FAIR SOCIETY WILL ERECT NEW BUILDINGS

TO PLANT A LARGE ACREAGE THIS SPRING

At a meeting of the directors of the Northville Fair association, held last Thursday night for the purpose of discussing plans for this year's fair, it was decided to borrow sufficient funds to provide some new buildings and to grade and otherwise improve the grounds. The horse barns will be moved to a location at the right of the main drive way on South Center street, next to the track and west of the grandstand. The building will be enlarged and improved to accommodate many more horses with the belief that a number of horsemen can be induced to train their horses here during the spring and summer months. If this can be done it will mean, doubtless, that we shall have a number of very interesting race matinees here during the season.

A new poultry hall will be erected and Superintendent Ward declares he will have as fine a display of poultry and pet stock next fall as will be seen at the State Fair. He has his stakes set at $80 pens for next fall's fair.

It has been necessary for the management of the fair to lease tents to take care of many of the exhibits and these tents cost a lot of money. With the new buildings exhibits can be better displayed and the grounds can be made more attractive. The street running through the grounds from west to east will be straightened and nicely graded, making more space on either side of the drive available for attractions. The "rides"—merry-go-round and Ferris wheel will be located where the present stables are.

It is proposed to place the capital stock of the company at $30,000 with $20,000 paid in. Arguably sufficient support has been given to the new project to indicate that the success of the enterprise is assured.

HIGHWAYMEN VISIT CARSON'S STORE AT NEWBURG

About 12:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, two men, one short and one tall, entered the store of C. P. Carson at Newburg, and asked to purchase some tobacco. While in the act of paying Mr. Carson, who was waiting upon them, one of the men shoved a gun in his face and commanded him to raise his hands and then went through his pockets, getting about $30. He was then ordered back of the counter, and as he was complying, he was brutally knocked down, the blow inflicting a severe wound on his head. He was rendered unconscious by the blow, and it was some time later before he was able to call for assistance. Plymouth Mall

The deceased was born in West Bloomfield, N. Y., June 22, 1835, and in that community he grew to young manhood. He received his education at the college at Lusa, in his native state, and in 1851 he was united in marriage to Harriett A. Starr, who died in 1910. To this union three children were born—Dr. E. P. Waid of Whitmore Lake, Mrs. F. W. Woodward of Detroit and Mrs. L. A. Babbitt of this village. In 1861 he offered his services to his country and enlisted in Co. C, 16th New York volunteer infantry, and served with distinction during the war.

In 1872 Mr. Waid moved to Northville and continued to reside here to the time of his death. In 1892 he was united in marriage to Mary P. Weaver, who survives him. When a boy of 13 he united with the Congregational church at West Bloomfield, and he remained true to the faith during all the years of his life. He was a member of Allen M. Harmon Post, G. A. R., and was held in high esteem by his comrades.

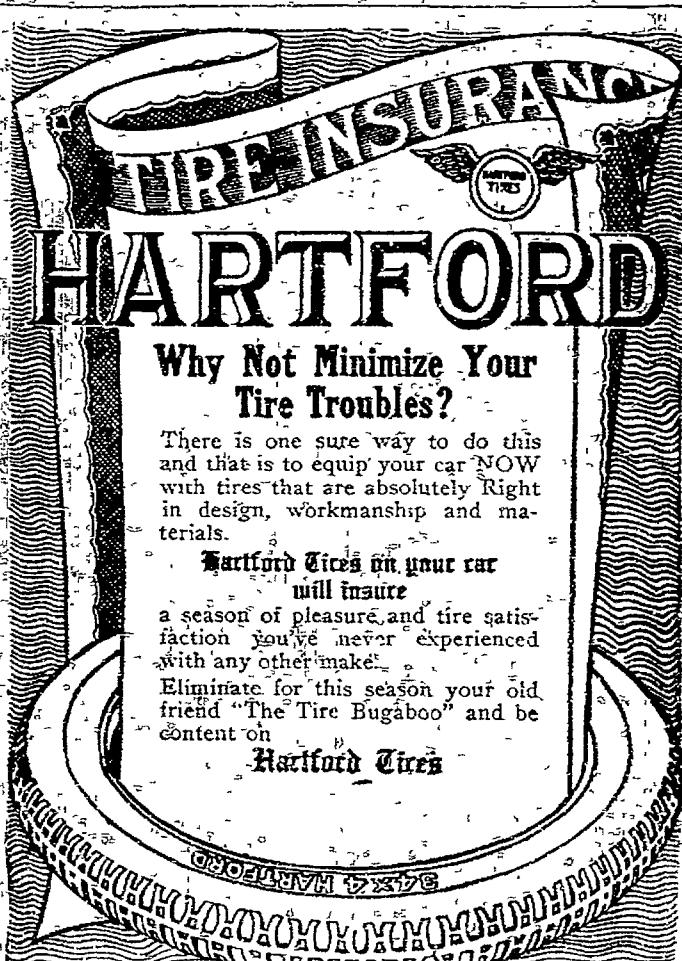

BANFIELD BOY SENT TO U. OF M.
An order was signed by the probate court Monday morning committing Warren Banfield, 11, to the psychopathic hospital at Ann Arbor for observation. He is to remain 25 days. Young Banfield, shot and killed his brother Clarie, age 9, a week ago Sunday at their farm home in Farmington township. While two alienists were unable to find any traces of mental disturbance and found on the contrary that the boy is unusually bright for his age, it was considered advisable to send him to Ann Arbor for a longer period of observation. At the end of that time the probate court will decide what disposition is to be made of his case.—Poniac Press.

CLARKS SELL COAL BUSINESS
The Clark Coal & Ice company have sold their interests and equipment to C. R. Ely of this village, the deal having been closed Monday morning. With this added equipment and yard, Mr. Ely will be better prepared to serve the public than formerly. Mr. Clark has not decided just what he will do, but it is hoped he will remain in Northville. He will continue to be at Huff's hardware Saturday nights for the next few weeks to meet his old customers and to make collections.

COLLIDED WITH TELEPHONE POLE

A Ford car in which some Detroit people were riding failed to make the turn at the foot of Main street Sunday night about ten o'clock and collided with a telephone pole. The car, a new 1920 model, was badly wrecked and the occupants of the car were quite seriously injured. They were taken to the office of Drs. Henry and after their wounds were dressed took the Plymouth car for Detroit.

Fuzel's orchestra of Detroit will furnish music for the L. O. T. M. St. Patrick's ball to be given at the High school gym on Thursday evening March 17th.

What 4% Means

THE NORTHVILLE STATE SAVINGS BANK OF NORTHVILLE pays 4% interest compounded twice a year. What does 4% compound interest mean? It means that if the interest is allowed to remain on deposit with the principal sum, interest will be paid on interest—that is, $1.00 placed at 4% compound interest, will double itself in a little less than eighteen years through the interest additions.

To secure the best results, it is necessary to set aside weekly or monthly a fixed sum from your income, and deposit it to your account. The tables here given show what may be accomplished by this method. The interest earnings equal, from 20 to 50% of the money deposited during the periods shown. That is, if monthly deposits of $5 are made for twenty years, the total sum would be $1,300. With 4% compound interest, it will amount to $1,833.50; the earnings added equaling $633.50; or 53% of the money actually saved.

Notice To The Public:

Having purchased the yards and equipment of the Clark Coal & Ice Company of this village, we are in a position to serve the public better than ever, and we especially solicit the patronage of all the former patrons of the retiring firm.

We are doing our best to supply the public with coal of all kinds and we shall continue our efforts, in spite of the many discouragements which confront us daily. The coal market is in a bad condition, but we are trying to secure our share of fuel at the mines.

It is to the advantage of our customers to place their orders for their year's supply of fuel as early as possible. That will enable us to estimate our needs and to make a showing with those from whom we purchase coal that will have its influence to our mutual advantage.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

We have confidence enough in the future horse market for young, large, sound horses that we have purchased the Imported Percheron Stallion, Janze (No. 85707), which we will stand at our farm 3 miles southwest of Northville, for the season of 1921. The service fee is $50 to insure a standing colt. By all horse reports as to the shortage of young, sound horses and the few mares that have been bred the last four years, especially the last two years, which was about 20% of the regular breeding, it looks like a good time to breed a few mares, if nothing more than to raise a few good farm horses for yourself. And farmers who have been reading the tractor reports on farms for the last year we believe are fully convinced that the tractor will make a far larger gain over the tractor the next two years, and Mr Farmer, if you are in a puzzle whether to buy a tractor or a good team of horses, this spring go and talk to a few farmers who have a tractor, which to get, and after they tell you, have them explain the reason why then act accordingly.

However, come out and take a look at the old horse, and we have several farm mares, both graded and pure-bred, and will look them over also, and have a good visit on the horse proposition anyhow.

We have a team of mares weighing 3,000 pounds, a team of mares coming three years old and a saddle horse for sale.

Distance is no excuse for neglecting them.

Although perhaps you cannot visit them frequently, you still have an intimate and convenient means of communication.

Long Distance Telephone Service brings them as near to you as your telephone.

Connections with state towns are a matter of minutes; then you are all ready for a good heart-to-heart visit.

HOW ABBIE VOTED

By ALICE SILVANUS

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

"There is in the papers these days a woman suffrage clubs and voting," remarked Tom Brown to his wife.

"I'd hate to have a woman running round to such places and neglecting her home."

"My house isn't neglected; is it, Tom?" she inquired.

"I should say not, and I'm glad you don't get such ideas in your head."

Mrs. Carlisle had invited me to go to the city with the members of her club, next Monday," his wife went on.

"Umph!" grunted Tom, remembering that that was the day the women of Woodville registered, and he strolled out to the barn.

"Poor Tom," smiled Mrs. Brown to herself. "He's the best husband in the world, but oh, so awfully selfish!"

All the next day Tom railed his brain to find some excuse to keep his wife at home, but none could he find until Saturday when Bill Hanson, a neighbor, expressed a desire to go to the city. Tom eagerly offered the use of his buggy and driving mare, which surprising offer was eagerly accepted.

Early Monday morning the mare was singly driven out and delivered into the hands of Bill Hanson.

Serenely unconscious of her husband's maneuvers, Mrs. Brown dusted about the house preparing dinner. Flaky pies were set on the long shelf on the screened porch to cool, and the odor of roast chicken issued from the kitchen door.

After dinner Tom lingered about the house in an unaccountable manner, while his wife hurried around clearing the table and putting the dishes into the pan.

"Hadn't you better be hitching up, Tom? I'm almost ready," she said.

Tom rather overacted his start of surprise.

"Why, did you mean to go?" he asked innocently. "I wish I knew. I thought you'd given up. I've gone and let Bill Hanson take, Kitty and the buggies."

Mrs. Brown regarded her husband with an odd little smile.

"Oh, well," she recurred suddenly. "That's all right. I thought you might be busy, so I partly arranged to go with Mrs. Carlisle."

Tom seized his traps as he put on his coat and hurried out the door.

"If that woman don't beat all," he said. "I'd bet she knew just what I was about. I believe I'll go right in and forbid her to go."

A short time later and surprised to march back to the house on the top he halted in uncertainty. He looked into the kitchen. His wife was not in sight.

The poultry door stood partly open, the key in the lock.

She might be in there. He listened. Yes—he could hear her moving about. His eyes glowed with sudden resolution.

He tripped lightly across the floor, softly closed the door, turned the key and dropped it in his pocket.

"I fixed it this time," he chuckled. "She won't like it, I guess, but I won't have to say that my wife is gadding around to the pills." Then Tom went down to the garden.

A few hours later a buggy came rumbling down the road.

It stopped at the Brown gate and a woman alighted.

"Tom," she said, "I'm sorry, but I wasn't mistaken that woman was his wife. Yes—it was, Abbie. She met him with no sign of embarrassment."

"Am I late, Tom?" she inquired.

"Abbie," he said, solemnly, "how did you get out of that pantry?"

The woman looked startled. "The pantry?" she echoed. "Why, Tom, what do you mean?" He stared at her a moment in silence.

"Sorcery," he began, then stopped.

"Well, I locked the pantry," he finished, rather lamely. Without stopping to say any more, they entered the house together. Tom sat down in the chair his wife pulled toward him.

"Happy birthday," she exclaimed, throwing a pair of new slippers upon his lap.

"My birthday?" he ejaculated. "I'd forgotten all about it. Is that why you went to town?"

"Of course it was," laughed Abbie. "Just see what else I've got." She started toward the party and with a sudden recollection Tom rose and followed her. He drew the key from his pocket and the two stared at each other.

Strange sounds were issuing from within.

Tom jerked the door open and stood gazing at the scene before him. Seated with his head back to the wall snoring, was the much tattered form of a man. There were grubs in his grizzled beard and his features wore a blissful, well-fed look.

"Open the door, Abbie," Tom ordered, and the tramp was assisted from the house. When Tom returned his wife was standing in the door holding in her hands a plate, on which were the remains of a beautifully frosted cake.

"I'm sorry, dear," she remarked, demurely. "It was your birthday cake."

Tom's face reddened perceptibly as his sheepish eyes met those of his wife.

"I want you to go to the town hall with me tomorrow, Abbie, and vote. I guess you've earned the right."

Bread! Bread!

Everybody is asking when Bread prices are going to be lower. We will answer that question by saying we have always been lower than outside bakers and have always taken the lead in lowering Bread prices; also prices of other Baked goods. Believing outside bread prices will be lower soon we will take the lead again. Beginning at once our bread will be 13c. 2 for 25c. This is for our standard 1½-lb. loaf. We know our bread is as good as the best and better than most of the out-side bread in eating quality and keeping quality. Try two loaves for 25c and if not satisfied get your money back.

Other Baked Goods

Other Baked Goods Prices will remain the same as at present. Our aim will be to improve the quality without raising the price.

If you stop and figure you will find this price will save you about 23 per cent on your bread cost per year—a saving worth while.

FARMERS, ATTENTION!

We have confidence enough in the future horse market for young, large, sound horses that we have purchased the Imported Percheron Stallion, Janice (No. 88707), which we will stand at our farm, 3 miles southwest of Northville, for the season of 1921. The service fee is $20. to insure a standing colt. By all horse reports as to the shortage of young, sound horses, and the few mares that have been used the last four years, especially the last two years, which was about 20% of the regular breeding, it looks like a good time to breed a few mares, if nothing more than to raise a few good farm horses for yourself. And farmers who have been reading the tractor reports on farms for the last year, we believe, are fully convinced that the horse will make a far larger gain over the tractor in the next two years than the tractor has made on the horse for the last two years and Mr. Farmer, if you are in a puzzle whether to buy a tractor or a good team of horses, this spring go and talk to a few farmers who have a tractor, which to get, and after they tell you, have them explain the reason why, then act accordingly.

However, come out and take a look at the old horse and we have several farm mares, both graded and pure-bred, and we will look them over also, and have a cool visit on the horse proposition anyhow.

We have a team of mares weighing 2,000 pounds, a team of mares coming three years old, and a little horse for sale.

HOW ABBIE VOTED

By ALICE SILVANUS

(Copyright by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

All there is in the papers these days is woman suffrage clubs and voting," remarked Tom Brown to his wife.

"I'd hate to have a woman running round to such places and neglecting her home."

"My house isn't neglected," Tom said.

"I should say not, and I'm glad you don't get such ideas in your head."

"Mrs. Carlisle has invited me to go to the city with the members of her club next Monday," his wife went on.

"Unph!" grunted Tom, remembering that that was the day the women of Woodville registered, and he strolled out to the barn.

"Poor Tom," smiled Mrs. Brown to herself. "He's the best husband in the world, but oh, so awfully selfish!"

As the next day Tom picked his brain to find some excuse to keep his wife at home, but none could be found until Saturday when Bill Hanson, a neighbor, expressed a desire to go to the city. Tom eagerly offered the use of his buggy and driving mare, which surprising offer was eagerly accepted.

Early Monday morning the mare was fully driven out and delivered into the hands of Bill Hanson.

Serene and unconscious of her husband's maneuvers, Mrs. Brown bustled about the house preparing dinner. Pasty pies were set on the long shelf on the screened porch to cool, and the odor of roast chicken issued from the kitchen door.

After dinner Tom lingered about the house in an unaccountable manner while his wife hurried about clearing the table and putting the dishes into the pan.

"Hab'p you better be hitching up, Tom?" "I'm almost ready," she said.

Tom rather overacted his start of surprise.

"Why, did you mean to go?" he asked innocently. "I wish I'd known! I thought you'd given up. I've gone to see Bill Hanson this mornin' and the boys."

Mrs. Brown regarded her husband with an odd little smile.

Oh, well, she murmured suddenly half off guard. "I thought you might be busy, so I partly arranged to go with Mrs. Carlisle."

I'm gazing hopefully at her a moment then went out and turned the door.

"If that woman don't beat all!" he moaned. "DII her the knee at the what I was about. I didn't. I'll go right up and fight her to go."

Snatching a cigarette and commanding his wife to go back to the house, Tom stepped reluctantly into the room. He took off his coat and dropped it in his pocket.

"We tried it this time," he chuckled. "She won't like it, I guess, but I won't have it said that my wife is gridding round to the polls." Then Tom went down to the garden.

A few hours later a buggy came rumbling down the road.

It stopped at the Brown gate and a woman alighted.

Tom saw her and stared. If he wasn't mistaken that woman was his wife. Yes—it was Abbie. She met him with no sign of embarrassment.

"Am I late, Tom?" she inquired.

"Abbie," he said, solemnly, "how did you get out of that pantry?"

The woman looked startled. "The pantry?" she echoed. "Why, Tom, what do you mean?" He stared at her a moment in silence.

"Somebody," he began, then stopped.

"Well, I locked the pantry," he finished, rather lamely. Without stopping to say any more they entered the house together. Tom sat down in the chair his wife pushed toward him.

"Happy birthday," she exclaimed gaily, throwing a pair of new slippers upon his lap.

"My birthday!" he ejaculated, "and I'd forgotten all about it. Is that why you went to town?"

"Of course it was," laughed Abbie.

"Just see what else I've got." She started toward the pantry and with a sudden recollection Tom rose and followed her. He drew the key from his pocket and the two stared at each other.

Strange sounds were issuing from within.

Tom jerked the door open and stood gazing at the scene before him. Seated with his head back to the wall snoring was the much tattered form of a man. There were crumbs in his grizzled beard and his features wore a blissful, well-fed look.

"Open the door, Abbie," Tom ordered, and the tramp was assisted from the house. When Tom returned his wife was standing in the door holding in her hands a plate, on which were the remains of a beautifully frosted cake.

"I'm sorry, dear," she remarked, demurely. "It was your birthday cake."

Tom's face reddened perceptibly as his sheepish eyes met those of his wife.

"I want you to go to the town hall with me tomorrow, Abbie, and vote.

I guess you've earned the right."

Bread! Bread!

Everybody is asking when Bread prices are going to be lower. We will answer that question by saying we have always been lower than outside bakers and have always taken the lead in lowering Bread prices; also prices of other Baked goods. Believing outside bread prices will be lower soon we will take the lead again. Beginning at once our bread will be 13c, 2 for 25c. This is for our standard 1½ lb. loaf. We know our bread is as good as the best and better than most of the outside bread in eating quality and keeping quality. Try two loaves for 25c and if not satisfied get your money back.

Other Baked Goods

Other Baked Goods Prices will remain the same as at present. Our aim will be to improve the quality without raising the price.

If you stop and figure you will find this price will save you about 23 per cent on your bread cost per year—a saving worth while.

FARM DRAINAGE MEET TO SETTLE PROBLEMS

A farm drainage short course, at which contractors, farmers with drainage problems on their hands, and others interested in the work will study farm drainage methods, will be held at the Michigan Agricultural College during the week of March 14. Experienced drainage men will exchange ideas on methods and policies. The short course will give instruction on the use of the level, setting up grade, leveling drain profiles, study of soils, etc., living out of drainage systems, etc. Field work will be supplemented with lectures and discussions.

SELECTION IMPORTANT IN POULTRY BREEDING PENNS

"March is the month when the breeding pens for the spring hatching of chickens should be made up, if the work has not already been done," says C. H. Burgess, head of the poultry department at the Michigan Agricultural college. "Hatch early if you want eggs next year when the price is up."

Vitality and vigor are the most important factors to consider in selecting the birds for the breeding pens. Birds with vitality are those that have not been sick during the rear. Vigor is indicated by good red combs, lustrous feathers, constant singing or crowing every five minutes.

"Pen breeders by themselves," says Professor Burgess, "Feed them generously upon grains, both whole and ground. Give them green food, and sour skimmed milk. Feed grain in deep litter. Make pens in breeding pen work, if possible giving them free range."

"Eggs should be gathered often during the colder days of spring, and kept in a temperature that is less than 60 degrees Fahr., but not below 50 degrees Fahr. Turn the eggs often. Those who intend to hatch artificially should order their incubator at once, in order to be sure of delivery on time. Purchase of reliable standard make is economy in the end."

Walled Lake Warbles.

The Baptist people are having a well run at the parsonage here.

Charles Wetlow and Rev. F. Bass were in Northville Monday on business.

Prospective real estate buyers are putting in their appearance at Walled Lake already. There is something about Walled Lake that everybody likes.

National prohibition rally day will be observed here March 20. The sermons on the Sabbath will be temperance sermons. Better get out and hear them."

Topics for next Sunday at the Walled Lake Baptist church will be Morning, "The Messenger and His Message," Evening, "What does the World Expect of the Church?"

The B. Y. P. U. was ably handled by Ed Coe last Sunday evening. Much comment was heard as he brought out many good educating thoughts Topic—"Kingdom Come Into the Churches."

Rev. Pixley, a former pastor of the Baptist church of this place, died suddenly at St. Cloud, Florida, February 21st. He preached his usual sermon the day before, but was taken suddenly ill during Sunday night and died within a few hours, probably being the cause of his death.

The supper and entertainment given by the Walled Lake Woman's Christian Temperance Union was a decided success. The union derived between $25 and $30 for their efforts of serving supper. This finished their quota and then some. Mrs. Myra E. Lookwood of Holly, county president, gave a very interesting and instructive talk on "Woman Suffrage. What it has brought about and what it will bring about," and the results of using tobacco, cigarettes. Let's all be sensible and beiters and help abolish this nuisance.

HELD ANNUAL MEETING

The only county in Michigan in which all branches of the federal and state extension service is conducted is Wayne, where there is a county agent, boys' and girls' club leader and home demonstration agent. This was explained in the representations of the M. A. C. to complimenting the members and executives of the Wayne County Farm Bureau at the annual meeting of that organization held at Romulus on Saturday. This was about the most enthusiastic as well as the largest meeting of the farming industry ever held in Wayne county. The Grange hall being crowded to capacity at both the morning and afternoon meetings.

The annual report of Secretary-Treasurer Carmichael showed that the organization had had a very prosperous year, that the amount of business transacted exceeded the expectations of the officers, with future prospects very bright. The extension staff explained the projects for the coming year, broadening the scope of the work in each department. The seven members of the executive board were all re-elected by acclamation as follows:

August 1, Baute, Flat Rock; 1, Rogers, Belleville; Jas. H. Myers, Sampter; Ray T. Gibbs, New Boston; Ernest Bird, Romulus; Levi Charette, Livonia; Mrs. Maud L. Bennett, Plymouth.

A very excellent dinner was served by the ladies of Romulus Grange. The afternoon speakers included Mr. Campbell, state leader of hog demonstration work, and R. J. Baldwin, head of the extension department M. A. C. They spoke in particular of the fine work being done by the Wayne County Farm Bureau and also the fact that this was the only county in the state carrying on the three branches of work being pushed up to the college in the agricultural districts.

The new extension board will meet at Dearborn this Saturday to complete the work of organization.

HENRY FORD DECLares

BUSINESS IS BETTER

"Business is picking up in this part of the country, and the rest of the United States ought to be telling into line soon," said Henry Ford to the Journal Tuesday.

Mr. Ford got away from his new building projects long enough to talk a short while over the business outlooks. He was at his office in Dearborn, where plans for his new power project and factory at Green Island, near Troy, N. Y., are being whipped into shape, following the recent permit by the government to go ahead with the work.

Mr. Ford and his son, Edsel, president of the Ford company, have gone their usual winter visits to California or Florida to keep in touch with the period of readjustment.

"The worst is over," said Mr. Ford. "With the country getting back to work and people beginning to buy it will not take long for the situation to better. Of course, it will be different from the condition before the war. There will be more measures of economy in every way, but the volume of business will continually grow."

"Our factories are turning out at present about 3,000 automobiles and 200 tractors each day, which is pretty near the pre-war schedule, even with the smaller number of men employed. I expect the demand to increase just as regularly as it did before 1914."

Estimates from a reliable source place the number of men at work in the Highland Park Ford plant at about 24,000 men and at the Rouge plant about 6,000 men.

Questioned as to the possibility of the quick reabsorption of the large army of workers who were in the Ford factories before the recent shutdown, Mr. Ford declared that demand would have all to do with it, and repeated his belief that the business of the country would grow naturally to absorb all unemployed in every line of business.

"I understand that many men are leaving Detroit," he said, "and evidently they are going to where there are jobs. The publication of statistics to the number of unemployed in any community is often misleading, for many of the men so listed are either comfortably situated and are waiting for their jobs. The result of big figures of unemployment has a depressing effect on all lines of business and sets both buyer and seller waiting for something to happen that will start things going again."

"Under present conditions every man out of a job ought to take any work he can get. He will feel better and will help get business moving again. When there is a demand for him again in his old place his record is known and then he can get back if he wants to."

Everyone should make up his mind that he must take a loss for a while, employer as well as worker. It is the only way to get business back where it belongs. And if it brings that result this can hardly be called a loss."

"The condition which is just passing now ought to do more for world peace and disarmament than all the writing and speechmaking and parleying in the world." The war brought on a vast prosperity. What has followed the war has proved it was false.—Detroit Journal.

A very excellent dinner was served by the ladies of Romulus Grange. The afternoon speakers included Mr. Campbell, state leader of hog demonstration work, and R. J. Baldwin, head of the extension department M. A. C. They spoke in particular of the fine work being done by the Wayne County Farm Bureau and also the fact that this was the only county in the state carrying on the three branches of work being pushed up to the college in the agricultural districts.

The new extension board will meet at Dearborn this Saturday to complete the work of organization.

FOOT-BALL BANQUET

Saturday evening, March 5th, in the High school gymnasium, occurred the football banquet, given by the High School Athletic Association in honor of the football team. The athletic teams, the members of the school board and their wives, and the faculty were present, numbering about sixty.

At 6:45 the guests marched from the High school assembly room to the gymnasium and were seated at three tables prettily decorated with the school colors, orange and black, footballs being used as centerpieces; and, in keeping with the occasion, the guests seemed to exhibit regular football appetites. Mr. Winn, in the absence of Mr. Holfrich, acted as toastmaster, and toasts were given by Gordon Moffit in behalf of the athletic teams, by Mrs. Wigle in behalf of the faculty, and by Mr. Dolph in behalf of the school board. Then Mr. Winn presented the football boys with swimmers. After the toasts, Mr. Stuart, county manager of Boys' and Girls' club work, directed the entertainment by teaching several lively games, and the evening closed with an hour of dancing.

Much credit is due Mrs. Lapham, Mrs. Yerkes, Mrs. Chapman and Mrs. Willis who were the managers of the affair.

We feel that the event was a success, and we hope that the football banquet will take place along with the other annual institutions of the school. We are mighty proud of those football boys. When you see them parading the street with their coats thrown back displaying the huge orange "N" on the front of those black sweaters, smile at their vanity if you will—it is harmless—but remember always that if we can teach them to take life with football enthusiasm—and fair play, High school athletics shall have served its noblest purpose.

FORD INTERESTS DID NOT NEED A LOAN.

The New York Mail prints the following:

"Local officials of the Ford Motor company were loath today to discuss the affairs of the company, which became a matter of renewed interest with the announcement of the resignation of the seventh executive of the company, Hubert D. Hartman, assistant, secretary and general counsel."

"One solution of the mystery of the disintegration of the official personnel, however, was offered by a man close to Henry Ford, who says that some of the officials left by request."

"The list of seven Ford men now looking for jobs includes Frank L. Klingensmith, vice-president, W. C. Anderson, European chief, Louis Block, branch manager at Philadelphia, L. H. Turrell, auditor; Charles A. Brownell, advertising manager; the Rev. Samuel S. Marquis, sociologist, and head of welfare work, and Mr. Hartman."

"Klingensmith's penchant for amassing his listeners by talking big sums is said to be the reason of his resignation. In New York one day Kling, as his former boss called him, is said to have casually asked a banker at lunch: 'What's the chance of getting hold of $100,000,000 today?' Kling had the satisfaction of seeing the banker gasp, but it seems the latter took the proposition seriously and started out to raise the money."

"Soon after this Henry Ford's office in Dearborn began to be the mecca of men from Wall street anxious to let Ford have all or any part of the sum he wanted."

"Ford has no friendly feeling for bankers as a lot, and he refused to let any of them get near him."

"Is all but one. The story is told that he decided that in the interests of anthropology he should personally inspect one banker. So one was let in."

"With all the enthusiasm of his clan, this banker chap proceeded to unfold to Ford a plan for financing the great Ford plant. The plan soon revealed to Ford's satisfaction that the fellow was just like the bankers he had read about in fiction—his plan included a grip on the Ford industry in the interests of the banker and his associates. Ford terminated the interview in the middle by inviting the stranger to pick up his hat and his bag and not to slam the door."

"Meanwhile the big Highland Park plant, just outside Detroit, has re-opened, and employees are daily returning to work. And Ford himself has accepted his time when he wasn't having assistants and dodging bankers by developing a gasoline-driven street car and increasing the efficiency of his plant by equipping it more fully with automatic machines. In his odd moments he has been experimenting with a cheap substitute for gasoline."
