OBSERVED FATHER AND SON WEEK.

The meeting of the Northville Exchange Club on Wednesday was made an occasion for the observance of Father and Son week and at noon some twenty men, each one accompanied by a boy, gathered about the table at Hotel Ambler and enjoyed a social hour. At the conclusion of the luncheon President R. E. Brown introduced Rev. J. M. Barclay of Detroit who gave a practical and inspiring address to the boys and to the fathers present.

The speaker said we were living in an age when the world seemed to be smaller and an age in which we were enjoying a great many blessings and privileges which former generations did not enjoy. Discovery and inventions had drawn people nearer and nearer together, until now the whole world was a neighborhood and all men were neighbors. In a word of admonition to the boys he declared they were in the "gathering period" of their lives and urged them to gather all the good things to live for their future use, and admonished them to build their lives upon the foundation of truth.

Dr. Barclay was accompanied by H. T. Blakeley, who very kindly offered the use of his auto to convey the speaker to Northville.

CELEBRATED GOLDEN WEDDING.

A social event of more than ordinary importance took place over in the "North End" last Saturday evening. It was the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dickerson. About 45 guests were present from Northville and all over town. The children present included A. W. Dickerson, J. M. Dickerson, with their wives, Mrs. Mary N. Buckley and Mrs. Leona Buckley with their husbands, E. R. and J. R. Dickerson of Northville, and there were also 25 grandchildren. Two other daughters, Mrs. B. L. Crisler of Lake Odessa and Mrs. Charles Knight of Michigan Center, were unable to be present.

The wedding dinner was served at 6:30, the table being decorated with golden candles. The central attraction was the large wedding cake adorned with fifty golden candles. After dinner the ceremony of 100 years ago was repeated by the Rev. H. J. B. March, following which the evening was given over to social intercourse among the children and old friends. Finally the guests departed leaving the happy couple with the best wishes for many years of happiness to come.

WOMEN'S BUILDING FUND STARTED.

Subscriptions for the University of Michigan League total $27,500, according to a recent report of the treasurer of the Alumnae Council. Special gifts amounting to $1,910, which were entirely unsolicited, have been contributed to the building and equipment fund. Contributions to the campaign fund, entirely separate from the actual building fund, were reported as follows: Grand Rapids alumnae, $50; Detroit alumnae, $150; Women's League, $3,211.

Reports from the campaign committee of the University of Michigan show that $275 has been realized from the various projects which have been supported on the campus, such as a bazaar, and sales of flowers, candy, riding tickets, Michigan seals, etc. Besides, the money actually collected, $712 has been pledged by sororities who are giving up their annual spring parties to help the cause.

NORTHVILLE TO HAVE RIDING ACADEMY.

Something new for Northville has developed in the establishing of a riding academy at the stables at the Randolph home.

Harry Cole of Detroit, formerly with the Cincinnati Riding Academy, is in charge and has for hire six fine Kentucky saddle horses.

This pastime is fast becoming recognized as one of the most healthful of exercises and people of all ages are awakening to the fact that a few rides a week will put new color in the cheek.

Mr. Cole informs us that he has mounts that are perfectly trained and safe for ladies and children, when desired. He is prepared to give lessons in the saddle to beginners at very reasonable rates.

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Yerkes expect to leave soon for a trip to Phoenix, Arizona, where they will remain for a few months.

Miss Dorothy Debnar, a student at the U. of M., spent a few days during the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Debnar.

NOW WITH THE SATURDAY EVENING POST.

The Record received the following letter from Vern Judson, who will be remembered by some of our readers as a former employe of this office, and which will be read with interest by his old friends and acquaintances here.

Editor Record:

It may be of interest to you to know that instead of helping you "get out" the "Record," I am now assisting Cy Curtis in the publication of the "Saturday Evening Post." Instead of climbing over the fly wheel of a 1918 Gordon, I am now climbing around, over, underneath and all around a "double two-color" Web magazine press. My training at the "Record" must have been in preparation for this as a pressman on these presses must be a real acrobat, able to stand on his head, hang by the toes, crouch back of the neck, and other grand stunts that would make a circus performer turn green with envy.

But to be serious it is one of the greatest experiences and educations that any one in the printing game have, just to be in the Curtis plant for a few months. The only comparison that comes to me, to the methods at the Curtis and the ordinary commercial shop is the "ox cart" to the "motor train." And yet if you look over the "Past" or the "Ladies Home Journal" with an eye for criticism I think you will find that the quality of printing compares favorably with a dialogue or magazine you may find.

The presses I am on run the color inks of the "Post," running both sides of the sheet in two colors at one operation. The sheet is four pages wide and on a page nearly always runs in a different combination of color. It is not unusual to be running sixteen different colors at one time each of the four fountain being divided into four pockets and the rollers cut between the pages to prevent a spread of ink.

Although I am working in Philadelphia, I couldn't be moving my family there, but could across the Delaware into New Jersey. We are about forty-five minutes out of "Philly" on the main line of the Philadelphia & Reading to Atlantic City. In a town about the size of Northville.

After seeing a bit of the "East" I think Michigan is a real place to live. Now, when you are reading your copy of the "Saturday Evening Post" think of your old friend.

WILL MOVE PLANT TO MICHIGAN.

O. B. Grant of Portland, Oregon, was the guest the first of the week of E. R. Gilbert. Mr. Grant is interested in a new patent tire carrier and garage machine for tire work and came to Fenton for consultation with the Fenton Machine Co. and Die company, which we understand was satisfactory and these two designs will be manufactured here.

One of the new devices known as the Clark Tire Carrier and changer and is fastened on the rear of any car for carrying tires.

It is a very simple device and will enable even a small child to change tires on a car within a few minutes of time. The other machine is equally simple in design and is made expressly for garage use.

Both devices can be manufactured at a nominal sum and should become rapid sellers. Mr. Grant came to Fenton on the advice of Mr. Gilbert as Fenton is practically in the center of the automobile industry.

Mr. Grant expects to move to Fenton later and reside here.

Bringing his company to Fenton is a big boom for the Tool and Die plant. We understand this is a $200,000.00 corporation. Mr. Gilbert, who purchased his home through the Nelson agency in Fenton, is responsible for bringing this big concern to Fenton. The machinery, patterns and dies will be shipped from Oakland, California, to Fenton by Fenton Courier.

FELL AND BROKE HER HIP.

The many friends of Mrs. Jay Hazen of Novi will regret to learn that she met with a serious accident at her home Sunday morning. She had gone out doors to sweep away the snow, and in some way slipped on the ice and fell with great force, breaking her hip. Schrader Brothers were called and she was conveyed to Grace hospital in their ambulance.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Murphy of Detroit, spent Saturday and Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. T. G. Richardson.

Needs Explaining.

A pompous old gentleman was addressing a gathering of English workmen and during his remarks he urged them to "Be industrious! Shun idleness and remember that sloth is the parent of necessity." As he paused to let this sink in a man in the rear rang out: "Look here, mister, I've heard it said as 'ow necessity is the mother of invention—' if so be as it is, then, sloth is invention's grandmother, and, summat's wrong somewhere."

DAIRYMEN TO ESTABLISH DAIRY PLANTS.

In all large milk distributing centers there are times in the year when there is a scarcity of milk, and it becomes necessary to bring in milk from great distances. At other times of the year more milk come to the city than can be utilized economically in order to be assured of a sufficient quantity of milk during the periods of scarcity, the milk distributors have been compelled to buy more milk than they have needed during the surplus season. This milk, called surplus, has been largely wasted, because it has been unprofitable to manufacture it into dairy products.

Dairy authorities here for years looked for a solution of this knotty problem, but to date none of the suggested remedies have proved successful. The Michigan Milk Producers' association in consultation with government and state authorities have evolved a plan, which bids fair not only to solve the vexatious surplus problem, but also insure a stable, dependable supply of milk at all times of the year.

THE COTTAGE GARDENER

STARTING PLANTS FOR GARDEN—SOWING SEED

HOW TO DEVELOP THE BOX PLANTS

Transplanting and Nursing, the Key to Success in the Art of Growing Things.

HEAT AND SUNSHINE NEEDED

Tender Shoots, Require Careful Attention From Time They Come Through Ground Until Planted in the Open.

It is an art to produce from the small vegetable or flower seed strong and healthy plants that the owner will be proud of when they are set out in the open.

It is intensely interesting to note the quick response plants will make to a little attention and nursing.

Tomato, cabbage, pepper and other vegetable plants, as well as any of the numerous kinds of flowers that are first planted in flats in the basement or placed in an upper floor window where there is heat and sunlight must have attention. Next to warmth and sunlight in importance is sufficient moisture to urge growth.

When the plants have reached an age when they are large enough to be removed from the flat, without injury to the roots, they should be transplanted to small pots or berry baskets anything that will hold the soil and a little moisture. Careless sowing of this purpose very well.

Another transfer of the plants to a larger container should be made as soon as the roots are visible.

An indication that the basket or pot is not large enough. It will be noted that a larger container will soon be found too small, and that an additional repotting will be advantageous. If a larger and healthier plant is desired. Many careful gardeners make at least three transplantings before the plant is set out in the open. By that time it is strong enough to battle the elements with the possible exception of frost.

In setting the plant in the open, by this careful and interesting method of transplanting the roots intact with the mass of soil clinging, may be transferred in a manner that not the slightest injury is done to the tender roots and soon the plant has taken hold in its new home in a manner that will astonish the inexperienced cottage gardener. In fact it is not uncommon for plants in the more advanced stage of development to be in blossom or bearing small fruit.

Plants such as tomatoes transplanted in the open in this manner should be staked or once better still, have the stakes in the ground before the patches may be seen on the roots and sometimes on the lower part of the stem.

PLANT POSY SEED EARLY

Every home and nature lover wishes nice flowers and nearly everybody wants early flowers. By planting the seed in flats or boxes long before it is time to plant seed outdoors one can have an early start and early blossoming. Plenty of warm sunlight will be necessary. Lightly soil the boxes and plants are set in a normal watering.

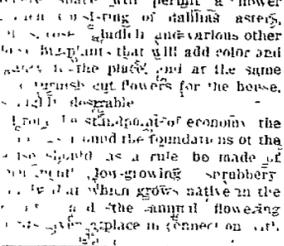

HOME GARDEN FLOWERS

What to Grow to Beautify Your Home and Lawn.

Old Fashioned Posies May Be Relied Upon to Produce, Will Add Beauty to Premises.

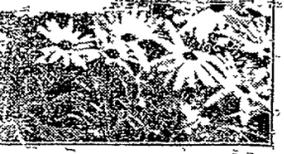

When making plans for the home vegetable garden all the emphasis should not be placed upon vegetables. A position should be made for planting a few flowers as well. Where a large garden is available in the front or side of the house, the foundation of the house, or in a bed separating the house from a neighboring property, the vegetable garden, the old-fashioned zinnia, petunia, and cosmos are among the most cultivated flowers and go a long way toward brightening up the general appearance of the home surroundings. Where space will permit a flower bed consisting of mallinas, aster, gladiolus, and various other flowers is the place for the same.

It is desirable to economize the space around the foundation of the house by growing scrubber plants that grow native in the garden and the annual flowering plants to replace in connection with.

GREEN FOOD FOR CHICKENS

Winter care of fowls must, in so far as possible, duplicate the natural conditions of the regular production season in spring and summer. Thus some form of green, succulent food is very useful to keep the birds in a healthy condition and their systems in tone. If no succulent food is available, Epsom salts (fed at the rate of one pound for every 100 birds) in the drinking water about twice a month, makes a satisfactory substitute.

Are they in this community? Are they among the people with whom you associate? Are they with the neighbors and friends with whom you do business?

If so you want to know what is happening in this community. You want to know the goings and comings of the people with whom you associate. The little news items of your neighbors and friends—now don't you?

That is what this paper gives you in every issue. It is printed for that purpose. It represents your interests and the interests of the town in your own community. It is your own subscription book. If not, you are it to yourself to see if it is not there. To do so.

LINCOLN PATENTS MAY BE INVOLVED

DELAWARE INTERESTS CLAIM FORD DID NOT BUY ALL ASSETS OF COMPANY.

LAWYER NAMED TO INVESTIGATE

Henry M. Leland Says Purchase Price of $2,000,000 Included All Company's Assets.

DETROIT—A clash of jurisdiction between Federal Judge Arthur J. Tuttle of Detroit and the federal district judge of Wilmington, Del., impends, it became known Sunday, with the concentration of attorneys for the Delaware receiver of the Lincoln Motor company, that the recent sale of the plant to Henry Ford did not include the purchase of patents, copyrights and other intangible property.

Ralph Stone, president of the Detroit Trust company, which was receiver of the Lincoln company, and his attorney, Harold H. E. Jones, under whose name the firm has resumed operations, are in Wilmington this week in conference with attorneys for the Delaware receiver.

It is understood that with the formation of federal judges of Massachusetts, New York and Pennsylvania, in which states the company owned tangible property, or the sale of the plant by Judge Tuttle, and the subsequent vacating of his order of sale by the Delaware judge, Judge Tuttle went ahead with the sale without recognizing the intangible property.

Attorney William C. Bryant, law partner of Mr. E. Jones, said Sunday that the suggestion is to a "question of the law." He is of the opinion that the issue was raised because the local profession of Delaware is not in favor of the receiver's sale being conducted outside the state in which the company was organized.

Mr. E. Jones said he believes a decision in the Delaware court in favor of the "highly" Tuttle, and that the receiver of the Lincoln company, declared Sunday that he did not believe the receiver would have any trouble in getting the assets of the company which he purchased for $2,000,000.

The list of assets of the Lincoln company, Mr. Ford included all assets and property of every name and nature of the land said.

Buffalo, N. Y.—Two men were arrested and more than 20,000 counterfeit rum labels were seized Saturday by federal agents here. The men arrested are William J. Dodge and Christopher J. Keane. The spurious revenue stamps and labels bearing the name of a once popular brand of whisky were found in Dodge's apartment. The federal agents said they ascertained that stamps and labels similar to those seized have been widely circulated throughout New York state.

Los Angeles, Cal.—Four "mystery" witnesses, two women and two men, were led to the district attorney's office Monday to tell what they know that might touch off the murder of William Desmond Taylor.

MILLIONS LOST IN STOCK GAMBLING

BISCHOFF CORNERED WITH LIABILITIES OF $4,500,000; ASSETS ABOUT $1,000.

BIG PROFITS LURE INVESTORS

Promise of 100 Per Cent Returns in Few Weeks Baited Poor to Turn Over Savings.

CHICAGO—The admission by Raymond J. Bischoff in federal court Monday that while he had borrowed upward of $4,500,000 from poor investors in the last two years, he had less than $1,000 available in cash, led to a raid on the offices of Leslie Harrington.

Three employees were arrested and books and papers seized, but Harrington could not be found. It was declared he had departed for the east Monday morning. According to the police, Harrington also had "borrowed" sums estimated as high as $1,000,000 from Lithuanians on promissory notes from poor investors on the promise of rich returns.

The three employees arrested, included Luke Byrne, $50 a week president of a $5,000,000 corporation known as the United States Novaculite company. Several others were being sought, including John Heald, who conducted a office under the name of the People's Investment company, and Alexander Rejowski, who was said to have represented organizations known as the American Rubber Products and National Rubber Products companies.

That Bischoff, Harrington and others who offered big returns on small investments, were working together although not openly related in business, was charged by detectives. Bischoff, told Judge Landis that he had loaned some money to Harrington, and one of Bischoff's attorneys appeared at the detective bureau to furnish bonds for Harrington's employees under arrest. In a conversation with counsel for the creditor, Bischoff was declared to have attributed his downfall to the operations of Harrington.

As security for the six months notes of which he promised to pay 100 per cent interest, Harrington put up collateral in the shape of shares of stock in the Novaculite company, incorporated in Delaware. The par value of each share was given at $10. The company according to Harrington manufactured a sort of cement used in road making from a kind of gravel found in Illinois.

As in the case of Bischoff, none of the investors were declared to have actually been paid exorbitant rates of interest and they brought their investors to Harrington's office. It was said that Harrington employed 40 agents.

MANIAC SON KILLS FATHER 80

Crazed Man Also Injures His Sister and Terrifies Port Huron.

Port Huron, Mich.—Cornelius Scully 80, was slain Monday by his insane son, Anthony Scully, 40, and Mrs. James Sloane, sister of the demented man, is in a critical condition from hammer blows and knife wounds inflicted by the maniac. Following the murderous assault on his father and sister Scully left the house and for a time terrorized the neighborhood before police arrested him at the ferry dock.

Scully, Sr., died within an hour after being taken to a hospital. His skull had been crushed with a hammer by the maniac. At the county jail Scully told an incoherent tale of a quarrel which he had with his sister, relative to the disposition of some property owned by the father. Up to a few months previous, he had been an inmate of a hospital for the insane at London, Ont., but was released as cured.

MUST MAKE GOOD FOR DAMAGE

Say Germany Must Pay U. S. $400,000.00 for Loss at Sea.

Washington—American claims against Germany, amounting to $400,000,000, because of loss of life and property at sea from German submarine attacks, will be protected to the last dollar, before the United States will agree to return property seized from German subjects during the war, it was learned authoritatively Monday.

This decision, reached by the administration, will be embodied in legislation soon to be urged upon congress by President Harding.

A Joyous Idealist

By ALVAH JORDAN CARLH

"Look up," rallied John Lane cheerily. "You'll get over the eyes if only you don't take a glimpse at the sunshine and the blue sky once in a while."

The life of the office brought him down on the broad back of the bookkeeper with a broomway stare and they raced him all day with a good nature.

"Don't be like a quadruped hunting for a grain, and never look up to see if it's in the air or not," he said, "proceeded Lane."

The aged bookkeeper took up with clearing the air.

"Confidentially," observed the bookkeeper, smiling now, "I wasn't mooning or bliv'ing, but I was trying to figure out how I was going to spare enough from my mouth to spend for a double cradle."

"You don't mean it," cried Lane boisterously.

"Twins, yes, I do," he said. "I'll be married, Saturday night."

"Isn't it strange, now," exclaimed Lane. "Double cradle? Got a friend who has one, anxious to get rid of it."

The bookkeeper followed Lane as he moved away with a gleam of marked suspicion in his eye. Looking back for five years, he could recall many and many instances where this power of happiness had sprung into the breach to face the needs and troubles of others.

Always he seemed to be most providentially equipped to act as almoner or practical advisor. When Ned Dobbs, a clerk, had broken down in health and had to be sent to Colorado, Lane had bobbed up miraculously with a railroad ticket.

"Stand in with the official, see?" he had interrupted with an audacious smile.

Right now he lifted from his desk a bouquet done up in paper and with it advanced to the desk of Miss Ava Reader, the stenographer.

"For mother," he whispered rapidly. "Getting better and better every day, I hear."

"Yes, thanks to you," replied Miss Reader with humid eyes. "The operation you paid for has saved her life. I hope our constant prayers bring you blessings. And now you go and rob your garden."

"Nonsense! Ridiculous! Thousands left—one solid mass of blood!"

As to those acres of indur bloom, as to the friends who had overflows to give away in winter, and double cradles and railroad tickets, this assuring romanticist glided over his imaginary friends and possessions too lightly for the office force to explore the real facts.

With his more artless benefactor Lane was rich, lived in a regal home probably with extensive grounds, seeing that a bouquet on every suitable occasion was readily forthcoming.

If pretty Ava Reader ever suspected that this great spoiled philanthropist was given to extravagance, she adored him all the more for the sacrifice, the unselfish devotion to humanity that must be the sole mainspring of his generosity.

She was the best to show solicitude when one day word had come by phone that he was ill. By the end of the week it was said that he was under the care of a physician.

Ava went to the cashier and asked for Mr. Lane's home address.

"Queer," remarked the cashier, looking over his books, "but Lane never gave us that. Never had occasion to ask him, for this is the first time he ever mis-er'd a day." Ava mentioned this to her mother. The old lady immediately went to a kitchen storeroom where she kept odd pieces of string and waste paper.

"Yes, I saved it," she said, unfolding the paper that had surrounded the flowers Lane had sent. "I forced his name written on in pencil and a passer bearing the name of a laundress. Here it is."

It was late Saturday afternoon when Ava started out to visit the laundress. The people here gave her the address of Lane, and she looked surprised and almost dismayed.

The fictions of her stanch and helpful friend were apparent as she located a poor tenement and was shown to a room on the floor below the attic. From inside came a babel of juvenile glee.

Upon a couch in the sparsely-furnished room lay Lane, pale and attenuated, but smiling bravely and encouraging half a dozen ragged, unkempt little ones to continue feasting upon ice cream and cakes set on a table.

In one of the windows was a little rude box filled with growing flowers. This, then, was his royal abode that two by four window space, his "solid mass of bloom."

Ava glided to a corner of the hall and had a good cry. Then she hurried home. There her mother joined her with companion tears. Thence both departed in a hilly carriage an hour later, to remove John Lane from discomfort, and almost squallor, to their own neat, comfortable home.

"Grand of the world, but couldn't help it," confessed Lane, and so ways his way face full of sunshine.

"So many needed what I earned more than myself. And see the friends I've made. You two alone are enough to fill a lifetime with joy. Don't you see there's nothing worth caring for in life but love, and my heart is full of it for all humanity."

"Particularly for you, Ava," he supplemented next day. "What say?"

What Ava said gave to Ava's mother a loving and beloved son-in-law before the year was over.

A Daughter of the Frontier

The faint picture Burt Dawson fancied he had never seen, and for a minute or two he paused, screened by the leafy verdure. A girl, tall, fair, and filled by pitcher at the spring. Ere she took it up to carry it to the house, two hundred yards distant, she stood looking into the face of the radiant sunset.

"Her eye brightened as young Dawson stepped into view. 'I start on my mission in the morning,' he said. 'It will seem a lonely jaunt, more of a wilderness than ever after the beautiful days I have passed in this haven of rest.'

"My uncle has told me," said Eloise, and paused there and a faint film seemed to dim those beautiful eyes and a quiver crossed her face. 'He fears you are taking a dangerous risk and—'

Again she paused. Her glance dropped as Burt approached nearer. He had taken her words to heart.

"And you?" she asked gently, and his voice, calm and composed, fell on her ears. "I have brought you trouble," she said. "I wish that you would not undertake this perilous mission. My hands began to tremble, and she held them pleadingly upon his arm. The tears came into her eyes."

His arm crept about her as she lifted her glance. She could not help but read the earnest longing in his honest eyes.

"Don't go," she whispered. "Oh, for my sake, let me go. I dare not—"

In a moment Burt had her tear here, and from his eyes he darted towards the house, a hunted, frightened look. He gave a quick start, and his hand went out to the door, and he was gone.

Burt had been so busy in the morning that he had not had time to see the district in connection with a new enterprise, a school property. He had seen that the school property of the district was in a state of neglect, and he had been appointed as trustee to see that it was in a state of repair to make it a more comfortable place for the children of the district.

He had seen that the school property of the district was in a state of neglect, and he had been appointed as trustee to see that it was in a state of repair to make it a more comfortable place for the children of the district.

One day, however, Burt had a forecast of a storm. He was out of town, and he had been out for some time. Another child in the house named John, however, had been by one of the windows, and he had seen the old man. Burt was walking toward him, and he had seen the old man. Best Crabs From Chesapeake Bay

The Chesapeake bay blue crab the largest specimen found along the Atlantic coast is considered the best. While the specimens were very plentiful a few years ago it is being found that unless a closed season is declared they will become scarce and high priced as formerly. The little per cent, found within a few shells are considered a delicacy, while the larger crabs are used for food. The fish is so extensively used for food in that part of the country.
