Michigan News Tertely Told*T. R. RATE FALLS TO MARK OF 76.8

Why the two children and the children and the hearty, bearded gentlemen on the Christmas Seals smile and chant "Healthy New Year," is now obvious.

Three times during 1921 the state department of health announced reductions in Michigan's tuberculosis death rate. But the fourth and final report credits the state with a total of 2,700 deaths from the disease during the entire year and the extremely low death rate of 76.8 per 100,000 population.

Corrected figures for 1920 show that the death rate for that year was 85.0 and for 1919 85.8. If the 1920 rate had persisted in 1921, 545 more persons would have died with tuberculosis. Detroit reported 888 of the total, giving a tuberculosis rate of 82.8; and Grand Rapids reported 89 deaths, corresponding to a rate of 63. Of the total deaths 1,429 were men and 1,271 women.

Though the number of tuberculosis deaths decreased in 1921 the number of cases reported, 5,708, increased over the yearly average for the past 10 years of 4,002. This may merely indicate, authorities state, that cases are being reported better and the tuberculosis are seeking competent medical care.

With 14 counties visited since September the traveling clinic of the department, one of the agencies combating the plague, has examined 755 persons in the tuberculosis division. Of this number 119 were found to have tuberculosis and 162 were declared suspicious.

Requests for the clinic have been numerous, according to officials, that its itinerary is scheduled several months in advance. Lenawee, Sanilac, Huron, Clinton, Branch and Isabella counties will be visited next

FAY BAINTER IN "EAST IS WEST."

At the Garrick theatre for one week beginning next Sunday night and with Wednesday and Saturday matinees, William Harris, Jr., will present that dainty little star, Fay Bainter, in "East is West," the comedy of Chinese and American life by Samuel Shipman and John B. Hymer, which held the stage at the Astor theatre, New York, for two successive years.

That the popularity of the star and the play was genuine is evident from the fact that since leaving New York, Miss Bainter has played long and prosperous engagements in Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago.

"East is West" begins with a prologue—a scene on the Yangtze river, China, where little sing-song birds of girls are brought to the "Love-Boat," a sort of mart, to be sold. Three acts follow with scenes set in San Francisco, which include the Chinese quarter and Nob Hill, the exclusive residential section of the Golden Gate city.

As Ming Toy, the Chinese girl, Miss Bainter has added a very memorable characterization to those created by American players. It has stamped this young actress as one of the foremost players of the day.

WALTER HAMPDEN COMING

Since the popular acceptance of Walter Hampden three years ago, as a great contributor to dramatic art, he has been crossing up and down the land playing Shakespeare with profit to himself and edification to the play-going public. This season on a tour that extends from coast to coast his repertoire includes, in addition to his successful revival of Charles Rann Kennedy's famous drama "The Servant in the House," five Shakespearian plays, "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," "Romeo" and "Juliet," "Macbeth," and "The Taming of the Shrew." Mr. Hampden's continued success in this repertoire indicates a revival of interest in the classic drama. Perhaps it is another sign of our gradual growth away from the boorishness that has caused us to jibe at Shakespeare as "highbrow." Our scorn for anything that seems to emanate from a tall forehead shows signs of dissolving as we lay off the raiment of adolescence and approach natural maturity. Under Mr. Hampden's direction the old masterpieces are sold to throw with new life. Spiced action and a dynamic touch is one secret of Mr. Hampden's success. To revitalize the work of Shakespeare and let them again take their place in the theatre as entertainment is the aim of this star.

Mr. Hampden comes to the Shubert Michigan theatre next Sunday night and will appear in "The Merchant of Venice" Sunday night and Wednesday matinee; "Hamlet" Monday and Saturday nights; "The Servant in the House," Tuesday night and Saturday matinee; "Romeo and Juliet" Wednesday night; "Macbeth," Thursday night and "The Taming of the Shrew" Friday night.

STOP ROAD WORK PETITIONERS URGE

DEMAND THAT STATE ISSUE NO NEW BONDS FOR ROAD BUILDING IN 1928.

NOT LIKELY TO CHANGE PLANS

State's $60,000,000 Road Building Program Was Authorized in Referendum Vote in 1919 Election.

Lansing—Demand that the state definitely limit its road building program and issue no new highway bonds this year was contained in a petition with approximately 100 signatures received by the state administrative board Monday. Most of the petitioners were agriculturists.

While the state's 1922 road program already has been mapped out and there is scant likelihood that it will be changed at this late date, some officials found significance in the petition as the first tangible expression of a growing spirit of dissatisfaction, particularly in rural districts, over heavy taxes for road construction. This dissatisfaction has frequently been voiced in meetings of organized farmers.

The state's $60,000,000 road building program was authorized in a referendum vote in April, 1919, when wheat was selling for 16¢ per bushel.

This with the soldiers' $20,000,000 bond amendment, has caused the state's bonded indebtedness to mount rapidly with a corresponding heavy drain on the tax payer to meet interest. Farmers recognize that those bonds are a big factor in the amount of revenue that must be raised for state purposes and there can be little hope of reduced taxes until there is a halt in the accumulation of bonded debt.

Then came the Townsend law, offering federal aid in road building on condition that the smaller political subdivision, either the state or county, contribute its share. After the original legislative enabling act fixed $6,000,000 in one year as the limit of good roads bonds, the 1921 legislature boosted the limit to $10,000,000 annually to speed up road building and take full advantage of the possibilities offered in federal aid.

Saginaw, Mich.—Walter Nierling of Saginaw will go to trial at the present term of circuit court on the charge of killing Miss Lillian Galbraith, a telephone operator, November 23, 1919, 26 months ago, when he struck her with his auto near the fair grounds.

Nierling has just been arraigned in court. He stood mute and a plea of not guilty was entered for him. It is alleged that he was driving at an excessive speed.

The case has been put off until his time, the prosecutor desiring to try it after that of Michael Ryckel of Bay City, who was found guilty of killing a five-months old baby would come to trial.

If you are thinking of anyone and the fire suddenly blazes up, it is a sure sign that the compliment is returned.

If a fire lighted in the morning and then not replenished but forgotten is found burning in the evening, it is a sign of death.

If you find the fire still burning from overnight when you come to make it in the morning, it is a sign of illness during the day.

If any one succeeds in lighting a fine fire with a single match, it is a sign that he or she will make an amiable partner in marriage.

It was a strange feeling, if it could be called such. On the one hand Bryce Wharton, with strong, earnest love; on the other, trustful, sympathetic Billy Dover. What she thought, what sweet words of encouragement she might have had in mind to speak to the impetuous, young man whose handsome face would appeal to any girl's imagination in a vivid way, she was not allowed to express.

"I have told you just what my heart dictated," Bryce had spoken. "I must not ask you to tell me what you think of it, for it would be unfair to yourself and to your family." I only ask you to allow me to hope you will come in awhile—remember that, I am going to work at an ideal, to come back and tell you of it when I have reached the goal."

"You will be regretted now, and surely welcome then," murmured Billy, and with a brief handshake he was gone.

Headstrong and resolute, set upon an idea and determined to carry it out, Bryce strode down the lonely country road, in the direction of town. It had been a new task to him for the past month. It had been, as well, a new home to his cousin, Evan Gray. Both were orphans! Both had been summoned home from different colleges for an interview with wealthy John Gray, their uncle.

He was a generous-hearted, indulgent old fellow. He had been a bustle of note in his day and the gentry considered him a sprout of his own aristocracy. He was going on a long trip to Europe. His nephews had graduated. They were welcome to remain young masters of their house until his return.

The cousins found comfort, luxury and ease in their new life. They had a "lived-in" surrounding, and the Dovers were their nearest neighbors. The first time the young man met the fair daughter of the Gray home, the peerless, they immediately fell in love. He had found the fairest of the earth.

He soon began bringing in a Jimmy, coming when he reached the town. Evan Gray languidly settled down in the indulgence of home as though he were destined to last forever.

"I observed you drawing away when I heard of your leaving in the morning."

"A simple fact, that is all," replied Bryce, seriously.

"A journey somewhere?"

"No, I am going to the city to look for work."

"I cannot afford to waste a year for nothing," was Bryce's response.

"Sorry," yawned Evan, "going to leave the field to me again—the fair will be included!"

"She is worth any man's winning," replied Bryce, softly, and went into the house to finish his packing.

The latent aspiration in Evan's mind, if it might be designated as such, was to become an artist. He was a fair draughtsman, and might indeed become an architect.

Bryce wasted no time in minor clerical capacities. He went to a large firm of contractors, erecting a giant structure in the heat of the great winter. The overalls helped save the foundry, helped set up the mammoth stone pillars and found that he could do something.

He was given a large sum of money to care for.

His work was to stand above the fire, heating beside the portable furnace of heat red hot the bolts used in these and the girders together.

It was nearly noon when Bryce left.

Bryce held one of the heated rods ready to swing it to the center of the furnace. In a sudden moment attracted his attention. A man's neck was rising up in the steel.

He had a leather bag on the saddle before him, a revolver swinging a crowd in pursuit.

A sudden impulse inspired Bryce. He seized the pincer, a swing. With a ringing bolt cleared the air and struck the saddle directly in front of the horseman.

There was a dash as the saddle fell over, followed a streak of armor and the steed. Then horse and rider fell to the ground, and some men got up and ran, some were Bryce was left alone. He was alone superfluous. It was then he thought of the world, of the world around him, of the world he had known.

He was the most prominent man in the world.

He was the most prominent man in the world.

And here he made his second love confession to blushing Millie, and asked her to come to his wife, she had her friend hold up his shoulder and whispered sweetly,

THEATER CRASHES

ROOF OF MOVIE HOUSE, LADEN WITH SNOW COLLAPSES OVER CROWD.

CAPITAL STUNNED BY CALAMITY

Injured and Dead Rushed to Nearby Church Where 107 Bodies Have Been Identified.

Washington—Official police records

early Monday placed the known dead at 107, after elimination of duplicated names from the unofficial peak of 112

at which the toll of the catastrophe was placed late Sunday night. The list of injured stood at 134 with 16

listed as "seriously injured."

The official list, according to the authorities, contained the names of all those whose bodies had been recovered up to midnight from the ruins left when the roof of the theater, over-weighted with snow, collapsed on the audience which had braved the Saturday night storm to witness the comedy featured on the evening program.

The volunteer workers, including police, firemen, marines and cavalry troops, however, had practically concluded their search of the wreckage at midnight, the only portion of what had been the orchestra remaining to be searched being a "fat corner" in which it was not expected additional bodies would be found.

The exact number in the theater when the steel and concrete span of the roof buckled and fell under its three tons load of snow probably never will be known. The stories of perhaps 100 who got out uninjured have been reported. These account for a few more than 300 in the audience that was roaring in laughter at a failed comedy when the roof fell on them like a blanket, carrying down the front of the wide balcony in its crash.

Normally the theater has had every seat filled at that hour, and nearly 2,000 persons was its capacity. The same unprecedented snow fall which brought death to the venturesome kept the many at home. Street car traffic had been abandoned and streets and sidewalks were all but impossible with drifts.

The building stands in an acute angled corner at Eighteenth street and Columbia road, northwest, the heart of the most favored residence section of the city.

A pitiful stream of mangled bodies, dead and living, flowed all Saturday night and Sunday into the lower rooms of a Christian Science church a few hundred yards away. At the first word of the disaster, the place was thrown open to those stricken folk and the hundreds of others who came to search for their dead or injured.

Washington—Intoxicating liquors stored in government bonded warehouses cannot be withdrawn by the owners for their own personal use, the supreme court Monday held in a decision delivered by Justice McReynolds and dissented to by Justice McKenna.

ported from the bonded warehouses,

100 YEARS AND MORE

Weathering the storm of one hundred years and more, what grander monuments have we in this country today to the ingenuity of our forefathers and the enduring strength of good sound timber, than those old farm houses still standing here and there in many of the states as sound and as good as ever.

There's "shoddy" in lumber, the same as in cloth, and it's a mighty poor investment. Don't put that kind of stuff into your house; let us select the grades for you, and you'll have a house you'll be proud of.

Northville School Notes

Physical training is being expanded in the Northville schools more than ever before. Although we have no regular physical director, the various teachers are very proficient in this work and are putting the boys and girls through all kinds of athletic sports. Since the arrival of our new equipment it is a real treat to watch the youngsters learning to handle the Indian clubs, dumb bells and wands. Mrs. Babcock, Mrs. Zimmerman and Miss Barley are doing regular work in the gymnasium along this line and are certainly making the work interesting and profitable. The grade teachers are emphasizing the physical training in their respective rooms.

The new semester is starting off well and the pupils are applying themselves faithfully to their studies, a new system which has been worked out this year. The number of failures have been materially reduced. At the end of each week a list of failures is compiled by each teacher and sent to the principal, Mrs. Larins, who immediately comes with each student thus affected regarding their difficulty. By means of her help and encouragement the students are better enabled to remedy existing conditions.
