500 PEOPLE ATTENDED THE FORESTERS' PICNIC

A more delightful day could not have been desired than last Sunday, and the Foresters of Northville were most fortunate in having selected that day for their first annual picnic, which was held on the shores of beautiful Silver Lake. Early Sunday morning, Foresters and their wives and children were astir much earlier than usual on Sunday morning, for the ordinary family—and then there was a busy place as all gathered with their well filled lunch baskets to enjoy the outing. Autos and trucks were provided and the merry company of about 500 people were conveyed to the lake with no mishaps to mar the pleasure of the event. The committee in charge of the arrangements for the affair was composed of Roy Cramer, Louis Lanning, Arthur Todd, George Dixon, James Dickerson and George Maritz, and they had planned everything to the entire satisfaction of all.

At noon all gathered for the big feast and the contents of the well filled and carefully packed baskets were brought forth and a royal spread was served. After dinner came the games and sports. The boat race was won by Henry Hills, but if Bill Strausse had not lost his oars the result might have been different, but Hills said it would have made no difference. The ball game between the Foresters' team and the team from Whittemore Lake was an easy victory for the home team—a real walk away—with the score 10 to 0 at the close of the contest. Numerous other games and contests followed all contributing to the pleasure of the gathering. Children waded in the lake and many of the adults took a "dip" while others enjoyed sitting about in the shade visiting with their neighbors and friends.

It is the intention of the Foresters to hold a similar gathering each year and if they grow in popularity, as they will, of course, it will tax the committee to provide a suitable place to accommodate the crowd.

It was late in the evening before all had returned to their homes, tired but happy and generous in their praise of the hospitality extended by their gentle hosts.

NEW MOTOR LAW EFFECTIVE.
Motorists using Michigan highways are now traveling under the new speed law, which went into effect at 12:01 a.m. Thursday, August 18. At that time the law passed last winter by the legislature became operative. The new law provides for a bowing limit of speed.

Fifteen miles per hour in business districts of cities, towns and villages. Twenty miles per hour in residence districts of cities, towns and villages.

Thirty-five miles per hour on state highways outside the corporate limits of cities, towns and villages.

The motorist must exercise due caution and consider the rights of others using the highways.

The new speed law is one of several legislative measures adopted at the instance of the Detroit Automobile Club. The speeds allowed heretofore were obsolete because they were passed to govern conditions of 15 years ago. On an open road a motorist may drive without danger to himself or others at 35 miles per hour. Fifteen and 20 miles is not a dangerous speed in cities, as all motorists are allowed to travel at this rate in Detroit.

BURIED BESIDE HIS MOTHER.
The remains of Frank Asch, son of Theodore Asch, a former resident of this community, were brought to Schrader's funeral chapel last Thursday for burial. This young man died in France on August 5th, 1918, from wounds received four days before, and his remains were recently received at Hoboken, N.J. He is survived by his father and four brothers, all of the latter having been in the service during the World War. His mother died some years ago. Funeral services were held Saturday afternoon and the remains were escorted to Rural Hill cemetery by a number of his comrades of the American Legion. Burial was made in the family lot and let us hope that mother and son are enjoying a happy reunion in that brighter land, where peace shall forever reign.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. McNiece, who have been visiting at the F. P. Simmons home left Thursday for Missouri to visit Mrs. McNiece's mother, before returning to their home in Clermont, Florida.

FARMERS TO HOLD MASS MEETING.

Farmers from the several counties around Detroit have been called to a mass meeting at Franklin in Oakland county August 29th, by the executive committee of the Oakland County Horticultural society. Development of better marketing facilities in Detroit will be considered.

The fruit growers' executives have met in favor of pushing to early completion of the agricultural division of the Detroit Board of Commerce, former system of community markets in Detroit. They recently met with officials of the Pontiac Board of Commerce, who are operating a community market in that city. It was agreed that success of the Pontiac market, one at Adell, and another being organized at Mount Clemens would be greatly enhanced by organization of a similar system in Detroit.

It was pointed out that Detroit is the natural center to which the surplus food products of the state flows and that development of better distribution in Detroit is a great concern of the state's producers of food.

It is expected that in all several hundred farmers will be present at this meeting.

ODDFELLOWS TO HOLD PICNIC.

The Oakland County Odd Fellows association is planning for a big picnic and ball day for tomorrow to be held at Taylor's Walled Lake Shores on the south side of Walled Lake.

Besides picnic dinner the program will include dancing, games and sports and a ball game between the Pontiac Odd Fellows' team and the Milford Independent team.

P. L. Ream of Milford, is president of the county organization, and he has received word that Fred A. Rogers of Lansing, grand secretary, and Louis Crampot of Lapeer, grand master of the I. O. O. F. lodge of the state of Michigan, will both be present.

Everyone is invited to attend the picnic, whether members of the organization or not.

BISHOP HENDERSON TO LAY CORNER STONE.

Bishop Theodore Henderson, resident bishop of the Detroit area of the Methodist church, will spend Sunday, September 4th, at Farmington where he will officiate at the ceremonies of the corner stone laying of the new Farmington Methodist church and the new building of the Methodist Children's Home of Michigan. Dr. E. J. Warren, superintendent of the Detroit district, will accompany Bishop Henderson and participate in the ceremonies.

Mrs. W. L. Holden (Margaret Yerkes) of Detroit, spent from Wednesday until Friday of this week at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. P. Yerkes.

NORTHVILLE CHEMICAL CO.

THE LITTLE RD SCHOOL HOT-PASSING.

The dear school of a one-room rural school in Oakland county, has been founded, according to A. L. Craft, county commissioner of schools, and within a year the county, already in the lead in all other counties in the state in the consolidated school movement, will be covered with a network of rural-agricultural high schools, which will not only give students a secondary education, the equal of that available in cities, but will turn them out at the end of four years better able to fight the battle of life than are their city cousins.

Mr. Craft has been working for several weeks, assisting various school districts now proposing consolidation, examining their petitions and forwarding them to Lansing for approval.

"It is my opinion," said Mr. Craft, "that within a year there will be at least 25 new rural-agricultural high schools in operation in Oakland county, and that they will be giving the students education equal to that furnished in the high schools of Detroit or Pontiac."

The number of one-room rural schools will be reduced by one-half. At present, there are 180 one-room schools in the county and 22 two-room schools.

The proposed 12-grade consolidated schools will each include four or five school districts and there soon will be only 70 or 80 rural schools left. Oakland county quickly jumped into the lead in the movement. The new law became effective May 1st and by June 1st I had received four applications for consolidation, and one had been approved.

It is rather difficult to compare the courses of study to be offered by the consolidated schools with those given in city high schools. They are not similar except in the essentials. The city schools may retain certain advantages such as literature, music, oratory, and athletics. On the other hand the rural high school pupil will receive the careful preparation in essential studies and will be given superior laboratory advantages and training in agriculture along the lines now offered at M. A. C., and superior work in manual training and domestic science.

When he graduated he will be better fitted for the battle of life than is the average city high school graduate. All schools will be under direct supervision of the state department of public instruction.

I believe after the system has been tried and school buildings well equipped that it will not only prove a great advantage over the present system, but will be cheaper than maintaining so many small rural schools.

Mr. Craft already has handled all the preliminary work required in securing approval of applications for consolidation from grade school districts in New Hudson, Milford, Davison, Clarkston, Troy, North Farmington, Birmingham, Wixom, White Lake, Franklin, Auburn Heights, Highland Park and Novi. Other towns which consolidation is being urged are South Lyon, Holly, Wixom, Clintonville, Oak Hill, Southfield Center, Sylvan Lake, White Lake, Dearborn Heights, Highland Park, etc.

STATE WILL IMPROVE LABORATORY SERVICE.

In creating a laboratory service for hospitals throughout Michigan, has a long in the control of disease, will be made possible October 1st when the Bureau of Laboratories at the state Department of Health moves into its new quarters on the top floor of the new state office building.

With 149,542 specimens examined during the fiscal year ending July 1st the Bureau of Laboratories averaged 24 specimens to every physician in the state though the practice of many doctors is of such a nature that it does not require laboratory diagnosis.

Last year $1,648 tests were made, an average of 19 to every physician, compared to a total of 39,706 for the preceding year and an average of 9 to each physician.

Throat swab examinations showed the largest increase during 1920-1921, diagnoses for diphtheria numbering 57,555, compared to 23,066 a year ago.

Every phase of laboratory procedure, according to the annual report, reveals like increases with the exception of gonococci smears which decreased after hospitalization at state expense was discontinued. The upper Peninsula laboratory, located at Hancock, ran 1,000 specimens a year ago while this year it completed 8,032.

Michigan's new laboratories, will not be surpassed in equipment and scientific conveniences by any state laboratories in the country," declares Dr. R. M. Olin, commissioner of health. "Besides being fitted to give physicians more adequate service, it will now be possible to carry on scientific research which will eventually save thousands of dollars and lives for the people of this state."

OBITUARY: GEORGE GIBSON

At the funeral of George Gibson, which was held at his late home on Tuesday afternoon, the following was given by John S. Dayton of Plymouth:

George Gibson was born on a farm in the township of Mankin, near Wayne, Michigan, on December 25th, 1842. His father, John Gibson, came from Hull, England, and his mother, Mary Gibson, whose maiden name was Dawson, from Menstrie, Scotland. He was the sixth in a family of seven boys, and one girl, only three of whom, John and Robert, older brothers, and a sister Janet, are still living.

His parents were early pioneers in southern Michigan way back in the 30's, devoting their time during the day to clearing the forests, and at night burning timber and brush. In those days the country was sparsely settled and deer, wolves, wild cats and other wild animals abounded. The people living in that community were principally of the old New England stock, most of whom had migrated from England and New England to New York and from there to the middle west. It may be of interest to know that Mr. Gibson's father spent some time working in the nursery conducted by the famous Judge Patchin.

At ten years of age his father died and he was brought up by his mother. His early education consisted of several terms in the district school.

With the exception of a brief service as a teamster during the Civil war and a year at farming in Illinois, his entire life was spent in Wayne county as a farmer. At the age of twenty-six he married Catherine Speyer, who, with three sons, George H., James R. and Robert J., survive him. He died Sunday morning, August 21, following an operation at Harper hospital, Detroit. He was upwards of seventy-eight years of age.

The bare facts of his life have little significance, but the philosophy expressed in his relations with others as brother, husband, father and citizen deserves to be recorded.

It was his wish, that, at the time of his funeral, some one should briefly state what he stood for and this is what I shall endeavor to do. Those close to him tell me that during his last few days, when he left the end was near, he several times remarked that in his life he had stood for a principle which consisted of the dependent sincere thinking of all things that came before him and walked to see, consider and decide each matter as clearly and correctly as circumlocution would permit. What others might have said or done if, with him, little standing in precedent or authority except in so far as upon examination it failed with him to agree.

Master of his own emotions, in their onward movements he usually paid too little heed to the emotional side of others but he was not lacking in sympathy and kindness when such feelings could be expressed in deed.

He seemed to be always fair and straightforward and had no pretense with sham or pretense. He believed in saying "yes" when you asked "yes" and "no" when you asked "no".

I once had a talk with him regarding the bath, as it is administered in taking acknowledgments or in executing affairs, or as it is administered in court and he expressed views regarding them altogether consistent with his views regarding sham or pretense.

To him oaths were unnecessary. He knew, as most thoughtful people realize, that a man who would not tell the truth without an oath would not tell it with one. Even the tope and manner of administering oaths indicate clearly that the whole proceeding is a farce. You cannot hold men to purity and truth with a chain of words-honest purpose is the only anchor that will hold.

Living a life of earnest endeavor and unstinting in his efforts he could not bear shallow or confused thinking or aimless or irresponsible living.

Dominated by an exacting conscience, although not coming from zealously religious stock he early discarded all theologies and mythologies as either attempts at explanation of the unexplainable or as the fiction of priesthood. This attitude did not lessen, but rather deepened his concern over the destiny and happiness of mankind.

He believed that he should grieve not that men knew not him, but that he knew not men. He once remarked that, if there were a way to prevent an injustice from falling under the control of the designing and selfish, he would gladly leave his money to found a church that would teach others to be divorced from superstition.

He believed all the religion needed in this world may be expressed by the Golden Rule. He saw how we suffer by allowing our thinking to be done for us by others and believed that this would be remedied by rational education.

He believed in the whole and completed man-in his development physically, intellectually, aesthetically, socially, morally, and, in addition, he sought to learn of man's relation in the universe. He was willing to take the responsibility of his own acts, defining that all action should be rational and holding that every man should do live that, in looking back upon what had been done, each should be able to say, "That was my act." It was the best I could do under the circumstances. He was willing to assume the obligation in whatever came before him to do, recognizing the "oughtness" or "duty" in the matter. He held that life is a positive thing that it consists in actually accomplishing those things that are underlying fundamental to the idea that rational self-realization may be attained, rather than in restraining from certain things we are told not to do.

As you know he was temperate in his habits, and simple in his wants, as he considered it wrong to waste time and substance on non-essentials and his conception of the essentials was based on the needs of life rather than upon custom or public opinion. Among his personal notes I find the following quotation: "Coarse rice for food, water to drink, the bended arm for a pillow-happiness may be enjoyed even with these, but without virtue, both riches and honor seem to me like the passing cloud."

Burial took place in Rural Hill cemetery.

WHAT ARE YOUR DREAMS REALLY WORTH?

All folks have them—some good—some bad—some the right variety—some the day sort. Dreams—where do they come from—of what use are they—how do they benefit humanity? Can you dream more things than you can accomplish? What has become of all those early visions and ideals?

There are dreams of wealth—of large possessions—of many desirable things of life?

Those who dream of power—ruler ship by might of will—governing by weight of personality—directing by force of ability.

Paul was a man of dreams who tried to get the best from them. He had a vision one night and it affected the course of history—altered human destinies—let divine power reach the people of Europe.

A vivid story—Come and have part in it.

The Banker's first obligation is to safeguard the funds in his custody, and keep himself in position to meet all demands for their return. Every other claim upon him is subordinate to this. The banking business would disappear if this requirement were not strictly observed. It is not enough that a loan shall be "good" in the sense that there is ample security to guarantee its payment sometime; it must be collectible when due, if the banker is to be secure in his own position. He must be able to arrange the maturities of his bills so that his outstanding funds will always return to him in a steady flow, and that he may continually re-dispose of them to meet the changing needs of his customers. The funds which one person borrows in the spring may represent his surplus, while another person has at that time, and by fall, the latter will be at the end of his funds but claim the privilege of being a borrower in his turn.

As a bank derives its lending power from the community, in which it is located, serving only as manager of the funds given into its custody, it is evident that any change in business conditions that affects the amount of liquid wealth in the community will quickly affect the lending power of the bank.

A bank of itself does not create wealth. It is not an industry; it does not carry on production, and it cannot supply wealth to the community. It is a receptacle, a reservoir of the floating, liquid wealth of the community. Its function is to aid production and trade, by making this floating wealth more available and more useful than it could be without being gathered together. It is an agency for the more efficient use and handling of the community's wealth, but not for making wealth by any magical method, such as the printing press affords, or by creating deposits through loans. It is important to keep this in mind, because when people begin to complain that the banks or the government should make it easy to obtain credit, it is time to utter a warning.

Sound banking requires that somebody shall put a dollar of wealth into a bank for every dollar that the bank lends out, and when we speak of wealth we include the paper representatives of the liquid wealth, which is moving in trade.

The wheat, meats, cotton, lumber, coal and merchandise of all kinds that are being transferred are creating and depleting bank deposits as they move. It is through them that pools of deposits, or lending power, are created. When prices rise, the deposits are increased and as prices fall, they are decreased. These funds are the basis of the banking business.

Your car will give you five more miles of travel to every gallon of gasoline with Eccolene. Is not this worth trying?

You can sense the new life—increased power—greater smoothness—quick response—faster "get away" thirty minutes after you begin using Eccolene in your motor.

The accumulated results prove that Eccolene actually does save gasoline, prevent carbon troubles—reduce overheating—lessen smoke and noise—and produces a better running motor.

IT WAS NOAH WHO WAS SURPRISED.

At a recent meeting of the board of managers held at the residence of Superintendent Dennis on the House of Correction farm grounds here Dr. Mary Stevens, one of the members, told a rather apt story to illustrate her remarks that will bear repeating. The doctor, in her talk after luncheon, said: "Now I am really more than surprised at the work that has been accomplished here by Superintendent Dennis in so short a time. In saying I am more than surprised I might illustrate it by telling you a story." He said that Mrs. Noah Webster came home one evening rather unexpectedly and found her husband in the act of kissing her very good looking maid! "I am surprised at you, Noah," she said.

"No my dear," said Noah, "I am the one who is surprised; what you mean to say is that you are astonished."

"So," said the doctor, "I mean that in being more than surprised, I am really astonished."

EDDIE CANTOR IN "MIDNIGHT ROUNDERS" AT THE GARRICK.

The Messrs. Lee and J. J. Shubert will present their latest musical revue "Midnight Rounders" with Eddie Cantor as the star, for a special return engagement of one week beginning Sunday night, August 28th, this time at the Garrick Theatre. This review provided a spectacular finish to the season at the Shubert-Detroit in May and comes to Detroit again with new songs, new dances and new costumes. It marked the first appearance of Eddie Cantor, the popular star of Ziegfeld's "Follies," at the head of his own company. Nag Halperin, the wonder-girl, who sprang into fame overnight at the Palace theatre in New York last season heads the supporting company and Lew Hearn is featured.

"Midnight Rounders" differs from the various musical productions. It is the kind of entertainment so popular in New York after the regular theatres are closed. Thus it contains something of every type of amusement and is particularly notable for its speed and variety. Eddie Cantor sings several new songs in his grotesque make-up in vaudeville and also appears, for the first time in white face in two travesties one on an insurance office and another on a clothing store.

FAIR NOTES.

As in former years J. V. Huff is offering three special prizes for the best collection of bird skins. The first prize will be a silver thermometer bottle valued at $100. One Loaf Yeast Bread
One Loaf Graham Bread

One Small Container Layside Soap
The fireworks to be given on Saturday nights of the fair this year will surpass anything ever shown before and the programs will include many fine pieces 15x15 feet in size.

Poultry breeders will give the display of poultry this year of special interest. Already assurances have been received of a large number of pens from the best poultry breeders in this section.

The race program this year will be the best ever, and the purses have been increased to $250.

The boys' and girls' department this year will be no more than ordinary interest and Mr. Ross, who will have charge of this department, promises a fine display.

South Lyon—Sunday was the 28th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Jones and Saturday evening about 40 friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at their home east of town and gave them a complete surprise and helped them celebrate. ### ANNUAL REUNION OF BRIGGS SCHOOL

The pleasant shady grounds of school district No. 3, Livonia was the scene of another happy gathering of pupils, teachers and their friends Saturday, August 13th.

A beautiful picnic luncheon was served to all those who were present at the noon hour, the success of which was due in great part to Miss Nellie Riddle and Mrs. Ida Schrader and to the committee who constructed tables and seats.

The afternoon was given over to a program of speaking and to business. Roll call was responded to.
