FRENCH BLAST RIFFS FROM EL BIBANE PEAK

Take Rock-Rimmed Fortress From Tribesmen After Terrible Fighting.

Elz, French Morocco.—Bombs and bolts from 150 airplanes and 10,000 men blasted 1,000 Rifians from the rock-rimmed fortress atop El Bibane peak when the French launched a furious counter attack against the precipitous stronghold.

The two-day air squadrons, including naval patrols, bombed the heights for hours before the ground forces advanced. El Bibane had been captured the day before by French Rifles, but the tribesmen had rallied and the French had sought vengeance. When the planes drizzled death from the sky, the Rifles suffered 400 dead, and the French bought their portion of the mountain.

Under the cover of the smoke unleashed across the ridges after ten days' hard fighting, the soldiers hit the heights again, driving their machine guns into place before rushing forward for the last scaling assault on the peak where they hoped to obliterate the memory of the costly defeat by a liberal shedding of Riffian blood. The enemy replied with a burst of concentrated rifle fire, the riflemen being sheltered by flanking rocks, but the attackers covered the first 500 yards with slight losses.

Then the Rifians fled back to shelter down the eastern slope, hoping to escape into the defiles on the other side of the valley. But, they were caught at the bottom, where the slopes cases find the valley contour under the fire of armored cars and tanks and the mechanized cavalry, which had scaled the mountain while the battle was proceeding on the summit. These movements took many Rifians prisoners.

The bulk of the infantry, in one attacking column, climbed steeply up to the north of El Bibane.

Riflemen and griffades forced the Rifians out of the blockhouse at Dar Berch, and for the first time the attackers could see the Rifians massed at the summit of El Bibane. By noon the engagement was over, and the Germans, a bit fatigued, were moving into the Bagdad country to the south.

Public Inquiry of Air Service Wins Approval

Dr. W. Morrow of New York, head of the president's and a member of the board of J. P. Morgan & Co., called the adjournment of the board.

FURNISHES BOOKS TO WORLD'S EXILES

Church Club Aids Workers in Remote Places.

New York.—The Church Periodical Club, a unique co-operating agency of the Episcopal church, has prepared an appeal to the general convention of the church at New Orleans for books, magazines, pamphlets, even newspapers—old and new, and on every subject—to carry on the work which it voluntarily assumed 27 years ago.

This organization's task is to keep the mission workers of the church, especially in the out-of-the-way places of the world, supplied with reading matter.

A globe-trotting "ady," entering the hut of a missionary in one of these waste places some years ago, found him perched on a ladder, his head bent back, scanning the columns of an old newspaper which had been pasted over a stovepipe hole. It was the only thing he had to read. That was the inspiration for the founding of the club.

In the intervening years its work has extended to every part of the world. It supplies not only Bibles, prayer books and hymnals, but scientific works, fiction, magazines, newspapers, picture cards and calendars, games, sheet music, and phonograph records, all free.

It maintains a score of "traveling libraries" and is practically the sole support of half dozen well-equipped permanent libraries in various parts of the world.

The particularly appealing feature of the club's work is in supplying reading material to those who are isolated in the far off places. Children of the missionaries are not neglected. To them are sent the latest children's books and games.

During the last year 31,761 current periodicals from 13,000 friends of the club were sent to the workers all over the world. 2,138 Bibles were distributed, 3,666 prayer books, 63,399 books of theological or secular character were supplied to institutions of individuals, and 521,188 old, magazines and papers, 212,029 Christads, and Easter cards, 33,052 pictures, and games, and 9,254 pieces of music and records were put into the hands of workers all over the globe who otherwise would have had little if any of these diverting articles of diversion to beguile their leisure hours.

Planned "Gateway of Peace" for War Dead

Geneva, Switzerland.—Prof. B. N. Hause, once personal adj. to Pres. Woodrow Wilson, on making his first visit to the League of Nations, he helped to advise, revealed that he took an option on 1,000 acres along the shore of Lake Geneva, six miles east of Geneva, when the General was being drafted in Paris. The plan was to erect a large pavilion and a great "gateway of peace" in honor to the war dead—but the idea was abandoned when the United States did not enter the League.

Colonel Tilney told newspaper respondents that the League was only half a league while the United States Germany and Russia were outside, urged American participation without covenant obligations.

"Had the United States joined the world at entente and joined the League war would have been banished for all time," declared Col. Tilney. He added that he had outlined the essentials of the peace protocol—navigation, security and disarmament—if the draft of the covenant he wrote in 1918 had President Wilson thought he went too far.

Cowboy Killed in Rodeo
at Spot He Shot Enemy

Salt Lake City, Utah.—Roy Kvet, twenty-four, cowboy and adopted son of Charles B. Irwin, rancher of Cheyenne, Wyo., was killed when a horse he was riding in a steer-rope contest in the rodeo here fell with him. The rider sustained a broken neck and fractured skull when crushed beneath his mount.

The accident occurred on almost the exact spot and almost a year to the day that Kvet shot and killed Harry Bowles in a rodeo meet here last year. Kvet was acquitted for murder on a plea of self-defense. He also was the second son of Mr. Irwin to die while roping a steer.

No Babies Born in 30°

Years on Japanese Isle

Tokyo.—The population of the Ryukyu Islands, which lie between Japan and Formosa, is rapidly dying off, declared S. Sakurai, a health officer of the Okinawa prefecture, who attended the recent health conference in Tokyo.

Malaria is blamed principally for the decrease. In eight villages of the Yonaguni group, it was said, not a baby has been born for 30 years.

In Nezoko village, Mr. Sakurai said, one sick old woman was the only inhabitant. In 1922 an appropriation of 10,000 yen was made by the government to combat malaria in the islands.

Make Cotton Substitute

Reutlingen.—Cutting of cotton imports into Germany by half may result from a new method of weaving cloth with hemp, invented by the German textile expert, Doctor Günther.

The hemp, it is expected, will replace in part the cotton formerly used in the cloth. There are about 5,000,000 acres of moorland in Germany adapted to the raising of hemp.

THE FORD MOTOR COMPANY ESTABLISHES NEW BLACKSMITH SHOP

Installation of the largest battery of electrical heat treating furnaces in the world is in progress at the River Rouge plant of the Ford Motor Company, where units which ultimately will absorb more than 40,000 horsepower are being erected in a new building 1,250 feet long by 270 feet wide. The installation consists of 117 furnaces, most of them of Ford construction, requiring 30 to 500 electrical horsepower each.

The structure in which the furnaces are being placed, known as the spring and upset building, is the eighth large plant occupied at the Rouge plant within a year. It is located about one-half-mile northwest from the oldest furnaces and is adjacent to the new pressed steel building.

The electric furnaces will serve in the heating of steel for the manufacture of Ford cars springs, flywheel magnets and small forged or upset gear blanks and motor parts and in general blacksmith work. In addition to these activities the manufacturer of the heavy pressed steel crankcase for Ford cars occupies a section of the 340,200 square feet of floor space. A number of "cold heading" machines shaping steel bolts and other parts are being installed.

A total of 2,700 men will be employed in the building, most of them transferred from the Highland Park plant with their departments. To keep up several hundred machines in order a force of 300 skilled tool and die makers and machine repairmen are required. The making of springs employs 900 men, crankcases another 300 and the upper parts 300. There are 200 general blacksmiths.

MONGOLS HALT

U. S. EXPLORERS

Order American Asiatic Expedition Out of Country:

Urga, Mongolia.—The Mongolian government had ordered the third Asiatic expedition of the American Museum of Natural History under the leadership of Roy Chapman Andrews, to cease its exploration and scientific work and to leave Mongolian territory, alleging that Mr. Andrews has violated the terms of his agreement with Mongolian scientific organizations.

The Mongolian government alleges that besides carrying out his scientific work in the domain of paleontology, geology and zoology, Mr. Andrews' expedition also has engaged in topographical observation work and has employed a number of suspiciously military-wise persons.

Mr. Andrews also is accused of carrying on political propaganda and stirring up the Mongolians against "the Red Bolsheviks."

Long Having Trouble.

New York.—Exclusion of the Andrews expedition from Mongolia was not unexpected officials of the American Museum of Natural History said, since Roy Chapman Andrews, the leader, recently reported "unusually difficult conditions" in his relations with the territorial authorities.

Museum officials are hopeful.

Despite the expedition order, the situation might be clarified before the expedition accepts quits the territory.

Finds Santa-Dune Race.

Peking.—Stone implements and weapons of a race of men who lived thousands of years ago among sand dunes on the shore of a lake since swallowed up by the Gobi desert, have been found in the interior of Mongolia by the expedition under Mr. Andrews.

These primitive men bored the fossilized remains of the eggs left by the dinosaurs, and later reptiles that roamed the Asiatic landmass some ten million years ago, Mr. Andrews said. They used the same purpose

the shells of a gigantic ostrich long since extinct.

Traces of Earliest Man.

Mr. Andrews relates his expedition has uncovered traces of the earliest type of man ever discovered. He has named this the "dune-dweller" of Mongolia, using the name of the site of the find. "In these dunes dwelt, we believe we have found the earliest type of man's habitation in the area."

So far only in Mongolia last spring the expedition has traversed more than 4,000 miles, penetrating as far as the Altai mountains in far western Mongolia.

Learns Stranger Who Aided Him Is Brother

Lancaster.—"Hello, I need any advice you can give me. I'm kind of stuck with this thing."

An old man, hearing a California house had driven up alongside a small truck that had developed a flat tire along the old Philadelphia turnpike in the vicinity of Lancaster. The driver of the car had seen the plight of the truck driver and was willing to give a ride. The two men joined forces and soon had the truck in running order.

Then the owner of the truck noticed that his driver made a qualmous was a California man.

"I've got a brother, somewhere in California that I haven't seen for 17 years. Maybe you know him? He's Milton Barnish, I'm Aaron Barnish and live over there at Lancaster."

"Maybe I do," replied the stranger, as he drove away.

Later in the day Aaron Barnish returned home and was surprised to find his acquaintance on the road sitting on the porch.

"Hello, Aaron," said the stranger. "I'm your brother Milton. First time home in 17 years. I live in Los Angeles."

Prison Reform Laws Help to Empty Britain's Jails

London.—Probationary methods for squirts and the "Borsal" treatment for young people have been responsible for a marked decrease in the population of British prisons, so much so that more than twenty jails in England and Wales, or one-third of the total, have been closed since 1914.

There are now only about forty persons in use throughout the country and these are not fully occupied.

A home office official says fewer and fewer people are being committed to prison because the tendency now is to reform a man or woman if it be at all possible. The increased use of probationary methods has worked well, and in the opinion of the official the time is not far distant when prisons will be used only for habitual criminals with whom all attempts at reform have failed.

Wobbles in Jail-Break Foiled by Cold Water

Fargo, N. D.—I. W. W.'s lodged in the Cass County jail here attempted to break for freedom smashing doors and wrecking cells. Freedom was within reach.

Unable to cope with the prisoners single-handed, Sheriff John Ross issued an "SOS" call to the local fire department.

Eight-inch streams of water were played on the rioting prisoners until they retreated to their cells.

When the Worm Turns

By M. and R. M. TERRELL

(© 1925 Western Newspaper Union)

All his life Phineas Olmstead had been a good Samaritan. He had always believed in giving man and the beast of the dumb. The night was different. Lola, the thin, clad maid waiting before Olmstead's book store, his face as expressionless as though it had been gnawed out of rock, needed no words to portray his condition. Good old Phineas didn't hesitate a second. He took the stranger by the arm, took off his heavy Mackinaw and forced it on the coatless Aerolite and marched off swiftly for his homelike little bungalow.

They finally reached the cheery bachelor home. Phineas, who kept impossible hours at his book shop, was accustomed to midnight house visits. In reality he had a "fix" going on the old-fashioned hearth and something hot for his chance guest to drink.

"Mr. Olmstead, your name should be Mr. Prince," the stranger summed up his sentiments as they smoked in front of the crackling fire before turning in. "I've heard of your pranks, sir. But you're too keen a gambler; you're taking a long-shot chance on me. My stock? It's as old as the hills and as much a bore. I'm down and out. Well, let it go at that. And you took me in the right way. I would have frozen to death out there. No, I didn't see your light in the back." Mr. Olmstead, are you making a habit of this good samaritan bunk? Most men are very girthy."

"You're strong there, Mr. —" "Call me the exception that proves the rule."

"Most men are too old at heart if you give them a chance. Exception. There's no room in my boy. I'll share my dough with the very first fellow that comes along who needs it. He may return the gift some day."

"One question, Mr. Olmstead, and then you can show me some corner to put the hat in," he remarked. "Haven't you ever had that admirable habit of yours picked by somebody?"

"Only three times in twenty years experience," Phineas acknowledged truthfully. "A poor young devil, he has never once ever been switched with it on me. Dick Budhauer, who is our leading banker boy, once did me out of a hundred and five dollars; he is our town's terrible example. We never paid me $27. Once I found him trying to git his daddy out of jail." He chuckled. "You see, Experience old chum, you're barking in the wrong tree. I'll make up that davenport if you'll never come back. No, I'll trust any man around."

"Well, you'd better hide that wallet sticking out of your coat pocket, Mr. Olmstead. It's making rings at me. There might be money in it."

"I'll take the chance on you, Exception."

"Supposed a burglar took it before morning. Where would your faith fail you?"

Phineas awoke the next morning, the same old determined-looking old-timer. He sat up in his bed, his watch in his hand, and his wallet from the coat pocket. The stranger's bed had been made neatly back into a daybed. There were signs of a hasty breakfast in the kitchen; Phineas could remember no noise that was all!

Olmstead dressed quickly and sought his old friend, Detective Jack Saywood, and poured forth his story, turning into that wise bird's nest again. Saywood was a decent sort; he didn't say "I told you so," and he didn't laugh.

Together they searched most of the dark gathering places below the "dead line." Excepton was a long shot, he never showed at all!

Saywood walked over to the bookshop with Phineas. As they entered Phineas' cubbyhole of an office, Mr. Excepton, who was the only occupant and who strangely was reading, jumped to his feet and started speaking at once.

"Mr. Olmstead," he exclaimed. "I've been looking for you everywhere. Here's $127. Todhunter wasn't so bad. I only had to scare the devil out of him. That blackfaced Hastings—Don't look at my right eye. It's a knockout, sir."

"Todhunter?" Hastings sputtered. Phineas, the detective, contented himself with a near smile, which would let him out all right, either way the story went.

"Why, Mr. Olmstead," the young fellow cried. "A man writing truth like yours has got to have a clean slate no exceptions. It was up to me. Team, you're the only good Samaritan who runs 100 per cent to the good."

Phineas heard himself saying, "Ah, Excepton, you forgot my watch?"

"No, I had that last night, but I held it over. I'm the chap who exchanged with you, years ago. Here it is. I've never locked it because, funny thing, that watch of yours stuck in my craw."

Saywood took a hand. "See here, where's that wallet?" he began belligerently.

The Excepton who had proven the rule looked up in unfeigned surprise.

"Good Lord, Mr. Olmstead, you don't think I—Surely you remember getting up in the night and chucking it in your laundry basket?"

Recollection came to Phineas. Also his old faith.

"Boys, kick me for a knucklehead!" he cried. "Sure, I got up. I'd forgotten all about it. Let's eat—on me. Excepton, your name must be Prince."

REVOKE PASSPORT VISA FOR RED M. P.Coolidge Approves the Action Taken Against British Solon

Washington.—Shapurji Saklatvala, Communist member of the British house of commons, has been refused admission to the United States to attend the inter-parliamentary union here next month as a British delegate.

Secretary Kellogg announced that instructions had been cabled to London to revoke the passport visa already granted Saklatvala. He explained that this action was taken under the immigration law because of inflammatory and revolutionary speech by Saklatvala in parliament and elsewhere.

Mr. Kellogg's announcement was issued after he had conferred with President Coolidge.

The decision is of course in conflict with the views of Chairman Frank of the foreign relations committee. The senator said he thought it was neither wise nor wise to exclude the Communists in preventing his colleague Mr. Kellogg said.

The department has instructed the London consulate to advise the visa applicant to withdraw his application if inconsistent with the nomination. It is reported that he made the following statement:

"I am going to America as a friend of the working classes. British imperialism ought to establish in the first place a work for a Revolution and for the day when the workers will control the whole world. But before that comes in with us to face the old system."

In crossing the Himalayan range, the expedition reached at sometime at altitude of 19,700 feet.

Coolidge Plans to Address Farmers in Chicago Dec. 7

Washington—President Coolidge plans to address the convention of the American Farm Bureau federation to be held in Chicago December 7 to 8. He informed O. E. Bradford, president of the federation, in reply to an invitation, that he expected to accept. It is the belief of Secretary Jardine that the period of agricultural emergency is passing. He favors legislation to foster co-operative marketing but aside from that he feels that agriculture can work out its own problems and will be better off for it.

STATE NEWS
IN BRIEF

Elkhorn—A special election
was held in Jordan, Mich., last evening, overwhelming majority giving a voter mandate to the Southern Michigan Light and Power Company to furnish light and power to that village.

Bay City—Paul E. Payne, six-year-old son of Daniel J. Payne, of Hampton township, owes his life to the presence of mind of his younger brother, who pushed him into a cistern when his clothes caught fire following a gas line explosion.

Marquette—Two guards on the wall of the State Branch Prison here prevented the escape of three prison inmates who attempted to gain their freedom in much the same manner that Eddie Weissman and three pals made their sensational getaway last June.

Battle Creek—Frank S. O'Grady, a farmer here for the Michigan Central railroad, has modest claim to the smallest farm in the world. His place is about a yard square, and contains a corn crop of one sunflower stalk with a single ear on it. O'Grady says he hopes the arid land of Petoskey—one of the first areas in the general campaign to lengthen the summer tourist season in this region has been taken by the Pere Marquette railway company going through Full man's service out of Petoskey October 31. In other years the close of the tourist season usually was set for late September.

Lansing—School children must be taught to walk on the left side of concrete roads and to look to both right and left before crossing, every wherefore Thomas E. Johnson, superintendent of Public Instruction,
and Frank P. Rogers, State highway commissioner, said in a joint letter to school teachers.

Cadillac—No auto drivers are expect ed to be much higher this summer, ac cording to George Wager, sales manager of the Michigan Potato Growers' Farmers Bureau. Small grower pota toes in the larger markets are getting 12 cents a pound, Mr. Wager said, and will tend to hasten the de mand for stemmings.

Grand Rapids—William Koffman,
Amana township farmer, was just 325 and hopelessly weak when he lost his temper because his neighbor had taken his fence and over ran his crops. He inflicted several cuts on himself but did not find itself. He pleaded guilty in Circuit Judge Pethke's court.

South Haven—The English ship
"Huntington" loaded with clays
is due to arrive at this port October 17. Former shipments of clay for the 150-mile paper mill have been deeded at Michigan City, but although it is the Chamber of Commerce which negotiates, no date was set. The "Huntington" will be the first to go along with the paper mill this fall, according to officials.

Marquette—An election was held for trustee of the prison in Jordan, Mich., and the one to be chosen was selected yesterday. It was decided at the election to move
the prison to the village of Jordan, as far away from the city as possible. The new location will be the one now occupied by the old prison building.

Grand Rapids—The city council met in a few weeks ago and ordered the installation of a traveling bridge. It is believed that the bridge will be built across the Grand River at the corner of Division and Franklin streets, where the city has now a temporary bridge.

Alma—Classes were put under way
at the co-educational agricultural institution in Alma, which is close to the city park and is the dormitory of the same as attendance figures of a year ago. An exact figure is not yet available, but it is believed that the record of last year when over $2,000 cent for the students' enrollment were men to exceed this year. It is a record that few educational institutions in the country show.

Lansing—The state government will proceed at once to increase and condemn land necessary for a 240
foot right-of-way for Grand Avenue,
from Mt. Clemens to Eight-Mile road,
a 260-foot right-of-way on Grand River average from Oxford west to the Farmington cut-off, and a 260-foot right-of-way on Grand River east to the Farmington cut-off to the village of Farmington. Recommendations for these purchases have been approved by the state administrative board.

Lansing—The state public utilities commission has authorized the Ford Hydro-Electric company to incorporate and do business in Michigan. The company, which is one of the Ford string of hydro-electric projects, has its headquarters in Wisconsin. The Michigan company is capitalized at $25,000, all of which is taken up by the Ford interests. A power plant is being developed on the Menominee river near Iron Mountain. Property owners in the vicinity of the project
may protest the use and condemnation of flowage land.

It is now known that the new construction of the Michigan and Wisconsin hydro-electric projects will be done by the same contractors.

This fall there is a distinct shift in travel, from auto to boat. The route of 1,000 miles in 25 days is a hard one, but the facts are that a sail can keep up 40 feet though the air is moving from 15 to 25 miles an

Spirituality of Music

Music is down in its nature; it is material as well as spiritual. Its material side we comprehend through the sense of hearing and comprehend
through the intellect; its spiritual side reaches us through the fancy or imagination so it is in use of the highest class and the emotional part of us.
