persons affected is less than 10% of the total employment roll of the company, as was announced—Detroit Tribune.

PRESIDENT BURTON CALLS DOCTORS FOR CONFERENCE

All physicians and surgeons of the state have been asked by Dr. Marion LeRoy Burton of the University of Michigan, to come to Ann Arbor January 13 for a conference with university officials regarding the new university hospital, now under construction, and that is expected to be ready for occupancy within the next two years.

The object of the meeting, according to Dr. Burton and Dr. Christopher G. Farina, director of the hospital, is to impress upon the men of medicine in Michigan, the importance of the hospital to the people of the state. An effort will be made to prove that the hospital is not competing with physicians and surgeons in private practice. The cooperation of doctors in all parts of Michigan with the hospital staff is to be sought.

"With thousands of patients coming to the hospital from all parts of the state it is important that the physicians and surgeons should be thoroughly in sympathy with the methods in vogue at the hospital," Dr. Burton said in issuing the invitations to the meeting.

The conference will take place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

AN OLD STORY

The first grist mill in Northville was built by a couple of men, whose names I cannot recall, on a combined cash capital of one hundred dollars, but by their own skill and the local help they received, the enterprise was a success. A great deal of credit is due, however, to the mechanical skill of Israel Nash, a local millwright. He found a boulder in the vicinity, that was large enough and of the required texture to shape into a millstone. He drilled and chiseled and chipped at this rock until it was fitted into its place in the new mill, as a flour maker. It was eventually replaced by a French Barre stone and the native rock was taken to the upper blacksmith shop, where it was used as a platform for setting wagon tires. About the year 1848 the writer saw it loaded on a wagon to be taken to Detroit for use in grinding land plaster. One of the old stone's successors is now doing duty as a horse block at Northville mills.

A story was told of a woman who had come some distance to this mill and needed to have some blacksmith work done also. She was directed to the shop of Daniel Johnson, which was near by. Johnson went about the job in such a slow, draggy way, that he attracted the woman's notice, and she said to him, "Young man, what is the matter with you?" He replied, "I have the ague so bad that I am hardly able to do anything." "Ho, ho, and hurra, and hurra," said she, "that's what you need. The ague will kill you. Take off your shirt and get down by the bed-side, on, take off all your clothes but side. Then when you feel the chill going off and the fever coming on, pull

SECOND NUMBER

FORESTERS'

ENTERTAINMENT COURSE

WILLIAM H. STOUT, Lecturer

In speaking of Mr. Stout's decision to enter the lecture field, Col. George W. Bain, veteran lecturer of Lexington, Ky., and who has been appearing in the best cities of America for more than a quarter of a century, declared "I had with delight the purpose of W. H. Stout to give a portion of his time to the lecture platform. There is no man in Lyceum work whose qualifications for platform I place above his. Simple in manner, by instinct always a gentleman, with well trained mind stored with useful knowledge, and with wide experience as to what committees demand and the public desire, his success assured and his usefulness will be a blessing."
